

Nº

PERIODICAL

ML5
.M85

30
8.16.
1873-74

New

THE

MUSICAL TIMES,

AND

SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

—
VOL. XVI.
—

 4041. 230
1/16*

LONDON

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.,

1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 35, POULTRY (E.C.).

NEW YORK: J. L. PETERS, 599, BROADWAY.

PUBLIC LIBRARY
OF THE
CITY OF BOSTON

9899

MUSICAL TIMES

185,660

Sept. 28, 1895

SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR

VOL. XVII

CITY OF BOSTON
OF THE
PUBLIC LIBRARY

INDEX TO MUSIC IN VOL. XVI.

PIECES WITH SACRED WORDS.

No.		No.
361	He in tears that soweth (A song of Victory) Ferd. Hiller.	376	Lord, how long wilt Thou forget me? (Psalm xiii.) Mendelssohn.
366	O Lord, Thou art my God Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouley.	379	The strain upraise of joy and praise Arthur Sullivan.
368	Sweet is Thy mercy J. Barnby.	380	Lord Christ, when Thou hadst over-come From Haydn, by V. Novello.
369	The light hath shined upon us (Christmas) E. Silas.	381	O Zion, that bringest good tidings (Christmas) J. Stainer.
370	From the rising of the Sun (Epiphany) Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley.	384	They have taken away my Lord (Easter) J. Stainer.
372	Four settings of the Kyrie Eleison Franz Schubert.
373	The Russian National Hymn Arranged by J. Barnby.

PIECES WITH SECULAR WORDS.

No.		No.
362	We happy shepherd swains Joseph Netherclift.	374	In the merry spring T. Ravenscroft.
363	Wreath ye the steps to Great Allah's Throne (Paradise and the Peri)... .. R. Schumann.	375	Come, Dorothy, come Swabian Volkslied.
364	Silent night Joseph Barnby.	37	Sing on with cheerful strain Mendelssohn, arranged by J. W. Elliott.
365	Requited love Fred. Archer.	378	Lake and waterfall E. H. Thorne.
367	Good night, good night, beloved Ciro Pinsuti.	382	The Three Chafers H. Truhn
371	Lady, see on every side Luca Marenzio.	383	Good Night Gustave Carulli.

GENERAL INDEX TO VOL. XVI.

LEADING ARTICLES.

	Page.
A Musician's Autumn ramble on the Continent ...	771
A Musical Reverie ...	39
Anglican Chant, The origin of Arrangements ...	574
Bach's Christmas Oratorio ...	773
Bach and Handel ...	347
Birmingham and Hereford Musical Festivals ...	597
Bristol Musical Festival ...	235
Church Music ...	272
Editing ...	267
English Opera ...	707
Exhibition Music ...	8
Glasgow Musical Festival ...	40
GloUCESTER Musical Festival ...	307
Handel's Theodora ...	635
Hanover Square Rooms ...	103
London Musical Season ...	744
Modes and Tones ...	203, 603
Modern Music, The drift of ...	443, 475
Mozart's Zaubergeflöte ...	135
Musical Neighbours ...	71
Musical Remains of the Ancient Church of England ...	446
National Training School for Music ...	173
New Music ...	353
Old Music ...	709
Poetical basis of Music, The ...	380
Royal Albert Hall Concerts ...	411
Schubert's Masses ...	673, 742
Small places where they sing The Licence of Artists ...	571
To Mendelssohn via Moscheles ...	7
Touching up the Masters ...	739
Two Theorists on Operatic Reform ...	171
Two Musical Festivals ...	539
	379
	669

LONDON CONCERTS.

Alexandra Palace ...	106
All Saints' Choir School ...	322, 417
Ancient Britons ...	45, 450
Andrews, Mrs. Holman ...	45
Archer, Frederic ...	178
Bach's Passion Music ...	73, 450, 455
Bache, Walter ...	44, 361
Baucutt and Blount, Messrs. ...	12, 321, 713
Bayard Cricket Club ...	108
Beaumont Institution ...	281
Bending, Edwin ...	45
Best, W. T. ...	109
Bible Office Choral Society ...	744
Birkbeck Institution ...	75, 685
Blagrove, Mr. and Mrs. ...	109, 544
Booth, Otto ...	140
Bourke, W. R. ...	75
Bow and Bromley Institution ...	76, 322, 712
Bridge's, Mr. F. A., Concert Party ...	322
British Orchestral Society ...	10, 384, 416, 449, 479
Brixton Choral Society ...	323, 481, 545, 638, 712, 775
— National Schools ...	511
Brompton Cricket Club ...	321
Bülow, Herr Von ...	108, 322, 361, 712
Burdett Hall ...	75, 480
Buttery, Horace ...	140
Callcott, J. G. ...	108
Cervantes, Senorita Esmeralda ...	583
Chelsea Literary and Scientific Institute ...	676
— Congregational Church ...	776
Child, Mr. ...	384
Christ Church, Bloomsbury ...	578
— Choral Society ...	450
Church Choral Society of London ...	177
City of London College Choir ...	139, 385
— Middle Class School ...	713
Coenen, Mr. W. ...	417, 449
College of Organists ...	686
Craven Hill Congregational Church Service ...	455
Crouch End Choral Society ...	744

Crystal Palace ...	9, 43, 74, 76, 106, 176, 382, 415, 447, 479, 510, 577, 675, 711, 743, 774
Downs Chapel, Hackney ...	744
Duvernoy, M. ...	514
Essipoff, Madame Annette ...	512, 544
Exhibition Concerts ...	106, 319
Eyers, H. R. ...	544
Gardner, Charles ...	139, 544
German Gymnastic Society ...	685
Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred ...	480
Gladstone, F. E. ...	280
— Organ recitals ...	545
Gloucester Hall ...	44
Goddard, Madame (Farewell Concert) ...	11
Gottschalk, Miss Clara ...	417
Gounod's Choir ...	11
Goutin, Madame De ...	417
Great Northern Musical Society ...	109
Greville Place Church ...	384, 513, 776
Hackney Town Hall ...	480
Handel, Lecture on ...	76
— Festival ...	478, 541
Hatton, J. L. (Benefit Concert) ...	44
Henman, Miss Fanny ...	361
Her Majesty's Opera ...	71, 106, 137, 176, 448, 479, 510, 542, 577
Horne, Miss Ellen ...	712
Hornsey Choral Society ...	416
Jewell, Madame Rebecca ...	139
Jubilee Singers ...	108
Konss, Madame Liebe ...	713, 776
Küster, Herr Gustave ...	140
Ladbroke Hall ...	12
Leslie's, Henry, Choir ...	44, 74, 107, 415, 449, 511, 583
Levy, M. ...	361
Lindberg, Miss Alie ...	108
Lindo, Miss Grace ...	744
Lochner, M. R. ...	545
London Church Choir Association ...	76, 712
— Gregorian Choral Association ...	73, 177, 511
— Society for Teaching the Blind ...	45, 178, 322, 361, 514, 545, 584, 675, 744
— Vocal Union ...	46
Macfarren, Mrs. John ...	109
Markham Square Congregational Church ...	45
Marsh, Frederic ...	360
Mendelssohn Scholarship Fund ...	480
Monthly Popular Concerts ...	322, 385
Moritz, Madame Henrietta ...	109
Mozart and Beethoven Society ...	12
Musical Artists' Society ...	583
Musical Evenings ...	282, 322, 712
New Hall Middle Class School ...	362
New Philharmonic Concerts ...	109, 138
North-East London Academy of Music ...	480
North London Schoolrooms ...	75
Onslow Hall ...	384
Parker Street Schools, Drury Lane ...	455
Pauer, Herr (Lectures) ...	44, 361
Peckham Choral Society ...	12
Philharmonic Society ...	43, 75, 107, 138, 177, 479, 511, 543, 577
Phoenix Amateur Musical Society ...	511
Poplar Town Hall ...	280
Prentice, Ridley ...	110, 512, 776
Promenade Concerts ...	206, 281, 321, 605, 606, 675
Purdy, Miss ...	513
Quebec Institution ...	384
Railway Clearing-House Musical Society ...	281
Reed, Mr. and Mrs. German ...	481
Reeves, Sims ...	583
Richards, Brinley ...	139, 512, 545
Royal Academy of Music ...	176, 577, 744
— Albert Hall Choral Society ...	10, 43, 74, 107, 319, 359, 382, 415, 448
— Concerts ...	711, 744, 774
— Italian Opera ...	74, 106, 137, 176, 479, 511, 543, 577
— Society of Musicians ...	108, 513
— Standard Musical Society ...	76
Russian Lady Vocalists ...	544
Sacred Harmonic Society ...	75, 383, 448
Saint Anne's, Soho (Passion Services) ...	41, 455

Saint George's Glee Union ...	12, 46, 108, 139, 280, 322, 360, 385, 417, 450, 480, 513, 583, 606, 638, 686, 713, 776
— Church, Bloomsbury ...	776
— Vestry Hall ...	46
— James's Institute ...	713
— John's, Waterloo Road ...	322
— Jude's Institute ...	384
— Mary, Abchurch ...	417
— Mary, Haggerstone ...	481, 606, 639
— Mary, Boltons ...	512
— Paul's Cathedral ...	384
— Saviour's, Pimlico (Harvest Festivals) ...	281
— Simon Zelotes ...	480
— Stephen's, South Kensington (Harvest Festivals) ...	281, 686
— Thomas's Hall, South Hackney ...	321, 480
Sauerbrey, Herr and Madame Schneegans, Madame ...	512
Scott-Siddons, Mrs. ...	545
Shinn, Geo. ...	583
Shoreditch Town Hall ...	178, 360
Silas, E. ...	12
Sleigh, Charles, Music and Readings ...	139, 544
Sloman, Dr. (Cantata) ...	481
Sons of the Clergy ...	544
Southwark Choral Society ...	109, 512
Stafford, Madame ...	45, 108, 417
Stocken, Miss Annie ...	514
Sumner, Mr. W. D. ...	139
Surrey Chapel Service of Song ...	686
Thomas, John ...	417
Thorne, E. H. ...	178, 578
Tolhurst, George ...	109, 139, 514
Tolmers Square Church ...	109
Victoria Hall ...	450
Wagner Society ...	76
Waite, Miss Isabel ...	10, 108, 320, 361, 383, 416, 449, 513
Walker, Master H. ...	544
Weale, Miss Isabel ...	360
Welsh Choral Union ...	417
Westbourne Hall, Bayswater ...	178, 544, 583
West London and Kilburn Musical Society ...	480
Wheeldon, George ...	417, 512, 584, 713
Wydford, Miss Florence ...	281
Wynne, Miss Edith ...	139
Zimmermann, Miss Agnes ...	178
	108, 513

COUNTRY CONCERTS.

Aberdeen ...	118
Aberystwith ...	618
Abingdon ...	24, 722
Adelaide ...	89, 618, 691
Alford ...	89, 754
Allioa ...	493
Alnwick ...	24
Alresford ...	24
Alton ...	89
Andover ...	523
Anstruther ...	493
Arbroath ...	493
Armagh ...	159
Ashford ...	494
Ashton-under-Lyne ...	89
Ashton-upon-Mersey ...	787
Aylesbury ...	557
Banbury ...	722
Bangor ...	619
Barbadoes ...	252, 331
Barking ...	395
Barnsley ...	89
Barnstaple ...	89
Barrow-in-Furness ...	395
Basingstoke ...	332
Bath ...	284, 523, 787
Batley ...	787
Beckenha ...	89
Beddington ...	523
Bedford ...	494, 557
Belchamp Walter ...	332
Belfast ...	24, 56, 119, 252, 332, 366, 494

GENERAL INDEX.

iv.

	Page.		Page.		Page.
Bideford ...	494	Forest Hill ...	24	North End ...	651
Bilston ...	426	Frieberg (Saxony) ...	120	Norwich ...	57, 285, 462, 557, 755
Birkenhead ...	56, 89, 284, 494	Gateshead ...	90, 755	Nottingham ...	285, 692, 723
Birmingham ...	56, 284, 332, 523, 650	Gillingham ...	589	Northampton ...	788
Bishop's Stortford ...	284, 523	Glasgow ...	285, 396, 494, 524, 722	Otley ...	216, 619
Blackpool ...	426	Glastonbury ...	186	Oxford ...	25, 160, 367, 427, 524
Bolton ...	56, 557, 691	Gloucester ...	524	Paignton ...	651
Bombay ...	159	Golcar ...	90, 788	Paisley ...	25, 120, 427, 651, 692
Bootle ...	56	Goole ...	494	Parsonstown ...	333, 368, 397, 427, 496, 692, 755, 788
Boston (United States) ...	494	Goring ...	366	Paulton ...	788
Boxford ...	523, 650	Gourock ...	557	Peckham ...	427
Bradford ...	159, 426, 523, 691	Grange over Sands ...	120, 495	Penzance ...	285, 397
Bridgetown ...	734	Gravesend ...	366	Pera ...	397
Bridgewater ...	366	Greenock ...	120, 524	Perth ...	120, 524
Bridport ...	366	Gringley-on-the-Hill ...	24	Peterborough ...	558
Brighouse ...	722	Guernsey ...	461	Peterhead ...	368
Brighton ...	332, 691	Guildford ...	396	Philadelphia ...	558
Brisbane (Quee Island) ...	284, 332, 395, 557	Hackney ...	366	Pickering ...	186
Bristol ...	691	Hadleigh ...	495	Plaistow ...	333
British Columb ...	523	Haggerstone ...	557, 755	Plaxtol ...	285
Brixton ...	395	Halifax ...	366, 495, 651, 692, 723	Plymouth ...	120, 253, 333, 558, 589, 723
Brompton, Kent ...	426	Halifax (Nova Scotia) ...	160	Pontefract ...	91, 285
Brooklyn (New York) ...	523	Hanley ...	651	Pudsey ...	333
Brussels ...	691	Harpenden ...	524	Pulborough ...	397
Burnley ...	89	Harrogate ...	24, 56, 90, 160	Putney ...	368
Burslem ...	24, 89, 332, 395	Hartlepool ...	186	Queenstown ...	651
Bury St. Edmunds ...	119, 284, 366	Hastings ...	90	Racine (Wisconsin) ...	216
Buxton ...	619, 651	Haverhill ...	120	Ramsgate ...	333, 368, 496, 652
Camborne ...	56, 332	Hawarden ...	90	Rathfarnham ...	253
Cambridge ...	119, 395, 494, 754	Hawley ...	285	Raunds ...	558
Canterbury ...	691	Hereford ...	90, 396	Reading ...	253, 333, 496, 788
Cape Town ...	215, 619, 651, 691, 788	Heywood ...	396	Redruth ...	285
Carbrook ...	524	High Ferrers ...	427	Retford ...	121, 285, 397, 525
Cardiff ...	691	High Wycombe ...	524, 755	Richmond (Yorks) ...	397
Cartmel ...	215, 619	Hitchin ...	524	Ripon ...	397
Castleford ...	24	Holywell ...	120	Rochester ...	428
Catford Bridge ...	426	Hong Kong ...	427	Ross ...	428
Catsfield ...	494	Honley ...	160, 524	Rotherham ...	333, 368, 788
Cheetham ...	494	Horncastle ...	56	Rothwell ...	25
Chelmsford ...	119	Horringer ...	367	Rugby ...	723
Cheltenham ...	119, 395, 461	Horton ...	427	Runcorn ...	121, 368, 428, 496
Chesham ...	651	Huddersfield ...	396	Rushden ...	525
Cheshunt ...	24	Hull ...	396, 788	Ryde ...	496, 619
Chester ...	722	Hungerford ...	396	St. Andrews ...	91
Chesterfield ...	56, 119, 395	Huntingdon ...	524	— Louis (U.S.) ...	525
Chislehurst ...	366	Isle of Cumbrae ...	769	— Minver ...	253
Chislet ...	494	Jarrow-on-Tyne ...	332, 427	Sadden ...	755
Christchurch (New Zealand) ...	159, 186, 651	Jersey ...	619	Salisbury ...	368, 496
Cirencester ...	426	Kandy (Ceylon) ...	427	Scarborough ...	91, 121, 253, 333, 428, 496, 692, 723
Clapton ...	426	Keswick ...	396	Seacroft ...	253
Clifton ...	56, 494, 691, 754	Kidderminster ...	186, 495	Selkirk ...	121, 525
— Hampden ...	691	Kilmarnock ...	396, 495	Sheffield ...	216, 368, 397, 428, 462, 496, 525, 619, 692, 723, 755, 789
Clitheroe ...	89	Lancaster ...	252	Shorwell (I. W.) ...	187
Clooney, Waterside ...	186, 722	Leamington ...	24, 90, 160, 396, 427, 462	Shrewsbury ...	723, 755, 789
Coakbridge ...	426	Lee ...	462	Sidcup ...	91
Cockermouth ...	89	Leeds ...	56, 367, 396, 619, 651, 723, 788	Sittingbourne ...	160
Coggshall ...	366	Leek ...	25, 90, 367, 427	Skelmorlie ...	91, 160, 462, 619
Colchester ...	494	Leicester ...	120, 462, 557, 692, 723, 788	Sligo ...	428
Colnbrook ...	395, 754	Leighton Buzzard ...	56, 367, 755	Slough ...	558, 723
Cork ...	24, 215, 284, 651	Leith ...	57, 495	Southampton ...	57, 692, 755
Crawley ...	788	Lewes ...	723	South Hackney ...	496
Crossbills ...	754	Lincoln ...	120, 495, 524	Southport ...	121, 285, 755, 789
Croydon ...	332, 754	Lindsay (Ontario) ...	91, 495	South Norwood ...	57, 723
Cupar-Fife ...	89	Liverpool ...	25, 57, 91, 120, 186, 215, 285, 332, 367, 396, 427, 462, 495, 557, 619, 692, 723, 755, 788	South Shields ...	693
Dalkeith ...	24	Longsight ...	120	Southwell ...	397
Deal ...	651	Loughborough ...	462	Stafford ...	160, 285, 334, 428, 462, 525, 652, 723
Deptford ...	24	Lower Norwood ...	427	Stalybridge ...	652
Derby ...	89, 395, 494	Lowestoft ...	120	Stamford ...	91, 121, 286, 496, 652, 789
Derry ...	788	Lurgan ...	692	Stamfordham ...	160
Devizes ...	119, 426, 557, 754	Luton ...	367	Standon Bridge ...	25
Devonport ...	754	Lynn ...	397, 524	Staveley ...	496
Ditton Marsh ...	215	Lytham ...	427	Stockport ...	286, 398
Doncaster ...	395, 557	Maidenhead ...	692	Stonehouse ...	428
Dorchester ...	788	Maldstone ...	755	Stratfield Turgiss ...	496
Douglas ...	24, 119	Malvern ...	91, 120, 216, 427, 557	Stratford ...	57, 368, 428, 525, 755
Dover ...	524	— Link ...	160, 367	Sudbury ...	398
Driffield ...	426	Manchester ...	25, 57, 91, 285, 333, 367, 397, 462, 495, 524, 589, 651, 788	Sunderland ...	368, 755
Dublin ...	252, 692	Mansfield ...	770	Sydney (N. S. W.) ...	57, 398
Dudley ...	215, 284, 426	Market Harborough ...	788	Taunton ...	496
Dumfries ...	692	— Lavington ...	788	Tenbury ...	652
Dundee ...	90, 461, 494, 651	Maryport ...	788	Tipton ...	723
Dunannon ...	494	Mattersea ...	723	Toronto (Canada West) ...	428, 619, 652, 756
Dunham-Massey ...	285, 692	Melbourne (Australia) ...	397, 651	Trefri ...	652
Dunoon ...	119	Minhead ...	524	Trowbridge ...	652
Durham ...	754	Monmouth ...	285, 755	Turnham Green ...	693
Earley, Reading ...	366	Montrose ...	57, 333	Uley ...	789
Earlestown ...	119	Mortonhamstead ...	215, 557	Uxbridge ...	756
Eastbourne ...	186, 524, 754	Moxley ...	160, 495	Ventnor ...	92
East Greenwich (R. I.) ...	651	Neath ...	91	Victoria (British Columbia) ...	652
Edinburgh ...	24, 56, 90, 332, 366, 395, 426, 461, 754, 788	Newbury ...	427	Wallington ...	558
Emscote ...	524	Newcastle ...	252, 692	Walthamstow ...	286, 398, 428
Enfield ...	366, 722	Newcastle-on-Tyne ...	651	Walton-on-the-Hill ...	121, 428, 525
Epsom ...	119	Newport ...	285, 692	Warminster ...	92, 121, 160, 187
Erith ...	396, 494	New Southgate ...	524	Warrington ...	92, 368
Everton ...	461	Newtown ...	495	Warwick ...	368
Exeter ...	366	New York ...	25, 57, 91	Waterside (Londonderry) ...	693
Eye ...	159	Nice ...	25	Weaverham ...	25
Fairwater ...	160	North Elmham ...	496	Wednesbury ...	724
Falmouth ...	396			Wellington ...	496
Farnham ...	524			Wellington ...	789
Faversham ...	494

	Page.
Wellington (N. Z.)	58
Wells	161
Welsh Frankton	25
West Bromwich	121
Westbury	121, 161, 428
Westham	121, 398, 525, 756
West Hackney	398
Weston-super-Mare	92
Wetherby	463
Wexford	25
Weybridge	92, 187, 286
Whitchurch	789
Whitehaven	523
Whittington Moor	92, 428
Wilmslow	398
Winchester	589, 756
Windsor	121, 428, 693, 789
Wisebach	187
Wokingham	789
Wolverhampton	161, 334
Womersley	724
Woodgreen	369
Woodhouse	756
Woodside	334
Woodwich	25, 58, 161, 253, 369, 558, 756
Worcester	286, 428, 558
Worthing	58, 286, 334, 369, 496
Wrexham	161
Yarmouth	463, 525
York	369, 428, 463, 558, 652, 724

MISCELLANEOUS.

Alexandra Palace...	138
— Choir	450
— Re-erection	512
All Saints' Church, Norfolk Square	361
Amateurs and Professionals...	310
America, Vocal Novelties from	44
American Musical Journals...	382
— Vocal Music...	12
— Phraseology...	478, 666
Angell Town Institution	450
Ashtone Symphony	638
Association for the Study of Music,	541, 686,
	712
Bach's Passion Music	13, 45, 361
— Sacred Cantatas	321
Balfie, Statue of	674
Barnby, Mr. J.	242, 384
Benedict, Sir Julius (Lecture)	385
— (Testimonial)	711
Bennett, Dr. W. C., "Songs for Sailors"	13
Birmingham Festival	416
Bonn's Scalometer	480
Bradford, J.	108
Brighton Festival	9
British Musical and Dramatic Institute	359, 414, 447, 605
British Orchestral Society	12
Brixton Choral Society	247, 416, 638, 743
Brookhurst, Mr. W. S. (Testimonial)	417
Budge, F. (Testimonial)	281
Buttery, Mr. H. (Testimonial)	583
Carter, Mr. William (Testimonial)	282
Canterbury Cathedral Organist	12
Castell, C. (Testimonial)	247
Cathedral Psalter Chants	513
Choir Appointments, 58, 92, 121, 187, 253, 369,	398, 429, 463, 525, 558, 589, 693, 724, 756, 789
Choral Societies (Orsett and Romford)	514
Church Congress...	138, 310, 676
Church Choral Society's Examinations	583, 676, 776
Cincinnati Musical Festival...	45
Cockell, W. (Testimonial)	639
Cooper, Miss (Testimonial)	584
Costa, Sir Michael, and the Pitch	415
Crystal Palace Concerts	242, 638
Cummings, Mr. W. H. (Fairy ring)	110
Curwen and J. Hullah's Report	310
Dalston Choral Association...	247
David, Herr Ferdinand	45
Do, moveable	382
Edinburgh and Brighton Festivals	414
Ely Diocesan Church Music Society	280
English Music at the Albert Hall	743
Exhibition Concerts (List of Works performed at)	248, 280
Festival Concerts in the Provinces	282
Fowle, Dr.	774
Fuller, Mr. Francis (Pamphlet to Crystal Palace Shareholders)	675
George Frederick, the Derby Race-Horse	541
German Photographs	674
— Composers, Modern	683
Gilbert, Mr. Alfred (Testimonial)	578
Gladstone, Mr. F. E.	280
Glasgow Choral Union	686

Gloucester Festival	775
Graun's Der Tod Jesu	775
Handel Festival	478
Handel's Theodora	106, 137
Her Majesty's Theatre, Sale of Ground Rent...	513
Hereford Festival	76
Hill, Mr. H. Weist (Testimonial)	205
Holy Trinity Church, Gough Square	281
Hullah, Mr. John...	75, 205, 576
International Exhibition and Music	11, 73
Isidor, Miss Rosa	450
Italian Opera Houses (Prospectuses)	46, 415, 447
Jubilee Singers	310
Kiosk Hollandia	282
Kirkman v. Pohlman	206
Late Comers at Concerts	509
Law of Licence	414
Lay Helper's Association	385
Leslie, Mr. H. (Prospectus)...	12
L'Echo du Parlement Belge (Extract from)	450
Leeds Musical Festival	450, 513, 545, 638, 639
Leverie Mdle.	675
Liszt Jubilee	321
Littleton v. Gounod. Trial in Court of Queen's Bench	143, 242
Liverpool Festival	578, 638
London Church Choir Association	450
— Gregorian Choral Association	576
— Welsh Choral Union	206, 247
Lord Mayor and Madame Patti	576
Lower Rhenish Musical Festival	138
— Rhine Festival at Cologne	509
Mac Donogh, G. F., Royal Amphitheatre, Holborn	675
Macfarren, G. A., St. John the Baptist	75, 247
— (Testimonial)	322
Walter	109
Maclean, Dr.	675
Mendelssohn, Lecture on	481
Monk, Mr. W. H.	578
Musical Festivals	279
Music in Schools	638
National Music Meetings	282, 478
— Training School for Music	205, 321
New Philharmonic	13
North Wales Choir	321
Obituary—
Black, John	280
Bridgeman, Charles	206
Brown, J. A.	108
Coward, William	361
David, Herr Ferdinand	206
Drouet, L. F. P.	360
Euing, William	509
Fieiding, William John	583
Flower, George	360
Griesbach, J. H.	776
Hackett, Miss Maria	713
Haite, J. J.	686
Harris, Augustus	75
Havergal, Rev. H. E.	775
Kirkman, Henry John	416
Lambert, David	321
Lewick, John	417
Lupton, Rev. James, M.A.	362
Meadowcroft, J.	247
Mendelssohn, Herr Paul	583
Mercer, Rev. W.	205
Miller, William	178
Mongini, Signor	512
Mori, Frank	206
Papera-Rosa, Madame	382
Pierson, H. H.	12
Pischeck, Herr	45
Poniatowski, Prince	178
Puttick, J. F.	138
Smith, Samuel	178
Sutton, William Walter	450
Waetzig, J. G.	776
Oliphant, Thomas (Sale)	76
Organ Appointments	26, 58, 92, 121, 161, 187, 216, 253, 286, 334, 363, 398, 429, 463, 497, 525, 558, 589, 619, 652, 693, 724, 756, 789
Oxford Examinations	481
Parish Church Organ (Correspondence on)	45
Paris Opera House	774
Patey, Madame	774
Patti, Madame Adelina	576
— Mdle. Carlotta	743
Pauer, Herr	13
Philharmonic Society	13
Pianos and Colliers	175
Plymouth Guildhall	606
— Vocal Association	639
Polytechnic Institution	178
Port Elizabeth, Advertisement for Organist	321
Praeger, Herr (Lecture)	414

Priestley, Dr.	606
Pyne, J. Kendrick	361
Railway Clearing House Musical Society	247
Reeves, Mr. Sims	512, 576
Reid Concert (Edinburgh)	9, 447
Reviews (Answer to Authors)	674
Ripon, Marquis (Concert at Studley Hall)	13
Roe, John (Testimonial)	178
Rosa, Carl, English Opera Company	247
— (Scholarship at Royal Academy)	450
Rossie Reformatory Brass Band	137
Royal Academy of Music, 41, 362, 480, 744, 776
— Albert Hall, 41, 45, 76, 137, 183, 205, 242, 247, 676, 712
— Choral Society	247, 416
— Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind	175
— Society of Musicians	45, 450, 479
Saint Anne's Soho	475
— George's Wesleyan Chapel	578
— James's Choir, Clerkenwell	639
— Mary, Haggerstone	385
Schubert's Masses	321
Sloman, Dr.	13, 480
Society of Arts' Examination	578
South Wales Choral Union	44, 178
Southport Winter Gardens	544
Stiehl, Mr. H.	685
Sullivan's Light of the World	416
Tate, Miss Emily	639
Tallis, Memorial to	455
Thackeray, Mr.	178
Three Choirs Festival	605, 639, 685, 773
Titiens, Mademoiselle (Testimonial)	385
Tonic Sol-fa College	354, 384
Tours, Mr. Berthold	75
Trumbath, Mr. H. G.	247, 584
University Intelligence	686
Verdi's Requiem at Milan	541
Verrinder, C. G.	110
Walker and Sons' organ (St. Martin's, Leicester)	12
Webb's Pianofortes	675
Weber's Polonaise by Liszt	711
Wesley, Samuel, Dixit Dominus	455
What is a scale?	13
Whitney, Mr.	675
Winn, Mr. R. M.	455
Worcester Musical Society	138, 247

REVIEWS.

Abt, Franz. Only to meet	54
— Ave Maria	116
— Un doux souvenir	283
— Six Trios for female voices	423
Adams, Edgar. Te Deum	641
Adcock, J. The Singer's Guide	251
Alexander, A. An Italian boat song	87
— Fair Daffodils	720
Allen, Alfred B. March of the Choristers.—Eily's reply	142
— Race between two walking dolls	456
Allen, G. B. Day-dreams.—An Indian lullaby	326
Allchin, W. H. Three Autumn Songs	423
— A Sea Song	490
Alwyn, William Crowther. Like as the hart desireth the water-brook	520
— This is the day	546
Andrews, Mrs. John Holman. Smile on my evening hour.—The old year	21
Archer, F. La rêve d'Arcadie	326
Arènes, T. Zampa	283
Aretino, Guido. Twelve popular hymns	418
Armes, P. I will sing a new song	608
Arnold, George B. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis	85
Aspa, Edwin. O be joyful in God	252
Aspa, Rosario, Jesu pastor bone	325
Austin, Frank. Gentle maiden, sweetly sleep	209
Bach, J. S. Magnificat in D	514
— My spirit was in heaviness	719
— O light everlasting	745
Bairnsfather, G. Two sketches	183
Balfie's Il Talismano	586
Banister, Henry C. Music	53
Barney, J. Service in E	746
— My Summertime.—The Bells of St. Ethelred	778
Baronius, C. Warinka.—Galop Brillant	250
Bartholomew, Mrs. Mounsey. The merry beggar's song.—I sing because I love to sing	491
Batiste, Edouard. Selection of compositions for the Organ	458
Batson, Arthur Wellesley. Six favourite and popular hymns	327

	Page.		Page.		Page.
Beethoven. Sonatas (Agnes Zimmermann) ...	63	Gilbert, Bennett. The Changeling ...	391	Lux, Fredk. Compositions and arrangements for the organ ...	327
Bellasis, Edward. Cherubini Memorials of his life ...	490	Gilbert, Mrs. Charlotte C. Wanderer's return.—Name me not—Sweet eyes.—Night and Morn ...	458	Macfarren, G. A. Fall of the leaf ...	251
Bennett, Sir W. S. The Maid of Orleans ...	391	Gits, A. G. Les Etoiles filantes.—Fleur de Mai.—Rose and Blanche ...	751	—The last watch ...	283
Bennett, J. Miles. I waited patiently for the Lord ...	325	Gladstone, F. E. Theme with variations ...	250	—The Mother's book of song ...	457
— I love the Lord ...	609	— Benedicite ...	324	Macfarren, Walter. Popular Classics for the Pianoforte ...	22, 424
Berger, F. Wagner's Lohengrin ...	143	— The Lord is my portion.—Andante ...	328	— Sonata in E minor ...	141
— The village green ...	458	— Cathedral music ...	417	— Two Mazurkas ...	183
Beringer, Oscar. Three fairy tales ...	490	— Original pieces for the organ ...	425	— Second Gavotte ...	423
Blackbee, R. F. Te Deum and Jubilate ...	392	Gladstone, W. H. Gracious and righteous is the Lord ...	86	— Scherzo ...	456
Bliss, Rev. W. H. Though I walk through the valley ...	489	— Certain portions of the Communion Service ...	85	— Three songs ...	457
Blumenthal, J. Six Part-songs ...	456	Gledhill, John. Two Gavottes ...	610	— Two Bourrées ...	751
— Pensées Intimes ...	553	Glover, W. F. Sweetheart ...	326	Macrone, C. A. Sweetest Saviour ...	143
Bonn, Dr. L. M. The Scalometer and Chord Indicator ...	423	Goodwin. Handbook of Singing ...	184	— Lullaby ...	778
Borrow, W. Awake! the daylight, &c. ...	54	Goss, Sir John. Chant Te Deum and Benedictus ...	207	Mackness, Rev. Geo. Two easy settings of the Kyrie, &c. ...	249
Brahms, J. A Song of Destiny ...	520	Gotthard, J. P. Gavotte ...	329	Maclean, C. Songs in three-part harmony ...	386
Bridge, J. Frederick. Flowers ...	586	Gregory, G. H. Come gather round the Christmas fire ...	751	Marks, T. O. O Lord, Who hast taught us ...	642
— Mount Moriah ...	687	Guilmant, A. O Salutaris ...	587	Markey, Walter J. Thou, O God, art praised in Zion ...	650
Brion, R. Forsey. Marathon ...	386	Hall, King. The dreamy land of flowers ...	326	Marriott, C. H. R. Showers of Sunshine ...	458
Brissac, Jules. The spinning song from Wagner's Der Fliegende Holländer ...	208	Handel. Theodora ...	206	Matthews, T. R. Jubilate Deo in C ...	386
Brown-Borthwick, R. Hymn tunes ...	385	— Belshazzar ...	115	— Te Deum in G ...	641
Calcott, J. G. O Deus! ego amo te ...	554	Hargitt, C. J. Classical Gems ...	209	Maxfield, W. H. Responses, Gloria and Sanctus ...	185
Cantor. Think of me ...	209	Hargreaves, W. Softly the echoes come and go ...	746	Mendelssohn. Perpetuum Mobile ...	418
Carrier, Rev. T. Te Deum ...	753	Hatton, J. L. Mysterious serenade.—The chapel ...	208	— Four-part songs for male voices ...	520
Carter, Mrs. W. H. J. God is love ...	489	— Fair and false ...	325	— Songs ...	642
Cathedral Psalter ...	323	— Over the mountain—Song with a burden ...	785	Midsummer Night's Dream ...	778
Chappell, W. The History of Music ...	639	Hatton, G. F. Prelude and Fugue ...	553	Metcalfe, W. Minuet in G minor—O let me dream—Fallen rain ...	553
Chopin. Lord, we worship Thee ...	329	Heins, N. Te Deum ...	491	Milburn, Robt. M. Eight hymn tunes ...	140
Clay, S. J. A Treatise on Harmony ...	514	Hele, John. O God, my heart is ready ...	587	Miller, Rev. W. The office of the Holy Communion ...	720
Coenen, W. Les Etoilles ...	250	Heller, Stephen. Album pour piano ...	521	Mirana. Clouds ...	54
Coghlan, C. L. The soldier lover ...	142	Helmer, Ernst. Forsake me not ...	587	Molloy, J. L. The Shipwright ...	785
Cooper, C. Bolingbroke. Ave verum ...	393	Helmore, F. The Canticles set to short chants ...	554	Monk, Jas. J. The office of the Holy Communion ...	208
Cooper, Wilbye. The Voice ...	609	Hervey, E. L. The call of Spring ...	521	Monk, W. H. The office of Holy Communion ...	607
Cotes, Digby. Te Deum ...	207	Hiles, H. The Crusaders ...	323	Moosmair, August. My God, my God, look upon me ...	688
Cottman, A. Ten original tunes ...	458	Hiles, John. Short Voluntaries for the Organ. Vol. iv. ...	778	Moscheles, Life of ...	362
Croger, R. Te Deum ...	650	Hiller, F. Modern suite for the Piano-forte ...	86	Moss, W. My soul doth magnify the Lord ...	393
Crowe, R. W. The days of man ...	51	— Letters and recollections of Mendelssohn ...	713	Mozart. Die Zauberflöte ...	206
Crow, E. J. Praise ye the Lord ...	720	— All they that trust in Thee, Lord ...	745	— Il Seraglio ...	744
— Communion Service in F ...	19	Hodges, F. H. Blessed are the pure in heart ...	393	Mudie, T. M. L'Entretien ...	283
Cummings, W. H. Just as of old ...	457	— Grand chant Te Deum ...	555	Music Typographer ...	88
Davis, Gabriel. The distant sea ...	142	Hodges, E. O pray for the peace of Jerusalem ...	282	— Its value and importance in education ...	215
Davis, H. Sydney. One hundred easy and progressive violin duets ...	391	Holloway, W. H. He is risen ...	140	Musical Directory ...	392, 785
Dawson, William. Largo and Andante for Organ ...	86	Holme, H. R. Three settings of the Kyrie Eleison ...	688	— Monthly ...	118
Deacon, H. C. Fair rose ...	88	Hope, W. Praised be the Lord ...	688	Newbatt, E. The Offertory Sentences ...	393
Dearle, Edward. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis ...	85	Huffer, F. Seven songs ...	329	Newcombe, G. Hunting Song ...	585
Dick, Cotsford. Bourrée ...	391	Hullah, J. Old English songs for schools ...	184	Oakeley, H. S. Tears, idle tears ...	251
— The voice I loved.—When shadows flee ...	649	— Former days ...	586	— Romance for Pianoforte ...	457
Diemer, P. H. Spring.—Autumn ...	689	— Time and tune ...	785	Oberthur, C. A soldier's song ...	208
Distin, T. Te Deum ...	324	Hymnary ...	13, 46, 110	Offenbach, J. The Dove and the Maiden ...	53
Doorley, M. E. Sonata in G ...	585	Hymns for four voices. By C. J. Frost, Fredk. Iliffe, Arthur Page ...	88	O'Leary, Arthur. The shadow on my heart ...	141
Dupuis, L. Gems of sacred art ...	689	Iliffe, Fredk. Te Deum ...	249	— Grand choral march (Beethoven) ...	143
Durand, A. Gai Printemps.—Menuet de Bergame.—Air de Ballet ...	751	Jackson, John. La Jouerie.—To love ...	87	Osborne, G. A. Rolando ...	521
Dykes, Rev. John B. The Lord is my Shepherd ...	545	Jackson, Robert. I will always give thanks ...	688	Pacher, J. A. Tendresse ...	20
Egghard, Jules. Les chants du peuple ...	20	Jäger, Carl. Gallery of German Composers ...	752	Packer, F. A. Hymn tunes and chants ...	489
— Berger et Bergère.—Le Ruban d'or ...	207	Jee, Horace. Caprice Impromptu ...	751	Palmer, W. H. The musical scales simplified ...	650
— Chanson du Chaudronnier ...	250	Jordan, C. Warwick. The Lord is my light ...	140	Palmer, E. D. Isle of Beauty.—Wake, Maid of Lorne ...	720
Elliott, A. J. Victoria Cross March ...	751	Junius. Music and singing in the churches ...	87	Parkinson, W. W. Harmony and modulation ...	76
Evans, G. T. Te Deum ...	481	Jungmann, A. Ave Maria ...	20	Pattison, T. Mee. O how plentiful is Thy goodness ...	455
Faning, Eaton. The brooklet ...	117	Keeton, Haydn. I will always give thanks ...	587	Pauer, E. Galop militaire.—Serenade ...	209
Floralie. Sleep ...	88	Kemp, S. B. Allegro Grazioso (in G) ...	521	Payne, R. Not unto us, O Lord ...	143
Flotow, F. Von. Martha ...	489	Kerbusch, Leo. In the beginning was the word ...	326	Pearson, W. W. Sweet to live.—There's beauty, &c. ...	53
Forbes, J. L. Sanctus, Kyrie et Gloria Tibi ...	392	Kjerulf, H. Didst thou but know ...	87	— The singer's hand-book ...	720
Fowles, A. G. The voice of the waves ...	554	Knapp, J. O Brignal Banks ...	785	— Over the mountain side.—Soul of living music ...	751
Fox, A. Christmas Cantata ...	752	Knight, J. P. The Watchman ...	752	Perger, J. N. Mon Réve ...	141
Fox, J. Makinson. Andante for the Organ ...	141	Kornatzki, F. V. Chiming May bells ...	184	Perrot, C. H. Laudate Dominum ...	392
Frost, Charles Joseph. Like as Christ was raised up ...	249	— Addio ...	209	Phillipson, Wentworth. Guide to young pianoforte teachers and students ...	20
— Thirty-six original hymn tunes ...	324	— La harpe enchantée ...	328	Pieracci, E. Six hymn tunes ...	458
— The Gentiles shall come ...	329	Lafuente, M. La fontaine.—L'Etoile rouge.—Le bon retour ...	143	Pierason, H. Hugo. Hymn tunes ...	185
— May-day ...	689	Lawrance, Edward. Te Deum ...	249	— Te Deum laudamus ...	209
— Sabbath recreations ...	720	Lee, Alice. The parting ...	53	Pinsuti, Ciro. Love will shine.—The fairest maiden led the dance ...	251
Gabriel, Virginia. The shadow on the floor.—The angel and the child.—The passing ship ...	21	Leonard, William A. Music in the Western Church ...	117	— A little cloud ...	326
— Fisher Wife's song.—Would you be a sailor's wife? ...	87	Leslie, Henry. Songs for little folks ...	364	— Where wavelets rippled gaily.—We'll gaily sing and play ...	586
— Long ago ...	326	Leysach, J. L'Ombre ...	689	Plumpton, Alfred. Like a summer shower ...	752
Gade, Niels W. Danse Folkesange ...	207	Little May's Musical Drawing Slate ...	328	Polinski, A. Farewell.—The Dream ...	142
Gadsby, H. Ponder my words.—Rejoice greatly ...	455	Lowe, A. The Lord is my strength ...	52	Prentice, T. Ridley. Evensong ...	521
— The Lord is King ...	520	Lunn, H. C. Clementi's Sonata ...	143	— Break forth into joy ...	584
Gardner, C. Deuxième Impromptu ...	521	Lutgen, Henri. Bluette ...	209	Professor's Pocket Book, The ...	392
Garrett, George M. Prepare ye the way of the Lord ...	519
— Praise the Lord ...	456
— Palaces in air.—Love will last ...	609
Gaul, Alfred R. Offertory Sentences ...	688
Gilbert, Bennett. School harmony ...	85

	Page.		Page.		Page.
Prout, E. Concertante duet.—Over- tures...	209	Smith, C.W. Grand March, "Crusader" ...	553	Watts, L. M. Three songs ...	54
Quevedo, A. M. Marcha para el Piano ...	610	Sonus. The Lord is my light ...	142	Wells, G. New Practical Singing-class Handbook ...	424
Read, C. J. The windmill ...	142	Solomon, L. Voices, happy voices ...	649	Westbrook, W. J. Voluntaries for the Organ ...	14
Read, J. F. H. Psyche ...	386	Spark, William. Organist's Quarterly Journal ...	14, 52, 250	Wesley, S. S. God be merciful unto us ...	482
Regina Cæli ...	642	— Te Deum ...	184	Wheeler, Lizzie. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis ...	142
Richards, Brinley. Sound the trumpet in Zion ...	649	— Concert fantasia ...	586	Willmore, W. G. Te Deum ...	585
Richardson, J. E. March for the organ ...	585	— Martial music ...	720	Wollenhaupt, H. A. Un fil de perles ...	183
Richmond, W. H. Feodora.—Fairy Fountain Valse... ..	210	Spinney, W. I Pifferari ...	555	— Valse Héroïque ...	20
Richter, E. F. Treatise on Counterpoint ...	714	Speer, C. T. Childish fancies ...	554	Woodward, Rev. H. H. Office of the Holy Communion ...	249
Ringrose, Wm. W. Hymn for Holy Week ...	458	Sprhr, L. 24th Psalm ...	585	Young, Rev. E. A Morning Service ...	207
Rivenall, F. Gethsemane ...	649	Stainer, J. My Maker and my King.— Slumber song ...	115	— An Evening Service ...	250
Rizzelli, F. Brunetta ...	251	— The morning stars sang together... ..	325	Zimmermann, Agnes. True Love ...	53
Robinson, Mrs. Joseph. Evening thoughts.—Song of the mill wheel ...	391	— O clap your hands ...	418	— Suite ...	183
Rogers, E. Mass in D ...	521	— Magnificat and Nunc dimittis ...	642	— Gavotte in E minor... ..	207
— The bridal lay ...	251	— Service in E flat ...	776
Rogers, F. F. Valse sentimentale ...	423	Stark, Humphry J. Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven ...	650
— In the gloaming ...	423	Steed, Orlando. Music in play and music in earnest ...	183
Rogers, Roland. Cantate Domino and Deus miseratur ...	19	Stein, Joseph. Pater noster ...	86
— Arise, for the day is passing ...	325	Stiehl, H. Festive seasons.—Postman's knock.—Liebeszauber.—A Capricious moment ...	54
— Festal organ march ...	393	Stratton, S. S. Two-part songs ...	423
Romano, J. Caprice de concert.—Elegie ...	283	— Church music ...	458
Rossini, Guillaume Tell ...	20	— That smile of thine can I forget ...	609
Rummel, J. Le cor des Alpes.—Theme Allemand.—Valse brillante.—Galop de bravura ...	21	Sullivan, Arthur. Oh Bella mia — I will mention the loving-kind- nesses ...	53
— Le joueur de flute.—Une heure de Royauté.—Une fête aux champs ...	424	Sydenham, E. A. Schnsucht ...	456
— Les Défaits de Jacotte.—Le pont des soupirs ...	649	Taylor, Sedley. Sound and Music ...	248
Salaman, C. Loved one.—Saltarello ...	184	Taylor, W. The eyes of all ...	141
— Six Characteristic melodies ...	457	— Te Deum ...	641
— How lovely are Thy habitations ...	688	Thomas, W. H. Spring gusts ...	183
— There is an hour.—Fair is the swan ...	689	Thomas, John. The Songs of Wales ...	143
Salmon, Miss. The Child's first step to the Pianoforte ...	752	Thompson, Lady. Two Gavottes ...	87
Satter, G. Die Spinnerin ...	20	Thompson, Rev. C. Magnificat ...	642
Sangster, W. H. Forget-me-not ...	54	Thorne, E. H. On a faded violet ...	116
Schmuck, J. Mass in D minor ...	393	— Psalm xlviii ...	140
Schulthes, W. Cor Jesu.—Twelve Latin Hymns ...	546	— Lake and Waterfall ...	183
— Regina Cæli... ..	642	Tilleard, J. Sweet Saviour.—The shadows of the evening hours.—So rest, my rest. ...	385
— Amelia ...	689	Tours, B. Thoughts of Heaven ...	87
Schumann, R. O tell me, lovely bird.— At break of welcome morning ...	22	— Scherzo ...	142
— Songs (Edited by N. Macfarren) ...	52, 86	— On beds of snow.—Sleeping flowers ...	143
— The pilgrimage of the rose. ...	640	— Humoresque... ..	183
— Scenes from Goethe's "Faust" ...	745	— Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in B flat ...	519
Schweitzer, Otto. Schumann's Soul of my inmost soul, &c. ...	425	— I waited for the Lord.—As pants the hart.—Andantino grazioso ...	610
Searle, E. W. Lessons and Exercises in Singing ...	554	Treffry, W. H. Te Deum ...	140
Shepherd, C. H. Am sec.—Im wald.— Frühlingslied ...	610	Trekell, J. T. Woodland Carols.—Rus- sian Boat Song.—Sound the loud timbrel ...	457
— House of Israel ...	141	Tuckerman, S. Parkman. I looked, and behold ...	607
Shuttleworth, Janet E. Kay. Life of Sebastian Bach ...	117	— Six short Anthems.—A Morning Service.—I was glad ...	608
Silas, E. I hear along our street ...	283	Turpin, E. H. Musette for the Organ ...	392
Simpson, J. F. The miller and his man ...	364	Verdi. La Traviata ...	364
Sloman, R. Supplication and Praise. ...	607	— Ernani ...	606
Sloper, Lindsay. Minuet and Gavotte ...	251	Verrinder, C. G. Introduction and Variations on the Russian National Melody ...	546
— Notturmo, a due voci ...	116	— Israel in Adversity and Deliver- ance ...	584
Smallwood, William. Home treasures ...	184	Vinning, R. O'Leary. Thy spirit's low replies ...	610
Smart, Henry. Dropping down the troubled river ...	208	Vos, Polydore de. Der Abschied.— Marche Orientale ...	210
— Beside the old corn mill ...	251	Wagner, R. The Music of the Future ...	425
— Our rest remaineth ...	283	Waldeck, J. B. We roam and rule the sea, &c. ...	649
Smith, A. O. Morceau d'Orgue ...	393	Warlamoff, A. The loved can ne'er be lost ...	642
Smith, Thomas. Concise and practical explanation of the rules of simple harmony ...	116	Watson, M. Bourrée in F, &c. ...	553
Smith, Sydney. Adieu!—Weber's Con- certstück.—La fille du Regiment.— Bolero ...	721

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Amateur Concerts ...	364
Arnold (Dr.) v. The Hymnary ...	366
Bach's Hymn in the Hymnary ...	23, 55
Brixton Choral Society ...	785
Cathedral Choirs ...	522
Calcott's (Mr. J. G.) Motett ...	618
Church Congress ...	284, 330, 331
Church Singing ...	459, 492
Communion Service, Interpolations in... ..	331
Consecutive Sevenths ...	690, 721
Clay's Treatise on Harmony ...	556
Crowe's (Dr. R. W.) Anthem ...	88
Dawson's Largo and Andante ...	118
Diatonic and Chromatic Semitones ...	23, 55
Diversity of Key in Church Service ...	786
Dykes (Dr.), The Lord is my Shepherd ...	588
Harmony Prize of the Church Choral Society ...	753, 785
Handel's Theodora ...	186
Hinton (Mr.), A Reply to ...	522
Hymn Tunes, The Double Air in ...	522, 555
Jackson's Trio ...	118
Jackson's Service in F ...	364
Manfred ...	118
Medieval Choir Rules ...	492
Minor Scale, The ...	618
Modulation, Change of the Syllables in ...	394
Mode and the Key, The ...	22
Moveable Do, The ...	252, 329, 461
Moveable Do made visible ...	753
Music in Bath Abbey ...	55, 88, 118
Musical Settings of the Te Deum ...	690, 721, 753
National Music Meetings ...	786
Offertory (The), and the Organists ...	587
Oratorios for the Church ...	88
Parish Church Organ ...	23, 54, 55
People's Plain Song ...	617
Prize Compositions ...	556
Royal Academy of Music ...	394
Rules of Simple Harmony ...	158
Scales ...	650
Secular Music in Churches ...	617
Solmization of the Minor Scale ...	522, 555, 556
Stainer's (Dr.) Evening Service ...	690
Tallis Memorial ...	426, 491
Unison or Harmony ...	497
Unison Singing ...	425
Verrinder's (Dr.) The Russian Hymn ...	589
Wagner Controversy—Poetic Basis of Music ...	459, 492
Wagner Theory ...	786
Young's (Rev. E.) Service ...	330

THE MUSICAL TIMES

And Singing-Class Circular, Published on the 1st of every Month.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped, those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c., can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 361.—Vol. 16.

Registered for transmission abroad.

MARCH 1, 1873.

Price 2d.; Post-free, 3d.

Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 2s. 6d.

MUSIC FOR THE COMING SEASON.

See page 29.

PETERBOROUGH CATHEDRAL.—There are VACANCIES for THREE CHORISTERS (aged from 8½ to 10) in Peterborough Cathedral. The trial will take place at the Practice Room in the Cathedral at 12 o'clock on Tuesday, March 11th. For particulars, apply to Mr. H. Keeton, Master of the Choristers, Minster Precincts.

HEREFORD CATHEDRAL.—An Assistant VICAR CHORAL (Alto or Bass) will be APPOINTED in March next. Preference given to Candidates in Holy Orders or intending to be so. Apply for particulars to Messrs. Underwood & Knight, Chapter Clerks, Hereford.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY ASYLUM.—MALE ATTENDANTS WANTED. Wages commencing at £24, with board, lodging, and washing in the Asylum. Musicians preferred; previous asylum experience not necessary. Apply, stating age, if married or single, musical and other capabilities, to the superintendent at the Asylum. BENJ. SHADGERT, Clerk.

February 19, 1873.

SOPRANO, well acquainted with Church Music, desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Good reader, and accustomed to leading Church or Chapel. H. B. Novello, Ewer & Co., 35, Poultry

LADIES' VOICES WANTED in the Voluntary Choir of Kensington Parish Church. Anthems sung. Address H. R. B., 49, Colehill-street, S.W.

SOPRANO and CONTRALTO WANTED for a City Church. Must read fairly. Apply at St. Mary-at-Hill Church, Eastcheap, E.C., after Sunday evening Service, or by letter to A. B., Burlington House, Whitton, Middlesex.

BOYS (LEADERS) WANTED for the Choir of St. Luke's Church, Westbourne-park, W. Salary according to ability. Application to be made to Mr. Bambridge, 27, Tavistock-crescent, Westbourne-park, W.

AN ALTO IS REQUIRED for the Choir of All Saints', Margaret-street. Must be a good reader. For particulars as to salary, duties, &c., apply to Mr. W. S. Hoyte, Montpellier Villa, 14, Finchley-road, N.W., or at the Church any evening after the five o'clock Evensong.

FIRST TENOR, experienced, cultivated, good reader, WANTS ENGAGEMENT for Solos in the Mass. Morning only. Address A. Z., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

WANTED, TWO TENORS in a Surpliced Choir. Must be able to read Music at sight. Two Sunday Services, one Weekly Rehearsal. Salary at the rate of £10 per annum for the first six months, afterwards £12. Apply to E. Hulton, Mus. Bac., 38, Redcliffe-road, Brompton, or at the vestry of St. Luke's Church, Chelsea, after Sunday evening Service.

A TENOR LAY CLERKSHIP is VACANT in Canterbury Cathedral. Testimonials should be sent in by March 14. For particulars, apply to the Precentor.

MEN and BOYS WANTED for a Church at the West End. Address Organist, 36, Hereford-square, South Kensington.

WANTED, a BASS LEADER for Christ Church Choir, Crouch End. Salary £10. Apply to Mr. Lomer, 2 South Grove, Highgate.

A BASS VOICE is REQUIRED immediately for the Choir of St. Thomas's Church, Portman-square. Stipend £10. VOLUNTARY HELP is also NEEDED. Gentlemen possessing good voices and willing to assist are requested to apply to E. Rogers, Esq., 89, Upper Gloucester-place, Regent's-park, N.W.

BASS WANTED for a Church in Kensington. Good voice and first-rate reader. Two Sunday Services; no week-day practice. £10 per annum. Address Organist, 163, Piccadilly, W.

BASS, Good Reader, desires an ENGAGEMENT in a Church Choir. Address Bass, Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

THIRD SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 19, 1873.

HANDEL'S ISRAEL IN EGYPT.

With Additional Accompaniments by G. A. MACFARREN.

MADAME CORANI.

MADAME PATEY.

MR. SIMS REEVES.

MR. THURLEY BEALE.

MR. LEWIS THOMAS.

CONDUCTOR - MR. BARNBY.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

FOURTH SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1873.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER,

AND

MENDELSSOHN'S HYMN OF PRAISE.

MADAME PATEY.

MR. SIMS REEVES.

&c. &c.

CONDUCTOR - MR. BARNBY.

Loggia (to hold 8 persons)	£2 10 0	Amphitheatre Stalls	.. 0 7 6
Boxes (Grand Tier)	.. 3 3 0	Arena Stalls	.. 0 5 0
" (Upper Tier)	.. 1 10 0	Balcony	.. 0 3 0

ADMISSION - ONE SHILLING.

Doors open at Seven o'clock, commence at Eight.

Tickets of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street and 35, Poultry; the usual Agents; and at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

St. Anne's Church, Soho.

SPECIAL SERVICES will be held in this Church every Friday evening during Lent, commencing at Eight o'clock, at which Bach's PASSION (St. John) will be sung with the accompaniment of an Orchestra, Harp, and Organ. The public will be admitted by tickets to the body of the Church and west gallery, and without tickets to the north and south gallery. Sermons will be preached by special preachers, whose names will be duly announced.

Applications for tickets, stating the special Friday for which they are required, should be made to the Rev. Canon Wade, Rector, 28, Soho-square, Thomas F. Blackwell, Esq., and J. Armigill, Esq., Churchwardens; A. C. Curtis-Hayward, Esq., 17, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square; and Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

CHOIR.—WANTED, VOLUNTEERS for the Gregorian Choir of St. John the Baptist, Kensington. Also BOYS. The Boys are paid. Address Choirmaster, 5, Holland-road North.

THE SERVICES of a LADY are REQUIRED to LEAD the SINGING in a City Church. She must be a Communicant Member of the Church of England, and possessed of a competent knowledge of music. Apply by letter, stating terms, to Rector, care of Mr. Ellis, 38, Ellington-street, Islington, N.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is WANTED for the Parish Church of Harwich. Duties light. His services would be required as soon as possible. A single man preferred. Salary £30. Address the Vicar, Harwich, Essex.

AN ORGANIST, formerly connected with a Cathedral and with one of our most eminent Public Schools, seeks an ENGAGEMENT in London, where a full Choral Service is performed. Address "Musical," 14, Aspland-grove, Amhurst-road, Hackney, N.E.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of many years' experience is open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Good testimonials. Address E. W., 11, Hungerford-road, Camden-road, N.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS BLANCHE REIVES (Principal Soprano only).
Oratorios, Opera, Concerts, &c. 28, Queen's-road, Norland-square, W.,
and 106, Renfrew-street, Glasgow.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano),
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE (Soprano),
2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, W.

MISS JENNY TWIGG (Soprano).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 41, Hampton Villas, Clough-road, Sheffield.

MRS. J. W. JACKSON (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address 56, Lee-crescent, Birmingham.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),
50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MISS RUTH HARLOW (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, etc.
Address Lark-hill, Tonge, Middleton.

MR. J. H. PEARSON (Alto or Counter Tenor).
Principal, Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
Address 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor.)
For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 1, St. George's-terrace, Kilburn.

W. M. DYSON (Tenor).
For Oratorios or Concerts. Address Cathedral Choir, Worcester.

MR. N. DUMVILLE (Principal Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. WILLIAM DUMVILLE (Tenor),
5, Elvington-street, Hulme, or Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. REDFERN HOLLINS (Tenor).
Address 26, St. Stephen's-road, Shepherd's Bush, London.

MR. ALBERT JAMES (Tenor).
Address Tenby-villa, Horton-road, Dalston, E.

MR. MONTEITH RANDELL (Basso).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Apply 47, Johnson-street, Ladywood, Birmingham.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Basso).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; also for Oxford Glee Party.
Address Principal Bass, Ch. Ch. Cathedral, Oxford.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),
Sunnybank, Hazleville-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
(Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts), for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address 2, Halfeld-place, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. C. J. BISHENDEN (the celebrated Bass).
For Engagements and Pupils, 52, Mortimer-street, Cavendish-sq., W.

MR. H. WATSON (Solo Pianist and Accompanist).
For terms, &c., address 25, Market-place, Manchester.

MR. J. TILLEARD,
Removed to Seaton-villa, Slaithwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder,
29, Minorities, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827,) Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds,
Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 20, Minorities,
London. List for stamp.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUB-LISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ-Accordions.
Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free.
J. Russell, 168, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

The King of all Reed Instruments yet invented.

W. HATTERSLEY and CO.'S Celebrated Improved
HARMONIUMS, for quality of tone, rapidity of touch, workmanship, improved action, &c., stand unequalled. These charming instruments have been compared side by side with the American organs, and pronounced superior at half the price.

DRAWING ROOM MODEL,

Full Organ Tone, with knee swell to Treble and Bass, all stops effective.

9 Stops, Walnut case, 17 guineas.

12 " Burr " 22 "

13 " " 26 "

New designs and new testimonials now ready.

W. Hattersley and Co., 10 and 12, Bow-street, Sheffield.

HARGREAVES'S PROFESSIONAL AND CONNOISSEURS' HARMONIUM.

The following Testimonial from Boyton Smith, Esq., in reference to
No. 3 of this model, is addressed to all who desire the most satisfactory instrument of the Harmonium class ever yet offered to the public:—

"Dear Sir,

"The Harmonium I had of you some time since is

"The most satisfactory instrument of the class I ever had.

"The mechanical arrangement

"Is excellent, and has never been out of order.

"While from the "Agreeable quality and variety of its tone, it is ever a pleasure to play upon it.

"I have never tired of it, as I have of other kinds; and it is "Its capability of producing continued new effects that renders it truly as you style it

"THE PROFESSOR'S HARMONIUM."

"My violoncello stop is the wonder of every one,

"So close is the resemblance.

"Yours faithfully,

"Weymouth, 1872."

"BOYTON SMITH.

See testimonials from Dr. H. Leslie and others.

Another model constructed with 2 manuals, surpasses all Harmoniums hitherto constructed, in offering some distinct qualities in voicing from the most delicate upwards, and some novelties.

HARGREAVES'S AMERICAN IRON FRAME PIANO

Has a double iron frame cast in one piece; cross strings, suspended soundboard: it is the ne plus ultra of piano construction, excelling all others made with wooden bracings, or mixed iron and wood bracings, falsely called iron frame Pianos. It is especially addressed to all those wishing to possess the finest toned instrument that money can purchase.

The above specialities at William Hargreaves, 61, Dale-street, Manchester.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 7th ed.,
6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE
BANDS, PIANOFORTES AND HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices at J. Moore's, Buxton-road, Huddersfield. Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

KELLY'S ORGAN HARMONIUMS, as manufactured for Her Majesty, are the only instruments of English manufacture that received any award at the Paris and Dublin Exhibition. A liberal allowance to the clergy.—11, Charles-street, Bernersstreet. Price lists post free.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard,
and other makers, always in stock; also PARISIAN PIANOFORTES,
at prices suitable to the trade, for cash only.

ORGAN WOOD AND METAL PIPES, zinc fronts, voicing, tuning, and fittings of all kinds by C. Pollard, 25, Alma-street, Kentish-town, N.W.

ORGAN METAL PIPES; best quality; zinc front pipes; voicing and tuning.—S. Fowler, 127, Pentonville-road.

MONK'S 100 GUINEA ORGANS.—2 manuals (full
A. compass), 10 stops, bourdon pedal pipes. Chancel Organs from 30 guineas. 7 stop ORGAN (new) FOR SALE, general swell and pedals, 65 guineas. Angler's-lane, Kentish-town-road, London.

SMALL ORGAN for SALE, very cheap, handsome case, decorated speaking front, 13 pedals. E. Edwards, Chesham, Bucks.

TO ORGAN COMMITTEES.—To be SOLD, the very fine ORGAN, of 24 stops, now in Albion-street Chapel, Ashton-under-Lyne. Case 22 ft. 6 in. high, 19 ft. wide, of Spanish mahogany, French polished, 962 speaking pipes; a magnificent instrument, and will be sold cheap. Must be taken down shortly. Particulars can be had, and the organ seen, by applying to J. Whittaker, 180, Stamford-street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

ORGAN.—A fine CC ORGAN, 2 complete manuals, 16 stops, and 2½ octaves of pedals, large scale, for church or chapel; cheap, in fine condition. Also, a small ORGAN, 6 stops. For particulars, apply at 180, Stamford-street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE, built by Messrs. TELFORD, Dublin.—2 manuals; one and a half octaves pedal; great organ, 6 stops; swell ditto, 6 stops; pedal organ, bourdon 16th tone; 1. couplers, swell to great; 2. great to pedal; 2 composition pedals. Solid oak case, with gilt front pipes. Dimensions about—height, 10 ft.; depth, 5 ft.; width, 9 ft. 4 in. This organ may be seen at the Cloisters, Westminster, upon application to Mr. Turle.

ORGAN for SALE.—Three Manuals, CC to G, four stops on the great, three on the swell, three on the choir, five couplers, separate bourdon pedals, 29 notes. At A. Hunter's Organ Manufactory, 379, Kennington-road, S.W.

ORGAN HARMONIUM, £19 and £21. Fine tone, 2½ rows of reeds, bourdon on full compass, German pedals, with coupler to keys, foot and side blower. Manufactured for pedal practice by W. J. Robertson, 107, Tottenham-road, Kingsland, London, N. Send for lists.

HARMONIUM for SALE. Maker's name, Nicole Frères, Paris; in rosewood case, ten stops, two complete sets of vibrators, in capital condition, well suited for a small church or school room. Apply to Mr. W. A. Marson, Organist of Christ Church, Stafford.

PIANO.—A COTTAGE, by BROADWOOD, with metal-lic plate, 6½ octaves. Price 12 guineas. 126, Cator-street, Peckham.

SECOND-HAND COTTAGE PIANOFORTES by all great Makers, BOUGHT for CASH. Also, SALES by AUCTION of same undertaken, and Cash advanced to any amount. William Adams and Sons, Auctioneers, Manchester.

DOUBLE BASS for SALE.—A handsome and powerful old instrument, in good condition. Reasonable terms. Apply by letter to X, Mr Sprague, Finsbury-pavement, E.C.

FOR SALE, a VIOLONCELLO, by James and Henry Banks, Salisbury (1805), in good condition. Price £14. For particulars apply to Mr. George Grant, Spohr Villa Avenue, Southampton. Also a good DOUBLE BASS, £12.

PIANO and SINGING LESSONS given by a Professor. A Vocal Class meets every week. Schools attended. Apply to F. Sewell Southgate, 28, Welbeck-street, Cavendish-square, W.

ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, HARMONY, &c., One Guinea per quarter; Lessons and Practice on fine modern instruments. Organist, 51, Fenchurch-street, E.C.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, Strand.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—(HILL and SON)—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new instrument, with two manuals, 16 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and practice on other Instruments also.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.), begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts, may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

MUSIO.—MISS LUOY CRAMER (pupil of LANSLOWNE COTTELL, Esq., continues to give LESSONS on the PIANOFORTE at her residence or otherwise. Morning or Evening engagements accepted. Moderate terms. 34, Keppel-street, Russell-square, or 281, Euston-road.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Sixth Season). Mr. H. ASHTON. Mr. T. PEARSON. Mr. J. F. MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN.

Assisted by Madame ASHTON. (Miss F. Danielson.)

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c. address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

THE ALBERT GLEE TRIO. Messrs. J. PUSMAN, G. TAYLOR, and H. M. CADMAN, Are open to Engagements for Concerts, Dinners, &c. Address J. PUSMAN, Kensal Green.

J. J. HAITE'S CANTATA "ABRAHAM'S SACRIFICE,"

And other Music, will be performed by the "London Vocal Union," at Albion Hall, London Wall, on Monday evening, March 10, at eight. Miss Maria Langley, Mr. Albert James, Mr. Baker Scott. Conductor, Mr. George Wells. Admission 1s. and 2s.

TO HARMONIUM MAKERS.—The Advertisers are open to BUY a regular supply of small Harmoniums, with and without stops. Price, must be low, for cash. Apply to Thompson and Shackell, Pianoforte dealers, 13, Guildhall-square, Carmarthen.

THE PATENT LOOPED-BINDER PORTFOLIO.

The Best and Simplest ever Invented.

By using it you can bind your Music or Periodicals yourself quite easily.

When open it lies perfectly flat—a great advantage, especially for Music, for which it is particularly adapted, as any piece may be removed and another placed instead. Is also cheaper than ordinary bookbinding.

Music Sizes.			Prices.
Full Music, 15 by 11	8 0
Ditto, ½ bound extra	4 0
MSS. Music, 12½ by 10	2 6
Musical Times, 11 by 7½	1 6

Periodical sizes on application.

The Wire Binders necessary for above are 4d., 5d., and 6d. per Box, containing One Gross, or with Gum Tickets, ½ gross loose, 6d.; 1 gross mounted, 1s. They make a very secure Binder even without the Folio.

Sole Maker, Thomas Edmondson, 11, Dame-street, Dublin. May be ordered through any stationer or music-seller; or from F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster-row; C. Jeffreys, 57, Berners-street, London; John Heath, George-street, Parade, Birmingham.

ONE GUINEA'S WORTH OF MUSIC for 2s. 6d., slightly soiled, including the surplus of the past year's issue. Post free, 2s. 10d. JAMES SMITH & SON, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

TO THE MUSIC TRADE.—Now ready, THE PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM STOCK BOOK, and the PIANOFORTE TUNING REGISTER, compiled and arranged by FREDERICK LUCAS, Public Accountant, 26, Maddox-street, London.

These Books will be found to be of very great assistance to all engaged in the Pianoforte Hiring and Tuning Trade. The Stock Book is arranged not only as a Register of all Pianos and Harmoniums in stock and on hire, but also to show the result of the Hiring and Selling Price of each Piano, &c. The TUNING REGISTER is alphabetically arranged to show the list of Pianos to be tuned, and the dates for Tuning the same. Price from 4s. upwards.

HAVE your MUSIC PREPARED by LITHOGRAPHIC COPYING, cheaper than engraving. Composers, Organists, Societies, should give it a trial. Specimen. F. Wood, 32, Vincent-square, Westminster.

PASCALL'S VOICE JUJUBES.

Strongly recommended to Singers and Public Speakers. Agreeable and effective. In boxes only, Sixpence and One Shilling each, or post free for eight and fourteen stamps. None genuine without the name and address on each box.—Jas. Pascall, 21, Wells-street, Oxford-street, London, W.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS

BY

C. S. JEKYLL,

Organist of St. George's Church, Hanover-square, and Assistant Organist of Westminster Abbey.

FULL ANTHEMS.

	s.	d.
"SAVE ME, O GOD" (4 voices) for Lent	0 9
"THOU WILT KEEP HIM IN PERFECT PEACE" (for Easter) ..	Vocal parts ..	0 6
"ALMIGHTY GOD" ..	Vocal parts ..	2 6
"ARISE, O LORD"	1 0
TRINITY HYMN	1 0
COMMUNION SERVICE	2 0
GRAND MARCH (for the Organ)	0 3
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.	Vocal parts ..	4 0
	..	3 0

PART-SONGS.

"ON THE SEA" (S.A.T.B.)	0 6
"WHEN TWILIGHT DEWS" (S.A.T.B.)	0 6

SONGS.

"REMEMBER ME" (Tenor)	4 0
"NOW" (Baritone)	4 0
"GO, FORGET ME" (Tenor)	4 0
"THE MERMAID'S LULLABY" (Soprano)	3 0
London: Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover-street, Regent-street.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES and ROUNDS; or Musical Precept and Example, combined in Easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J. POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c.

London: Novello, Ewer, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 2s. 6d. (To be followed by Canticle Chants.)

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS,

SINGLE AND DOUBLE,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with special reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry. New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 258 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

„ 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

„ 3. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 0d.

„ 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 2s. 6d.

Congregations or Associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and musicsellers.

NOW READY,
A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS AND ANTHEMS, arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford. Very neat and compact, 218 pp. Imperial 82mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in ... 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered ... 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered ... 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co.

Bradford: Thomas Bear.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK and PSALMS and CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Eighth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book; also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON, and for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.; cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SCHOOLS and CHOIRS.—The Rudiments of Vocal Music, with 32 Preparatory Exercises, Rounds, and Songs, in the Treble Clef, by T. MEE PATTISON. Price 6d.

The Exercises are in all the keys, and the Solfeccio name is placed under each note, on the moveable Do system.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,

FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS AND SCHOOLMASTERS.

By RICHARD MANN,

Organist of the Abbey Church, Cirencester, &c.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWENTIETH EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Now ready, in Three Books, 6s. each. Post-free for Half-price.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

Specially adapted for Colleges, Public Schools, Singing Classes, &c.

Book 1 (Duets); Books 2 and 3 (Trios).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Third edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOW READY.

THE NATURAL PRINCIPLES OF HARMONY.

By W. W. PARKINSON. Price 15s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Manchester: W. W. Parkinson and Son, 24, St. Ann's-square.

THE PIANIST'S PRACTICAL GUIDE to Theoretical Knowledge and Manual Execution, by F. WEBER, resident Organist, German Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace. 2nd edition, 10s. 6d. "A work eminently calculated to improve the method of teaching the instrument."—Daily News.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MUSIC FOR THE NEW CODE.—The SINGING-CLASS MANUAL, by the late WILLIAM JACKSON, Masham, is admirably suited for use in the public elementary schools. Price (with Appendix, containing eight pieces of music in different keys), 2s. London: Novello, Ewer & Co.; and of all Musicsellers and Booksellers.

PART-SONGS, BY W. W. PEARSON.

THERE'S BEAUTY IN THE DEEP ... 1d.

SWEET TO LIVE AMID THE MOUNTAINS ... 2d.

THE STORMY PETREL (Tenor and Bass Solos) ... 8d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Brampton-Bierlow, Rotherham: Pearson, from whom free for stamps.

MR. VERNON RIGBY'S NEW SONG.

I SAW THEE WEEP. Composed expressly for him by FRANK NAISSE. In A flat and F. Price 4s. Messrs. Duncan Davison and Co., 244, Regent-street, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS, now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.

No. 1. The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.

No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katherine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra.

Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.

W. H. BIRCH'S EASTER MUSIC.

Anthem, "If ye then be risen with Christ," price 6d.

Anthem, by JOSEPH KEY, "Now is Christ risen," price 6d.

Anthem, "Ponder my words," price 6d.

Six Good Friday Hymns; six Easter Hymns, price 1s.

Address W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton-place, Reading.

SIX CHORAL SONGS, for S.A.T.B. Composed by ROBERT JACKSON, of the Royal Academy of Music. Price, in paper covers, 1s. 3d.; separately—"The Mariners," 2d.; "The Meadow Gate," 3d.; "The Voice of Spring," 3d.; "Lilian," 2d.; "Come when the dawn," 3d.; "The homes of England," 2d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Manchester: Hime and Addison, Forsyth Bros.; and from the Composer, 23, Barker-street, Oldham.

TO CHOIRS.

SIX PART-SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, Composed and dedicated to Edinburgh University Musical Society, by H. S. OAKELEY, Mus. Doc., and Professor of Music at that University. No. 1, "Abendlied;" No. 2, "True Love;" No. 3, "Hunting Song;" No. 4, "Love's Philosophy," are now ready. Price, Nos. 1 and 2, and 3 and 4, 4d. vocal score. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TEN TRIOS for FEMALE VOICES, composed by

CARL REINECKE. (Op. 100.) 8vo., 1s. 6d.; or singly—

No. 1.—"The Dreaming Lake," 2d.

"2.—"Praise of Spring," 3d.

"3.—"Of Oak thy mournful bier's prepared," 3d.

"4.—"Sunbeams in Winter," 2d.

"5.—"The Awakening of Morn," 3d.

"6.—"The Winter hath not a blossom," 3d.

"7.—"Thou that thyself with death hath striven," 2d.

"8.—"The Evening Wind," 3d.

"9.—"As in a field goodly fruit will grow," 3d.

"10.—"The Elves," 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

MUSETTE for ORGAN (with Pedal Obbligato), composed by E. H. TURPIN. This piece may be used as an Introductory or Middle Voluntary. Price 3s.

Messrs. Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover-street, Regent-street.

IN AID OF

NORTH COATES CHURCH ORGAN FUND.

Published June, 1872.

Toned paper, cloth, gilt lettered, price 7s. 6d.

THE SECOND AND CONCLUDING VOLUME

OF

"THE VILLAGE ORGANIST,"

Containing the following Voluntaries, all composed expressly for it and not published in any other work:—

Slow Melody. Wm. H. Calcott.	Andante. J. F. Barnett.
Andante (Pastorale). Mrs. Mounsey Bartholomew.	Andante. R. Forsey Brion.
Andante. Mrs. Mounsey Bartholomew.	Andante (Pastorale). Dr. E. F. Rimbault.
Allegretto grazioso quasi Andante. E. M. Delaborda.	Andante. Dr. E. F. Rimbault.
Andante (Canzone). Dr. H. J. Gauntlett.	Andante. C. Goodban, Mus. B., Oxon.
Andante con moto. F. E. Gladstone.	Andante. Dr. E. G. Monk.
Andante con grazia (Canzone). Franz Nava.	Andantino tranquillo. E. H. Turpin.
Andante (Pastorale). E. Silas.	Andante cantabile (Prelude). E. H. Turpin.
Andante con moto (Siciliana). John Hallab.	Maestoso (March). E. H. Turpin.
Larghetto espressivo. G. A. Macfarren.	Larghetto. Dr. G. B. Arnold.
Andante con moto (Prelude). Sir Julius Benedict.	Andante and Adagio. Henry Farmer.
Andante con moto. Henry Smart.	Moderato (Prelude). S. Reay, Mus. B., Oxon.
Allegro poco maestoso (Prelude). W. G. Cousins.	Andante cantabile. H. S. Irons.
Andante maestoso. E. G. Verrinder, Mus. Bac., Oxon.	Allegretto (Song of Praise). Dr. J. Stainer.
	Andante. Dr. S. S. Wesley.
	Andante (Pastorale). J. Barnby.
	Larghetto. J. Barnby.

"A most useful series of pieces. * * * Pleasantly exemplifies the present state of musicianship in England, and will be found valuable for practical use where short voluntaries are needed, in towns as much as in villages."—"Musical Times," Aug. 1872.

London:

Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street (W.), and 85, Poultry (E.C.).

New York: J. L. Peters, 599, Broadway.

C. JEFFERYS, 57 BERNERS ST. THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

A COLLECTION OF

PART-SONGS, GLEES, CHORUSES, &c.

EDITED BY MICHAEL WATSON.

1 'Tis silent eve	Michael Watson.
2 Corin's fate	R. Turner.
3 Where the pearly dew-drop falleth	E. J. Loder.
4 The Winter being over	Ellen Avery.
5 Fairy voices	T. G. B. Hatley.
6 Moonlight	J. H. L. Glover.
7 Good-bye	J. L. Hatton.
8 I thought of thee	W. F. Banks.
9 The Forsaken	J. L. Hatton.
10 Bonny May	J. H. L. Glover.
11 Spring Song	J. L. Hatton.
12 The Winds	C. J. Frost.
13 County Guy	G. A. Macfarren.
14 The birds that had left their song	do.

Price 2d. each number. Other Numbers in the Press.

THE POPULAR

Operatic Arrangements,

SOLOS AND DUETS,

And Original Pianoforte Pieces,

By FELIX GANTIER,

Of which lists may be had on application.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

1. FOUNTAINS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire movement) s. d. from Haydn's 16th Mass	3 0
2. NETLEY ABBEY. Cujus Animam (the entire movement) from Rossini's Stabat Mater	3 0
3. KIRKSTALL ABBEY. Kyrie (the entire movement) from Mozart's 12th Mass	3 0
4. TINTERN ABBEY. Gloria in Excelsis (the entire movement) from Mozart's 12th Mass	3 0

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, with views of English Abbeys.

THE LYRIC STAGE, a Series of Brilliant Operatic Fantasias:—

1. Martha	Flotow	4 0
2. Lucia di Lammermoor	Donizetti	4 0
3. Il Flauto Magico	Mozart	4 0
4. Les Huguenots	Meyerbeer	4 0
5. La Traviata	Verdi	4 0
6. Norma	Bellini	4 0
7. L'Ombre	Flotow	4 0
8. Robert le Diable	Meyerbeer	4 0
9. Il Trovatore	Verdi	4 0

THE QUEEN ... 4 0

Brilliant Fantasia on English National Airs, "Heart of Oak," "Rule, Britannia," and "God save the Queen."

THE PRINCESS LOUISE WEDDING MARCH	3 0
PRINCESS VICTORIA MARCH	3 0

Each illustrated with fine Portrait in Colours.

LOUIS DUPUIS.

CATHEDRAL GEMS:

1. NANTES.—Fantasia, on subjects from Mozart's 12th Mass	3 0
2. WURMS.—Fantasia, on subjects from Weber's Mass in G	8 0
3. ROTTERDAM.—Fantasia, on subjects from Haydn's 8rd (Imperial) Mass	8 0
4. MALAGA.—Fantasia, on subjects from Beethoven's Mass in C	8 0
5. ROTEN.—Fantasia, on subjects from Gounod's Messe Solennelle	3 0
6. CAEN.—Fantasia, on subjects from Rossini's Stabat Mater	8 0
7. MAYENCE.—Fantasia, on subjects from Haydn's 1st Mass, B flat	8 0
8. COLOGNE.—Fantasia, on subjects from Mozart's 1st Mass, in C	8 0
9. PARIS.—Fantasia, on subjects from Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise	8 0
10. LONDON.—Fantasia, on subjects from Handel's Messiah	8 0
11. NORWICH.—Fantasia, on subjects from Haydn's Creation	8 0
12. CANTERBURY.—Fantasia, on Spohr's As pants the Hart	8 0
13. YORK.—Fantasia, on Handel's Judas Maccabeus	9 0
14. SALISBURY.—Fantasia, on Mendelssohn's St. Paul	9 0
15. WELLS.—Fantasia, on Haydn's Mass in B flat (No. 16)...	8 0

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, with views of celebrated Cathedrals.

C. JEFFERYS, 57, BERNERS STREET (W.).

WANTED, a few AMATEURS, with a view to forming a small Orchestra. R. F., Novello's, 35, Poultry, E.C.

WELLINGTON COLLEGE, WOKINGHAM.—The Organist desires to engage TWO ASSISTANTS. Apply by letter, giving good references, stating age, and also from whom musical education has been received. Salary £20 to £40 per annum, according to qualification.

ORGANIST.—WANTED, a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Good references and testimonials. Address F., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, London, E.C.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED at Lady-day for the Parish Church of West Ham, Stratford, E. He must be accustomed to train a Choir; and it is desirable that he be competent to conduct a Choral Society. Highest testimonials required as to character and ability. A Communicant preferred. Apply immediately by letter to Rev. T. Scott, Vicarage, West Ham, E.

A MEMBER of the COLLEGE of ORGANISTS desires an APPOINTMENT where there is a good opening for Teaching. Address M. C. O., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGANIST.—A YOUTH, fully competent, is desirous to act as DEPUTY to a Gentleman of position (London or suburbs), or open to an independent Engagement. X.Y., 60, Lorrimer-road, Walworth, S.E.

A GENTLEMAN holding an important post as Organist and Choirmaster, is desirous of obtaining an APPOINTMENT in the County of Leicester or district surrounding. Is a good Churchman, possesses first-class testimonials, and would accept moderate salary. Address Kibadlieu, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-st.

ORGANIST.—A Gentleman of much experience desires an APPOINTMENT in London. Moderate salary required. Address G. S., Park-cottage, Pelham-street, Brompton, S.W.

AN ACCOMPANIST (able to Teach Harmonium), WANTED for a Choir in the City. Address Mr. Wells, 11, Queen-street-place, City.

WANTED, an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST or ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, in London, by an Organist and Choirmaster. Testimonials. Moderate salary required. Address "Inversion," Novello, Ewer and Co.

AN ORGANIST of upwards of 20 years' experience requires an ENGAGEMENT in a Parish Church. Can instruct a choir; also understands Tuning Organs. Address J.D., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

A CHOIRMASTER is WANTED for Holy Trinity Church, Brompton, at Lady-day. Application to be made to Rev. A. Brook, 55, Brompton-crescent, S.W.

A LADY, good Vocalist and Musician, having some time disengaged during the day, wishes for further ENGAGEMENTS as Teacher of the Pianoforte and Singing either in Schools or Private Families. Address A. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO ORGANISTS.—TUITION required, with use of instrument. Terms must be moderate. Apply to D., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

PIANOFORTE TUNER, Repairer, and Player.—WANTED a good Man, by a firm of Auctioneers in the Country. Wages not large, but facility offered for making it four times. Address Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TUNER and REPAIRER.—Permanent ENGAGEMENT in a provincial City for an experienced man. One who has been with Broadwood preferred. Address J. S., Messrs. Hutchings and Romer, 9, Conduit-street.

WANTED, a first-class TUNER and TONER. Apply to Messrs. Kirkman and Son, 3, Soho-square, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER REQUIRED for a first-class establishment in Scotland, where several others are employed. A permanent engagement and a liberal salary to a skilful and good Tuner. Such may apply, with references, to Challen and Hodgson, 20, Oxford-street, London.

WANTED. PIANO TUNER; a steady, respectable Young Man. State age, experience, salary, and reference. Address A. B. C., Post office, Southampton.

MUSIC TRADE.—WANTED, a Young Man as ASSISTANT in a Music Shop. Address F., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED, an ASSISTANT in a Music Shop. A good writer preferred. Address G. G., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED for a first-class Music and Pianoforte Repository, a FEMALE ASSISTANT (in-door), who can write a good hand. Apply by letter (with carte de visite), stating age, experience, salary required, reference, to "Musicus," Elliott's Pianoforte Repository, Tunbridge Wells.

TO PROFESSORS OF MUSIC.—FOR SALE, a highly respectable and old-established TEACHING CONNECTION, with the probable appointment as Organist of the Parish Church, a short distance from town. A favourable opportunity for a Professor who could devote his time partly in London and partly in the country. For further particulars, apply to Frederick Lucas, Accountant, 26, Maddox-street, London.

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—Mr. R. Taylor, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

MR. H. S. IRONS, Assistant-Organist of Chester Cathedral, will be happy to receive as ARTICLED PUPIL a young man respectably connected, who would desire to improve himself in Organ Playing, and gain experience in Cathedral Music. Only a small premium will be required. Address 4, Abbey-court, Chester.

A GENTLEMAN wishes to RECEIVE one or two BOYS to educate with his own. Superior advantages generally and musically. Terms 35 guineas per annum. Seaside. Address R. X., Post-office, Great Yarmouth.

CHOIR BOYS for CATHEDRALS and Collegiate Churches PREPARED in London for EXAMINATION. Address Z., Mus. Bac., Oxon., 1, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.

A LADY of some years' experience, wishes to hear of an OPENING for TEACHING Pianoforte and Singing in Schools and Families. Good references. Willing to undertake an Organ, and to train a Choir. Address F. P., 21, Cathedral-yard, Exeter.

CONTRALTO WANTED for St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, near the Custom House. Sunday morning Service only. Must have a good voice, and be able to read. Salary £7 a year. Apply to the Organist at the Church on Sunday afternoon, March 16, at 4 p.m.

WANTED, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for Holywell Parish Church. Salary £30. Population 12,000. Apply to the Vicar, Holywell, Flintshire.

WANTED, an ASSISTANT in a Music Warehouse. He must be able to Tune Pianos and Harmoniums, and assist in Teaching. A good home for a respectable young man. Apply to Music Warehouse, Russell-street, Northgate, Darlington.

NEW EDITION of HULLAH'S GRAMMAR of HARMONY. Now ready, in medium 8vo., price 3s. sewed.

A GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. By A. JOHN HULLAH, Professor of Vocal Music in King's College, Queen's College, and Bedford College, London, and Organist of Charterhouse. New Edition, revised and re-constructed in 1872.

COURSE of EXERCISES to ACCOMPANY the GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. By JOHN HULLAH. New Edition, revised and re-constructed in 1872. Medium 8vo., price 1s. sewed.

London: Longmans, Green and Co., Paternoster-row.

SONGS by the Author of "Never mind the rest," suitable for Readings, Lectures, &c.:—

"Down by the Brookside" (sung by Montem Smith), 8s. 6d.; "My Father's Apple Tree," 3s.; "The Engine Driver," 4s.; "Keep a light heart, say I," 3s.; "An English Wife for me," 3s.; "Now and then, or Three hundred years ago," 3s. 6d.; "The straight path through the wood," 3s.; "Flannagan and the Fairy," 3s.

B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row; Hutchings and Co., 9, Conduit-st.

SPRING SONG, from "Babil and Bijou," arranged by W. SMALLWOOD, as a piece of moderate difficulty for the Pianoforte, price 3s. Also the same, easy for small hands, price 1s. Either post free for half price. London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT, price 3s. Synopsis, Term 1: On the Semitone and Tone, Scales, Intervals, Inversions of Intervals, Triads, Keys and Clefs, the principal Chords of a Key, Cadences, the Inversions of Triads. Term 2: On the Chord of the Dominant 7th, Inversions of ditto, Suspensions, the Diminished 7th (particularly its use in Modulation). Term 3: On Modulation, Form, Composition, Counterpoint (1st, 2nd, and 3rd species).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., and all Musicellers.

MUSICAL STANDARD, Old Series, Vols. I.—VII. (August, 1862 to December, 1867.) gilt lettered, strongly bound in half morocco, and equal to new, FOR SALE. Also Vols. VIII. and IX. (January, 1868, to December 1869.) unbound. Forwarded carriage free. Offers for the lot or for separate volumes to be addressed to Mr. H. A. Powell, care of Mr. Nash, Royal Parade, Tunbridge Wells.

NOTICE.

MERCER'S CHURCH PSALTER and HYMN BOOK. An APPENDIX of ADDITIONAL HYMNS, CHANTS, SANCTUSES, and RESPONSES, the Harmonies carefully revised by Sir John Goss, may now be had, either separately, or bound up with the work in all its various sizes and forms. Prospectuses, with full particulars, will be forwarded on application. London: James Nisbet and Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; Lamborn Cock, 62 and 63, New Bond-street, W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES,

And Singing-Class Circular.

MARCH 1, 1873.

SMALL "PLACES WHERE THEY SING," AND THEIR FITTING MUSIC.

NO. I.—THE PEOPLE'S RESPONSE.

WITHOUT wasting precious lines in exordium, introduction, or other long-named beginning, let us at once take up the consideration of the people's response, as the simplest form to which musical tone may be attached.

The People's Response.—Does not the phrase of itself seem to suggest that the people themselves should have some say in the matter, and that the people's use—if such use exist to any appreciable extent—should be allowed full weight in deciding the manner of responding in the common congregation? The question then resolves itself into this—Is there, or is there not, any such people's use of response? It cannot be too widely known or too fully recognized that there does exist such use across Yorkshire and to a less degree in the adjoining counties. In these districts the people's answer is conveyed in uninflected speech, scarcely monotone or in one musical tone—but simply in speech without inflection. Let any Southerner attend the service in any little out-of-the-way Yorkshire church, where the activity of choral secretaries has not burst in upon ancient custom, and his ear will at once detect a response widely differing from his whining South Country polytone speech; he will hear a dignified, full-chested, deliberate utterance without inflection—not the song of one note one hears, rightly or wrongly, from the priest's lips in our cathedrals, but distinct speech, without change of tone.

And it must be confessed that the Yorkshire custom, be its origin what it may, is in full accordance with the national character. Be it of insular pride, or what not, an indisputable fact surely it is that there is nothing we English folk care less to do, be we journeying, at home, or be we in church—than blaze abroad our inner feelings. That mode of response is surely most English that takes the least colouring from personal feeling; inflection is the colouring of speech, therefore uninflected speech for this purpose best suits the national character; and this doubtless is the chief cause why the answer of the common congregation will always be found so much fuller where there is no inflection, than where ordinary speech is employed for response. Many who would shrink from making their voices heard in the individuality of inflection, readily join in the neutral one-tone. Surely, without going further, these three considerations—that the use is over a large district of England an immemorial use of the people—that it is in strict accordance with the national character—that it secures a fuller and more general response—may be left to decide the advisability of, as far as possible, extending inflectionless speech as the acknowledged vehicle of the people's answer.

But now comes another question. We shall have made but small advance in securing a decent and orderly response unless we can contrive to gather the responding voices into one tone. Uninflected speech must needs be in some one tone—the line that separates it from monotone proper, or the song of one note, is very fine, and if various speakers use different tones for their uninflected speech, the effect is but little more orderly—if at all so—than if ordinary speech were used. How then shall we obtain this agreement in selecting one note? Two at least of our leading living Church composers have directed their attention to solve this difficulty by setting harmonies to the persistent one note. These—the simplest form of musical service—do indeed most satisfactorily effect the desired object of collecting and sustaining the people's uninflected response, and it is impossible to overrate the value of these settings in securing a decent and orderly, and full people's answer; constant use only tends more and more to prove their fitness and usefulness. It might be supposed by those who have no experience to guide them to an opinion, that the choir and congregation of an ordinary country church for instance, would be wholly unable to keep the one note through the service, and that the accompaniment instead of aiding, would only serve to proclaim the deviation. "Go into a cathedral, and listen to the Confession, running down almost like emptying a bottle, and is it likely that the half-trained choir and wholly untrained people can keep a note, when the practised choir of a cathedral do systematically fall?" Likely or not, fact it is that the half-trained choir and wholly untrained people do contrive to keep their note, and in a way too the cathedral choir do not, and probably cannot do. And, doubtless, strange as the assertion may at first sound, this comes about from the very reason of this want of training. As long as one note only is wanted, the very inflexibility of the untrained voice serves good turn. Only get the note once hit, and the hard voice takes a positive effort, like a stiff tap, to get it turned on another note. Let the mind wander as it may, still on, and on, and on—the untrained voice pours out of the unchanged orifice its one note. While on the contrary the delicate trained voice, if the attention flags for one moment, by minute gradations falls away insensibly, as the mind relaxes the effort of trimming by the ear. In practice it will be found that there is no difficulty in keeping the ordinary choir well up to pitch with accompanied monotone, but stray into melodic response—take to "doing Tallis," and where the trained choir at once rallies into tone, the ordinary choir falls to pieces in those indescribable noises, that so frequently impart such a sense of agony to the Preces.

One further step must be taken to ensure to the people's response full decency and order, and that is, that the ministrant shall himself adopt the people's custom, and employ uninflected speech in the common prayer. In our day, happily, the old attempts at fine reading, as taught by "Professors of Elocution," have well nigh wholly passed away. The clergy, of whatever shade of opinion, have for the most part laid aside the ancient prejudice against inflectionless speech, and where the one-tone is not purposely used, we find often so slight a variation from it, that it may be classed with it.

The fact is, not only is it found that speech with slight or no inflection wears and tears the voice very much less than ordinary speech, but that it is a far better vehicle of the words—carries them farther and more distinctly—doing away as it does with those falling tones, occurring so often in common speech, and which go by the term of dropping the voice. It may also be added that the very impersonality of the use commends itself to many minds. There is a sense of obtruding one's own meanings into the common prayer, when ordinary speech is used, and every priest surely desires to stand before his people as the minister of the church, rather than as the Rev. Mr. So-and-so. Much more general might the use become, if only it were more extensively recognized, that the aim should be not to set the prayers to a song of one note, but to speak without employing variation of tone. Surely nothing is more offensive to good taste, propriety, and sober feeling, than to hear prayers trolled forth in a rollicking showman's voice, or daintily warbled with cres. and dim. and p's and f's to the display of what the ladies call Mr. So-and-so's charming voice. Unfortunately such exhibitions commonly pass for intoning, and in more ways than one serve to deter many from adopting the custom of which such exhibitions are the parodies. "I cannot intone," says the quiet, modest man, who has neither the showman's nor the young lover's voice. "I cannot intone, I have no voice." No voice? Why, cannot you speak? You read the service on several tones; as surely as if you can go up several steps you can go up one, so surely if you can read in several tones you can read in one. Let me prove to you that you can intone. Whisper a sentence as clearly and articulately as you can. Now repeat that sentence, adding to the whisper—the dry articulation—any one tone you can utter easily. Give as much articulation and as little tone as you can; watch your throat and observe the form it takes in its effort to supply the whisper with vocal tone. Retaining that form of throat, read many sentences as dryly and articulately as you can, and if you test your note by tuning-fork or otherwise, you will find you will have kept the pitch. That is best intoning that, being true to pitch, shall yet be able to pass as simple speech in the ears of the ordinary hearer. It yet remains for the ministrant to identify his note with the people's accompanied note of response. Few if any ears, it is to be hoped, there are so dull as to be unable to learn to take up a note from an organ, if that note lies near the prevailing speaking tone. It must be owned that there is some difficulty in this matter, but the real point of the difficulty lies in the difficulty not being recognized by those who have to surmount it. The man with imperfect ear has no inner test to help him to accuracy; if he would but take his quicker-eared friend's kindly word and firmly resolve to set a true G fast and firm in his ear—even though at the cost of hours of practice—the difficulty would surely in every case almost, quickly vanish. And who would begrudge a few hours' patient labour to be able to help, rather than interfere with, the one-note response of the people; one-note response helping surely to one-heart feeling.

J. POWELL METCALFE.

ENGLISH OPERA.

By HENRY C. LUNN.

ALL thinkers upon the condition of British Operatic art who, like ourselves, are old enough to remember the days of the "English Opera House," as it was termed, cannot but be struck with the manner in which this establishment was carried on year after year, in spite of the fact that frequently for months together an Opera was never heard within its walls. The theatre under the management of Mr. Arnold, although theoretically opened for the representation of strictly musical works, was practically devoted to what was likely to bring an audience; and we distinctly recollect that a drama entitled "The Evil Eye," was a highly attractive piece; that John Reeve, the low comedian of his time, was excessively funny in the character of Zanie Kiebags; and that the same actor, in a Farce, called "The Mummy" (which was moulded on the model of the more modern "Adelphi Screamer"), kept the audience in a roar of laughter from the rising to the falling of the curtain. Strangely enough, however, the original object for which the theatre was founded, could not be entirely lost sight of, for by the terms of the licence, it was compulsory to have a certain number of pieces of music in each act. This gave rise to the most absurd effects, for songs, duets, &c., were dragged in without meaning, simply to satisfy the conscience of the Lord Chamberlain. But their great hope was in finales: the act-drop scarcely ever fell without a number of people rushing in most unceremoniously (very often into a gentleman's drawing-room,) and bawling out some such nonsense as the following, which was set to music by the "arranger" of the establishment:

When morning beams,
We wake from dreams,
And off to hunt we go.
And, when it's o'er,
We drink and roar,
Hark forward, ho, yo ho!

Solos, too, as we have said, were constantly introduced, having so little to do with the situation in which they were sung, that the business of the scene was usually temporarily suspended, and a few words allusive to the subject of the song, written for the occasion, were spoken by the vocalist, as a "cue" for the orchestra. Thus a brigand, who had been pursued by troops into a mountain pass, would come forward, and, at the risk of being fired upon, sing a sentimental effusion, relating to his early days; a waiting-maid would unceremoniously walk into her mistress's room and, bidding her "listen," give a detailed account of her numerous wooers, and the manner in which she had treated them; and we have even seen a harp and milking-stool brought into a corn-field, in order that the suffering heroine (who unfortunately happened to be a vocalist) should sing a popular ballad to her own accompaniment.

Unquestionably these "musical pieces" (if such they might be called), would scarcely do much for the cultivation of creative operatic talent; but it must be remembered that the idea was thus kept alive—there was an English Opera House, if there were an English Opera to put in it; and if composers could not or would not write one, the lessee was always enabled to fall back upon Zanie Kiebags and fill the house. Let those who regard these days with wonder recollect, however, that English Operas were given, and successfully too; and that from this period we may date a very decided growth in the taste for musical works by British composers. Loder's "Nourjahad," and John Barnett's "Mountain Sylph," to name only two of the many produced, attracted large audiences, and encouraged the belief that as long as there existed a home for such native productions, no difficulty would be found in procuring them. It may also be said that the cast of these operas was, as a rule, in the highest degree satisfactory. In the "Mountain Sylph," for instance, Miss Romer, Messrs. Wilson, and Henry Phillips formed a trio thoroughly competent to interpret the music entrusted to them; and although it must be confessed that Mr. Keeley, who played the part of Christie, however good as a comedian, could hardly be accepted as a vocalist, the public was good natured enough to laugh with him, instead of at him, because it was well understood that with a company so strangely mixed, the singers must be constantly encroaching upon the province of the actors, and the actors upon that of the singers.

But, apart from the works written especially for this establishment, it must be borne in mind that foreign operas in the English language were here presented, and this during the time when the fashionable lyrical establishment in the Haymarket was sealed to the general public, in consequence of the high rate of admission. Night after night, for example, was the house filled to hear Weber's "Der Freischütz," which in a short time became actually popular, even with the masses. Many other operas, too, of the highest class, by continental composers, were constantly given; and it is an indisputable fact that, in spite of the much vaunted rapid and universal spread of the art, better operatic music was to be found on the pianofortes of amateurs in those days than in the present.

With this truth before us, it is obviously absurd to account for the non-existence of an English Opera House, by the fact of there being no composers who can write for it. Those who watch the progress of musical events in this country, must know that for years the public has been carefully educated away from, instead of towards it. The Italian Opera, at first, only appealing to the aristocratic few, has now become a popular institution, and the nationality of lyrical works is so disguised, from the fact of one language only being used, that, save for the retention of some of the original titles in the bills (for a mercantile, and not an artistic reason), few persons can ever know to what words the music of an opera had been first allied. It will of course be seen that in endeavouring to prove how the exclusive use of the Italian tongue on the lyric stage in this country has gradually weaned the people from the desire to hear their native language sung by native vocalists, we are but echoing the sentiments of Mr. G. A. Macfarren, who, in an able paper in this journal on the evil influence of the Italian language upon music, has clearly pointed out the importance of the subject as affecting the progress of pure English art. Speaking of the manner in which composers' works are perverted in their meaning by translation, he says, "One might forgive this paramount injustice to a musician under either of two circumstances. Firstly, were the so-called translation into the native language of the executant, who would then be enabled to invest its performance with such natural impulse as is incompatible with the enunciation of a strange tongue; secondly, were the text rendered into the native language of the audience, who would thus be enabled more thoroughly to apprehend the musical purport than is possible through the aid of the English side of an opera libretto, or even through the preparatory help of school education." Here, indeed, the matter is stated so convincingly, that we might wonder what the veriest musical conservative could say against it. Were it possible to present foreign operas in their original language, and with a company of native vocalists, nothing could of course be more satisfactory; but to translate a German work, for instance, into Italian, and then have it sung by Sw-dish, French, German, or even English artists, is a manifest absurdity which, if art were regarded as it should be in this country, could scarcely be tolerated. Handel commenced his career in England by composing Italian operas, according to the fashion of the time; but he soon discovered that to get at the heart of a nation he must write in its language; the result is that his Italian operas are forgotten, and his English works will live for ever. Strange, indeed, that a foreigner should teach us that our native tongue is as adaptable for the highest class of music as any other; and stranger still that we should have profited so little by the lesson; for although we did not think it necessary to translate "Acis and Galatea" into Italian before it could be presented to a refined British audience, it is certain that many English composers who have been bold enough to write an opera for performance before their countrymen and countrywomen, have been compelled either to set the music to Italian words, or to get it distorted from the original text into the recognized lyrical tongue, in order to gain admission for it into fashionable society. Better indeed is it that we should go back to the days of our old "English Opera House," even with such mongrel pieces as "The Evil Eye," and "The Mummy" as an occasional variety, than that we should be compelled to listen to German and French works—the language of which is as much an integral portion of their composition as it is of the "Creation" or the "Messiah,"—so thoroughly disguised by translation into Italian, that their own composers would scarcely know them. That a school of British lyrical art might grow from this there can scarcely be a doubt; for singers, as well as composers, would then be trained to adopt their mother tongue as a vehicle for musical expression. Let us then, instead of deploring the want of a National Establishment devoted to the works of native composers, endeavour to create a popular desire for its existence; and, as a preliminary step towards the formation of an English Opera, give the people a series of operas in English.

THE Reid Concert at Edinburgh has this year been unusually successful. Mr. Hallé's orchestra, with Madame Norman-Neruda as solo violinist, and Madlle. Nita Gaetano and Mr. William Castle as principal vocalists, drew together a large audience, and a finer programme than that presented on the occasion could scarcely be imagined. The "Introduction Pastorale, March and Minuet," by the late founder of the Music Chair, General Reid, were, of course, included in the selection, according to custom, during the performance of which the whole audience remained standing. Beethoven's Symphony in B flat was finely given; and amongst the interesting works in the programme we may mention Bach's double Concerto for two violins—the executants being Madame Norman-Neruda and Herr Straus—which created quite a sensation with the audience. Two concerts were afterwards given, at which the Music Hall was as crowded as ever. The classical nature of the programmes at these performances reflected the highest credit upon those connected with the Festival; and the thanks of all are due to Professor Oakeley, who, although not perfectly recovered from his late severe accident, has displayed untiring zeal and energy in promoting the success of the enterprise.

A FESTIVAL, under the direction of Herr Kuhe, has also taken place at Brighton, which was highly gratifying in its results. Miss Virginia Gabriel's Cantata, "Evangeline," was perhaps scarcely worthy of being associated with the great works by which it was surrounded; but although inexperience is shown in its general treatment, there are many melodious phrases scattered throughout, which were duly appreciated. Sir Michael Costa's "Eli," Sir W. Sterndale Bennett's "Woman of Samaria," Spohr's "Last Judgment," Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and Handel's "Judas Maccabæus," were included in the scheme, and Herr Kuhe's performance of some of the most classical pianoforte works has been a conspicuous feature in the concerts. Misses Edith Wynne and S. Ferrari, Mesdames Patey and Florence Lancia, Messrs. Vernon Rigby, Lewis Thomas, Santley, &c., have given valuable assistance in the vocal department, and the orchestra has been thoroughly efficient at every performance. The closing concert, which is announced to take place after our number has gone to press, is for the benefit of the director, Herr Kuhe.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

THE anniversary of the birth of Franz Schubert occurring on Friday the 31st January, the programme of the concert on the next day was chiefly devoted to his compositions. The Symphony in B flat (No. 5) is one of the treasures discovered by Mr. George Grove (who is now known not only as secretary and manager of the Crystal Palace, but as one of the ablest annotators upon the musical works performed there), and its presentation on this occasion for the first time in this country, excited the deepest curiosity. Certainly the Symphony is not one which, beautiful as it is throughout, would have placed the composer in the position he now occupies; but it is of the highest value as showing how largely he was influenced in his early days by a reverence for the works of Mozart and Haydn, the Minuet, especially, recalling most vividly that in Mozart's Symphony in G minor. The Finale is full of grace and animation, and in construction is the most important of all the movements. The instrumentation throughout is charming; and the effect upon the audience fully proved how thoroughly even the immature compositions of this writer have an interest for the general public. A part-song, "Night in the Forest," with accompaniment for four horns, and a hymn, "O Lord our God," were also heard for the first time, the former piece producing but little effect, in spite of some excellent writing; and the latter, with a full wind band accompaniment, having scarcely sufficient individuality of style to make it stand forth prominently from the many compositions of its class. In these two pieces and a part-song by the same composer, "The Gondolier" (not, however, a novelty) the singers were Messrs. H. Guy, Howells, Wadmore, Pope and Parker. The selection from Schubert's works also included the Overture to "Rosamunde", and the melodious Romance (the only solo in the incidental music to that drama) excellently sung by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington. Henselt's Pianoforte Concerto, remarkable not only for its intrinsic merit, but for its excessive difficulty, was played with admirable precision by Mr. Oscar Beringer, who elicited warm and deserved applause at the conclusion of each movement. The performance of Schumann's "Paradise and the Peri" on the 8th ult., again brought forward this composer's claims to a larger share of public attention and popular appreciation. These claims are urged from time to time by his admirers with a pertinacity which, if continued, might sooner or later deserve, if it did not ensure, success. Owing to the obvious beauty of many of his songs, and the constant and admirable exposition of his pianoforte pieces by Madame Schumann, his works are making such progress in the estimation of the public, that even his avowed detractors are obliged to admit the charm of his smaller pieces, making a stand, however, against the larger works, which, unfortunately, are less known. At this point matters may chance to remain, unless something be done towards presenting the greater compositions more frequently, and with a more careful preparation than usual. The most remarkable instance at the present day of bringing an abstruse work into popularity is exemplified in Bach's Passion. But it could only have been done by repeated performances at comparatively short intervals, and by a sacrifice of time seldom to be accomplished, in these railroad days. Should such means be applied to "Paradise and the Peri," the position which Schumann's works should properly take in the world of art would soon be settled. Amongst much that was highly commendable in the performance at the Crystal Palace, there were not wanting signs of hasty preparation. These were particularly noticeable in the accompaniments, which, as a rule, seemed loud and wanting in repose. Had the orchestral detail been brought out as Mr. Manns and his admirable orchestra have taught us to expect at their hands, the pleasure actually experienced would have been greatly enhanced. Against these difficulties the soloists struggled bravely, and succeeded in eliciting the approbation of an audience remarkably undemonstrative. Mme. Sherrington, absent from illness, was replaced at three days' notice by Miss Blanche Cole, whilst Miss Julia Elton did the same kind office for Mme. Patey, with scarcely twenty-four hours' notice, both these ladies acquitting themselves well. Miss Katherine Poyntz also filled a difficult part with true artistic feeling. But it is to Signor Foli we were indebted for a performance almost perfect, his fine voice resisting all attempts to overpower it, and his broad and dignified style telling with wonderful effect. Mr. Cummings was not heard altogether to advantage, the tenor part being in a great measure too low for him. What he did, however, was done well, as might be expected of one of the most artistic singers of the day. It is to be hoped that before the impression of the late performance dies away another may be given: it could not fail to be an advantage in every way. The principal event at the concert on the 15th ult., was the appearance of Herr Joachim, who performed Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in a style which has never been surpassed, if equalled, even by himself, and drew from the large audience assembled the loudest demonstrations of delight. The orchestral compositions were Brahms's Serenade, in D (which received an absolutely perfect rendering), and the Overtures to "Abu Hassan" (Weber) and "Masaniello" (Auber). The vocalists were Madlle. Risarelli (from the St. George's Hall Italian Opera Company) and Mr. E. Lloyd. The services of Mr. Manns, who conducted the several important works at the concerts named in our notice, have proved invaluable in securing so triumphantly successful a result.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

MR. BARNBY having been appointed conductor of this choir has, with the addition of a number from that excellent body of vocalists under his direction so long and honourably known to the public at the "Oratorio Concerts," formed an Association from which may be confidently anticipated the most beneficial results. The Albert Hall, where the first performance of these united choirs took place on the 12th ult., was at least on this occasion put to its legitimate use. The colossal size of the building demands a large mass of voices which, by constant practice under a watchful conductor, shall be trained to the cultivation of a tone especially adapted to fill so vast an area; and judging by the result of the one public trial upon which we are able to comment, both the choir and its director are thoroughly competent to the task. No better or more appropriate work could have been selected at the opening concert than Bach's "St. Matthew" Passion Music, for its popularity in this country is mainly owing to the exertions of Mr. Barnby and the admirable choir which he formed and for so many years ably conducted. Upon the sublimity of the composition itself it will not be necessary for us again to enlarge; but we may say that its excessive beauties were so thoroughly revealed to the audience at the Albert Hall that we have every hope, considering the aristocratic nature of the assembly, of real and lasting benefit to the art accruing from its performance in a locality which enjoys the patronage and countenance of Royalty. The choir was finely balanced; and the purity of tone, especially in the chorales (which were sung without accompaniment), has scarcely ever been equalled: indeed it was with some difficulty that Mr. Barnby could adhere to his highly commendable resolution of steadily refusing encores, for the applause at the conclusion of these beautiful Lutheran tunes was as warm as it was well deserved. We must also mention that the gradations of tone throughout this difficult work were so admirably preserved, that the eye alone could detect the enormous body of singers employed; and as an instance of the ease with which power could be produced at will, we may cite the sudden exclamation of the choir on the word "Barabbas," which came like an electric shock upon the listeners. The soprano solos were effectively given by Madame Florence Lancia, and Miss Julia Elton sang those for the contralto, her greatest impression being created in the Air, "Have mercy upon me," the violin obbligato to which was excellently played by Herr Pollitzer. Mr. Cummings's earnest delivery of the tenor music was, as usual, a feature in the performance; the whole of the important recitatives, especially that in which Peter's denial of the Saviour is described, being sung with much intensity and truthful expression. Signor Foli was also admirable in the principal bass solos; and Mr. Thurley Beale, who is always thoroughly reliable, deserves high commendation for his singing of some of the bass recitatives. Mr. Barnby conducted with his accustomed skill and intelligence; Mr. Randegger lent efficient aid in accompanying several of the recitatives on the pianoforte, and Dr. Stainer presided with much ability at the organ. At the conclusion of the "Passion Music," the National Anthem was sung.

BRITISH ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

THE fifth concert of this Society, which took place at St. James's Hall on the 6th ult., was distinguished by one novelty, an Overture composed expressly for the Association by Mr. J. F. Barnett, and intended as a prelude to Shakespeare's "Winter's Tale." The design of this work is rather to reflect the general feeling of the play, than to musically illustrate the several incidents, and in this we think the composer has been successful. The instrumentation shows a thorough acquaintance with the resources of the orchestra, and the themes are generally well treated, the pastoral portion especially being highly effective, and contrasting well with the plaintive opening strain. Mr. Barnett, who conducted his Overture, was warmly and deservedly applauded, and may fairly congratulate himself on having at least fully sustained the reputation he has already won. Mention must be made of the young pianist, Miss Nathalie Evans, who played Chopin's Polonaise, in E flat (accompanied by the orchestra), with a brilliant touch and decision which elicited much applause; but we doubt the policy of placing an inexperienced performer before such an audience, when so many of our ripest English artists are waiting for a hearing. Mendelssohn's "Scotch Symphony," and Beethoven's Overture to "Egmont" went well (the former, however, better than the latter). The vocalists were Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Julia Elton, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Lewis Thomas; a MS. song from Mr. Sullivan's Opera, "The Sapphire Necklace" (sung by Miss Wynne), obtaining well deserved applause and an unmistakable encore; and Sir Sterndale Bennett's charming Quartett from "The Woman of Samaria," being one of the great successes of the evening. At the sixth and last concert, on the 20th ult., the principal orchestral works were Mozart's Symphony, in G minor, and the Overtures to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Guillaume Tell." Mr. John Francis Barnett's performance of Mendelssohn's Concerto, in D minor, proved that native pianists are to be found fully capable of interpreting the highest works, and the applause with which he was greeted at the conclusion of the composition was in every respect most legitimately earned. The Andante from Alice Mary Smith's Clarinet Concerto, in A, was finely performed by Mr. Lazarus, and warmly received. Mr. Vernon Rigby being too unwell to appear, Mr. Santley sang an additional song (the ever welcome "O ruddier than the cherry"), and Mr. W. A. Howells (from the Royal Academy of Music) ably supplied his place in Sir M. Costa's Quartett, "Ecco quel fiero istante." The other vocalists were Madame Florence Lancia and Madame Patey. Mr. George Mount (who is rapidly gaining control over his fine band) conducted, as usual; and we presume that a portion of the applause with which the National Anthem (performed by the orchestra) was greeted at the conclusion of the concert might reasonably be accepted by the new conductor as a public tribute to his exertions during the season.

WAGNER SOCIETY.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the enthusiastic and appreciative audience assembled at the Hanover Square Rooms at the first concert of this Society, on the 19th ult., had more knowledge of the artistic theory of Richard Wagner than to accept the specimens given on the occasion as music at all adapted for a concert-room. Detached from the surroundings which form a portion of all this composer's works, we were called upon to pass judgment upon the creations of his vivid imagination under circumstances which he expressly tells us are antagonistic to their due effect. Honour indeed, in the highest degree, is due to the members of the Wagner Society, who, seeing that no manager has the courage to place this composer's Operas before the public, have resolved to come forward boldly as champions in the cause; but the experiment is a hazardous one, for those who believe, with this musical reformer, that the theatre should not be turned into a concert-room, must also believe that the concert-room should not be turned into a theatre. The resolution, then, to appeal to a somewhat exclusive audience at the Hanover Square Rooms in the first instance, was one the wisdom of which has been shown by the result; for any stranger entering the room unconscious of the nature of the concert, and hearing the solid rounds of applause at the conclusion of the compositions, must have imagined that he was attending a performance of the most popular works, instead of an experimental one exclusively composed of the "music of the future." That this demonstration was in a great measure owing to the innate beauty, originality of thought, and gorgeous colouring of the several tone-pictures presented to the audience there can be no question; but it must be recollected that the listeners comprised very many of those who had already become converts to the Wagnerian theory, and that of those who came as strangers to it, a large number eagerly possessed themselves of the annotated programme, and deeply studied the meaning of every piece which was submitted to them. At St. James's Hall, where the programme is shortly to be repeated in all its integrity, a more mixed audience will be assembled, and if the success of this concert should at all equal that in the Hanover Square Rooms, there can be little doubt that the demand for Wagner's Operas will very speedily be too decisive to be longer disregarded. The overture to "Tannhäuser," which was very judiciously chosen for the opening piece, is too well known to need more than a passing eulogium upon the faultless manner in which it was executed, the wind instruments, more especially, supporting the theme against the rapid triplet string accompaniment, with a beauty of tone which could not be surpassed. The Prayer from "Rienzi" is perhaps historically interesting as proving the growth of Wagner's style; but (the Opera being an early work) it scarcely shows sufficient individuality of thought to stand apart from the many vocal pieces of its class which might be cited from the works of the operatic writers by whom the young composer was surrounded. It was finely sung by Herr Diener, who has an excellent tenor voice, which he manages with the skill of a true artist. The selection from "Lohengrin," commencing with the fanciful and delicately instrumented prelude (already an established favourite in our concert-rooms) was highly interesting. Lohengrin's "Song to Elsa," a charming melody, sung to perfection by Herr Diener, was warmly received; but the undoubted features of the evening were the "Bridal March," and the Introduction to the third Act, movements so full of character, so replete with the most fascinating melodious phrases, and so richly instrumented, that the hearers appeared as if they would never tire of applauding, and scarcely seemed satisfied even when their demands for the repetition of each piece had been complied with. Here indeed was a real triumph for the composer, who, as we have already said, never intended that his music should be separated from the dramatic action, in proof of which it may be mentioned, that the whole of the choral portion which accompanies the "Bridal" music was of course omitted; and that to make it a complete concert piece a few bars were tacked on at the conclusion which had nothing whatever to do with it. The overture to "Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg," which followed, may be regarded as a true reflex of the composer's latest style; and certainly as an example of what it is now the fashion to call "programme music," it stands almost, if not entirely, unrivalled. Only those who have studied the score of this remarkable piece can fully appreciate the exquisite workmanship which it displays; but the many beauties which lie on the surface are sufficient to stamp it as the work of a bold and original thinker, and of one who has attained a thorough mastery over the resources of his art. Siegmund's "Liebeslied," from the Opera "Die Walküre" (brought out at Munich in 1870), was so ably rendered by Herr Diener as to elicit an encore; and the brilliantly instrumented Kaiser-march" (which has already been heard at the Crystal Palace) brought to a conclusion one of the most interesting concerts we ever attended. A fine band, including some of the principal performers of the Crystal Palace orchestra, was ably conducted by Herr Danneuth, who also played with much refinement the pianoforte accompaniment to the song from "Die Walküre." Whatever may be thought of Herr Wagner's theories upon operatic art, there can be no question of his power to put them into action; and, thanks to the establishment of this Society, even if the ultimate verdict of musical England should be against him, he will now at least not be condemned unheard.

M. GOUNOD'S CHOIR.

A SERIES of five "Subscription Concerts," our musical readers are, doubtless, aware, has for some time been announced, with M. Gounod as director. That the eminent French musician has been diligently training a choir, composed chiefly of amateurs, is a fact not less generally known; and, if we may draw conclusions from the programme of the first concert in St. James's Hall, one of M. Gounod's principal reasons for undertaking these performances is to bring forward compositions of his own. Anything, new or old, to which the name of the composer of "Faust," "Mireille," "Romeo et Julietta" is affixed, must naturally be welcome to those who care for music good and earnest of its kind. We should have been glad to see the hall on Saturday more crowded; but every enterprise of the sort must have a beginning, and public sympathy can only be excited by hearsay reports of its progress, and by the gradual steps taken to secure for it a permanent attraction. For our own part, we should rate "M. Gounod's Concerts" still higher if the programmes were limited to M. Gounod's compositions. Out of fourteen pieces only three were not absolutely from his pen; and even one of these was half his property, being the "Ave Maria" which he has wedded to John Sebastian Bach's first Prelude (from the "Well Tempered Clavier")—the only apology for such a liberty being the genuine beauty of the melody—played on the occasion under notice, upon the violin, by a young gentleman, described in the programme as "honorary member of the choir." The first part of the selection, besides this "Ave Maria," published and known through so many different arrangements, was devoted exclusively to ecclesiastical pieces, and comprised a new setting of the "Pater Noster," a "Requiem," and a psalm ("Omnipotent Lord") by M. Gounod, as well as the contralto air, "He was despised," from the "Messiah," sung by another young gentleman, "member of the choir" (and encored). The "Pater-noster" and the "Requiem" are successful examples of M. Gounod's power to write for sacred themes music which, while simple, shall also be telling and expressive. There is in neither of them any attempt at unusual harmony or elaborate contrapuntal device; and the aim of the composer to suit them for general use, where large resources are not at hand, is evident. In our opinion, he has admirably carried out his intention. The "Pater Noster," in its way, is irreproachable. The "Introit," "Kyrie Eleison," and "Agnus Dei" of the Requiem were not new to the English admirers of M. Gounod's sacred music, having been publicly performed some time since. Whatever expectations these may have raised are fully carried out by the "Offertorium," "Sanctus," and "Pie Jesu," which now complete the work. The "Sanctus" especially touches us by its solemnity. Rarely have words of serious import been more emphatically expressed with so little apparent straining after effect. This was undoubtedly the best executed piece of the evening, and the unanimous encore it obtained was a just recognition of its merit. Not to enter further into details—unnecessary by the way in reference to a work of so unpretentious a character—we may safely predict for this new Requiem a wide-spread popularity in places for which it is expressly intended. The performance was conducted by M. Gounod himself, who was received by the audience with every mark of cordiality.

The second part of the concert consisted of secular compositions, exclusively from the pen of M. Gounod, three of which—a part-song, "Gitanelle," a double chorus, "Bright star of eve," and two Italian canzonets, "Perché piangi?" and "Ho messo nuovo corde" for a tenor voice—were heard for the first time. There was also his setting of Lord Byron's "Maid of Athens," sung with true feeling by a lady "member of the choir," who was re-called and much applauded. The chief interest of the concert, however, attached to the first part and the sacred music.—Times.

MADAME GODDARD'S FAREWELL CONCERT.

ON Tuesday the 11th ult. at St. James's Hall, this distinguished pianist took her leave of the English public, in the full possession of those powers which have placed her in the foremost rank of artists in this country for twenty years. That she never played better than on this evening, when for the last time she was greeted by the hearty applause of a London audience, was remarked by all who were present. Woelf's Sonata, "Ne plus ultra," was rendered throughout with that delicacy of touch and facility of execution which have always been the distinguishing characteristics of her performance; and so delighted were the listeners with her efforts that, after a triple recall, they would scarcely allow her to leave them, even when she had acknowledged this tribute to her talents by performing Thalberg's Fantasia on "Home, sweet home." Haydn's Trio in G major, had her valuable co-operation in the pianoforte part; and assisted as she was by Messrs. Carrodus and Piatti, it is needless to say that it was given to perfection. She also performed with Signor Piatti, Mendelssohn's Sonata in D major, and accompanied Mr. Lloyd in Beethoven's "Adelaide." The programme included Haydn's Quartet in F (Op. 77, No. 2), which was finely played by Messrs. Carrodus, Ries, Zerbini and Piatti, and songs were given with much success by Mr. Santley; but the centre of attraction was, as may be imagined, Madame Goddard herself, and it was indeed difficult to realize the fact that when she retired from the platform after Haydn's trio, she parted from her numerous admirers in this country for ever.

HER Majesty's Commissioners have resolved upon a recognition of the claims of music in the arrangements for the forthcoming annual International Exhibition, which, if carried out as promised, will have a material effect upon the progress of musical art in this country. A full and complete orchestra will be placed under the direction of Mr. Barnby, for the purpose of giving daily performances of classical music; one or two Overtures, a Symphony or Concerto, and possibly some vocal music, constituting each programme. Other performances, in which the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society may participate, are also contemplated.

We regret to announce the death of Dr. Henry Hugh Pierson, which occurred early in the past month, at Leipsic. Dr. Pierson's Oratorio "Jerusalem," produced at the Norwich Festival in 1852, was the only entire work of his known in this country; but it will be recollected that portions of a more recent Oratorio, "Hezekiah," were given at the Norwich Festival of 1869. He has also written music to the second part of Goethe's "Faust," and several pieces, both secular and sacred, few of which however are now known. Dr. Pierson was an excellent musician; and however opinions may differ as to his true rank amongst composers, there can be little doubt that he was a thoroughly earnest and conscientious artist.

The second letter which we have received from "Union Jack," respecting the British Orchestral Society, contains nothing but a reiteration of the opinions expressed in his first communication, with the addition of a few personalities which have nothing whatever to do with the subject. Under the circumstances, therefore, we think it better that the correspondence should cease.

JUDGING from the American catalogues the vocal music most popular amongst amateurs is of the same lugubrious nature which rules the hour on this side of the Atlantic. Here, for instance, is an advertisement: "Her little bed is empty;" by the author of "Ring the bell softly, there's crape on the Door," "Darling Minnie Lee," "Where the Little Feet are Waiting, on the Golden Stair," "Put me in my Little Bed," &c. We presume that this funeral music appeals to those who would make their purchases at a mourning warehouse in the "Mitigated Affliction Department."

For the capabilities of Messrs. Walker and Sons' organ built for St. Martin's Church, Leicester, were displayed to perfection by Mr. W. T. Best on the 11th and 12th ult., at the manufactory, Francis Street, Tottenham Court Road. The programme contained an excellent selection of strictly classical music, which was listened to with the utmost attention by a thoroughly appreciative audience, the applause at the end of each piece being as enthusiastic as it was well deserved. The organ, which has four complete Manuals and 53 stops, is an exceedingly fine one, and in every respect reflects much credit upon the manufacturers.

MR. HENRY LESLIE'S prospectus for the coming season is full of interesting promises; and judging from the manner in which his concerts have been hitherto conducted, there is every probability of these promises being fulfilled. Four concerts will be given, the first on the 27th ult. (devoted to the works of Italian and English composers) occurring too late for a notice in our present number. The second concert will consist entirely of sacred music, the third of Madrigals and Part-Songs, with a selection from the compositions of Sir H. R. Bishop and his contemporaries, and the Director's benefit will take place at the fourth concert, on the 29th May. Amongst the solo vocalists already announced to appear are Madlle. Nita Gaetano, Madame Patey, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. W. H. Cummings and Mr. Santley.

In our last number an error crept into our list of organists' appointments, which we take the earliest opportunity of correcting. It was there stated that Mr. Thomas Goulden had been appointed Organist of Canterbury Cathedral. It scarcely needed Mr. W. H. Longhurst's protest against this announcement to call our attention to the mistake, as it was discovered almost as soon as printed. If anything can lessen our regret at having given publicity to this statement, it is from the opportunity that it affords us of giving additional prominence to the fact of Mr. Longhurst's appointment to the post of Organist of the Cathedral, and of expressing our gratification that his long and honourable services have been so appropriately rewarded. In justice to Mr. Goulden (who has also addressed to us a letter on the subject) we may announce that he has received the appointment of Music Master to the King's School, Canterbury, in succession to the late Mr. T. E. Jones, Organist of the Cathedral.

THE programme of the Hereford Festival, which as we have already announced, commences on the 9th September, is now definitely settled. At the Cathedral the morning performances will consist of Sir Gore Ouseley's Oratorio, "Hagar," a new work by Dr. Wesley; "Elijah," "Jephtha," Spohr's "Christian's Prayer," and March and Hymn of Praise, from his Symphony, "The Consecration of Sound;" Rossini's "Stabat Mater," and the "Messiah." On Wednesday evening "St. Paul" will be given in the Cathedral. Secular concerts will take place at the Shire Hall on Tuesday and Thursday, and a chamber concert on Friday.

On Thursday the 13th ult. the Peckham Choral Society gave a Concert at the Collyer Memorial Schools. The first part consisted of the principal portions of the "Creation." The solo vocalists were Miss Marchant (a pupil of the conductor), Mr. C. J. Owens and Mr. J. Harper, who acquitted themselves in a very able manner, Mr. Owens being much applauded in "And the Spirit," and "In native worth." The second part was miscellaneous, and included a Pianoforte Solo, Fantasia on Verdi's "Il Trovatore," played and composed by Mr. Horner, a new song of the conductor's, "My Nelly," sung by Mr. Owens, and encored; and songs by Miss Marchant, and Mr. J. Harper, which were also re-demanded. The choruses "Hymen's Torch," "Spring's bright Glances," and "Rataplan," pleased the audience so much that they had to be repeated. Mr. W. H. Harper's accompaniments on the harmonium were worthy of special mention, and Miss Bayley performed her duties at the pianoforte in a very able manner.

The third concert of the Mozart and Beethoven Society took place at the Beethoven Rooms, Harley Street, on Wednesday, January 29. The artists were Madlle. Romanelli, Miss Susan Pyne (Madame Frank Crellin), Madame Frances Brooke, and Mr. Stedman. Guitar, Madame Sidney Pratten; Pianoforte, Herr Carl Hause; Violin, Herr Jung; and Violoncello, Herr Schuberth. Herr Schuberth conducted.

AN excellent concert (in aid of the Organ Fund of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Holland Road, Kensington) was given at the Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill, on the 17th ult. The artists (who were both professional and amateur) were Miss Waite, of the Royal Academy of Music, and Mr. E. H. Thorne (pianoforte), Mr. J. E. Sparrow (violin), Mr. G. J. F. Cooke (violoncello) and Mesdames Florence Lancia and Crellin-Pyne, Miss Dora Hope and Mr. Holland, vocalists. Several classical instrumental pieces were included in the programme, and in a solo Sonata, by Paradies, Miss Waite evinced the possession of excellent powers as a pianist. In the concerted instrumental works, Messrs Sparrow and Cooke also proved themselves able performers; and the vocal solos were all most warmly received.

A CONCERT was given at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, on Wednesday, the 12th ult., by the members of the Ch. Ch. Choral Society, Old Kent Road, at which was performed the Operetta "Robin Hood, or the Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest," conducted by the composer, Mr. W. H. Birch, of Reading. The orchestra was composed of members of the band of the 1st Life Guards, and other instrumentalists, and was led by Mr. Gunnis, of Her Majesty's private band. The part of Robin Hood was ably sustained by Mr. J. Sprunt, and that of Maid Marian by Mrs. Campbell. At the end of each act the composition was warmly applauded. The Choruses, "We'll dance and sing" and "We'll trip it merrily," were rapturously encored, and the performance passed off most satisfactorily. The second part of the concert was miscellaneous, and contained instrumental as well as vocal pieces, all of which were well received.

THE monthly concert of the St. George's Glee Union took place on the 7th ult. at the Pinlico Rooms. The most successful of the part-songs were Mendelssohn's "Awake! the starry," Bishop's "Where art thou, beam of light?" and Martin's "Echo Chorus." Miss Horder and Miss Janet King were highly effective in all their songs, and "I'm not the Queen" (Balfe), "Believe me" (Leslie), and "The Chafers," were well rendered by members of the choir. Miss Augarde was the solo pianist, and played Schubert's Impromptu in B flat with good taste and executive power. The conductor was Mr. Messenger, in the unavoidable absence of Mr. Garside.

THE Tuesday evening "Musical and Literary Entertainments," conducted by Messrs. J. Baucutt and W. Blount at the Public Hall, South Norwood, continue their successful career. At the entertainment on the 18th ult., both Miss Agnes L. Fielding's songs were encored. Solos on the pianoforte and flute were well played by Mr. Duncan Shaw and Mr. George Stanford; and readings were given with much effect by Dr. Heap, and Mr. C. Charles. Messrs. F. Laughlin and D. Shaw accompanied.

WE understand that Herr Pauer has been engaged by the Sacred Harmonic Society to deliver a series of lectures at Exeter Hall on the "History of the Oratorio." The solo and choral illustrations will be given from the works of Palestrina, Heinrich Schütz, Carissimi, Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, &c.

At a recent musical examination, to the question "What is a scale?" one reply was "A lot of little notes running up into a cleft," and another "A lot of notes, every one of which is higher than all the others."

WE understand that a new sacred Cantata, entitled "Supplication and Praise," by Dr. Sloman of Scarborough, is in the press, and that arrangements are being made for its performance at an early date.

THE Lords of the Admiralty have, through the Naval Secretary, Captain Robert Hall, informed Dr. W. C. Bennett, that the Admiralty has ordered a supply of his "Songs for Sailors," with a view to their adoption for use in the Naval Training Ships.

In proof of the growing appreciation of Bach's "Passion Music" (St. Matthew) in this country, we may mention that it will be given at the approaching Birmingham Festival, and at one of the concerts of the Sacred Harmonic Society during the present season. This Society has also in active rehearsal the late Dr. Crotch's Oratorio "Palestine."

THE concert given by the Marquis and Marchioness of Ripon at Studley Hall, on the 31st January, to celebrate the coming of age of Earl de Grey, was one of special interest. It was under the direction of Dr. Spark, the borough organist, who was assisted in the vocal department by a selected choir from the Leeds Madrigal and Motet Society, with Madlle. Pauline Rita and Herr Nordblom as principals. The choral music was excellently sung, and several vocal solos were also given with much effect. The Ode, expressly written for the occasion by Dr. Spark (to words by Mr. Frank Curzon), was highly successful. We understand that the Marquis and Marchioness of Ripon have presented Dr. Spark with a souvenir of the value of 100 guineas, in token of their esteem and in appreciation of his valuable services on the occasion.

THE prospectus of the New Philharmonic Concerts promises, in addition to the usual number of symphonies, overtures, and concertos, a performance of Mozart's Opera "Idomeneo," a selection from Handel's "L'Allegro," and "Il Penseroso," a portion of Wagner's Opera "Lohengrin," and a new Oratorio by Mr. J. F. Barnett, entitled "The Raising of Lazarus."

THE sixty-first season of the Philharmonic Society, which commences on the 19th instant will be one of unusual interest. Carl Philip Emanuel Bach's Symphony in D, Liszt's Poème Symphonique, "Tasso," and Brahms's Requiem will be given for the first time in this country; a new concerto for the violin, by Mr. G. A. Macfarren, will be produced; and of the works new to these concerts we may mention the overtures to "Manfred" (Schumann), "Alfonso and Estrella" (Schubert), "St. John the Baptist" (G. A. Macfarren), "Der Fliegende Holländer" (Wagner), "Iphigenia in Aulis" (Glück), and "Le Médecin malgré lui" (Gounod).

THE London Gregorian Choral Association held their first Festival on Thursday evening, the 20th ult., in St. Paul's Cathedral. The church was filled in every part, the congregation numbering nearly 10,000 people. The music was executed by a choir of 700 voices, divided into two sections, the first consisting of about 250 voices representing the ordinary choir, and singing in harmony, and the remainder doing duty as the congregation, and singing the melody or "plain song." The voices were strengthened by the introduction of trumpets, euphoniums, and an ophicleide. The service began with the hymns "Blessed city, heavenly Salem," and "Christ is made the sure foundation," both from the "Salisbury Hymnal," sung in procession by the choir and clergy. The Responses were sung to an arrangement by the Rev. T. Helmore, from Guidetti, Janssen, &c., the Psalms for the day being chanted in unison to the 3rd tone, 1st ending. The Magnificat, sung to an arrangement of the 6th tone by Mr. C. Warwick Jordan, Mus. Bac., and the Nunc Dimittis, to an arrangement of the Parisian tone by Dr. Stainer, produced an excellent effect, as did also Mendelssohn's arrangement of the Lutheran Choral, "Now thank we all our God," sung as an anthem. Tallis's Canon to Bishop Ken's Evening Hymn "Glory to Thee, my God, this night," was sung during the collection of the offertory, and was followed by Marbeck's Ambrosian Te Deum. The sermon was preached by the Right Rev. Bishop Jenner. Organ Voluntaries were played by Dr. Stainer and Mr. C. Warwick Jordan, who also accompanied the entire service. The Conductor was the Rev. Thos. Helmore, Precentor to the Association.

Reviews.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The Hymnary. A Book of Church Song. Edited by the Rev. W. Cooke, M.A., Hon. Canon of Chester, and the Rev. B. Webb, Rector of St. Andrew's, Wells Street. The Music edited by Joseph Barnby.

(Continued from p. 757.)

TUNE 201 (Mr. Barnby) is a very good specimen of a kind of tune which combines with the smoothness of an old melody the solidity of harmony best suited to it. Here is no chromatic straining after effect; but a good effect it certainly will produce by its very simplicity. The next tune (202), by Dr. Armes, is good in its style; but the style is not one which is likely to enrich our stock of hymn-tunes to the advantage of posterity. The beautiful melody, originally written by Dr. Dykes (we believe) to a translation of "Jesu, dulcis memoria," is here (204) attached to a hymn to which it is well suited. In No. 205, Dr. Armes has manfully struggled against irregularities in the form of the words. The last half of the first stanza—"And here we toil, and strive, and fight, with sin and woe oppress"—is most unsuited to the corresponding change of the tune into the major from the minor mode. This verse once past, words and music are well wedded; and the latter does the author great credit. It is the old story—When shall we find a genuine poet who knows what musicians require? If strong contrasts between earthly toil and future rest are made, the writer of a hymn intended for a musical setting should at least place them at regularly recurring distances. In tune 210, by Dr. Garrett, the first syllable of each line of the words, which is the first half of an iambus, falls uniformly on the accented part of the bar;—the result is far from satisfactory. A most original and striking production is Mr. Thorne's treatment of the words, "When shall our tears begin?" and as to its merits there cannot be two opinions. It is exceedingly beautiful. To the tune 220 Dr. Howard's name appears. That gentleman, having had the misfortune to have lived and died some time since, may consider himself very lucky in not finding his tune labelled "old melody"—not to say "ancient." The second tune, No. 221, is, by its form, ruinous to the words; in it the last three syllables of the first three lines seem, as it were, to be crushed into the music. Nor is it fair to take voices in unison in a piano passage up to the high E. If this tune is attempted in rural districts, the composer will be punished for his want of judgment, by the failing efforts of untrained heavy basses to carry out his intentions. The next (222), by Mr. Sullivan, is not original, and would not be good if it could claim to be new. The fine stanzas by Caswall, commencing, "Thee, Jesu, suffering, crucified," have met with a worthy illustration in sounds by M. Gounod, (227). The next tune (228) deserves much praise for the excellence of its form, which, combined with its natural melody and pure harmony, must make it a favourite. Dr. Dykes is happy in his setting of Hymn 243. In all his works, even in those which do not rise to the highest standard, there is always such an evident appreciation of the character and full meaning of the text as must enforce the attention of all who are hymning. Tune No. 244 is unquestionably one of the finest in the book, for originality, depth, solemnity, and genuine pathos very few indeed will be found to surpass it. After expressing such unqualified praise and admiration for it, Mr. Thorne will excuse us if we demur to the "Amen." The melody will be certainly learnt by all those who join in it before many of the ten stanzas have been sung, but as the "Amen" comes only after the final stanza it will as certainly take everybody by surprise. But this is a matter of opinion, or at the most a minor detail, and does not diminish the grandeur of a composition which deserves to be universally known. Perhaps there is some authority for the shortened form of the fine German chorale, "Vater unser im Himmelreich" (No. 257), but even if there is, it seems a matter of regret that two such fine lines of the music as the third and fourth of the full form, should be at any time unsung. Mr. J. B. Calkin is most successful in his setting of "Thou sore oppressed" (261); it is simple and beautiful. Nos. 262, 263 and 264 may be ancient melodies, but we cannot help being sceptical as to their being here given in their original form. The excellent tune by Henry Smart (No. 268), would be better described as an Easter Carol—bright, joyous and melodious. There is but a limited number of really grand eighteenth century tunes to which England can lay undoubted claim; No. 270 is one of them. It is by Dr. W. Hayes, the well-known organist of Magdalene College, Oxford, and is to be found in a rare book of Psalms which he published, set to the old words, "The festal day, my God, is come," each line being followed by a short symphony for the "swelling organ;" the loss of these does not, however, affect the importance or beauty of the composition. On looking at, and playing over, No. 274, the question naturally arises—is it a hymn? surely—it is an anthem. A dramatic recitative for a soprano voice solo, and the absence of repetition of any of the themes remove it from our present sphere of criticism.

The Organists' Quarterly Journal of Original Compositions. Edited by William Spark, Mus. D. Part 16.

THIS, the part for October last, completes the fourth year's issue of a most useful serial, which must be counted also a successful one, for the evidence of this is its steady permanence. The contents of the number are of like interest to those of its precursors. Here is an Adagio by Mr. Arthur Johnson, followed by a more important piece, a Marche Triomphale by M. Alex. Guilmant, whose new Mass, lately produced at the church of which he is organist in Paris, has won high encomium, and whose present piece, though comparatively a trifle, justifies the credit that attaches to his name. Then we have a Pastorale by Herr Philipp Tietz, of Hildesheim, not so attractive as the preceding Marche, nor so original, but well written for the organ, and valuable therefore for practice. Next comes a Sketch, Andante con moto, by Mr. C. J. Hargitt, which is eminently graceful, and will show off the softer stops pleasantly; it has a somewhat lengthy tail for so short a story—that is, the Coda seems out of proportion to the extent of the main matter. A Postlude succeeds to this, by Mr. H. J. Stark, a Fellow of the College of Organists, who proves himself deserving of his distinction, by the correctness of the composition under notice. Lastly comes the piece of most importance in the series, important in itself and important in its promise; this is the first movement of a Sonata by Mr. E. Silas, announced as his 82nd work, with a notice that the second and third movements will be printed in subsequent numbers of the Journal. With Mendelssohn's organ Sonatas in full knowledge, it may still be said that the so-called Sonata-form has been most rarely employed in compositions for the organ, those noble works being constructed otherwise, and though perfect in design, having each a plan of its own. We can call to mind indeed only the Sonatas of Mr. Hainworth and of Mr. G. A. Macfarren (one of which, if we mistake not, appeared in successive numbers of the Organists' Quarterly Journal), wherein the model of the symphony has been embodied in writings for this instrument, versatile as it is in its effects, and capable, of almost every shape and style of passage; and the rejection, if not neglect, of this model in organ music is the more remarkable, because it has been happily appropriated to compositions for every variety of combinations of solo instruments as well as for the pianoforte alone. If for no other reason, on account of the scarcity of music so planned for the organ, this Sonata will have a particular interest; added to which, there is the well-founded fame of the author, that must give attraction to every extensive production that bears his name. Regretfully we own to disappointment in the movement before us, which in ideas is not on a level with other emanations from the same source, and which in workmanship is scarcely worthy of a musician who has brought eighty-one previous essays before the world. The Sonata has truly no lack of matter, but the matter itself is for the most part wanting in charm, and the phrases flow not each into other with that sequence which is essential to the effect of continuity. One of the most pleasing incidents is the beginning of the second subject, that starts in the key of C, with a phrase which closes on a chord of F, and has this phrase repeated a note higher; but this savours strongly of the manner that constitutes the individuality of M. Gounod, and if not like any particular theme of his, might as likely have been written by him as by its own composer. Has the engraver omitted something, it may be asked, in bar 7 of page 157, where the bass inconclusively ceases and there is some resulting poverty in the effect of the right hand part? To us, the matter which then ensues seems less like the genuine development of musical thought, than the rambling over the organ key-board in four-part harmony, according to the extemporaneous wont of players who, without musical intention, have to fill up indefinite seconds with sounds little more defined, during an unspoken prayer, a walk to the lectern, a procession to the altar, or some other longer or shorter business of the Service. It is the reputation of the author that warrants these strictures on his work, which would not have been called forth by a musician from whom less was to be expected, and we look with hope for the coming portion of the Sonata—hope as strong as the wish is sincere, for something that will redeem the character of this first instalment in being worthy of the many times manifested powers of Mr. Silas.

Voluntaries for the Organ; arranged by W. J. Westbrook. Nos. 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, and 38.

THE high number to which this serial has reached, certifies its wide acceptance. The editor does his part well in choosing the pieces and in adapting them for the instrument, and success is the consequence.

No. 33 begins with the Funeral March, which gives the generally accepted name to Beethoven's Sonata, in A flat; this is transposed into A natural minor—we are at a loss to guess why, since the equal temperament that prevails now on almost all organs, makes the original key as nearly in tune as the key in which the piece is transcribed; otherwise the March is cleverly arranged, the tremolo that opens the Trio and frequently recurs in it being set aside for a sustained pedal note. Is it to confute the popular belief in the mournfulness of the minor key, that the next following selection is the Dead March in Handel's Saul, the most pathetic piece of music known, which with its simple solemnity pierces the feelings more keenly than even the beautiful movement of Beethoven? It is mystery more than pathos that characterizes the minor key, mystery which belongs as much to the rugged expression of wild jollity as to the tender complaints of sorrow; it would be well, though it must be slow, to dispel the general view of this subject, and the juxtaposition of these two examples of funeral music—of which the second in a major key is by very far sadder than the first in a minor—prompts and illustrates the discussion. Next comes the Gavotte, in F, of Father Martini, which has lately obtained some vogue in its pianoforte or rather harpsichord form; a pretty quaint trifle that strangely represents the profound Giovanni Battista Martini, the revered musical historian, the most learned theorist of Italy, and the man whose approval Mozart emulated as the highest testimonial of his own scholarship. Lastly, there is a Choral, here called "On thy love,"—we know not the original name of the hymn to which the German tune belongs—harmonized by Mendelssohn.

The first piece in No. 34 is the Offertoire from the St. Cecilia Mass of M. Gounod. There follows the entire Sonata, in A, No. 9 of Corelli's Solos well known to students of the violin and lovers of the olden times with their legacies to the present. It consists of first, a Preludio; next, Largo; then an Allegro, to which definition is parenthetically added "più moderato," whose meaning is hard to interpret, since the comparative needs a positive, and there having been no Moderato, we cannot guess how this may be more so; an Adagio, in F sharp minor, an interlude, that is, between the foregoing and following movements; and a Gavotte which must be well remembered, and which furnishes capital exercise and capital display for the pedalist. After this, there is the Solo and Chorus, "Why, O Lord," from Mendelssohn's setting of the 13th Psalm. Lastly, we have a kind of Hymn by Schumann, "Praise to God."

Corelli is in the van of No. 35. His Sonata in F, No. 10 of the same series as the one previously named, is the piece here given. It comprises a Preludio; an Adagio—the movement which folks used to say was the prototype of Mozart's "Ah! perdona," and likewise of the Friest's March in his Zauberflöte, because they all three begin with the chords of the tonic, dominant, and submediant in succession (as do some hundreds of other pieces in common), in token that greatest men may tread perchance in the footsteps of others; then, an Allegro, which title is supplemented by "Allemanda" in parenthesis, we presume on the editor's authority; next, a Largo which also has an appendage to its definition in the word "Sarabanda;" an Allegro having the term "Gavotta" within brackets, which is justified by the rhythm and accent of the music, though like that in the Sonata in A, above mentioned, it is barred reversely to the gavottes of Bach and Handel and other coteremporaneous writers, which all end at the beginning, not the middle of a bar; and conclusively, a spirited Allegro, that is appropriately surnamed "Giga." There follows the soprano Air, "But oh, what art can teach," in praise of the organ, from Handel's setting of Dryden's Ode for St. Cecilia's Day. Then we have a Quartett from Spohr's

TREBLE SOLO AND CHORUS, FROM THE SACRED CANTATA, "A SONG OF VICTORY."

The English adaptation by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

FERDINAND HILLER.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), and 35, POULTRY (E.C.). New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, BROADWAY.

Andante espressivo.

PIANO.

dolce.

CHORUS. 1st TREBLE.

dolce.

He in tears that sow - eth, reap-eth a joy - - ful har - vest,

2nd TREBLE.

dolce.

He in tears that sow - eth, reap-eth a joy - - ful har - vest

ALTO.

dolce.

He in tears that sow - eth, reap-eth a joy - - ful har - vest

cres.

He in tears, in tears that sow - eth, reap-eth a joy - ful, a joy - ful har -

cres.

He in tears, in tears that sow - eth, reap-eth a joy - ful, a joy - ful har -

cres.

He in tears, in tears that sow - eth, reap-eth a joy - ful, a joy - ful har -

cres.

vest, a joy - - - ful har - vest.

vest, a joy - - - ful har - vest.

vest, a joy - - - ful har - vest.

f mf

dol.
He who now go - eth weep - ing,
dol.
He who now go - eth weep - ing,
dol.
good seed and pre - cious

cres.
re - turn - eth with glad - ness, rich sheaves and plen - teous
cres.
re - turn - eth, re - turn - eth with glad - ness, rich sheaves and plen - teous
cres.
bear - ing, re - turn - eth, re - turn - eth with glad - ness, rich sheaves and plen - teous

dol.
bring - - ing. He who now go - eth weep - ing,
dol.
bring - - ing. He who now go - eth weep - ing, bring - - ing.

First system of the musical score. It consists of five staves. The top four staves are vocal parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and the bottom staff is the piano accompaniment. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 4/4. The lyrics are: "re - turn - eth with glad - ness, rich good seed and pre - cious bear - ing, re - turn - eth, re - turn - eth with glad - ness, rich". Dynamic markings include cres. and dol..

Second system of the musical score. It consists of five staves. The top four staves are vocal parts and the bottom staff is the piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "sheaves and plen - teous, plen - teous bring - ing. sheaves and plen - teous bring ing. sheaves and plen - teous bring - - - ing." Dynamic markings include cres. and dolce..

Third system of the musical score. It consists of three staves. The top staff is the Treble Solo, and the bottom two staves are the piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "He in tears that sow - - eth, reapeth a joy - - - ful har - vest,". Dynamic markings include p legato..

Fourth system of the musical score. It consists of five staves. The top four staves are vocal parts and the bottom staff is the piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "reap - eth a joy - ful, a He in tears, in tears that sow - eth, reap - eth a joy - ful, a He in tears, in tears that sow - eth, reap - eth a joy - ful, a He in tears, in tears that sow - eth, reap - eth a joy - ful, a". Dynamic markings include dolce..

A musical score for a song titled "HE IN TEARS THAT SOWETH." The score is written for a choir and piano. It consists of three systems of staves. The first system has four vocal staves and a piano accompaniment. The second system has four vocal staves and a piano accompaniment. The third system has four vocal staves and a piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "joy - ful har - - - vest, a joy - - - ful har - - - vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest, reap - eth a joy - ful har - - - vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest, reapeth a joy - ful har - - - vest, har - vest. har - vest. har - - - vest. har - - - vest. har - - - vest. har - - - vest. har - - - vest. har - - - vest." The piano accompaniment features a melody in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand. The score includes dynamic markings such as pp and p. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 4/4.

joy - ful har - - - vest, a joy - - - ful har - - -

joy - ful har - - - vest, har - - -

joy - ful har - - - vest, har - - -

joy - ful har - - - vest, har - - - vest, reap - eth a joy - ful har - - - vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest,

vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest,

vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest,

vest, a joy - ful har - - - vest, pp

vest, reapeth a joy - ful har - - - vest, har - vest. pp

har - vest, p har - - - vest. pp

har - vest, p har - - - vest. pp

har - vest, p har - - - vest. pp

har - vest, p har - - - vest. pp

pp

Fall of Babylon, to which, curiously, since the Oratorio was written for English performance, and Mr. Edward Taylor's original words were translated into German, the title in the latter language alone is prefixed; it is a charming specimen of the composer's peculiar specialities.

Mozart's lovely "Ave Verum," in D, initiates No. 36. To this succeeds a First Voluntary by the elder Samuel Wesley, including an Adagio, in D minor, and an Allegro Moderato and a Fugue, both in D major. We are sorry to think the whole piece somewhat dry, though we still welcome it, as will all organists, for the author's sake. Old Samuel did much, very much, to advance music in England; he was the man who first made Bach known in this country; he played the organ marvellously; he wrote music of various qualities, some of which was evanescent as his playing, and some is most profound; and, best of all, he left a son who has enriched our church music with many of the finest specimens in existence, has given by them a new character and tendency to this class of composition, and who happily continues to swell the valuable store.

No. 37 opens with the chorus, "The marvellous work," from Haydn's Creation, a piece always attractive to popular audiences. Mendelssohn's arrangement in St. Paul of the Choral, "Sleepers, wake," comes next, and is very judiciously distributed for the instrument. A beautiful movement by Bach follows, "Schmücke Dich, O Liebe Seele," seemingly a song of which the voice-part is allotted to a clarinet stop, but we know not from what work. After this are two pieces from Schumann's Album für die Jugend—that charming one in E minor, called "The first sorrow," and that delicious slow movement in F, which is still delicious in spite of the pertinacious 2nds between the A G of the chief melody and the G F of the accompanying figure, that are again and again repeated, as if to force you into liking them, as you love an infant even for the sake of its naughtiness.

The selection from Schumann's Album is continued in No. 38. There are the pretty little $\frac{3}{4}$ Rondo in A; a most expressive $\frac{2}{4}$ theme in C; the ingenious Canon in A minor, of which the independent harmony much enriches the canonic parts, if it possibly a little hides the imitation; a piece in A minor, that is not a little known and is liked by all who know it; and one in A major, that has a kindred charm to the others that have been chosen. To conclude, there is the Pastoral Symphony from Handel's Messiah, the very ancient melody which is yearly played before the Virgin's shrines in Rome by the peasantry from the surrounding country, in homage at Christmas-tide, and which the composer most felicitously appropriated to the illustration of the scene of the watching shepherds.

We have hinted that these many pieces are cleverly arranged, and our remarks cannot have a juster close than the iteration of the opinion. They are practically within easy reach of the feet and fingers, and they are assigned to stops that suit their various characters and bring out clearly their essential features. The Sonatas of Corelli in particular show much tact in the filling up of the harmony, which is only indicated by figures in the old copies, wherein the violin part and the bass have all the notes that are given. Organists will look with pleasure for the continuance of Mr. Westbrook's Voluntaries.

A Service for the Holy Communion, in the key of F. By Edwin J. Crow.

THE author of this work has received University honours, and is a member of the College of Organists, moreover he gained the prize of the latter institution, in 1872, for his Service. There is little to be said in addition to these scholastic testimonials of his merit. The Kyrie is devout, and has a pretty harmonious effect from the digression into the key of B flat, which is its main feature. The exclamations that precede and follow the Gospel show want of experience in the writer, since they are directed to be sung fortissimo, but set so low for the voices that this is impossible. The other pieces, namely, the Credo, the Sursum Corda, the Sanctus and the Gloria, are, for the most part, correctly written, but not so quite without exception; for instance, at the words "And was crucified also for us under Pontius Pilate," there is harsh false relation between the F sharp of the tenor in a chord of B minor, and the F natural of the treble in a chord of the augmented 6th on B flat, and, still worse, the interval of the augmented 6th proceeds by semitone in each part to that of the minor 7th. A few other irregularities might be adduced, but the strong feeling for harmony which is elsewhere evinced prompts the belief that practice in writing will purify the author's judgment, and secure him from overstepping the bounds of good taste in his search for novelty. An objection to the Service generally applies not to this composition alone, but to a style of writing which now largely prevails, and for which Mr. Crow is less blameable than some of his elders, who may be said to have set an example which he but follows. This is, that, while the part-writing is mostly melodious and the parts for the several voices generally sing well, there is a want of particular melody to distinguish any one part from another and to give decided interest to the whole. In proceeding, almost without exception, note against note with each other, the parts have more the sound of a harmony exercise than a free composition, and the series of pieces has consequently the character of so many prolonged hymn-tunes, rather than of continuous movements. The absence of distinguishing subjects brings the music within Alfred Bunn's graphic and expressive definition "Hundred-and-fourth," the irony of which is not more applicable to music for the stage than for the church. This is said without profaneness in the comparison, and without disregard for the earnest purpose of the Service before us. With the contrapuntal strength and vigour of old times still attainable, and with the largely increased resources of the improved mechanism of the organ, and the improved skill of its players at the command of the modern ecclesiastical composer, his music ought never to fail in the quality of springing elasticity, which is the very life of a work of art. The welcome given in some places to bad adaptations of the Mass music of Mozart, proves the prevalent desire in our churches for the animation of varied motion in the parts, distinct plan in the design, and clearness in the themes, which alone can give interest to writing for the several portions of our ritual. The compositions referred to are among the weakest of the master, and they have a lightness of character which is incompatible with our ideas of religious music; but they have elements which might most desirably be adopted by our Church musicians, and these we most urgently commend to the study of those younger writers who are not already confirmed in another style. Such may be the author of the work under notice, and we trust that he and others may accept these remarks in the kindly spirit by which they are dictated.

Cantate Domino and Deus Misereatur, set to Music in the key of D. By Roland Rogers.

THIS is an ambitious production; and it fulfils much, if not all, to which it aspires. The words are set with free disregard of the limitation which fetters the genius of many a composer of music for our Church Services, the limitation to repeat no portion of the text, no syllable of the sacred phraseology. This most inconveniently restricts the full development of a musical idea, and the fair expression of the literary sense, confining the writer, in the latter case, to declamation alone, or, at most, to the rendering of general character; and he is happy in his task who labours at it without such restraint, and gives open range to his invention. As great unreserve is shown in the construction of the organ part, which extends to the extreme ends of the compass of the most modern manuals, comprises the amplest handfuls of notes and the widest practicable stretches, includes passages for the pedals which evince no regard for facility, and in most respects calls large executive powers into requisition. The four vocal parts are discretionally subdivided, some passages being assigned to two trebles, or as many altos, or tenors, or basses; they are occasionally combined in unison or octaves; and the old Church practice of separation into two choirs is also employed. From these boundless internal and external resources, the highest expectations may be entertained of the effect, and such expectations will not be wholly disappointed. It is not in the spirit of conservatism, which would carp at a novelty because it had no precedent, but in the exercise of honest judgment, that we protest against the abandonment of the C natural (7th from D) that is set to the last word of "Let the sea make a noise;" to satisfy the ear this discord needs resolution, for which we listen in vain. The 7th is abandoned, the discord wants resolution, because—though a chord of B major may follow, with capital effect, a chord upon the dominant 7th upon D—this is not the case with a chord of B minor, and the sense accepts not the latter as the necessary dispersion of the dissonant elements of the dominant chord. The consecutive 4th between tenor and treble over a pedal bass, to the first words of "God shall give us His blessing," are far from agreeable. The chord of D after the first inversion of that of B minor, on the word "Amen," has a strange effect, which is scarcely likely to become familiar; a succession of chords whose roots descend by thirds is always satisfactory, but this is not as certainly the case when the roots ascend by the same interval, and the progression is not rendered more natural by the retention of the bass through the changing harmonies. Somewhat of the same idea of harmonic relationship is here indicated that is shown in the treatment of the 7th above noticed, and to us the idea is not perspicuous. This work of fault-finding is thankless, and may well be discontinued, so far as single notes are concerned, giving the engraver credit for some inaccuracies, such as the G \sharp , bass, page 10, bar 9, which is a grave one. Mr. Rogers proves too keen a sense of harmonic beauty to be contented with his present experience, and as his knowledge expands, there can be no doubt that he will feel the impurity of such things as have been named, or if not, he will acquire as great a right to justify as we can have to object to them. Of more serious consequence is his deficiency in constructive power. We can trace no definite design in either piece, and we regret to observe some decided faults of plan; for instance, the anticipation of the key of F \sharp , so as to take all freshness from the phrase to the words "Show yourselves joyful," which it would have if it started newly in this tonic, after a preparatory half-close on its dominant. It is well, on the other hand, to connect the two pieces by the employment, in both of the same setting of the "Glory," a device which has many a precedent; and it is still better to appropriate the same musical idea to the rendering of "Let the people praise Thee" and to repeat this on the recurrence of the verse, since to praise is to give glory, and to identify the two expressions of the same thought is to enforce them both. The music is totally modern in character from first to last, counterpoint is not one of its elements, and imitation has no place in its part-writing; what then may be the reason for encumbering the whole with the antiquated notation of three minims in a bar in some portions, and four minims in a bar in others, the author may be able to explain, but we vainly strive to comprehend. As points for commendation, let us distinguish all the opening of the second Cantic, the beginning of the "Glory," the setting of the words "Shew yourselves," and still more the phrase to "Praise the Lord upon the harp." We recognize merit in the composer of this work, and shall be disappointed if he give not far stronger proof than is here shown of the power within him.

Guillaume Tell (William Tell); an Opera, in four Acts. Composed by Gioacchino Rossini. Edited by Berthold Tours, and translated into English by Natalia Macfarren.

WHATEVER may be the fate of Rossini's other Operas, there can be little doubt that "Guillaume Tell" will not only permanently retain the stage, but be accepted as a standard work of art for study and reference. The faults so observable in many of the other Operas of this composer have here no place; instead of frivolous and trifling airs, we have in "Guillaume Tell" earnest and noble thought throughout; and that "local colouring," which, with all its beauty of melody, we so sadly miss in "La Donna del Lago," is so charming a feature in this work, that as a tone-picture of Swiss life, although often imitated, it still stands unrivalled. In the excellent edition now before us, it is quite refreshing to have the French words (so identified with the airs) beneath the English translation; and in carefully going through the various pieces, we can conscientiously say that, as a musical rendering of the original text, we can scarcely imagine anything more absolutely perfect. We could cite many instances in proof of this, but may mention, as one example, the great trio for Arnold, Tell and Walter, in the second Act, the words of which burn with all the fervour of the French version. The careful editing of Mr Berthold Tours is an important feature in the edition; and the evidence of his study of, and reverence for, the score, is shown by the judicious and profuse indications of the instrumentation throughout; indeed, in this respect this is one of the most satisfactory works yet issued in this valuable series.

Die Spinnerin. Characterstück, für das Pianoforte; von Gustav Satter.

"CHARACTER music" and "Programme music," is the most deceptive species of writing that composers can attempt, for, although the title very often lifts indifferent works into a temporary prominence, it scarcely ever happens that any but pieces of the highest class become of any permanent value. Amongst the immense number of "spinning songs," however, the one before us may claim a place, although perhaps not a very high one. Commencing with a well-marked theme, in A minor, accompanied with the usual restless group of six semiquavers, we have a subject in the tonic major, which certainly serves excellently as a contrast, but is too much broken up for effect. The return to the opening melody, in the minor, is well contrived; and the conclusion of the piece is in good keeping with the general design. Herr Satter appears to indicate, by the freedom with which he writes, that he is capable of something more than he has here given us; and if so, we shall be glad again to welcome him. The composition is dedicated to that excellent young pianist, Fräulein Mary Krebs.

Ave Maria, for the Pianoforte. By A. Jungmann.

WHEN we say that "Op. 222" appears on the title-page of this piece, there can be no question that we are fully justified in expecting to find, if not original thought, at least experienced workmanship. In the latter we are not disappointed; but there is little freshness in the theme. A smooth melody, in D flat major, is first given out, with an accompaniment in chords, and afterwards appears floating over arpeggio triplets in the approved modern fashion, the conclusion, with a forte accompaniment for both hands (the subject in octaves) making an effective termination to the piece. There is certainly nothing in this composition that has not been done hundreds of times before; but the theme is at least melodious; and, as the passages lie well under the hands, many pianists and listeners may like Herr Jungmann's "Ave Maria" better than music of a higher class.

Tendresse. Morceau mélodieux, pour Piano, par J. A. Pachet.

AMONGST the heterogeneous collection of pieces, good, bad and indifferent, which a reviewer's sad destiny compels him to bestow his attention upon, it sometimes happens (but, alas, far too seldom) that a little gem suddenly reveals itself, as if to compensate him for the hours of fruitless search he has been condemned to. As a rule, too, it usually occurs that a composition of this kind is signed by a name, if not entirely unknown, at least so rarely appearing as to make us wonder how it can be that a man who can write so well should write so seldom. Such a piece as we have described is the one before us. Its composer, although a stranger to us may have published many works, for aught we know; but we are certain that not one exceeds—even, indeed, if it equal—the grace and tenderness of the unpretending "Morceau" which M. Pachet sends us as his letter of introduction. The principal subject, in F major, is extremely melodious, and coloured with a charming accompaniment. To this succeeds a theme in D flat major, with sweeping extended arpeggios, for the left hand, every alternate bar. The original subject then returns, and a few gracefully written bars bring the piece to a termination. When we affirm that "Tendresse" fully justifies its title (considering how seldom we can award such praise), we hope our good word may be of some service both to the piece and its composer.

Les Chants du Peuple. Mélodies autrichiennes, pour Piano; par Jules Egghard.

THESE melodies are bold and characteristic; and the skill of M. Jules Egghard has been bestowed upon them with good effect. The piece has small pretension—for not even the well-worn device of surrounding the subjects with arpeggios is resorted to, but a continuity is preserved sufficiently to prevent the themes from appearing patched together, and that is all perhaps that is intended.

Valse Héroïque; pour le Piano. Par H. A. Wollenhaupt.

AN heroic waltz is a novelty; but Herr Wollenhaupt is too experienced a writer to fail in anything he undertakes. The subjects are vigorous and varied in character, and the harmonies most musicianlike throughout. In the second theme a good effect is gained by the contrast of the left hand passage against the legato melody, accompanied with chords in the right hand. The piece does not present any formidable difficulties; but it will require careful and intelligent practice.

W. CZERNY.

Guide to Young Pianoforte Teachers and Students. By Wentworth Philipson.

THE proportion which those professors who can teach bear to those who can play is so exceedingly small, that persons who do not know how the better judgment of pupils and parents can be blinded by what is termed "brilliant execution," might reasonably wonder how it happens that, without any diploma guaranteeing their fitness for so responsible a duty, every pianist should be enabled to live by giving lessons. That this subject (although a delicate one to touch) must shortly come prominently before the public there can be little doubt; meanwhile we are glad to say a good word for any earnest thinker who will publish the result of his deliberations, and although the name of Mr. Wentworth Phillipson is new to us, his doctrines so thoroughly accord with those we have so long advocated in this journal, that we willingly hail him as a fellow worker, and sincerely trust that his unpretending little book may be most extensively read. The preliminary chapter, "addressed more especially to parents," contains some advice as to the choice of a professor which is really invaluable. We must also bear testimony to the able manner in which the rudiments of the art are explained, and may add the weight of our own experience to the author's respecting the uselessness of Czerny's 101 "Elementary Exercises," which we have often, as he says, seen a girl of fourteen plodding gradually through with a zeal worthy of a better cause. Of simple and compound time Mr. Phillipson speaks so clearly, that a mere child may understand him. After saying that a note is "simple" so long as it remains undotted, the explanation which follows can present no difficulty. Take the following, for instance: "Suppose we agree to count a bar of common time by the minim, we have clearly two in a bar; dot the minim, we have two dotted ones, or six crotchet time, marked six-four; suppose we agree to count four a bar, we have four crotchets; dot them and we have four dotted crotchets, or in other words, twelve quaver time, marked twelve-eight; suppose we agree to count eight in a bar, we have eight quavers; dot them, and we have eight dotted quavers, or twenty-four semiquaver time, marked twenty-four sixteen. The compound half-common time, six-eight, is of course similarly derived from counting two crotchets in a bar." This extract will sufficiently show that our author not only understands the matter himself, but can explain himself to others. We may add that the directions for playing some of Cramer's most difficult studies are admirable.

DUFF AND STEWART.

The Shadow on the Floor. Song. Words by G. M. Elva Wood.

The Angel and the Child. Song. Words by H. W. Longfellow.

The Passing Ship. Song. Words by the Earl of Pembroke.

Composed by Virginia Gabriel.

The titles of these songs will sufficiently indicate the subject on which they are founded! Death, death—either of child, parent, friend or lover—seems to be the theme universally recognized as the one best suited for a musical setting by the ballad makers of the day. That the pathos (such as it is) of these effusions is thus ready made for the versifier, and requires but a little heightening at the hands of the composer, is so obvious, that we should imagine that the public would scarcely accept either words or music as real art; but the trade-worth of such productions, is too well known by all engaged in their manufacture; and the luxury of speaking the truth, is therefore left to the few who, like ourselves, remain unmoved by their commonplace appeal to our human sympathies, and have no concern with their market value! Let us then at once say that a drawing-room is not the place where the wounded feelings of persons, who have lost those near and dear to them, should be experimented upon; and that the "wail of the living," which goes "from the hearth to the cold grave stone," in one of the songs before us, are not words to be uttered by youthful voices, even to better music than Virginia Gabriel can wed them to. It is not sufficient that those who feel the true mission of the art, and who can see through the conventional methods of creating an interest for these inferior works, should dismiss them with a few words of gentle tolerance: it is their duty to speak out whenever an occasion occurs; and as the three songs which have called forth these observations, are a fair example of a rapidly increasing class of composition, we seize the opportunity to record a conviction, the earnestness of which at least our readers will, from our many former remarks on the subject, assuredly credit us with. It will, we presume, be accepted as praise, when we say that the melodies of these ballads are as melancholy as the verses; the lengthening out of the key-note on the word "dead," at the conclusion of the "Shadow on the Floor," especially having as sepulchral an effect as could possibly be desired. But exception must be taken to many of the harmonies; as, for instance, between the 8th and 9th bars of "The Angel and the Child," where the bass drops a fifth with the voice (from tonic to dominant), and also between the 11th and 12th bars, where the melody walks up from A to D, the bass being D, G. In the same song, too, we should like to understand what chord is intended after the diminished 7th on F# (bar 2, page 5), for, as it stands, the harmony is perfectly inexplicable. We do not care to be over critical with such songs; but if domestic misery is to be set to music, let us at least be unhappy grammatically.

La Reveillé; Morceau Militaire, pour Piano. Par Walter Macfarren.

A most attractive composition, in C major, treated in that musicianlike manner which must command the attention both of teachers and performers. The principal theme is founded on the bugle-call, which is carried throughout the piece with much effect. The melodious subject, in the dominant, is excellently contrasted with the spirited military opening; and its re-appearance in A flat is as unexpected as it is charming. Moderately advanced players will find in this little sketch much to delight and nothing to perplex them.

WEEKES AND CO.

Le Cor des Alpes; Mélodie de Proch.

Thème Allemand, de Leybach.

Valse Brillante, de J. Schulhoff.

Galop di Bravura, de J. Schulhoff.

Facilitated and arranged by J. Rummel.

WERE we called upon to pass judgment upon a selection of Shakespeare's plays "facilitated and arranged" for children, we should feel it our duty, in the cause of literature, to protest against such a form of appeal to juvenile comprehension. The pieces before us are open to a similar objection; for although the originals of those taken in hand by Mr. Rummel do not certainly hold that rank in the musical art which the works we have mentioned do in the dramatic art, they are sterling compositions, and have lived quite long enough to claim respect. We may also say that experience has proved to us how the early impression of a piece clings to a student in after years; and can even cite an instance where an intelligent pupil, who had in her nursery days played a garbled version of Weber's "Invitation pour la Valse," transposed into C, and with the original passages altered and simplified—would scarcely tolerate the real work; and indeed could hardly be induced to believe that it was not a kind of paraphrase of her favourite unpretending little Rondo, especially adapted for the practice of advanced performers. Music for children should be written only by those who thoroughly understand their requirements; for we all know that little players are often more ambitious than big ones, and it is the duty of the master to see that this ambition is properly controlled. Difficult compositions are, we regret to say, often given at schools, with an intimation that the passages thoroughly beyond the pupil may be omitted; and we recollect (as an example of the result of this training) an aspiring young lady on one occasion informing us that she intended to play one of Beethoven's Sonatas, and "leave out all the accidentals." Apart from the objection we have urged, we may say that Mr. Rummel has most creditably performed his task; and although we do not wish to see the numbers of "La Petite Pianiste" multiplied beyond the four numbers already published, there may be many who do, and to all such it can conscientiously be said that the pieces will prove highly acceptable.

Smile on my Ev'ning Hour. Sacred Song. Words by the late Miss Charlotte Elliott.

The Old Year. Song. Words by Isabella M. Mortimer.

Composed by Mrs. John Holman Andrews.

A CALM and vocal subject, smoothly harmonized and faultless in grammatical construction, are merits too valuable and rare to be passed over, even in such an unpretending sacred song as Mrs. Andrews has written; and to singers, therefore, who are satisfied with these qualifications, we conscientiously recommend "Smile on my Ev'ning Hour," the words of which, as well as the music, are entitled to commendation. "The Old Year" has a graceful theme, and we imagine would be unexceptionable in the accompaniment, provided the innumerable errors therein can be rectified by the pianist. Let us name only a few of these. Symphony, 7th bar, A flat omitted in the last chord; 9th bar of the song, all the naturals before the A's left out; 10th bar, flat before the last B omitted; 9th bar, page 4, E left out (we presume) in the chord of C; 1st and 2nd bars of the symphony at the conclusion, naturals before the A's omitted, in the modulation to G minor. We trust that we have said enough (although we have by no means exhausted the list of inaccuracies) to call the attention both of composer and publisher to the matter.

DIATONIC AND CHROMATIC SEMITONES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—I was perfectly aware before reading the letter of Mr. S. S. Greatheed in your last (p. 767), that between two given notes or pitches an endless number of pitches might be made, or imagined, all differing from each other by a minute degree, and that any names might be given to them that to the fancy of the originator might seem desirable. I cannot, however, see that any advantage would be gained by the introduction of the last B♭ which he mentions for the following reasons. (If your readers will refer to the scale with ratios given in my letter on p. 731 it will illustrate what follows.) The combination C B♭ would generally be considered to belong to the scale of F, and as such the B♭ to form a good fourth to F should bear the ratio to the C (in diagram p. 731) of $\frac{16}{9}$. Viewing, however, the seventh on C isolated from any other chord or key, and adding for its completion the third and fifth, we have C E G B♭. In this chord the B♭ is a discord with every note except the G, which should therefore have the prior claim over the C in deciding its exact pitch, which from this view will have the ratio of $\frac{3}{2}$ with the C. Thus not only would the use of either the ratios $\frac{16}{9}$ or $\frac{3}{2}$ be more convenient practically, but also I believe more strictly in accordance with exact theory, and more likely to express the idea of the composer who wrote the chord, than that of the simpler one, $\frac{7}{4}$. Musicians draw a hard and fast line of distinction between concords and discords, the one being understood to be a combination of notes whose ratios of vibration are so simple as to give pleasure when sounded together, the other being the very opposite of this, being one whose ratios are so complex as to produce a harsh effect upon the ear, and decidedly suggest and require a resolution upon one of the former description. But nature draws no such exact distinction: the ratios of the primes 2, 3, 5, 7, 11, &c., become more and more complex as they advance, and although the octave fifth and third are always called concords, and the seventh a discord, the difference is really a matter of degree; thus the fifth is a less perfect concord than the octave, and the third less perfect than the fifth, while the seventh as thus formed occupies a position mid-way between the decided concords and decided discords belonging strictly to neither. When, however, a musician introduces it, he always intends that it shall be a decided discord with the fundamental, and therefore either of the ratios $\frac{16}{9}$ or $\frac{3}{2}$ is preferable to the more simple $\frac{7}{4}$.

We can never obtain an exact mathematical basis for the construction of musical instruments of fixed tones, because no powers of prime numbers can ever coincide. The facts that the 19th power of 2 nearly approximates the 12th power of 3, and the 7th power of 2, the 3rd power of 5 form the base of the equal temperament system.

A more exact system was tried some years since on an organ built by the Messrs. Robson, for a chapel in Jewin Street, which supposed the octave to be divided into 53 equal commas, but of these only 40 sounds existed in the instrument, and of these only 21 could be used as key-notes of scales. Had each of the 53 divisions been used as key-notes a further subdivision would have been necessary, and so ad infinitum. This organ had two A♯ A♯ and two B♭ B♭, the latter having the ratios to the lower C which I have already spoken of, viz., $\frac{3}{2}$ and $\frac{16}{9}$, while the A♯ A♯ were respectively one and two commas flatter than the flatter B♭.

The question, however, to which I alluded in my letter was the purely practical one, as to what names should be given to the two halves of a split black key on an organ or pianoforte, and I think Mr. Greatheed will agree with me that in answering this question Wheatstone was right and Berlioz wrong.

I am, yours truly,
Pianoforte Manufactory,
5, Octagon, Plymouth. ROBERT SMITH.

BACH'S HYMN IN THE HYMNARY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—In your last number, a correspondent is kind enough to point out a mistake I made when speaking of an ancient church melody as harmonized by J. S. Bach, in describing it as beginning and ending on the dominant. This I conceive is no mistake; there are no sharps or flats in the signature, the very first cadence is in C, and yet the tune begins and ends on a chord of G. How could it be better described to a modern reader? I did not conceive it to be my duty to enter into a history of old scales; moreover, I was anxious to avoid the many pitfalls which surround that subject. Into one of these your correspondent falls when he says that the Greek scales maintained a place in church music during the 15th, 16th, and 17th centuries. Now if he can only substantiate any relation between church modes and Greek music, he has indeed made a discovery which will immortalize him. As far as is at present known, no such connection can be proved, and as to the Tonicus plagalis, will your correspondent kindly say at what period the word "Tonicus" was used as signifying keynote and scale, and key of C? all of which meanings it must have had before G to G without F♯ could have been termed "Tonicus plagalis" or hypotonic-mode. I am afraid it is hardly fair to ask such a question in a journal in which two correspondents can only fire one shot per month at each other.

Yours, &c.,

REVIEWER OF "THE HYMNARY."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

DEAR SIR,—I beg to draw your attention to my letter of the 20th January, published in your paper of February, and beg you to read: "Jonicus remissus," "Jonicus plagalis" (Hypo Jonischer Modus), not "Tonicus remissus" &c. Also I beg to say, that I referred to the "Review of 'The Hymnary,'" not to "Bach's Hymn in 'The Hymnary,'" as it is put in your paper. Hoping you will correct it by inserting this remark in your next number,

I remain, dear Sir, yours obediently,

C. LAHMEYER,

Organist of St. Paul, Chiswick.

5, Grove Park Terrace, Chiswick, W.

21st February, 1873.

IS A PARISH CHURCH ORGAN PUBLIC PROPERTY?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—It being supposed by some people that the organ in a Parish Church, which has been subscribed for by the parishioners, is public property, and that any parishioner has, after obtaining the permission of the Vicar and Churchwardens, a public right to the organ keys for the purpose of amusing himself or herself thereon, such person or persons having some knowledge (whether slight or otherwise) of the instrument—will you kindly state fully in your next issue, what is the universal custom in such matters, because the organist contends that, by his appointment, the sole care of the instrument is vested in him, and that it is virtually optional to him whether he lends the keys or not. This question arises from the fact of there having been no resident professional organist for some few years, until the appointment of one in November last. I enclose my card, and remain,

Yours truly,

A PARISHIONER.

Lydney, Glo'ster,
February 21st, 1873.

[We can scarcely suppose that the organ could be considered "public property" if it be necessary to obtain the consent of the Vicar and Churchwardens before the parishioners can play upon it; but perhaps some of our readers will enlighten our correspondent on the subject.—Ed. Musical Times.]

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

•• Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed.

We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

Many notices of country concerts are omitted from our present number, because the correspondents who forwarded them have neglected to say when or where the performances have taken place. We trust that this announcement will prevent such irregularity in future; for we cannot, as a rule, undertake to say why such communications are thrown aside.

W. R. SUTTON.—An octave lower than written.

EDMUND THOMPSON.—You are quite right in your opinion. The semibreve is wrong.

MUSICUS.—Apply to the Professor of Music at either University.

Brief Summary of Country News.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary; as all the notices are either collated from the local papers, or supplied to us by occasional correspondents.

ABINGDON.—A numerous attended concert was given in the County Hall, on the 11th ult., in aid of the restoration and enlargement of the Organ in St. Helen's Church. Madame Wells, Miss Lazarus, Mr. Hunt, Mr. Nicholson, and Mr. O. Christian, were the artists; and an excellent programme was exceedingly well rendered, and much applauded. Great praise is due to Mr. F. K. Cauldrey, the manager of the concert, the performance resulting in a handsome surplus, towards the object in view.

AINSWICK.—An evening concert was given in the Corn Exchange on Wednesday, the 5th ult., which was well attended and highly successful. The vocalists were Miss Lottie Ancell, Miss Helen Standish, and Mr. T. Rees Evans. Miss A. Beckett Evans, a young and promising pianist, is warmly praised by the local press, her three solos being most enthusiastically received. Several vocal pieces were given with much effect, some of which were re-demanded.

ALRESFORD.—The Choral Society gave its second concert, at the Town Hall, on Tuesday evening, the 11th ult. The programme contained several songs, glees, and choruses, all of which were remarkably well rendered by the members. The performance reflected the greatest credit upon the conductor, Mr. M. Robinson, of Winchester Cathedral.

BELFAST.—The Belfast Musical Society gave two concerts, in the Ulster Hall, on the 4th and 5th ult., assisted by Mr. De Jong's band, Madlle. Pauline Rita, Mr. Selwyn Graham, and Mr. Brandon. The orchestra numbered 200 performers. At the first concert, under the direction of the Society's newly appointed conductor, Mr. James Thomson, the greater part of Haydn's Seasons was most successfully rendered. The song, "A wealthy lord" (with laughing chorus), was warmly applauded, and enthusiastically re-demanded. At the second concert, Mr. De Jong and his band, gave a selection from their well-known répertoire in their best style, and the solo vocalists contributed materially to a most enjoyable evening.

BURSLIM.—The Potteries Tonic Sol-fa Choristers gave a performance of the Messiah, in the Town Hall, on the 11th ult., under distinguished patronage. Madlle. Pauline Rita was the principal soprano, and sang the music allotted to her with good effect. Miss Julia Elton (contralto) was eminently successful, and the applause which followed "O Thou that tellest," "He shall feed His flock," and "He was despised" was of the heartiest description. Mr. Vernon Rigby was apparently suffering from cold, which somewhat affected his singing. Mr. Brandon maintained the high reputation which he has long enjoyed in the Potteries, and had the regulations permitted, he would have been encored on more than one occasion. The re-demand for "The trumpet shall sound" was long continued, owing mainly to the faultless execution of the trumpet obligato by Mr. A. Robinson, of Hull. The choruses were well sung, and the band played the Overture, the Pastoral Symphony, and the accompaniments, in excellent taste. Mr. H. C. Nixon, of London, presided for the first time at the organ, and made a favourable impression, and Mr. Powell conducted with his customary precision.

CASTLEFORD.—On Thursday evening, the 13th ult., a lecture concert was given in the Mechanics' Hall by Dr. Spark, before a large audience, on the Life and Compositions of Haydn. The lecture was most interesting, and was listened to with profound attention throughout. The musical illustrations were excellently performed by Dr. Spark (piano), Mr. M. Arnold, of Harrogate (violin), Miss Grayston, Miss Kennedy, and Mrs. Parkinson, vocalists.

CHESHUNT.—The Cheshunt Choral Association gave its eighth annual concert on Tuesday, the 4th ult. A miscellaneous programme was very well rendered by the choir, which is much improved since the last performance. The principal vocalists were Misses Williams, E. A. Archer and Hensmon (who gave a new song by Cecil Burch, "Oh, my love is away on the salt, salt sea," which was re-demanded), Messrs. Morley and Turnham, Mrs. Emmott (piano) and Mr. Trotter (violin) played the Overture to Zaira (Winter), and Mr. Cecil Burch (who presided at the pianoforte) performed his Fantasia, "Gramachree," which was much admired. Mr. Archer conducted.

CORK.—The Cork Musical Society gave its first concert for the season on Wednesday, the 29th January, in the Athenæum, before a large audience. The first part consisted of a selection from the Messiah, the principal vocalists in which were Miss M'Nab (a débutante), Miss Connell, Mrs. Bayley, Messrs. Baker and J. Sullivan, all of whom acquitted themselves in a highly praiseworthy manner. The second part was miscellaneous, commencing with the Overture to a Cantata, by Herr Van Heddeghem, which was deservedly re-demanded; and the selection included a chorus from another Cantata by the same composer, which met with a warm reception from the audience. Songs were given by some of the vocalists already named, with the addition of Dr. Fergusson, of the 15th Regiment, who sang "The shades of evening" with much success. The vocal pieces were agreeably relieved by the excellent performance of Spohr's Violin Concerto (No. 8), by Herr Van Heddeghem. There was a small but efficient orchestra, ably conducted by Dr. J. C. Marks.

DALKEITH.—On the 28th January, the Choral Union gave a performance of secular music at the White Hart Room. The principal portion of the programme was devoted to Haydn's "Spring," from The Seasons, both the choruses and solos being excellently rendered. The second part consisted of miscellaneous pieces, and included Chopin's Première Valse, for the pianoforte, brilliantly played by Miss Heathcote, who received an enthusiastic encore. The hall was well filled.

DEPTFORD.—The services at the Catholic Church have latterly been of an unusually interesting description. Haydn's Second Mass and Hummel's Mass in E flat have been twice given, the music being exceedingly well rendered by the local choir, assisted on each occasion by several members of the Drury Lane Orchestra, led by Mr. Henry Morley. Since Mr. W. C. Levey's connection with the church, a notable improvement has taken place, both with regard to the character of the music, and the style in which it is performed. The edict of the Archbishop, banishing female vocalists from the choirs, does not, fortunately, extend to churches on the other side of the water; so that the ever fresh and melodious works of the great masters may still be enjoyed in the vicinity of London. The Offertories have been Curschmann's "Ti prego," Handel's "Ave Maria" (adapted), and Mozart's "Jesu, dulcis memoria," the last being beautifully sung by Miss Alma Ford. It is only due to the untiring kindness of Mr. Levey to state that his services at the organ, and those of his band, are entirely gratuitous.

DOUGLAS, ISLE OF MAN.—The second concert by Miss Wood's choir, in aid of the Ladies' Soup Dispensary, was given in the Victoria Hall, on the 29th January, before a large audience. The singing of the choir was remarkably good, especially in "The Cuckoo" and W. Macfarren's "You stole my love," the latter being most warmly received. Miss Wood's harmonized version of one of the National Manx airs, "Ellan Vannin," was enthusiastically re-demanded; and there can be little doubt that this will become a stock arrangement for the concert-room. The solo vocalists were Miss Wood (whose one song "Come, oh sleep," with flute and violoncello accompaniment, was one of the features of the evening), Mr. Ling (who was encored in two of his songs), and Mr. Kerruish (who received a similar compliment for his excellent rendering of "The brave old Temeraire"). A trio, by De Beriot, for flute, pianoforte, and violoncello, was played to perfection by Mr. Adams, Miss Wood, and Mr. Thomas; and a pianoforte duet, by Miss Hamilton and Miss Wood, was also a great success. The office of conductor was ably filled by Miss Wood; and the accompaniments were skillfully played by that lady and Miss Valentine.

EDINBURGH.—Professor Oakeley gave an Organ Recital on the 11th ult., when the Music Class-room was rather inconveniently crowded. Every number was delightfully rendered, and Beethoven's Adagio was loudly re-demanded and cordially responded to. The customary mark of respect to the memory of the founder of the Music Chair was given by the audience rising to their feet during the performance of General Reid's well-known march. The concluding number of the programme (Mendelssohn's "Marche Funèbre") was appropriately and feelingly dedicated to the memory of the late Professor Piersson.

FOREST HILL.—On Thursday evening the 20th ult., a special service was held at St. John's Church, the occasion being the opening of a new organ which has just been presented to the church by one of its members, Mr. F. J. Horniman, of Surrey House. The preacher for the evening was the Rev. Newman Hall, LL.B., of Surrey Chapel, the subject of his sermon being "Prayer reasonable." The interest taken in the presentation, together with the popularity of the preacher, amply sufficed to draw a large congregation; and the church was filled to overflowing, there being about 700 persons present. The organ, which stands at the east end of the church, behind the pulpit, was built by Messrs. Speechly and Ingram, King's Road, St. Pancras, and exhibited by them in the Exhibition of 1872. It consists of two manuals; the great organ containing—open diapason, 8 ft.; dulciana, 8 ft.; and principal, 3 ft.; each separate stop running throughout. The swell contains two very beautiful stops, viola and gamba, 8 ft., running to tenor C; below that the diapason in the great organ continues in the swell. The flute (4 ft.) in the swell, runs throughout; in addition there are stops, great to swell, so as to combine both manuals; swell to pedals and great to pedals, by which means the pedals, when used, may be made to combine with either set of Manuals, or used alone. There is also a very effective stop-pedal Bourdon. The pedals consist of 2½ octaves. The opening voluntary, composed for the occasion by the organist, Mr. H. N. King, of Regent Street, was highly effective and well written to display the capabilities of the instrument. The musical portions of the service, which were most impressively rendered, opened with hymn 219 (tune, Angels); after which came the anthem, "I will arise;" Psalm 111 (chant, Mornington); anthem, "O praise God;" concluding with hymn 108 (tune, St. Ann's). After the sermon the concluding hymn was sung, and a short prayer and the benediction brought this interesting service to a close. The collection realised £20 7s. 6½d.

GRINGLEY-ON-THE-HILL.—On the 19th ult., a concert was given by the Gringley Choral Society, in the School-room. There was a large audience, and the concert was a complete success. The various pieces in the programme were well executed, and great credit is due to Mr. Hamilton White (the conductor) for the manner in which he has trained the Society.

HARROGATE.—On Thursday evening, the 30th January, Mr. Bartle gave a concert in the Chalybeate Spa Rooms. The soloists were Miss Blakely and Miss Kennedy (from Leeds), Mr. Whiteley, Mr. Deighton, Mr. Grimshaw, &c.; and the part-songs, glees, &c., were rendered by members of St. Mary's, St. John's, and Christ Church choirs. Miss Kennedy gave "Esmeralda" and "Erin my country" with much effect; the duet, "The cousins" (Misses Blakely and Kennedy), was loudly applauded, and Messrs. Whiteley and Deighton's songs were encored.

LEAMINGTON.—On Wednesday, the 29th January, Mr. Philip Klitz lectured before the Leamington Philosophical Society, in the Public Hall, on "The Science of Music, and its Influences on Society." The lecturer commenced his subject by alluding, in a highly intellectual address, to the power of music, its general characteristics, and enlivened his remarks by several interesting and forcible anecdotes. Mr. Klitz is a pianist of no common order, his vocal illustrations were excellently performed, and he also proved himself a perfect master of the concertina. He elicited universal applause throughout the entertainment. The Regent Hotel Saloon, on the afternoon of the 1st ult., was crowded with a fashionable audience to hear Mr. C. Sydney Vinning's third Pianoforte Recital. The programme consisted of two of Beethoven's Sonatas (Ops. 30 and 12) for violin and piano (the violin part by a clever amateur), three musical sketches (Bennett), Sonata in E flat (Haydn), and other works by Mendelssohn, Schumann, and Chopin, concluding with Thalberg's "Home, sweet home." The whole performance was rendered with much taste and expression.

LEEK.—On the 18th ult., an Oratorio was performed for the first time in the metropolis of the Moorlands. The occasion was the eighteenth concert of the Leek Amateur Musical Society, and the work selected was Handel's Judas Maccabæus, which had been judiciously curtailed so as not to exceed the limits of an ordinary concert, without omitting any of the favourite numbers or breaking the thread of the story. Madame Cowley-Squier, of Manchester, sang the principal soprano parts very effectively, and Misses Smith, Nixon, Russell, and Mrs. Hall took part in the duets. Mr. Coulson of Derby, sang the tenor music allotted to Judas, with excellent taste and effect; and Mr. Beckett, a member of the Society, did ample justice to the bass airs and recitatives. The choruses were sung by about thirty members of the Society in a style to reflect much credit upon them, and encourage them to further efforts in the same direction. The overture, march, and accompaniments, were well executed by Mrs. Gubbins (pianoforte) and a small but efficient band, led by Mr. Ambrose Lee, of Manchester. Mr. Powell, under whose direction the Society has been since its commencement, occupied his customary post as conductor. The Temperance Hall, in which the concert took place, was well filled.

LIVERPOOL.—The seventy-sixth annual dinner of the Liverpool Apollo Glee Club took place on the 30th January. David Jones, Esq., president; vice-presidents, William Laidlaw, Esq., and Thomas Armstrong, Esq. Glee, selected from the works of Calcott, Webbe, Dr. Clarke, Hatton, &c., were admirably rendered by the performing members, Mr. Skeaf presiding at the piano. The Club is in a very prosperous state, and possesses a library of upwards of two thousand glees.—The first of the present series of the admirable performances, on the plan of the Monday Popular Concerts in London, took place at the Philharmonic Hall, on Wednesday, the 12th ult. Executants: 1st violin, Madame Norman-Néruda; 2nd violin, Herr L. Ries; viola, Mr. Zerbin; violoncello, Signor Piatti; solo pianoforte, Madame Schumann; vocalist, Miss Elena Angèle; accompanist, Mr. Zerbin. The programme stood thus:—Part 1, Quartet, in B flat, for two violins, viola, and violoncello (Mozart); Recit. and Aria from Giulietta e Romeo (Vaccà); "E questo il loci" and "Ah! se tu dormi;" Sonata, in D minor, No. 2, Op. 31 (Beethoven), pianoforte alone. Part 2, Trio, in D minor, Op. 63, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello (Schumann); Song, "Guinevere" (A. S. Sullivan); Quartet, in E flat, (Op. 71, No. 3) for two violins, viola, and violoncello (Haydn). The rendering of the whole of these pieces could not be surpassed; and the delight of the audience was most enthusiastic, the greatest applause, however, being elicited by the performance of Schumann's trio.—The second of the series of performances on the plan of the London Monday Popular Concerts, was given on Wednesday, the 19th ult. Executants: 1st violin, Herr Joachim; 2nd violin, Herr L. Ries; viola, Mr. Zerbin; violoncello, Signor Piatti; solo, pianoforte, Madame Schumann; vocalist, Mr. Edward Lloyd; accompanist, Mr. Zerbin. The first part began with the quartet in A major (Op. 26), for pianoforte, violin, viola, and violoncello (J. Brahms) a work interesting, not only from its novelty, but from the great talent evidenced in its composition. Mr. Edward Lloyd sang with much refinement Signor Piatti's charming setting of the old words "Go, lovely Rose," and was encored. Madame Schumann performed the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream (arranged for the pianoforte) with such wonderful effect that she was brought back by a vehement encore, and played the "Schlummerlied," composed by her late husband. Part the second was commenced by a violin solo, played as only Herr Joachim can play it, "Sarabande and Tambourin" from a Sonata in D major (No. 3), with pianoforte accompaniment by Leclair, which was re-demanded. Mr. Lloyd then sang very delicately, "Thou whom I vowed to love" (Schubert); and the concert concluded with Mendelssohn's posthumous quartet for strings, in F minor, which was rendered most exquisitely.

MANCHESTER.—A concert was given in the Congregational Room, Queen's Park, on Monday, the 17th ult., by Miss D. A. Berry (pupil of Mr. John Waddington, formerly conductor of the late Hargreaves Choral Society), assisted by Miss Hancock, of Mr. Charles Hallé's Choir, Mrs. Archer, Mr. Smith, Mr. Dottie, and the Union Glee party, conducted by Mr. Howard. Miss Berry has an excellent soprano voice, and displays much taste in her singing. Miss Hancock, although suffering from a cold, sang Sullivan's "Will become" with good effect; and Mr. Smith (who kindly, at a short notice, supplied Mr. Williamson's place) was very warmly received. The glee party gave several glees and part-songs with much success. The room was well filled by an appreciative audience.

NEW YORK.—Mr. Richard Hoffman's series of four soirées commenced on the 25th January, at Messrs. Chickering's elegant Concert-room, which was filled by a most fashionable and appreciative audience. The programme was highly attractive, and the services of Mr. J. Burke (violin) and Mr. F. Bergner (violoncello), in rendering the works selected, were most valuable. Handel's Second Concerto, played by Mr. Hoffman, was so well given that an encore was demanded, in response to which he performed "The harmonious Blacksmith," Mendelssohn's Duo (Op. 58), with Mr. Bergner, and Schumann's songs, with Mr. J. Burke, were given in a masterly style. Mr. Hoffman's performance of Chopin's "Andante spianato" and "Polonaise" was warmly encored, when he played Gottschalk's "Murmures Éoliens," and, during the evening, two of his own compositions, "Les Clochettes" and "Caprice de concert."

NICE.—One of the most agreeable entertainments of the season was recently given by the Nice Amateur Musical Society, at the Hotel Royal. The Society was first established for the promotion and practice of singing, under the auspices of a gentleman whose musical and scientific tastes and attainments are well known in Nice. These meetings were comparatively of a private nature, and held for mutual instruction and amusement; but when the bazaar in aid of the funds of the Asile Evangélique and Protestant Schools was closed, the laudable idea occurred to the members of utilizing their accomplishments to further the same benevolent object. It would be difficult to specify which performance during the evening could claim pre-eminence over another, but Mendelssohn's "Farewell to the Forest," "The Dream," by Stirling, and Sir Henry Bishop's well-known "Sleep while the soft evening breezes," were certainly amongst the most successful pieces. The trio, "Ye flowers that I have tended," gave an opportunity to three ladies of the Society of showing the quality of their voices, and we must not omit to mention a Romance of an impassioned nature sung by a Russian young lady with much intensity of feeling. Between the parts Mr. Ferdinand Dulcken volunteered a solo on the piano, which was performed with his accustomed feeling and executive power. The whole concluded with Novello's admired arrangement of the National Anthem, which was sung with much effect, the principal soprano parts by the young Russian lady already mentioned, all the company standing, and heartily joining in the chorus. The large room of the Hotel was quite full, and it is to be hoped the charitable efforts of the Society were amply rewarded.

OXFORD.—Mr. O. Harris (of the Cathedral Choir), gave a glee and madrigal concert in the Town Hall, on Saturday evening, the 15th ult., assisted principally by members of New and Magdalen College Choirs. The programme, which was somewhat sombre for a Saturday evening concert, was agreeably interspersed with several songs, all of which were effectively sung. The best rendered glees were "Come forth, sweet spirit" (Bishop), and "Here let me lie" (Lord Mornington), the vocalists being Messrs. Meadley, Wentworth, Crane, and Roebuck. Mr. C. Harris, jun. (organist of St. Peter's-in-the-East), presided at the pianoforte.

PAISLEY.—The members of the Paisley Tonic Sol-fa Institute gave an excellent performance of Handel's Oratorio, Jephtha, at the Abbey, on the 7th ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Helena Walker, Miss Fennell, Mr. Alfred Hemmings, and Signor Federici, all of whom were highly effective, especially Miss Walker, who sang the airs, "The smiling dawn of happy days," and "Farewell, ye limpid springs" with much taste and feeling. The choruses were, on the whole, carefully rendered, "When His loud voice in thunder spoke," and "Cherubim and Seraphim," successfully testing both the power and delicacy of the choir. Mr. J. A. Brown was an excellent conductor, and Miss Mary D. Hoek proved an able accompanist.

ROTHWELL (near Leeds).—An excellent concert was given in the Mechanics' Institute, on Wednesday evening, the 12th ult., which was well attended. The performers were Miss Anna Hiles, Miss Annie Anyon, and Mr. Dods, vocalists; and Mr. J. F. Heaton Clarke, pianist. "I'll follow thee," and "I'm a merry Zingara" were excellently sung by Miss Hiles, Miss Anyon gave "Rory O'More" and "Home, sweet home" with much success, and Mr. Dods gained much applause in two songs. Mr. J. F. H. Clarke displayed good execution in Mattei's "Grande Valse de Concert," and Sydney Smith's "Com'è gentil" (for the left hand alone). He also played a solo from Il Pirata on the English concertina, with great taste and feeling.

STANDON BRIDGE, STAFFORDSHIRE.—A concert was given by Mr. J. J. Mathews, organist of Standon Church, in the Cotes Heath School-room, on Wednesday, the 12th ult., on behalf of the Organ Restoration Fund, in Standon Church. The room was well filled with a most fashionable and appreciative audience. The vocalists were Mrs. W. H. Steward, Messrs. Entwistle and Grundy (of Lichfield Cathedral), Mr. Jones, Mr. W. H. Steward, and Mr. Jervis. Mr. W. A. Marson, of Stafford, was the violin soloist; and Mr. Mathews, assisted by Mr. Bedmore, organist of Lichfield Cathedral, presided at the pianoforte. The first part of the programme was sacred, and opened with a pianoforte duet, by Messrs. Mathews and Bedmore, from Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise. The recit. "Render your hearts," and the air "If with all your hearts," (beautifully rendered by Mr. Jones), and "O Rest in the Lord" (sung by Mr. Entwistle) were well received. The second part commenced with a pianoforte duet, the Overture to Zanetta, and included several vocal solos, which were warmly applauded. The concert was a great success, and it is expected that about £25 will be cleared and handed over to the Vicar, the Rev. R. Steward.

WEAVERHAM.—On Thursday evening, the 6th ult., the members of the Weaverham Glee and Madrigal Society gave their first concert in the National School-room, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. This Society, which was only formed in November last, has made rapid progress, under the care and zeal of its musical conductor, Mr. Arkle. The concert was a decided success, the room being crowded in every part. A variety of glees and songs were sung by Messrs. Arkle, Bebbington, Cowap, and Johnson. Mr. G. Bebbington presided at the pianoforte, and Madame Billinie Porter gave some songs in excellent style.

WELSH FRANKTON, SALOP.—The annual concert was given in the Church School-room, on Thursday, the 20th ult., before a large audience. The solo vocalists were Miss Fielding, the Misses Ward (Whittington), Miss Freeman, Mr. J. Freeman, Mr. Venables, and Mr. T. Oswell. The Church choir also gave several part-songs. A very pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

WETHERBY.—On Thursday evening, the 30th January, a concert was given in the Town Hall before a large audience. The Bostn Spa Amateur String Quartet party, with Mr. Arnold, of Harrogate, as leader, gave an interesting selection from the best masters, which was highly appreciated. The solo vocalists were Miss Cooke, Messrs. Cryen and Backhouse. Mr. Arnold presided at the pianoforte.

WOOLWICH.—An evening concert was given for the benefit of the Military Charities, in the Royal Artillery Recreation Rooms, on Friday, the 14th ult., the audience being large and fashionable. A judiciously selected programme was interpreted by the following amateur and professional artists:—Miss Selino Stephen, Miss Helen D'Alton, Miss Florence Ashton, Madlle. Victoria Bunsen, Major Goodenough, R. A., Colonel Stracey, Mr. Wallace Carpenter, Mr. W. C. Kenningham Mitchell, and Signor Foli. Signor Edoardo Barri, and Herr Reyloff were the pianists; and the band of the Royal Artillery, under the bâton of its talented conductor, Mr. J. Smyth, formed an excellent orchestra.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. E. Shalders, of Norwich (pupil of Dr. Bunnett), to St. James's, Jersey.—Mr. W. Scadding (late Organist of St. James's, East Cowes), to the Parish Church, St. Thomas's Newport, Isle of Wight.—Mr. Samuel Porter, of St. Anne's, Highgate Rise, to St. Paul's, Halifax, Nova Scotia.—Mr. Edward Wheway, Organist and Choirmaster to St. James's, East Crompton, Lancashire.

DURING THE LAST MONTH,

Published by NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

GLADSTONE, F. E.—Benedicite, omnia Opera, for voices in unison, with varied harmonies for the Organ. 8vo., 6d.

THOMPSON, REV. CHRISTOPHER.—Magnificat for a high festival to a modern form of the Fifth Tone. With Vocal harmonies and Organ accompaniment. Post 8vo., 3d.

BUNNETT, EDWARD, Mus. Doc., Cantab.—If we believe that Jesus died. Easter Anthem for four voices. 8vo., 4d. Benedicite and Jubilate Deo in F. 8vo., 4d.

FROST, C. J.—Like as Christ was raised up. Short and full Easter Anthem. 8vo., 3d.

GLADSTONE, ROBERTSON, Jun. O Lord God of Hosts. Anthem. 8vo., 3d.

HUTT, W.—We have heard with our ears, O God. Full Anthem, for four voices. Vocal Score. 1s. 6d.

MEDELSSOHN.—There shall a Star from Jacob. Chorus from the unfinished Oratorio "Christus." 8vo., 4d.

NOVELLO'S Octavo Edition of Anthems:
76 We give Thee Thanks. G. A. Macfarren. 3d.
77 Blessed are they that always keep judgment. W. H. Monk. 3d.
78 I will magnify Thee, O God, my King. J. Baptiste Calkin. 4d.
79 I was glad when they said unto me. C. E. Horsley. 6d.

OULTON, M.—Christ is risen from the Dead. Easter Anthem. 8vo., 3d.

SULLIVAN, ARTHUR S.—The Son of God goes forth to War. Arranged to St. Ann's tune, with Organ Obligato. 8vo., 3d.

—The Strain upraise of Joy and Praise. Hymn. 8vo., 3d.

SULLIVAN, ARTHUR S.—The Music to Shakespear's "Tempest." Second edition, cloth. 10s.

JUDE, W. H.—Is this my Cross, O Lord? Words by Alfred Balding. Folio, 1s.

WHILEY, REV. E. B., M.A.—Saviour, when in dust to Thee. Hymn. 2d., or 1s. 6d. per dozen.

HILES, HENRY, Mus. Doc.—My Song shall be. Chorus from "The Patriarchs." 1s.

—Truly God is Loving. Air, Alto. Ditto. } 1s.
Twenty years. Recit. Tenor. }

—Fear not, O Jacob. Recit. Sop. Ditto. } 1s.
For the Lord. Air, Sop. }

—O God, blessed is the Man. Recit. Bass. Ditto. } 1s.
O God, Thou art my God. Air, Bass. }

SCHUMANN, ROBERT. Songs. First Series. Edited and in part translated by Natalia Macfarren. One Volume. Cloth gilt, 10s. 6d. For List see page 28.

MATHEWS, J. J.—The Mariner's Grave. Song. 1s. 6d.

THOMAS, W. HENRY.—Spring Gusts. Part-Song. Words by Lewis Thomas. 8vo., 4d.

ALEXANDER, ALFRED.—Gettysburg. A Four-part Song. Words by Sir William Fraser, Bart. 8vo., 4d.

ROGERS, ROLAND.—Lullaby. Sleep, sweet babe. Part-Song. Words by Coleridge. 8vo., 3d.

SLOPER, LINDSAY.—Notturmo a due Voci. For the Pianoforte. Op. 56. 1s. 6d.

BOVET, FRITZ.—Souvenirs de Suisse. Fantasia pour le Violon avec Accompagnement de Piano. Op. 4. 4s.

Fifth Edition, revised and enlarged, price 7s.

PARR'S CHURCH OF ENGLAND PSALMODY,
381 Tunes in 100 metres; 289 Chants; with various Responses, &c.—free from modern alterations and corruptions; and Memoirs of all the Composers, giving an amount of authentic information as to Psalmody nowhere else to be found.

London: W. Macintosh, 24, Paternoster-row.

NEW ANTHEM for EASTER.—"He is risen." Anthem for four voices, by W. H. HOLLOWAY. 8vo., price 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

EASTER ANTHEM. "The foe behind, the deep before," words translated by J. M. Neale. Music by JOHN NAYLOR, Mus. Doc. Suitable for Parish Choirs, price 6d. Novello, Ewer & Co.

HOLY JESU, PRINCE OF PEACE. New Communion Hymn, from Church Hymns, published by the S.P.C.K. Set to music by JOHN NAYLOR, Mus. Doc., price 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE LORD IS RISEN INDEED, HALLELUJAH. Anthem for Easter, by BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 1½d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Just Published.
AN EASTER ANTHEM (Full), "If we believe that Jesus died," price 4d. Also, the BENEDICTUS and JUBILATE, price 4d. Composed expressly for Parish Choirs, by Dr. BUNNETT, Norwich. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

FOR EASTER. JUST PUBLISHED.
As printed in the Peterborough Festival Book for the present year.
MAGNIFICAT, to a Modern Form of the Fifth Tone ("Parisian Chant,") with varied Harmonies for voices and Organ. By the Rev. CHRISTOPHER THOMPSON. Price 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

FRET NOT THYSELF BECAUSE OF THE UN-GODLY. Anthem, by M. OULTON. 8vo., 3d.

CHRIST IS RISEN FROM THE DEAD. Easter Anthem, by M. OULTON. 8vo., 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

DR. SPARK'S EASTER ANTHEM, "Christ being raised from the dead," dedicated to his friend, Henry Smart, Esq. Folio, organ score, 3s.; separate parts, 3d. each.

"Just what an Easter Anthem should be—jubilant, yet solid in style. . . . This very clever Anthem has our hearty commendation."—The Choir.

"The plan of this Anthem is clear and well defined, the subjects are melodious and uncommon, and the harmony throughout is pure and healthy."—The Queen.

"The Anthem is excellent, and its general character devotional and expressive."—The Guardian. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FULL ANTHEM for ASCENSIONTIDE. "God is gone up with a merry noise," by J. NEWBERRY. To be obtained of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, London, or of the composer, Hayes, Beckenham, Kent.

MASS OF THE HOLY CHILD JESUS, and AVE MARIA for Unison and Congregational Singing, with Organ Accompaniment, composed for the Church of the Oratory, by WILHELM SCHULTES. 6s. for 3s., with allowance for numbers to choirs.

The AVE MARIA of this Mass can be had for Four Voices, with the Ingressus Angelus. 2s. 6d. for 1s. 3d.

NE PROCIAS ME A FACIE TUA. Motett for Four Voices. (T.B.), by WILHELM SCHULTES. 2s. 6d. for 1s. 3d.

RECORDARE. ORATIO JEREMIE PROPHETE. by WILHELM SCHULTES. 2s. for 1s. R. Washbourne, 18A, Paternoster-row, London.

THE SACRED CHORISTER, containing Solos, Duets, Trios, and Choruses, in Twelve Numbers, 6d. each. Sent post free for stamps by the Author, C. Ward, Speen, Princes Risborough. Also may be had, "The Sunday School Melodist," 1s. "Beautiful Land." Duet and Chorus, 1½d.

FRANCIS HOWELL'S Oratorio, "THE LAND OF PROMISE," performed during the Christmas week at the United Presbyterian Church, Blackburn, with full Orchestral Accompaniments. Price 2s., in cloth, 8s. B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row, London.

MUSIC in the WESTERN CHURCH, a History of Psalmody from A.D. 1 to the present time. 20 illustrations. Price 2s. London: F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster-row.

THE QUARTER CHIME, or Fifteen Original Hymn Tunes of various metres (with words), by I. CLARKE, price 1s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Leeds: Hopkinson Brothers; or of the Author, 51, Spring-gardens, Doncaster.

THIRTEENTH EDITION.
"The air once heard haunts the memory."—Church Opinion.
MARCH OF THE CHORISTERS.—To write a really good and striking March is by no means an easy task. Mr. Allen's subjects are bold and suggestive.—Illustrated Review. A very fine March. Rich in good chords, with the ideas well marked. We consider it will rank with the classical Marches.—Catholic Opinion. Has many good qualities.—Weekly Review. Net 1s. 6d. Novello & Co.

RECESSIONAL MARCH, J. F. THORNE. Second edition, net, 2s.

"There is vigour and character in this March. It is calculated to obtain considerable popularity."—Choir.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo., price 6d. each.
SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This Work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This Pointing of the Canticles is authorized by His Grace the Archbishop of York. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. &c.
For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part chorus, with Organ Accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK, Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

Sixth Edition.
THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK, edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
Large edition, cloth, 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo., without chants, 1s.; with Proper Psalms, 1s. 3d.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to., with chants, 6s.; large 4to., £1 1s.; each voice part, separately, 2s. Canticles, score, small quarto., 9d.; separate parts, 8d.; words only, 24mo., 1½d. Novello, Ewer & Co., and Parker & Co.

Tenth Edition.
JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Price 5s. 6d.; sep. vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

SUPPLEMENT to the PREVIOUS EDITIONS of the ABOVE, containing Chants for the Venite, &c. Price 1s.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. St. J. B. JOULE. (Large type.) Price 2s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.
JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo., price 1s., in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.
JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Third Edition.
THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonized on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. St. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

NON NOBIS DOMINE, arranged to the Corresponding English Words, by Rev. W. G. LONGDEN, for the Use of Choral Meetings, as an Introit, or Anthem, or Grace after Meat. Price One Penny; Ninepence a dozen; or Five Shillings a hundred.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TE DEUM (new) in B flat. Harmony, unison, free organ part, &c. Highly effective. 1s. 6d.—Three Choral Hymns—"There is a blessed home," "O Love," and "Praise the Lord." Complete 1s.—Also the immensely popular arrangement of the Evening Hymn "Abide with me." Harmony and unison, with a free organ part 1s.—Also the well-known "Six Kyries." 1s. By EDWARD LAWRENCE, Organist, Merthyr Tydfil. A very liberal discount on a dozen copies, direct from the composer. A specimen copy of either for twelve stamps.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, in C. By EDWARD REDHEAD, Mus. Bac., Oxon. 8vo. Price 6d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1 Berners-street, W.

By REV. R. F. SMITH, M.A., Minor Canon of Southwell, TE DEUM, in F, in 4 parts, 3d. SHORT ANTHEM, "The Lord is high," S.A.T.B., 6d.
London: Novello, Ewer & Co., 1, Berners-street, W., & 35, Poultry, E.C.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For voices in unison and organ. Octavo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

THE MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, adapted to an ancient melody, arranged, harmonized, and dedicated to the Choirs in the Gloucester Diocesan Choral Union, by E. BRIND, Organist of Highnam Church, Gloucester. Price 3d. each, 2s. per dozen to Choirs.
Published by J. Clark, Library, Stroud, Gloucestershire.

TWELVE KYRIES. By G. BAKER. Price Sixpence, 12 or more copies, 4d. each, and post-free. G. Baker, Musicseller, Wakefield.

Just Published.

CANTICLES NOTED. Second Set, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. 18mo., 8d.; 8vo., 2s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

HELMORE, REV. THOMAS.—THE CANTICLES ACCENTED, 18mo., 3d.—Hymns of the Eastern Church, four voices, each 1s., PEACE, it is I; THE DAY IS PAST AND OVER; THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.—S. MARK'S CHANT BOOK (in daily use at the College Chapel, Chelsea), 4s. 6d.; or the same, Part I., being the main body of the work, price 3s. 6d.; and Part II., The Table of the Chants, price 1s. (useful for places where only the Canticles are chanted). Also Two "TE DEUMS" for Choir and People, in the alternate verses; adapted from Latin arrangements by Alfieri and Baini; vocal Score and Organ Accompaniment, price 3s. Also the People's Plain Song, separate, price 1½d. Four-part Cadences for the Holy Communion, 6d. The Carol for Christmas Morning, vocal score, 18mo. edition, 2d.; melody, 18mo., 1d.

HYMN IN TIME OF CATTLE PLAGUE. 2d. Words, 1s. per 100.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADDITIONS TO THE
REV. T. HELMORE'S PLAIN SONG WORKS.

The Canticles Accented. Price 3d.
The Psalter and Canticles Accented. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
Appendix 1 to Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory, Price 4d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 1, giving the Proper Psalms, noted as before in their right order of the six days to which they are Appointed. Price 6d. Bound up with recent editions of the Psalter Noted.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 8d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 2, giving the Proper Psalms newly noted for the Four Great Festivals (second set). Price 4d.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 4d.

Canticles Noted (second set). Large Edition, 2s. Small Edition, 8d.

For some of the Harmonies to this, see Accompanying Harmonies to Psalter Noted, Appendix 2 (above mentioned). For others, see Accompanying Harmonies to Brief Directory, Appendix 2, now in hand.

Cadences for the order of the Administration of the Lord's Supper, in compressed vocal score. Price 6d.

Paper on Church Music, with special reference to the joining of all the People in Sacred Song, read at the Church Congress, Wolverhampton, October 1867. Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Octavo size. Price 3d. each.
THE NICENE CREED, set to Music in an Easy form (principally monotone), with a free accompaniment for the Organ by R. W. CROWE.

THE NICENE CREED, set to music for four voices, chiefly in unison with a free accompaniment for the Organ. By S. PERCIVAL.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now ready. 8vo. Price Threepence.
THE APOSTLES' CREED, Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

JOHN M. W. YOUNG'S EASY FESTIVAL SERVICE, in C; consisting of Te Deum, Benedictus, and Jubilate, with an introductory Sketch of the History and Theology of the Te Deum, by the Right Rev. the Bishop Suffragan of Nottingham. Te Deum and Sketch, 1s.; festival size, 1½d. Benedictus and Jubilate, 10d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

BENEDICITE, for Septuagesima Sunday, Lent, &c., arranged to Chants by Dr. Stainer, Mr. Turle, and Mr. H. S. Irons. Third edition, price 2d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for Small Choirs. The texts selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe.

First Series, for Boys' and Females Voices—1. "Come, and let us return." 2. "I will look unto the Lord." (These Anthems may appropriately be used in Advent and Lent.) 3. "Behold the Tabernacle." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.)

Second Series, for Female and Male Voices—1. "Unto us was born." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.) 2. "Blessed is the soul." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Whitsuntide.) 3. "Come ye and let us go up." (This Anthem may be appropriately used at the opening of a church.)

These Anthems are available as Duets for private performance.

Price 6d. for each Anthem, or 2s. 6d. for each series of six.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASY ANTHEMS for VILLAGE CHOIRS. By W. H. GILL. 2d. each. Nos. 1 to 6 now ready.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A Specimen Copy, post free for Stamps to the value.

"I DID CALL UPON THE LORD." Full Anthem for Four Voices, by T. MEE PARTISON. Price 4d.

"A capital anthem for ordinary choirs; well written, and possesses plenty of variety. A little verse piece in the middle of it is effective, and a spirited fughetta brings it to a satisfactory conclusion."—Musical Standard.

SCHUMANN'S SONGS,

EDITED AND IN PART TRANSLATED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN.

In One Volume, Cloth Gilt, 10s. 6d., or Singly.

PREFACE.

The present collection is a first instalment of the Songs of Schumann in the order of their production; as his vocal works are extremely voluminous, it does not seem desirable to re-publish all his songs, but wherever there is a connecting link between the different numbers of an Opus, as in the nine Songs of Op. 24, and the 26 of Op. 25, they will all be given. None of the Narrative Songs will be included in this Series.

Four of the Songs will be found transposed: Nos. 12 and 16, because the publishers have already two editions of them in the original keys; and Nos. 19 and 29, because they lie beyond the range of voice generally practicable.

In adapting the original English words to those Songs, which Schumann set to translations, the music has been made the paramount consideration, and words have been altered to suit the musical text when necessary; thus Nos. 13 and 31 are called "Some one," and "No one," since the redundant syllable in Somebody and Nobody disfigures the musical phrase. Moreover, considerable alterations had to be made in the Songs of Burns, without reference to the declamation.

The present edition absolutely follows the text of the Composer, rejecting some supposed emendations which appear in several editions; a few slight changes in the distribution of syllables to notes have been made to accommodate the English text, and a very few evident oversights in the original editions have been amended with the sanction of Madame Schumann.

N. MACFARREN.

FIRST SERIES.

		Op. 24.
1.	{ When the morning breaks	Morgens steh' ich auf }		2 0
2.	{ Now hopes and fears	Es treibt mich hin }
3.	{ Where sunlight thro' branches	Ich wandelte unter den Bäumen }		1 6
4.	{ My darling, oh, list	Lieb' Liebchen, leg's Händchen }		2 6
5.	Fair abode of all my sorrows	Schöne Wiege meiner Leiden		2 6
6.	Stay thy oar, thou rugged boatman	Warte, Warte, wilder Schiffmann		2 6
7.	On the Rhine	Berg' und Burgen		2 6
8.	First I felt near broken-hearted	Anfangs wollt' ich fast verzagen }		2 6
9.	With myrtles and roses	Mit Myrthen und Rosen }
		Op. 25 "MYRTHE."
10.	Dedication	Widmung		2 0
11.	The free mind	Freisinn		1 6
12.	The walnut tree	Der Nussbaum		2 6
13.	Some one	Jemand		1 6
14.	{ To sit alone	Sitz ich allein }		2 0
15.	{ Bump not the flask	Setze mir nicht }
16.	The lotos flower	Die Lotosblume		1 6
17.	Talismans	Talismane		1 6
18.	Suleika's song	Lied der Suleika		2 0
19.	The Highland widow's lament	Die Hochländer Wittve		2 0
20.	{ Song of the bride	Lied der Braut }		2 0
21.	{ Chide me not	Lass mich ihm }
22.	My hearts in the Highlands	Hochländer's Abschied		2 0
23.	Hey baloo	Hochländisches Wiegenlied		1 6
24.	My soul is sad	Mein Herz ist schwer		2 6
25.	Enigma	Räthsel		2 0
26.	Row gently here	Leis' rudern heir		1 6
27.	When thro' the Piazzetta	Wenn durch die Piazzetta		1 6
28.	The captain's lady	Hauptmann's Weib		1 6
29.	Oh how can I be blithe	Weit, weit		2 0
30.	What would'st thou, lonely teardrop?	Was will die einsame Thräne?		1 6
31.	No one	Niemand		1 6
32.	{ Out over the Forth	Im Westen }		1 6
33.	{ Thou'rt like unto a flower	Du bist wie eine Blume }
34.	A message sweet as roses	Aus den östlichen Rosen		1 6
35.	{ Conclusion	Zum Schluss }		2 0
		Op. 27.
36.	{ The passage bird	Sag' an, o lieber Vogel mein }		1 6
37.	My love is like the red, red rose	Dem rothen Röslein gleicht mein Leib'		1 6
38.	The Jasmine	Jasminenstrauh		2 0
39.	When thy eye's starry beam	Nur ein lächelnder Blick
		Op. 30.
40.	The Rover	Der Knabe mit dem Wunderhorn		2 6
41.	The Hidalgo	Der Hidalgo		2 6

MUSIC FOR THE COMING SEASON.

Anthems, Hymns, and Carols.

Pent.

- A LLEN, G. B.—HAVE MERCY UPON ME, O GOD. Verse, Anthem for 4 voices, 1s.
- A TTWOOD, T.—ENTER NOT INTO JUDGMENT. Full, 4 voices, 6d. Small class copy, 1½d.
- TURN THY FACE FROM MY SINS. Treble Solo and Chorus. 6d. Small class copy, 1½d. Vocal parts of the above, 7½d.
- TURN THREE AGAIN. Full, 4 voices, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- B ARNEY, J.—MAKE ME A CLEAN HEART, O GOD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 1s.
- I BOW MY KNEE. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
- HAVE MERCY UPON ME. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- GRANT TO US, LORD, WE BESEECH THEE. Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 1½d.
- B ATTISHILL, J.—CALL TO REMEMBRANCE. Anthem for 7 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s. 3d.
- B AUMER, HENRY.—LORD, HOW ARE THEY INCREASED. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
- B ENEDICT, SIR JULIUS.—TRY ME, O GOD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- B EST, W. T.—BENEDICITE OMNIA OPERA, for Responsive Chorus, with a Free Organ Part. Score, 1s. 6d. Vocal score, 3d.
- B OLCK, OSCAR.—O LORD, HOW LONG WILT THOU FORGET ME? Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 1s.
- B ALKIN, J. BAPTISTE.—OUT OF THE DEEP HAVE I CRIED UNTO THEE. Verse B, with chorus. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
- O GOD, HAVE MERCY. Verse Anthem for Tenor Voice, with final Chorus for 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
- UNTO THEE WILL I CRY, O LORD. Verse Anthem for Tenor Voice and Chorus. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- THE SACRIFICES OF GOD ARE A BROKEN SPIRIT, and IF WE SAY WE HAVE NO SIN. Two Troits. Vocal score, 1s.
- C OLBORNE, LANGDON.—PONDER MY WORDS. s. Solo and Chorus, 6d. Class copy, 1½d.
- OUT OF THE DEEP. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- REND YOUR HEARTS. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- C OREE J.—PONDER MY WORDS, O LORD. Verse s.s. and Chorus, 1s.
- C OWARD, JAMES.—O LORD, CORRECT ME. Full, 4 voices. 6d.
- C RITCH, Dr.—COMFORT, O LORD, THE SOUL OF THY SERVANT. Extracted from the Anthem, "Be merciful," and newly arranged by Sir JOHN Goss. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- D IEMER, P. H.—HE WAS DESPISED AND REJECTED. Four voices, 6d.
- E LVEY, Sir G. J.—COME UNTO ME ALL YE THAT LABOUR. s. Solo with Chorus. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- FARRANT, R.—CALL TO REMEMBRANCE. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 7½d. Class copy, 1½d.
- F AURE, J.—SAVE, LORD, AND HEAR US (Ave Maria). Motett for Soprano or Tenor Solo, with Chorus. Vocal score, 2s.
- O SAVING VICTIM (O Salutaris). Motett for Soprano or Tenor Solo and Chorus. Vocal score, 2s.
- G ARRETT, Dr. G. M.—JUST JUDGE OF HEAVEN, Psalm 43. Contralto Solo and Chorus. 8vo., 1s.
- G OSS, Sir JOHN.—COME AND LET US RETURN UNTO THE LORD, Anthem, for 4 voices, with short Recitatives for Baritone voice. Vocal score, 2s. Ditto, 8vo., 3d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- HAVE MERCY UPON ME. 4 voices, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- HEAR, O LORD. Full, 4 voices, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- ALMIGHTY AND MERCIFUL GOD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- O SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD. Four voices. Vocal score, 1s. Ditto 8vo., 3d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- G OUNOD, CHARLES.—THE SEVEN WORDS OF OUR SAVIOUR ON THE CROSS (Filii Jerusalem. 8vo. size, 1s. DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM. Anthem for Lent. 8vo. size, in paper cover, 1s.
- O DAY OF PENITENCE.—Anthem, for 4 and 6 voices. Octavo, 8d.
- O COME NEAR TO THE CROSS. Anthem for 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 3s.; ditto, 8vo., 8d.; separate vocal parts, 1s.
- COME UNTO HIM. Full Anthem for 6 voices. Vocal score, folio 1s. 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; separate vocal parts, 9d.
- WORD OF GOD INCARNATE (Ave Verum), 5 voices. Vocal score, folio, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 7½d.
- WORD OF GOD INCARNATE (Ave Verum). Motett, inscribed to Mr. Henry Leslie. Vocal score, 1s. 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- ALL YE WHO WEEP. Full anthem for 6 voices. Vocal score, folio, 1s. 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 6d.
- AS THE HART PANTS (Sicut Cervus). Motett for s.a.t.b. Vocal score, folio, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 6d.
- This Motett may also be had in the same form for t.t.b.b.
- FROM THE DEEP HAVE I CALLED (De Profundis). 130th Psalm. For four Solo voices and Chorus. Vocal score, 4s. Vocal parts, 4s.
- G REENE, Dr.—LORD, LET ME KNOW MINE END. Verse s.s., with chorus, 1s. Vocal parts, 7½d. Class copy, 1½d.
- H OPKINS, E. J.—IN MY DISTRESS I CRIED UNTO THE LORD. Full, 4 voices, 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
- I RONS, HERBERT S.—SHEW THY SERVANT THE LIGHT OF THY COUNTENANCE. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- J ACKSON, W. (Masham).—COME AND LET US RETURN. s. Solo and Chorus. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
- J EKYLL, C. S.—SAVE ME, O GOD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- J. W. D. and S. N.—THE GREGORIAN CHANT FOR THE MISERERE. Arranged and harmonized by V. NOVELLO adapted to English Words. 8vo., 4d.
- L ESLIE, HENRY.—O HAVE MERCY UPON ME. Full, 4 Voices. Vocal Score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- M ACFARREN, G. A.—TWO-PART ANTHEMS for Small Choirs, equal voices.
- COME AND LET US RETURN. 8vo., 6d.
- I WILL LOOK UNTO THE LORD. 8vo., 6d.
- M ANN, R.—GRANT, WE BESEECH THEE. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- M ENDELSSOHN.—AS THE HART PANTS (1st Movement), 4 voices, 1s. 3d. Vocal parts, 6d. 8vo. Score, 3d.
- JUDGE ME, O GOD. For Double Choir. 8vo., 4d.
- LORD, ON OUR OFFENCES. 8vo., 1½d.
- FOR OUR OFFENCES. 8vo., 1½d.
- MY GOD, MY GOD. For Double Choir. 8vo., 6d.
- WHY RAGE FIERCELY THE HEATHEN. For Double Choir. 8vo., 6d.
- N ARES, Dr.—CALL TO REMEMBRANCE. Full, 5 voices. Vocal score, 1s.
- TURN US, O LORD. Anthem for four voices. 1s.
- TRY ME, O GOD. Full, 5 voices, 6d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
- O BERTHÜR, C.—GIVE EAR, O LORD (Ave Maria), Motett for 4 voices, with or without accompaniment. Vocal score, folio, 1s. Do. 8vo., 1½d.
- O USELEY.—HEAR MY CRY, O GOD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- REND YOUR HEARTS. Full, 4 voices. Vocal Score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- O SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD. Full Anthem for Double Choir, without accompaniment. Vocal score, 6d., Vocal parts, 6d.
- P ATTISON, T. MEE.—I DID CALL UPON THE LORD. Full, 4 voices, 8vo., 4d.
- S PARK, Dr. W.—O GOD, HAVE MERCY UPON ME. Full, 4 voices, 9d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- ALL WE LIKE SHEEP HAVE GONE ASTRAY. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 3d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- S POHR.—AS PANTS THE HART. s. Solo and 6 voices. Arranged from the Crucifixion by T. STIMPSON. 1s. 3d. Small class copy, 1½d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
- S TAINER, Dr. JOHN.—DELIVER ME, O LORD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- S TEGGALL, Dr. C.—HAVE MERCY UPON ME. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- I WILL CRY UNTO GOD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Ditto, 8vo., 3d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- TURN THY FACE FROM MY SINS. Verse. vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- T OURS, B.—IN THEE, O LORD, HAVE I PUT MY TRUST. 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Ditto, 8vo., 3d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- GOD BE MERCIFUL. Full, 8 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s. 6d.
- O SAVING VICTIM. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 7½d.
- T URLE, JAS.—ARISE AND HELP US. Arranged from MARCELLO. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- W ALMISLEY, T. A.—PONDER MY WORDS, O LORD. Verse, s.s., with Chorus for Treble voices, 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
- W ELDON, JOHN.—HEAR MY CRYING. Anthem for 6 voices, 1s. 3d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- W ESLEY, Dr. S. S.—CAST ME NOT AWAY FROM THY PRESENCE. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 9d.
- LET US LIFT UP OUR HEART. Vocal score, 4s. Vocal parts, 2s. 6d.
- O GOD, WHOSE NATURE AND PROPERTY. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
- W HITEFELD, Dr. J. C.—ENTER NOT INTO JUDGMENT. Full, 4 voices, 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- W INTER.—HEAR MY PRAYER, O LORD. Full, 4 voices, 6d. Class copy, 1½d.
- W ISE, M.—THE WAYS OF ZION DO MOURN. Verse, s.b. and Chorus. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 1s. 3d.

POPULAR SONGS,

PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CH. GOUNOD.

	Compass.	s.	d.
There is a green hill far away, in F. Sung by Mdme. Patey -	F to F	4	0
Ditto, in E. Sung by Mr. Santley-	E „ E	4	0
The Daisy -	- „ F	4	0
Beware (I know a maiden) -	- C „ E	4	0
Sweet Baby, sleep (Lullaby) -	- E „ D	4	0
Queen of love -	- E „ E	4	0
Evening Song (The shadows of the evening hours), with obbli- gato accomp. for Viola -	- D „ G	4	0
La Marguerite -	- E „ F	4	0
Perchè piangi? -	- D „ F	4	0
La Fauvette (dedicated to Sig. Gardoni) -	- F „ G	4	0
Quanti mai! (dedicated to and sung by Mdme. Comcau) -	- B „ G	4	0
Si vous n'ouvrez votre fenêtre (dedicated to M. Faure) -	- C „ D	4	0
May day (Le Premier jour de Mai) -	- A „ F	2	6
Hunting song (Le Lever) -	- E „ E	2	6
Dawn music (Aubade) -	- F „ F	3	0
Autumn (Chant d'Automne) -	- E „ F	2	6
O my proud one (O ma belle rebelle) -	- F „ F	3	0
Venice (Venise) -	- F „ G	3	0

EDWARD HECHT.

An old song. Sung by Mr. Santley	C „ F	3	0
A Farewell. Sung by Miss Palmer	E „ F	3	0
A lily thou wast. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves	- „ A	3	0
Eleânore -	- F „ G	3	0
The Fountain. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves -	- F „ A	3	0
Give. Sung by Madlle. Titien -	- F „ G	3	0
The Lord is my Shepherd. Sung by Miss Palmer -	- E „ F	3	0

MENDELSSOHN.*See other List.A. RANDEGGER.

The Meadow Gate -	- D „ F	2	0
Where wilt thou meet me? -	- E „ A	3	0
Come hither, Shepherd Swain -	- C „ F	3	0
Guarda O Cara (Waltz) -	- E „ A	2	0

A. RUBINSTEIN.

The Minstrel -	- C „ E	2	0
Thou'rt like unto a flower -	- E „ F	2	0
Morning Song -	- E „ G	2	0
Evening Song -	- C „ F	2	6
Song from "Egmont" -	- F „ F	1	6
Spring Song -	- D „ F	1	6
The Mountain Crag -	- C „ F	2	0

R. SCHUMANN.*See page 28.J. STAINER.

	Compass.	s.	d.
Unbeloved -	- Bass	F to D	3 0
Jilted -	- Bass or Baritone	B „ E	3 0
Loyal death -	- do.	G „ D	3 6
Insufficiency -	- Tenor	D „ G	3 0
My Little Pet, Soprano or Tenor	-	D „ F	4 0
Slumber Song -	-	-	3 0

H. SMART.

Vineta -	- Contralto	B „ E	3 0
Near thee, still near thee -	-	B „ E	3 0
Dropping down the troubled river	-	E „ E	3 0
The full moon is beaming (Bride of Dunkerron) -	- Tenor	F „ A	2 0
Our home shall be on this bright isle. Soprano in A ditto	-	E „ A	3 0
Ditto ditto in F, ditto	-	C „ F	3 0
The sea rules all -	-	C „ F	3 0

ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN.

Where the Bee sucks (Tempest) in D flat -	-	E „ B	3 0
Ditto, ditto, in B flat	-	C „ G	3 0

E. A. SYDENHAM.

Oh! my heart (Herz mein Herz)	E „ A	2	6
Eldorado -	- F „ F	3	0
The Knight of old -	- F „ F	3	0

BERTHOLD TOURS.

A wish -	- D „ F	2	0
How shall I picture thee -	- E „ E	3	0
Oh! say not woman's love is bought -	- E „ F	2	6
O Mother dear, good night. Sung by Mdme. Patey -	- C „ F	2	6
Stars of the Summer Night (ded. to Mr. Sims Reeves) -	- E „ F	3	0
Tears of childhood. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne -	- D „ G	3	0
The sea hath its pearls -	- D „ G	3	0
To Blossoms -	- B „ E	3	0

AGNES ZIMMERMANN.

After War -	- C „ D	2	6
Crocus gathering -	- C „ E	2	6
My heart is sair -	- D „ F	2	6
Sweetly glows the early morn -	- B „ E	2	6
The Ringlet:—No. 1, Your ringlets	- C „ E	2	6
„ No. 2, O ringlet -	- D „ D	2	6
The Stars are with the Voyager -	- C „ E	2	6
Blow, Winter wind -	- B „ E	2	6
Oh, that we two were Maying -	- B „ E	2	6
The Exile -	- D „ E	2	6
Love, I may not tarry here -	- E „ E	2	6

VOCAL DUETS.

PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER, AND CO.

FRANZ ABT.

	s.	d.
Six Two-Part Songs complete ...	7	6
Or singly:
No. 1, Sabbath Repose ...	1	6
" 2, Like the Lark ...	1	6
" 3, The Wanderer's Joy ...	1	6
" 4, Whither ...	2	0
" 5, A Wish for the Mountains ...	2	0
" 6, Boatman's Song ...	2	0

J. BARNBY.

O flower of the verdant lea, "Rebekah" ...	S. & T.	4	0
--	---------	---	---

BEETHOVEN.

What holy calm ...	S.S.	2	0
Faultless, yet hated, "Ruins of Athens" ...	S. & B.	2	0
I love the Lord "Engedi" ...	S. & T.	2	0

CHERUBINI.

Shady Forests (Solitario bosco ambroso) ...	2 S. or 2 T.	1	6
Balmy Breezes (La Mia fille) ...	ditto	1	6
Happy hours (Dite almeno) ...	ditto	1	6
Foam and flow (Ahi ch'èil suon) ...	ditto	1	6
The four duets complete ...		5	0

J. DESSAUER.

With ruddy beam ...	S. & C.	2	6
Hearts no space can sever ...	S. & C.	2	6

CH. GOUNOD.

La Siesta (Spanish words) ...	S.S.	4	0
-------------------------------	------	---	---

MENDELSSOHN

Thirteen Two-part Songs. Complete in One Volume
Folio Edition ...	net	5	0
Ditto Octavo Edition ...		2	0

Or singly.

	s.	d.
No. 1, I would that my love ...	2	0
" 2, The passage bird ...	2	0
" 3, Greeting ...	2	0
" 4, Autumn song ...	2	0
" 5, O wert thou in the cauld blast ...	2	0
" 6, The May bells and the flowers ...	2	0
" 7, My bark is bounding ...	2	0
" 8, Can I light-hearted be? ...	2	0
" 9, Evening song ...	2	0
" 10, Zuleika and Hassan ...	2	0
" 11, The Sabbath morn ...	2	0
" 12, The harvest field ...	2	0
" 13, Song from Ruy Blas ...	2	0

waited for the Lord, "Hymn of Praise" ...	S.S.	2	6
Ever blessed child, "Athalie" ...	S.S.	2	0
Now we are Ambassadors, "St. Paul" ...	T.B.	2	0
For so hath the Lord ditto ...	T.B.	2	0
Zion spreadeth her hands, "Elijah" ...	S.S.	2	0
In his hands, "95th Psalm" ...	S.S.	2	0
My song shall be always, "Hymn of Praise" ...	S.T.	2	0

MOORE AND BALFE.

Believe me, if all those ...	S.S.	0	6
Avenging and bright ...	S. & C.	0	6
Eveleen's bower ...	S. & T.	0	6
Go where glory waits thee ...	S. & T.	0	6
Has sorrow thy young days shaded ...	S. & T.	0	6
Meeting of the waters ...	S. & T.	0	6
Nay, tell me not, dear ...	S. & C.	0	6
Oh! breathe not his name ...	S. & T.	0	6
Oh! blame not the bard ...	S. & T.	0	6
Oh! 'tis sweet to think ...	S. & C.	0	6
Oh! doubt me not ...	S. & T.	0	6
Oh! where's the slave ...	S. & C.	0	6
Silent, O Moyle ...	S. & T.	0	6
The last rose of summer ...	S. & T.	0	6
The young May moon ...	S. & C.	0	6
'Tis gone and for ever ...	S. & T.	0	6
What the bee is to the flow'ret ...	S. & T.	0	6
When thro' life unblest we rove ...	S. & C.	0	6

WM. JACKSON.

The earth smiles greenly, "The Year" ...	M. S. & T.	2	0
--	------------	---	---

G. LUCANTONI.

La Dichiarazione (The declaration) ...	S. & T.	4	0
Ritorno a'campi (The return home) ...	S. & C.	4	0

B. MOLIQUE.

It is of the Lord's great mercies, "Abraham" ...	S. & B.	2	0
Cast out this bondwoman ditto ...	C. & B.	3	0

G. A. MACFARREN.

The fall of the leaf ...	S. & C.	3	0
O sweet summer morning, "She stoops to conquer" ...	S. & M. S.	3	0

				S. & M. S.	3	0
Oh, it is sweet	ditto	M. S. & T.	2	6
Ditto	ditto	S. & C.	2	6
I say Madam	ditto	S. & T.	3	6
By the soft lustre	ditto	T. & B.	4	0
To guess at this distance	ditto	S. & T.	3	6
To win a proud and wealthy bride	ditto	S. & T.	3	0
Beam stars in yonder heaven	ditto	S. & T.	2	6
Ditto	ditto	...	ditto	S. & C.	2	6
There's a wondrous magic potion,	"Jessie Lea"			C. & T.	4	0
Silly youth, you sadly tease me	ditto	S. & T.	3	6
Money, money	ditto	T. & B.	4	0
You wicked Gipsev girl...	ditto	S. & C.	4	0

MOZART.

Save me, O God, "Davidde Penitente" ...	S.S.	1	6
---	------	---	---

S. PERCIVAL.

Thee the voice the dance obey, "The Lyre" ...	S.S.	3	0
---	------	---	---

ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

The Angel ...		3	0
Birdie ...		2	6
Wanderer's night song ...		2	6

CAMILLE SAINT-SÆNS.

Now eve upon the hill descendeth ("Le soir descend sur colline,")	Barcarolle, composed expressly for Madame Viardot Garcia and Signor Gardoni ...	4	0
---	---	---	---

SCHUMANN.

Four Two-Part Songs complete ...		5	0
No. 1, Were I a bird, my love ...		2	0
" 2, The fall of the leaf ...		3	0
" 3, The queenly flower ...		3	0
" 4, Constancy ...		2	0
Gard'ner, thy tree am I ...	C. & B.	2	6

FERD. SIEBER.

Spring of love ...	C. & B.	3	0
--------------------	---------	---	---

HENRY SMART.

There was joy in heaven	3	0
The Lord is my shepherd	3	0
When brighter suns and milder skies	3	0
Faint not, fear not, God is near thee	3	0
The Sabbath bell	3	0
When the weary are at rest	3	0
Here may we dwell, "Bride of Dunkerron"
		in D flat.	S. & T.	2	0
Ditto	ditto	in B flat.	S. & T.	2	0
Hark! those spirit voices,	ditto	in D flat.	S. & T.	5	0
Ditto	ditto	in B flat.	...	5	0

SPOHR.

The rainbow ...	S. & T.	3	0
Children, pray this love to cherish ...	A. & T.	2	0
Oh Lord, remember, "Last Judgment" ...	S. & T.	2	0
Forsake me not, ditto ...	S. & T.	2	0
Judah still the chosen nation, "Fall of Babylon" ...	S. & T.	2	0
The portals of this holy, "Jessonda" ...	S. & B.	2	6
Now for him I loved, ditto ...	S.S.	2	0
Do not shun me, ditto ...	S. & T.	2	6

ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN.

Honour, riches, marriage blessing, "Tempest" ...	S.S.	2	6
--	------	---	---

CHAPPELL & CO.

Have now on View the largest Stock in London of PIANOFORTES by all the great Makers, of ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, greatly improved, and of ORGAN HARMONIUMS. Any of these Instruments can be Hired for Three Years, and, provided each Quarterly Instalment shall have been regularly paid in advance, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer at the expiration of the third year.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SIX-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM.

SOLID OAK CASE, FIVE OCTAVES, AND TWO FOOT-BOARDS.

The ever-increasing musical culture of all classes of society has established so large a demand for free reed instruments that many makers have sprung up who offer articles of such inferior and nasal quality of tone that the title of Harmonium suggests to many lovers of music the nearest approach to an instrument of torture that can be met with in the present age.

In the Instruments now offered to the public the tone will be found divested of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable. This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the tone rich and organ-like.

Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.

The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect, and without extra cost.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET.

NEW WORK FOR SINGING CLASSES. CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS.

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass.

The present collection of Part-Songs is entirely new, being selected and adapted from the most striking and popular Choruses in the Favourite Foreign Operas. The Arrangement is purely Vocal, such Choruses only being chosen as can be sung without the aid of an Instrumental Accompaniment. The Words have been expressly written for the work, and the harmonies arranged in four parts, as likely to be most useful in small classes.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Hymn of the Fisherman's Children | Adapted to a Melody from Herold's "ZAMPA." |
| 2. Fays and Elves (In mia fe) | From Flotow's "MARTA." |
| 3. Spring's Bright Glances (In Elvezia non v'ha) | From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA." |
| 4. From Yonder Vale and Hill (D'immenso giubilo) | From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR." |
| 5. Here we Rest (Qui la selva) | From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA." |
| 6. Onward to Battle (Squilli echegge) | From Verdi's "TROVATORE." |
| 7. Rataplan (Rataplan) | From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO." |
| 8. The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche) | From Verdi's "IL TROVATORE." |
| 9. War Song of the Druids (Dell' aura tua profetica) | From Bellini's "NORMA." |
| 10. In Mercy, hear us! (Cielo clemente) | From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO." |
| 11. Come to the Fair! (Accorrete, giovinette) | From Flotow's "MARTA." |
| 12. Friendship (Per le d'immenso giubilo) | From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR." |
| 13. Away, the Morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen). | From Auber's "MASANIELLO." |
| 14. Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus). | From Gounod's "FAUST." |
| 15. The soft Winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus) | From Weber's "PRECIOSA." |
| 16. See how lightly on the blue sea (Senti la danza invitaci) | From Donizetti's "LUCREZIA BORGIA." |
| 17. See the Moonlight Beam (Non fav Molto) | |
| 18. On yonder rocks reclining | From Auber's "FRA DIAVOLO." |
| 19. Happy and light | From Balfe's "BOHEMIAN GIRL." |
| 20. Come, come away (Ah! que de moins) | From Donizetti's "LA FAVORITA." |
| 21. Hymn's torch (Il destin) | From Meyerbeer's "LES HUGUENOTS." |
| 22. Come on, Comrade (The celebrated Chorus of Old Men) | From Gounod's "FAUST." |
| 23. 'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Chorale of the Cross) | |
| 24. O Balmly night (Com è gentil) | From Donizetti's "DON PASQUALE." |

Postage free, 1½d. each; or 3 for 3½d.

(To be continued.)

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.

Original VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM.

Composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs, by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post free, 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written."

HANDEL'S CHORUSES

Arranged for the Organ, with PEDAL OBLIGATO, EXPRESSLY for the use of AMATEURS, by

DR. RIMBAULT. Price 3s. each. Nos. 1 to 12 are now ready:—

- | | | |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| Nos. 1. ZADOCK THE PRIEST. | Nos. 5. SING UNTO GOD. | Nos. 9. FOR UNTO US A CHILD IS BORN. |
| 2. FROM THE CENSER. | 6. HALLELUJAH. | 10. HE TRUSTED IN GOD. |
| 3. WE NEVER WILL BOW DOWN. | 7. LIFT UP YOUR HEADS. | 11. BUT THE WATERS OVERWHELMED |
| 4. HE GAVE THEM HAILSTONES. | 8. LET US BREAK THEIR BONDS | ... THEM. |
| | ASUNDER. | 12. THE HORSE AND HIS RIDER. |

(To be continued.)

The present publication has been undertaken with a view to supply a musical want long felt by amateurs and lovers of the organ, i.e., an edition of HANDEL'S CELEBRATED CHORUSES arranged for the organ with pedal obligato, that shall be effective, combining all the salient parts of the score, and yet at the same time be within the reach of those performers who have not made the instrument their entire study. We have, it is true, many arrangements; some for "Organ or Pianoforte," others by our most eminent organists. The first belong to a past age; the second, in all cases, are only fit for professional performers, and require an amount of skill for their proper execution rarely attained by amateurs. In the present edition, the notation has been carefully studied so as to simplify the reading, whilst the pedals, in all cases of difficulty, have the assistance of the left hand of the performer. Many other points have been considered so as to render the arrangement fitted to the object it has in view—to supply an edition of HANDEL'S CHORUSES for the Organ expressly for the amateurs.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street (W), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster-row.
And by J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway, New York.—Saturday, March 1, 1873.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

And Singing-Class Circular,

Published on the 1st of every Month.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped, those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c., can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 362.—Vol. 16.

Registered for transmission abroad.

APRIL 1, 1873.

Price 2d.; Post-free, 2½d.

Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 2s. 6d.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

PASSION WEEK

PERFORMANCES OF

SACRED MUSIC.

BACH'S PASSION (ST. MATTHEW)

WILL BE PERFORMED ON MONDAY, APRIL 7,

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9,

TUESDAY, APRIL 8,

THURSDAY, APRIL 10,

AND

HANDEL'S MESSIAH

ON

SATURDAY, APRIL 12.

MDE. ALVSLEBEN, MDE. LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON,
MADAME PATEY, MISS DONES,
MR. CUMMINGS, MR. EDWARD LLOYD,
MR. SIMS REEVES,
MR. THURLEY BEALE, AND SIGNOR FOLI.

THE CHORUS WILL CONSIST OF THE MEMBERS OF THE
ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY,
AND THE ORCHESTRA WILL BE COMPOSED OF ABOUT 100 INSTRUMENTALISTS, MAKING IN ALL
1200 PERFORMERS.

At the Pianoforte, MR. RANDEGGER.

CONDUCTOR MR. BARNBY.

In order that the performance of the Passion may take place as far as possible under the conditions intended by its Composer, the Audience will be invited to rise and join in the Chorales. Books of the Words, containing the Melodies of the Chorales, will be supplied for this purpose, price twopence.

Doors open at Seven, commence at Eight o'clock.

Prices of Admission to each Performance—Boxes (Grand Tier), £2 5s.; Loggia (to hold 8 persons), £1 15s.; Boxes (Upper Tier), £1 1s.; Amphitheatre Stalls, 5s.; Arena Stalls, 4s.; Balcony, 3s.

ADMISSION ONE SHILLING.

Tickets may be had of NOVELLO, EWER AND Co., 1, Berners-street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.); the usual Agents; and at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS GRACE ARMYTAGE (Primo Soprano),
2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MISS BLANCHE REIVES (Principal Soprano only).
Oratorios, Opera, Concerts, &c. 28, Queen's-road, Norland-square, W.,
and 106, Renfrew-street, Glasgow.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano),
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS JENNY TWIGG (Soprano).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 41, Hampton Villas, Clough-road, Sheffield.

MISS AGNES LARKCOM (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 14, Bedford-street, Reading.

MRS. J. W. JACKSON (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address 56, Lee-crescent, Birmingham.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE (Soprano),
2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, W.

MISS CLELLAND (Soprano),
And MISS CLELLAND (Contralto),
Will sing at Whitehaven, on the 15th April. For Engagements en route address 51, Elizabeth-street, Cheetham-hill, Manchester.

MISS GRACE EATON (Soprano),
Is prepared to accept Engagements for Concerts, Readings, &c. Terms arranged. Address 10, Hobury-street, King's-road, S.W.

MISS GLEDHILL (Contralto).
Concerts and Pupils. 51, Devonshire-road, N.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),
50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MISS RUTH HARLOW (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, etc.
Address Lark-hill, Tongue, Middleton.

MR. EDWARD DEVON (Primo Tenor), the principal Italian Theatres, and of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts.
"Mr. Devon well deserved the encore he obtained."—Standard, 16th
September, 1872.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 16, Hanover-street, Regent-street.

MR. ALBERT JAMES (Tenor).
Address Tenby-villa, Horton-road, Dalston, E.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
Address 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 1, St. George's-terrace, Kilburn.

MR. N. DUMVILLE (Principal Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. REDFERN HOLLINS (Tenor).
Address 26, St. Stephen's-road, Shepherd's Bush, London.

MR. SIM. WARD (Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts. Address No. 1, Claremont-terrace,
Bradford, Yorkshire.

HENRY C. SANDERS (Baritone),
(Of S. Andrew's, Well-street) 2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Basso).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; also for Oxford Glee Party.
Address Principal Bass, Ch. Ch. Cathedral, Oxford.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),
Sunnybank, Hazleville-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
(Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts), for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address 2, Hallfield-place, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. H. WATSON (Solo Pianist and Accompanist).
For terms, &c., address 25, Market-place, Manchester.

MR. J. TILLEARD,
Removed to Seaton-villa, Slaithwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder,
29, Minories, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds,
Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories,
London. List for stamp.

WARD'S

ROYAL PIANOFORTE AND HARMONIUM
LAMP AND CANDELABRA,

FOR PROVIDING A CENTRAL AND DIRECT LIGHT
FOR THE PERFORMER.

The inconvenience of the present mode of lighting a performer, at a pianoforte or harmonium, by means of sconces fitted at the extremities of the instrument, has long been a subject of complaint. The requirement is, a central light to fall direct upon the music book. This can be obtained by using Thomas Ward's Royal Pianoforte Lamp and Candelabra, which can be fitted to any form of instrument, without defacing the same. It consists of an elegant bronze stem, which fits securely into a brass groove fixed to the centre of the back of the instrument; or to the wrist-board of a grand piano; the stem can be removed at pleasure. From the stem proceeds a branch, which crosses the top of the piano, enabling the instrument to be opened freely; one end of the branch supports a lamp or candelabra, and thus brings the light directly over the music book. The other end of the branch is fitted with a joint, by means of which the light can be raised and moved to the right or left to suit the performer. Vocalists also will thus find a convenience which does not exist in other modes of lighting.

Prospectuses Post Free.

Price of Lamp, £2 2s.; Candelabra, £1 1s.

Agents—Messrs. Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and J. Williams, 23, Berners-street, Oxford-street.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous.

London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUB-LISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ-Accordions.
Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free.
J. Russell, 158, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

The King of all Reed Instruments yet invented.

W. HATTERSLEY AND CO.'S Celebrated Improved
HARMONIUMS, for quality of tone, rapidity of touch, workmanship, improved action, &c., stand unequalled. These charming instruments have been compared side by side with the American organs, and pronounced superior at half the price.

DRAWING ROOM MODEL,

Full Organ Tone, with knee swell to Treble and Bass, all stops effective.

9 Stops, Walnut case, 17 guineas.

12 " Burr " 26 "

13 " " " 26 "

New designs and new testimonials now ready.

W. Hattersley and Co., 10 and 12, Bow-street, Sheffield.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 7th ed.,
6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE
BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices at J. Moore's, Buxton-road, Huddersfield. Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

KELLY'S ORGAN HARMONIUMS, as manufactured for Her Majesty, are the only instruments of English manufacture that received any award at the Paris and Dublin Exhibition. A liberal allowance to the clergy.—11, Charles-street, Bernersstreet. Price lists post free.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard,
and other makers, always in stock; also PARISIAN PIANOFORTES,
at prices suitable to the trade, for cash only.

KNAGGS & BISHOP, Pianoforte Manufacturers.
First-class Instruments to all parts on the most advantageous terms. Illustrated Lists free. For further particulars, apply at the Manufactory and Show Rooms, Belmont Yard, 72, Belmont-street, Chalk Farm-road.

ORGAN METAL; best quality; zinc front pipes;
voicing and tuning.—S. Fowler, 127, Pentonville-road, N.

ORGAN for SALE, CC to F, by Gray, equal to new, containing 2 rows of keys, 12 stops, and a separate pedal organ of 2½ octaves of bourdons, in handsome solid oak case, with gilt front speaking pipe. Height 12 ft. 6 in., width 6 ft. 3 in., depth 6 ft. Price 130 guineas. Address Mr. Browne, 5, Cottage-row, Deal, Kent.

ORGAN for SALE, new.—Compass CC to G. Great organ seven stops, swell organ four stops, separate bourdon pedal organ, CCC to F, 30 notes; three composition pedals, enclosed in a handsome walnut wood case, with gilt front pipes. To be seen at
A. Hunter's Organ Factory, 379, Kennington-road.

TO ORGAN BUILDERS and others.—Send for Price Lists of ORGAN METAL PIPES to Lloyd and Dudgeon, Union-road, Nottingham. Not to be surpassed for price or quality.

A SMALL ORGAN for SALE. 6 stops. For particulars, apply at 180, Stamford-street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

ORGAN for SALE.—Chamber, cheap, containing five stops, open diapason, stop bass, clarabella, dulciana, and principal pedals, hand and foot blower. For particulars apply to E. B., 7, Brunel-street, Kennington-lane, London, S.E.

THE ORGAN by Hill, now standing in the south transept of St. Paul's Cathedral (having 4 complete manuals, and a 32 ft. pedal organ), being no longer required for use, owing to the re-arrangement of the Choir, and the re-construction of the original Organ, is offered for SALE. Apply to F. C. Penrose, Esq., 68, St. Paul's Churchyard.

CHURCH ORGAN.—FOR SALE, a powerful FINGER ORGAN, compass CC to F, containing open diapason, stopped diapason, principal, and fifteenth, German pedals, oak case, gilt front pipes. May be seen at Roydon Church, near Diss. Disposed of to make room for a larger new one. For particulars, apply to Wm. Norman and Son, Organ Builders, Denmark-street, Diss.

SMALL CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE.—1½ octaves, pedals, handsome case. Only £16. Edwards, Chesham, Bucks.

ORGANS.—Stock Selling off. 100 Guinea Organs at £50 to £60. Hammond and Sons, 366, Old Kent-road.

FOR SALE, cheap, a small Second-hand ORGAN, 5 stops, 2 octaves, pedals, hand and foot blower. Enclosed for heat, mahogany case, and in good repair. Apply to R. Foster, 184, Kennington-road, London, S.E.

ORGAN for SALE.—Fine tone, CC to F, 5½ notes. 1. Open diapason, Tenor C; 2. Stopped diapason, Bass; 3. Clarinet flute Treble CC; 4. Principal CC; foot and hand bellows; spotted metal speaking front; stained pure case (Scudamore style); height 11 ft.; width 5 ft.; depth 2 ft. 6 in. Instrument nearly new; cost £90. May be seen at the Museum, 23, Maddox-street, W., between 9 and 6 o'clock, and offers to be sent to Mr. Gray, 206, Great Portland-street, W.

AMERICAN ORGAN for SALE.—One of Breavington and Sons' 65 guinea Silver Reed Organs, 9 stops and swell pedal. Splendid quality of tone and superior finish, in handsome Italian walnut case, extra finished, ivory keys; to be sold a bargain. Apply to G. T., 23, Brunswick-street, Poplar, E.

ORGAN HARMONIUM, £20 and £22. Fine tone, 2½ rows of reeds, bourdon on full compass, German pedals, with coupler to keys, foot and side blower. Manufactured for pedal practice by W. J. Robertson, 107, Tottenham-road, Kingsland, London, N. Lists free, with extracts of letters from Organists.

WANTED, a Set of PIANO PEDALS, second hand, in good condition. Address at once, stating price, to H. R., 2, Oakden-street, Kennington-road, Lambeth.

THE PATENT LOOPED-BINDER PORTFOLIO.

The Best and Simplest ever Invented.

By using it you can bind your Music or Periodicals yourself quite easily.

When open it lies perfectly flat—a great advantage, especially for Music, for which it is particularly adapted, as any piece may be removed and another placed instead. Is also cheaper than ordinary bookbinding.

Music Sizes.

Full Music, 15 by 11	3	0
Ditto, 4 bound extra	4	0
MSS. Music, 12½ by 10	2	6
Musical Times, 11 by 7½	1	6

Periodical sizes on application.

The Wire Binders necessary for above are 4d., 5d., and 6d. per Box, containing One Gross, or with Gum Tickets, ½ gross loose, 6d.; 1 gross mounted, 1s. They make a very secure Binder even without the Folio.

Sole Maker, Thomas Edmondson, 11, Dame-street, Dublin. May be ordered through any stationer or music-seller; or from F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster-row; C. Jeffries, 57, Berners-street, London; John Heath, George-street, Parade, Birmingham.

SHEET MUSIC BINDERS.—Thick's new Leather Music Binders, suitable for Pamphlets, Periodicals, MSS., &c., in boxes containing six, price 2s. 6d. William Shaw, 95, Gaisford-street, Kentish Town-road, London, N.W.

ONE GUINEA'S WORTH OF MUSIC for 2s. 6d., slightly soiled, including the surplus of the past year's issue. Post free, 2s. 10d. JAMES SMITH & SON, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

10s. WORTH OF MUSIC for One Shilling. Post free for fifteen stamps. Each Shilling Lot contains pieces quite new. R. Mellor, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield.

SELLING OFF.—PIANOS and HARMONIUMS, by all the best Makers, at reduced prices, for alteration of premises, at R. Mellor's, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield.

10s. worth of Music for 1s., post free for 15 stamps.

QUARTERLY SALE OF UNREDEEMED MUSICAL PROPERTY. 100 Pianofortes, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Kirkman, Wornum. Double-action Harps, by Erard; Harmoniums, by Alexandre, Debain, &c. 150 Violins, Violoncellos, Bows, valuable Concertinas, Flutes, Cornopeans, 3,000 pieces of new Music and Music Stools, &c. &c., forming the remaining stock of a Music Seller. MR. CHARLES KELLY will SELL by AUCTION, at 11, Charles-street, Berners-street, on Wednesday, April 16th, at 1 o'clock, the property as described above, comprising many valuable 7-octave Grand Pianofortes, by Broadwood, Collard, and Erard, in elegant walnut and rosewood cases, and 100 Cottage and Semi-Cottage Pianofortes, by all the leading manufacturers. Sold principally without reserve, being Unredeemed Pledges from the principal Pawnbrokers and stock of a Music Seller. May be viewed, and Catalogues had the day prior and morning of sale.

TO PIANOFORTE MAKERS and MUSIC SELLERS.—WANTED to BUY, a good TUNING CONNECTION, situation no object, by a first-class Tuner. Address A. D., 42, Milton-street, Dorset-square, N.W.

TRY LITHOGRAPHIC COPYING for PREPARING MUSIC. Organists, Societies, and Composers will find this excellent system cheaper than engraving. Specimen. F. Wood, 32, Vincent-square, Westminster.

SURPLICES.—SIX MEN'S, for SALE, a Bargain, for cash. Apply to Mr. Sydney, 10, Ponsonby-terrace, Vauxhall-bridge-road, Pimlico.

TO ORGANISTS.—PRACTICE may be had on a very fine ORGAN. Two manuals, swell, variety of stops, 2½ of pedals, and bourdon to CCC. Terms very moderate. Address E. Francis, Organist of St. Peter's (W.C.), 183, Upper-street, Islington, N.

ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, HARMONY, &c. One Guinea per quarter; Lessons and Practice on fine modern instruments. Organist, 51, Fenchurch-street, E.C.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, Strand.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—(HILL and SON)—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with two manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and practice on other Instruments also.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.), begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts, may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Sixth Season). Mr. H. ASHTON. Mr. T. PEARSON. Mr. J. F. MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN.

Assisted by Madame ASHTON. (Miss F. Danielson.)

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c., address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

ORPHEUS ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.—Conductor, Mr. George Ashmead. First Concert at Myddelton Hall, Friday, May 9 h. Vocalists, Miss Agnes Drummond and Mr. Dudley Thomas. The Society meets for practice every Saturday evening at Wellington Hall, Upper-street, Islington. Vacancies for a few good String Players; wind parts complete. Further information of Mr. Tremear, Hon. Sec., 25, St. Peter-street, Islington.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS.—The Organist of a fashionable Church in the N.W. district has a VACANCY for a PUPIL. Free use of a good Organ. Terms moderate. Address X. Y., Post Office, Boundary-road, St. John's-wood.

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—Mr. R. Taylor, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

CHOIR BOYS for CATHEDRALS and Collegiate Churches PREPARED in London for EXAMINATION. Address Z., Mus. Bac., Oxon., 1, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.

BOARDERS WANTED TO EDUCATE.

LATIN, MUSIC, DRAWING; no extras; important pecuniary advantages. Musical boys, ages 8 and 9, preferred. Terms, 15 guineas upwards. Master, Choristers' School, St. John's College, Cambridge.

PASCALL'S VOICE JUBUBES.

Strongly recommended to Singers and Public Speakers. Agreeable and effective. In boxes only, Sixpence and One Shilling each, or post free for eight and fourteen stamps. None genuine without the name and address on each box.—Jas. Pascall, 21, Wells-street, Oxford-street, London, W.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 2s. 6d. paper covers; 3s. 9d. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS,

SINGLE AND DOUBLE,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with special reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry. New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 258 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

" 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

" 3. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

" 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 2s. 6d.

Congregations or Associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and music-sellers.

NOW READY,
A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS and ANTHEMS, arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford. Very neat and compact, 218 pp. Imperial 32mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in ... 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered ... 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered ... 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co. Bradford: Thomas Brear.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK and PSALMS and CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Eighth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book; also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON, and for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.; cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Fifth Edition revised and enlarged, price 7s.

PARR'S CHURCH OF ENGLAND PSALMODY, 381 Tunes in 100 metres; 289 Chants; with various Responses, &c.—free from modern alterations and corruptions; and Memoirs of all the Composers, giving an amount of authentic information as to Psalmody nowhere else to be found.

London: W. Macintosh, 24, Paternoster-row.

NEW EDITION OF HULLAH'S GRAMMAR OF HARMONY.

Now ready, in medium 8vo., price 3s. sewed.

A GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. By A JOHN HULLAH, Professor of Vocal Music in King's College, Queen's College, and Bedford College, London, and Organist of Charterhouse. New Edition, revised and re-constructed in 1872.

COURSE of EXERCISES to ACCOMPANY the GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. By JOHN HULLAH. New Edition, revised and re-constructed in 1872. Medium 8vo., price 1s. sewed.

London: Longmans, Green and Co., Paternoster-row.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES and ROUNDS; or Musical Precept and Example, combined in Easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J. POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c.

London: Novello, Ewer, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,

FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS AND SCHOOLMASTERS.

By RICHARD MANN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWENTIETH EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Now ready, in Three Books, 6s. each. Post-free for Half-price.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

Specially adapted for Colleges, Public Schools, Singing Classes, &c.

Book 1 (Duets); Books 2 and 3 (Trios).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Third edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

"FROM INTERVALS TO COUNTERPOINT."

SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and all Music-sellers.

Just published, price 6d., the sixth edition, much improved, of

THE SEQUENTIAL SYSTEM OF MUSICAL NOTATION, by WILLIAM A. B. LUNN.

"Of the correctness of his principle there cannot be a doubt."—Times.

"Extremely simple, comprehensive, and ingenious."—Liverpool Chronicle. London: E. W. Allen, 11, Ave Maria-lane

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS, now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.

No. 1. The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.

No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katherine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra. Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.

W. H. BIRCH'S EASTER MUSIC.

Anthem, "If ye then be risen with Christ," price 6d.

Anthem, by JOSEPH KEE, "Now is Christ risen," price 6d.

Anthem, "Ponder my words," price 6d.

Six Good Friday Hymns; six Easter Hymns, price 1s.

Address W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton-place, Reading.

TO CHOIRS.

SIX PART-SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, Composed and dedicated to Edinburgh University Musical Society, by H. S. OAKLEY, Mus. Doc., and Professor of Music at that University. No. 1. "Abendlied," No. 2. "True Love," No. 3. "Hunting Song," No. 4. "Love's Philosophy," are now ready. Price, Nos. 1 and 2, and 3 and 4, vocal score, London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TEN TRIOS for FEMALE VOICES, composed by

CARL REINECKE. (Op. 100.) 8vo., 1s. 6d.; or singly—

No. 1.—"The Dreaming Lake," 2d.

No. 2.—"Praise of Spring," 3d.

No. 3.—"Of Oak thy mournful bier's prepared," 3d.

No. 4.—"Sunbeams in Winter," 2d.

No. 5.—"The Awakening of Morn," 3d.

No. 6.—"The Winter hath not a blossom," 3d.

No. 7.—"Thou that thyself with death hath striven," 2d.

No. 8.—"The Evening Wind," 3d.

No. 9.—"As in a field goodly fruit will grow," 3d.

No. 10.—"The Elves," 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

PART-SONGS, BY W. W. PEARSON.

THERE'S BEAUTY IN THE DEEP ... 1½d.

SWEET TO LIVE AMID THE MOUNTAINS ... 2d.

THE STORMY PETREL (Tenor and Bass Solos) ... 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Brompton-Bierlow, Rotherham:

Pearson, from whom free for stamps.

MR. VERNON RIGBY'S NEW SONG.

I SAW THEE WEEP. Composed expressly for him by FRANK NAISH. In A flat and F. Price 4s.

Messrs. Duncan Davison and Co., 244, Regent-street, W.

THE WINDMILL. Song. The Words by the Rev.

H. W. Pullen; the Music by G. J. READ. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

IN AID OF

NORTH COATES CHURCH ORGAN FUND.

Published June, 1872.

Toned paper, cloth, gilt lettered, price 7s. 6d.

THE SECOND AND CONCLUDING VOLUME

OF

"THE VILLAGE ORGANIST,"

Containing the following Voluntaries, all composed expressly for it and not published in any other work:—

Slow Melody. Wm. H. Calcott.

Andante (Pastorale). Mrs. Mounsey

Bartholomew.

Andante. Mrs. Mounsey Bartholomew.

Allegretto grazioso quasi Andante.

E. M. Delaborde.

Andante (Canzonet). Dr. H. J.

Gauntlett.

Andante con moto. F. E. Gladstone.

Andante con grazia (Canzone).

Franz Nava.

Andante (Pastorale). E. Silas.

Andante con moto (Siciliana). John

Hullah.

Larghetto espressivo. G. A. Mac-farren.

Andante con moto (Prelude). Sir

Julius Benedict.

Andante con moto. Henry Smart.

Allegro poco maestoso (Prelude).

W. G. Cusins.

Andante maestoso. E. G. Verrinder,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

"A most useful series of pieces. * * * Pleasantly exemplifies the present state of musicianship in England, and will be found valuable for practical use where short voluntaries are needed, in towns as much as in villages."—Musical Times, Aug. 1872.

London:

Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.).

New York: J. L. Peters, 599, Broadway.

C. JEFFERYS, 57 BERNERS ST. THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

A COLLECTION OF

PART-SONGS, GLEES, CHORUSES, &c.

EDITED BY MICHAEL WATSON.

1	'Tis silent eve	Michael Watson.
2	Corin's fate	R. Turner.
3	Where the pearly dew-drop falleth	E. J. Loder.
4	The Winter being over	Ellen Avery.
5	Fairy voices	T. G. B. Hatley.
6	Moonlight	J. H. L. Glover.
7	Good-bye	J. L. Hutton.
8	I thought of thee	W. F. Banks.
9	The Forsaken	J. L. Hutton.
10	Bonny May	J. H. L. Glover.
11	Spring Song	J. L. Hutton.
12	The Winds	C. J. Frost.
13	County Guy	G. A. Macfarren.
14	The birds that had left their song	do.

Price 2d. each number. Other Numbers in the Press.

THE POPULAR

Operatic Arrangements,

SOLOS AND DUETS,

And Original Pianoforte Pieces,

By FELIX GANTIER,

Of which lists may be had on application.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

1.	FOUNTAINS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire movement) s. d.	3 0
2.	NETLEY ABBEY. Cujus Animam (the entire movement) from Rossini's Stabat Mater	3 0
3.	KIRKSTALL ABBEY. Kyrie (the entire movement) from Mozart's 12th Mass	3 0
4.	TINTERN ABBEY. Gloria in Excelsis (the entire movement) from Mozart's 12th Mass	3 0

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, with views of English Abbeys.

THE LYRIC STAGE, a Series of Brilliant Operatic Fantasias:—

1.	Martha	Flotow	4 0
2.	Lucia di Lammermoor	Donizetti	4 0
3.	Il Flauto Magico	Mozart	4 0
4.	Les Huguenots	Meyerbeer	4 0
5.	La Traviata	Verdi	4 0
6.	Norma	Bellini	4 0
7.	L'Ombre	Flotow	4 0
8.	Robert le Diable	Meyerbeer	4 0
9.	Il Trovatore	Verdi	4 0

THE QUEEN ... 4 0

Brilliant Fantasia on English National Airs, "Heart of Oak," "Rule, Britannia," and "God save the Queen."

THE PRINCESS LOUISE WEDDING MARCH 3 0

PRINCESS VICTORIA MARCH ... 3 0

Each illustrated with fine Portrait in Colours.

LOUIS DUPUIS.

CATHEDRAL GEMS:

1.	NANTES.—Fantasia, on subjects from Mozart's 12th Mass	3 0
2.	WURMS.—Fantasia, on subjects from Weber's Mass in G	3 0
3.	ROTTERDAM.—Fantasia, on subjects from Haydn's 3rd (Imperial) Mass	3 0
4.	MALAGA.—Fantasia, on subjects from Beethoven's Mass in C	3 0
5.	ROUEN.—Fantasia, on subjects from Gounod's Messe Solennelle	3 0
6.	CAEN.—Fantasia, on subjects from Rossini's Stabat Mater	3 0
7.	MAYENCE.—Fantasia, on subjects from Haydn's 1st Mass, B flat	3 0
8.	COLOGNE.—Fantasia, on subjects from Mozart's 1st Mass, in C	3 0
9.	PARIS.—Fantasia, on subjects from Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise	3 0
10.	LONDON.—Fantasia, on subjects from Handel's Messiah	3 0
11.	NORWICH.—Fantasia, on subjects from Haydn's Creation	3 0
12.	CANTERBURY.—Fantasia, on Spohr's Aspects the Hart	3 0
13.	YORK.—Fantasia, on Handel's Judas Maccabaeus	3 0
14.	SALISBURY.—Fantasia, on Mendelssohn's St. Paul	3 0
15.	WELLS.—Fantasia, on Haydn's Mass in B flat (No. 16.)	3 0

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, with views of celebrated Cathedrals.

C. JEFFERYS, 57, BERNERS STREET (W.).

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

FOURTH SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT,

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1873.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER,

AND

MENDELSSOHN'S HYMN OF PRAISE.

MADAME OTTO-ALVSLEBEN.

MISS SPILLER.

MADAME PATEY.

MR. SIMS REEVES.

SIGNOR BETTINI.

SIGNOR AGNESI.

CONDUCTOR - - MR. BARNBY.

Loggia (to hold 8 persons) £2 10 0	Amphitheatre Stalls ..	0 7 6
Boxes (Grand Tier) .. 3 3 0	Arena Stalls ..	0 5 0
„ (Upper Tier) .. 1 10 0	Balcony ..	0 3 0

ADMISSION - ONE SHILLING.

Doors open at Seven o'clock, commence at Eight.

Tickets of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street and 35, Poultry; the usual Agents; and at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

FIFTH SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT,

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1873.

MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH.

MADAME PATEY.

MR. SIMS REEVES.

SIGNOR FOLI.

&c. &c.

CONDUCTOR - - MR. BARNBY.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

SIXTH SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT,

WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1873.

HANDEL'S BELSHAZZAR.

CONDUCTOR - - MR. BARNBY.

St. Anne's Church, Soho.

SPECIAL SERVICES will be held in this Church every Friday evening during Lent, commencing at Eight o'clock, at which Bach's PASSION (S. John) will be sung with the accompaniment of an Orchestra, Harp, and Organ. The public will be admitted by tickets to the body of the Church and west gallery, and without tickets to the north and south gallery. Sermons will be preached by special preachers, whose names will be duly announced.

Applications for tickets, stating the special Friday for which they are required, should be made to the Rev. Canon Wade, Rector, 28, Soho-square, Thomas F. Blackwell, Esq. and J. Arngill, Esq., Churchwardens; A. C. Curtis-Hayward, Esq., 17, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square; and Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. E. H. THORNE'S TWO EVENING CONCERTS in the Hanover-square Rooms, Wednesday, April 30th and Friday, June 6th, when the following of his new compositions will be performed:—First Trio in G major; second Trio in C minor, for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello alone; four Characteristic Pieces for Piano alone, and the 47th Psalm for Ladies' voices.

GLoucester Cathedral.—There is a VACANCY in this Choir for an ALTO Voice, as Lay Clerk or Singing Man. The emoluments are, a payment of 2s. 6d. for each attendance at the two daily services, and 5s. for attendance at each additional service. The candidates likely to suit will be required to appear before the Dean and Chapter on some early day in May next, which will be signified to them. Applications for the situation, stating the age and place of residence of the applicant, with testimonials as to moral and religious character, powers of voice, and musical capacity, are to be forwarded to the Rev. J. P. Clark, the Precentor, Wotton, near Gloucester, on or before the 28th day of April next.

By order of the Dean and Chapter,
12th March, 1873. GEORGE WHITCOMBE, Chapter Clerk.

SIX CHORAL SCHOLARSHIPS of the value of £20 per annum, are now VACANT. Boys with good voices are invited to compete. Preference given to sons of professional men. For further particulars apply to Mr. George Riseley, 11, Buckingham-vale, Clifton.

CRYSTAL PALACE

NATIONAL MUSIC MEETINGS, 1873.

GALIN CHORAL SOCIETY, Founder and Conductor, Mr. EDM. ANDRADE. This Society, including Singers from Paris and London, taught by the Chev   Method, will compete at the above in Class II. Any one with an ordinary voice, with little, or still better, no knowledge of music, can join the preparatory Singing Class (Chev   Method) now held at the ALBION HALL, London Wall, City (close to Moorgate-street Station.) Mondays and Thursdays, at 7.30 p.m. Terms, Gentlemen, 3s. per month (8 Lessons) in advance; Ladies and Children, 1s. 6d. The course will embrace Thirty Lessons. Admission free to one Lesson.

CHEV   METHOD.—MR. E. ANDRADE'S CLASSES.

Vocal Music and Musical Theory, as taught by the Galin-P  ris-Chev   method are the indispensable foundation of a sound musical education. This study should precede all lessons in refined singing or instrumental music under artistic professors, as the study of grammar naturally precedes that of elocution and oratory. Through this method the intricacy of the most difficult combinations of intonation and time vanishes as by magic, and the pupil having, in a short time, mastered the whole range of musical grammar is the better prepared to receive lessons in the artistic part of musical tuition. The method includes Galin's notation, a masterpiece of clearness and simplicity, which will become ere long the universal language of vocal music, and also the established notation in all its completeness (reading with all clefs, transpositions, &c.)

The most eminent composers have publicly expressed their admiration of the wonderful, rapid, and thorough results obtained by the Galin-P  ris-Chev   system. The first French committee for the patronage of the new method was presided over by the Duke of Morny, and counted among its members Rossini, Prince Poniatowski, Felicien David, Gevaert, Lefebure-Wely, Offenbach, and others.

Children from six years old can be admitted into the classes, as the luminous simplicity of the method enables them to be fully benefited by its teachings.

The Municipal Council of Paris has recently voted an appropriation for the gratuitous teaching of the Chev   method to the working men of Paris in several parts of that city. The method is also adopted at the Ecole Polytechnique, Ecole Normale, Lyc  e Louis le Grand; also in the Public Schools in the Canton of Geneva, Switzerland.

The only medal that could be justly awarded to any musical method was obtained in 1862 by the Galin-P  ris-Chev   system at the London International Exhibition.

Apply to Mr. EDM. ANDRADE, 11, Hatherley-grove, Westbourne-grove, W.

SOPRANO WANTED in a City Church. Full Choral (Gregorian.) Salary £8. Apply to A. B., 223, Essex-road, N. Also a few VOLUNTEERS.

TO CHOIR-BOYS.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir of St. Mary Abchurch, Abchurch-lane, Cannon-street, E.C., for a good LEADING VOICE. Salary from £3 to £6 per annum, according to ability. Apply at the Church on Tuesday or Friday evenings, at 7 o'clock.

WANTED.—Good ALTO for a City Church. Surplined Choir; full Choral Service. Salary £10. Apply to Rev. J. H. Smith, the Parsonage, Skinner-street, Bishopsgate, E.C.

ALTO DISENGAGED.—Catholic Church preferred. Thoroughly conversant with Mass Music. Address C. P., 39, Warwick-road, West Brompton.

ALTO WANTED immediately, for the Choir of St. Luke's Church, Westbourne-park. Stipend £10 per annum. Application to be made to Mr. Bambridge, 27, Tavistock-crescent, Westbourne-park, W.

TENOR and CONTRALTO WANTED for a Church at Hammersmith. Good voices and first-rate Readers. Two Sunday Services. Salary £10 per annum. Address A. B., West Cottage, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

BARITONE.—An old Cathedral Boy is open to an ENGAGEMENT in a good Choir. Address G. L., Post Office, Horney-road, Holloway, N.

A STRONG heavy BASS WANTED for a Church in the North of London. Salary about £10. Write full particulars to Choirmaster, care of John Boyer, Esq., Cooper's Hall, Basinghall-street, E.C.

ST. MARY'S, Aldermanbury.—A BASS is WANTED. Communicants preferred. Sunday Morning and Evening Choral Services. Surplined Choir. Stipend £5. Address the Organist.

WANTED, an additional BASS in a London Surplined Choir. Small payment. Communicant preferred. Address D. P., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED, TWO BASSES and ONE TREBLE VOICE as LEADERS in a Parish Church Choir. Distance about 1½ hours from London. Simple music; beautiful country. Must be good Churchmen, and give references. Remuneration—travelling expenses, board, &c., with salary according to ability. C. H. Lacon, Hawley, Farnborough, Hants.

THE MUSICAL TIMES,

2nd Singing-Class Circular.

APRIL 1, 1873.

A MUSICAL REVERIE.

BY HENRY C. LUNN.

THERE is a theory that dreams, although apparently spreading over a large space of time, do in reality take place instantaneously. Whether this be true or not, I can scarcely imagine that the mild form of forgetfulness called a "reverie" can follow this law, for what I am about to relate as having occurred to me when I fancied myself wide awake in an arm-chair, could certainly not have been the result of that momentary oblivion to the outer world usually termed "dropping off." I was tired, and had seated myself by the fire with the intention of solving some important problem (which we always keep for these occasions), and had closed my eyes in order to think more deeply—the first number of the "Musical Times" for the present year being upon my lap—when my eye accidentally resting upon the date, I read "January 1873." At first I confess I was much startled at this; but in the "reverie" world, it is well known that we soon reconcile ourselves to such little difficulties as these. A man, for instance, who cannot sing a note, in his sleep finds himself the first tenor in an Opera; a quiet and inoffensive person is, under the same circumstances, a hero in the battlefield, wildly dashing through the ranks of the enemy, and emulating the achievements of Shaw, the Life-Guardsman, at Waterloo; or an individual who has scarcely been on horseback three times in his life, is riding fearlessly in the circus of an amphitheatre on a fiery "bare-backed steed," in a spangled dress, with hat and feathers. If we can blandly accept such absurd incongruities as these, there can be little question that plunging at once into the next century is a mere trifle; and it can scarcely be wondered at, therefore, that, my first slight astonishment having subsided, I should find myself reading the "Musical Times" of a hundred years hence as coolly as if there were nothing particular in the occurrence. The first article which attracted my attention, was on the subject of the "Desecration of music by buildings;" and not only this, but all the following matter I read in this prophetic journal, became so vividly impressed upon my mind that I can quote it word for word. "When we consider," commenced the writer, "how the noblest religious works depend for their true effect upon the sympathetic surroundings of the edifice in which they are performed, it appears incredible that secular concert-rooms should still occasionally be used for sacred compositions. The matter has very often engaged the attention of piously disposed persons, who are very naturally shocked that the room which has perhaps been used in the morning for a Fancy Bazaar, or a stormy political meeting, should in the evening resound with the holy strains of an Oratorio or other sacred work; and it has truly been said that in the twentieth century, when the highest honours are supposed to be accorded to the giant composers of the world, such a presentation of their sublimest creations should not be tolerated. In a Cathedral or church, where Oratorios have for nearly a hundred years been almost exclusively given, it is needless to say that the orderly manner in which each individual takes his seat is a proof that he has regard to the religious character of the building, and his behaviour during the music is devout and in accordance with the spirit in which a setting of any portion of the Scriptures should be listened to. In a concert-room, on the contrary, the music commences amidst a clamour for places; people are constantly passing in and out of the room, nods and smiles are interchanged amongst friends, programmes are eagerly read and re-read, applause and encores interrupt that repose and feeling of continuity which are essentials to the true comprehension of the design of the composer, and the entire performance has so thoroughly the air of a fashionable evening concert that really religious people are positively prevented from attending. Latterly the Press has freely canvassed the subject, and an impetus has very recently been given to the discussion of the religious side of the question by the fact of a large sum having been offered, by a gentleman high in position, for the purpose of restoring all the Cathedrals, on condition that no sacred work shall ever be performed out of a sacred building. Several public meetings have been called; and strange to say, many persons are still to be found who boldly advocate what may be called the secular view of the matter. The desecration of the music is, however, the important point to be considered; and although we do not approve of accepting a bribe, the liberal offer which has been made will no doubt have much effect in deciding the matter. As the question is not whether Oratorios should be performed in a religious edifice, but whether they should be permitted to be given out of one, there can scarcely we think be much opposition to the views of true artists, for it is really almost as bad to give a sacred work in a secular building, as to give a secular work in a sacred one; and although it now rarely happens that such a desecration of the music receives any considerable amount of patronage, we shall be glad indeed to see the last remnant of this old-world custom finally abolished."

The next article, which was in the form of a second Leader, ran thus:—

"We have always had much pleasure in watching the progress of that liberal feeling which for the last fifty years has been gaining ground in this country, and effecting in its gradual advance a large amount of good. We allude to the abolition of that artistically aristocratic spirit which has for so long separated the highest musicians from the general public. It has been contended (and we own with much truth), that an artist must associate with artists, in order to find that sympathy without which society is to him a blank; and this argument has been so fully acted upon, that in the most recherché musical parties educated ladies and gentlemen, if admitted at all, are parted from the executants by a slight silver cord: nay it has even been the custom for artists afterwards to sup together, leaving strict orders with the servants that no others shall be allowed to enter the room. This exclusive system has of course given rise to much angry feeling; for it is very natural that persons in a good position in society should imagine themselves in every respect fitted to mix freely with those who have afforded them so much pleasure during the evening. It is certainly very galling to those who feel deeply the art which they are exercising that in the middle of one of the most lovely movements of a great work a buzz of conversation should be heard; that persons should enter and leave the room, or lounge about as if they imagined that the music were only intended to accompany a general promenade; but it must be remembered for how many years it was the custom of this country to 'patronize' artists; and although the matter is now reversed, we think it much better that listeners and executants should as much as possible fraternise together. We have reason to believe that very many of the most influential families have expressed an earnest desire to institute musical evenings, at which the guests and the performers shall form one united party, and have even pledged themselves that perfect silence shall invariably be maintained during the concert. This proposition has been most favourably received; and there is now every probability that the matter will be amicably settled. We have, as our readers are aware, always advocated the removal of these embarrassing class restrictions, which have almost insensibly grown up, and have therefore additional gratification in giving publicity to a statement, the truth of which we can vouch for."

After this came, in the same type as the two articles already given, the following strictures upon monster musical performances:—

"Everybody acquainted with the history of music knows that upwards of a hundred years ago a gigantic musical festival was held at Boston, in the United States, and that an enormous Hall being erected for the occasion, it became necessary, in order that a portion of the audience, at least, might hear some of the music, to magnify the orchestral and vocal forces to an extent never before attempted. To produce the desired effect, when musical sounds could no more be multiplied, noise was resorted to, guns, anvils and other accessories of the kind being freely introduced into the score, so that the conductor, having gunpowder and hammers to control, as well as the usual instruments of an orchestra, must have had rather an anxious task before him. There can be little doubt that the monster orchestras and choral bodies which we now have, not only in the metropolis, but in most of the principal towns, are distinctly traceable to the influence of the example set us by our American friends; for we can scarcely believe that the idea of roofing in the entire area of Hyde Park for a musical festival, with a floating orchestra erected upon the Serpentine (which has lately been seriously proposed), would ever have been thought of but for the Boston event, of which an interesting account from the fac-simile of a newspaper of the period, has been recently published in this journal. We have invariably opposed these exaggerated musical gatherings, believing that they do much injury to the progress of real art; and have conscientiously recorded our conviction of the non-success of the late demonstration on Hounslow Heath, when five hundred tin kettles, a thousand policemen's rattles, and two hundred and fifty gongs were added to the composers' instrumentation. At the risk of being considered blindly conservative, we even state our opinion that the 'additional instruments' in Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' and 'St. Paul,' are by no means an improvement. It is true that the composer knew nothing of our ponderous flutes, supplied with wind by a huge pair of bellows; of our enormous double basses, which require two men on a ladder to play upon; or of our gigantic drum, worked by steam machinery; but we do not countenance the introduction of such instruments at all; and certainly, even if admitted into our modern orchestras, they should not be allowed to interfere with the refined scores of these sacred works. A contemporary, in speaking of the festival, has observed that 'Mendelssohn little thought when he wrote "Elijah," how grandly it would be represented in the year 1972; and it was indeed sincerely to be wished that he could have been present to listen to it.' Why we firmly believe that if Mendelssohn had heard the Baal choruses, and the grand choral burst of gratitude, 'Thanks be to God,' accompanied with such a hideous noise, he would have imagined that Hounslow Heath had become as celebrated in our days for robbing eminent artists of their reputation as it was in times gone by for robbing peaceful citizens of their purses."

After these articles came a number of short paragraphs, which I give precisely as they appeared.

"We are informed, on reliable authority, that in one of the principal German towns, an association has been lately formed entitled the 'German Musical Society,' the object of which is to perform the finest works of the composers of all nations. The peculiarity of this Society is that all the orchestral players and singers must be Germans; and difficulties have already arisen in ascertaining beyond doubt the birthplace of some of the greatest artists, whose services, of course, can hardly be dispensed with. The father of one, for instance, an eminent violinist, was a German, and his mother a Frenchwoman; another, a celebrated violoncellist, cannot positively swear to his native town, both his parents being dead; and a third, well known as an able trumpet player, was born at sea. Efforts are being made to supply the places of these artists, but all are rejected who cannot prove that they are bona fide Germans. Fearing that this feeling may spread to other Societies, we hear that some of the best musicians are leaving Germany, and settling in countries where their talents are recognized, without regard to the particular spot of earth upon which they happened to be born."

"By a musical paper of the year 1870, which has recently come into our hands, we find that it was then the custom for vocalists to be actually paid for introducing songs at concerts. This appears scarcely credible. Surely a singer who received his or her terms for services at a performance, should no more expect a fee beyond this for singing certain songs than an actor should for acting in certain pieces; and, apart from this it would unquestionably lead to the popularizing of any trash which can be liberally paid for. We heartily congratulate the composers of the present day on being exempt from such a system; and feel convinced that our great vocal artists would scarcely wish to have lived in an age when their songs were selected for them; and not by them."

"At Bow Street Police Court, on Tuesday last, Herbert Brandenburg, aged 30, who styled himself 'Professor of Music,' was charged with having practised for five years without a diploma. The attention of the authorities has been for some time directed to this man, but the case was only fully established about a week ago. It appears that the prisoner had contrived, by giving a false reference, to get an engagement as professor of the pianoforte at a first-class ladies' school. Suspicion of his incompetence having arisen in the establishment, two young ladies, who were thorough musicians, were introduced to him as new pupils, when his utter ignorance of the principles of teaching was completely proved; the Commissioners were communicated with, and he was arrested. When under examination, he fully confessed his crime, but pleaded in extenuation that he had a wife and family depending upon him. The magistrate very properly reminded him that he had no right to swindle other persons' children for the sake of supporting his own, and sentenced him to six months' imprisonment, without the option of a fine."

"We hear that some persons, taking advantage of an old Act of Parliament which prevented the drama from being acted in a theatre, or a concert from being given in a concert-room on Ash-Wednesday, have resolved to hazard a performance by the 'Cauchouc Vaulters,' the 'Timbuctoo Fire-Eaters,' the 'Flying Apes,' and the 'Dancing Dogs,' on that day, at the very theatre where a play of Shakespeare's has been prohibited. We can hardly believe that a law which does not allow the presentation of a drama at a dramatic establishment, or even of a sacred musical work at certain concert rooms on Ash-Wednesday, should countenance such a degrading exhibition as the one proposed; at all events, if this absurd enactment has been virtually dead for a century, surely we ought not now to be haunted by its ghost."

"Signor Vicenzio Barataria, who has lately announced that he will teach music in twelve lessons, has been requested by the Art Commissioners to do it. We understand that he has absconded."

"A testimonial is, we hear, to be presented to Mr. Stephen Brandon, the celebrated pianist, in consideration of his being half ruined by subscribing to testimonials for others."

"Last week a gentleman summoned the Directors of the Philharmonic Society for the amount of his ticket of admission to a concert, in consequence of finding the doors of the room closed on his arrival, the first movement of one of Beethoven's Symphonies having commenced. He alleged in support of this demand, that 'every person who purchases a ticket has a right to hear all the music;' but the magistrate told him that this was precisely the reason that he was excluded, and dismissed the summons, with costs."

"The new work by Herr Roedel, the composer, which has lately been translated into English, under the title of 'The Philosophy of Music,' is gradually revolutionising artistic feeling in Germany. Whilst admitting that 'Lohengrin,' 'Der Ring des Nibelungen,' and other Operas of that date have a certain amount of antiquarian interest, he fully proves that their composers merely initiated a partial truth in operatic art, and asserts that he intends to commence where Wagner left off. We have no doubt that much interest will be excited by the production of his new Opera, the performance of which will commence on the morning of the 4th March, and continue—"

I regret very much that this sentence must remain for ever unfinished, for a coal unfortunately falling from the fire at once dissolved my ideal musical world—the date of the journal in my hand changed, as if by magic, and I lived once more in the realities of 1873.

EXHIBITION MUSIC.

JUBAL'S "chorded shell" was a wonderful instrument, according to Dryden, but duly labelled and shown at a fine art exhibition of the period, it would scarcely have attracted much attention. We are told of the antediluvian minstrel brethren that

"Less than a God, they thought, there could not dwell
Within the hollow of that shell,
That sang so sweetly and so well."

But they thought so only when Jubal's fingers touched its strings. You cannot set up a gallery of this ethereal art as you can of painting and sculpture. True, you may catalogue your books of music by the thousand, but what are they save mere "dry bones" to all except the very few whose imagination can evoke their hidden life. Said L. E. L. :—

"The painter's hues stand visibly before us
In power and beauty—we can trace the thoughts
Which are the workings of the poet's mind :
But music is a mystery, and viewless
Even when present, and is less man's act
And less within his order."

This is why music has hitherto had no place in artistic exhibitions, save as an amusement and a relaxation. But the result is not inevitable. Music can be shown, and having now a distinct place in the scheme of the International Exhibition at South Kensington, it will be as regularly "on view" as the sister arts. Here, then, is a strange thing under the sun—a novel idea to be worked out, with possibly great results, and consequently deserving of much attention.

The scheme of the Exhibition of music which will open in the Royal Albert Hall on Easter Monday, is one entirely suggested by a desire for the good of art. This character may be claimed for it without the smallest fear of a denial from any impartial mind. What are the facts? In the first place, it is proposed to give, under the direction of Mr. Barnby, a daily orchestral concert in the Albert Hall as long as the International Exhibition remains on view. The works to be performed by a band of at least fifty picked artists will represent all schools from Bach to Brahms, while many a neglected treasure is certain to enjoy once more the light of publicity. How long have lovers of music demanded some such institution?—one not looking at what may catch applause so much as at what ought to be known. "Let us do justice to merit now hidden; let us disinter the buried treasures of the past!" this has been the public and private cry of not a few. The managers of the Exhibition music propose to answer the cry by meeting its demand as far as lies within the limits of possibility. But the scheme bids fair to satisfy other wants. It will give a voice to composers who are now mute, because every door of utterance is closed against them. How many an ardent spirit has suffered the "hope deferred, which maketh the heart sick," because the first step towards publicity has been impossible. The Albert Hall enterprise proposes to make that step—le premier pas qui coûte—an easy one. It actually invites composers to send in their works, promises those works a careful consideration, and, if approved, a no less careful performance. Nor is even this the whole good intended to be done. Young artists, as well as young composers, will find the road to the public ear free from all impediment. They also are invited to make themselves known; and to lay their claims before a tribunal from which there is no appeal. If this be not a scheme devised in the interest of art we do not know what is. The thing speaks for itself, and needs no words to enforce its value.

Vocal music will, of course, be a feature in the concerts; and recitals of unfamiliar operatic works are contemplated, with a view to increase the public knowledge of a branch of art little cultivated in England. It is hoped also that arrangements may be made for the performance, at evening concerts, of unaccompanied vocal music, cantatas, &c., by the members of the Choral Society connected with the Hall. Another useful feature will be the historical and analytical notes to the programmes, wherein an effort will be made to excite public interest not only with regard to matters of record, but also with regard to those technical points which, once perceived, so materially increase the enjoyment of a performance. These are the outlines of the proposed Musical Exhibition; and when we add that whatever is undertaken will be carried out with scrupulous care, enough has been said to enlist the sympathy and support of every genuine amateur.

As VAGUE rumours respecting the removal of the Royal Academy of Music to South Kensington, have been latterly freely circulated, it is well that the public should be placed in possession of the facts of the case, especially as the decision of the Directors and Committee of Management of the Institution has now been given in favour of remaining, at least for the present, in Tenterden Street. Most persons, we believe, imagine that an offer of a building suitable for the purposes of a National School of Music, has been made to the authorities of the Academy, and that a large grant would be given by Government as soon as this offer was accepted. Such, however, is not the case. Certain rooms in connection with the Royal Albert Hall were proffered for the use of the Academy free of rent; any necessary alterations being paid for from the funds of the Institution; and it was merely tacitly understood that, supposing the experiment of migrating to South Kensington should answer, every endeavour would be made to obtain additional patronage and support. Against this prospective advantage it was necessary to place the positive disadvantage of breaking up an establishment excellently adapted both for teaching and orchestral practice (the Hanover Square Rooms being always available for public performances), the inconvenience and loss of time to professors and students, of getting backwards and forwards, and, above all, the ill effects which must necessarily result from placing young students in a building where concerts, exhibitions, and other distracting influences would be constantly surrounding them. Those who wish well to the Academy may materially aid its progress by endeavouring to obtain a building in London worthy of a National School of Music; and although the present negotiations have virtually come to an end, it is sincerely to be hoped that some good may arise from the discussion upon the subject.

A SERIES of special sacred performances will be given during Passion week at the Royal Albert Hall, under the direction of Mr. Barnby. These will commence on Monday evening the 7th inst. with Bach's sacred Oratorio The Passion ("St. Matthew") which will be repeated on the three succeeding days, the series terminating on Saturday evening the 12th inst., with a performance of Handel's "Messiah." The solo vocalists will be Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Otto-Alvsleben, Madame Patey, Miss Dones, Messrs. Cummings, Edward Lloyd, Thurley Beale, and Signor Foli; and Mr. Sims Reeves has been engaged for the performance of the "Messiah." A special feature, and one that will claim universal attention, will be a request addressed to the audience to rise and join in the Chorales of the Passion Music, to facilitate which, an arrangement has been made to provide books of words containing the melodies of the Chorales, which will be supplied at a nominal charge. It cannot fail to be remarked that whilst our larger churches and cathedrals (with one exception) are remaining silent as regards music during this, the most important week of the Church's year, the thrilling accents of Bach's magnificent music will be heard at South Kensington, and with an effect which has never been more fully realized in any country.

THE PASSION SERVICES AT ST. ANNE'S, SOHO.

THE movement now commenced at the Church of St. Anne, Soho, is one the importance of which cannot be over estimated. At a time when the utilization of our churches, great and small, has begun to be regarded with interest by all sections of Christians, such a move could hardly fail of success if properly carried out. A service which should unite so happily the meditative and congregational forms of worship, might fairly have been hitherto regarded as next to an impossibility. Even Mr. Barnby would appear to have thought so if we may judge by the Westminster Passion Services, which as our readers may remember were of the purely meditative type—the congregation taking no part whatever in the performance. Now, however, that it has become an accomplished fact, the apparent difficulties have to a great extent disappeared, and the additional circumstance that these services have been given in a Parish Church of the ordinary type, would seem to do away with the last obstacle to such a service being largely adopted in other churches. The Guardian of March 5th thus speaks of the service:—

"The development in an orchestral direction of the use of music in English Church worship has made another step in a series of special services which are holden on Friday evenings during this Lent at the church of St. Anne, Soho. The work performed at these services is Bach's setting of the Passion according to St. John. This, like the more extended setting, by the same mighty hand, to the text of St. Matthew, is interspersed with hymns, in which the congregation—assuming in part the function of the ‘chorus’ of the ancient classical drama—express themselves in the character of lookers-on, or listeners, in regard to the events presented to their notice by the personating section of those present. In the performances of the ‘Passions-Musik’ which have taken place in the Abbey, and been the subject of frequent notice and description in our pages, no attempt was made to carry out the original Leipzig precedent in the matter of the interspersed chorales; which were sung, not only not by the congregation, but with exceptional refinement and delicacy, all accompaniment being withdrawn, and the harmonized tunes being presented as exquisite sacred part-songs. It was magnificent—as those who heard it will remember,—but it was not Bach. The special interest, then, of the service on Friday, was the introduction or restoration, into the oratorio—for an oratorio in its strictest and best sense it was—of congregational singing. Before the service commenced a procession of the singers and players passed up the church, under music from the organ; all were unsurpassed; and the players—such as played the smaller instruments—carried them in the procession; black oboes glittering with silver keys in the folds of white linen; violins and their bows; a silver flute; and a flute of wood, studded with those contrivances in silver mechanism, which, in recent patterns, have made it at once the sweetest and the most beautiful looking instrument of the modern orchestra. There were about fifty choristers, thirty men and twenty boys, chiefly belonging to the voluntary choir of the church. The form of prayer used was the ‘shortened order,’ with a special Psalm, ‘My God, my God, look upon me.’ The chanting at St. Anne’s deserves emphatic mention for its distinctness and breadth in performance, though the musical form used was one of the little metrical phrases known as single Anglicans. The ‘anthem after the third collect,’ was, as already indicated, ‘The Passion of our Lord (according to St. John), set to music by John Sebastian Bach.’ The Evangelist’s part—to undertake which demands the possession not only of the physical qualifications of a fine tenor voice, and strength to maintain it through a long and arduous mass of recitative, but also of the moral qualities of high taste and deep reverence, supplemented by the trained skill which renders it possible to make these last qualifications felt—was rendered to the worshippers, in a manner leaving nothing to be desired, by Mr. Arthur Wade, son of the Rector, Canon Wade. The part of the Saviour was sung by Mr. Pownall, and that of Pilate by Mr. Orgill, with unexceptionable taste in both cases. The congregation were directed that they might sit as listeners during the ‘anthem,’ rising to take part in the chorales. This they did, and a fair amount of result attended the request to add the voices of the worshippers. We had almost forgotten to say, because for our own part we should never have had a misgiving on the subject, that the demeanour of the worshippers was entirely reverential, not a single instance of the unseemly display of curiosity coming to our notice. Few things, indeed, could have compelled the attention, even of an unsympathizing hearer, more forcibly than the solemnly beautiful delivery of the Evangelist’s part, as already mentioned, by which Mr. Arthur Wade engraved the sacred narrative of the Crucifixion upon the minds of the listening worshippers. Between the two parts of the Oratorio Bishop Cloughton preached a short sermon, of which the principal aim was to refute the shallow idea that elaborate music in worship is necessarily associated with the festive, and inconsistent with the penitential spirit,—an apology needed perhaps by some, but not by those who have appreciated, however imperfectly, the Passion Music of John Sebastian Bach.”

A few additional particulars may be gathered from the John Bull :—

“The Orchestra in Church, which a few years ago was talked of and written of as a possible addition to the choral service of the future, but which was really regarded as altogether beyond the reach of sober-minded Anglicans of the present, is now an accomplished fact, and, strange to say, while it has passed away from the ‘use’ of the Church where it was introduced as a means of heightening the effect of extreme Ritualism, it has now made its way to the front in a quarter where moderation in ceremonial and doctrine is the rule. This fact is in itself thoroughly satisfactory, as tending to show that the utilization of the full band like the choral service, out of which it has naturally sprung, is no mere musical exotic, but a bona fide offshoot of our English service, bound up with no party, but open to all who recognize the principle that the highest and fittest use of art in all its forms is when it is consecrated to the service of God. When, after a first performance at the Oratorio Concerts, it was announced that the Passion Music according to St. Matthew, by the immortal Leipzig cantor, John Sebastian Bach, was to be sung in Westminster Abbey, at a special service in Holy Week with full orchestra, the objections hitherto conscientiously felt by many Churchmen to such an innovation as the ‘scraping of fiddles’ and the ‘blowing of trumpets’ in church were removed. It was shown conclusively that this, the highest development of musical worship, was thoroughly in accord with the teaching and directions of the Prayer-Book; nay, more, that it was, to use a phrase we do not like, essentially Protestant in character; in fact, the very origin of the music and the purpose for which it was written disarmed prejudice, and the result was that the old Collegiate Church was filled to overflowing, and the spectacle, as we witnessed it from the triforium, was one which will never fade from our recollection. As the sublime music, lending additional pathos to that most touching of all narratives, rose and fell, we realized more completely than ever the majesty of the art which is so truly called divine, and which has never been more thoroughly raised above all that is earthly than in this glorious setting of the Gospel story. It has often been said that Handel’s Oratorios when heard at Exeter Hall make men better, but if this be true, how much more solemnizing is the influence of this still nobler music, which brings home to us in the most marvellous manner the sufferings of the Saviour, and sets forth with such vivid touches the last scenes of His life. To Mr. Barnby, then, be it remembered, the honour of this good work is due, and we are glad to state that in carrying out his design to a further stage by introducing Bach’s setting of St. John’s Narrative at the Parish Church of St. Anne, Soho, he has been equally successful. He has, in fact, completed the work which was only commenced at Westminster, for while at the Abbey the chorales were sung by the choir alone, at St. Anne’s the congregation are invited to unite in them, and thus the service, according to Bach’s ideal, is more nearly realized. This is a point of no slight importance; for the joining of the people in these hymns removes the last traces of the ‘performance,’ and renders the service as thoroughly satisfactory from a devotional as it is from an artistic point of view. Turning from this general view of the subject to the special services now being held on the Friday evenings in Lent at St. Anne’s, Soho, in which a shortened version of the Passion, according to St. John, is introduced in the place of the anthem, we are glad to be able to state that the experiment has been amply justified by the general results both musically and devotionally. At eight o’clock last night the Church was crowded by a congregation including, we were glad to see, many of ‘the poorer sort’ who form such a large proportion of the residents in the district, and when the procession of choristers, band, and clergy, closed by the Bishop of London, had passed up the centre aisle, even the vacant passage was speedily filled. The shortened order of evensong, including a single psalm (the 22nd), a short lesson, and the canticle Nunc Dimittis having been sung, after the Third Collect the ‘Passion Music’ was commenced with the chorus, ‘Lord, our Redeemer,’ which forms one of the meditative numbers of the work. The tenor recitatives containing the Gospel narrative were then commenced by Mr. Wade, a son of the Rector, and without a single exception, he may be said to have fulfilled his difficult task not only with great artistic taste, but—what is of equal or greater importance in such a work as this—with genuine devotional feeling. The part of the Saviour, allotted to a bass voice, was also sung with care, but with less fervour; and the same remark applies to the short pieces of recitative, in which Pilate takes his part in the mournful drama. The chorales, of which the melody was given in the books placed in the seats, in order that the congregation might join, formed a prominent feature in the service, the people singing to a far greater extent than could have been expected, the ladies’ voices especially being noticeable for the accuracy with which they took up these unaccustomed tunes. Among the most impressive portions of the music were the recitatives describing the delivery of Christ to the Jews by Pilate, the masterly phrases detailing the convulsion of nature when the Saviour died, with the effective accompaniment, and the chorale, ‘While His parting spirit sinks,’ telling with wondrous pathos of the tender thought of Jesus for His mother as He looked upon her from the Cross. Between the two parts of the Oratorio the Bishop of London, who may be congratulated on having thus given his official sanction to the somewhat novel form of service, preached a brief but impressive sermon, chiefly extempore. Taking his text from St. Luke ii. 61, his Lordship spoke of the fall of St. Peter, and the lessons which the Saviour's look upon the erring Apostle are calculated to teach, while he referred, incidentally, to the great power which this wonderful musical picture of the Passion is calculated to exert—earnestly asking all who listened to the Oratorio to remember that as each scene passed before them the eye of Christ was fixed upon them. A word of praise is due to the clergy and churchwardens for the admirable manner in which all the arrangements were carried out, and to Mr. Barnby and his choir, who did their work carefully and reverently."

CRYSTAL PALACE.

MR. HENRY GADSBY'S Overture, "Andromeda," was the novelty at the concert on the 22nd February, and although this composer is by no means a stranger to the audience here, there can be little doubt that this is the ripest work he has yet given us. Dismissing all question as to whether the Overture justifies its title, there can be scarcely two opinions of the merits of the composition, as abstract music. The subjects are melodious, the instrumentation is skillful and in keeping with the nature of the theme he has chosen, and the general effect of the work in every respect fully merited the warm applause with which it was greeted. The other orchestral pieces were Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony," the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's String-Quartet, and the Overture to "Guillaume Tell." The vocalists were Madlle. Risarelli, Herr Diener (who was better in Wagner's "Liebeslied" than in Beethoven's "Adelaide") and Signor Foli. At the following concert, on the 1st ult., Madame Schumann delighted every admirer of legitimate pianoforte playing by her performance of Robert Schumann's Concert-stück in G, with orchestral accompaniments, and two unaccompanied pieces, Chopin's Notturmo in F sharp, and a transcription, by the composer, of Mendelssohn's Scherzo from the music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream." At the same concert Mr. Arthur Sullivan's "Te Deum," composed to commemorate the recovery of the Prince of Wales, was given with excellent effect, the soprano solos being carefully rendered by Madame Rita. The Russian vocalist, Madame Lavrowska, achieved a marked success in "Ah! mon fils," from "Le Prophète," and a song by Glinka, receiving the most enthusiastic demonstrations of approval. It must be mentioned that Dr. Stainer presided efficiently at the organ during the "Te Deum;" and that he also performed the first of Mendelssohn's Three Organ Preludes and Fugues with his well-known ability. On the 8th ult. Madlle. Friese created a decided effect by her performance of the Adagio from Spohr's Violin Concerto (No. 9) and also received applause, not so richly merited, for her execution of the Adagio and Finale of Vieuxtemps' showy Concerto (No. 1). Madame Otto-Alvsleben displayed a clear and well trained voice both in Mozart's "Non mi dir" and Haydn's "On mighty pens," eliciting enthusiastic and well deserved marks of approbation from the large audience assembled. Herr Rietz's new Overture, "Lustspiel," requires a second hearing to warrant any elaborate critical remarks upon its merits, but it made a decided impression both from the melodiousness of its themes and the skill exhibited in the instrumentation. On the 15th ult. Herr Joachim's performance of his Hungarian Concerto (a somewhat diffuse and unsatisfactory work), and the good dramatic singing of Leonora's Scena from "Fidelio," by Madame Elena Corani, were the chief attractions. We must also mention the refined rendering of a tenor song from Mr. Henry Smart's "Bride of Dunkerron," by Mr. W. H. Cummings, which was received so warmly as to make us wonder why this beautiful Cantata should be so rarely performed in public. The orchestral pieces at this concert included Mozart's "Parisian Symphony," which was additionally interesting in consequence of a charming slow movement being introduced which has scarcely ever been heard in connection with the work.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

ONE of the largest audiences ever known in this Hall assembled on Wednesday, the 26th February (Ash Wednesday), that most appropriate Oratorio, the "Messiah," being selected for the occasion. The fine choir, under Mr. Barnby's direction, again asserted its power with brilliant success in the familiar choruses of this work, "For unto us a child is born," the "Hallelujah" and "Worthy is the Lamb," especially, being rendered with a resonance of tone and decision in the points of attack which cannot be too highly commended. Miss Edith Wynne sang with much purity and truth of expression the soprano solos, more particularly "I know that my Redeemer liveth," Madame Patey was equally successful in "He was despised," Mr. E. Lloyd fully sustained his growing reputation in the whole of the exacting tenor music, and Signor Foli proved himself as able an exponent of sacred as he is known to be of secular music, his energetic delivery of "Why do the nations?" creating a marked effect with the audience. The Prince and Princess of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh not only were present at the concert, but remained until the conclusion; and those who listened with pleasure to Dr. Stainer's performance of an organ solo between the parts will be certain be glad to know that it was played by the express desire of the Prince of Wales.

The performance of Handel's "Israel in Egypt," on the 19th ult., was undoubtedly the severest test to which the choir has yet been subjected; and the successful result, therefore, deserves more than the conventional words of praise usually accorded to Oratorio concerts. Considering that the conductor was a stranger to a very large portion of the singers only two or three months ago, and that many members of his own choir, instead of being banded together, as of old, were compelled to be scattered about amongst vocalists who had for some time been accustomed to the bâton of another conductor, the marvellous precision which has been gained reflects the highest credit, not only upon the exertions of Mr. Barnby himself, but upon every individual in the choral body; for without an earnest desire to sacrifice all personal considerations towards a general good, so uniformly excellent a rendering of Handel's sublime work could not possibly have been attained. The whole of the choruses in the first Part were finely sung, especially "He spake the word," "He gave them hailstones," and "He led them through the deep;" and the three double choruses in the second Part, "Thou sendest forth Thy wrath," "And with the blast," and "Sing ye to the Lord," were remarkable instances of the power possessed by the conductor of perfectly controlling the amount of tone in so large a choir. Madame Elena Corani's best effort was in the solo "Thou didst blow," and Miss Wigan displayed a pleasing and well trained voice in the duet, with Madame Corani, "The Lord is my strength." Madame Patey was highly effective in the solo music which fell to her share (especially in the air "Thou shalt bring them in"), and Mr. Lewis Thomas and Mr. Thurley Beale gave an admirable rendering of the florid duet, "The Lord is a man of war." Mr. Sims Reeves was engaged both at this and the former concert, but a severe cold prevented his attending on either occasion; and when we say, therefore, that Mr. W. H. Cummings gained the most solid applause for his singing of the one tenor air "The enemy said," and that, but for the tacit rule which forbids encores at these concerts, he would have been compelled to repeat it, more than the usual amount of credit is due to him for his exertions. The orchestral parts were enriched by the additional wind instrument accompaniments of Mr. G. A. Macfarren. Mr. Barnby conducted, and Dr. Stainer presided at the organ. The Hall was crowded in every part, and amongst the audience were the Princess of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Arthur.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

THIS Society began its sixty-first season at St. James's Hall on the 19th ult., before a large audience. The programme contained no positive novelty, but Schumann's "Overture, Scherzo and Finale," which commenced the concert, was a welcome opening piece, if only on account of the beauty of the middle movement, which was received, as it deserved to be, with the warmest marks of approbation. Signor Rendano's performance of Mendelssohn's Pianoforte Concerto in G minor suggested comparisons which perhaps would be "odious," except at a Philharmonic concert, where the subscribers and the public have a right to expect that only the ripest artists should be heard; but his dashing and undoubtedly clever playing gained him a recall, and a round of kindly applause. Madlle. Girardi produced but little effect in her two songs (one an interesting Scena ed Aria, by Lucio Vero, scored by Mr. W. G. Cousins), but Mr. Edward Lloyd sang well, and created a marked effect with the audience. Besides Schumann's piece, the orchestral works were Beethoven's Symphony in B flat (No. 4) and the Overtures "Le Médecin malgré lui" (Gounod) and "Die Weihe des Hauses" (Beethoven), all of which were excellently played. Mr. W. G. Cousins (who conducted with his accustomed ability) was received with much applause on his entrance into the orchestra.

MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.

THE first concert of the season, which took place at St. James's Hall on the 27th February, was one admirably suited to display the choir to the utmost advantage. The idea of dividing the programme into two parts, the first consisting of the works of Italian and the second of English composers, was an exceedingly happy one, and proved highly effective. The specimens of Madrigals by the Italian masters were well chosen, Marenzio's "Queen of the World," Croce's "Cynthia, thy charms," and Festa's "Down in a flow'ry vale" especially delighting the audience, not only from their intrinsic merits, but from the faultless manner in which they were executed; and Signor Pinsuti's Serenade, "In this hour of softened splendour," as an example of the modern school, lost none of its effect by comparison with the compositions which had preceded it. The portion of the programme devoted to the works of our countrymen included two new part-songs by Walter Macfarren, "Lovers' parting" and "Shepherds all" (the latter of which most deservedly won an encore), Samuel Wesley's fine Motet, "In exitu Israel," Henry Leslie's melodious trio, "O, memory," Sir Sterndale Bennett's charming part-song, "Come, live with me" and several Madrigals, the choir indeed throughout the evening being, as it always should be, the main attraction. Madlle. Gaetano, Madame Patey and Mr. W. H. Cummings were the solo vocalists; and Mr. Henry Holmes's performances on the violin were a marked feature in the concert. Mr. Henry Leslie conducted with his accustomed skill, and Mr. J. G. Callcott presided at the pianoforte.

HERR PAUER'S LECTURES.

THE first of three lectures on the History of the Oratorio, given by Herr Pauer in connection with the Sacred Harmonic Society, at Exeter Hall, was delivered on the evening of Wednesday, the 19th ult. After defining the term Oratorio, and explaining the difference between this form of composition and the Cantata, the lecturer traced with much clearness the gradual progress of the sacred musical drama to the time of Carissimi, in the seventeenth century. The illustrations included the "Lully, lullay," as sung by the women of Coventry at the dramatic Mysteries, anciently performed by the trading companies of that city; a double chorus by Palestrina (containing some striking harmonies); a scene from the first Oratorio, "L'Anima ed il Corpo," by Emilio del Cavallieri, and Carissimi's Oratorio, "Jephthah," which was given in its entirety. This last work was in the highest degree interesting; for although Mr. Henry Leslie has latterly made us acquainted with the same composer's "Jonah," this fine Biblical drama is but little known save to the most enthusiastic musical antiquarians. The solo vocalists were Miss Banks, Miss Marion Severn, Mrs. Sydney Smith, Mr. Chaplin Henry, and Mr. Montem Smith, all of whom were thoroughly satisfactory; but the choir betrayed unmistakable signs of the want of careful drilling. At the second lecture, on the 26th ult., some excellent specimens were given from the sacred works of Alessandro Stradella, and Alessandro Scarlatti, the duet between Herod and his daughter, from Stradella's Oratorio "St. John the Baptist," being a happy example of that composer's style, and a beautiful song in A minor from an Oratorio by Scarlatti (charmingly sung by Miss Banks), pleasing so much as to be re-demanded. The lecturer's remarks upon the German Oratorio, and especially upon the chorales, which at first were violently opposed by the Roman Catholic clergy, had much interest in the present day, when the growing popularity of Bach's "Passion Music" in this country is drawing so much of the public attention to these beautiful "people's songs." The selection from the "History of the Sufferings and Death of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," by Heinrich Schütz, contained some fine vocal writing, the choruses especially showing remarkable power and invention, and making us indeed long to hear the entire work. After stating that the Hamburg Oratorios formed the model for those of Handel, and that they are imitated by Sebastian Bach, in his St. Matthew Passion Music, Herr Pauer thoroughly proved his assertion by an extract from Reinhard Keiser's "Passion Music" (to words of B. H. Broekes), many portions of which bore a remarkable resemblance to the music with which the English public is now becoming tolerably familiar. With the exception of Mr. T. Distin (who replaced Mr. Chaplin Henry) the solo vocalists were the same as at the first lecture, Miss Ellen Horne and Miss J. Wells, however, lending efficient aid in the music requiring additional voices. The lecture was listened to with the utmost attention throughout; and the repeated bursts of applause proved that the audience fully appreciated not only the interest of the subject, but the able manner in which it was treated. Mr. Smythson conducted the choir with much steadiness, and Mr. Willing presided at the organ. The concluding lecture will take place on the 2nd instant.

A CONCERT, for the benefit of Mr. J. L. Hatton, was given by Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Santley at St. James's Hall, on the 26th ult., which, we are happy to say, was very fully attended. Besides the two artists already mentioned, the solo vocalists were Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Emily Spiller, Miss Jenny Pratt, Madame Patey, Mr. Henry Guy, and Mr. Pyatt. Mr. Santley elicited an almost uproarious encore for Mr. Hatton's beautiful song, "To Anthea" (which appears to be now gaining the popularity it deserves); the same composer's duet, "The Chamois Hunters," (given for the first time, and charmingly sung by Messrs Reeves and Santley) received a similar compliment, and "The British Tar" (another song by Hatton), was so well given by Mr. Santley as to be also re-demanded. Mr. Sydney Smith played two solos on the pianoforte (the second of which was encored), the audience indeed being apparently inclined to have everything repeated. The accompanists at the pianoforte were Herr Meyer Lutz, Mr. Lindsay Sloper, and Mr. J. L. Hatton himself, who certainly had every reason to be gratified with the compliment paid to him by his brother artists, and the manner in which their good intentions had been seconded by the public.

THE first of a series of five Operatic and Instrumental Popular Concerts was given at the Gloucester Hall, Brixton Road, on Wednesday, the 26th ult., under the direction of Mr. J. B. Wade Thirlwall. The following artists appeared:—Miss Annie Thirlwall, Misses Sophia and Harriet Pelham; Messrs. J. B. Bolton, G. Horton, J. Snelling, W. Maby, E. Deane Annesley, A. Hall, R. Melting, and J. B. Wade Thirlwall. The concert was a success, and a second is announced for Thursday, the 10th inst., when Miss Sophia Pelham, Mr. Thirlwall, and Mr. J. B. Bolton will appear in Offenbach's Operetta, "The Rose of Auvergne."

AT the concert of Mr. Walter Bache, which was given at St. James's Hall on the 28th February, the programme had the usual special interest for the lovers of the modern German school of music in general, and of Franz Liszt in particular. A setting by this composer of the 13th Psalm, for tenor solo, chorus and orchestra, was the important work produced on the occasion, and although a single hearing of such a composition can but imperfectly satisfy any person who wishes to pronounce a decided opinion upon its merits, there can be no question that it evidences very remarkable power throughout. With much that appears incomprehensible, at least to those who have not attentively studied the score, we have occasional passages of extreme beauty; and Mr. Bache certainly deserves the utmost credit for bringing forward in so perfect a manner a novelty of such pretension. The tenor solos were well sung by Mr. Guy, of the Royal Academy of Music. The Chorus of Reapers, from the music supplied by Liszt to "Prometheus," is so intelligible and tuneful a piece of writing as to require no undue worship of its composer to ensure it a welcome, and it was encored with enthusiasm. Mr. Bache's performance of Schumann's Concerto (Op. 54) was deservedly received with the warmest applause; and mention must be made of the excellent singing of Miss Sophie Ferrari and Miss Georgina Maudsley. The conductors were Mr. Manns and Mr. Walter Bache, and Dr. Heap was an able accompanist at the pianoforte.

THE £1,000 challenge prize, won by the South Wales Choral Union at the late National Music Meetings, was presented at the Crystal Palace on the 25th February, before a large assembly of spectators. The prize was given by T. Hughes, Esq., M.P., and formally received by Mr. Jones, who was introduced as a working blacksmith. Several speeches were delivered to the meeting, congratulating the working men and women who composed the choir upon their success; and at the conclusion the St. George's Rifles' band played the "Men of Harlech" and "God bless the Prince of Wales," the composer of the latter piece (who formed one of the deputation from South Wales) having to come forward and bow his acknowledgments.

In a list of vocal novelties from America we find one called "The Increase of Crime." Here is a hint for the London publishers who appeal so eloquently to the passions and affections of the public. A song with some glowing words on the evil tendencies of the time, set to appropriate music, might be bought up by philanthropists for distribution amongst the poor; and "moral music" might eventually supersede "moral pocket handkerchiefs."

On Tuesday evening, the 25th February, at the Southwark Congregational Church, New Kent Road, a sacred concert was given by the Southwark Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. J. Courtney. The programme included "Overture to the Occasional Oratorio" (Handel), very effectively played on the harmonium by Mr. W. H. Harper (who also gave the overture to Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," at the opening of the second part), and the Anthems "O Lord, our Lord" (by Mr. Courtney), "Keep, we beseech Thee" (H. Buckland), and "O taste and see how gracious the Lord is" (W. H. Harper). Mr. Bunker sang the solo "Lord, God of Abraham," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and also took part with Mrs. Underwood in the duet "Graceful consort," both of which were received with much applause, as were also the solos, "He giveth His beloved sleep," by Mrs. Underwood; "Through the changes of the day," by Miss Giblett, and "Lord, to Thee," by Miss Dear. The choruses were sung with precision and care, reflecting much credit upon the training and tutoring of Mr. Courtney.

A PROSPECTUS of the Cincinnati Musical Festival has been recently forwarded to us, by which we learn that the performance will take place during the month of May. Several societies have been organized for practice, with the view of assisting at the Festival; the Exposition Buildings, owned by the city, will be furnished for the occasion, free of rent; and it is intended that during the concerts a recess of about half an hour shall take place, when the company will be admitted to those parts of the building not used for musical purposes, where, as the prospectus informs us, shall be displayed "the most tempting viands, the most delicate ice-creams, the most fragrant coffee, and whatever else might tempt the most dainty appetite." An organ is to be built expressly for the festival, and a first-rate orchestra will be provided. The principal vocalists engaged are Mrs. Emma R. Dexter (soprano), Miss Annie Louise Cary (alto), Mr. Nelson Varley (tenor)—who is stated, by the way, to be "considered in England a worthy successor of Sims Reeves"—Mr. M. W. Whitney (bass), and Mr. J. F. Rudolphsen (baritone). The works to be performed are not mentioned; but it is said that the programmes for the evening concerts are to be "pure and clean, without being heavy." Let us hope that such attractive features as these may be as rigidly preserved at the concerts in the morning.

On the 13th ult. a performance of sacred music was given in Markham Square Congregational Church, Chelsea, in aid of the Debt Liquidation Fund. The programme included the greater portion of Mozart's Twelfth Service, Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer," and "On Thee each living soul awaits," with "The Heavens are telling," from the "Creation." The soloists were Miss Maria Langley, Miss Janetta E. Jackson, Mr. Alfred Rudland, and Mr. Thomas Soper. The organist of the church, Miss Mary Johnson (Fell. Coll. Org.) presided at the organ, and Mr. Walter Johnson conducted the choir of 148 voices. At the close of the performance a large assembly met Miss Johnson in the lecture room under the church, and, after a graceful speech, laudatory of her services as organist of the church, the Rev. Andrew Mearns presented her with a very handsome gold chain and locket, which had been subscribed for by members of the choir and congregation. Mr. Walter Johnson returned thanks on behalf of his daughter.

THE Most Honourable and Loyal Society of Ancient Britons held its 158th Festival at Willis's Rooms on the 1st ult. (St. David's Day), Edward Rhys Wingfield, Esq., in the chair. The feature of the evening was unquestionably the music, which, under the able direction of Mr. Brinley Richards (who gratuitously places his services at the disposal of the Society at its annual festival), was well selected and excellently performed. The principal vocalists were Miss Llewellyn Bagnall, Miss Marion Williams and Miss Mary Davies, Mr. W. Davies (whose bust of Mr. Richard, M.P., was in last year's Academy Exhibition) ably officiating as voluntary conductor of the choir. Grace was sung after dinner to Welsh words, and a Welsh melody, hundreds of years old, arranged for the occasion by Mr. Brinley Richards. Miss Bagnall (who possesses a sympathetic voice and sings with much musical feeling) gave with decided success the song, "A gentle maid in secret sighed" (from the "Songs of Wales," edited by Mr. Richards), and a beautiful little Welsh ballad was so well sung by Miss Mary Davies as to elicit a demand for its repetition, which was complied with, in spite of the announcement in the programme prohibiting encores. Gruffydd, Lady Llanover's blind veteran harper, his daughter, in Welsh peasant's costume, and a young pupil, created quite a sensation by their performance on the triple-stringed harp; and a good effect was gained by the introduction of the school children, for whose benefit the festival is held, who sang an Ode, the words by Sir F. H. Doyle, and the tune an adaptation of "The Ash Grove." The subscriptions during the evening amounted to nearly £900.

THE numerous correspondents who have written to us in reply to the question "Is a Parish Church Organ public property?" must accept our thanks for the lengthy manner in which they have treated the subject; but we take the opportunity of again reminding those who favour us with communications intended for insertion, that those will be invariably selected wherein clearness is united with brevity.

A CONCERT was given by the pupils of the London Society for Teaching the Blind to Read, at the Institution, Upper Avenue Road, on the 14th ult., which was in every respect fully equal, both in the selection and performance of the music, to the many upon which we have already commented. The concert was under the direction of Mr. Edwin Barnes, Professor of Music at the Society's Schools, who has for so many years proved his skill and aptitude for this responsible office. We understand that Sullivan's Cantata, "The Prodigal Son," will be performed at the concert in June.

MRS. HOLMAN ANDREWS gave a concert in the Hanover Square Rooms on the 10th ult., before a large audience, Misses Edith and Gertrude Holman Andrews were highly successful in all their vocal efforts, the former in Blumen-thal's "Love the Pilgrim," and the latter in a song by Balfe, receiving most enthusiastic encores. Miss Edith Wynne, Madame Patey (who sang with much effect a composition by the concert-giver, which was re-demanded), Mr. Cummings and Mr. Patey, were also included among the singers; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blagrove (harmonium and piano-forte), and Mr. John Thomas (harp), were the solo instrumentalists. The vocal music was ably accompanied by Mrs. Holman Andrews, Messrs Blumen-thal and Pinsuti.

HIS Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has signified his intention of presiding at the Festival of the Royal Society of Musicians, which will probably take place during the month of June.

THE many who remember with pleasure the excellent singing of Herr Pischek in this country more than five and twenty years ago, will regret to learn that he has lately died at Stuttgart. His funeral was numerously attended, not only by artists, but by the representatives of all classes in the city.

HERR FERDINAND DAVID, the friend of Mendelssohn, and one of the truest artists in Germany, took his farewell of the Gewandhaus at Leipzig, on the 6th ult., playing on the occasion Bach's Concerto, No. 3, in D minor, and other compositions, which were received with the warmest demonstrations of delight by the large audience assembled. Herr David was a brother of the late celebrated pianist Madame Dulcken, and has held the post of Concertmeister since 1836.

On Tuesday the 25th February the second of Mr. Edwin Bending's "Popular Concerts" was given at the Christ Church Schools, Ealing. The first part consisted of Mendelssohn's "Athalie," performed with harmonium (Mr. Tamplin), and pianoforte (Mr. Bending) accompaniment. The soprano solos were given with much effect by Miss Jessie Jones and Mlle. Marie Dolby, the contralto part by Miss Julia Elton, who, it is needless to add, sang it most artistically; the lyrics were declaimed with considerable dramatic power by Mr. Charles E. Fry. The choir, composed of members of various London choral societies, and ably conducted by Mr. Randegger, sang the choruses with great firmness and precision. In the second part solos were effectively contributed by Mr. Guy, Mr. Wadmors, and the artists before named. A clarionet solo by Mr. Lazarus was warmly applauded, and Mr. Bending's pianoforte playing was much admired. Mr. Bending is to be congratulated on having given so excellent a concert; and it is to be hoped that on future occasions his efforts may be rewarded by a larger attendance.

BACH'S Passion Music (St. Matthew), will be given during Holy Week at St. Paul's, London, and at Christ Church, Oxford. Its successful performance at Manchester is noticed in our "Brief Summary."

ROSSINI'S "Stabat Mater" and Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" are announced for performance at the Fourth Subscription Concert of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, which takes place to-morrow evening. The solo vocalists will be Madame Otto-Alvsleben, who made so great a success in the Passion Music at Manchester, Madame Patey, Miss Emily Spiller, Mr. Sims Reeves, Signor Bettini and Signor Agnesi, Dr. Stainer presiding at the organ. The band and chorus, numbering over 1200 performers, will be, as usual, conducted by Mr. Barnby. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" is to be performed at the Fifth Concert on the 23rd inst, and the series will conclude on the 7th proximo with the revival of Handel's "Belshazzar."

THE prospectuses of the two Italian Opera-houses hold out but small attraction during the coming season for those who go to hear works rather than singers; but as the appeal is annually made more to fashion than to art, we presume that the announcements, to those who are most interested in them, may on the whole be considered satisfactory. At the Royal Italian Opera we are promised Madame Adelina Patti, Madame Pauline Lucca, Madlle. Emma Albani and Madame Sinico. Of course, as usual, it is a miracle that the services of some of these artists have been secured. It was feared, for instance, that Madame Lucca, "had yielded to the temptation held out to her by the American managers, and had accepted an engagement to perform in the United States," but the Director "fortunately, although at great cost," succeeded in persuading her to come to England. Of Madame Patti it is said that, although it is confidently believed she will cross the Atlantic in September, "she may yet waver;" and then comes an allusion to the money we have paid to the Americans, in settlement of the Alabama question, winding up with the following affecting sentence: "Let them take their dollars, and be content; we can afford the dollars, but our Opera cannot yet afford to part with its greatest favourite." Coming again to plain matters of fact, the names of Signori Nicolini, Bettini, Urlo, Marino, Manfredi, and Rossi are to be found amongst the tenors, and Signori Graziani, Cotogni, and Faure amongst the baritones and basses. There are several new singers mentioned; but as many of them may not be forthcoming, it will be sufficient to name them and discuss their merits as they appear during the season. Notwithstanding the grandiloquent announcement of last season, there is no mention of Wagner's "Lohengrin" in the prospectus; but Verdi's "Ernani" and "Luiza Miller," Auber's "Les Diamants de la Couronne," a new Opera by Puchielli, entitled "I Promessi Sposi," Rossini's "Mosé in Egitto," and that wearisome work, "Il Guarany," by Gomez, are promised; the splendour of the spectacle in the last-named Opera being, we presume, considered a sufficient attraction to counterbalance the feebleness of the music. The conductorship will again be divided between Signor Vianesi and Signor Bevignani; and the stage management will be placed in the experienced hands of Mr. Augustus Harris.

MR. MAPLESON'S prospectus informs us that Her Majesty's Opera House will again be Drury Lane Theatre, "which has been found perfectly adapted for operatic representations." With the accustomed flourish respecting the talents of vocalists who have long since rendered themselves independent of such heralding, we have the welcome names of Madame Christine Nilsson, Madlle. Titiens, Madlle. Ilma di Murska, Madlle. Clara Louise Kellogg, Madame Trebelli-Bettini and Madlle. Marie Roze; Signori Campanini, Mongini (the former styled in the prospectus the "first tenor," and the latter the "great tenor"), Fancelli, Rota, Mendioroz, Agnesi and Borella. The late Mr. Balfe's Opera, "The Talisman" (prepared for the fashionable world under the title of "Il Talismano") is the only novelty promised; but Donizetti's "La Favorita" and Thomas's "Mignon" are also to be given during the season. Cherubini's "Le Due Giornate" will be performed "if the other important arrangements will permit." Considering, it is admitted by the lessee, that the production of this work last season "created so much satisfaction in musical circles," we presume that these are not the "circles" to which Mr. Mapleson looks for patronage. The cast of some of the Operas includes the names of several new comers; and many of our established favourites will appear in parts for the first time in England. We are glad to find that Sir Michael Costa still retains his post of conductor. The Royal Italian Opera names the date of our present number as the opening night, and the season at Her Majesty's Opera is advertised to commence on the 15th inst.

AN excellent concert was given in the St. George's Vestry Hall, Cable Street, on Tuesday evening the 25th February, in aid of the funds of St. John's Church, Grove Street, before a highly appreciative audience. Miss Ellen Glanville received an encore for her rendering of Molloy's "So the story goes," and Miss Julia Derby in Hullah's "Storm;" Mr. Albert James in "The Thorn," and Mr. A. Latta in Leslie's "Speed on, my bark," elicited much applause. Mr. Pettitt was extremely useful as accompanist. The concert was a complete success.

THE monthly concert of the St. George's Glee Union took place at the Pimlico Rooms on Friday the 7th ult; the chief attraction being Miss Horder's excellent rendering of Rossini's "Bel raggio." Miss Janet King sang with much effect "Il Bacio" (Arditi), and gained a well-merited encore. Miss Wade's harp solo, "Love's Fascination," was brilliantly executed and re-demanded, as was also the piano-forte solo by Miss Augarde, entitled "La Cascade" (E. Pauer). Among the choral selections the most noticeable were the part-songs "Oh! hush thee, my Babe" (A. S. Sullivan), "In the lonely Vale of Streams" (Callcott), and the quartett "Once I loved a maiden fair," by Miss Horder, Miss C. Buley, Mr. Coles, and Mr. Tom Ellis.

ON Monday evening, the 10th ult., the members of the London Vocal Union, under the direction of Mr. George Wells, gave a miscellaneous concert at Albion Hall, London-wall. The first part consisted of "Abraham's Sacrifice," a Cantata, by Mr. J. J. Haite, which was rendered with considerable care and finish. In the second part, Mr. A. James sang a new song called "The Angel at the Window," and "Love's Request," as well as "Good-bye, Sweetheart," in answer to an encore. Miss Maria Langley was highly effective in the solo "Again from Heaven," in "Abraham's Sacrifice," and Mr. B. Scott (who sang the music allotted to Abraham in the Cantata) gave, in the second part, "The Brave Old Oak." A part-song called "Night," written by Mr. Wells, was very well sung, as was also "The Dawn of Day," a quartett. Miss Whitehead was the accompanist.

Reviews.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The Hymnary. A Book of Church Song. Edited by the Rev. W. Cooke, M.A., Hon. Canon of Chester, and the Rev. B. Webb, Rector of S. Andrew's, Wells Street. The Music edited by Joseph Barnby.

(Continued from p. 13.)

DR. STEGGALL is so successful in carol and hymn-tune writing, that it is a matter for regret that he does not tear himself away from some of those innumerable pupils who draw instruction from him, and devote himself to the production of works of a larger calibre. Those who may chance to remember the performance of the sacred cantata which won for him his University honours at Trinity Coll., Cambridge, must have a vivid remembrance of the sweetness and elegance of that work, although it was accompanied, in lieu of a band, on the organ of the College chapel by the lamented Walmisley. The tune No. 275 is well worthy of its author's reputation, and must inevitably be an universal favourite. The anonymous author of No. 281 has produced a melody with admirable "swing" and brightness. But in 283 another, or the same un-named author has unconsciously borrowed his first line, almost note for note from the setting of the same hymn in "Hymns Ancient and Modern." It seems very unwise to place two versions of the same German melody as next door neighbours, especially when they differ so slightly as do 289 and 290. The absence of a repeat in the former may prove a plentiful source of trouble to choir-masters when the latter is attempted to be sung. The words of both are very beautiful and of importance, so it is improbable that only one will be used. We may be excused if we give the air of both in order that they may be compared with a third version of the same tune as given by Wesley in his "European Psalmist:"—

MADRIGAL FOR FOUR VOICES.

The Words and Music composed by JOSEPH NETHERCLIFT.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). New York: J. L. PETERS, 539, Broadway.

In moderate time.mf (2nd time p.)

ALTO. We hap-py, hap-py shepherd swains, we hap-py shep-herd

1st TENOR. (sve. lower.) We hap-py, hap-py shep-herd swains, 2nd TENOR. (sve. lower.) We hap-py shep-herd swains, We

BASS. We hap-py, hap-py shep-herd swains,

ACCOMP. In moderate time.
mf (2nd time p.)

swains Now leave till morn the moun-tain

hap-py shepherd swains, Now leave till morn . . the moun-tain

hap-py shepherd swains, Now leave till morn . . the moun-tain

hap-py shepherd swains, Now leave till morn . . the moun-tain

p

cres. side, To sport . . . up-on the vil-lage plains, With cres. side, To sport up-on the vil-lage plains, to sport, . . to sport . . .

cres. side, To sport up-on the vil-lage plains, to sport, . . to sport . . . With cres. side, To sport . . . up-on the vil-lage plains, With

cres.

Still our joy - ous mirth is seen, . . . Still our joy - ous, joy - - ous mirth is green, Still our joy - ous mirth is seen, Still our joy - - ous, joy - ous mirth is
- a - - mell'd green, Still our joy - ous mirth, still our joy - ous mirth is green, Still our joy - ous mirth is seen, Still our joy - - ous mirth is seen, Fa . . . la la la . . . la la la, fa la la la la, . . .

seen, Fa . . . la la la la la la, fa la la la la la la, Fa . . .
seen, . . . Fa la la la la la la la, Fa la la la la la la la seen, Till the knell of fa - ding light. When we fa la la la, fa la la la, Fa la la la la. la. Till the . . . la la la, la . . . Till the la, Fa la la la la la la la, Fa la la la. la. Till the part with sweet good night. . . . Till the 1st time. || 2nd time. dim.

1st time. || 2nd time. dim.

knell of fa - ding light, . . . When we part with sweet good knell of fa - ding light, When we part with sweet good knell of fa - ding light, . . . When we part . . . with sweet good knell, . . . the knell. When we part with sweet good

The first system of the musical score for 'We Happy Shepherd Swains'. It consists of five staves. The top four staves are vocal parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass) and the bottom staff is the piano accompaniment. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 4/4. The lyrics are: 'knell of fa - ding light, . . . When we part with sweet good'.

night, . . . with sweet good night, . . . good night, . . . sweet good night, with sweet good night, good night, good night, sweet good night, with sweet good night, good night, . . . sweet good night, . . . with sweet good night, good night, good

The second system of the musical score. It continues the vocal and piano parts. The lyrics are: 'night, . . . with sweet good night, . . . good night, . . . sweet good'.

night, good night, good night. . .

night, good night, . . . good night, . . . good night, good night. . .

night, good night, . . . good night, . . . good night, good night. . .

night. . .

The third system of the musical score. It concludes the piece. The lyrics are: 'night, good night, good night. . .'.

According to Wesley—

Which of these readings is best, it must be for the reader to decide. School teachers will trace a strong resemblance to this tune in the round "Follow, follow me," commencing at the words "Whither shall I follow?" Foremost amongst the Easter tunes stands Gounod's noble setting of "Jesus Christ is risen to-day." It is true that the first line smacks of the old St. Anne's, but despite this, the composition cannot be too highly praised. The effect of the gradual mounting up of the Alleluia, note by note, at each repetition is simply magnificent. Time only is required to make this composition not only a household treasure, but a vehicle of the highest form of worship on the largest scale. But let it not be taken at a quicker pace than the metro-nomic sign indicates. Worgan's old tune to the same words has been judiciously retained in the "Hymnary." Notwithstanding its faults as to extended melodic compass, and rolling quavers, it is certainly beautiful. Either accidentally or purposely, we know not which, but if the latter, highly to his credit, Sir John Goss has in his arrangement of this, made each Alleluia do duty as part of the harmony of the other. If he will excuse the liberty, it shall be sketched in three parts, not that he has done it in this way, but because it better explains our meaning:—

Would it be too much to ask for the last Alleluia thus?—

Putting the cleverness of the double counterpoint out of the question, it must be allowed that this welds the different lines of the music together, and gives the whole an unity which we doubt if its author would object to. Mr. Barnby gives in 295 a good bold double chant for the words "The foe behind, the deep before," and Dr. Gauntlett, an excellent C. M. Tune to "O Thou, Eternal King, most High" (302). The melody of 306 by Dr. Armes, is smooth and good, but the harmonies might be simplified with advantage. The D \sharp in the last bar but one strikes us as being a little out of place. No. 310, by H. B. Walmisley is a remarkably good tune. The melody is original without being discursive, and it is well harmonized. This seems to be the only product of this author in the book, which is a pity, if it is a sample of his powers. In 305 and 313 it is absolutely necessary to alter the line which originally appears to have run thus:— but there seems no reason why it should not be—the reaching up to E is certainly joyous, and need not be vulgar. Mr. Hoyte's tune 314, is solid in style and, if we may be allowed the expression, will wear well. The rhythm of 315 is as unsatisfactory as it is unnecessary. The constant recurrence of dotted notes at the commencement of each line, produces a feeling of unrest.

The tune 325 named Rolvenden in the index to the "Hymnary," and said to be from the English Psalter of 1615, is either an adaptation from, or a plagiarism of the Old 81st (as given by Havergal) from Day's Psalter, 1563. In either case it will be interesting to put both into the same key and compare them:—

Although the succession of long and short notes in the latter of these becomes irksome, it is on the whole preferable to the former. Attwood's lovely setting of the Veni Creator (328) seems to have been hitherto much neglected, although it is to be heard at every Ordination in the Metropolitan Cathedral in its original seat, the key of F. The version of Croft's 136th, as given in 332, differs slightly from that commonly known, the note to the last word but one, line 4, being often G \sharp and the final cadence being a $\frac{3}{4}$ on A. No. 337 is an excellent C. M. by Ouseley. Though long and chromatic, and not easily to be committed to memory, Dr. Hiller's tune 360 will commend itself to all those who value originality and emancipation from conventionalities. It would bear to be taken at a pace a trifle slower than that indicated, in our judgment. Its breadth and solemnity are remarkable. In tune 361, though good in itself, there occur some very bad accents when sung to the words. We must presume that the editors of the words are in some degree responsible for this fault, as Dr. Garrett is too sound a musician to wilfully displace the natural laws of accent.

One of those mysterious and incorporeal beings termed "Anonymous" has produced an admirable setting of Hymn 374, fresh and bright, yet imposing in effect. Tune 386, by J. Baptiste Calkin, is noticeable for its tunefulness and fitness for the words to which it is attached.

We have not yet passed the fourth hundred out of the 646 tunes of the "Hymnary," but find that the present notice has reached the limits of space which can probably be spared for it. The wealth which has to be described or criticized must be a sufficient excuse for these extended notices. The contents of the "Hymnary" are too important to be merely glanced at.

"The days of man are but as grass." Anthem. By R. W. Crowe, Mus. D., Cantab.

THIS somewhat extensive work comprehends a Chorus, a Verse—to quote the author's use of the old cathedral term—beginning "But the merciful goodness," the choral Inter-mezzo "The Lord hath prepared," and a final Chorus, "O speak good of the Lord." It has the peculiarity, happily a rare one, of ending in a different key from that of its commencement; a consequence, let us suppose, of the long-standing confusion of what are called "relative" major and minor keys—keys that have no seeming relationship but in the unlucky accident of their bearing the same signature, just as anybody having the name of Brown or Smith or Jones, may be related to any other who owns to the same cognomen. The Tonic-Sol-Fa fiction that the tonalities of E flat and C minor are identical, is less amusing than many another fallacy that holds a limited esteem, but it is far more pernicious. It is fortunately the last remnant to art of the ecclesiastical Modal system, and music will stand in a clearer light than it does to all young students when the terms "relative major" and "relative minor" are exploded with the principle they pretend to define. Whatever the merit of the theory that is assumed to connect these keys of C minor and E flat, the effect is quite unsatisfactory, of a composition closing in the one which opens in the other; but elsewhere would be a fitter place for discussing this important topic than in the examination of Dr. Crowe's Anthem, wherein it is exemplified. More than the use of the old term "Verse" to describe the Trio for adult voices in the middle of the work, more than the unctuous effect of certain phrases for the counter-tenor, which arise in its course, and savour strongly of the Glee, as well as Church style of the last century, does much of the form, and the manner of the composition suggest that the works of that period have been the author's standard, if not his model. He has wanted the clear-sightedness, however, to distinguish what is technically characteristic of that age from what is peculiar to a later time—hence, he uses some modernisms of harmony such as Kent, and Nares, and their fellows could never have conceived, and which are consequently out of keeping with the general material and structure of his work. His final fugue is, or has the air of being, somewhat laboured. We write fugues under great difficulties in this age compared with those which beset our predecessors, who lived in a fugal atmosphere, hearing fugues, singing fugues, playing fugues, and making fugues, so that the contrapuntal idiom became their vernacular, and they expressed themselves as naturally in its form as we do in the phraseology of our own time. A little stiffness may then fairly be forgiven, since few of us escape it, if a fugue be indispensable in a piece of now-a-days Church music. On the whole, this anthem disappoints the expectations raised by Dr. Crowe's Communion Service, lately reviewed.

"The Lord is my strength." A short, easy, full Anthem for Easter Day. Composed by Albert Lowe.

This anthem amply fulfils the announcement on the title-page; it is "short," and "easy," the subjects moreover, being both melodious and well harmonized. The change of key at the words "Open me the gates," is good; and the "Adagio Religioso" which follows, serves well as a contrast. We question, however, the policy of starting the voices in unison at the return to the original key and time, as we have already had enough of this effect before the commencement of the "Adagio." The unexpected chord of B flat, after the lingering of the voices upon D, is a point worthy of attention; and the manner in which the harmonies flow towards the final close is well deserving of commendation. The anthem will, we think, be found extremely useful wherever a desire is felt for something quiet and unpretending at the Easter-day service.

The Organist's Quarterly Journal. Edited by William Spark, Mus.D. Part 17.

WITH this number, the Organist's Quarterly Journal enters upon its fifth year—an accumulating testimony of the living talent for organ composition, and of the wide esteem for this class of music. The part for January last begins with Twelve Short Interludes, by Henry Smart, for use between the Offertory Sentences, or at Confirmations. The plan of this series is somewhat novel, and certainly ingenious. The twelve are in truth one piece interspersed with eleven discretionary silences, for one tempo is preserved throughout, and what still more justifies this view, some of the same phrases recur from piece to piece, and no one comes to a complete conclusion until the very last, each resting upon a half-close, or in some key different from that of its commencement. Thus, No. 1 begins in G and ends on a chord of D, and No. 2 begins with the same theme in D and closes in G, and this said theme reappears in Nos. 6, 9, and 12. Again, the matter of No. 11 is integral to the next piece, and in this manner one design encompasses the whole cluster. A remoter change of key than any of the others have, from that of the foregoing interlude, marks No. 5; this presents what may be called a second subject or episode, and is to us the most interesting of the twelve. They have all greatly the air of improvisations, but this in no respect unfits them for their purpose. Mr. Smart has been one of the most frequent contributors to the work, and though he has put forth compositions of more musical importance, he has furnished nothing that better supplies a need than his present essay. A second movement follows of the Sonata in F, by Mr. Silas, of which the first instalment was issued in a previous number of the Journal. It is an Andante con moto in B flat, and a decided advance in merit upon the opening Allegro. A few preludial bars introduce the chief subject, a well sustained melody; this is relieved by an episode wherein the pedals have a conspicuous duty; and then, in Rondo wise, the prior matter comes again without modification, and a short coda closes the whole. The unbroken continuance of one figure of accompaniment throughout the first theme at each time of its presentation, and of another throughout the episode or Trio, must be regarded as weakness in the construction. The author's admirers will look with interest for the final movement in the next coming number. A Concluding Voluntary, the 63rd work of Herr Philipp Tietz, stands next in order; it is "Fugato" in form and grave in matter. It is succeeded by an Offertoire by Mr. Robert Hainworth—we would gladly know the distinction between an Offertoire and a piece of music for the Offertory—whose notion must be that alms-giving flows nimbly, since he accompanies it with an Allegro Vivace. The last piece is a Prelude by the accomplished organist of Chichester, Mr. Francis Edward Gladstone, which is on a parity with other of his productions that have been noticed in these columns.

Schumann's Songs. Edited and in part translated by Natalia Macfarren.

FOR many years the instrumental music of Robert Schumann has been so steadily making its way in this country that his compositions, either for pianoforte or orchestra, need no longer the advocacy of his zealous partisans to ensure a welcome, even with a mixed audience. His Symphonies, Concerto, and smaller works for the pianoforte have now thoroughly taken rank amongst the stock pieces, both for the concert-room and the drawing-room; and there can be little doubt that a closer acquaintance with them will but reveal new beauties. But his songs are by no means so well-known; and the volume now before us comes, therefore, at a most opportune moment, for those already acquainted with many of the vocal gems contained in this collection will be glad to possess them in so attractive a form, and those who are strangers to them will, we are certain, discover in them a mine of wealth almost inexhaustible in its resources. The volume is announced as a first instalment only of the composer's songs, in the order of their production; and in the Preface it is stated that although it is not considered desirable to re-publish all his songs, wherever there is a connecting link between the different numbers of an Opus, they will be given in their entire form, precisely as Schumann wrote them. In adapting the original English words to those songs which were set by the composer to translations, we think that the editress has been perfectly right in altering occasionally the text to suit the music; for it is obvious that notes which may sympathize perfectly with the German words may not so well agree with the English ones; and, as Mrs. Macfarren very truly says, the music should be made the "paramount consideration." It is difficult indeed to select, even for brief comment, any especial compositions from a collection in which every piece has so much real beauty, but we must make the attempt. The nine songs forming Op. 24, which commence the volume, vary much in length, but some of the shorter ones are instinct with true poetical feeling, No. 4, more particularly, a melody of wailing anguish, in E minor, with a characteristic quaver accompaniment following each accent of the bar, at once arresting the attention from the intensity of its expression throughout. Nos. 2, 5, (the latter having a charming theme, with a restless accompaniment of quavers) and 6 (the melody actually speaking the words "Stay thy oar, thou rugged boatman," and ending strangely, but effectively, in the voice part with a dominant seventh) may be cited as amongst the best of the more elaborated songs. No. 7, "On the Rhine," must have a line to itself. The simple loveliness of this theme, accompanied with the calmly flowing semiquavers, is so winning that in lingering over its beauties, we cannot but wonder that the state of art in this country should be such that inanities which shall be nameless are praised and sung, whilst treasures such as these are uncalled for. No. 9 should also become a favourite with vocalists who can appreciate real art: the melody, in true sympathy with the words, is extremely refined, and the pianoforte part—sometimes flowing in loving company with the voice, and sometimes asserting its right to an independent character—although requiring the hand of a trained artist to give it due effect, contains no such difficulties as are found even in many common-place modern vocal effusions. The next 26 songs constitute Op. 25, entitled "Myrthen." The first of these (No. 10 in the volume) is one of the most charming pieces in the collection. The words, translated by Mrs. Macfarren from Rückert, seem those originally wedded to the notes, so perfectly do they accord in every respect with Schumann's impassioned music. The melody commences in A flat, with an arpeggio accompaniment, divided between the two hands. After a close upon the key note an unexpected enharmonic modulation into E major expresses most sympathetically the more placid feeling of the words, the return to the key being introduced by changing C sharp into D flat on the harmony of the dominant seventh. The close of the song is extremely beautiful, the voice dwelling on the dominant 9th in the final phrase with a tenderness which cannot but speak to the heart of all listeners. A marked and highly characteristic melody is set to No. 11, "The Free mind," and in No. 12, "The Walnut Tree," we have another song of remarkable beauty, the unceasing arpeggio accompaniment heightening, without disturbing, the calm theme given to the singer; and an expressive phrase, which forms the symphony, breaking in with excellent effect wherever the voice pauses. No. 13, a song full of character, confirms our assertion of the necessity of altering some of the words which have been rendered back into English from the German translation to which they were originally composed. Burns's verses, commencing "My heart is sair," flow very well until the well known "Somebody" occurs, which being rendered by the German word, "Jemand," is very properly translated "Some one." Passing over two Anacreontics, a delicious song, called "The Lotos Flower," another to some sacred words, translated from Göthe, and "Suleika's Song" (which is really a melodious duet for voice and pianoforte), we arrive at another composition which cannot be hurriedly dismissed. Assuredly Robert Burns would have been driven frantic with joy could he have heard his "Highland Widow's Lament" so intensified by the magic of music. The song is in D minor, and bears the somewhat unusual time signature 6-16. Anything more intense, more vividly coloured or more truthful in its wild pathos than this Highland Widow's wail of hopeless grief we can scarcely call to mind in the whole range of vocal music. The effect of the voice hurrying forward with increasing agitation, as the sorrows of the singer accumulate upon her, the chords in the right hand rapidly answering those in the left throughout, is so thoroughly dramatic that were the song rendered by two sympathetic artists, a musical audience would be roused to enthusiasm, and the most unimpassioned listener could scarcely remain unmoved. In this brief notice we can do but scant justice to the contents of this attractive volume; but as far as we have been enabled to travel through its pages in our present number, we trust that we have said enough to indicate some of its beauties to our readers, and next month we hope to resume and conclude our pleasurable task.

True Love (Treu Liebe). Vocal Duet. Composed by Agnes Zimmermann.

An unpretending and expressive duet, in A minor, by a composer whose name is a guarantee for the truthful setting of German poetry, even when as a resident English artist, she gracefully renders it into our own language before publication. The composition is an undoubted proof, if proof were wanting, of the simple means by which an accomplished writer can produce effect; for both the voice parts and accompaniment are models of quiet and subdued power. We especially admire the alteration in the character of the pianoforte part to the second verse. Vocalists who desire to meet with a melodious duet presenting no unnecessary difficulties will be glad to become acquainted with "True Love."

Sweet to live amid the mountains. Part-Song. Words from the Swiss.

There's beauty in the deep. Part-Song. Words by Brainard.

Composed by W. Pearson.

THESE are the best part-songs we have yet seen by this composer. Of course in the first one (as the words are from the Swiss) we have the inevitable "Tra, la, la!" but it is not intrusive, and the melody is fresh and tuneful. The harmonies throughout are simple and well written; but as a rather important shake is written in the pianoforte part, we can scarcely imagine how the song can be quite complete, as the author tells us, "without an accompaniment." "There's beauty in the deep" commences Adagio, with a bass solo, which leads to an Andante movement in 6-8 rhythm, the melody of which is extremely pleasing. In the second verse the Adagio begins with the bass solo unaccompanied, followed by an Andante in the relative minor, the song concluding with a repetition of the phrases which end the first verse, in the original key. This little composition, unpretentious as it is, proves that Mr. Pearson is advancing as a part-song writer.

The Parting. Song. Words by Byron. Composed by Alice Lee.

THE union of inoffensive music with inoffensive poetry can scarcely perhaps be considered a matter of sufficient importance to call for more than a line of faint praise; but Byron's verses are not thus to be trifled with; and if we seem too critical upon Alice Lee's graceful little theme, it is her fault for selecting words which demand a more vivid colouring than she has given to them. Grammatically, however, we have nothing whatever to say against her song.

DEIGHTON, BELL AND CO.

Music. By Henry C. Banister.

THIS Manual, by one of the Professors of Harmony and Composition at the Royal Academy of Music, forms one of the series of "Cambridge School and College Text Books," and is expressly prepared for the use of candidates for the Middle-Class Examinations, in connection with the Universities. In his Preface the author says "The work being a Text Book rather than a Treatise, the discussion of controverted points must not be looked for in it. Such discussions would have been beyond its scope, and frustrated its purpose, with respect to those for whose use it is specially intended. Generally those views are given which are most widely accepted by musicians not holding extreme or special opinions." Such a plan as this is highly to be commended; for although we are unquestionably in a transition age with regard to the fundamental principles which should be taught to the students of musical theory, there can be no doubt that patients must not die whilst doctors disagree, and Mr. Banister, therefore, who is desirous of becoming a teacher instead of a disputant, is right in stating as clearly as possible in his book only those broad facts which are accepted by the majority of musicians. With this view of the author's intentions, we are bound to accord the highest praise to the work, which is so logically arranged throughout that reference to any special portion of it can be readily made. Part I. treats of Notation; Part II. of the Rudiments of Theory, Harmony and Counterpoint; and Part III. of the Elements of Composition. In the first of these parts we have a remarkably clear exposition of notation, time, accent, and other elementary matters unfortunately too often passed over by students. Especially must we praise the author's explanation of the difference between Simple and Compound Time, the widely-spread ignorance of which subject causes half the false emphasis we are condemned to listen to amongst amateurs. In the portion devoted to the exposition of the rudiments of Theory we have some very valuable remarks upon the old scales; and although but small space is occupied in tracing the history of our modern system, an intelligent pupil may glean quite enough information upon the subject to understand the meaning, at least, of what are termed the "Gregorian tones." Harmony is grappled with and explained, as we have already said, with as much confidence as if the author were not surrounded by those who dissent entirely from his opinions; but, for teaching purposes, Mr. Banister has unquestionably laid down a system which cannot but produce wholesome results; and if students of an enquiring nature should be desirous of becoming acquainted with the various conflicting theories which now agitate the musical world, we are certain that they will be all the better for having prepared themselves by reading and pondering the pages of this cleverly written text book. If we have a fault to find with the work, it is that, in laying down his rules, Mr. Banister constantly says "some authors believe that this chord," &c., assertions which of course must have the effect of mystifying a student who, wishing to pass an examination, has a right to believe that he is learning in the right way to attain his end. Before concluding our notice we may say that the complete manner in which every department of the science is explained is highly creditable to the author; for not only does the book include a treatise on Counterpoint, Canon, Fugue and Imitation, but some very able remarks upon Form in composition and upon the various musical instruments.

J. B. CRAMER AND CO.

Oh Bella Mia. Romanza. Parole di F. Rizzelli. Musica di Arthur S. Sullivan.

MR. SULLIVAN has here attempted nothing beyond writing a flowing melody to some not very suggestive words. As may be expected, the treatment of the song bears the unmistakable stamp of its being the work of an accomplished musician, the accompaniment especially being most delicately handled throughout; but we confess that we should be glad to meet Mr. Sullivan on higher ground, for our congratulations upon the success of such trifles as these, like the conventional compliments of every-day life, become almost a matter of course. There are many who can throw off graceful and melodious songs, and we can of course have no objection to their so employing their time; but England can but ill spare the services of those composers who have proved that they can do better things.

The Dove and the Maiden. Idyll. Words by H. B. Farnie. Music by J. Offenbach.

WHATEVER may be said against the music of Offenbach, there can be no question that all his compositions have that important element of "tune" which cannot but render them favourites, at least with the multitude. Whether they have anything else becomes indeed a question, for we have rarely heard any vocal piece of his which seems to soar above the level of a dance air, whether it be a song, duet, quartet, or quintet; and although the false life by which they are invariably surrounded when presented on the stage excites the admiration and applause of large audiences to such an extent that the music is received with rapture, it very seldom happens that much effect is produced by it away from the glare of the stage-lamps. As a quiet and inoffensive melody, the little song before us, from the Burlesque Opera, "The Bridge of Sighs," may we think bear favourable comparison with many of the songs of the day; and although we may like it best because it is least like the usual compositions of Offenbach, there are many, no doubt, of his staunch admirers who having but small knowledge of the individuality of his style, would purchase and sing this Idyll under the full conviction that it is a thoroughly representative work of its author.

Only to meet. Ballad. Words by George Cooper. Music by Franz Abt.

MANY of the songs of this composer have obtained a well deserved popularity, but he has latterly written too much for his fame, and the inevitable result is that we often see his compositions passed over by vocal amateurs without even a glance beyond the title-page. This is a mistake, for his vocal pieces are always graceful and singable, and such qualifications should be powerful recommendations in these days of trivial common-place. "Only to meet," however, has a character of its own which is certain to make it a favourite. The flowing theme, in 6-8 rhythm, with the triplets in the accompaniment against the holding notes for the voice, is extremely melodious; and a good effect is gained by the change of character on the words "After it all comes the cloud of despair." There is much that we like about this song, and have little doubt that our opinion will be shared by others.

DUNCAN DAVISON AND Co.

Three Songs for Voice and Piano:—

1. Standing, gazing over the sea. Words by M. A. B.
2. Ripple, ripple, gentle stream. Words by Mrs. C. A. Double.
3. Shine on, fair moon.

Composed by L. M. Watts.

WHEN the title-page of a song expressly states that it is for "voice and piano," it is generally understood that the instrument has an independent part, the vocalist and pianist, indeed, being equally necessary to realise the composer's intention. As every song in the present day has a pianoforte accompaniment, some such intimation as this is useful, as distinguishing a mere ballad from a more ambitious composition; and we confess to a feeling of disappointment, therefore, when on opening the pieces before us, we found nothing but the conventional arpeggios and chords for the pianoforte throughout. No. 1, in D flat major, has a vocal theme well expressive of the words; No. 2 is melodious, and may we think be made effective by an unpretending singer with a sympathetic voice; and No. 3, although perhaps the least attractive of the set, shows that the composer has much feeling for pure melody. But there are defects in the accompaniments of all these songs which should have been corrected by an experienced hand before publication. For example, in No. 1 (page 2, bar 5) consecutive fifths occur between the chords of G flat and F; in No. 2 (on the second page) between the last chord of bar 3 and the first of bar 4, we have the same progression; and in No. 3 (page 3), the triad of C moves in similar motion to the triad of B flat, from the 10th to the 11th bar, in a manner so awkward as to disturb the equanimity of a singer with a sensitive ear.

WILLIAM CZERNY.

Festive Seasons. Six Pieces for the Pianoforte.

A Postman's knock. Scherzino. For the Pianoforte.

Liebeszauber. Clavierstück. For the Pianoforte.

A Capricious Moment. Capriccietto. For the Pianoforte.

Composed by Heinrich Stiehl.

AN artist of higher talent than Herr Stiehl would have hesitated before publishing a set of pieces in imitation of the exquisite Six Christmas Pieces of Mendelssohn. The subjects of these little sketches, "Home for the Holidays," "Christmas Eve," "A Happy New Year," &c., have evidently somewhat fettered, rather than assisted, the creative powers of the composer; for, although there are undoubted indications of original thought throughout the pieces, the joyousness of the children at the "festive season" is certainly but faintly reflected in the music. "A Postman's knock" is open to the same objection: the "knock" is there, but little else. The Clavierstück is a well written piece, which may be recommended both for practice and performance; but of the group of compositions forwarded to us, we infinitely prefer the last, which is a true Caprice (or Capricciotto, as the composer prefers to call it) and full of character.

METZLER AND Co.

Awake! the daylight sweetly falls. Part-Song. Words by Willy De Burgh. Music by W. Borrow.

A FLOWING, melodious and excellently voiced part-song, by a composer whose name is new to us. We may especially mention, amongst the many effective points in this unpretending little composition, the pause upon the diminished 7th on A natural, which leaves the ear in agreeable suspense for the close upon the key-note.

HENRY STEAD AND Co.

Clouds. Ballad. Words by Lætitia Mary Napier. Music by Mirana.

AS we have before said in reviewing the songs of this composer, there is unquestionable evidence of a feeling for melody in all she writes, but a want of original thought, which will, we think, prevent her compositions from rising above the level of the multitude of graceful vocal pieces of the day. If she were to think more of what is good than of what is pretty, there can be little doubt that she might produce works of a somewhat higher class than she has yet given us; for throughout her songs we see an evident endeavour to soar above the regions of common-place. "Clouds," however, has an elegant flowing theme, in 9-8 rhythm, is carefully accompanied, and as it is published in two keys, has doubtless already become a favourite.

Forget me not. Song. Composed by Walter H. Sangster.

AN effective tenor song, showing skilful workmanship in the accompaniment, as well as a real aptitude for the melodious setting of words. Especially do we congratulate Mr. Sangster on his power of observing the true accent to his poetry, for this is a quality but rarely met with amongst modern song-writers. The conversational bits between the voice and pianoforte give much interest to the composition; and as we perceive that it has been sung by Mr. W. H. Cummings, there can be little doubt that "Forget me not" is likely to amply justify its title.

Original Correspondence.

IS A PARISH CHURCH ORGAN PUBLIC PROPERTY?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—An organ erected in a church, whether by public subscription or private munificence, is placed there for use in the services of the church, not for the private amusement of any parishioner who may desire to play upon it. It is strictly "public property,"—not indeed in the sense that "A Parishioner" imagines, but, as are all the fittings in the church, devoted to public purposes. The ownership is vested in the churchwardens, as representatives of the parishioners; they are bound to preserve it for the purposes for which it was placed there; and the right of the public over it is to have it used for those purposes, and no more. As you justly point out, the very fact owned by "A Parishioner" of the necessity of private persons having to obtain permission if they desire to play upon it, is an acknowledgment that they can do so only as a matter of favour and courtesy, not as a right.

Unless specially warned to the contrary, a resident organist has fair reason for assuming that the care of the organ is intrusted by the churchwardens to him as their servant, and that he is the person responsible for the proper use of it. And I imagine that, as a rule, churchwardens would act very unwisely and uncourtously if they were to over-rule organists and take that responsibility upon themselves. That they have a right to do so is unquestionable; and it is easy to conceive cases in which it would be their duty to exercise that right.

I remain, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

WM. ACTON,
Vicar of Wicklewood.

March 3rd, 1873.

Brief Summary of Country News.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary; as all the notices are either collated from the local papers, or supplied to us by occasional correspondents.

BELFAST.—The Spring season of the Ulster Hall Monday Popular Concerts commenced on the 3rd ult. The principal vocalists, Miss Maria Arthur and Dr. O'Donoghue, were well received, many of their songs being re-demanded. The band of the 78th Highlanders played several effective selections. Mr. B. H. Carroll was highly successful both in his organ and pianoforte solos, and he also accompanied the vocal pieces with much skill.

BIRKENHEAD.—The Cambrian Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelssohn's Oratorio, Elijah, on the 18th ult., with great success. Miss Edith Wynne, Miss J. Bond, Mr. Bywater, and Mr. O. Christian were the principal artists engaged. Mr. W. Parry conducted, and the band was most ably led by Mr. H. Lawson. Owing to frequent encores the performance lasted for nearly three hours and a half. Both solos and choruses were rendered in a highly satisfactory manner.

BIRMINGHAM.—On the 21st ult., Mr. Stephen S. Stratton gave a concert at Messrs. Adams and Beresford's Music-room, in commemoration of the 188th birthday of the celebrated composer, John Sebastian Bach. The artists employed in rendering the selections were:—Violins, Herr Ludwig and Herr Carl Jung; viola, Mr. W. H. Priestley; violoncello, Mons. Vieuxtemps; double-bass, Mr. J. Moreton; flute, Mr. Sturges; pianoforte, Dr. C. S. Heap, Mr. Arthur Trickett, and Mr. S. S. Stratton. The programme, as the occasion demanded, consisted exclusively of works of Sebastian Bach, and was made up chiefly of compositions by that great master for the chamber, and but rarely heard in this country. The most important of the pieces were the two concertos for three pianofortes, both of which were excellently played. The Sonata in B minor, for pianoforte and violin, was also beautifully given by Dr. Heap and Herr Ludwig. The violin and violoncello solos—the former consisting of the Preludio, Loure, Gavotte and Rondo from the Suite in E, and the latter of the Allemande, Courante, Sarabande and two Gavottes from the Suite in D, were remarkably well executed. M. Vieuxtemps was unanimously recalled, and gave a repetition of the Gavottes. The performance of the two Preludes and Fugues from the Well-tempered Clavier, showed how perfectly Dr. Heap's hand has been disciplined, and how thoroughly he has studied the highest forms of musical composition. The difficult Fugue in G minor was also well given by Mr. Stratton. There was a fairly good attendance, and loud applause greeted the conclusion of every piece, showing that the audience appreciated the efforts of the performers.

BOLTON.—On Friday evening the 14th ult., a musical service was given in Wesley Chapel, Bradshawgate; the vocalists being Miss Fallows and Mr. Henry Taylor, assisted by the Chapel choir. Miss Fallows sang "How beautiful are the feet" (Messiah), and "Angels ever bright and fair" (Theodora), with very good effect. The solos given by Mr. Taylor were the recitative, "With overflowing heart, O Lord" and air, "The soft southern breeze" (Rebekah), and "In native worth" (Creation), which were very ably rendered. Mr. J. T. Filcroft, the organist, played a March (Wely), "Adagio Cantabile" (Haydn), "How lovely are the messengers" (Mendelssohn), and Beethoven's "Hallelujah" (Mount of Olives). The choir sang during the evening an Anthem, "O come let us worship," 95th Psalm (Mendelssohn), "In Thee, O Lord" (Tours), and Mozart's "Gloria" (Twelfth Mass), closing with Hopkins' "Saviour, again to Thy dear Name." The service was a success, and reflected credit upon the choir-master, Mr. Taylor.

BOOTLE, LANCASHIRE.—A miscellaneous concert was given on Tuesday evening the 18th ult., at the Assembly Rooms, for the benefit of the widow of Captain Upton, late commander of the steamer Scandaria, which sailed from New York on the 8th of October last, and has never since been heard of. There was a large attendance, and upwards of £50 was realized in aid of Mrs. Upton and her two fatherless children. An excellent programme was provided by the following ladies and gentlemen, who gave their services gratuitously, viz. Miss Clensy, Miss Brown, Miss Newall, Miss Webster, Miss H. Webster, Miss Lowthian, Mr. Francis, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Clensy, and Mr. Peake. The efforts of the soloists were greatly appreciated, and several pieces were encored. A reading was also given by Dr. Churchill; and the Highfield Musical Society (Walton), under the conductorship of Mr. R. B. Carmichael, sang several pieces in a highly creditable manner. Mr. J. L. Parry ably performed the duties of accompanist.

CAMBORNE.—The annual benefit concert of the Misses Mitchell was given in the Assembly Rooms, on the 25th February before a crowded audience. The programme included Schubert's Quartett for strings (Op. 125), a Quartett of Haydn's (No. 43, in D), a Duet for two violoncellos, by Schubert, and a Fantasia on the Scotch air, for the clarinet, by Mr. Lazarus, the executants being Messrs. Nunn, Burrows, H. A. Smith, and Marrack. The principal vocalists were the Misses Mitchell and Mr. Sampson. The ladies were especially successful in Berger's duet, "Warning echoes," and Benson's song, "Row gently here," was effectively given by Mr. Sampson. Several excellent part-songs were well rendered by some ladies and gentlemen of the neighbourhood, Pinauti's "The sea hath its pearls," deserving especial mention. Mr. G. J. Smith was the accompanist, and Mr. J. H. Nunn, A.R.A., the conductor.

CHESTERFIELD.—The Parish Church choir having resolved to present to Mr. Trimmell, the organist, some token of their esteem and regard, after the usual rehearsal on Thursday evening, February 27th, the members requested Mr. Trimmell to accompany them into the vestry. Dr. Holmes having been asked to take the chair, he called upon Mr. D. Douglas to present to Mr. Trimmell, in the name of the choir, a gold and ebony bdion, engraved with a suitable inscription, and accompanied by an address, beautifully illuminated on vellum, the initial letter containing a miniature view in water colours of the Parish Church. In presenting the testimonial, Mr. Douglas spoke in the most flattering terms of the talent and zeal of Mr. Trimmell, and expressed a hope that the choir would for many years enjoy the benefit of his valuable services. Mr. Trimmell, in a suitable speech, acknowledged the gratification he felt in accepting the presentation, and assured the choir that whether here or elsewhere he should always remember with pleasure the kindly feeling manifested towards him on that occasion.

CLIFTON.—Two interesting recitals of classical music were given at the Victoria Rooms on Friday the 7th ult., in connection with Mr. J. C. Daniel's "Clifton Winter Entertainments," the executants being Mr. Charles Hallé and Madame Norman-Neruda. At the morning performance Mr. Hallé gave a finished rendering of Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata, and was warmly applauded. Madame Norman-Neruda's solo, a fantasia by Ernst on selections from Otello, was also finely rendered and much appreciated. Other items of this recital were a violin solo by Nardini—the larghetto and finale allegretto in D; Schubert's Valse Caprice in E, arranged by Liszt, and the Duet Sonata in C minor, for the piano and violin, by Beethoven, No. 2 of Opus 30, and one of the three dedicated to the Emperor of Russia. At the recital in the evening the chief feature was the violin solo, Bach's Chaconne in D minor executed by Madame Norman-Neruda from memory—a wonderful feat if only on that account. A performance of Mendelssohn's pianoforte duet, Andante with variations, in B flat, introduced to the assembly, in company with Mr. Hallé, Miss Marion Viner, of this city, one of his pupils. The concluding piece, Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata for the piano and violin, needed not the intimation that it was given by general desire to render it acceptable. There have been no better entertainments provided by Mr. Daniel than these two recitals.

EDINBURGH.—A very enjoyable recital was given by Professor Oakeley on Saturday afternoon, the 1st ult., on the University organ, to a crowded audience, a large number of students being present. The programme was entitled "Concert Echoes," being almost entirely reminiscences of the Reid Festivals of this year and last. The Minuet in F, by the founder of the Music chair, was an interesting novelty. It appears to have been played at some of the early Reid concerts, but was afterwards laid aside and forgotten until resuscitated on the present occasion. In a musical point of view it is by no means without merit; we would indeed be disposed to give it the preference to the Minuet with which the annual commemorations have so long familiarised the Edinburgh public. The Professor played as delightfully as usual, and most of the numbers met with unmistakable appreciation, more especially the Minuet or Scherzo from Beethoven's Fourth Symphony, the Unfired Extract, the "Pilgerchor" and the Athalie march. The annual concert of the Edinburgh University Musical Society was held on the 24th ult., in the Music Hall. The whole of the pieces were admirably performed, especially Mozart's Symphony, in C major (No. 6), Beethoven's "Prometheus" Overture, and Mendelssohn's "Cornelius" March. Professor Oakeley's "Students' song," a bright and pleasing composition, went extremely well; and part-songs by Mendelssohn and Muller were given with much precision and effect. Mr. Richard Drummond, of Hawthornden, whose fine tenor voice and musical culture are well known in private circles, sang with good taste and refinement the great scena from Der Freischütz, and Mr. Driggs gave a deservedly warm reception. The concert was in every respect a decided success, and Professor Oakeley, who conducted, has every reason to congratulate himself upon the result of his labours.

HARROGATE.—On Tuesday evening the 4th ult., at a church missionary meeting, held in Christ Church School-room, the choir sang the following anthems, in a highly creditable style: "O pray for the peace of Jerusalem" (Smallwood), "How beautiful upon the mountains" (Smith), "Therefore with angels and archangels" (M. Arnold), "Christ our Passover" (Goss), solo by Mr. J. Dickinson, and "Turn Thy face from my sins" (Attwood), solos by Master Leeming and Mr. Deighton. The Rev. P. W. Hulbert accompanied, and Mr. Arnold, choir-master, conducted.

HORNCastle.—On the 6th ult., Mr. W. J. Price gave a very successful evening concert in the Exchange Hall, assisted by Master Noble (of Peterborough Cathedral), and several of his pupils and friends. The programme was partly sacred and partly secular. Master Noble's rendering of "Angels ever bright and fair," elicited a deserved encore, as did also his solos in Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer," and Garrett's "Goo! night." This young artist (who has barely reached his twelfth year) displays talents of unusual promise. Mr. Price was also ably supported by his brother and pupil, Master James Price, who sang "The Ash Grove," accompanying himself on the harp (which was re-demanded), and played a solo on the pianoforte, which was likewise encored. He also joined Mr. Price in a grand duet for two pianos. The choruses were sung with commendable precision; and great credit is due to Mr. Price for the careful manner in which he has trained his pupils, and for the very acceptable evening's entertainment he presented to his friends.

LEEDS.—The first concert of the Leeds Philharmonic Society was given in the Victoria Hall, on the 5th ult. The selection from Haydn's Seasons, with Miss Arthur, Mr. Goodall, and Mr. M. Taylor in the principal parts, proved highly successful. Miss Arthur especially creating a marked effect with the audience. Mr. Alfred Broughton presided at the organ, and also played Mendelssohn's Caprice (Op. 22). Mendelssohn's Lauda Sion was then given, Miss Emily Carr rendering the solo parts with much effect. The performance concluded with Handel's "Coronation Anthem." Mr. Broughton conducted with skill and discretion.

LEIGHTON BUZZARD.—On Thursday the 27th February, the members of the Leighton Buzzard and Linslade Choral Society gave their sixth concert in the large hall of the Corn Exchange. Haydn's Oratorio, the Creation, was successfully performed by a band and chorus comprising seventy vocalists and instrumentalists, including members of the Society, the London orchestras, and the Luton Philharmonic Society, the principal vocalists being Miss Matilda Scott, Mr. Selwyn Graham, and Mr. Chaplin Henry. Miss Scott was heartily applauded in "The marvellous work," "With verdure clad," and "On mighty pens," the latter eliciting a general encore. Mr. Graham gained special honours by his rendering of "In native worth," and "Oh, happy pair;" and Mr. Henry particularly distinguished himself in "Rolling in foaming billows," and "Now Heaven in fullest glory shone." The whole of the choruses were well sustained, and the manner in which the members of the choir acquitted themselves throughout the evening reflected the greatest credit upon Mr. Mortimer, who must have taken considerable trouble in training them to the degree of efficiency attained.

LEITH.—On Tuesday evening, the 18th ult., the Leith Tonic Sol-fa Association gave a performance of Fawcett's Oratorio Paradise, in the Corn Exchange, to a large audience. The chorus numbered about one hundred voices, the artists engaged for the solo parts being Miss Lizzie Hunter (soprano), Miss Lizzie Foster (contralto), Mr. G. M. Davidson (tenor), Mr. T. L. Dick (bass). The solos and recitatives were artistically and feelingly sung, one recitative by Miss Foster and the last air sung by Mr. Davidson being re-demanded. The choruses were given with remarkable precision and effect, and reflected great credit on Mr. Law, to whose energy and perseverance not a little of the success of this concert is due. Mr. T. Craig accompanied on the harmonium, and Mr. R. Law conducted.

LIVERPOOL.—The third concert of the series on the plan of the London Monday Popular Concerts, took place in the Philharmonic Hall, on Wednesday the 5th ult. 1st violin, Herr Joachim; 2nd violin, Herr L. Ries; 1st viola, Mr. Zerbin; 2nd viola, Mr. Burnett; violoncello, Signor Piatti; solo pianoforte, Herr Pauer; vocalist, Miss Caffera; accompanist, Mr. Zerbin. The programme contained in the first part, Beethoven's quintet, in C major (Op. 29), for two violins, two violas, and violoncello; song "Swedish Winter song" (Mendelssohn); Sonata, in E minor (Op. 90), for pianoforte alone (Beethoven); and in the second part the Quartet, in G major, for strings (Op. 17), No. 5 (Haydn); song "She wandered down the mountain side" (F. Clay); and Grand Trio, in B flat major (Op. 97), for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello (Beethoven). This fine instrumental selection was, as may be supposed, rendered with the utmost perfection, more especially the quintet. The songs gave much pleasure; and Herr Pauer, being vehemently excited in his solo, played, with marvellous rapidity, Weber's "Moto Perpetuo."

—The fifth subscription concert of the Philharmonic Society, on the 11th ult., was a very interesting one, introducing to this audience the magnificent Requiem Mass of Franz Lachner, Op. 146; and closing with Handel's Dettingen Te Deum, in which Mr. T. Harper's trumpet accompaniment was highly effective. The overture to Athalie appropriately commenced the concert; and Mendelssohn's additional accompaniments were used to the Te Deum. The principal artists were, Madame Florence Lancia, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Lewis Thomas, all of whom were highly successful. The performance of the difficult choruses in the Requiem Mass suffered in some degree from what appeared to have been insufficient rehearsal, and also from the extremely high concert pitch, which was so trying to the continuously exercised voices, that it rendered an occasional sinking inevitable.—On the 13th ult., Miss Kate Haddock, assisted by several other artists, gave a concert in the Assembly Rooms, Hardman Street, before a large audience. The programme consisted of a selection of vocal and instrumental music, the former part, which was principally of a classical character, being sustained by Madame Billinie Porter, and the latter by Mr. E. W. Thomas (violin), Mr. Haddock (violoncello), and Miss Kate Haddock (pianoforte). The trio with which the concert was opened, served at once to bring out the merit of the executants, and to raise anticipations on the part of the audience which were fully realised by the excellent nature of the performances which followed. The vocal contributions of Madame Billinie Porter were in every way in keeping with the high character of the instrumental part of the programme. Mr. Franklin Haworth acted as accompanist.—The fourth and last of the present series of the delightful and highly appreciated performances, on the plan of the London Monday Popular Concerts, took place on Wednesday the 19th ult. Executants.—Herr Joachim, Herr L. Ries, Mr. Zerbin and Signor Piatti; solo pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé; vocalist, Mdlle. Nita Gaetano; accompanist, Mr. Zerbin. Part first:—Quartet in E minor (Op. 69, No. 2), for strings, Beethoven; song, "Ogni pena," Pergolesi; Sonata, in E flat (Op. 27, No. 2), for pianoforte alone, Beethoven. Part second:—Recitative and Adagio from Concerto, in G minor, Spohr; violin solo, accompanied on the pianoforte; song, "Au Printemps," Gounod; trio in E flat (Op. 100, No. 1), for pianoforte, violin and violoncello, Schubert.—The sixth Subscription Concert for 1873 of the Philharmonic Society, on the 25th ult., was devoted to a fine performance of Mendelssohn's Oratorio, St. Paul. Principal artists:—Miss Edith Wynne, Mrs. Scott Fennell, Mr. Montem Smith and Mr. Santley, who all sung admirably. The chorus and orchestra did their work with great fire and effect. Mr. Best's absence, in consequence of severe indisposition, was greatly regretted; but nevertheless the ensemble of the whole was excellent.

MANCHESTER.—Mr. Horton C. Allison gave his fifth annual pianoforte recital, in the Memorial Hall, on Tuesday evening the 11th ult., with much success. Beethoven's Sonata in D minor, was well played, from memory, by Mr. Allison, who also gave every other item in the concert without the aid of a copy. All the pieces were well received, and Mr. Allison was encouraged in his own compositions, "The Sigh," and the War march, "Le Champ de Mars," as well as in two of Mendelssohn's "Songs without words."—The performance of Bach's Passion Music, under the direction of Mr. Charles Hallé, at the Free Trade Hall, on the 13th ult., was, as might have been anticipated, a complete success, but space will only admit of our giving a cursory notice of the concert. One of the peculiarities of the composition is that it requires two orchestras. This was completely provided for, and it may be mentioned that the vocal and instrumental performers together numbered about 400. The principal vocalists were Madame Alvsleben, Madame Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Maybrick, and Mr. Santley. Madame Alvsleben did not seem to sing with thorough confidence at first; but nothing could exceed the purity of voice and taste she displayed in several of her parts, especially in the fine aria, with flute accompaniment, "For love my Saviour suffered." Madame Patey was in splendid voice. The music which fell to her is in some parts exceedingly difficult, but she gave it with the greatest ease, was happy in expression, and perfect in every note. The tenor music, which is very exacting, was assigned to Mr. Lloyd, who acquitted himself nobly of his task. Everybody knows how well Mr. Santley sings in the Messiah. He appears to find a more congenial field in Bach's Passion Music, and he has seldom, if ever, sung better. Mr. Maybrick also evinced much artistic feeling, though the duties which fell to him were comparatively limited. But fine as these performances were they were equalled by those of the orchestra and chorus. The chorales are a distinguishing feature of this work, and in a sense may be regarded as the popular gems of it. Both these and the choruses were rendered with that perfection which marks all the pieces presented under Mr. Hallé's management. To Mr. Hecht, the chorus director, must be awarded no small portion of the praise justly due for this grand performance; and we must also mention that Mr. Walker presided with much ability at the organ. Altogether, from the reception accorded to this great Oratorio we may consider that it has already become established as a favourite in Manchester, and cannot doubt that Mr. Hallé will continue to present it in future as one of the special musical attractions of the season.

MONTROSE.—The first private concert given by the Harmonic Union, took place in the Guild Hall on the 25th February. Mr. Taylor's class numbered between forty and fifty voices, and on this occasion he secured the additional aid of several instrumentalists. The programme opened with the well-known "Gloria," from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, which was well sung, the solos, by Miss Hutcheon and Miss Taylor, being rendered with much taste and feeling. The great feature of the concert was the execution of several choruses of Handel and Haydn, more especially "The Glory of the Lord," "Worthy is the Lamb," and the "Hallelujah." Mr. Taylor, who conducted, sang with much taste and expression the introductory recitative to Haydn's beautiful air, "In native worth." The two hymns "Nica," and "Vexillum," were excellently rendered; and on the whole the entertainment was such as to reflect the greatest credit on Mr. C. B. Taylor, the energetic conductor.

NEW YORK.—Mr. Richard Hoffman's second Soirée was given on the 22nd February, at Messrs. Chickering's room; violin, Mr. J. Burke; violoncello, Mr. Bergner; piano, Mr. R. Hoffman. The programme comprised the Trio, Op. 1, Beethoven; Variations Sérieuses, Op. 54, Mendelssohn (encored); Wanderstunden (S. Heller); Sonata, violin and pianoforte, Op. 5, No. 2 (Beethoven); Arabesque and Abdellid (Schumann); Chopin's Mazurka Valse, violin and pianoforte; "Adagio and Allegro" (Mendelssohn), Op. 4; and Fantasia from Faust (R. Hoffman). The concert was highly successful.

NORWICH.—The second concert of the series which the Norfolk and Norwich Musical Union proposes to give this season, took place on Thursday evening, the 6th ult., in St. Andrew's Hall. Mozart's Twelfth Mass was performed, and one of the best proofs that the work had been mastered was given in the excellent singing of the well-known synopposed passages in the allegro of "Cum Sancto Spiritu," and in the careful attention that was paid throughout to expression. The solo parts were excellently sung by Madame Florence Lancia, Madlle. Enriquez, Mr. H. Minns, and Mr. Chaplin Henry. In the second part, Dr. Bunnett's beautiful "Ave Maria" was most tastefully sung, both by soloists and chorus, and the composer was recalled. Madlle. Enriquez was encored for her artistic reading of "O Salutaris," from Rossini's Messe Solennelle but instead of repeating the aria she sangullah's "Storm." Madame Florence Lancia gave "I mourn as a dove," from Benedict's St. Peter with a great deal of feeling, and was deservedly encored, as was also Mr. Chaplin Henry for his singing of Gounod's "Nazareth."

SOUTHAMPTON.—It is gratifying to find that the Saturday Popular Concerts are realising all the success that was so confidently predicted. The earnest and zealous exertions of Mr. and Madame Fletcher, who originated these entertainments, and whose performance (the former as a violinist, and the latter as a pianist) have been amongst the most attractive features in the programmes, are deserving of the highest praise. There can be little doubt that concerts devoted to the most classical works so excellently interpreted, will continue to enjoy that patronage which has hitherto been so liberally accorded to them.

SOUTH NORWOOD.—The Tuesday evening entertainments at the Public Hall have been well patronized of late. At the entertainment on the 25th ult., Miss Janet King made her first appearance before a Norwood audience and elicited considerable applause for her singing of "She wandered down the mountain side," and "Sing, sweet bird;" both songs received a well-merited encore. Mr. G. Linly's rendering of "There's nothing like a freshening breeze" and "Simon the Cellarer" quite eclipsed all his previous efforts. Songs and solos were given by Messrs. P. Hazeldine and F. Laughlin, and Messrs. J. Baucutt and W. Blount also appeared and fully maintained the reputation they have already earned. We understand these pleasant evenings will be continued every Tuesday till the end of April.

STRATFORD.—The West Ham Philharmonic Society gave its second concert of the present season at the Town Hall, on the evening of Tuesday the 11th ult., before a large audience. Mr. J. S. Bates conducted, and Mr. F. Kiteon played the pianoforte accompaniments. The first part consisted of Mendelssohn's "Lauda Slon," and Gounod's "By Babylon's Wave." The choruses were sung with care and taste; and the rendering of "Sing of Judgment," and "Lord, at all times I will bless Thee," by Miss F. Jones, and of the quartet "Ye who from His ways have turned," by the Misses F. and G. Jones and Messrs. Gowar and W. Latta, was highly successful. The second part contained a selection of solos, duets and part-songs, several of which were encored.

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—The performance of the music at High Mass at the principal Catholic churches on Christmas Day was unusually good. At St. Mary's, Mozart's No. 12, Kyrie and Gloria, Mercadante's Credo, and Gounod's Sanctus and Agnus Dei were given, with organ and full orchestral accompaniments. The selections from Mercadante's and Gounod's Mass were specially arranged for the orchestra by Mr. J. A. Delany, organist of the Cathedral. The congregation of St. Mary's are deeply indebted to Dr. Barasanti for the interest he takes in the progress of the choir. At St. Patrick's, Mozart's No. 12 was performed in its entirety, with orchestral accompaniments and organ. The performance was a particularly fine one, and gave great satisfaction. At St. Benedict's the music of the Mass was by Monti. It was procured from New York by Mr. Peter Curtis, who has devoted so much time and attention to the improvement of St. Benedict's choir. At the Sacred Heart and St. Francis, there was a good selection of music well performed. Novello's arrangement of the "Adeste Fideles" was sung at all the churches. The new organ at St. Mary's, now in course of construction by Mr. Jackson, was used for the first time on Christmas Day.

WELLINGTON, NEW ZEALAND.—The performance of the Messiah in the Wesleyan Chapel, on Friday evening, December 20, 1872, will be looked back to in future years as an era in the Choral Society's career. About 40 non-members, on invitation, kindly gave their help in the choruses, swelling the choir to nearly 90, with an orchestra of about 20. It will be enough to say that, as a whole, the performance was a most unqualified success. The best solos were "I know that my Redeemer liveth" (in which Mrs. Parsons' rich voice and earnest expression were highly effective), and "He was despised" (rendered with much purity of voice and feeling by Miss Hickson), the flute part in the latter being well played by Mr. Spreet (a late and valuable acquisition), and the clarinet part in the former being excellently given by Mr. McIntosh. "The trumpet shall sound" was carefully sung by Mr. George, and most artistically accompanied by Mr. Curry on the trumpet. Of the choruses, "For unto us," "Hallelujah," and "Worthy is the Lamb," were all that could be desired. Great praise is due to Mr. Mowbray, the conductor, for his untiring zeal, and also to Mr. Raymond, who presided at the organ. During the interval the president, Mr. Justice Johnston, made a very appropriate acknowledgment of the kindness of the Rev. Mr. Ruddle and the Trustees of the Chapel, in granting its use for the production of the Oratorio, and also thanked those who had lent their aid to the Society. He took the opportunity to acquaint all present that the performance was intended to be repeated as an annual festival at which some great work would be put forward, dwelling on the advantages to be derived from the spread of a taste for high class music among the people.

WOOLWICH.—Miss Mascall's concert at the Town Hall on the 7th ult. was well attended, and, though chiefly confined to her pupils, remarkably successful. Miss Rice's solo "Let the Bright Seraphim," with cornet obbligato by Mr. Lawson, was enthusiastically encored, as was also Mendelssohn's air, "O rest in the Lord." The 91st Psalm, arranged by Miss Mascall, was sung by a good choir, the solos being entrusted to Miss Chambers and Miss Kelly, the duet "Quis est Homo," from the Siabab Mater was given by Miss Day and Miss Wheeler; and a new composition by Miss Mascall, "There arose a great storm," was sung by Mr. Foss and his two little daughters. Mrs. Baker, Mr. Scudder and Miss Geer also contributed solos, and Mr. Davis, who conducted the entertainment, sang the recitative and air "Now Heaven in fullest glory." There were several pieces in the programme instrumental, the performers being Miss Mascall, Miss Rice, Miss Lawson, Miss Milne, the Misses Foss, Miss Edwards, and Madlle. Aimée de Naeyer.

WORTHING.—The performance of Haydn's Creation by the Worthing Sacred Harmonic Society, on the 19th ult., was in every respect a decided success. The Assembly Room, capacious as it is, was crowded in every part, and the applause throughout was hearty and well deserved. The solo parts were sustained by Miss Jennings, Mr. Montem Smith and Mr. Crome, all of whom were highly effective, Miss Jennings in "On mighty pens," especially winning the favourable opinion of the audience. The choruses were given with admirable precision; and great credit is due to Mr. L. S. Palmer (who conducted the work) for his unremitting exertions in training the choir. Mr. H. S. Cooke presided with much ability at the organ.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. J. T. Mew (late Organist of St. Thomas's Church, Newport, Isle of Wight), to the Parish Church, Swindon, Wiltshire.—Mr. Thomas Lee (late Choir-master of St. Andrew's, Southport), Organist and Choir-master to St. James's, Birkdale, Southport.—Mr. W. Scadding (late Organist of St. James's Church, Cowes), to the Parish Church, St. Thomas's, Newport, Isle of Wight.—Mr. J. Dixon to Buckden Parish Church, Hants.—Mr. R. B. Bateman (of the Parish Church, Penrith), Organist and Choir-master to the Parish Church, Aylesbury, Bucks.—Mr. C. M. E. Kendrick, Organist and Choir-master to All Saints' Church, Blackrock, Dublin.—Mr. F. K. Blanch (late of St. Clement's, Notting Hill, and St. Luke's, Shepherd's Bush), Organist and Choir-master to St. Stephen's, Westbourne Park, W.—Mr. James M. Morland, (Organist and Choir-master of Waterford Cathedral), to Trinity Church, Leicester.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. R. B. Bateman (of the Parish Church, Penrith), Choir-master of the Vale of Aylesbury Church Choral Association.—Mr. Joseph Hutchinson, Lay Vicar (Bass), to Salisbury Cathedral.—Mr. J. Stilliard (Alto, Lay Clerk Gloucester, and formerly of York Minster choirs), to St. Paul's.

CHORUS (Amateur).—WANTED immediately, to strengthen the above. First-class practice; full professional Band; first-class Artists. No subscription. Conductor, Mr. Stanislaus J. B. Medland, secretary, 8, Bird-street, West-square, Lambeth.

TO PROFESSORS OF SINGING.—WANTED, high-class FINISHING LESSONS by a Tenor Soloist, who has frequently appeared with success. Liberal percentage offered on his engagements in exchange. Reply by letter to "Chanteur," Novello, Ewer and Co., 85, Poultry, E.C.

ORGANIST WANTED for the Parish Church of Chagford, Devon. Salary £30. Address Rev. H. Hames, Chagford, Exeter.

THE VICAR and CHURCHWARDENS of Christ Church, Rotherhithe, require an ORGANIST, who also has to train the Choir. Salary £20. Apply to the Vicar, as above.

WANTED, in May, for the Parish Church of Macclesfield, Cheshire, an efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Endowment £50 a year.

WANTED, at Midsummer, an ORGANIST for the Parish Church of Northam, North Devon. He must be a Churchman and Communicant, well skilled in Church Music and the training of a Choir. A good Organ by Messrs. Walker and Sons. This will be found to suit a young man with good musical genius. Address, stating salary, &c., with references, to Rev. the Vicar, Northam, near Bideford.

GOOD OPENING for an Efficient Musical Instructor, Organizer, and Conductor. The rising town of Cannock, Staffordshire, containing a Grammar School and two Proprietary Schools, and good Public Assembly Rooms, presents a good opening for a resident Professor of Music, who would undertake to act as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER to the Parish Church (surplused Choir). Apply to the Vicar.

CHOIRMASTER WANTED to form and conduct an Union of Parish Choirs, and to be ORGANIST at All Saints' Church, Clooney, Londonderry. Salary for the latter duty, £30. Organ (costing about £400) to be ready at Whitsuntide. Address Rev. John A. Stewart, Clooney, Derry.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is OPEN to an immediate ENGAGEMENT in London; six years in recent position; good testimonials. H. E., 22, Alderney-road, Mile End, E.

TO THE CLERGY.—WANTED, an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Nearly 20 years' practical experience. Accustomed to Choral Services and large Choir. Testimonials from present and former appointments. Address R. A., Musical Times Office, 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED, a SITUATION as PIANOFORTE TUNER, &c. Good reference. Apply to C. H. Wood, 60, Cobourg-street, Leeds, Yorkshire.

A PIANO TUNER, with first-class references, requires an ENGAGEMENT, London or neighbourhood preferred. Apply by letter to "Delta," Musical Times Office, 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED, a SITUATION as PIANO and HARMONIUM TUNER and REPAIRER. Good testimonials. Address C. B., Musical Times Office, 1, Berners-street, W.

AN ASSISTANT WANTED to make small Harmoniums, and tune and repair various Instruments. A good Piano Tuner indispensable. Apply, stating wages required, &c., to Frank Attwells' Music Warehouse, Reading.

AN ASSISTANT WANTED in a Country Music Warehouse, as TUNER and REPAIRER. An Apprentice just out of his time, and accustomed to the Workshop, would do. Apply to A. R. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.

WANTED by a Youth, aged 18, an APPOINTMENT as ASSISTANT PIANOFORTE TUNER in a Country firm. Has been in a London factory for a considerable time, and can tune a piano fairly well, but wishes to gain further experience. For particulars apply to W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton-place, Reading.

TO MUSICSELLERS.—WANTED, by a Young Man (28) a SITUATION either as Pianoforte Tuner and Regulator, or for the Sheet Music Department, or combined. The Advertiser is capable of conducting a small Branch establishment, having already filled a similar situation. Can give first-class references, &c. Address L. M., Musical Times office, 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED, for the Country, a Young Man who understands the Sheet Music Business, and can tune Pianos. Address C. P. E., Plymouth Grove Post Office, Manchester.

WANTED in a Wholesale Musical Instrument Warehouse, a SITUATION as ASSISTANT, by an energetic Young Man, 17 years in present situation. Is a good Salesman, and thoroughly competent in every department. Address E. S. F., 29, St. John's-road, Hoxton, N.

WANTED, immediately, an ASSISTANT in a Music Warehouse. He must be able to Tune Pianos and Harmoniums, and assist in Teaching. A good home for a respectable young man. Apply to Music Warehouse, Russell-street, Northgate, Darlington.

A YOUNG LADY (Good Musician), desires a SITUATION in a Pianoforte Warehouse. Address B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A LADY, good Vocalist and Musician, having some time disengaged during the day, wishes for further ENGAGEMENTS as Teacher of the Pianoforte and Singing either in Schools or Private Families. Address A. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

DURING THE LAST MONTH,

Published by NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FARMER, HENRY.—Mass in B flat, in vocal score, with an accompaniment for the organ or pianoforte. The English adaptation to the Communion Service by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A. Octavo, paper cover, 2s.; cloth, gilt, 3s. 6d.

SANGSTER, W. H., Mus. Bac.—A Service for the Holy Communion for men's voices in four parts, consisting of Introit, Kyrie, Gloria tibi, Gratias, Offertory Sentences, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, 2s.

HELMORE, Rev. THOS.—Accompanying Harmonies to the Canticles Noted. Magnificat XV. 8th Tone, 1st Ending. 8vo., 4d.

OUSELEY and MONK.—The Canticles with Chants. 1st and 2nd series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d.

—Anglican Psalter Chants, single and double. Cloth, 3s. 9d.

BARNBY, JOSEPH.—Grant to us, Lord, we beseech Thee. Full Anthem for Four Voices. Vocal score, folio., 6d.

THE HYMNARY.—Nine Hymns with Tunes for Easter, selected from "The Hymnary." Price 1d. For contents, see Advertisement, page 62.

LOWE, ALBERT.—The Lord is my strength. Short, easy, full Anthem for Easter-day. 8vo., 3d.

ALWYN, WM. CROWTHER.—This is the day. Full Anthem for Four Voices. 8vo., 9d.

PRIVETT, DANIEL.—Now is Christ risen. Sacred Chorus. 8vo., 8d.

GLADSTONE, ROBERTSON, Jun.—O Lord God of Hosts. Anthem. 8vo., 3d.

RINGROSE, WILLIAM W., Mus. Bac., Oxon.—Stricken hearts once more are turning. Hymn for the Holy week. Words by the Rev. J. A. Cree, B.D., Oxon. 8vo., 3d.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES:

354 Gentle night, O descend (Calvary). Spohr. 2d.
355 Though all thy friends prove faithless. Do. 2d.
356 His earthly race is run. Do. 2d.

GILBERT, BENNETT.—School Harmony. A short Treatise on Harmony, intended for use in Schools. 1s. 6d.

EHMANT, M.—Part Songs for Little People. Selected from the German. In Paper covers, price 2s.; Cloth, 3s.

O'LEARY, ARTHUR.—The shadow on my heart. Song. 2s.

READ, C. J.—The Windmill. Song. The words by the Rev. H. W. Pullen. 1s. 6d.

ALLEN, ALFRED B.—Eily's reply. Song. 1s. 6d.

JUDE, W. H.—March along. Song. Words by Alfred Balding. 1s. 6d.

SONGS OF UPPINGHAM SCHOOL.—A Collection of Part-songs composed and arranged by the Music Masters of Uppingham School from A.D. 1856. First Series: No. 1. Uppingham School Song, by P. David, No. 2. Farewell, thou noble wood, by H. Nicolls. No. 3. Fives song, by Ch. Reimers. 8vo., 6d. each.

THOMPSON, LADY.—Two Gavottes, dedicated to her friend Madame Haas. 1s. 6d.

MACFARREN, WALTER.—Two Mazurkas for Piano. 1s. 6d. each.

SPARK, DR. W.—The Organists' Quarterly Journal. Part 18:

- 1 Voluntary. D minor and F major. Dr. S. S. Wesley.
- 2 Andante, D major. Professor Oakeley.
- 3 Allegro Moderato. Completion of Sonata in parts 16 and 17. E. Silas.
- 4 Air with Variations and Finale. A major. Arthur Page.

ORGANIST WANTED.—WANTED, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for the Parish Church of Harwich in Essex. Duties light. Salary £30. Would be required to commence work immediately; a single man preferred. Address, enclosing testimonials, to the Vicar, Harwich, Essex.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED for Newland Independent Chapel, Lincoln. Salary £25. A Congregationalist preferred. Address Mr. H. Alcott, Monson-st., Lincoln.

CHESTER CATHEDRAL.—There is a VACANCY for a BASS. Candidates must not be above 30 years of age, and must have some knowledge of Cathedral music. Applications to be made on or before April 21st, to the Rev. the Precentor, Abbey Court, Chester.

"EXCEPT THE LORD BUILD THE HOUSE," an ANTHEM for five voices, suitable for the Opening of new places of Worship or School Anniversaries. Composed by James Hardwick; published at 1s. 6d. each; sold at half-price. Schools or congregations taking 12 copies may have them at 6d. each. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

BY REV. R. F. SMITH, M.A., Minor Canon of Southwell, TE DEUM, in F, in 4 parts, 3d. SHORT ANTHEM, "The Lord is high," S.A.T.B., 6d. London: Novello, Ewer & Co., 1, Berners-street, W., & 35, Poultry, E.C.

TO THE MUSIC TRADE.—Now ready, bound in cloth, price 4s. each, THE PIANOFORTE AND HARMONIUM STOCK BOOK, and THE PIANOFORTE TUNING REGISTER, compiled and arranged by FREDERICK LUCAS, Public Accountant, 26, Maddox-street, London.

These Books will be found to be of very great use and assistance to all engaged in the Pianoforte Hiring and Tuning Trade. The Stock Book is arranged for 80 Pianos, and is adapted not only as a Register of all Pianos and Harmoniums in stock and out on hire, but also to show the result of the Hiring and Selling Price of each Piano, &c. The TUNING REGISTER is alphabetically arranged for nearly 1,500 Tunings, and shows also the list of Pianos to be tuned, and the dates for Tuning the same. A specimen page bound with each book. Larger Stock Books for 400 Pianos, strongly bound, price 14s.

THE AUTHOR of TWO FESTIVAL HYMNS offers a PREMIUM OF FIVE GUINEAS each, on the sale of the first thousand, for the BEST NEW TUNES. The decision to rest with three eminent Professors. For copies and conditions, address the Rector, Stow, Gainsborough.

VERSES for MUSIC.—The set 7s. 6d. Miss Lanerty, Longner Hall, near Shrewsbury.

Price 2d.; by post 2½d.
JOTTINGS about Church of England Choral and Congregational Services; Piebald Services; Cold, Frozen, Silent, or Petrified Services; One authorized Hymn Book needed, instead of the swarms of unauthorized Selections issued and promised; The undevotional high-pitched Monotone; The devotional low-pitched Monotone; Too frequent gabbling of the Confessions, Lord's Prayer, and Creeds; Surplices; Gregorians, or Music in swaddling clothes; Kneeling at Church; Benches and Chairs, and sundry matters concerning Organs and Organists. By THOMAS KILNER, of Highbury. Reeves and Turner, 185, Fleet-street.

GUIRLANDES DE MAI.—Cantiques, 3 vols., 3s. each, with English and French words, by W. SCHULTHEIS. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

RECESSIONAL MARCH, J. F. THORNE. Second edition, net, 2s.

"There is vigour and character in this March. It is calculated to obtain considerable popularity."—Choir. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

FOURTEENTH EDITION.
"The air once heard haunts the memory."—Church Opinion.
MARCH OF THE CHORISTERS.—"Mr. Allen's subjects are bold and suggestive."—Illustrated Review. Net 1s. 6d. "Its freshness will make it a favourite."—Weekly Times. Novello & Co.

"THE LAND OF PROMISE," an Oratorio, by FRANCIS HOWELL, performed during the Christmas week at the United Presbyterian Church, Blackburn, with full Orchestral Accompaniments, and now in rehearsal by the Abingdon Musical Association. Price 2s.; in cloth, 3s. B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row, London.

To be published in vocal score, folio. Price to Subscribers, One Guinea.

"HAGAR,"
AN ORATORIO in Two Parts, the Words selected from Holy Scripture by the Rev. J. R. G. Taylor, M.A.; the Music composed by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc.; the Pianoforte part arranged from the Full Score, by Langdon Colborne, Mus. Bac. Subscribers' Names received by the Composer, St. Michael's College, Tenbury, or by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.
* * * This work is to be performed at the ensuing Musical Festival at Hereford.

DR. S. S. WESLEY'S NEW SETTING of the Collect, "Lord of all power and might." In the "Practical Choirmaster," for March. Price 3s.; subscription (four numbers) 8s. 6d., including postage. Metzler and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street.

MASS OF THE HOLY CHILD JESUS, and AVE MARIA for Unison and Congregational Singing, with Organ Accompaniment, composed for the Church of the Oratory, by WILHELM SCHULTHEIS. 6s. for 3s., with allowance for numbers to choirs.

The AVE MARIA of this Mass can be had for Four Voices, with the Ingressus Angelus. 2s. 6d. for 1s. 3d.

NE PROCIAS ME A FACIE TUA. Motett for Four Voices. (T.B.), by WILHELM SCHULTHEIS. 2s. 6d. for 1s. 3d.

RECORDARE, ORATIO JEREMIE PROPHETAE, by WILHELM SCHULTHEIS. 2s. for 1s. R. Washbourne, 18A, Paternoster-row, London.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo., price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart. etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This Work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This Pointing of the Canticles is authorized by His Grace the Archbishop of York. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. &c. For general or Festival use: for male voices and four-part chorus, with Organ Accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK, Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

Sixth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK, edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo., without chants, 1s.; with Proper Psalms, 1s. 3d.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to., with chants, 5s.; large 4to., £1 1s.; each voice part, separately, 2s. Canticles, score, small quarto., 9d.; separate parts, 8d.; words only, 24mo., 1½d. Novello, Ewer & Co., and Parker & Co.

Tenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Price 5s. 6d.; sep. vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

SUPPLEMENT to the PREVIOUS EDITIONS of the ABOVE, containing Chants for the Venite, &c. Price 1s.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. St. J. B. JOULE. (Large type.) Price 2s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo., price 1s., in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Third Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonized on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. St. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

NON NOBIS DOMINE, arranged to the Corresponding English Words, by Rev. W. G. LONGDEN, for the Use of Choral Meetings, as an Introit, or Anthem, or Grace after Meat. Price One Penny; Ninepence a dozen; or Five Shillings a hundred. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TE DEUM (new) in B flat. Harmony, unison, free organ part, &c. Highly effective. 1s. 6d.—Three Choral Hymns—"There is a blessed home," "O Love," and "Praise the Lord." Complete 1s.—Also the immensely popular arrangement of the Evening Hymn "Abide with me." Harmony and unison, with a free organ part. 1s.—Also the well-known "Six Kyries." 1s. By EDWARD LAWRENCE, Organist, Merthyr Tydfil. A very liberal discount on a dozen copies, direct from the composer. A specimen copy of either for twelve stamps. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

G. A. MACFARRETT'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISERERE TU. For voices in unison and organ. Octavo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TWELVE KYRIES. By G. BAKER. Price Sixpence, 12 or more copies, 4d. each, and post-free. G. Baker, Music-seller, Wakefield.

Octavo size. Price 3d. each.

THE NICENE CREED, set to Music in an Easy form (principally monotone), with a free accompaniment for the Organ by R. W. CROWE.

THE NICENE CREED, set to music for four voices, chiefly in unison with a free accompaniment for the Organ. By S. PERCIVAL.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now ready. 8vo. Price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED, Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

CANTICLES NOTED. Second Set, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. 18mo., 8d.; 8vo., 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

HELMORE, REV. THOMAS.—THE CANTICLES ACCENTED, 18mo., 3d.—Hymns of the Eastern Church, four voices, each 1s., PEACE, it is I; THE DAY IS PAST AND OVER; THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.—S. MARK'S CHANT BOOK (in daily use at the College Chapel, Chelsea), 4s. 6d.; or the same, Part I., being the main body of the work, price 3s. 6d.; and Part II., The Table of the Chants, price 1s. (useful for places where only the Canticles are chanted). Also Two "Ts DEUMS" for Choir and People, in the alternate verses; adapted from Latin arrangements by Alfieri and Baini; vocal Score and Organ Accompaniment, price 3s. Also the People's Plain Song, separate, price 1½d. Four-part Cadences for the Holy Communion, 6d. The Carol for Christmas Morning, vocal score, 18mo. edition, 2d; melody, 18mo., 1d.

HYMN IN TIME OF CATTLE PLAGUE. 2d. Words, 1s. per 100.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADDITIONS TO THE

REV. T. HELMORE'S PLAIN SONG WORKS.

The Canticles Accented. Price 3d.

The Psalter and Canticles Accented. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

Appendix 1 to Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory. Price 4d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 1, giving the Proper Psalms, noted as before in their right order of the six days to which they are Appointed. Price 6d. Bound up with recent editions of the Psalter Noted.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 3d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 2, giving the Proper Psalms newly noted for the Four Great Festivals (second set). Price 4d.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 4d.

Canticles Noted (second set). Large Edition, 2s. Small Edition, 8d. For some of the Harmonies to this, see Accompanying Harmonies to Psalter Noted, Appendix 2 (above mentioned). For others, see Accompanying Harmonies to Brief Directory, Appendix 2, now in hand.

Cadences for the order of the Administration of the Lord's Supper, in compressed vocal score. Price 6d.

Paper on Church Music, with special reference to the joining of all the People in Sacred Song, read at the Church Congress, Wolverhampton, October 1867. Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

JOHN M. W. YOUNG'S EASY FESTIVAL SERVICE, in C; consisting of Te Deum, Benedictus, and Jubilate, with an introductory Sketch of the History and Theology of the Te Deum, by the Right Rev. the Bishop Suffragan of Nottingham. Te Deum and Sketch, 1s.; festival size, 1½d. Benedictus and Jubilate, 10d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh edition.

CHANT SERVICE, in G, for the Te Deum laudamus, arranged from ancient sources, by H. M. HARVEY. 8vo., 4d. Small copy, 1½d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASY TE DEUM, in C (Patent Notation), by E. W. TAYLOR, Organist of St. Thomas's Church, Stafford. Price 6d., 8vo. Published by W. Hamilton, 33, Bath-street, Glasgow.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, in F, chiefly for Festal use, by W. H. TREFFRY. 8vo., price 4d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, adapted to an ancient Melody. Arranged, harmonized, and dedicated to the Choirs in the Gloucester Diocesan Choral Union, by E. BRIND, Organist of Highnam Church, Gloucester. Price 8d. each, 2s. per dozen to Choirs.

Published by J. Clark, Library, Stroud, Gloucestershire.

NOTICE.

MERCER'S CHURCH PSALTER and HYMN BOOK. An APPENDIX of ADDITIONAL HYMNS, CHANTS, SANCTUSES, and RESPONSES, the Harmonies carefully revised by Sir JOHN GOSS, may now be had, either separately, or bound up with the work in all its various sizes and forms. Prospectuses, with full particulars, will be forwarded on application.

London: James Nisbet and Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; Lamborn Cock, 62 and 63, New Bond-street, W.

SACRED MUSIC BY ALEX. S. COOPER.

SECOND SERIES OF UNISON CHANTS, by different Composers, with varied accompaniments. New Edition. Price 6d.

COME UNTO ME. Full Anthem for Four Voices. Second Edition. Price 3d.

COMMUNION SERVICE, consisting of Kyrie and Sanctus (Four different settings), Nicene Creed (Ely Prize setting), Gloria, &c. Equally adapted for singing in Unison or in Harmony. Price complete 1s., or without Creed, 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE SACRED CHORISTER, containing Solos, Duets, Trios, and Choruses, in Twelve Numbers, 6d. each. Sent post free for stamps by the Author, C. Ward, Speen, Princes Risboro'. Also may be had, "The Sunday School Melodist," 1s. "Beautiful Land," Duet and Chorus, 1½d.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS

For Small Choirs. The texts selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe.

First Series, for Boys' and Females Voices.—1. "Come, and let us return." 2. "I will look unto the Lord." (These Anthems may appropriately be used in Advent and Lent.) 3. "Behold the Tabernacle." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.)

Second Series, for Female and Male Voices.—1. "Unto us was born." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.) 2. "Blessed is the soul." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Whitsuntide.) 3. "Come ye and let us go up." (This Anthem may be appropriately used at the opening of a church.)

These Anthems are available as Duets for private performance.

Price 6d. for each Anthem, or 2s. 6d. for each series of six.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASY ANTHEMS FOR VILLAGE CHOIRS. By

W. H. GILL. 2d. each. Nos. 1 to 6 now ready.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A Specimen Copy, post free for Stamps to the value.

AND BEHOLD! A THRONE. Anthem for Trinity Sunday, by HENRY LAHER. Price 6d.

"This Anthem is in many respects meritorious—the theme selected for treatment fugato is ably worked out, and the pedal-point is highly effective."—Musical Times. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES AND NATIONAL SCHOOLS.

"GO WHEN THE MORNING SHINETH." By

H. B. Harmonized for four voices, by T. GARDNER, Organist of St. Michael's, Highgate, for the Opening of Columbia-square Market, by Miss Burdett Coutts, on the 28th of April, 1869, and sung by the United Choirs of St. Stephen's, Westminster; St. Thomas', Bethnal-green; and St. Michael's, Highgate. The profits on the sale will be given to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. 6th thousand. Price 4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A SPECIAL HYMN AND TUNE FOR THE HOLY WEEK.

Just published, price 3d.

"STRICKEN HEARTS ONCE MORE ARE TURNING." Words by the Rev. J. A. Cree, B.D., Oxon; Music by W. W. Ringrose, Mus. Bac., Oxon. Words alone for Congregational use. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

SPRING SONG, from "Babil and Bijou," arranged by W. SMALLWOOD, as a piece of moderate difficulty for the Pianoforte, price 3s. The same, easy for small hands, price 1s. Either post free for half price. London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

NEVER MIND THE REST, by H. FASE. This popular Song may now be had in F for a Bass voice; in G for Baritone; in B♭ for Tenor. Either post free for 18 stamps. London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MARCH OF THE MEN OF HARLECH, song:

The English words by Oliphant; the Welsh words by Talhaiarn. The music arranged by JOHN THOMAS. In F for a Bass voice; in A for Baritone; in B♭ for Tenor. Also 36 other Welsh Songs and 37 Glees, by the same authors (a list of which forwarded gratis). Each post free for 15 stamps. London: published only by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

A MULLEN'S NEW PIANOFORTE DUETS.—

Les Chants du Peuple; Bohemian Villagers' Song; Bay of Biscay; Il Bacio; Mill Wheel; My Heart and Lute; Nuptial Chorus, from Lohengrin. Price each 2s.; post free at half price.

London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

Second Edition.

EXERCISES on BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS, by LINDLEY NUNN, Mus. Bac., St. Mary Tower, Ipswich. Price 5s., post free, 2s. 6d.

NEW EDITIONS (OCTAVO)

OF

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &c.,

Published by NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

BACH.—God's Time is the best - 1s. 0d.
 " The Passion (St. John) - 2s. 0d.
 N. W. GADE.—The Erl-King's Daughter. 1s. 6d.
 " Spring's Message - 0s. 8d.
 CH. GOUNOD.—De Profundis (Psalm 130) 4s. 0d.
 HANDEL.—Belshazzar - 3s. 0d.
 F. HILLER.—A Song of Victory - 2s. 0d.
 G. A. MACFARREN.—Outward Bound. 2s. 6d.
 R. SCHUMANN.—Paradise and the Peri 2s. 6d.
 H. SMART.—The Bride of Dunkerron - 2s. 6d.
 A. S. SULLIVAN.—Festival Te Deum - 2s. 0d.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES,

IN VOCAL SCORE,

With a Separate Accompaniment for the Pianoforte.

NEW NUMBERS.

300.	Agnus Dei (God our Father) First Mass	Haydn	1½d.
301.	Dona Nobis (Sing the praises) do	do.	1½d.
302.	Tyrants now no more. Hercules	Handel	1½d.
303.	Quod in orbe (I will exalt Thee)	Hummel	4d.
304.	Kyrie eleison (I will call upon the Lord) Mass in G	Weber	1½d.
305.	Gloria in excelsis (Praise the Lord)	do.	do.	do.	3d.
306.	Credo (Nations shall do Him service)	do.	do.	do.	3d.
307.	Sanctus (Holy, holy)	...	do.	do.	2d.
308.	{ Agnus Dei and Dona Nobis (Shew Thy favour and Look with favour) }	...	do.	do.	1½d.
309.	Pignus future (Sing to Jehovah) Litany in E♭	Mozart	4d.
310.	Do. (Lord God, to Thee be glory) Litany in E♭	Do.	4d.
311.	Blessed are the men	...	Elijah	...	Mendelssohn	4d.
312.	Baal, we cry to thee	...	do.	...	do.	4d.
313.	Thanks be to God	...	do.	...	do.	4d.
314.	Be not afraid	...	do.	...	do.	4d.
315.	He watching over Israel	...	do.	...	do.	4d.
316.	Holy, Holy, is God the Lord	do.	...	do.	4d.
317.	And then shall your light	do.	...	do.	4d.
318.	He that shall endure	...	do.	...	do.	2d.
319.	Behold, God the Lord	...	do.	...	do.	4d.
320.	He saw the lovely youth. Theodora	Handel	1½d.
321.	Now love, that everlasting boy. Semele	...	do.	do.	1½d.
322.	{ Sanctus (Holy, Holy, Holy) } Benedictus (He is blessed)	...	Mass in E♭ C. M. von Weber	4d.
323.	Sanctus and Benedictus. Messe Solennelle	...	Ch. Gounod	2d.
324.	{ Ye sons of Israel (Air, Alto) } Weep, Israel, weep (Chorus)	...	Samson	...	Handel	1d.
325.	{ Sanctus (Holy, Holy, Holy) } Benedictus (Blessed is He)	...	Communion Service Ch. Gounod	2d.
326.	Come, and trip it as you go (L'Allegro)	...	Handel	1d.
327.	Or let the merry bells ring round	do.	...	do.	1½d.
328.	Populous cities	...	do.	...	do.	1½d.
329.	These delights if thou canst give	do.	...	do.	1½d.
330.	These pleasures melancholy give	do.	...	do.	3d.
331.	{ Requiem Æternam } Give unto the pure in heart	...	Requiem Mass in C minor	...	Cherubini	2d.
332.	Dies Iræ (Day of vengeance)	do.	do.	6d.
333.	Pie Jesu (God of mercy)	do.	do.	1d.
334.	{ My Saviour Jesus now is taken } Have lightnings and thunders	...	The Passion J. S. Bach	3d.
335.	Hearts feel that love thee	Athalie	...	Mendelssohn	3d.
336.	How doth the Lord. The Passion	...	J. S. Bach	1d.
337.	In tears of grief.	do.	...	do.	1½d.
338.	Yet doth the Lord see it not. Elijah	...	Mendelssohn	4d.
339.	What threatening tempest. Calvary.	Spohr	4d.
340.	Haughty Babylon. Fall of Babylon	do.	3d.
341.	Cast thy burden. Elijah	Mendelssohn	2d.
342.	Credo. Messe Solennelle	Gounod	4d.
343.	{ Promised joys } Hearts feel that love thee	...	Athalie	...	Mendelssohn	6d.
344.	Kyrie Eleison. Mass in D.	Beethoven	3d.
345.	The mighty power. Athalia	Handel	3d.
346.	By slow degrees. Belshazzar	Handel	3d.
347.	Dixit Dominus	Leonardo Leo	2d.
348.	In exitu Israel	Samuel Wesley	4d.
349.	Where is he. Engedi	Beethoven	3d.
350.	Jehovah, Lord God of Hosts	Spohr	4d.
351.	O God, who in Thy heavenly hand.	Joseph	...	Handel	3d.
352.	Come with torches. Walpurgis Night	Mendelssohn	4d.
353.	I wrestle and pray	J. S. Bach	4d.
354.	Gentle night, O descend.	Calvary	...	Spohr	2d.
355.	Though all thy friends prove faithless	do.	...	do.	2d.
356.	His earthly race is run	...	do.	do.	2d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

Music for Easter-tide.

- A LLEN, G. B.—"Now is Christ risen from the dead." Full, 4 voices, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- A LWYN, WILLIAM CROWTHER.—"This is the day." Full, 4 voices, 8vo., 9d.
- B ARNBY, J.—"As we have born the image of the earthy." Full, s.s.a.t.b. Vocal score, folio, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- B EST, W. T.—"Jesus Christ is risen to-day, Alleluia." Hymn for Chorus and Organ. Octavo, 4d.
- B OYCE.—"If we believe that Jesus died." Verse a.b. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 9d.
- B UNNETT, EDWARD.—"If we believe that Jesus died." Full, 4 voices. Octavo, 4d.
- C ALKIN, J. BAPTISTE.—"I will magnify Thee, O God my King." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 1s. 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 4d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- C LARKE, J. HAMILTON.—"Christ is risen from the dead." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- E LVEY, Sir G. J., Mus. Doc.—"Christ is risen from the dead." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- "Christ being raised from the dead." 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- F ROST, CHARLES JOSEPH.—"Like as Christ was raised up." Full, 4 voices, 8vo., 3d.
- G ADSBY, HENRY.—"He is risen." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- G LADSTONE, W. H.—"Christ our Passover." The Easter Anthem. Set to Music in a Chant Form. Folio, 1s.
- G OSS, SIR JOHN.—"Christ our Passover." Full Anthem for 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- "If we believe that Jesus died." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 3d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- "O give thanks unto the Lord." Full, 4 voices, 1s. 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 3d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- G OUNOD, CHARLES.—"Blessed is he who cometh in the Name of the Lord." Vocal score, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d.
- H ELMORE, The Rev. THOMAS.—"Carols for Easter-tide." Set to Ancient Melodies; the words principally in imitation of the original, by the Rev. J. M. NEALE, D.D. For 4 voices, with Accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte. Music size, 4s. 6d. Short score, 18mo., 1s. Treble part, 18mo., 6d. The words only, 1½d.
- H OLLOWAY, W. H.—"He is risen." Duet, 2 Trebles and Chorus. 8vo., 3d.
- H OPKINS, J. L.—"Lift up your heads." Full, 4 voices, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- H OPKINS, E. J.—"Why seek ye the living among the dead?" Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- H YMNS selected from "The Hymnary," 1d.
- I ONS, DR.—"Jesus Christ is risen to-day." 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 1s. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d.
- J ACKSON (Masham).—"Christ our Passover." 6d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- J ORDAN, C. W.—"Christ is risen." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 6d.
- K ENT.—"Hear my Prayer." Verse, 2 Trebles and Chorus. Vocal score, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Chorus parts, 4½d.
- "The Lord is my Shepherd." Verse, for Treble, or Tenor and Bass, and Chorus. Vocal score, 2s. Ditto, 8vo., 4d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- "Why do the heathen so furiously rage?" Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 3d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
- L OWE, ALBERT.—"The Lord is my strength." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 3d.
- M ACFARREN, G. A.—"Christ our Passover," and "If we believe." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 2d.
- "As Christ was raised," and "Why stand ye?" Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 2d.
- "This is the day." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 2d.
- M ONK, DR.—"Sing the battle sharp and glorious." 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 1s. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d.
- M ONK, W. H.—"The Lord is my strength." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- "Now upon the first day of the week." For s.a.t.b., with verses for Trebles, 2s.
- N AYLOR, J., Mus. Bac.—"If ye then be risen with Christ." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 1s.
- N ORRIS, THOMAS.—"Hear my prayer." Full Anthem, with verse for s.s.a.a.t.b. Vocal score, 2s. Vocal parts, 7½d.
- N OVELLO.—"The Easter Hymn," newly adapted and variously harmonized, as Solo, Trio, Quartet, and Chorus, 1s. Octavo, 1½d.
- "The Lord is my strength." 9d. Vocal parts, 6d. Class copy, in score, 1½d.
- O AKELEY, Professor, Mus. Doc.—"This is the day which the Lord hath made." Vocal score, 2s. Vocal parts, 1s. 4d.
- O ULTON, M.—"Christ is risen from the dead." 8vo., 3d.

MUSIC FOR EASTER-TIDE (Continued).

- P ITTMAN, JOSIAH.—"The Lord is King." 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- P RIVETT, DANIEL.—"Now is Christ risen." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 8d.
- S EWELL, JOHN.—"This is the day." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 2d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- S TROUD.—"Hear my Prayer." 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- T HORNE, E. H.—"Christ is risen from the dead." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- "The Lord that brought us." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 3d.
- T URLE, JAMES.—"This is the day which the Lord hath made." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 4d. Vocal parts, 1s.
- T RIMNELL, THOS. TALLIS.—"The Lord is King" (97th Psalm). 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.
- W EBBE.—"Christ being raised from the dead." Vocal score, 9d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d.
- W ISE, M.—"Awake up, my glory." Verse s.a.b. Folio, 9d. Vocal parts, 6d.
- W ESLEY, DR. S. S.—"O give thanks unto the Lord." Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 4d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
- "Blessed be the God and Father." Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 4d. Vocal parts, 1s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NINE HYMNS WITH TUNES

FOR EASTER,

SELECTED FROM

THE HYMNARY.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

- CHRIST THE LORD IS RISEN TO-DAY - SIR GEORGE ELVEY.
 FAR BE SORROW, TEARS, AND SIGHS - C. STEGALL, Mrs. D.
 WELCOME, HAPPY MORNING - ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN.
 COME, YE FAITHFUL, RAISE THE STRAIN - Ditto.
 AT THE LAMB'S HIGH FEAST WE SING - GERMAN.
 THE DAY OF RESURRECTION - HENRY SMART.
 JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN TO-DAY - CH. GOUNOD.
 Ditto Ditto - OLD MELODY.
 O BLESSED TRINITY - Ditto.
 SOON THE FIERY SUN ASCENDING - GERMAN.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. New York: J. L. Peters.

FULL ANTHEM for ASCENSIONTIDE. "God is gone up with a merry noise," by J. NEWBERRY. To be obtained of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, London, or of the composer, Hayes, Beckenham, Kent.

NEW EASTER ANTHEM.—"The Lord is my strength," composed expressly for Parish Choirs, by ALBERT LOWE, Organist and Director of the Choir at St. Stephen's, South Kensington. 8vo., 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NEW ANTHEM for EASTER.—"He is risen." Anthem for four voices, by W. H. HOLLOWAY. 8vo., price 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Just Published.

AN EASTER ANTHEM (Full), "If we believe that Jesus died," price 4d. Also, the BENEDICTUS and JUBILATE, price 4d. Composed expressly for Parish Choirs, by Dr. BUNNETT, Norwich. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

DR. SPARK'S POPULAR EASTER ANTHEM, "Christ being raised," for Soprano solo, Chorus and Organ. Folio score, 1s. 6d. Set of complete Voice parts, 1s. Novello and Co.

VOCAL TRIOS,

PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.,

ROSARIO ASPA.				S. D.
Now fate, alas, has parted. Female voices	...	1	6
H. C. BANISTER.
Summer Days. Female voices	...	3	0
BEETHOVEN.
The hour of vengeance, "Engedi"	...	S.T.B.	3	0
CHERUBINI.
Sleep, Royal Child. Lullaby. Female voices	...	3	0
CURSCHMANN.
Ti prego, O Madre	...	S.A.T.	2	0
Protect us thro' the coming night. Ti prego, O Padre	...	S.S.C.	2	0
Class copy 1½d.
Addio!	...	S.S.T.	1	6
The Flower greeting	...	S.S.S.	2	0
Class Copy 1½d.
FINLAY DUN.
June (She is coming)	...	Net	S.S.C.	0	2
FERRARI.
Let us all to the fields repair	2	6
Class Copy 1½d.
GABUSSI.
Il compianto. For Female voices	2	0
J. L. HATTON.
Who hath bound the deep, deep river (Jack Frost). Female voices	2	0
When evening's twilight	1	6
Sailor's song	1	6
DR. HENRY HILES.
The song of the lark (Summer). Female voices	2	0
Open, Oh Heaven! (a dirge)	2	0
To Primroses, filled with morning dew	2	0
LINDPAINTNER.
Stars of night, Canon	...	S.T.B.	2	0
F. MARCHETTI.
Ave Maria. Latin and English words. Female voices	3	0
MENDELSSOHN.
Op. 39. Three Motetts for Female Voices. Composed for the Convent of Trinita di Monte, at Rome, with Latin and English words. 8vo. Net	2	0
No. 1, Hear us, gracious Lord. Veni Domine	1	0
" 2, Ye sons of Israel. Laudate pueri	1	0
" 3, The Good Shepherd. Surrexit pastor	1	0
Op. 39. Three Motetts—
No. 1, Venie Domine. Folio	2	0
" 2, Laudate pueri	3	0
" 3, Surrexit pastor	4	0
Op. 39. Three Anthems—
No. 1, Hear, oh hear my prayer. Folio	2	0
" 2, O praise the Lord	3	0
" 3, O Lord, Thou hast searched	4	0
Hearts feel that love thee, "Athalie"	...	S. S. C.	2	0
Lift thine eyes, "Elijah"	...	S. S. C.	2	0
I waited for the Lord. Arr. "Lobgesang"	...	S. S. C.	2	0
Say, where is He born? "Christus"	...	S. S. C.	2	0
B. MOLIQUE.
Let all those rejoice, "Abraham"	...	A. T. B.	3	0
V. NOVELLO.
I will sing of mercy	1	6
Class copy, 1½d.
SIR FRED. OUSELEY.				S. D.
In the sight of the unwise, "St. Polycarp"	2	0
Class copy, 1½d.
H. H. PIERSON.
Cry aloud, "Jerusalem"	1	6
R. RADECKE.
Peace. 8vo. Score and Parts	1	0
To the bird in the sky. 8vo. Score and Parts	1	0
REINTHALER.
Glorious stand the mountains, "Jephtha"	2	0
For Female Voices.
CARL REINECKE.
Ten Trios for Female voices, complete	...	Net.	1	6
Or singly:—
No. 1, The Dreaming Lake	...	Net.	0	2
" 2, Praise of Spring	...	"	0	3
" 3, Of oak thy mournful bier's prepared	...	"	0	3
" 4, Sunbeams in Winter	...	"	0	2
" 5, The awakening of morn	...	"	0	3
" 6, The Winter hath not a blossom	...	"	0	3
" 7, Thou that thyself with death hast striven	...	"	0	2
" 8, The Evening wind	...	"	0	3
" 9, As in the field goodly fruit will grow	...	"	0	3
" 10, The Elves	...	"	0	3
GUILIO ROBERTI.
No. 1, Recollections. For Female Voices	2	6
" 2, Peace	...	Ditto	...	2	6
" 3, Fare thee well	...	Ditto	...	2	6
" 4, Twilight	...	Ditto	...	2	6
" 5, The night	...	Ditto	...	2	6
" 6, Charming valley	...	Ditto	...	2	6
L. RÖHR.
Sunday morning. 8vo. Score and Parts	1	0
ROSSINI.
Carita "Charity." Class copy 1½d.	2	0
SCHUBERT.
Coronach. For Female Voices	2	6
HENRY SMART.
Corall'd caves of ocean. For Female Voices	3	0
Something brighter, purer far	...	Ditto	...	3	0
Hope and Memory	...	Ditto	...	3	0
Night sinks on the wave	...	Ditto	...	2	0
O! skylark for thy wing	...	Ditto	...	3	0
The bird at sea	...	Ditto	...	3	0
Hail, to thee, child of the earth	...	Ditto	...	2	0
WILHELM SCHULTHES.
Song of Angels. For Female Voices	2	0
SPOHR.
Loud proclaim the great salvation, "Fall of Babylon."	...	A. T. B.	3	0
Jesu, heavenly master, "Calvary"	...	S. S. A.	2	0
E. H. THORNE.
Hark! hark! the lark at heaven's gate sings	1	0
Female Voices. Class copy, 1½d.
DR. T. A. WALMSLEY.
The approach of May. For Female Voices	3	0
The Mermaid	...	Ditto	...	4	0
Cambria, Canone (Sweet land of the mountain)	5	0
(With accompaniment for pianoforte, harp, flute, violin and violoncello.)

CHAPPELL & CO.

Have now on View the largest Stock in London of PIANOFORTES by all the great Makers, of ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, greatly improved, and of ORGAN HARMONIUMS. Any of these Instruments can be Hired for Three Years, and, provided each Quarterly Instalment shall have been regularly paid in advance, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer at the expiration of the third year.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SIX-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM.

SOLID OAK CASE, FIVE OCTAVES, AND TWO FOOT-BOARDS.

The ever-increasing musical culture of all classes of society has established so large a demand for free reed instruments that many makers have sprung up who offer articles of such inferior and nasal quality of tone that the title of Harmonium suggests to many lovers of music the nearest approach to an instrument of torture that can be met with in the present age.

In the Instruments now offered to the public the tone will be found divested of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable. This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the tone rich and organ-like.

Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.

The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect, and without extra cost.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET.

NEW WORK FOR SINGING CLASSES.

CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS.

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass.

The present collection of Part-Songs is entirely new, being selected and adapted from the most striking and popular Choruses in the Favourite Foreign Operas. The Arrangement is purely Vocal, such Choruses only being chosen as can be sung without the aid of an Instrumental Accompaniment. The Words have been expressly written for the work, and the harmonies arranged in four parts, as likely to be most useful in small classes.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. Hymn of the Fisherman's Children | Adapted to a Melody from Herold's "ZAMPA." |
| 2. Fays and Elves (In mia fe) | From Flotow's "MARTA." |
| 3. Spring's Bright Glances (In Elvesia non v'ha) | From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA." |
| 4. From Yonder Vale and Hill (D'immense giubilo) | From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR." |
| 5. Here we Rest (Qui la selva) | From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA." |
| 6. Onward to Battle (Squilli echeggi) | From Verdi's "TROVATORE." |
| 7. Rataplan (Rataplan) | From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO." |
| 8. The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche) | From Verdi's "IL TROVATORE." |
| 9. War Song of the Druids (Dell'aura tua profetica) | From Bellini's "NORMA." |
| 10. In Mercy, hear us! (Cielo clemente) | From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO." |
| 11. Come to the Fair! (Accorrete, giovinette) | From Flotow's "MARTA." |
| 12. Friendship (Per te d'immense giubilo) | From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR." |
| 13. Away, the Morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen) | From Auber's "MANSUELLO." |
| 14. Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus) | From Gounod's "FAUST." |
| 15. The soft Winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus) | From Weber's "PRECIOSA." |
| 16. See how lightly on the blue sea (Senti la danza invitaci) | From Donizetti's "LUCEZIA BORGIA." |
| 17. See the Moonlight Beam (Non fav Motto) | " |
| 18. On yonder rocks reclining | From Auber's "FRA DIAVOLO." |
| 19. Happy and light | From Balfe's "BOHEMIAN GIRL." |
| 20. Come, come away (Ah! que de moins) | From Donizetti's "LA FAVORITA." |
| 21. Hymn's torch (Il destin) | From Meyerbeer's "LES HUGENOTS." |
| 22. Come on, Comrade (The celebrated Chorus of Old Men) | From Gounod's "FAUST." |
| 23. 'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Chorale of the Cross) | " |
| 24. O Balmy night (Com è gentil) | From Donizetti's "DON PASQUALE." |

Postage free, 1½d. each; or 8 for 3½d.
(To be continued.)

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.

Original VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM.

Composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs, by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post free, 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written."

HANDEL'S CHORUSES

Arranged for the Organ, with PEDAL OBLIGATO, EXPRESSLY for the use of AMATEURS, by

DR. RIMBAULT. Price 3s. each. Nos. 1 to 12 are now ready:—

- | | | |
|-----------------------------|--------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| No. 1. ZADOCK THE PRIEST. | No. 5. SING UNTO GOD. | No. 9. FOR UNTO US A CHILD IS BORN. |
| 2. FROM THE CENSER. | 6. HALLELUJAH. | 10. HE TRUSTED IN GOD. |
| 3. WE NEVER WILL BOW DOWN. | 7. LIFT UP YOUR HEADS. | 11. BUT THE WATERS OVERWHELMED THEM. |
| 4. HE GAVE THEM HAILSTONES. | 8. LET US BREAK THEIR BONDS ASUNDER. | 12. THE HORSE AND HIS RIDER. |

(To be continued.)

The present publication has been undertaken with a view to supply a musical want long felt by amateurs and lovers of the organ, i.e., an edition of HANDEL'S CELEBRATED CHORUSES arranged for the organ with pedal obligato, that shall be effective, combining all the salient parts of the score, and yet at the same time be within the reach of those performers who have not made the instrument their entire study. We have, it is true, many arrangements; some for "Organ or Pianoforte," others by our most eminent organists. The first belong to a past age; the second, in all cases, are only fit for professional performers, and require an amount of skill for their proper execution rarely attained by amateurs. In the present edition, the notation has been carefully studied so as to simplify the reading, whilst the pedals, in all cases of difficulty, have the assistance of the left hand of the performer. Many other points have been considered so as to render the arrangement fitted to the object it has in view—to supply an edition of HANDEL'S CHORUSES for the Organ expressly for the amateur.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street (W), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster-row.
And by J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway, New York.—Tuesday, April 1, 1873.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

And Singing-Class Circular,
Published on the 1st of every Month.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped, those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c., can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 363.—Vol. 16.
Registered for transmission abroad.

MAY 1, 1873.

Price 2d.; Post-free, 2½d.
Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 2s. 6d.

ARTHUR ALLISON,
HARMONIUM MANUFACTURER,
110, WARDOUR STREET, LONDON, W.
SOLE LONDON AGENT FOR RAMSDEN'S (DAWES' PATENT) MELODY ORGANS,
AND DAWES' AND RAMSDEN'S
PATENT PEDAL SUBSTITUTE ORGANS,
AS SUPPLIED TO HER MAJESTY AND H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE.

THE MELODY ORGANS,

Beside possessing a quality of tone never before obtained in this class of instruments, have also the extraordinary capability of giving a perfectly clear and distinct additional melody, or, in other words, additional tones to the melody, with a power and variety in proportion to the number of melody stops employed; thus producing, automatically, the effect of one or more single-note or solo instruments being used by separate players, in accompaniment with, or in addition to, the full harmony upon the other stops or portions of the instrument. This entirely prevents that dull, heavy monotony which was before inseparable from the very best Reed Organs, and gives a life and expression beyond the anticipation of even the most ardent admirers of this class of instruments.

These Melody Organs also have the further advantage of enabling the performer, when playing a powerful melody with the right hand, to use the whole range of keys below the melody for a subdued accompaniment upon different stops, and without any break in the range (on account of the melody stops being constructed to give the melody only when the melody-knob is drawn). This is a desideratum fully appreciated by all musical professors and others who have used the Melody Organs.

THE PATENT PEDAL SUBSTITUTE

Imparts to the above instruments the further capability of giving—also automatically—a clear and distinct SUB-BASS or Pedal note, in addition to the chords or harmony usually played by the left hand; thus giving upon one manual THE EFFECT OF TWO MANUALS AND PEDALS, and rendering these complete DOUBLE-PATENT INSTRUMENTS the most capable, effective, and beautiful ever produced, either in England or in any other country.

These beautiful effects are produced without any effort on the part of the player, except the swelling or accenting of these additional single note or solo parts, by means of a pedal or "knee-swell."

The OAK ORGANS are specially toned and constructed for Churches, Chapels, or Schools. The advantages to be derived from their use cannot be over-estimated, the melody being so clearly brought out as to render it almost impossible for a choir to sing out of tune, when accompanied by one of them.

PATENT MELODY ORGANS.

	GUINEAS.
	Oak.	Rosewood.	Walnut.
2. THE PATENT MELODY ORGAN, "QUEEN'S MODEL."—9 Stops, and 2 Knee Swells. Melody applied to Cremona and Tremolo -	25	27	27
3. THE PATENT MELODY AND PEDAL SUBSTITUTE ORGAN.—9 Stops, Pedal Substitute, and 2 Knee Swells. Melody applied to Cremona and Tremolo -	30	33	33
THE PATENT MELODY ORGAN.—11 Stops, and 2 Knee Swells. Melody applied to Cremona and Tremolo -	33	35	35
5. THE PATENT MELODY AND PEDAL SUBSTITUTE ORGAN (THE ROYAL MODEL, as supplied to Her Majesty the Queen, and H.R.H. the Princess Louise).—With 11 Stops, Pedal Substitute, and 2 Knee Swells. Melody applied to Cremona and Tremolo -	36	40	40
7. THE PATENT MELODY AND PEDAL SUBSTITUTE ORGAN.—With 14 Stops, Pedal Substitute, and 2 Knee Swells. Melody applied to Cremona, Flageolet, and Tremolo, or Cremona and Tremolo -	45	50	52
9. THE PATENT MELODY AND PEDAL SUBSTITUTE ORGAN.—With 16 Stops, Pedal Substitute, and 2 Knee Swells. Melody applied to Cremona and Tremolo, or Cremona, Flageolet, Hautbois, and Tremolo -	56	60	62
10. THE PATENT MELODY AND PEDAL SUBSTITUTE ORGAN, "DRAWING-ROOM MODEL."—With 20 Stops, Percussion Action, Pedal Substitute, and 2 Knee Swells. Melody applied to Three Ranges of Reeds. In elegant Carved Walnut Case -	135

ENGLISH HARMONIUMS.

	GUINEAS.
	Walnut.	Burr, or Rosewood.	Walnut.
11. THE COTTAGE HARMONIUM -	7	8	9
12. THE SCHOOL HARMONIUM.—3 Stops -	10	11	12
13. FIVE STOPS -	13	14	15
14. SEVEN STOPS -	16	18	20
15. TEN STOPS -	21	23	25
16. ELEVEN STOPS -	25	27	29
17. TWELVE STOPS -	28	30	32
18. THIRTEEN STOPS -	31	33	35
19. THE BOUDOIR MODEL.—16 Stops, in Hand-some Burwood Walnut. Registered Keys -	40
20. THE BOUDOIR MODEL.—17 Stops -	42
21. THE BOUDOIR MODEL.—20 Stops. Percussion Action -	52
22. THE CHURCH MODEL.—20 Stops, very powerful -	65
23. Ditto.—20 Stops, with Percussion, 2 Knee Swells, and Grand Jeu at the heel -	75
24. THE CONCERT MODEL.—With 7 rows of Vibrators, Double Expression, Percussion, 19 stops, viz. Expression, Pianissimo Expression, Treble and Bass. 2 Percussion, Grand Jeu, Harp éolienne Treble and Bass, Flute, Cor Anglais, Clarinette, Bourdon, Flageolet, Clarion, Hautbois, Bassoon, Musette, Voix Céleste, Baryton, 2 Knee Fortes, and Grand Jeu at the heel -	120

PEDAL HARMONIUMS.

30. TWO STOPS.—Bourdon and Coupler -	35	38	40
31. FOUR STOPS.—Diapason, Principal, Bourdon, and Coupler -	43	46	49

The Pedals are made of hard wood, the Scale and Compass are made exactly to the Organ Scale. These instruments are fitted with a back and foot blower. The prices include a Stained Pine Stool.

INSTRUMENTS LENT ON HIRE UPON THE 3 YEARS' SYSTEM.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS GRACE ARMYTAGE (Primo Soprano),
2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud green-road, N.

MISS BLANCHE REIVES (Principal Soprano only).
Oratorios, Opera, Concerts, &c. 28, Queen's-road, Norland-square, W.,
and 106, Renfrew-street, Glasgow.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS GRACE EATON (Soprano)
Is prepared to accept Engagements for Concerts, Readings, &c. Terms arranged. Address 10, Hobury-street, King's-road, S.W.

MISS JENNY TWIGG (Soprano).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 41, Hampton Villas, Clough-road, Sheffield.

MISS CLELLAND (Soprano),
And MISS CLELLAND (Contralto),
For Engagements address 51, Elizabeth-st., Cheetham-hill, Manchester.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE (Soprano),
2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, W.

MISS ROSINA HOUGHTON (Contralto).
7, Lamborne-road, Clapham.

MISS GLEDHILL (Contralto).
Concerts and Pupils. 51, Devonshire-road, N.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),
50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MISS RUTH HARLOW (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, etc.
Address Lark-hill, Tonge, Middleton.

MISS ANNETTA GWILT, R.A.M. (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons in Singing, and Pianoforte, address
Messrs. Duncan Davison and Co., 244, Regent-street, W.

MR. EDWARD DEVON (Primo Tenore),
Of the principal Italian Theatres, and of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts.
"Mr. Devon well deserved the encore he obtained."—Standard, 16th
September, 1872.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 16, Hanover-street, Regent-street.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
Address 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 1, St. George's-terrace, Kilburn.

MR. N. DUMVILLE (Principal Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. REDFERN HOLLINS (Tenor).
Address 26, St. Stephen's-road, Shepherd's Bush, London.

MR. SIM. WARD (Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts. Address No. 1, Claremont-terrace,
Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. JOSEPH HUTCHINSON (Baritone).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address the Cathedral, Salisbury.
HENRY C. SANDERS (Baritone),
(Of S. Andrew's, Well-street) 2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud green-road, N.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Basso).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; also for Oxford Glee Party.
Address Principal Bass, Ch. Ch. Cathedral, Oxford.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),
Sunnybank, Hazleville-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
(Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts), for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address 2, Hallfield-place, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. H. WATSON (Solo Pianist and Accompanist).
For terms, &c., address 25, Market-place, Manchester.

MR. J. TILLEARD,
Removed to Seaton-villa, Slaithwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder;
29, Minories, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds,
Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories,
London. List for stamp.

WARD'S

ROYAL PIANOFORTE AND HARMONIUM
LAMP AND CANDELABRA,

FOR PROVIDING A CENTRAL AND DIRECT LIGHT
FOR THE PERFORMER.

The inconvenience of the present mode of lighting a performer, at a pianoforte or harmonium, by means of sconces fitted at the extremities of the instrument, has long been a subject of complaint. The requirement is, a central light to fall direct upon the music book. This can be obtained by using Thomas Ward's Royal Pianoforte Lamp and Candelabra, which can be fitted to any form of instrument, without defacing the same. It consists of an elegant bronze stem, which fits securely into a brass groove fixed to the centre of the back of the instrument; or to the wrist-board of a grand piano; the stem can be removed at pleasure. From the stem proceeds a branch, which crosses the top of the piano, enabling the instrument to be opened freely: one end of the branch supports a lamp or candelabra, and thus brings the light directly over the music book. The other end of the branch is fitted with a joint, by means of which the light can be raised and moved to the right or left to suit the performer. Vocalists also will thus find a convenience which does not exist in other modes of lighting.

Prospectuses Post Free.

Price of Lamp, £2 2s.; Candelabra, £1 1s.

Agents—Messrs. Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and J. Williams, 23, Berners-street, Oxford-street.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous.

London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUB-
LISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ-Accordions.
Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Cla-
rionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-
Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free.
J. Russell, 158, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

The King of all Reed Instruments yet invented.

W. HATTERSLEY AND CO.'S Celebrated Improved
HARMONIUMS, for quality of tone, rapidity of touch, workmanship, improved action, &c., stand unequalled. These charming instruments have been compared side by side with the American organs, and pronounced superior at half the price.

DRAWING ROOM MODEL,

Full Organ Tone, with knee swell to Treble and Bass, all stops effective.

9 Stops, Walnut case, 17 guineas.

12 " Burr " 22 "

13 " " 26 "

New designs and new testimonials now ready.

W. Hattersley and Co., 10 and 12, Bow-street, Sheffield.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 7th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE
BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices at J. MOORE'S, Buxton-road, Huddersfield. Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

TO ORGAN BUILDERS and others.—Send for Price Lists of ORGAN METAL PIPES to Lloyd and Dudgeon, Union-road, Nottingham. Not to be surpassed for price or quality.

ORGAN HARMONIUM, £20 and £22. Fine tone, 24 rows of reeds, bourdon on full compass, German pedals, with coupler to keys, foot and side blower. Manufactured for pedal practice, by W. J. Robertson, 107, Tottenham-road, Kingsland, London, N.
Lists free, with extracts of letters from Organists.

A 5-STOP CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE. Stop diapason, treble, and bass; principal, flute, and clarabella. Good tone; oak front with gilt pipes. Price £28. Apply to J. H. Webster, Meade's-place, Newington-causeway, S.E.

SMALL ORGANS with pedals, for Church or
Chamber, from 35 guineas. HARMONIUMS, 5 octaves of organ tone, simple mechanism, for Chapels, Schools, or private use, from 6 guineas. PIANOFORTES, 7 octaves, from 21 guineas. Warranted rosewood COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, 2½ octaves of pedals. William Sprague, 7, Finsbury-pavement, London.

TO BE SOLD, the ORGAN at Christ Church, Carnarvon (to make room for a larger instrument). The swell organ contains four stops; viz., hautboy, principal open diapason, stop ditto.
The great organ contains eight stops, viz., dulciana, stop diapason, open ditto, principal, fifteenth, twelfth, sesquialtra pedal pipes, swell copula, 2 octaves of pedals. GG to G, 2 composition pedals. Price £120. The Organist will be happy to show the Organ to intending purchasers.

ORGAN for SALE, new.—Compass CC to G. Great organ seven stops, swell organ four stops, separate bourdon pedal organ, CCC to F, 30 notes; three composition pedals, enclosed in a handsome walnut wood case, with gilt front pipes. To be seen at A. Hunter's Organ Factory, 379, Kennington-road.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE.—Eight stops in great organ, and seven in swell organ, with bourdon pedal pipes. To be seen at A. Hunter's Organ Factory, 379, Kennington-road.

TWO Capital CC ORGANS for SALE, equal to new, one with 2 manuals, 12 stops, and 29 bourdon pedal pipes, and the other with 1 manual, 6 stops, and 1½ octaves of pedals. Must be sold at a bargain. A first-class PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS to be DISPOSED OF, in a rising town at the sea-side, an excellent opening for a good Tuner. Stock and Fixtures to be taken at a valuation. For particulars, address A. B., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

CC ORGAN for SALE, now in course of construction. 2 complete rows of keys, CC to G, and 2½ octaves of pedals and pedal pipes, 17 stops, and can be finished to suit Church or Chamber, according to wish of purchaser. For particulars and terms apply to G. T., 23, Brunewick-street, Poplar, E.

ALEXANDRE HARMONIUM, 12 stops, percussion, FOR SALE, cheap; cost 75 guineas. A. S. P., 1, Woughton Houses, London-road, Clapton, E.

TO ORGANISTS.—Valuable Pedal HARMONIUM, constructed especially for Organ Practice. 2 manuals, and 2½ octaves of pedals (independent action), contains in great 1½ rows of reeds, in swell 1 row. Pedals 2 rows, 16 ft. and 8 ft. tone; coupler swell to great; may be blown either by hand or feet; tone very fine. Price 30 guineas. Apply to J. Moore, Music-seller, Buxton-road, Huddersfield.

PIANOFORTE, with 2 rows of keys, and a set of organ pedals, 2½ octaves, CCC to E, with rosewood organ stool complete. TO BE SOLD, a bargain. John Brinsmead and Sons, 18, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square, W.

SECOND-HAND COTTAGE PIANOFORTES by all great Makers, BOUGHT for CASH. Also, SALES by AUCTION of same undertaken, and Cash advanced to any amount. William Adams and Sons, Auctioneers, Manchester.

SELLING OFF.—PIANOS and HARMONIUMS, by all the best Makers, at reduced prices, for alteration of premises, at R. Mellor's, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield. 10s. worth of Music for 1s., post free for 15 stamps.

LITHOGRAPHIC COPYING CHEAPER THAN ENGRAVING. Organists, Composers, and Societies should have Music prepared by this excellent system. Specimens. Fredk. Wood, 32, Vincent-square, Westminster.

ONE GUINEA'S worth of MUSIC for 2s. 6d., slightly soiled, including the surplus of the past year's issue. Post free, 2s. 10d. JAMES SMITH & SON, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

10S. WORTH OF MUSIC for One Shilling. Post free for fifteen stamps. Each Shilling Lot contains pieces quite new. R. Mellor, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield. Established 1838.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, Strand.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—(HILL and SON)—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with two manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, HARMONY, &c., One Guinea per quarter; Lessons and Practice on fine modern instruments. Organist, 51, Fenchurch-street, E.C.

ORGAN for PRACTICE.—2 manuals, full compass, 30 bourdon pedal pipes, CCC to F.—Mr. Warren's Organ Studio, 245, Kentish-town-road. TO LET, PARLOUR as BEDROOM (furnished), with or without Practice on above Organ. Cars continually passing the door.

HARRIS'S MUSIC ROOMS, for Quartett Parties, Choral Societies, or Professors giving Lessons, with use of Pianoforte. 33, Rathbone-place, W.

MR. FREDERICK LUCAS, Public Accountant and Auditor, 26, Maddox-street, Regent-street, London, W., having had great experience in Accounts peculiar to the Pianoforte and Music Trade, and the valuation of such Stocks, undertakes to prepare Partnerships and other statements, or carry out arrangements in connection with the Trade.

The PIANOFORTE STOCK BOOK, arranged for 80 Pianos, price 4s., or 400 Pianos or Harmoniums, price 14s. The TUNING REGISTER, arranged for 60 Tunings to each letter of the alphabet, price 4s. NOW READY.

TO CLERGYMEN.—The Management of the Voice, Reading, Intoning, &c., Taught by a former Member of a Cathedral Choir. Lessons by appointment; terms moderate. Address F. F. C., Bury Cottage, Godalming, Surrey. Class-room in London.

SINGING.—A Master of great experience (R.A.M.), desires to resume Practice in London. As pupil of Sir George Smart he offers special advantages to persons anxious to qualify themselves for the performance of the higher class of Vocal Music—the Oratorios of Handel, Haydn, Mendelssohn, &c. Lessons by appointment; terms moderate. Address F. F. C., Bury Cottage, Godalming, Surrey. Class-room in London.

SURPLICES.—SIX MEN'S, for SALE, a Bargain, for cash. Apply to Mr. Sydney, 10, Ponsonby-terrace, Vauxhall-bridge-road, Pimlico.

MISS BESSIE M. WAUGH (Eos Mynwy), Solo Pianist, Accompanist, and Teacher of the Pianoforte. 6, Mortimer-street, Cavendish-square, W.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.), begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts, may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Sixth Season). Mr. H. ASHTON. Mr. T. PEARSON. Mr. J. F. MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN. Assisted by Madame ASHTON. (Miss F. Danielson.)

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c., address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

PASCALL'S VOICE JUJUBES.

Strongly recommended to Singers and Public Speakers. Agreeable and effective. In boxes only, Sixpence and One Shilling each, or post free for eight and fourteen stamps. None genuine without the name and address on each box.—Jas. Pascall, 21, Wells-street, Oxford-street, London, W.

PROFESSORS OF MUSIC.—A GUINEA offered for the BEST TUNE to Mr. Waddington's new Song, to be selected by a Professor from the competitors, and the successful one to receive gratis a number of copies when published. A copy of words, and particulars forwarded on receipt of seven stamps. Address T. W., Swiss Cottage, Boston Spa, Yorkshire.

FOR SALE, a PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, and TUNING BUSINESS (with a connection of Teaching combined), situated in one of the most hiring seaports of the Eastern Counties. Address "Pianoforte," care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A PROFESSOR of MUSIC in a beautiful Sea-side town, desires to DISPOSE of his PRACTICE. Income between £300 and £400. A good Musician (Pianist and Violinist) could increase the income. Organist's place soon vacant. Address in first instance, A.B., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

PIANOFORTE PLAYER and TUNER.—WANTED for a first-class Pianoforte Warehouse in Ireland, a good Pianoforte Player and Tuner to take charge of warehouses. A competent and steady man, of good address and experience, will be liberally dealt with. Apply as above, care of Mr. Geary, London Pianoforte Company, Castle-road, Kentish-town, London.

PIANOFORTE REPAIRER, TUNER, & PLAYER.—REQUIRED, a Good Man, by a firm of Auctioneers. Wages 30s., with facility for making it double or more. Address A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks an ENGAGEMENT in London or elsewhere. Good references. Address J.B., 5, Mount Pleasant-place, Plymouth.

A PIANIST and PIANOFORTE TUNER, with knowledge of Repairs, desires a SITUATION (country preferred). Good references, and steady. Could manage a branch business, and deposit £100 or £200 as money security. Address A. Z., 25, Cave's-terrace, Shepherd's-bush, London.

A YOUNG MAN would like to enter a Music Shop. A good Pianist. Address L. M., J. Giles, Postman, Bognor, Sussex.

WANTED, immediately, an ASSISTANT in a Music Warehouse. He must be able to Tune Pianos and Harmoniums, and assist in Teaching. A good home for a respectable young man. Apply to Music Warehouse, Russell-street, Northgate, Darlington.

WANTED by a YOUNG LADY (18) a SITUATION as ASSISTANT in a Music Shop. Is musical; speaks French; highest references. Address, stating all particulars, Miss Winstanley, Elm Cottage, Gateacre, Liverpool.

APPRENTICE (In-door).—ALFRED PHILLIPS, Music-seller, Composer, Publisher, &c., has a VACANCY for a Youth; a knowledge of Music necessary. Premium required. Apply between 12 and 2, or after 6 p.m., 128, Boundary-road, St. John's-wood.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 2s. 6d. paper covers; 3s. 9d. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS,

SINGLE AND DOUBLE,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with special reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry. New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 268 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

" 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

" 3. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

" 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 2s. 6d.

Congregations or Associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and music-sellers.

NOW READY,
A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS and ANTHEMS, arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford. Very neat and compact, 218 pp. Imperial 32mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in ... 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered ... 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered ... 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co. Bradford: Thomas Brear.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK and PSALMS and CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Ninth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book; also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON, for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.; cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES and ROUNDS; or Musical Precept and Example, combined in Easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J. POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c. London: Novello, Ewer, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,

FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS AND SCHOOLMASTERS.

By RICHARD MANN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWENTIETH EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Now ready, in Three Books, 6s. each. Post-free for Half-price.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

Specially adapted for Colleges, Public Schools, Singing Classes, &c. Book 1 (Duets); Books 2 and 3 (Trios).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Third edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

"FROM INTERVALS TO COUNTERPOINT."

SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and all Music-sellers.

MERCER'S CHURCH PSALTER and HYMN BOOK. An APPENDIX of ADDITIONAL HYMNS, CHANTS, SANCTUSES, and RESPONSES, the Harmonies carefully revised by Sir JOHN GOSS, may now be had, either separately, or bound up with the work in all its various sizes and forms. Prospectuses of the complete work, with full particulars, will be forwarded on application. London: James Nisbet and Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; Lamborn Cock, 62 and 63, New Bond-street, W.

BACH'S PASSION MUSIC.

In fcp. 4to., price 12s. 6d. cloth.

THE CHORALE BOOK FOR ENGLAND: the Hymns translated by Miss C. WINKWORTH; the Tunes arranged by Sir W. S. BENNETT and Otto GOLDSCHMIDT.

* * * The Chorale Book for England contains a correct and authentic version of the several Chorales which form part of Bach's Passion Music, according to both St. Matthew and St. John, with Hymns and Tunes adapted for English Part-Singers.

London: Longmans, Green and Co., Paternoster-row.

M. W. BALFE'S NEW OPERA

IL TALISMANO.

MESSRS. DUFF AND STEWART, 147, Oxford-street, have the pleasure to announce that they have entered into arrangements with Madame Balfe for the publication of the late M. W. Balfe's Grand Opera, now in rehearsal at Her Majesty's Opera.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS, now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.

No. 1. The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.

No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katrine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra. Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.

W. H. BIRCH'S EASTER MUSIC.

Anthem, "If ye then be risen with Christ," price 6d.

Anthem, by JOSEPH KEY, "Now is Christ risen," price 6d.

Anthem, "Ponder my words," price 6d.

Six Good Friday Hymns; six Easter Hymns, price 1s.

Address W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton-place, Reading.

TO CHOIRS.

SIX PART-SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, Composed and dedicated to Edinburgh University Musical Society, by H. S. OAKELEY, Mus. Doc., and Professor of Music at that University. No. 1, "Abendlied;" No. 2, "True Love;" No. 3, "Hunting Song;" No. 4, "Love's Philosophy," are now ready. Price, Nos. 1 and 2, and 3 and 4, 4d. vocal score. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TEN TRIOS for FEMALE VOICES, composed by

CARL REINECKE. (Op. 100.) 8vo., 1s. 6d.; or singly—

No. 1.—"The Dreaming Lake," 2d.

" 2.—"Praise of Spring," 3d.

" 3.—"Of Oak thy mournful bier's prepared," 3d.

" 4.—"Sunbeams in Winter," 2d.

" 5.—"The Awakening of Morn," 3d.

" 6.—"The Winter hath not a blossom," 3d.

" 7.—"Thou that thyself with death hath striven," 2d.

" 8.—"The Evening Wind," 3d.

" 9.—"As in a field goodly fruit will grow," 3d.

" 10.—"The Elves," 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

THE WINDMILL. Song. The Words by the Rev.

H. W. Pullen; the Music by C. J. READ. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE DISTANT SEA. New Part-Song, by Author of "God save the Prince." Price 2d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Price 2d.; by post 2½d.

JOTTINGS about Church of England Choral and Congregational Services; Piebald Services; Cold, Frozen, Silent, or Petrified Services; One authorized Hymn Book needed, instead of the swarms of unauthorized Selections issued and promised; The un-devotional high-pitched Monotone; The devotional low-pitched Monotone; Too frequent gabbling of the Confessions, Lord's Prayer, and Creeds; Surplices; Gregoriana, or Music in swaddling clothes; Kneeling at Church; Benches and Chairs, and sundry matters concerning Organs and Organists. By THOMAS KILNER, of Highbury. Reeves and Turner, 185, Fleet-street.

ORGAN MUSIC.—Catalogue (pp. 50), gratis and post free, of a valuable collection of Organ Solos—Duets—Pedal Exercises—Choruses—Voluntaries—Soft Movements—Cathedral and Church Music—Anthems—Oratorios—Services—Masses—Instruction Books, &c.—London: Sole Publishers, Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

Just published, small quarto, 6s.

NOTES ON CHURCH ORGANS, their position and the Materials used in their Construction, by C. K. K. BISHOP, with illustrations. Rivingtons, London, Oxford, and Cambridge.

IN CONSEQUENCE of the large number of applications which Mr. BROWN-BORTHWICK has received for copies of certain of his Hymn Tunes, he is about to publish a complete edition of them all, in a cheap form, provided a sufficient number of subscription copies are ordered to cover the cost of publication. The price to subscribers will be Two Shillings; to non-subscribers, Three Shillings. Orders, stating the number of copies required, will be received by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, London, W.; Mr. Theakston, St. Nicholas-street, Scarborough; and Messrs. G. Marshall and Son, Newborough-street, Scarborough.

CAUTION TO CHORAL SOCIETIES AND OTHERS.

THE BOOKS OF WORDS of the following ORATORIOS, CANTATAS &c., being the copyright of LAMBORN COCK, all parties are hereby cautioned against printing the same (or any part thereof), in any form whatever, without the consent of the Proprietor being first obtained in writing, the terms for which can be ascertained on application.

J. S. BACH'S "Passions-Musik" (according to St. Matthew.)

W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT'S "May Queen."

"Woman of Samaria."

J. BENEDICT'S "Undine."

J. THOMAS'S "Bride of Neath Valley."

W. H. CUMMINGS'S "The Fairy Ring."

OTTO GOLDSCHMIDT'S "Ruth."

W. G. CUSINS'S "Gideon."

W. CHALMERS MASTERS'S "The Rose of Salency."

DUBRIEL'S "Little Christmas."

London: Lamborn Cock, 63, New Bond-street.

C. JEFFERYS, 57 BERNERS ST. THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

A COLLECTION OF

PART-SONGS, GLEES, CHORUSES, &c.

EDITED BY MICHAEL WATSON.

1	'Tis silent eve	Michael Watson.
2	Corin's fate	R. Turner.
3	Where the pearly dew-drop falleth	E. J. Loder.
4	The Winter being over	Ellen Avery.
5	Fairy voices	T. G. B. Hatley.
6	Moonlight	J. H. L. Glover.
7	Good-bye	J. L. Hatton.
8	I thought of thee	W. F. Banks.
9	The Forsaken	J. L. Hatton.
10	Bonny May	J. H. L. Glover.
11	Spring Song	J. L. Hatton.
12	The Winds	C. J. Frost.
13	County Guy	G. A. Macfarren.
14	The birds that had left their song	do.

Price 2d. each number. Other Numbers in the Press.

THE POPULAR

Operatic Arrangements,

SOLOS AND DUETS,

And Original Pianoforte Pieces,

By FELIX GANTIER,

Of which lists may be had on application.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

1. FOUNTAINS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire movement) s. d. from Haydn's 16th Mass ... 3 0
2. NETLEY ABBEY. Cujus Animam (the entire movement) from Rossini's Stabat Mater ... 3 0
3. KIRKSTALL ABBEY. Kyrie (the entire movement) from Mozart's 12th Mass ... 3 0
4. TINTERN ABBEY. Gloria in Excelsis (the entire movement) from Mozart's 12th Mass ... 3 0

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, with views of English Abbeys.

THE LYRIC STAGE, a Series of Brilliant Operatic Fantasias:—

- | | | | | | |
|------------------------|-----|-----|-----|-----------|-----|
| 1. Martha | ... | ... | ... | Flotow | 4 0 |
| 2. Lucia di Lammermoor | ... | ... | ... | Donizetti | 4 0 |
| 3. Il Flauto Magico | ... | ... | ... | Mozart | 4 0 |
| 4. Les Huguenots | ... | ... | ... | Meyerbeer | 4 0 |
| 5. La Traviata | ... | ... | ... | Verdi | 4 0 |
| 6. Norma | ... | ... | ... | Bellini | 4 0 |
| 7. L'Ombre | ... | ... | ... | Flotow | 4 0 |
| 8. Robert le Diable | ... | ... | ... | Meyerbeer | 4 0 |
| 9. Il Trovatore | ... | ... | ... | Verdi | 4 0 |

THE QUEEN ... 4 0

Brilliant Fantasia on English National Airs, "Heart of Oak," "Rule, Britannia," and "God save the Queen."

THE PRINCESS LOUISE WEDDING MARCH 3 0

PRINCESS VICTORIA MARCH ... 3 0

Each illustrated with fine Portrait in Colours.

NEW BASS SONG

BY

EDOUARD REYLOFF,

"THE ARMOURER,"

COMPASS, B FLAT TO E FLAT.

Price 3s.

NEW FANTASIAS,

BY

WILLIE PAPE.

- | | | | | |
|----------------------|---|---|---|-----|
| IL TROVATORE—(Verdi) | - | - | - | 4s. |
| MARTHA—(Flotow) | - | - | - | 4s. |
| SALADIN GRAND MARCH | - | - | - | 4s. |

C. JEFFERYS, 57, BERNERS STREET (W.).

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

LAST SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT,
WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1873.
HANDEL'S BELSHAZZAR.

MADAME LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON.

MADAME PATEY.

MR. CUMMINGS.

MR. THURLEY BEALE.

MR. LEWIS THOMAS.

CONDUCTOR - - MR. BARNBY.

Loggia (to hold 8 persons)	£2 10 0	Amphitheatre Stalls	.. 0 7 6
Boxes (Grand Tier)	.. 3 3 0	Arena Stalls	.. 0 5 0
„ (Upper Tier)	.. 1 10 0	Balcony	.. 0 3 0

ADMISSION - ONE SHILLING.

Doors open at Seven o'clock, commence at Eight.

Tickets of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street and 35, Poultry; the usual Agents; and at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

MADAME HENRIETTA MORITZ'S MORNING CHAMBER CONCERT (under the patronage of H.R.H. Princess Christian), at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Tuesday, May 6, at 3 o'clock. Reserved tickets, 10s. 6d.; tickets, 5s.; to be had from Madame Moritz, 47, Wigmore-street, and at the Rooms.

MRS. JOHN MACFARREN'S CONCERT, May 9, Hanover-square Rooms. Miss Banks, Madlle. Nita Gaetano, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Mr. Santley. Piano, Mrs. John Macfarren; violin, Mr. Carodius; cello, Herr Daubert; conductor, Mr. Walter Macfarren. 15, Albert-street, Gloucester-gate, N.W.

CHARLES and ARTHUR LE JEUNE (assisted by Mr. C. W. Le Jeune), will give an EVENING CONCERT on Tuesday, May 13, at the Hanover-square Rooms. They will introduce original Compositions for Organ, Piano-forte, and their special Orchestral Combination. This is a charming and unique musical effect, combining the capabilities of each of the key-board instruments, and realising all that can be desired in music, viz., variety of tone, sustained and expressive melody, with elaborate and delicate accompaniment. It is produced by a Harmonium and two lesser instruments, and though not intended to imitate an Orchestra, yet it reminds one of the effect by its breadth and brilliancy. Vocalists, Madlle. Nita Gaetano, Miss Enriquez, and Mr. Santley; conductor, Mr. W. Ganz. Tickets 7s., 5s., and 2s. 6d., to be had at Chappell's, 50, New Bond-street, Boosey and Co.'s, 28, Holles-street, W., Austin's Ticket Office, Piccadilly, and at the Rooms.

HANOVER SQUARE ROOMS.

MR. RIDLEY PRENTICE'S CONCERT on Wednesday evening, May 14th, Madame Patey, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Messrs. Henry Holmes, Pettit, Lazarus, Ridley Prentice, &c. Piano-forte Quintett, Prout; Sonata appassionata, Beethoven; Sonata (Clarinet and Piano-forte). Weber; Andante and Variations (Violoncello), Mendelssohn. Tickets 5s. and 2s. 6d. of Mr. Ridley Prentice, 30A, Wimpole-street, W.

CHEVÉ METHOD.—MR. E. ANDRADE'S CLASSES.

Vocal Music and Musical Theory, as taught by the Galin-Pâris-Chevé method are the indispensable foundation of a sound musical education. This study should precede all lessons in refined singing or instrumental music under artistic professors, as the study of grammar naturally precedes that of elocution and oratory. Through this method the intricacy of the most difficult combinations of intonation and time vanishes as by magic, and the pupil having, in a short time, mastered the whole range of musical grammar is the better prepared to receive lessons in the artistic part of musical tuition. The method includes Galin's notation, a masterpiece of clearness and simplicity, which will become ere long the universal language of vocal music, and also the established notation in all its completeness (reading with all clefs, transpositions, &c.)

The most eminent composers have publicly expressed their admiration of the wonderful, rapid, and thorough results obtained by the Galin-Pâris-Chevé system. The first French committee for the patronage of the new method was presided over by the Duke of Morny, and counted among its members Rossini, Prince Poniatowski, Felicien David, Gevaert, Lefébure-Wely, Offenbach, and others.

Children from six years old can be admitted into the classes, as the luminous simplicity of the method enables them to be fully benefited by its teachings.

The Municipal Council of Paris has recently voted an appropriation for the gratuitous teaching of the Chev  method to the working men of Paris in several parts of that city. The method is also adopted at the Ecole Polytechnique, Ecole Normale, Lyc e Louis le Grand; also in the Public Schools in the Canton of Geneva, Switzerland.

The only medal that could be justly awarded to any musical method was obtained in 1862 by the Galin-Pâris-Chev  system at the London International Exhibition. Afternoon and Evening Classes. Private Lessons in Harmony. Piano-forte. For terms

Apply to Mr. EDM. ANDRADE, 11, Hatherley-grove, Westbourne-grove, W.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY ASYLUM (near Gloucester).—MALE ATTENDANTS WANTED. Also, a NIGHT ATTENDANT. Previous Asylum experience not necessary. Those who have a knowledge of Music or Gardening preferred. Wages to commence at £24, with board, lodging, and washing in the Asylum. The Night Attendant commences at £27. Address, stating age (with testimonials) and other particulars, to the Superintendent at the Asylum. April 14, 1873.

BOY—TREBLE SOLOIST—WANTED for the Choir of S. Philip's, Earl's-court-road, Kensington. Salary £8 to £12 per annum, according to ability. Apply to the Choirmaster at the Church after the Sunday morning or evening Service, or at 23, Eardley-crescent, West Brompton, between 6.30 and 7, any evening.

ALTO WANTED for Christ Church, Mayfair. Duties light. Salary £15. Apply to Mr. R. Stokoe at the Church, Friday evenings, at nine o'clock.

ALTO VOICE WANTED for the Choir of All Saints' Church, Kensington-park, W. Stipend £20. Must be able to sing Solos. Address S., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

CONTRALTO, well acquainted with Church Music, wishes a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Address R. V. H., 7, Lamborne-road, Clapham.

WANTED, TWO BOYS' VOICES; must be able to read. For particulars, apply by letter to Choir, H. B., 4, Sussex-place, Old Brompton.

TO TENOR SINGERS.—WANTED, for a Catholic Church in London, a good FIRST TENOR Voice. Address Choirmaster, 27, Northumberland-street, Strand, W.C.

TO TENORS.—TWO TENORS are REQUIRED for St. Mary's Catholic Church, Cadogan-terrace, Sloane-street. Must be good readers; morning Service only. For particulars apply to B. Hollis, Music-seller, 63, Ebury-street, Eaton-square, S.W.

WANTED, a TENOR in a Surpliced Choir; must be able to read Music. Two Sunday Services, and one Weekly rehearsal. Salary at the rate of £10 per annum for first six months, to be then increased to £12. Apply at St. Luke's Vestry, Chelsea, after Sunday evening Services, or by letter to F. Everard W. Hulton, Mus. B., Oxon, 88, Redcliffe-road, Brompton.

BASS WANTED for Christchurch, Lancaster-gate. Duties, three Services on Sundays, and Saturday afternoon rehearsal, 5.30. Salary £25 per annum. Application, with testimonials, to be forwarded to C. G. Verrinder, 15, Westbury-road, Westbourne-square, W.

BASS WANTED, Christchurch, Lee Park. Choral Services, Sunday morning and evening; practice Friday evening. Ten Guineas. Apply to Mr. Ridley Prentice, 30A, Wimpole-street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is WANTED for Christ Church, Hornsey. Salary £50. Apply to the Vicar, Vicarage, Crouch End, N.

WANTED at Midsummer, an ORGANIST for a Country Church, 20 miles from London. Two Services on Sunday. Salary £40. Address A. L., Messrs. Carter and Bromley, 23, Royal Exchange, London.

ORGANIST.—WANTED, a RE-ENGAGEMENT as above, or as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Good references. Address Alpha, Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

WANTED, a CHOIRMASTER to Train an English Church Choir, and also to Teach a Tonic Sol-fa class. Attendance on Sundays necessary. Address Musica, 123, Cheapside.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Stipend £50 per annum; daily Choral Evensong, and Full Choral Services on Sundays. Good opening for tuition. A gentleman required who will enter thoroughly into the work, and is a good Churchman. Apply, the Rector, Shelton, Stoke-on-Trent.

ORGANIST.—The Office of Organist is VACANT in a Church in the City of London, having a fine Organ. The salary paid will depend on ability, and to a man of talent it offers a good opening. Apply by letter only, stating age, qualifications, and previous engagements, addressed to C. B. A., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, BURSLEM.—ORGANIST. This appointment will become VACANT at Midsummer next, and applications are invited. Salary £25 per annum, with the privilege of tuition on one of the finest instruments in the County of Stafford. Apply by letter only, with testimonials, to Mr. Munden, Vestry Clerk, Dalehall, Burslem.

ORGANIST WANTED for St. John's Presbyterian Church, Forest Hill. Applications, giving particulars of former engagements, references, salary, &c., to be addressed to "The Managers," St. John's Vestry, Devonshire-road, Forest Hill, S.E.

TO AMATEURS.—WANTED by an Organist, a DEPUTY for Sunday afternoons. No remuneration, but opportunity for frequent practice offered in return. Address T. H. W., Musical Times Office, 1, Berners-street, W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES,

And Singing-Class Circular.

MAY 1, 1873.

THE "ZAUBERFLÖTE" OF MOZART.

THE libretto of Mozart's "Zauberflöte" has often and justly been commented on as a tissue of absurdities, containing not a single dramatic point capable of being worked into a musical design. At the opening of the Opera, Tamino, an Egyptian prince, is seen in mortal combat with a serpent (no motive for this struggle ever transpires); his cries of terror bring three ladies on the scene, who slay the serpent and comfort Tamino, who has fainted. These ladies consider the young prince as likely to aid their mistress, the Queen of Night, in her great sorrow, she having lost her daughter: they show him a miniature of this daughter, of whom he immediately becomes enamoured, vowing to become her champion. For his mission he is endowed with a magic flute, which will keep him safe in every danger (for it has power to soften all hearts towards him), three Genii or boys, to guide him to his destination and enlighten him with wise counsels, and a garrulous bird-catcher is assigned to him for a servant. Thus this much-guarded hero proceeds to the abode of the high-priest Sarastro, who has abducted Pamina from her mother's supposed evil influence, and destines her to the service of the Temple. Conducted to its gates by the three protecting Genii, and being refused admittance, Tamino makes no further attempt to rescue the imprisoned damsel, but holds a lengthy colloquy with a nameless priest, from whom he ascertains that Pamina is still living. The chattering servant, Papageno, meanwhile has effected an entrance and persuaded Pamina to escape with him and seek Tamino (whom she has not yet seen). They fly, but are overtaken and bound in fetters by Monostatos, a false Moor, under whose guardianship Sarastro has placed Pamina. The chief intelligence of the piece, Sarastro, now comes on the scene; he chastises Monostatos, and decrees that the lovers shall undergo a course of probation in the sanctuary. Thus closes the first Act, with a hero who has achieved nothing, a love between two virtual strangers, and an assumption of more than mortal wisdom supported by nothing but a few phrases of general proverbial morality.

In the second Act the ordeal of silence is imposed on Tamino; Pamina speaks to him in vain, and imagines him to be estranged; her mother then works on her feelings to kill Tamino with a dagger, Pamina loses her reason for a short time, the lovers go through what are called the ordeals of fire and of water, that is to say they walk through what may be supposed an abstract of those elements during a short march played by Tamino on the magic flute, in order that the trial may be performed with safety. After this the triumph of the lovers is proclaimed, the kingdom of darkness extinguished, and wisdom and joy are to reign upon earth.

The foregoing inane plot, interspersed with some questionable scenes of intended comicality, has inspired some of Mozart's most beautiful and most profound music (as an instance of this latter it is only necessary to mention the Second Finale). One cannot but marvel how Mozart could have warmed to a subject quite devoid of dramatic life or of poetic beauty, a story without either plot or passion, those two pivots of all lyric art. A pamphlet that appeared in Leipsic in 1865 treats of this question, and goes far to prove that the whole frame-work of the "Zauberflöte" is allegorical; that it is an apotheosis of Freemasonry against the political and ecclesiastical influences that persecuted that fraternity at the time the Opera appeared. That some underlying meaning was known to exist is also attested by Goethe's allusion to it, (recorded by Eckermann) when, in speaking of the probable effect in Germany of his second part of Faust the poet said: "if the multitude find pleasure only in what is actually visible, the initiated will not fail to perceive the higher meaning, as is the case with the 'Zauberflöte' and other things," as well as by his having written a second part to the "Zauberflöte," an unmistakable allegory from end to end, in which the story of the Opera is taken up after the union of Pamina and Tamino, and treats of the vicissitudes undergone by their infant child, enchanted by the Queen of Night; the powers of darkness being too strong for his parents to regain him, he escapes by an ethereal process from the earth altogether. The author of the above-mentioned pamphlet is anonymous, and writes as much to vindicate the Opera as to glorify Freemasonry. He quotes many of the didactic lines, which weave so strange a thread of gravity through the incongruous web of extravagance, as embodiments of Masonic philosophy, and finally states who and what are the originals of the several characters of the drama. We translate the following:—

"The performance of the 'Zauberflöte' on the 30th September, 1791, is important in the history of Freemasonry in Austria. After the death of Joseph II. 1790, the Catholic clergy under Leopold II. (who was not naturally inclined to oppose Freemasonry) began to assert their influence, and this the more decisively, as the political aspect of France was beginning to grow threatening; the leaders of the Austrian States forthwith looked upon Freemasonry with suspicion. The 'Zauberflöte' is therefore a manly protest of Mozart and Schikaneder in defiance of the disfavour into which the institution had fallen with the authorities. They became its champions before the general public, and defended as well as vindicated a noble cause."

Jahn says: "The political revulsion that took place under Leopold II. led not only to the withdrawal of whatever countenance had hitherto been shown to Freemasonry, but caused it to be suspected and hated as a powerful medium for disseminating ideas of religious and political liberty. Its glorification on the stage therefore, in a work in which its rites and symbolism are placed in a dazzling light, and its moral tendencies are justified, so that the initiated recognizes his secret affinities, whilst the outsider receives, beyond the enjoyment of the sensuous charm also the possible impression of a deeper signification, must appear as a bold and timely party demonstration, that wisely kept clear of personalities."

Leopold II. died in March 1792, and was succeeded by Francis II., a decided opponent of Freemasonry, who proposed its suppression throughout the German Empire at the Reichstag at Regensburg in 1794, and who in 1795 prohibited it in his dominions. Nevertheless, Schikaneder announced the 100th performance of the "Zauberflöte," November 23, 1792, and the 200th, October 22, 1795. Thus the "Zauberflöte" was the dying lay of Freemasonry in Austria, the eloquent defence and apology of a condemned innocent; but it was also the medium through which Freemasonry has been publicly preached in spite of all prohibition, and through which it has continued to live and influence the people down to our days.

Freemasonry is indicated in the "Zauberflöte" as the temple of Isis and Osiris. The comparison of Freemasonry with the Egyptian mysteries was a favourite subject of reflection among the brotherhood in Vienna and Austria ever since Ignaz von Born, published a leading article "On the Mysteries of the Egyptians," in the first Number of the Journal für Freimaurer (Vienna, 1784). There it is stated: "The uninitiated beheld in the symbol of the sun and the moon Osiris and Isis; but in a mystic sense the sun was the Supreme and only Divinity, the principal Source of every good, and the moon was the symbol of his creative power. Sometimes the sun-symbol signified spirit and fire, and the moon-symbol earth and water, which two pairs of opposing forces, according to their teaching, generated the air. Of the philosophic sciences that were taught in the mysteries, natural philosophy had a foremost place, the image of Isis, or Nature, being held next pre-eminent to that of Osiris. For this reason the Egyptian high-priest wore on his breast the amulet of Isis with the inscription—the word of Truth. Are truth, wisdom, and the promotion of happiness for the whole human race, not also the objects of our association? Do not our laws constantly inculcate this end under manifold forms?" &c. &c.

In this sense the Masonic task is indicated in the "Zauberflöte" as the service of Osiris and Isis, and in this sense the mission of the priests is represented. Thus we have no reason to doubt that it was Born* who is represented in Sarastro. Born was in truth a high-priest of Freemasonry in Vienna, noble and pure in mind and character, an enlightened and liberal man, and one who had both eloquence and wit at his command in discussion. From 1780 to 1785, the most prosperous period for Freemasonry in Austria, he was the life and soul of the collective Freemasonry of Germany, and this chiefly because he was deeply imbued with the spirit of Lessing. Mozart had composed his Cantata "Maurerfreude" for a festival given in honour of Born in 1785, and it is more than probable that he intended the part of Sarastro to be an enduring and worthy monument to the honoured brother, who died in 1791.

Further: Freemasonry generally is illustrated in the Choruses of the Priests and in the three Genii or boys. Of these Jahn remarks: "The march-like strain with which Tamino is conducted to the gate of the Sanctuary at the commencement of the first Finale completely illustrates the situation. The instrumentation is quite novel, the bright voices of the boys, accompanied by strings, without double basses, and supported by soft chords of trombones and muted trumpets and drums; and a long sustained G of the flutes and clarionets, spreads a gentle light, like a glory over the whole; the three-fold adjuration "be steadfast, silent, and obedient," echoed by the firm sustaining tones of the wind instruments, heightens the solemnity of this stirring march, interrupting its rhythm, but adding to its dignity and weight; the few bars sung by Tamino still further enhance the benign effect of this scene by contrast, and the repeated strain of the boys bring back the impression of a more ethereal world with renewed force.

Let us now cast a glance at the tenets ascribed to Freemasonry in general throughout the "Zauberflöte," apart from the lofty mission assigned to the priests and Genii. Suspicion, which has at all times sought to undermine Freemasonry, is mentioned in the passage where the three ladies say:—

Much ground there is for dark suspicion,
The crafty priest may evil mean.
Tamino. A wise man ponders well the truth,
To heed the mob he e'er is loth.
Ladies. They say who ever plights their faith,
His soul is doom'd to eternal death.
Tamino. 'Tis nought but babbling women's talk,
But plann'd by false and crafty folk.

Let these words be compared with the circumstances of the period when the Opera was projected and performed, as set forth in the opening of these remarks, and it must be admitted that Mozart and Schickaneder themselves fulfilled what they put into the mouths of the Genii when they say to Tamino "Be a man, and as a man thou shalt conquer." The altar of the Temple in the "Zauberflöte" is sacred to Truth; it is a beautiful and affecting testimony to truth when, Pamina and Papageno escaping from the temple are intercepted by Sarastro, Papageno is made to say:

What now will befall us? With terror I tremble!
Pamina. Oh friend, no hope on earth is left,
The terrible Sarastro comes.
Papageno. Oh, that I were a mouse,
Some crevice small should hide me!
Or that I could but glide me
Into a snail's dark house!
My child, say, what shall we confess to?

Pamina has now regained her composure, and replies like a worthy acolyte of the temple:—

The truth, though it were held a crime!

In this truly Masonic spirit have Mozart and Schickaneder written the "Zauberflöte," and thereby freely and publicly avowed its truth at a time when Freemasonry began to be considered as a political crime.

The Queen of Night and her three ladies are the mortal foes of Sarastro and of his temple; Sarastro has deprived the Queen of her daughter in order that she may be trained under manly guardianship, to noble love and freedom; for he says to her:—

To love me I will not compel thee:
But yet I cannot set thee free.

Generally it may be remarked that women are recommended to stay within their own sphere, and above all to be kept away from the temple. The Speaker says to Tamino:—

By woman hast thou been beguill'd?
Trust not to woman's idle talk,
Her joy is counsels wise to balk.

On the other hand he says of the man:—

A man in purpose is not weak,
He ponders what his tongue shall speak.

Further on the priests say:—

My son, beware of woman's falsehood,
That is the test of manly heart;
Full many a wise man have they maddened,—
Distracted hath he borne the smart.

The Queen and her ladies achieve an entrance into the temple, guided by the Moor Monastatos, in order to surprise the priests and destroy them. Who would not identify the Queen of Night with Maria Theresa? As early as the 7th March, 1743, the Empress caused a meeting of the first Viennese lodge "Zu den drei Kronen" (to which her consort, Franz I. belonged) to be surprised and dispersed by several hundred grenadiers and cuirassiers. About eighteen Freemasons were taken prisoners; the Cardinal and the Archbishop of Vienna, as well as the Papal Nuncio were present at their trial. It is said that Franz I. was actually present on that occasion, and escaped the pursuit of the soldiers with difficulty by a back stair-case. On the representation of Franz I. the prisoners were released on the Name-day of the Crown Prince Joseph, on the 19th March. In 1764 Freemasonry was interdicted in the name of the Empress throughout the Austrian States. If the Queen of Night reminds one of the Empress Maria Theresa, the signification of the Moor Monastatos (he who stands alone) is still more apparent: it is the clerical party and its attendant monasticism. We meet with this Moor in the Temple; many members of the Roman Catholic clergy were Freemasons. In a list of members of a lodge in Prague are the names of the Archbishop of Laibach, and of the Prior of the Augustine Convent at Prague. We may mention the Pater Torrubia in Spain, of whom the Viennese Freemasons' Journal (1784, II., 177-224) relates that he caused himself to be admitted a brother, in order to be able to bring the fraternity before the Inquisition. The Moor who vaunts his "watchfulness," but sues for the love of Pamina, so that she flies from the temple in order to escape from him, is ordered by Sarastro to be bastinadoed. Such a punishment was not unlike that dealt by Born (Sarastro) in his "Specimen monachologiae methodo Linæana" (Vienna, 1783), published in German with the title "Ignaz Loyola Kutenpeitscher" (Munich, 1784). This brilliant satire was translated into English and French. All the machinations of the Moor, to sacrifice the priests and their temple to the vengeance of the great Queen of Night are frustrated:—

Destroyed for ever is our might,
We all are doom'd to endless night!

In Prince Tamino we think of Joseph II. Though he was not a Freemason like his father, he was his pupil and did homage to those same principles of which Born was the representative both within and without the lodge; he was a Freemason without the apron, and openly protected the brotherhood in his dominions, which can be proved by an autograph decree of December 12, 1785, in which he ordains that perfect liberty and protection be accorded by all governors and magistrates to Freemasons. In Pamina, the daughter of the sovereign, we recognize the Austrian people in its noblest aspect, whilst Papageno and Papagena represent its merry, careless, pleasure-seeking side. Pamina has been withdrawn by Sarastro from her mother's guidance; the Austrian people had been led to the perception of modern enlightenment, and penetrated by a free, noble and moral spirit. The Moor, while still a servant in the temple, attempts to win Pamina for himself; he adjures the Queen before the entrance of the temple:—

Remember, Queen, thy word is given,
That fair Pamina's hand is mine.
Queen. I gave my word, and shall fulfill it.
Ladies. Yes, thou shalt call Pamina thine.

* Hofrath von Born, a distinguished metallurgist and founder of the Lodge "Zur wahren Eintracht" in Vienna, which had for its object the promulgation of liberal ideas and the defeat of superstition and fanaticism.

But scarcely has he received the royal promise than he exclaims in terror:—

But ah, a sound of distant thunder,
Like troubled waves, is on the air.
Queen and Ladies. Yea, dreadful is that sound of thunder,
It fills the trembling heart with fear.

The Austrian people weds Joseph II., and in spite of the prohibition of Freemasonry, up to the present time looks back with longing to the days when under his reign Freemasonry was allowed and protected.

To read through the tender and profound music of Mozart after this hint as to his possible meaning, can only heighten the probability of the foregoing; whether Schickaneder also worked in an "heroic spirit," is both less interesting and less probable. It appears from the pamphlet from which we have largely drawn, that the real author of the libretto was not Schickaneder at all, but one Gieseke, an actor and chorus-singer from Brunswick, who earned a humble subsistence in Schickaneder's theatre. He is said to have been a man of talent and some culture; Schickaneder, who was not at all scrupulous as to using extraneous aid in the concoction of his pieces, took Gieseke's drama as a foundation, altered what he liked, added the parts of Papageno and Papagena, and finally assumed the authorship of the piece for himself. Neukomm, who knew Gieseke as an actor auf der Wieden, confirms the statement that Gieseke wrote the greater part of the "Zauberflöte;" Cornet, the once famous tenor singer also tells that Seyfried in 1818 recognized in a professor from Dublin, who visited Vienna with a natural history collection, the ci-devant chorus singer Gieseke, who told him that he was the chief author of the "Zauberflöte," and that he had quitted Vienna out of fear lest his political opinions should bring him into trouble.

To recognize in the unprincipled virago of the Opera, the Queen of Night, the good and noble Maria Theresa, could only have been possible to those who had personally smarted under her displeasure; it seems more likely that, as in Goethe's second part, she is only an abstract impersonation of obnoxious power, and not a personality at all; but if it can be felt that:—

"More is meant than meets the ear," in Mozart's last dramatic work, then surely is he the true founder of the Music of the Future, and has lent his harmonious and symmetrical idiom to the illustration of an axiom asserted with much vehemence since then (and which, spite of all its short-comings, has done so much towards re-casting the worn-out lyrical forms), namely, that dramatic music is nothing if not didactic.

N. M.

THE performance of Bach's Passion Music (St. Matthew) by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. Barnby, for four consecutive evenings in Holy Week, was an experiment the success of which affords undeniable proof of the firm hold which this sublime composition has now obtained over the English public. The gratification, both to the conductor and the choir, of seeing the vast area of the Albert Hall nightly filled with an attentive audience—we might even say congregation—must indeed have been an ample reward for their unwearied exertions in the cause; and Mr. Barnby and his zealous band of musical Propagandists may rest satisfied that their praiseworthy efforts will not pass from the memory of those whose heart is with them in their endeavour to spread a knowledge and love of good music amongst the masses. A most interesting feature in the presentation of the work was the fact of the audience so readily accepting the invitation to join in the chorals, the effect of which was materially aided by the performance of the melodies on cornets, the players being stationed at the several entrances to the audience-part of the Hall. Nothing new can now be said of the composition itself; but, in justice to Madame Alvsleben, it must be recorded that her pure and fervent delivery of the exacting soprano solos, delighted all present, and we sincerely hope that, by the continued study of a style of music for which she is so eminently fitted, she may take as high a rank as an exponent of sacred, as she has already done of secular, works. We may mention also that an air not hitherto heard in this country, "For love my Saviour suffered" (in which the flute has a prominent share), created a marked effect, not only from its intrinsic beauty, but from the excellent interpretation it received from Madame Alvsleben. During the four performances the contralto, tenor and bass parts were given by Madame Patey, Miss Dones (who deserves the warmest praise for her expressive singing), Messrs. W. H. Cummings, E. Lloyd, Signor Foli and Mr. Thurley Beale, all of whom we need scarcely say gave a thoroughly sympathetic reading of the music allotted to them. The orchestra was both complete and efficient; and Herr Straus's violin obligato to the contralto air "Have mercy upon me," was exquisitely played. Mr. Hoyte presided at the organ with much ability; and the recitatives requiring such aid were judiciously accompanied on the pianoforte by Signor Randegger. On Saturday in the same week the "Messiah" was given, Mr. W. H. Cummings supplying the place of Mr. Sims Reeves (absent from indisposition) and the rest of the solos being rendered by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Emily Spiller, Miss Dones and Signor Foli. The Hall was crowded in every part, and the performance one of the finest yet given.

THE announcement that music is to form an important feature at the International Exhibition during the present year, shows how steadily public opinion is forcing the subject upon the attention of those who have the control of these national appeals to the people. For some years it was considered that an opening ceremonial in which music bore a conspicuous part was all that was necessary, the art being thus virtually unrepresented in an Exhibition which had the express object of displaying the result of skill and intelligence from all countries. The excellent orchestra, placed under the direction of Mr. Barnby, will now effectually remedy this omission; for daily concerts will be given, the programmes of which will be framed with a view to lead the taste of the people to the appreciation of music of the highest class. In furtherance of the real design of the Exhibition, it is also intended that the works of new composers shall be submitted for examination, and that young English artists both vocal and instrumental, shall have an opportunity of being heard in public. If the selection of compositions and the manner in which they were rendered on the opening day (Easter Monday) may be accepted as a fair sample of what is to follow, we may reasonably anticipate a brilliant success for these concerts. The programmes for the morning and afternoon on this occasion included Auber's "Exhibition Overture," Mendelssohn's Symphony in A minor (Scotch), an orchestral selection from Wagner's "Lohengrin," the Overture to "Guillaume Tell," Haydn's "Surprise" Symphony, Handel's Organ Concerto in G minor and major, No. 1 (finely played by Mr. Best), and the March and Cortege from Gounod's "La Reine de Saba," songs being most successfully given by Miss Agnes Walton and Mr. Thurley Beale. We may also mention that analytical programmes, from the skilled pen of Mr. Joseph Bennett, are sold at an extremely moderate price in the Hall.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA.

BUT a few words need be said of the well-worn Opera "Lucrezia Borgia," with which Mr. Mapleson commenced his season on the 15th ult., the parts of Lucrezia, Maffeo Orsini and Gennaro, being sustained respectively by Madlle. Titiens, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, and Signor Mongini. A successful début, however, was made by Signor Medini, in the character of the Duke of Ferrara; he not only sings well, but acts with intelligence, and will doubtless prove a highly valuable member of the company. On the 22nd ult. three new singers appeared in Verdi's "Rigoletto," Signor Del Fuente, who performed the arduous part of the Jester, however, bearing off the principal honours. He has a fine baritone voice, an excellent stage presence, and much dramatic power, all of which qualities were fully recognised by the audience, who accorded him the warmest marks of approbation. Madlle. Ostava Torriani, as Gilda, and Madlle. Justine Macvitz, as Maddalena (the other two new comers), achieved a moderate success, the first named lady having an agreeable voice, and the second, with a mezzo soprano organ of good quality, singing her part at least with a fair amount of care and intelligence. A revival of "Semiramide," with Madlle. Titiens as the heroine, has been unquestionably the most evenly sung opera yet given; but as an individual attraction, Madlle. Ilma di Murska, who made her first appearance this season in "Lucia di Lammermoor," fully retains her hold of the public favour.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

THIS establishment opened on the 1st ult., when Meyerbeer's "Africaine" was given, the part of Selika being sustained by a young débutante, Madlle. D'Angeri, whose reception was we think scarcely as enthusiastic as it would have been had she selected some less ambitious character for her first appearance. Although a singer and an actress of much promise, Madlle. D'Angeri had throughout the Opera to struggle against the impression produced by Madame Pauline Lucca in the same part, and the result was that much that was really good, both vocally and dramatically in her assumption of the African Queen was comparatively overlooked. Of Madlle. Amalia Fossa, who made her first appearance as the heroine in "La Traviata," we can merely record that she received the usual share of applause accorded to débutantes by an indulgent audience; and the same may be said of Madame Paoli, who appeared for the first time as Leonora in "La Favorita," neither artist, however, rising to the level of what the subscribers and public have a right to expect at the Royal Italian Opera. The male singers have been on the whole more fortunate. Signor Montanaro, who made his début as Count Almasiva in "Il Barbiere," sings Rossini's music with facility and intelligence, and M. Maurel, a new baritone, made an excellent impression as Renato, in "Un Ballo in Maschera." The new tenor, Signor Pavani, has but small requisites for such a part as Edgardo in "Lucia," but may perhaps be found useful in secondary characters. Madlle. Albani has drawn crowded houses whenever she appears, but the strength of the company has yet to come.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

THE concert on the 22nd March brought forward a highly-interesting orchestral piece by Dr. Hiller, called a "Dramatic Fantasia," consisting of five movements, termed respectively, "Tragedy," "Comedy," "Modern Drama," "Ballet," and a Finale, embodying some of the previously-heard subjects. A work so ambitious can scarcely be judged in a single hearing; but we need scarcely say that the general effect upon the audience was most favourable, the composition throughout evidencing much poetical feeling and skilled workmanship. At the same concert, Mr. Franklin Taylor's performance of Beethoven's Piano-forte Concerto in G created a marked effect, and he was recalled to the platform to receive renewed expressions of gratification. Mr. Crowther Alwyn's Mass, performed for the first time on the following Saturday (the day of the boat-race), was presented to a smaller audience than usual at these concerts, but the cleverness exhibited in the composition secured for it a decided success. The principal parts were admirably sustained by Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Marion Severn, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. On the 5th ult., the novelty was a Symphony by Mr. F. H. Cowen, who seems rapidly making his way as a composer of high class works. The themes in this Symphony are extremely graceful, and the undoubtedly effective writing, especially in the first movement and the Scherzo, was thoroughly appreciated, the composer, who conducted, being much and most deservedly applauded. Little need be said of a Scherzo, for orchestra, by H. Stiehl, termed "The Vision," for it produced but small effect, and will probably not be heard again. M. Colyns, who played Rhode's Concert-Allegro, for violin (with orchestra) is an artist who at once made his way with the audience, for although the music he performed is somewhat antiquated, it afforded him ample opportunity of displaying a fine tone and freedom of style too rare to be disregarded. The vocalists at these concerts have been more than usually good, Madame Alvsleben, especially, winning a reputation on her first appearance which she has since materially increased; and Miss Sophie Lowe also proving herself a singer of mark, her rendering of Pergolesi's song, "Ogni pena," being worthy of all the applause which it elicited. The winter series of concerts terminated on the 19th ult., when a fine performance of Beethoven's Choral Symphony was given.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

ON Wednesday, the 2nd ult., Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" were performed, before a large audience. The instrumental movements of Mendelssohn's work were rendered throughout with a finish and delicacy of tone in every department of the orchestra which cannot be too highly commended; and the choral part evidenced the care and attention which had been exercised upon the minutest details during rehearsal. Especially must we bestow the warmest praise upon the perfect balance of tone observed in the Choral, "Let all men praise the Lord," and the decision of attack in the final chorus, "Ye nations, offer to the Lord." Unfortunately, Mr. Sims Reeves, who was engaged for the tenor part, was too ill to attend, but Mr. W. H. Cummings supplied his place with a success which deserves more than a passing record, for we have scarcely ever heard him deliver the air, "The sorrows of death," and the well-known "Watchman" scene with more beauty of voice or depth of expression. Madame Otto-Alvsleben sang with much purity of style the soprano solos, and Miss Emily Spiller proved a sympathetic ally in the beautiful duet, "I waited for the Lord." In the "Stabat Mater," the duet, "Quis est homo" (finely given by Madame Alvsleben and Madame Patey) and the "Cujus animam" (sung in the true Italian style by Signor Bettini) were so heartily encored that Mr. Barnby had some difficulty in resisting so powerful a pressure; but, as it appeared to us, the vocalists seconded him in his wise resolve, and the work was allowed to proceed without interruption. The contralto and bass solos were excellently rendered by Madame Patey and Signor Agnesi; and the small portion falling to the share of the choir was thoroughly satisfactory, the last chorus (an admirable specimen of Rossini's "severe" writing) being sung with much precision and effect. At the fifth concert, on the 23rd ult., Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was given. Again Madame Otto-Alvsleben proved her appreciation of the true requirements of sacred music by her interpretation of the principal soprano part, the duet of the Widow with Elijah, and the arduous air "Hear ye Israel," especially, being rendered with that dramatic feeling and unaffected expression so imperatively demanded for their due effect. Miss Dones is deserving of the highest commendation for her impressive delivery of the air "Woe unto them," and also for the energy she displayed in the music of the Queen. Madame Patey achieved her usual brilliant success in "O rest in the Lord," and Miss Katharine Poyntz in the duet with Miss Dones, "Zion spreadeth her hands," and also in the concerted music was thoroughly efficient. Signor Agnesi, in the part of the Prophet, sang carefully, and with much intelligence, creating the greatest effect in the declamatory solo, "Is not His word like a fire," and also evincing much pathetic feeling in the air "It is enough." Mr. W. H. Cummings (Mr. Sims Reeves being still indisposed) gave the two tenor songs, "If with all your hearts" and "Then shall the righteous," in his best style, and Mr. Raynham, in some of the recitatives, was highly serviceable, also lending valuable aid with Messrs. Edward Devon, Pyatt, and Smith) in the quartets. The choruses were sung with much effect, more particularly "Yet doth the Lord," the Baal Choruses (the precision in which was marvellous), "Be not afraid" and "He watching over Israel," the latter of which was remarkable for beauty of tone throughout. Mr. Barnby, as usual, conducted, and Dr. Stainer presided at the organ.

MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.

THE second concert was given on the 27th March, the programme of which, although containing but little novelty, was in the highest degree interesting, as showing the best qualities of the choir to the greatest advantage. One of the most effective pieces of the evening was the charming setting of the 23rd Psalm, "The Lord is my Shepherd," for female voices, by Schubert, the execution of which was positively faultless. Mendelssohn's eight-part Psalm, "Judge me, O God," was so finely sung as to elicit an enthusiastic encore; and the same compliment was paid to Mr. Leslie's very clever part-song, "The Pilgrims." The Motett, "O God, my spirit loves but Thee," by Mr. J. G. Callcott, performed for the first time, is a well written composition, and was deservedly warmly received. The solo vocalists were Misses Jessie Jones and Antil, Messrs. Henry Guy, Valentine Smith and Sautley. The Hall was well attended, in spite of the fact of Mr. Sims Reeves being compelled unfortunately to disappoint the audience, owing to severe indisposition.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

At the second concert, on the 2nd ult., Brahms's "Requiem" and Mendelssohn's "Walpurgis Night" were the principal attractions. Were we inclined to hazard an opinion upon the "Requiem" from a single hearing, we certainly should not do so when performed as a concert-piece, surrounded by compositions in such violent contrast; and we must content ourselves therefore with saying that the un-emotional character of the subjects, notwithstanding the brilliancy of the instrumentation, produced a feeling of weariness in the audience, which, although we cannot accept as any tacit criticism of the work, sufficiently evidenced that the Philharmonic concert-room is not the place for a funeral service. The "Walpurgis Night" was well given throughout, and received with much warmth. A welcome feature in the selection was the performance of the Adagio and Rondo from Vieuxtemps' Violin Concerto in E, by Madame Norman Neruda, which was warmly and most deservedly applauded. The solo vocalists in the "Requiem" were Miss Sophie Ferrari and Mr. Santley, and in the "Walpurgis Night," Miss M. Crawford (from the Royal Academy of Music), Mr. E. Lloyd and Mr. Santley. Mr. W. G. Cousins conducted the concert with his accustomed care and judgment.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

BACH's "St. Matthew" Passion music, which has, in a comparatively short time, obtained a popularity in this country scarcely to be hoped for even by the composer's most ardent worshippers, was performed for the first time by the above Society on, the 25th ult., at Exeter Hall, under the conductorship of Sir Michael Costa. It was a worthy tribute to the genius of Bach that his work should be given in its entirety; but it should also be recollected that this Passion music, when not forming a portion of a service in a sacred building, must be considered as a composition submitted to a concert-room audience; and if proof were wanting that when thus heard, as originally written, the effect must become wearisome, it would be found in the fact of there being at this performance but a comparatively small number of persons left in the Hall to listen to the beautiful concluding chorus, "In tears of grief." That much pains had been taken in the preparation of the music was at once evident, for the choir sang throughout with a care and precision which showed how zealously the conductor had worked to attain a result which should maintain, and even raise, the reputation of the Society over which he so ably presides. But accuracy, and the production of a body of tone, are not sufficient to realise the sublimity of Bach's music; and with much to admire in the decision with which the elaborate counterpoint in this difficult work was mastered in every department of the choir, we could not but feel, in many of the most pathetic choruses, the want of that depth of expression without which, however correctly sung, the words become colourless. The best choruses were "Have lightnings and thunders," "O man, thy heavy sin lament," "Let Him be crucified," and "In tears of grief." The chorals were well sung, but we cannot think that the accompaniment of organ and bass stringed instruments, however important in supporting the voices of a congregation, are necessary in a concert-room presentation of the work, where melody and harmony are alike entrusted to a trained choir. Madame Patey and Mr. E. Lloyd are too well known as exponents of the contralto and tenor solos in this work to need more than a passing word of eulogium upon their efforts; but of Madame Lemmens-Sherrington and Mr. Santley, who made such an effect in this composition at the Worcester Festival last year, we must say that in every respect they fully confirmed the impression there produced, increased familiarity with the music indeed enabling both artists to sing with even more firmness and expression. The effect of the recitatives hitherto accompanied with the pianoforte being played by the stringed instruments, is scarcely pleasing: in the first place, it is unsuited, we think, to a work so truly sacred, and in the second place it does not carry out the composer's intention that the recitatives of our Saviour only should have orchestral accompaniment. The bright tone of the Viol da Gamba (well played by Mr. Pettit in the obbligato to the air, "Come, blessed cross") was exceedingly welcome; but the instrument is not, as has been asserted, a resuscitation on this occasion, for although not used in previous performances of this composition here, it has been played by the same artist in the several recent presentations of Bach's "St. John" Passion music, and also, we believe, by Mr. Webb, at the Historical Lectures of Herr Pauer. Mr.

Patey gave the airs "Give, O give," "Twas in the cool of eventide," and "Up, my soul" with good effect; and (with Mr. Chaplin Henry) was highly serviceable in many of the recitatives. The violin obbligato to "Have mercy upon me" by M. Sainton, and that to Mr. Patey's air, "Give, O give me," by Mr. H. W. Hill, were finely played; and the organ was skillfully presided over by Mr. Willing. There was scarcely any applause during the performance, but the interest with which most of the large audience followed every piece with the book, fully proved how highly the beauty of the music was appreciated. Indeed, however minute details may be varied in the presentation of the work, it has an innate charm which must make its way to the heart of every hearer; and although we have freely expressed our opinion upon the production of the composition by an Association which has already done so much for the spread of sacred music in this country, there can be no doubt that the Society has added one more to its list of successes, and materially helped in the good work which should bind all artists into one common brotherhood.

MR. G. A. MACFARREN's new Oratorio, "St. John the Baptist," has been accepted and is to be performed at the Bristol Festival, on Thursday, the 23rd October. The part of St. John will be sung by Mr. Santley, and the work will be conducted by Mr. Charles Halle.

It is with sincere regret that we announce the death of Mr. Augustus Harris (the able Stage Manager of the Royal Italian Opera), which occurred on the 19th ult. at his residence, Upper Bedford-place. The deceased gentleman had occupied this responsible post for so many years, and with so excellent a result to the establishment, that we fear it will be some time before his place can be satisfactorily supplied.

WE understand that Mr. John Hullah has resigned his post of conductor of the Concerts and Practices at the Royal Academy of Music.

MR. W. R. BOURKE delivered a lecture on the 7th ult. before the St. Barnabas Mutual Improvement Society, Holloway, entitled "English Music—Bishop and his Contemporaries." It consisted mainly of an historical and biographical sketch, somewhat profusely illustrated by selections from the works of Bishop, Webbe, Stevens, Callcott, Crotch, Shield and Dibdin. The object was chiefly to show that the music of this period was an outgrowth rather of that which had preceded, than a preparation for, the more modern school, which at that time, although neglected here, was flourishing in Germany and other continental countries. The Vicar of the Parish heartily thanked the lecturer at the close of the evening.

A SUCCESSFUL evening concert, under the direction of Mr. Stedman, was given at the Birkbeck Institution, on the 23rd ult., the principal vocalists being Misses Ellen Horne, Estelle Emrick, Alexandrina Dwight, Messrs. Stedman, H. O. Sanders, and R. Latter. Miss Dwight, in "Sing, sweet bird," and Miss Emrick, in "Ah, s'estinto," pleased so much as to receive enthusiastic encores. Mr. Stedman, in his two songs, "The Angel at the Window" (Tours), and "The Anchor's weighed" (Braham), achieved a well-merited success; Mr. Latter evinced the possession of an excellent voice and style in "Non più andrai," and Mr. Sanders was much applauded for his rendering of Pinsuti's dramatic song, "The Raft." An agreeable feature in the concert was the harmonium performance of Mr. King Hall, both of whose pieces were re-demanded, and we must also mention, with the warmest commendation, the execution of a pianoforte solo by Mr. Henry Parker.

WE understand that Mr. Berthold Tours has resigned his position in the orchestras of the Royal Italian Opera and the Sacred Harmonic Society, for the purpose of devoting the whole of his time to composition and tuition.

ON Good Friday evening an excellent sacred concert was given, under the direction of Mr. F. A. Bridge, at Burdett Hall, Limehouse, the principal vocalists being Miss Kate Frankford, Miss Scarlett, Miss Claremont, Mr. Albert James, Mr. Fillan, and Mr. Albert Hubbard. There was also a chorus of about 30 voices. Miss Lucy Thomas presided at the pianoforte, Mr. H. Bond at the harmonium, and Mr. T. H. Miller conducted.

ON Monday, March 31st, a concert was given at the North London School-rooms, Calthorpe-street, Gray's Inn-road. The first part consisted of Mendelssohn's "Athalie," the solos in which were rendered by Miss L. Stevenson, Miss A.

Sugden, and Miss A. Goodwin, all of whom were highly successful. The overture and march were played by the Misses Stevenson, and the illustrative text was read by Mr. C. A. Rendle. The accompanists were Miss R. E. Merrick, (pianoforte), and Mr. A. Merrick (harmonium). The second part was miscellaneous, including songs by Miss N. Crakell, Miss A. Sugden, and Mr. F. Budge; glees by the Euterpe Quartett, part-songs by the choir, and a pianoforte duet by Miss R. E. and Mr. J. C. Merrick. The concert was well attended, and gave great satisfaction to the audience. Mr. J. C. Merrick conducted.

The first concert of the Royal Standard Musical Society took place on Good Friday evening at the Foresters' New Hall, Goswell Road, before a very large and appreciative audience. The first part consisted of Mozart's Twelfth Mass, and the second of selections from Handel's "Dettingen Te Deum," and solos from various Oratorios. The most successful pieces were Haydn's "With verdure clad" (sung by Madame Binfield); Handel's recit. and air, "I feel the Deity within," and "Arm, arm, ye brave" (by Mr. E. Valentine); and "Angels ever bright and fair" (by Miss Edith Clareville), all of which were encores. The solos in the second part were accompanied in a praiseworthy manner by Mr. Brownlow Baker, the accompanist to the Society, and the other portion of the music by the orchestral band of the Society, led by Mr. Jules Guittion. The choruses were given with great precision and clearness, under the conductorship of Mr. A. J. Loprestie.

On Good Friday Handel's "Messiah" was performed at the Bow and Bromley Institute, under the conductorship of Mr. F. A. Bridge. The soprano music was sung by Madame Talbot Cherer, the contralto by Miss Julia Derby, the tenor by Mr. Arthur Thomas, and the bass by Herr Carl Stepan; all of whom were thoroughly satisfactory. The choruses were rendered with good effect; and the "Hallelujah," was loudly re-demanded. Mrs. E. Stirling presided at the pianoforte; Mr. J. G. Boardman at the harmonium; and Mr. W. Smith performed the trumpet obbligato.

The London Church Choir Association gave its Annual Service in Passion-week at St. Saviour's, Haverstock Hill, on Maundy Thursday. Handel's Passion music, according to St. John, was performed by several choirs, members of the Association, numbering about 100 voices, assisted by a small and efficient band. The sermon was preached by the Rev. F. Tremlett, D.D., Vicar of St. Peter's, Belsize Park. Mr. J. Blockley presided at the organ, and Mr. J. R. Murray, choirmaster of the Association, conducted.

An interesting lecture on Handel was given by the Rev. J. Hiles Hitchens, at the Eccleston-square Church, Pimlico, on the 17th ult. The musical illustrations, from the "Messiah," were well rendered by Misses S. and H. Parker, Mr. G. I. Tear, Mr. J. B. Bolton, and a choir of about forty voices. Mr. Bolton sang "The people that walked in darkness" and "Thou art gone up on high" with his accustomed ability. Miss H. Parker's rendering of "He was despised" was effective, and Mr. Tear was heard to advantage in "Every valley" and "But Thou didst not leave." Mr. Liddell presided at the organ.

An evening concert was given with much success by Mr. Luther Marsden, at the Victoria Hall, Archer Street, on the 16th ult. The programme contained two important instrumental features, Bach's Concerto for two Pianofortes (with stringed quartett accompaniment) excellently played by the concert-giver and Mr. William Byrom, and a solo on the violin by M. Victor Buzian, in which he displayed a good tone and facile execution. Mr. Stedman in Berthold Tours's song "The Angel at the Window" (accompanied by the composer), was so successful as to elicit a decided encore, which however was not responded to; and Miss Ellen Horne, Madame Poole, and Mr. Rowland, also contributed vocal pieces which were most favourably received.

Mr. MANNS presented a highly attractive programme to the large audience assembled at his benefit concert at the Crystal Palace, on the 26th ult., the principal vocalists being Madame Otto Alvsleben, Madlle. Ostava Torriani, Signor Agnesi and Mr. Sims Reeves; the latter artist being warmly welcomed on his re-appearance after an indisposition which has deprived the public of his valuable services for so long a time. The solo instrumentalists were Madame Norman-Neruda (violin) and Mr. Charles Hallé (pianoforte).

It is well to remind those who have but few opportunities of hearing organ recitals by the most eminent artists, that performances are given on the fine instrument at the Royal Albert Hall, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, by Mr.

W. T. Best, and on the remaining days of the week by Dr. Stainer, Mr. George Cooper, &c., commencing at half-past one o'clock.

The sale of the late Thomas Oliphant's music plates and copyrights, by Messrs. Puttick and Simpson, took place on the 26th ult. We subjoin a list of the prices realised by the most important pieces. Nearly all the part-songs, glees, and madrigals were purchased by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., including the following:—"Down in a flow'ry vale" (Festa), £52; "Summer eve" (Hatton), £13 16s.; "Who shall win my lady fair" (Pearsall), £85 10s.; "O who will o'er the downs so free" (Pearsall), £396; "The hardy Norseman's house of yore" (Pearsall), £344; "When Allen-a-Dale went a hunting" (Pearsall), £44 2s.; "Take heed, ye shepherd swains" (Pearsall), £22 15s.; "It was upon a spring-tide day" (Pearsall), £29 8s.; "I saw lovely Phillis" (Pearsall), £56; "In the merry Spring" (Ravenscroft), £5 15s. 6d.; and "T'other morning very early" (Thibaut, King of Navarre), £8 10s. 6d. Mr. J. Williams bought the following songs by Hatton:—"Simon the Cellarer," £409; "Vogelweid the Minnesinger," £56; "The Wreck of the Hesperus," £82 10s.; "The Bluebell and the Fly," £13 4s.; and "Letanie to the Holy Spirit," £19 10s. Messrs. Ashtown and Parry purchased the songs (by the same composer) "Dream, baby, dream," £40; "The blind boy," £9 5s.; and "Fair daffodils," £12 12s.; and the following pieces were bought by Messrs. Hutchings and Romer, Four-part song, "The hunt is up" (Hatton), £21; song, "Twilight" (Hatton), £10; song, "Day and night" (Hatton), £54 5s.; and Haydn's Vocal Trios, £61 4s.

The principal vocalists engaged at the approaching Hereford Festival are Madlle. Tietjens, Miss Edith Wynne, Mdme. Trebelli, Miss Enriquez, Messrs. Cummings, E. Lloyd, Montem Smith, Santley, and Signor Agnesi.

Reviews.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The Natural and Universal Principles of Harmony and Modulation. By W. W. Parkinson.

A NEW gospel has arisen for music, and its prophets are not a few. Music is to be the regeneration of the chaotic condition of our present times, and its new force is that of "emotional expression." Music, which was given to man as the primal and grand mean for Divine worship, is to be the new sacrament through which man is to worship himself and whatever else may delight him. Perversion is near akin to corruption, and if the apostles of this revival of an extinct faith were to evangelize the artistic musical world to any extent, music would, as it did in olden days, take to itself wings and fly away. But there is a resolved and earnest army of true believers in the right objects and real ends of music, and their strategy is just now in the ascendant. Look at Berlin during the Holy-week, and then at London. Note the vile, irrational, and savage music of modern classical art in Germany, and compare it with the week's doings in London. The wonderful repetition of the Passion music at the Royal Albert Hall to increasing audiences, the rendering of the Messiah all over this great country, and the stream of worship-music running in unbroken course in every possible direction. The object was sublime, the means beautiful: art was in its right place, man ennobled, the Deity glorified.

True, it may be the appeal of music is to the feelings and the affections; but still, as to fact, it is so much stream of motion, flowing in certain forms which have relation to the understanding; and however imaginative the music, the composition is based upon what is seen and known of acoustical phenomena. There is the law of nature, which governs the matter of music; the law of art, which governs its mode or technique; and there is its spirit, dependent on the inward emotion of the artist. As an illustration of these three fundamental principles, we refer our readers to the song and chorus, "See the Saviour's outstretched arm" in the Bach (St. Matthew) Passion, the recent performance of which at South Kensington never failed in "bating the breath" of the thousands present. Of great artistic songs this probably stands the foremost in the world. Nothing can be higher than its spirit; but spirit alone could not have made this song; it has its scientific basis as well as its technical treatment; and as its mechanism involves the very essential laws of order in sounds, and this, in the physical and artistic view, constituting its absolute perfection, its high and refined power of emotional expression, the questions arise, "Whence comes this science and technique?" What is it? Is it so ethereal—so essentially beautiful—that the power of doing it has passed away? Are we prating about beauty and art, whilst before our eyes and with our ears it is made plain that the imperishable and grand in music is a thing of the past, and now only to be enjoyed as a record of the learning, the manliness, and the holiness of the long-removed apostle in harmony? Talk what we may of our own doings in music, of the descriptive powers of the modern drama; of the new light thrown upon the properties and combinations of sounds, it is undeniable that the power of making this music, and a general knowledge of its scientific basis, have utterly gone from us. Let us look at it as an example of mere art.

There are two sets of common chords in music. (1.) The well-known harmonic triad, upon which Handel makes the greater number of his choruses, such as "And the glory of the Lord," "Unto us a child is born," and the "Hallelujah Chorus." (2.) The more fully developed common chords, the chords of the three minor thirds, or double tri-tones, on the same primary tones of the mode. The second set of common chords (known as the diminished sevenths) Sebastian Bach employs generally throughout his music, for the same purposes as the common harmonic triad. Also Handel occasionally, whenever he desires to strike with a thunderbolt, or subdue with a caressing tenderness. Turn to Bach's Passion—to the first chorus, "Come, ye daughters," to the airs, "Thou blessed Saviour," "Break and die," "The Saviour falleth low," "Have mercy upon me," "All gracious God;" the last sixteen bars of the chorus, "Have lightnings and thunders;" the chorus, "Let Him be crucified;" the last eight bars of the chorus, "Thou that destroyest;" the song, "Ah, Golgotha! the earth quakes." Is there any living composer who pretends to command this mechanism as one constant stream of expression? Although more alive, and possibly more generally sympathetic in these days than in the time of Bach himself, the secret of its artistic strength is, we would imagine, as much hidden as though the music never existed. What, then, is its strength? Simply this, HARMONY—the mere flow of harmony in sounds, from the never-failing fount of harmony.

This music is not isolated chord-music; it is harmony music. Music means "stream," and harmony means "rising up,"—the gentle bursting forth of the water that is to continue and add to the stream.

Never was the desire to evolve the mystery of stream in sounds so strong as it is in the present day. Hence the number of Treatises on Music with respect to its motion and form, and that portion of it which belongs to physical science. Both philosophers and musicians are convinced that the true laws of music are not arbitrary, but immutable, founded on the laws of nature. We have at least come to this. In considering music as a science (science—the thing fully seen, and therefore known), we appeal to first principles; and we know music is founded on division of the octave, and these divisions we call intervals. Whence came they? How did we get them? Are they facts in nature? Are they simply practical and technical? Are they "cells" or "roots," like the monosyllables of primal language? What is their energizing character? Why, and how, do we think with them? Why can we make human nature weep and rejoice with them? What is the law of their consociation? What of their connection, and of their collisions and contradictions?

The majority of those who write upon the art of music-making are content to accept the fact of a given diatonic and chromatic scale, and upon these to construct a syntax for sounds in the best way their wit and their feelings may suggest. Some writers have short sight, and write short books. A brief grammar is a great blessing, and many of these kind of books are not to be despised. But we know the great teaching-masters of the past generation—learned pundits like Reicha, Cherubini, and Schnyder von Wartensee—required their pupils to spend five years' study over their treatises, and from this fact it may be inferred that the arcana of music is not to be condensed into a thin octavo. Man is born with a head thoroughly empty of all music. The old masters well knew this fact, and they at once set the boy to sing, and in this way filled his head with ideas and forms of music language, and thus gave him a stock and store from which to note rules, and to cull, and to combine. Then the wall of the school-room was the grammar of the art; the musical stave was upon the wall; there was the master, with his few simple rules of harmony, and a small piece of chalk gave the illustration, and set the mind of the tyro to work. In this way was taught harmony, and as one example of this teaching out comes Telemann, of whom Handel said he could write an eight-part chorus as easily as he could write an ordinary letter.

The principles of harmony are changeless, and Mr. Parkinson, in the work under review, does not profess so much to write a new book as to revive a valuable and time-honoured system. He professes to lay down the syntax of harmony as Handel and Bach practised it. We know it is the province of art to outrun the exposition of its laws—a proposition Cherubini fully admitted when he said, "I can teach harmony, but I cannot explain the successions of Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven by what are called the ordinary laws of harmony." Mr. Parkinson is of opinion that there is no other foundation for music than harmony, and that its laws are amply wide enough to embrace all the anticipations that the foresight and innate feeling of these great composers led them to exhibit. The feeling of right upheld them in their course. With this feeling Beethoven, when told he was against rule, answered, "Against rule! What rule? Who made the rule? Very well, then, now I make a rule to the contrary." Probably Beethoven was wrong, but the error was simply that of notation; the thought was right, but the written symbols of the thought were incorrect. And it is curious to note that, in all the extracts from great masters analyzed by Mr. Parkinson, the error is nothing but improper notation. The harmonical connexion is always right.

Our author begins at the beginning; defines and limits the word "harmony." The harmonic triad vibrating in the proportions of 4, 5, and 6 (times of motion, not intervals)—the great harmonical problem of the whole cosmos—is the one and all of music. The printed scale of music is with him a general or movable, and not a fixed scale of sounds. Composers must know nothing of temperament, for they deal with real sounds. He places his tonic triad in the centre of three triads, the dominant triad on the ascending series, the sub-dominant on the descending. In music there is no isolated tone, and the thing to learn is the relativities of the tones, and their limits. The tonic he calls the harmonic origin of every sound in the key. This tone generates its triad, and also, secondarily, the triad of the dominant. These sounds he terms the ascending harmonic series. On the other side is the descending series, the sub-dominant and its harmonics. The tonic, from its position, is negatively their harmonic origin. These sounds yield the specific, tonal, individual, diatonic scale of the key, not a tempered scale, but a scale of real intervals, each commensurable and harmonic. They can be, and afterwards are, divided into smaller proportions, but he demonstrates these are contained in the division of the octave, that the octave is the limiting interval, and that within it are all elemental harmonic intervals. Thus, from the harmonic origin is produced the harmonic tones.

The next step is the combination of the harmonic tones, and he shows that there are only three concordant intervals, and thus the harmonic tones in combination become harmony-sounds. There are two positive harmony-triads, and one negative. He proves that 5, 3, are simply 6, 4, and that inversion is no other than the positive turned into the negative, or the negative into the positive. For example:—

	C	E	G	C
	1	3	5	8
counted down is—	C	E	G	C
	8	6	4	1
and	C	F	A	C
	1	4	6	1
counted down is—	C	F	A	C
	8	5	3	1.

Thus, all harmony, in its simple estate, is only the series of 1 3 5. The same formula may be applied to the triads of C and G. Our author proceeds to prove the double harmonic relationship of tones; as generated, and then generating; and a perfect correspondence of the series downwards, in answer to the series upwards. This point is important, for from this correspondence flows the law of the inversions of the numbers of the tonal scale, disclosing the affinity of tones upon which the whole grammar of music now rests. There can be no other concords than 1, 3, and 5, and the inversion of these numbers, which we have seen are 8, 6, 4, the equivalents of 1, 5, 3.

We touch not upon Mr. Parkinson's physical dissertations—his philosophical disquisitions upon the acoustical characters of the tones. They are valuable, but polemical, have existed from the beginning of all grammar in music, and really have nothing to do with the question of harmony. It would be quite time enough to consider these things when the abstract question is put before us. "Ought not the principles of harmony, as they have stood for these centuries past, to be swept away?"

The minor triad our author deduces from the inversion of the triad on the negative side, and then shows that the only series of consonant harmony sounds are these:—

C, E♭, E♯, F, G, A♭, A♯, C.

In this way we have the major and minor simple triads, which combine all the elements of concordance. The tonic triad in the middle, and the two outsides, positive and negative, exact counter-changes or counterparts of each other. Technically, the so-called root or cell of a triad is the lowest tone of the three in harmonic position.

All harmonic combinations rise from the harmony—intervals of 1 (or 8), 5, and 3. After this are developed all chords, major and minor, in which the tonic appears as 1, 3, or 5, and always in concord with the other two sounds of the chord. The system is then extended, showing the tonic in all its places and in every condition of its immediate relationship. The tonic is now considered as a governing sound, as the tone determining and ruling all the others—the great dominant, defining the extent of the harmony dominions—dominant to the fourth, and negative-dominant to the fifth. Concords, we ought to say, are tones in agreement and state of repose; and the tonic is the only sound in this state with all the sounds of the tonal system.

From the major triad system, the author passes to the modic minor, or related secondary system. This secondary system has its three distinct root-tones; its tonic, dominant, and sub-dominant chords. In the secondary or minor mode, the position of the tonic is undetermined; hence the so-called new progressions heard in modern music, the composer passing through the chords of the key, avoiding the use of the governing chords, and in this way never determining the key. This is the secret of the new "dodge" of the never-ending cadence, as it is called, the composer taking care that there should be no resting-place for the ear. The secondary mode, from its double harmonic origins, A♯, E♯, B♯, and A♭, E♭, and B♭, disclose a chain of derivative chords, primary and secondary, which must be a perfect godsend to the transitionists—composers who delight to tumble out of one mode into another. At page 61, one sees somewhat of the pabulum which feeds the music of the advanced modern school. The primary and secondary systems supply every chord of the complete mode of key-relationship, save and except the purely chromatic chords; and all these chords, however apparently remote from the key, converge upon it, as the only position of rest, premising that the tonality is perfectly decided in the primary mode, but may be made undetermined in the secondary.

Then comes an explaining of the simple chords of the mode, the effect of the governing tones and of the octave inversions. In Chap. xii., Mr. Parkinson enters upon the salient crux of his treatise. Every one knows the elder harmonists leave out the seventh, for with them "mi contra fa est diabolus." Looking technically at the series of thirds in the key F, A, C, E, G, B, D, the question arises, "What is the third above the uppermost tone (D)?" The harmony intervals are shut up; scale intervals can only be used after proving their key-relationship; and the question for consideration is, "What is this F which lies above the D on keyed instruments and in the general scale of printed music?" That is to say, What is the value and relation of the tone in the key of C? For every sound in a key must have its absolute and fixed tonal relationship. What is 4 of a key when added to 5, 7, or 2?

When Dr. Pepusch had reduced his theory to what he called mathematical formula, he showed it to a bishop celebrated for his mathematical acquirements. "Before I look at this," quoth the bishop, "do you not admit the interval of the ninth as one of your harmonic proportions?" "Certainly," said Pepusch. "But do you not shut out the harmonic seventh?" "That is so," said the doctor; "Why shut out the nearer proportion and let in one further off?" Hereupon Pepusch began to explain that the proportion of the seventh was unmanageable with the ordinary system of harmony, and that the ninth could be let in as a new proportion, not interfering with the others. Therefore the mathematical bishop declined any further consideration of the doctor's theory. Nor was Pepusch more fortunate in his endeavours to gain on his side a celebrated professor of geometry at Cambridge. The professor did what the bishop would not do—looked into the doctor's calculations, and pronounced them, in the incisive language of our present times, "unmitigated rot."

Mr. Parkinson knows the danger of admitting the pure harmonic seventh into any theory of harmony; and, like M. Fétis, considers the chord F A C, lying above the D, as a repeat of the negative side of the key, and the great point of reunion. This, no question, was the real system of Beethoven. The seventh on the fifth of the key is the clash of 5 and 4, and a connecting-chord, a chord of reunion, as are all discords. This reunion offers an unbroken harmonic chain up to the C above; and, of necessity, our author is obliged to extend the negative series below by the chord F, D, B♭.

Now we come to the old difficulty—the presence of the two differing tones in the tonal scale, the fifth below A, and the fifth above G, the second and supertonic of the key. The chord, on the supertonic, then, with Mr. Parkinson, is a sub-dominant chord; a compound of two governing chords which converge on the tonic as a position of rest. He gives tables of this chord, its shapes and dimensions, and here we find the French, German, and Italian sixths, and the elliptical forms of the dominant thirteenth treated in a simple and intelligible way. These compounds, if of a dominant character, are treated as simple dominant chords. Those of tonic and sub-dominant union are likewise so treated. Those of a sub-dominant character are treated as simple sub-dominants, the tonic being either dominant or sub-dominant, according to its position in the union. The dominant chords have always dominant relationship; the sub-dominant, sub-dominant relationship; but the tonic is tonic to the two, dominant to the fourth, sub-dominant to the fifth. In this way our author gets rid of the modern sub-tonic or pre-dominant, as it is the fashion to call it. The second of the key generates no tone whatever, for all its true generations are out of the key. To admit these ratios is to abandon the law of limit, give up key, and all tonal relationship.

We now come to the Chromatics, and here Mr. Parkinson professes himself a discoverer. A chromatic in one chord is a harmony-sound in the next chord; and therefore chromatics are related harmony-sounds; and, further, chromatic chords of one key are identical with diatonics of a related key. He gives the law for chromatics thus:—1 and 5 of a major chord ascending may be chromatised, the 3rd depressed. In a minor chord this order is reversed. In all other cases, the harmonic triads only admit of one chromatic alteration. These principles are applied to the central system in its triad relationship. The result is, the chord of the sub-dominant major or minor may be raised in ascending a diatonic semitone below the dominant chord; and the two upper sounds of the dominant in descending may be similarly depressed, through the same interval. These laws are applied to the compound chords, and yield every possible chromatic chord that ever was invented, or ever will be. Mr. Parkinson then adds these chromatics to the before-mentioned diatonic sounds of his tonal scale, and the union yields all the possible sounds of the key; all in harmony, and all flowing from the simple harmonic triad of 1, 3, 5. He accounts for "passing" tones upon the principle of complementary chords. Upon the law of "remove" or "modulation" he is very clear. We wish the word "modulation" was abandoned in favour of the word "remove." So long as the word modulus meant a key-scale, in opposition to the general scale, moving away from one modulus to another, modulus was perfectly intelligible. It was breaking the limits of the key, and setting up a new key with other limits. In these days, the term "modulation" is not connected with any sense of limit, and we read of such terms as "abrupt modulation," "extraneous modulation," "remote modulation," "far-fetched," and we know not what. Much would be gained by plainly stating the fact of the remove and its harmony-relationship.

This book is very carefully, clearly, and intelligibly written. It embraces an enormous field, in fact, the whole field of harmonical science. In the course of the work there are sixty-five extracts from the compositions of the great classical composers, and many extracts also from the music of the new lights now flashing so brilliantly in all directions.

Mr. Parkinson has stuck to his Theory, and his work is the only work of modern days which professes to explain all musical composition, of whatever time and texture, by the simple doctrine of Harmony. The system is grounded on that of the Italians, who, after all said and done, are the true scientists in music. It stands in curious contrast with the ingenious and very clever system recently published by Mr. Joseph Green. But, although apparently contra-Wreathe ye the steps to great Allah's throne.

"Paradise and the Peri."

CHORUS OF HOURIS.

R. SCHUMANN.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 85, Poultry (E.C.). New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

Non troppo Allegro. p dolce.

1st TREBLE. Wreathe ye the steps to great Al - lah's throne,

2nd TREBLE. Wreathe ye the steps to great

1st ALTO. Wreathe ye the steps to great Al - lah's throne, 2nd ALTO. Wreathe ye the steps to great Al - lah's throne,

Non troppo Allegro. p dolce.

PIANO. $\text{♩} = 92.$

Wreathe them with flow-ers, wreathe them all o - ver, That e'en the Hea-ven's humblest up -

Al - lah's throne, Wreathe them with flow-ers, wreathe them all o - ver, That e'en the

Wreathe them with flow-ers, wreathe them all o - ver, That e'en the Hea-ven's, That e'en the

Wreathe them with flow-ers, wreathe them all o - ver, That e'en the Hea-ven's, That e'en the on Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter - nal may ho - ver.

Hea-ven's hum-blest up - on Mild - ly a glance of th'E-ter - nal may ho-ver.

Hea-ven's hum-blest up - on Mild - ly a glance of th'E-ter - nal may ho-ver.

Hea-ven's hum-blest up - on Mild - ly a glance of th'E-ter - nal may ho-ver.

poco ritard.

On - ward now wend we, wor-ship and bend we, Glad - ly, hum-bly, un - to the

poco ritard.

On - ward now wend we, wor - ship and bend we, Glad - ly, hum-bly, un - to the

poco ritard.

Onward now wend we, wor-ship and bend we, Hum-bly, un - to the

poco ritard.

Onward now wend we, wor-ship and bend we, Hum-bly, un - to the

cres.

poco ritard.

p a tempo.

Lord, Wreath ye the steps to great Al - lah's throne, Wreath them with

p a tempo.

Lord, Wreath ye the steps, oh wreath ye the steps to great Al - lah's a tempo.

Lord, Wreath ye - the steps to great Al - lah's throne, Wreath them with a tempo.

Lord, Wreath ye the steps to great Al - lah's throne, Wreath them with

p a tempo.

flow - ers, wreath them all o - ver, That e'en the Hea - ven's hum-blest up - throne, wreath them with flow - ers, wreath them all o - ver, That e'en the flow - ers, wreath them all o - ver, That e'en the Hea - ven's hum-blest up - flow - ers, wreath them all o - ver, That e'en the Hea - ven's hum-blest up - on Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter - nal may ho - ver!

 hum - blest Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter - nal may ho - ver!
 on Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter - nal may ho - ver!
 on Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter - nal may ho - ver!

Solo.
 Like-wise the lov'd ones re - mem-ber right, Who on the earth still are toil-some Solo.
 Like-wise the lov'd ones re - mem-ber right, Who on the earth still are toil-some Solo.
 Like-wise the lov'd ones re - mem-ber right, Who on the earth still are toil-some Solo.
 Like-wise the lov'd ones re - mem-ber right, Who on the earth still are toil-some wend - ing. Down-ward is dark - ness, up - ward is light, Ha - tred there, here wend - ing. Down-ward is dark - ness, up - ward is light, Ha - tred there, here wend - ing. Down-ward is dark - ness, up - ward is light, Ha - tred there, here wend - ing. Down-ward is dark - ness, up - ward is light, Ha - tred there, here

p ritardando. a tempo. CHORUS.

love ne-ver-end - ing, Wreath ye the steps to great Al - lah's ritardando. a tempo. CHORUS.

love ne-ver-end - ing, Wreath ye the ritardando. a tempo. CHORUS.

love ne-ver-end - ing, Wreath ye the steps to great Al - lah's ritardando. a tempo. CHORUS.

love ne-ver-end - ing, Wreath ye the steps to great Al - lah's ritardando. p a tempo.

throne, Wreath them with flow-ers, wreath them all o - ver, That e'en the steps to great Al - lah's throne, Wreath them with flow-ers, wreath them all throne, Wreath them with flow-ers, wreath them all o - ver, That e'en the throne, Wreath them with flow-ers, wreath them all o - ver, That e'en the

p

Hea-ven's hum-blest up - on Mild - ly a glance of th'E - ter - nal may o - ver, That e'en the Hea-ven's hum - blest up - on Mild - ly a
Hea-ven's, That e'en the Hea-ven's hum - blest up - on Mild - ly a
Hea-ven's, That e'en the Hea-ven's hum - blest up - on Mild - ly a ho - ver. On - ward now wend we, wor - ship and glance of th'E - ter - nal may ho - ver! On - ward now wend we, wor - ship and glance of th'E - ter - nal may ho - ver! On - ward now wend we, glance of th'E - ter - nal may ho - ver! On - ward now wend we, bend we, Glad - ly, hum - bly, un - to the Lord, Wreath ye the bend we, Glad - ly, hum - bly, un - to the Lord, Wreath ye the wor - ship and bend we, hum - bly, un - to the Lord, Wreath ye the wor - ship and bend we, hum - bly, un - to the Lord, Wreath ye the

poco ritard. p a tempo.
poco ritard. a tempo.
poco ritard. a tempo.
poco ritard. a tempo.
poco ritard. p a tempo.

steps to great Al-lah's throne, Wreath them with flow-ers, steps, oh wreath ye the steps to great Al-lah's throne,

steps to great Al-lah's throne, Wreath them with flow-ers,

steps to great Al-lah's throne, Wreath them with flow-ers, wreath them all o-ver, That e'en the Hea-ven's hum-blest up-on wreath them with flow-ers, wreath them all o-ver, That e'en the hum-blest wreath them all o-ver, That e'en the Hea-ven's hum-blest up-on wreath them all o-ver, That e'en the Hea-ven's hum-blest up-on

Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter-nal may ho-ver!

Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter-nal may ho-ver!

Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter-nal may ho-ver!

Mild-ly a glance of th'E-ter-nal may ho-ver!

dictory, how singularly the two works help each other! Both contain deep research, acute remark, and are of great aid to the musical student. The one can be read with advantage after the other. There is now room for a practical work bringing these two thoughtful treatises into a shape fitted for schools and academies, and thus aiding in making the study of music somewhat more of a certain science. Mr. Parkinson has spared no trouble and expense in the publication of his work. It is excellently well printed, and its many diagrams throw a great charm of beauty over its pages.

It is not a little singular that the two great books of theory of the last century, published by two German amateurs, should have led to a new school of music, and to what is facetiously termed, "the music of the future." In this country these theories were ingeniously simplified, about fifty years ago, by Mr. John Relfe, and in later days, pirated and mystified by Mr. Alfred Day, also an amateur. John Relfe, cum Alfred Day, has led to several curious compilations, and now we have the full-blown flowers of Mr. Parkinson and Mr. Joseph Green, both amateurs.

As we began with Bach, so we end with him. Both Mr. Parkinson and Mr. Green give explanations of his mode of composition. Will their essays teach and revive the use of the second set of common chords—the three minor thirds combined—as employed by Bach? What we greatly desire is, a general familiarity with the Bach and Handel methods on the part of our composers; and we have no hesitation in saying that the compositions of this day do not evince any such familiarity. The study of Mr. Parkinson's work will tend much towards this end. Mr. Green points out a shorter cut, which cannot be but advantageous.

Mr. Parkinson's book is introduced by a short sketch, from the pen of Dr. Gauntlett, of the different works which have been written on the Theory of Music, supplying much information in this branch of musical learning.

School Harmony. A short Treatise on Harmony, intended for use in Schools. By Bennett Gilbert.

THE author of this little treatise deserves the utmost credit for his good intentions, the musical pupils in the majority of our schools being not only ignorant of the rudimentary principles of harmony, but of those elementary matters relating to key, rhythm, phrasing, &c., which are positively essential to the formation of a good pianist. We quite agree with Mr. Gilbert that a "short and simple treatise on Harmony" is much wanted; but his book is a proof that in endeavouring to aim at brevity, the explanations may not be sufficient to attain the requisite amount of clearness. For instance, we are told nothing at all about the chord of the dominant 9,7; but, at page 16, the Leading and Diminished 7ths are given, without the slightest indication that they spring from the unexplained chord of the Dominant 9th. Again, the student is requested in composing a melody to make a "dominant cadence," no such term having been previously mentioned; and the only rule given for writing the first, second and third species of Counterpoint (the fourth and fifth not being even alluded to) is that 3rds, 6ths, and 8ths, only are to be used "on the accented parts of the bar," though what this can mean, as regards the first and second species, we are at a loss to understand. In a revised edition of his book, the author would we think do well to re-consider these points; for there is much to admire in Mr. Gilbert's method of defining the various terms in common use. Scales, Intervals, and Modulations are extremely well explained; and a few observations on "Form" in musical composition, may be read with advantage by students who do not confine their practice to music without form.

Certain portions of the Communion Service, set to music, with an Introit. By W. H. Gladstone.

HERE is another proof of Mr. Gladstone's graceful mind and nicely-trained talent. He writes without pretension, and achieves all at which he aims. There are one or two trifling slips in the present work, which surprise us from such a composer;—let him look, for instance, between the bars that end page 1 and begin page 2;—but such things as these are unnoticeable to the majority of hearers, they influence not the general effect of the music, and they might, in truth, have easily been avoided. The Introit is the most extensive, and thus the most important, piece in the series. The text, beginning, "I will wash my hands in innocence," is taken from the 26th Psalm, and is admirably appropriate to the opening of the solemn office; it is set with delicate feeling. Then we have two versions of the Responses after the Commandments, both of which are smooth and vocal, and they are of such equal interest that we cannot prefer either. In the first setting, the Response for the first nine times begins and ends in F, but that for the tenth, beginning also in F, ends on a half-close in the key of D minor, with a curiously inconclusive effect, of which we fail to perceive the purpose. The Doxology, to precede the Gospel, is set too low for the voices, especially the bass, to have much power, and it is not long enough to have much interest. Next comes the Sanctus, which here curiously anticipates its place in the Service, and, as curiously, is repeated notatim in its ordinary position. The text of this is set with regard to the feelings of the communicants, rather than to their own signification, or to that of the passage which introduces them, namely, in a subdued spirit of reverence. This reading will often be welcomed; and even with those who look upon the text in the sense of exultation, the gentle sweetness of the music cannot but be admired. In spite of the Rubric, that the Offertory Sentences are to be "read" by the minister, a selection of them follows, set to appropriately expressive music. These are not all in the same key, and one ends in a different key from its beginning, whence it seems that they are conceived with reference to a general design, more than to the self-completeness of each separate piece. Lastly, there is music for the Sursum corda, which leads to the repetition, already noticed, of the Sanctus. A note at the end states that Sir John Goss's and Dr. Wesley's settings of the "Creed" and "Gloria," in D and in C, may be used, which surely can scarcely need to be set forth in print, since the choice is free.

Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis. Set to music in the key of F. By George B. Arnold, Mus.Doc., Oxon.

THE modulations are more frequent and more sudden in this Evening Service than is compatible with good effect in a large ecclesiastical building. There are many instances of harshness, from the leap in one part to a note of the chord simultaneously with a passing note in another part, which, transient though they be, would have been far more discreetly avoided. At the opening, the boys' voices are divided so as to make five parts with those of the adults; a portion ensues for the "male voices in unison" (which are other voices than male in a cathedral choir?) and the ordinary four parts are employed for the conclusion, the last two distributions appearing in the second canticle as well as in the first. The organ part is an amplification of the vocal score, adding harmony to the unisonous passages. We prefer the setting of the Nunc Dimittis to that of the other piece; but, while admitting much merit and admirable earnestness in the work, we feel the effect of labour and formality more than of spontaneousness to be its characteristic.

Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in B flat. Composed, and dedicated to Dr. Stainer, by Edward Dearn, Mus.D. Cantab. A MERITORIOUS setting, containing much melodious grace and some points of interest in the part writing. Of the former may be specialised the passage beginning, "He, remembering His mercy," where the measure is changed to $\frac{3}{4}$, and in which some phrases for soprano alone are alternated with others for the rest of the choir. Of the latter the extensive music to the "Gloria," which is the same in both canticles, calls for particular notice. In many places, the soprano and tenor parts lie too low for good effect, since boys' voices often sound coarse on notes below the staff, and tenors have little power in the corresponding part of their compass. There is an apparent discrepancy between the antiquity of the notation and the modernness of the matter, which is hard to reconcile. The subject has been often discussed in these columns, and seemingly with little effect, whence may be inferred that ourselves and our readers—the composing portion of them, at least,—have two opinions respecting it; still, we must protest against the anomaly of music that consists of combinations and progressions, which are, for the most part, peculiar to the nineteenth century, being written in the breves and their white companions, which went out of general use in the seventeenth. A curious reading of the text occurs, in the separation by four bars' rest for all the voices, of the word "salvation," from "which Thou hast prepared;" and the sound further contradicts the sense by the earlier phrase being in the key of G minor and the later in B flat, so that it cannot be a true relative to the antecedent, since the "salvation" is as clearly distinguished in key from the "which" as it is widely divided in time. Two important engraver's errors are, the omission of the word "meek" under the notes for all the voices (page 7), and the D bass for voice and organ (bar 4 from end of page 8), which should surely be C at the fourth minim.

Pater Noster à 4 Voix. Par Joseph Stein.

A SMOOTH piece of four-part writing, with some prettiness. It is not without purpose of expression, if so may be understood the modulation into C minor at the words "Debita nostra." We little like the duplication of the 7th by bass and tenor on the first syllable of "voluntas;" and no better, the descent of B to G, while A rises to B, on "malo." The digressions into the keys of C flat and B double flat are somewhat extravagant in appearance, and still more so in effect, and the vocal distribution is not good at the conclusion, where the tenor and alto are at the intervals of a 10th and an 11th asunder, and the bass and soprano are close below and above them. These may seem many objections to a piece in which we have admitted merit, and which is all comprised in two pages; but then, is its existence at all desirable, and if not, should not the music be immaculate to justify any claim to being? The words are never sung in the Latin Service, and it is difficult to suppose four friends, or any multiplication of four, seeking social edification or amusement, in singing the Lord's Prayer in a dead language.

Gracious and righteous is the Lord. Anthem. Composed by W. H. Gladstone.

Most simple in form, and equally so in matter, this is a charming instance of complete success with little pretension. It opens with a chorus, which is followed by a quartet, beginning, "Them that are meek;" and this is succeeded by another chorus, "O give thanks." All three divisions begin and end in F, and the whole is comprised in four pages, throughout which the interest never fails. The anthem will be welcome to many a choir of small ability, and it will not be out of place where there are far larger resources.

Schumann's Songs. Edited and in greater part translated by Natalia Macfarren.(Second Notice.)

THE two songs immediately following the "Highland Widow's Lament," are both headed "Song of the Bride." The first of these has a melody which cannot fail to make itself felt when rendered by a sympathetic voice, a figure in the arpeggio accompaniment lending an additional charm to the tenderness of the theme. The second, in the same key (G major) is a brief Larghetto movement of extreme beauty; an excellent effect being gained by the repetition of the words "Chide not," upon the final chord of the symphony. "My Heart's in the Highlands" is simplicity itself, both in the melody and the accompaniment; but the words are expressed with remarkable fidelity, the alternation between the major and minor, with the change in the character of the accompaniment, giving much vitality to the song. "Hey Baloo," the words slightly altered from Robert Burns, has a peculiar theme, the rugged character of which is in perfect harmony with the wild nature of the Scotch poet's verses. "My soul is sad" is a genuine burst of passionate grief, the music seeming to flow as spontaneously as the burning words of Byron to which it is wedded. There is something inexpressibly beautiful in the opening symphony, which shadows forth with true poetical feeling, the nature of the verses which follow. The subject, commencing in E minor, with an unceasing arpeggio accompaniment above and below the voice part, seems actually to have been written to the English words, so excellently are they translated; and the placidity of the melody in the tonic major shows how deeply the composer had studied every shade of feeling in the poetry before he attempted to give it a musical colouring which should heighten and not obscure its beauty. The "Enigma," to the words commencing "'Twas whisper'd in heaven, 'twas mutter'd in hell" (often attributed to Byron) is a fine bold song, the key-note H (called B in English) being the solution to the enigma. Passing over "Row gently, here," "When through the Piazzetta," "The Captain's Lady" (a highly characteristic song, in E minor), "Oh how can I be blithe and glad?" (a simple and beautiful melody, with some effective changes of tempo); "What would'st thou, lonely tear-drop?" "No one" (the quaint words of which, slightly altered from Burns, are admirably expressed); "Out over the Forth," "Thou'rt like unto a flower," "A message sweet as roses" (a charming song, which space will not allow us to do justice to), we come to the end of Op. 25, the concluding song being an offering to his "Sister Bride" of the "Imperfect Garland," culled by the composer as an earthly gift, in anticipation of that "perfect garland" which can but be woven in those realms where neither "pain nor death divide." From the four songs in Op. 27, we must select for especial praise, "My love is like the red, red rose," the melody of which is not only extremely pleasing, but thoroughly Scottish in feeling; "The Jasmine," a charmingly written trifle, with a characteristic accompaniment; and "When thy eye's starry beam," a song replete with beauty both of melody and harmony, and especially remarkable for some highly effective modulations. Two more songs (Op. 30), "The Rover" and "The Hidalgo," complete the volume. The first of these is full of vivacity, the bold and striking theme having a crisp accompaniment of chords, which adds materially to the force of the voice part. "The Hidalgo" is thoroughly Spanish in character, the pianoforte having an important share in the composition, and requiring neat playing to ensure the effect intended by the composer. Both these songs have all the elements of popularity, although written in a higher school than compositions professedly manufactured for the public ear. We cannot take leave of this book without expressing an earnest hope that this "first instalment" of Schumann's best vocal works may be shortly followed by another volume. The introduction of such exquisite lyrics into the drawing-rooms of amateurs, will do much towards the furtherance of real art in social circles; and we need scarcely add that were professional vocalists to employ their talents in making them known to the general public, even if some of the "popular" songs were to be banished from our concert-rooms in consequence, the benefit to singers and listeners would be mutual.

Largo and Andante for the Organ. Composed by William Dawson.

THERE is much merit in these two pieces; but while we admire the musical feeling they evince, we perceive that this needs further development. The Largo grows monotonous from the all but ceaseless motion of quavers that prevails through its entire length, and when, in time to come, the author looks back upon it, he will surely acknowledge this. He is very scrupulous about enharmonic propriety, for he writes successively E flat, D sharp, and E flat again, the three notes being tied; but, to make the strangeness of this still stranger, the chords to which the notes belong are the first inversion of C minor, the fourth inversion of $\sharp F$ of D, and the first inversion of C minor again, so that E flat is the true name of the note in all three. He has evidently less objection than we to a diminished 5th being resolved upon a perfect 5th by the descent of a whole tone in both parts; but this progression is not without precedent, if it may be without beauty. There are many nice effects of harmony, however, in which lies the chief merit of the piece. We far prefer the Andante, the chief theme of which is charming. This would have been better with the barring reversed, so that it might have ended at the beginning rather than middle of the bar. The return to the original key, after an effective digression into other tonalities, takes place twice before the return of the original subject, which comes back, consequently, with an air of staleness that might have been well avoided, had the key and the theme re-appeared for the first time together. We should also have preferred if the coda had been a prolongation of the main melody, by the evasion of its final close, instead of being additional matter, introduced after the completion of the theme.

Modern Suite for the Pianoforte. Composed by Ferdinand Hiller. Op. 144.

No. 1 Preludio.	No. 4 Ballata.
" 2 Alla Polacca	" 5 Alla Marcia.
" 3 Intermezzo.	" 6 Alla Cosacca.

THIS "Suite," by one of the most accomplished composers and pianists of the day, will be welcomed in this country by all performers who can command the key-board sufficiently to grasp the author's meaning, for it is only to the higher class of artists that Dr. Hiller appeals. The "Preludio," in G sharp minor, has a cantabile theme with a characteristic figure in the left hand, which is continued throughout. The melody is simple; but the harmonies are sufficiently varied to keep the attention constantly alive. No. 2, commencing in the same key and ending in A flat major, is a genuine Polacca, but by no means easy to play, the passages, however, as might be expected, requiring but care and study to bring them under control. The "Intermezzo," in A major, will be found excellent practice for phrasing, both hands having an equal share in the composition throughout. The subject has much interest, and several of the modulations are exceedingly effective. No. 4, a "Ballata" (again in G sharp minor), is one of the most pleasing of the six pieces, the placid theme, commencing ing with a beautiful passage in sixths, being certain to win its way with musical listeners. The bold extended chords contrast well with the quiet and melodious opening subject; and the short coda is extremely happy. The spirited March, No. 5, beginning in E flat, has an unexpected enharmonic change into B major, and contains some excellent writing, the principal theme having much characteristic vivacity. No. 6, commencing with a forte passage in octaves, thoroughly fulfils its title, "Alla Cosacca;" and a good effect is gained by the alteration of key, especially that used in one of the former pieces, from G sharp minor to A flat major. This movement forms a fitting termination to the "Suite," which we doubt not will speedily receive the attention such a composition deserves both from professors and amateurs.

Two Gavottes for the Pianoforte. Composed by Lady Thompson.

We are glad to find that the composer of these two Gavottes continues, by the occasional publication of such sterling works as these, to add to that reputation which, as Miss Kate Loder, even when a student of the Royal Academy of Music, she so legitimately earned. Her classical taste, fostered as it was by the institution of which she became so bright an ornament, has always led her to adopt the highest models in composition; and the pieces now before us amply prove how thoroughly she is imbued, not only with the form, but the spirit, of the old masters. The first Gavotte, in E minor, has a subject in true sympathy with the feeling of this favourite dance. In spite of the freshness of the composition, there is a flavour of the period, both in the themes and their treatment, which cannot fail to delight all who love genuine and unaffected music. The change to the tonic major is an exceedingly effective point. No. 2 reverses these keys—beginning in E major and passing into E minor—the principal subject being in every respect as attractive as that in the piece already noticed. The spontaneous flow of the harmonies, too, is a noticeable feature; and apart from the intrinsic merit of these two Gavottes, we may say, in conclusion, that there is admirable practice in them, for all who wish to cultivate a pure style of performance.

DUFF AND STEWART.

A Fisher Wife's Song. Words from W. C. Bennett's "Songs for Sailors."

Would you be a Sailor's Wife? Words from the same. Composed by Virginia Gabriel.

THESE Songs, dedicated to H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh, cannot lay claim to much originality, nor indeed to any character in sympathy with the verses; but the music flows well to the words, and the accompaniments are as simple as the merest tyro can desire. "A Fisher Wife's Song" (although but little is attempted in the instrumental part) has a violin accompaniment, in compliment, we presume, to the distinguished amateur to whom it is dedicated. The second song has somewhat more life in it, chiefly in consequence of the broken phrases, "Beware," and "Take care!" (somewhat resembling Longfellow's well known "I know a maiden fair to see,") and the subject is vocal, if not striking. We shall be glad to see composers of acknowledged reputation exercise their talents upon many of these "Songs for Sailors;" for since Dibdin's stirring lyrics, the sea and its glories have been but feebly represented in music.

Thoughts of Heaven (Aspiration). Sacred Song. Words by Mrs. M. A. Baines. Composed by Berthold Tours.

A SHORT and impressive Recitative, ending upon the dominant, introduces an extremely melodious and vocal theme, in E flat major, which Mr. Tours has clothed with unpretending, but most appropriate harmony. We especially like the final phrase: the words, "Oh, let me be supported to the end," being lengthened out with good effect. This song pleases us so much, that we long to alter the bass between the 8th and 9th bars of page 2, where the voice and accompaniment drop in fifths.

DUNCAN DAVISON AND CO.

La Jouerie. Rondo for the Pianoforte.

To Love. Trio, for Ladies' Voices. Words by H. Kirke White. Composed by John Jackson.

WE like Mr. Jackson's vocal better than his instrumental piece. In spite of very evident talent, there is a crudeness in the Rondo which we do not discover in the Trio. "La Jouerie" has a subject which well justifies its title, and to the double bar it flows on agreeably enough; but at the change of key there is a baldness in the treatment of the theme which does not satisfy us: most especially do we disagree with the harshness between melody and accompaniment in the 19th bar of p. 4, and many similar instances occur on the following page. The Trio, for ladies' voices, is extremely well written, several passages of imitation being highly effective. The alteration of key and time is most appropriate to the words; and the voice parts throughout flow easily. We can conscientiously recommend this Trio to the attention of vocal amateurs.

ASHDOWN AND || PARRY.

An Italian Boat Song; for a Baritone voice. Composed by Alfred Alexander.

THIS is a somewhat restless song, although we have occasional indications of the composer's power to do better things. The words are boldly expressed; but we have such a strange mixture of the keys of F major, F minor and A minor, as to leave a somewhat unsatisfactory effect upon the ear. The harmonies too, sometimes moving in octaves with the voice, and sometimes independently, betray an evident want of design. The best part is where the key changes at the double bar; but we cannot reconcile ourselves to the 6.4 on G, which commences the last bar of page 4.

JAMES NISBET AND CO.

Music and Singing in the Churches. By "Junius," an Elder of the English Presbyterian Church.

WITHOUT stopping to question the assertion with which this pamphlet opens, that the "Great Creator has given us a scale—the natural scale," we may at once say that we quite share the author's enthusiasm in urging upon all classes the necessity of cultivating their vocal gifts for the service of the Church. "The cold and indifferent singing," he says, "which is sometimes heard in the churches, is rather painful than otherwise, and certainly can be but ill adapted either to kindle devotion in the heart of the Christian, and draw it out, as doubtless intended—even in the act of singing—towards God, or to affect favourably the hearts of those who may still be outside the fold." To remedy this, "Junius" boldly proposes the study of the Sol-fa system, which, if once introduced into schools, he asserts, would enable the rising generation "to read and sing almost any music at sight." This is of course not the place to enter into an elaborate review of the system so earnestly advocated by the author of this book. As a stepping-stone to the established notation, it may answer well enough; but its inventor, even, has too much acuteness not to see that any method which, instead of recognizing every sound as an independent one, accepts the present nomenclature for indicating the absolute pitch of a key-note, cannot be true to nature. The advantages of the Sol-fa method, as a mere temporary system of teaching singing in classes, have been, however, sufficiently well proved; and in the pamphlet before us, Mr. Curwen's ideas upon the subject are clearly stated: indeed, the Sol-faists may fairly claim "Junius" as one of their most zealous partisans.

LAMBORN COCK.

Didst thou but know, thou little bird. Song. The words translated from the Norwegian of Theodor Kjerulf. Composed by Halldan Kjerulf.

THIS charming little song, in D minor, entirely confirms our former conviction, that in this Norwegian composer we have one who cannot work in the conventional groove which has so long regulated the majority of our vocal writers' effusions. We cannot tell whether his songs sell; we should rather think not. But of this we are convinced, that if he can be content to wait, he has sufficient power within him to force a hearing; and vocalists are not blind enough to their own interests to neglect a composer who, in spite of themselves, is rising into notice. The melody of the song before us is of that winning character which cannot fail to delight every listener; and the figure in the accompaniment materially aids its effect. At the change into C major, to the words "I'd bind a letter around thy neck," an excellent contrast is obtained by the descending arpeggios in the pianoforte part (divided between the two hands) and the return to the original key, is well managed. We sincerely hope that our warm praise of this and former pieces by the same composer, may induce those in search of vocal novelties, to make trial of the works of one who, with all his talent, has yet a name to make.

Fair rose the Summer Morning. Song. Words by L. M. G. Music by H. C. Deacon.

The ambitious character of Mr. Deacon's music appears to us scarcely justified by the words of this song. The melody is written by one who evidently understands the voice, and the accompaniments are unexceptionable throughout; but the constant changes of tempo, and more especially the breaking off into occasional recitative, give an effect of patchiness to the composition which will detract much from the appreciation of many really clever vocal passages. There is an effective alteration of key—from A to F major—and we much admire the phrase commencing in the tonic minor, after the double bar, the accompaniment moving in triplets. We hope again to meet with Mr. Deacon, for he has unquestionably a good feeling for vocal music; and before closing our remarks upon the song before us, beg to call his attention to the omission of a ♯ before the C in the voice part (bar 9, page 6), a most important note in the dominant harmony which accompanies it.

Sleep. Ballad. Poetry from Public Opinion. Composed by Floralie.

ALTHOUGH there is something undoubtedly amateurish about Floralie's ballad, the words are well expressed, and, as a rule, the harmonies call for no disparaging critical remarks. In this song, as in all others of the same class, there is an evident desire to do too much, simplicity, we presume, being considered by young composers as an unfailing sign of incapacity. The themes in "Sleep" are graceful and vocal; but we long to quiet down the accompaniment which, like an unruly child, will intrude itself where it is not wanted. Let "Floralie" work hard to be natural, and she may yet produce something which shall elicit unqualified praise.

F. M. GREEN,

Music Typographer, for facilitating Manuscript Music copying in a quick and neat manner.

THIS invention, secured by "Royal Letters Patent," has been forwarded to us with the hope that a kindly review upon its adaptability to the purpose intended may materially aid the "copying movement" by showing how easily and inexpensively labour may be abridged. But, in justice to those who compose and those who publish, should not something be said about the legality of the process itself, especially when positive type is introduced to help in a little robbery which, whilst confined to multiplying an author's works by ordinary pen and ink, has been good-naturedly winked at. Supposing, for instance, that those who purchase the right of reading new books from Mudie's were to employ themselves in making manuscript copies of them to circulate amongst non-subscribers to the library; even if author, publisher and librarian were blandly to overlook such a practice, we can hardly believe that, when an invention for "facilitating book-copying in a quick and neat manner," by the partial substitution of printing for writing, were given to the world, some gentle hint of the right of an author over his own property might not be forced upon the public attention: indeed, in strict fairness, it may be said that if anything is to be protected by "Royal Letters Patent," it should be the work itself, and not the method by which readers might enjoy the result of an author's labours gratuitously. The "Music Typographer" will, however, we think, scarcely revolutionize the ordinary method of copying music; for, although type is provided for the heads of notes, the signs of Treble and Bass clefs, the tails of quavers, semiquavers, &c., must be added with pen and ink, and the same method must be employed for indicating the rests and Time signatures.

LIMPUS.

Hymns for Four Voices.—"O Jesu, Thou art standing," and "God of our Life," composed by Charles J. Frost, F.C.O.; "Jesu, Refuge of my Soul," composed by Frederick Iliffe, F.C.O.; "The Lord of Might," composed by Arthur Page.

THESE pieces gained either the prize or the special commendation awarded by the umpires of the College of Organists, at the annual competition in 1872. The two by Mr. Frost are melodious, vocal, and nicely harmonized; there is only to object to the strong accent on the word

"the" in the third line of "God of our Life," which is, perhaps, more a fault of the poet than the musician. The false accentuations that constantly appear in the verses of hymns suggest the surmise that writers of this class of literature consider the sense of their lines as all unimportant, and make intentional pitfalls for musicians wherein they must break the rules of emphasis. Mr. Frost, with his highly-meritorious tunes, is not to be blamed for this, so he has our sympathy in his dilemma. Mr. Iliffe has a fondness for the doubling of the bass note of the first inversion of a major chord, to judge from his frequent practice of the same, which is at variance with our views of good effect. His tune is otherwise admirable. We prefer Mr. Page's tune to the others, which, as we have spoken well of them, is saying much. We have had more than one opportunity to praise Mr. Frost's attempts in a wider field of composition than hymnody, and we hope for a like and early chance with the other authors of these meritorious little productions.

Original Correspondence.

MUSIC IN BATH ABBEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—I beg to say that a most untruthful statement appears in your last month's Musical Times, which I shall feel obliged by your contradicting. The words of the hymn referred to as sung by the choir, I enclose, by which you will see that neither the language nor the division of the words was used, the last line being sung through and repeated. Your correspondent must therefore have been misinformed, or possessed with the desire to turn our somewhat plain but hearty service into ridicule.

I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

JAMES KENDRICK PYNE, Organist of Bath Abbey.

[The Hymn forwarded to us contains no such words as our correspondent "D" asserts were sung.—Ed. Musical Times.]

ORATORIOS FOR THE CHURCH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

DEAR SIR,—I have read with much pleasure the remarks in your valuable paper on Oratorios in Church. We have (as you will see) had one here which, though a pasticcio, has given great pleasure, and though we could not follow the example of "Westminster" and "St. Paul's" by giving such great works as "The Passion" and "St. Paul," we have tried to do what we could. Could you tell me, in your Answers to Correspondents, any work in the form of the "Passion" of Bach, which contains the popular element, in the shape of chorals (or one into which chorals could be introduced), and which could be performed by an ordinary choir of about twenty? I should be much obliged if you could. Mr. Macfarren has written some beautiful anthems for small choirs; could not some one write oratorios? I am anxious to know if there is anything that will suit us, for the Oratorio in church will never become general until we have something less stupendous than the gigantic works of Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, &c.

Believe me to remain, yours sincerely,
Grosvenor House, Harrogate, J. B. Esson.
April 19th, 1873.

[Bach's "Passion according to St. John," and the same composer's Cantata, "God's time is the best," would be found simpler than the works named.—Ed. Musical Times.]

DR. R. W. CROWE'S ANTHEM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,—In your review of Dr. R. W. Crowe's Anthem there is an "inharmonious false relation" which produces an effect that is at least undesirable. You draw comparison between his Anthem and my Communion Service. Kindly resolve the dissonance in your next. I will try to satisfy your "expectations," in my next production.

Yours very faithfully,
E. J. Crow, Mus. Bac.

73, London-road, Leicester, April 3rd, 1873.

[No excuse can be given for the mistake here mentioned, but the fullest apology is offered to both gentlemen and to the readers of the Musical Times for the unlucky confusion of their two individualities in one identity—a consequence of either too good or too bad a memory in—THE WRITER OF THE REVIEW.]

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

•• Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

WILLIAM GEORGE WOOD is informed that we do not review manuscript compositions.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.—Dr. J. L. Hopkins's Anthem, "The Lord shall comfort Zion," is published by Novello, Ewer and Co., Price 5s.

SUBSCRIBER.—There are two Operas of "Manfred;" one by Schumann, and one by Reinecke. We do not know of any part of either of them being arranged for the Organ.

Brief Summary of Country News.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary; as all the notices are either collated from the local papers, or supplied to us by occasional correspondents.

ADELAIDE.—The recent performance of Handel's Messiah by the Philharmonic Society, at the Town Hall, was in the highest degree successful. The solos were excellently sung by Mrs. Winkley, Mrs. G. T. Harris, Miss Vaughan, Miss Effield, Mrs. Peryman, Messrs. J. G. H. Brooks, E. H. Hallack, and J. W. Daniel. The choruses, under the steady conductorship of Mr. E. Spiller, were given with much spirit and precision, the "Hallelujah," "Surely He hath borne our griefs," and the final "Amen" chorus being especially worthy of commendation. The band consisted of about 30 performers, ably led by Mr. C. Hall.

ALFORD.—Mr. Henry Brown's classical concert at the Exchange Hall, on Wednesday, the 16th ult., was supported by Miss Grace Armytage (vocalist), Miss Jennie Brown, daughter of the concert-giver (pianoforte), Herr Otto-Bernhardt (violin), Herr Adolphe Brouil (violoncello), and Mr. T. W. Dodds, conductor. Miss Armytage created a marked effect with the audience; and Miss Brown more than realized the expectations of her friends. It is almost needless to remark that Herr Otto-Bernhardt, Herr Adolphe Brouil, and Mr. T. W. Dodds, discharged their duties with the utmost efficiency. The hall was crowded in every part, and the applause most enthusiastic.

ALTON.—On Tuesday evening the 1st ult., the lecture session of the Mechanics' Institute was brought to a close with a musical entertainment, by Mr. Ellis Roberts (the harpist), entitled "Minstrelsy, Ancient and Modern." He was assisted by Miss Ellen Glanville, who sang with much taste and expression. The Town Hall was crowded.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Messrs. Hill and Son have placed a fine organ (the gift of Mr. Abel Buckley) in the Congregational Church in this town. The instrument has three keyboards and pedal organ, and on Good Friday, Mr. W. T. Best gave a recital of Organ music from the works of Bach, Mendelssohn, Handel, and other composers, to an assemblage which filled the building in every part.

BARNLEY.—On Monday evening, the 7th ult., the choristers of St. Mary's presented Mr. J. G. Warbrook with a very handsome Maelzel Bell Metronome, of English manufacture, bearing the following inscription engraved on a silver shield plate:—"Presented to Mr. John Gustavus Warbrook, choirmaster, by the Choristers of the Parish Church, Barnley, as a token of their love and esteem, for his kindness and impartiality; and also as an acknowledgment of his musical talent and untiring zeal in their behalf." A highly complimentary address was read by one of the choristers; and Mr. Warbrook, in replying, thanked them in most suitable terms.

BARNSTAPLE.—On Easter Monday and Tuesday the annual Festival was held in the Music Hall, under the conductorship of Mr. J. Edwards. On Monday evening Handel's Samson was performed in a very satisfactory manner; the choruses being, almost without exception, well rendered. The soloists—Miss Emily Spiller, Miss Marion Severn, Mr. W. H. Cummings, and Mr. Lewis Thomas—were highly successful; the latter gentleman being particularly so in the air "Honour and Arms." The band (led by Mr. Rice, of Torquay) and chorus of the Festival Society numbered about 100 performers. Mr. H. Edwards presided at the organ, and accompanied the recitatives and choruses. On Tuesday evening there was a miscellaneous concert at which the same artists were engaged.

BECKENHAM.—The amateurs of Madame Henrietta Moritz's Choral Society held their last meeting of the season on the 7th ult., and, under the guidance of their indefatigable director, gave a performance of Dr. Hiller's fine Song of Victory.

BEDFORD.—On the 25th March the Bedford Amateur Musical Society gave the first concert of its seventh season, at the Assembly Rooms, before a large audience. Handel's Deliverance Te Deum, and Gounod's By Babylon's Wave, were the principal works performed. The singing of Miss Alice Barnett was greatly admired throughout the evening.

She has a fine contralto voice, and has evidently been trained in a good school; her rendering of "When Thou tookest upon Thee," in the Te Deum, and of Gounod's "There is a green hill," and Handel's "Return, O God of Hosts," in the miscellaneous portion of the programme, producing a marked effect upon the audience, Gounod's song being enthusiastically encored. Mr. Hartley is a very promising young tenor; and Mr. John Haines (who supplied at a short notice the place of Mr. H. Allen) proved himself a very efficient bass. Great credit is due to Mr. R. Rose (chorus-master and organist) for the admirable manner in which he has trained the choir. Mr. T. J. Ford was an able pianist.

BIRKENHEAD.—On Friday, the 13th ult., a new organ, built by Messrs. Brindley and Foster (Sheffield), to the order of Mr. W. T. Best, was opened by that gentleman at the Trinity United Presbyterian Chapel, Cloughton; the organ has 2 manuals, 7 stops being on the great organ, 7 on the swell, 2 on the pedals, 8 couplers, and 7 continuation pedals; under Mr. Best's hands the good qualities of the instrument were displayed to the greatest advantage. Some sacred music was also given by the choir. The cost of the organ is about £550, £450 of which has a ready been raised by voluntary contributions from the congregation.

BURNLEY.—A miscellaneous concert was given in the Ebenezer School-room, on Thursday, March 27th, by the Chapel choir, assisted by an efficient glee party. Mr. Arnold, of Harrogate, was encored in his clever violin performance, as also in the piano solo "Rule, Britannia" (W. C. Seile); Mr. Thomas Pollard, jun., accompanied with great taste, and Mr. Winterbottom, the choirmaster, conducted.

BURSLER.—Handel's Oratorio Judas Maccabeus, was given by the Tonic Sol-fa Chorists of the Potteries on the 15th ult., at the Town Hall, with much success. The principal vocalists were Miss Mary Thorley, Miss Chadwick, Mr. Selwyn Graham, and Mr. Brandon, all of whom were most effective in the trying solos allotted to them. The choruses were finely rendered throughout, "Hear us, O Lord," "Sing unto God," and the final "Hallelujah," being especially deserving of the warmest commendation; indeed Mr. Powell merits the utmost praise for the excellent manner in which he has trained the body of vocalists entrusted to his care. The band was thoroughly efficient, and Mr. H. Walker presided with much ability at the organ.

CLITHEROE.—On Monday, the 24th March, the members of the Choral Society gave their first concert. Mendelssohn's St. Paul had been for some time in rehearsal, but owing to the necessity for holding the concert before the great choral difficulties of this work could be overcome, a selection from the Oratorio was given, and miscellaneous pieces added to make up the programme. The overtures went well, the spirited leadership of Mr. C. A. Seymour, the playing of Mr. Lazarus, as principal clarionet, and the vigorous conducting of Mr. Forrest, contributing much to the result. The choruses were also excellently rendered. Mr. Seymour performed a violin solo, which was encored. Mr. Lazarus played with Mr. Forrest the "Duo Concertante," of Weber, and a solo on airs from Der Freischütz, to perfection; and Mr. Marsden gave a flute solo with much success. To the "Lady Amateur," who sang "With verdure clad," and "Lo, here the gentle Lark" (enthusiastically encored), the Society is under great obligation for her most valuable service. A prominent feature of the concert was the first performance of a Cantata by Mr. Angelo Forrest, written by him as part of the examination for a musical degree at Oxford. It was much enjoyed by the audience, and was interesting as the first performance by a Clitheroe chorus and orchestra, of a choral work composed by a native of the town.

COCKERMOUTH.—On Tuesday evening, the 15th ult., the members of the Harmonic Society gave their thirteenth concert in the Freemasons' Hall, under the leadership of Mr. W. Metcalfe, of Carlisle. The first part of the programme consisted of selections from Mozart, Gounod, and Smart. The solo, "There is a green hill," was tastefully rendered by Mrs. Stretton, of Lorton Hall; and the duet, "Oh, come hither and hearken," by Mrs. Stretton and Mr. Metcalfe, was very favourably received. In the second part, a violin solo was brilliantly executed by Mr. Packer, and enthusiastically re-demanded. Dr. Jones, of Aspatia, sang with much effect the song "To Anthea," by Hatton; the duet "Trust her not," was well rendered by Mrs. Stretton and Miss Waugh, of Papcastle; and Miss Ritson and Mr. Metcalfe were encored in both their songs. The choruses, on the whole, were very creditably rendered, though at times, in the first part, the deficiency of male voices was apparent. We regret to hear a rumour that this concert is likely to be the last given by the Society, owing in a great measure to the lack of funds. It is to be hoped, however, that the music-loving portion of the people of Cockermouth will do what is necessary to prevent the collapse of an Association which has on several occasions supplied them with musical treats of no ordinary character.

CUPAR FIFE.—Handel's Jephtha was performed by the Cupar Amateur Musical Association, on Friday the 18th ult., in the Corn Exchange. The members of the Society—about fifty in number—were assisted by an accomplished orchestra. The choruses were well rendered, especially "O God, behold our sore distress," and "How dark, O Lord, are Thy decrees." Miss Rankine possesses a good voice, and Miss Lawson and Miss Beattie sang feelingly and with expression. Miss C. Rankine, Miss Buist, Captain Bremner, Messrs. Pattison and Cooper, were also highly effective; and Mr. Hodgson deserves much praise for his excellent delivery of the tenor solos. Mr. W. H. Richmond presided with great ability at the harmonium.

DERBY.—The Derby Choral Union gave its third and last concert of the seventh season on the 28th March, when Handel's Oratorio Samson was performed with marked success. Mrs. Osborne Bateman and Mrs. Gamble gave the soprano and contralto solos with excellent effect, and Mr. Coulson (tenor), and Mr. R. J. Smith (baritone), were equally efficient in the music entrusted to them. The choruses were finely rendered throughout, "Then shall they know," "To dust his glory," and "Fixed in His everlasting seat," being especially worthy of the highest praise. Mr. Woodward was the conductor; Mr. Henry Farmer leader of the orchestra; and Mr. T. T. Trimmell, presided at the organ, DUNDEE.—On the 15th ult. the Dundee Amateur Choral Union gave its second concert for the season in the Kinnaird Hall. In choosing the music of Orpheus—an opera more than one hundred and ten years old—this body has added one more to the number of valuable works which it and its contemporary Societies in Dundee have been the first in Scotland to make public. The engagement for this recital of Madame Demerle-Lablache, Madlle, Pauline Rita, and Miss Marie Trevanion, as soloists, shows both the ability and the desire of the Society to provide creditable performances for their subscribers of works worthy of attention. In general the choruses, which were sustained by about 130 voices, were finished in style, presenting a good deal of excellently managed shading and careful, neat phrasing. The "Chorus of Shadows" was particularly well given. In the first two sections of the "Chorus of Furies," perhaps a little more brilliancy of tone would have been acceptable. Madame Lablache sang the French text, which to some extent impaired the satisfaction of her audience: but no one could fail to see that, though she altered the readings of the recitatives, her power to express the grief, despair, hope, and joy of Orpheus was artistic. Her rendering of the air "Che farò" was most pathetic and full of true feeling. Madlle. Rita sang also with much, and at times intense expression, and only when she left her text, as at the close of the first air and chorus of the third Act, and finished the air "O fortune destroying" with her beautiful but sadly misplaced upper C, did she fail artistically. In the trying scene with Orpheus in Elysium she was most eloquent. Particularly fine was the expression of the simple "One only look, and only one," as also "Let us part," in the same scene. What little is given to Love to sing in this opera was well sung by Miss Trevanion. Her last words were especially well treated. The version of the work given was of course the English one edited by Mr. Charles Hallé. How much of it is according to Gluck Mr. Hallé has not been pleased to say, which all will regret, seeing this opera has been so much tinkered at since it was first written. Some cuts were judiciously made in the ballet music; two of the movements so cut do not appear in the Italian form of the opera. The accompaniments were ably sustained by Mr. E. Berger and Mr. W. H. Richmond.

EDINBURGH.—Professor Oakeley having so far recovered from the effects of his recent illness as to be able to resume the honorary directorship of the choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, the special choral celebration of Easter Sunday was of a very high and interesting order. Professor Oakeley himself presided at the organ, and both in his voluntaries and accompaniments displayed its resources with much effect. His opening voluntary at morning service was extempore, the theme being Dr. Worgan's Easter Hymn. The Te Deum and Jubilate were Boyce in A, which were rendered with finish and spirit. It was noticeable that in the Easter Hymn—every line of which is followed by "Alleluia"—the Professor left the voices entirely unaccompanied until the "Alleluia," when, at that joyful shout, the organ came in with an effect positively electrifying. In the afternoon the service was Oakeley in E flat, which—the Professor again presiding at the organ—was rendered with great devotional feeling. The opening voluntary was an Andante in D, by Professor Oakeley, which has just been published in the Organist's Quarterly Journal. The concluding voluntaries were the "Hallelujah Chorus," from the Messiah; and "Achieved is the glorious work," from Haydn's Creation. The anthem was taken from the Messiah, and consisted of the movements "Since by man came death," and "Worthy is the Lamb." To criticise the performance of such a service would be out of place; but it is due to Professor Oakeley to say that the choir which has grown up under his direction, is now fully equal to those of the more musical of English Cathedrals. The vocal strength was augmented for the day by some of the members of the Congregational Choral Society, instituted and conducted by the Rev. Mr. Douglas, and of which Professor Oakeley is president. This Society, which keeps alive the love of high-class music in the congregation, always affords a convenient reserve force, which can be drawn upon for festival days.—An Easter Eve organ performance was given by Dr. Oakeley in the Music Class-room on Saturday afternoon the 12th ult., to a very large audience. The programme was varied on this occasion by the introduction of vocal music, enhancing considerably the pleasure with which these admirable recitals are always listened to. Two solos ("Be thou faithful unto death," and "Cum animam") were exquisitely sung by Mr. Richard Drummond, of Hawthornden; and the concluding choruses from the Messiah were given by the choir of St. Paul's Church with remarkable precision and steadiness. The Rev. Mr. Douglas, to whose care the choir, as is well known, owes so much, took his part amongst the tenors. The quartets were sung inside the organ—as an effect of contrast and distance—and were rendered by Miss Blaikie, Miss Neilson, Mr. Bannerman, and Captain Douglas.—In accordance with his custom in previous years, Professor Oakeley, on Saturday evening the 19th ult., gave an extra recital to the members of the Choral Union, of which Society he is the honorary president. Dr. Oakeley, who received a hearty reception, preceded his performance by a few words, cordially welcoming the Choral Union again; and giving his hearty congratulations to the Society on the increased appreciation of their efforts which this year had been shown by the Edinburgh public. The recital which followed was warmly received and appreciated, and near its conclusion the president of the society (Mr. J. Bow) said he felt sure he expressed the sentiments of every one present when he returned to the honorary president, Dr. Oakeley, their sincere and heartfelt thanks for the privilege he had accorded to them of being present at this organ recital. He had to offer the Society's congratulations to the honorary president on his restoration to health, and to express their pleasure at hearing him preside at the king of instruments with his wonted skill and ability. Dr. Oakeley briefly replied, and said it gave him great satisfaction if what they had heard that evening had afforded them gratification, and concluded by hoping that they would meet there next winter, when he trusted to be able to do greater justice to the fine organ than it was possible for him to do in his present condition of only partially recovered strength.

GATESHEAD.—On the 7th ult., a concert in aid of the funds of the Newcastle Amateur Rowing Club was given in the new Town Hall, which was filled in almost every part. Mrs. C. E. Fleming was enthusiastically received in Sullivan's song "Once again," and also in a duet with Mr. R. Thompson. Mrs. Rippon was highly successful in Handel's "Angels ever bright and fair," and Bishop's "Tell me my heart" (receiving a hearty encore for the latter); and Mr. J. L. Toole was warmly received in his song "The bold fisherman." One of the features of the programme was the violin performance of Mr. W. Stoltefoht, who displayed much feeling, combined with skilful execution. Mr. J. Redshaw's voice was heard to advantage in Diehl's song, "The Mariner;" and Messrs. J. Bewick, G. Ferry, R. Duke, and E. J. Rowley, gave several part-songs with admirable precision. Master Charles Fenwick, the young coxswain of the club, sang three songs with good taste and feeling; and a local song, in character, by Mr. J. B. Radcliffe, was received with a fair amount of applause. The services of Mr. Leggart and Mr. Thew on the piano were thoroughly appreciated. Altogether, the concert was one of the best which has been held in the sister borough for some years, and not a little of the success is due to the untiring efforts of Mr. T. Waddom, the honorary secretary.

GOLCAR.—On Saturday evening the 5th ult., the concert for the benefit of Mr. Hoyle took place in the National School. The band and chorus consisted of about eighty performers (the services of all being rendered gratuitously), under the able conductorship of Mr. Henry Pearson. The selections were from Haydn's Creation, and Handel's Judas Maccabeus; the principal vocalists being Mrs. Barras (who created much effect by her singing of "With verdure clad"), Misses Broom, Oldroyd, Whittaker, Mrs. Dyson, Messrs. W. Garside, T. Bramley, G. Mellor, and S. Whitvram. The choruses were given with commendable precision, especially "O Father," "Lead on," and "Sing unto God." Mr. J. E. Pearson presided at the harmonium. The proceeds of the performance and subscriptions amounted to £12, which was presented to Mr. Hoyle by Messrs. Henry Pearson, James Hirst, and H. Beaumont.

HARROGATE.—On Friday evening, the 18th ult., a service of sacred song was given in the Methodist Free Church. The subject was The Widow of Nain, the music being arranged from the works of various composers, in the form of an Oratorio, interspersed with chorals. Miss Place played the accompaniments on the organ, and Mr. Benson conducted. Though this was the first time an oratorio had been given as an integral portion of a religious service, it was quite a success. Some of the audience afterwards expressed a desire to have the words of the chorals, so that all could join in them, and no doubt this omission will be rectified when an oratorio is again performed.

HASTINGS.—The performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah, given by Mr. Abram and the members of the Choral Union, at the Music Hall on the 8rd ult., was in every respect highly successful. Miss Royce was excellent in the soprano solos, creating a special effect in "Hear ye, Israel," and Miss Newton was equally efficient in the contralto music. Mr. Graham for his rendering of "Then shall the righteous," received well merited applause; and the part of the Prophet was finely sustained by Mr. Lewis Thomas. The choruses were sung with commendable precision and care, and much credit is due to Mr. Abram, the conductor of the choir, for the admirable manner in which he has trained this body of amateurs to interpret so satisfactorily a work of such magnitude.

HAWARDEN.—A farewell concert for the benefit of Mr. J. G. Smith (organist of the Parish Church), was given at the National School on the 15th ult. Having been got up in a very short time, it was hardly so successful, as to performance or attendance, as others which have been given in this village. Great credit is due to Mr. Cogan for his performance on the violin (with other instruments), in the overture to Figaro. The singing of the church choir was very good; and Mr. Arthur Wade was highly effective in all his songs. We must not omit to mention the taste and feeling with which Gounod's Meditation on Bach's prelude for pianoforte and harmonium, was performed by Miss May Gladstone and Mr. Lyttelton.

HEREFORD.—The Easter concert of the Hereford Choral Society was given at the Shire-hall on Thursday evening, the 24th ult., under the direction of the hon. conductor, Mr. Townshend Smith, when Handel's Oratorio Jephtha, was performed, the principal singers being Mrs. Sicklemore, Miss L. Broad, the Rev. A. Robinson, and Mr. J. H. Lambert. The song "Tune the soft melodious lute" was done full justice to by Mrs. Sicklemore, and Miss Broad gave the recitative "First perish thou," with considerable power of declamation, and sang with much expression the succeeding air, "Let other creatures die." The tenor recitative and air, "Deeper and deeper still," and "Wait her angels," was sung by Mr. Robinson with the usual effect, and Mr. Lambert acquitted himself most creditably in the music allotted to the leading bass. The choruses were carefully sung, and the instrumentation was quite equal to the ordinary standard of these performers, though at times they lagged a little in accompanying the solos. Despite the tameness resulting from the prohibition of applause, the performance of the Oratorio was attended with considerable éclat.

LEAMINGTON.—On the afternoon of Good Friday the Church of the Holy Trinity was crowded to hear Bach's Passion Music, according to St. John, which was rendered with great effect by the choir, aided by a number of amateurs from other choirs. The principal tenor and bass parts were taken by Mr. H. Tipton and Mr. W. Pointney, from Birmingham. Mr. C. Sydney Vinning was the organist and director of the choir.

LEEK.—The last concert of the season of the Amateur Musical Society was given on Tuesday evening, the 22nd ult. A miscellaneous selection formed the first part. In the second a very creditable performance of Sir W. Sterndale Bennett's Pastoral, The May Queen, was given. Mrs. Thompson, of the Midland Counties' Concerts, was the May Queen; the other principal parts being taken by Miss Smith, Mr. Dishley and Mr. Beckett, members of the Society. Miss A. H. Milner presided at the pianoforte, and a small but efficient band was led by Mr. A. Lee, of Manchester. Mr. Powell was conductor.

LINDSAT (ONTARIO, CANADA).—A new organ, erected by T. F. Roome, of Toronto, in St. Paul's Church, was formally opened on Monday evening, March 17th, by Mr. Wm. T. Atkinson, Organist of St. George's Church, Toronto, who played a selection of classical and popular music in a very effective manner. The choir sang the anthems "I will lift up mine eyes," "In Jewry" (Whitfield), and "Thou, O God" (Turner), and Hymns 164, 136, and 14, Ancient and Modern, accompanied by Mr. J. H. Knight, organist of the church. The tone of the organ is rich and powerful. The case is in the pure Elizabethan style, seventeen of the pipes being displayed in the front. The instrument is placed on the floor near the chancel.

LIVERPOOL.—On the 15th ult. Mr. W. H. Jude gave his vocal and instrumental recital, entitled "An hour with Henry Russell," in the Hope Hall. There was a numerous audience. Mr. Jude, at the outset, gave a brief sketch of the career of Henry Russell, and then performed the following illustrations from his compositions:—"Wind of the Wintry Night," "The Gambler's Wife," solo pianoforte: "Gavotte," "The Old Sexton," "Tubal Cain," "The Maniac," "The Slave Chase;" pianoforte solo: "Lyses," "The Dream of the Reveller," and "The Ship on fire." Throughout the recital Mr. Jude was loudly applauded, and, being repeatedly encored, he prolonged the entertainment by singing several classical songs.

MALVERN.—The steady improvement which has lately been manifest in the services and choir of the Priory church was more particularly noticeable on Easter-Day, when the choir numbered 45 surpliced members, the old monks' stalls being used for the first time since their recent restoration and replacement in the chancel. The morning canticles were well sung to music by Spohr and Hesse; the Kyrie was Schubert in E flat, and the anthem "Glorious is Thy Name," by Mozart. The Litany was sung in the afternoon to Tallis's setting; and the Evening Service began with Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," which was finely performed by the organist, Mr. W. Haynes, and followed by the old Easter hymn. Tallis's Responses were used, the Psalms chanted, and the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis sung to a very effective setting by the organist (Vesper music, No. 3). The anthems were "He is risen" (H. Gadsby), and "Hallelujah" (from the Christus am Oelberge, Beethoven), both of which were rendered with much precision and brilliancy, the accompaniments being exceedingly well played. Great credit is due to the organist and choir-master, whose constant and unwearied exertions have brought the choir to its present state of efficiency. The church, although holding more than 1200 persons, was densely crowded both morning and evening, numbers being unable to obtain seats. There are now two daily services, with a celebration in addition on Holy days; and attention is duly paid to the minor points of ritual detail, hitherto wholly disregarded.

MANCHESTER.—By the list presented at the Easter Vestry Meeting of St. Peter's Church, we find that seventy-six works, including fifteen services, have been produced for the first time, and eighty-three composers have been represented, during the past year. So much energy in the musical portion of the services of this church reflects the utmost credit upon Mr. E. St. J. B. Jule, the hon. organist and director of the music.—PASSION WEEK at Manchester Cathedral was distinguished this year by much more important musical services. The use of the organ was not discontinued (as has been the case in former years), and the anthems were taken exclusively from Haydn's Passion music, the Seven last words, the whole work being sung during the course of the week. The beautiful introduction served admirably to display the noble organ which has lately been erected in the cathedral by Messrs. Hill and Son; Mr. Bridge, the organist, playing it before the anthem each afternoon. The congregations were very large, the introduction of this work into the cathedral services causing considerable interest.

NEATH.—The fourth annual musical festival of the Neath Harmonic Society, took place at St. David's Church, on Thursday the 17th ult., when Mendelssohn's St. Paul was given; the principal vocalists being Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Lucy Franklin, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Mr. Maybrick. The band included all the first professionals from the Three Choir Festivals, with Mr. Woodward as leader; Mr. A. L. Struve presided at the organ, and Mons. Jules Allard conducted. The festival was exceedingly successful, the Oratorio being given with that thorough heartiness and appreciation of its beauties, which has already gained for the Association so enviable a name. The Society includes probably some of the finest voices in the Principality; its progress has been therefore most rapid, the merits of the members, both individually and collectively, securing for their efforts a warm reception whenever before the public.

NEW YORK.—Mr. Richard Hoffman gave his third Soirée at Chickering Hall, on the 8th ult., assisted by Mr. J. Burke (violin), and Mr. F. Bergner (violinello). The following was the programme:—Trio, Op. 70 (Beethoven); Prelude and Fugue, in A minor (J. S. Bach); Andante (Mendelssohn); Scherzo, Op. 31 (Chopin); Lieder ohne Worte (Mendelssohn); Concerto (Golttermann); and "The Banjo" (Gottschalk).—The fifth concert for the season of the Philharmonic, took place at the Academy of Music, on the 15th ult. The programme consisted of the following works:—Symphony, G major (Haydn); Cavatina ("Bel Raggio") Rossini; Concertstück (Weber); and the Symphony "Dante's Divina" (Liszt). Mlle. Corsadi sang with great effect, and Mr. Richard Hoffman played the concerto fluently and brilliantly.

PONTEFRAC.—At the special request of the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosse, Mr. Arnold, of Harrogate, gave a highly interesting organ recital, at Womersley Park, on Monday, the 24th March. Amongst the company present were Lord and Lady Rosse, Lady Hawke, &c. Mr. Arnold was highly complimented on his performance.—The trustees of the Primitive Methodist Chapel in Pontefract have to be congratulated on again securing the services of the members of the Sheffield Choral Society on this the occasion of their organ anniversary and festival of sacred music on Easter Monday. The first part opened with Wesley's anthem, "Blessed be the God and Father," and concluded with Haydn's chorus "The heavens are telling;" these and other choruses rendered with force and precision were interspersed with solos, amongst which, especially deserving of mention, was the "Morning prayer," from EH, and "With verdure clad," sung respectively by Mrs. House and Mrs. Lee; and "In native worth," admirably given by Mr. Berrisford. Mrs. Firth, and Messrs. Kay and Charlesworth also sang the trio "On Thee each living soul awaits" in a highly satisfactory manner. The second portion of the programme commenced with Goss's anthem, "The Lord is my strength," followed by Travers's "Ascribe unto the Lord," the tenor solo by Mr. Hague, and the bass solo by Mr. Makin. Other anthems followed, the verse parts by Messrs. Styring, Gaunt, Wilson, Hattersley, Nicholson, Hallows, and Talford, being given in a highly creditable manner. Miss Hides in "My soul doth magnify the Lord," and Mrs. Charlesworth and Mrs. Hague sang with their usual ability and good taste. Kent's "Blessed be Thou," concluded the programme, which gave the utmost satisfaction, as evinced by the continuous and hearty applause which greeted the performance throughout. Mr. E. J. Lee, the respected conductor of the Society, most ably officiated at the organ.

SCARBOROUGH.—On the evening of Thursday, the 10th ult., a special Evening Service was held at All Saints' Church. The minister of the church (the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick), with the concurrence of the parish council, having conceived that Handel's grand Oratorio, Messiah, offered scope for selections appropriate for the season, entrusted the arrangements to Dr. Naylor, who secured the services of a large party of gentlemen amateur vocalists and instrumentalists, the latter having the assistance of a few professional performers. The choir also comprised the members of the choirs of All Saints' and St. Mary's. After the prayers, according to the order set forth in the Service Book, the Oratorio selections were entered upon, commencing with the overture. The prophetic passages embraced in the first part of the great work were given almost entirely. Then followed the portions telling the story of the birth of Christ, proclaiming the advent of the King, the "righteous Saviour," and the blessings of His salvation. The sermon came next, which was preached with much eloquence by the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick, from the text Matt. xxvi. 30, "And when they had sung an hymn." The selections from the second part of the Oratorio were then commenced, depicting the Passion; and these were followed by what might be regarded as an anticipation of the Easter rejoicing in the finished work of Christ,—the celebration of His Atonement, as expressed in the great choruses, "Worthy is the Lamb" and "Hallelujah," which closed the service. It is due to all who were concerned on the occasion to acknowledge the very praiseworthy decorum that was observed throughout; the nature of the performance as part of a solemn religious service being evidently most fully impressed upon every mind. The solo portions of the Oratorio were sung by the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick (tenor), Master Hilton Turner and Master Storer (soprano), Mr. Green (alto), and Mr. Brand (bass); and the efficiency of the treble or soprano part of the chorus, was, perhaps, one of the most remarkable features in the entire rendering. This department was solely sustained by the boys of All Saints' and St. Mary's choirs. The ability of Dr. Naylor as a choir-master and conductor was fully illustrated in the result, that was accomplished. The Communion Service followed the special service. This was also fully choral. The Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick was the celebrant, and he was assisted by the Rev. Canon Blunt, the Rev. J. Bedford, and the Rev. W. F. Simpson.

SIDCUP, KENT.—The Sidcup Choral Society gave a very successful concert on the 24th ult., the programme consisting of glees, part-songs, and solos of various styles. In the first part (which was confined to sacred music) the members of the choir acquitted themselves well in "To Thee, great Lord" (Rossini), and the "Gloria in excelsis" (Mozart's Twelfth Mass), and in the second part gave "From Oberon," and Sullivan's "O hush thee," with spirit, and attention to light and shade. The latter was re-demanded. Amongst the soloists, Miss Adelaide Bliss gave much satisfaction by her rendering of "Rejoice greatly," from the Messiah, "Tell me my heart" (Bishop), and other solos; and Mr. W. H. Hook was very successful in Handel's "Why do the nations." One of the chief features of the evening was a song composed by the conductor of the Society, Mr. W. H. Gill, entitled "Elixir Vitæ," which was excellently sung by Mr. Morrison, and encored. Other solos were well sung by Miss Alexander, Miss Lockyer, and Mr. Robinson. The concert was conducted by Mr. W. H. Gill; and Mr. Horace Buttery, of St. Mary, West Brompton, presided at the piano.

SKELMORLIE.—On Wednesday evening, March 26th, after the usual practice, a present was given by the Rev. Robert Stewart, M.A., B.D., from the Skelmorlie Parish Church Choir, to Mr. J. E. Senior, the organist and choir master. In presenting the gift (which consisted of a set of gold studs, pendant for watch chain, and gold pencil case), Mr. Stewart spoke in the most flattering terms of the talent and zeal of Mr. Senior, and expressed a hope that the choir would enjoy for many years his valuable services.

STAMFORD.—An amateur concert was given in the Assembly-rooms on Wednesday evening the 16th ult., in aid of St. John's Choir fund. The performers consisted of members of St. John's Choir and several ladies and gentlemen of the town, assisted by Mr. Swift and Master Noble, of the Cathedral Choir, Peterboro'. The programme was divided into two parts, sacred and secular. The first part contained the "Gloria," from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, "Angels ever bright and fair," and "But thou didst not leave" (sung by Master Noble, and encored), "For behold, darkness" (well rendered by Mr. Swift), and the "Hallelujah Chorus." In the second part a pianoforte trio was given by the Misses March and the Misses Parker and Rippon's duet "O give me back those early flowers," and Mr. Proctor's song, "Only one to bless and cheer me" (Wrighton), were encored. The concert was in every respect a decided success. Mr. H. Nicholson presided at the piano, and R. P. Thompson, Esq., M.A., conducted.

ST. ANDREWS.—The Amateur Choral Society gave a successful concert at the Town Hall on the 4th ult. The first part of the programme consisted of sacred, and the second of secular music. Mozart's Twelfth Mass, which commenced the concert, was excellently rendered the choruses being given with much precision and effect, and the solo parts being carefully sung by Mrs. Mitchell (soprano), Mrs. Ferguson and Lady Charlotte Elliott (contralto), Mr. Smith (tenor), and Captain Douglas (bass). The miscellaneous selection which followed contained several solos and choral pieces, the principal singers being (besides the vocalists above mentioned) Mrs. Campbell, Miss Farnie, Messrs. Hunter and Scott, and Dr. Driggs. Mr. Salter, who conducted, deserves the utmost credit for the pains he has taken in securing so favourable a result for the Society which, thanks in a great measure to his exertions, is now in a highly prosperous condition.

VENTNOR.—On Thursday evening the 17th ult., the Ventnor Choral Society gave its second concert for the season, under the direction of the leader, Mr. Edwin Lemare, organist of Holy Trinity. The programme consisted of a selection from Sir Julius Benedict's Oratorio, St. Peter; and several ballads, glees, &c. Mrs. Glover, of Brading, took most of the principal parts in the Oratorio, and contributed very largely to the pleasure of the evening, by the excellent manner in which she rendered some of the most difficult portions of the composition. Misses Newnham and Jobling also sang with great effect the parts allotted to them. Mrs. Thompson, of St. Boniface Terrace, presided at the pianoforte; and Mr. E. Bentall at the harmonium.

WARMISTON.—The fourth annual invitation concert given by the head-master and pupils of Lord Weymouth's Grammar School, took place as usual at the Town Hall, on the afternoon of Easter Tuesday, and was attended with as great, if not greater success than either of the preceding concerts. The programme was rendered throughout with marked and gratifying efficiency. The opening piece, Mozart's Septett in C major, and indeed all the concerted music, received a rendering both brilliant and precise. The most admirably executed composition, however, was the violin solo by Mr. Betjemann, whose playing gave a treat to the auditory which is rarely obtainable in a provincial town. Mr. W. W. Alcock's violoncello solo also exhibited much excellence. Miss Hardick sang with all her accustomed ability, and the Rev. H. C. de St. Croix, and Mr. W. W. Alcock were equally successful. The choruses were given very effectively by the pupils and a few gentlemen, the pupils showing a marked improvement in their singing. At the close, the High Sheriff of the County, N. Barton, Esq., tendered his own thanks and the thanks of the company to Dr. Alcock for the excellent entertainment he had given them.

WARRINGTON.—On Thursday evening the 10th ult., a concert of sacred music was given in the Public Hall, the selections being from the Messiah, Stabat Mater, &c. The vocalists were Madame Billinie Porter, Miss Bond, Mr. W. B. Ling (of Trinity College, Cambridge), Mr. Watson, and Mr. Alfred Brown; Mr. A. Borst, presided at the organ. The audience was not large, but remarkably appreciative, the performance being in every respect highly satisfactory.

WHITTINGTON MOOR.—A successful concert was given on Monday evening the 14th ult., in the New School-room, before a large and fashionable audience. The artists were Miss Jenny Twigg (soprano), Madame Czalkowski (contralto), Mr. T. Cooper (tenor), Mr. Edgington (bass); solo violin, Mr. Keeton; pianoforte, Miss Keeton. An admirable selection was performed, which appeared to be thoroughly appreciated by the listeners.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—On Tuesday evening, the 22nd ult., Mr. A. E. Smith, organist of Kewstoke Church, gave his first popular concert at the Assembly Rooms before a select audience, assisted by Mr. S. B. Miles (tenor) and Miss Rosamond Bailey (soprano), who acquitted themselves in a most satisfactory manner. Mr. Miles being encored in Molloy's "Vagabond," and Miss Rosamond Bailey being much applauded for her excellent rendering of "The Skipper and his Boy." The concert-giver (baritone), who made his debut as a public singer, was received in a most flattering manner; and his songs, "Never mind the rest," and J. L. Hatton's "The Man-of-war," were redemanded. Mr. Smith introduced three exceedingly clever pupils, the Misses Pegler and Miss Polly Hicks, whose pianoforte playing was much admired. Mr. A. E. Smith ably accompanied the several singers, and also his own songs.

WEYBRIDGE.—A successful concert was given by Mr. H. P. G. Brooke, on Thursday evening the 17th ult., to a crowded audience, at the house of the Rev. Dr. Spyers. The selection included the Madrigals "Cynthia, thy song" (Gio. Croce, 1560); "When all alone" (G. Converso, 1580); "Down in a flow'ry vale" (C. Festa, 1541); and two of more modern date and of great beauty: "In this hour," (Ciro Pinsuti), and "How soft the shades of evening creep" (Hy. Smart). The solo singers, Miss Probert, Miss Kellock, Mr. H. E. Burgess, and Mr. Doynce C. Bell, were highly successful; Mr. Bell being encored in both his songs. The two instrumental Quintets by Mozart and Beethoven, were finely played by Herr Deichmann (1st violin), Mr. J. A. Morgan (2nd violin), Herr Borschitzky and Mr. J. W. Wallis (viola), and Mr. W. B. James (violoncello), Herr Deichmann's violin sonata (J. S. Bach), and Mr. Alex. Wilson's piano solo, "Andante and Rondo Capriccioso" (Mendelssohn), were excellently performed. Mr. J. A. Morgan accompanied the concerted music, and Mr. H. P. G. Brooke conducted and accompanied the songs.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. T. Martin Channon, to the Brompton Episcopal Chapel, Montpelier Street, Brompton Road.—Mr. Matthew Arnold (of Harrogate), to the Parish Church, Parsonstown, King's County, Ireland.—Mr. R. J. Martin, to St. Mary's, Spital Square.—Mr. W. H. J. Coventry, Organist and Director of the Choir, to St. Mary's, Haggerstone.—Mr. G. E. Manton, Organist and Choir-master to St. John's Church, Hammersmith.—Mr. J. P. Rowland, Organist and Choir-master to the Parish Church, West Malling.—Mr. Charles D. Mortimer, Organist and Choir-master to St. Peter's Church, Hindley, near Wigan.—Mr. T. Palmer, to All Saints' Church, Clooney, Derry.—Mr. Robert Peel, to St. William's Catholic Church, Ince, near Wigan, Lancashire.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. C. Wilmer (alto), Mr. A. Rudland (principal tenor), and Mr. D. Curtis (tenor), late of St. Peter's, Onslow Gardens, to St. Philip's, Kensington.—Mr. Alfred G. Lawson (bass), to Christchurch, Crouch End.—Mr. Alexander Cooper, Choir-master to Holy Trinity Church, Brompton.—Mr. Francis Crane, late Choir-master of St. Margaret's Church, Liverpool, Organist and Choir-master to Holy Trinity Church, Birkenhead.

DURING THE LAST MONTH,

Published by NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HANDEL.—Belshazzar. Oratorio. Edited by G. A. Macfarren. 8vo., paper cover, 3s.; cloth gilt, 5s.

SHEPPARD, REV. H. FLEETWOOD.—Nunc Dimittis to the Third Tone (according to the use of Cologne) for Voices and Organ. Post 8vo., 3d.

METCALFE, WILLIAM.—300 Single and Double Chants. Cloth, red edges, 3s.

MENDELSSOHN.—The word went forth. From the Festgesang (Hymns of Praise). For male voices. 8vo., 4d.

GOSS, SIR JOHN.—O praise the Lord of heaven. Full Anthem for Festivals. 8vo., 6d.

WILLIAMS, CHARLES L.—Thou knowest, Lord. Anthem for Lent. 8vo., 3d.

JORDAN, C. WARWICK, Mus. Bac., Oxon.—The Lord is my light and my salvation. Anthem. 8vo., 6d.

MARKS, T. OSBORNE, Mus. Bac., Oxon.—O Lord, who hast taught us. Short Anthem for Treble Solo and Chorus. 8vo., 4d.

SHEPPARD, REV. H. FLEETWOOD.—These hallowed courts we tread. Hymn for a Choral Festival. Post 8vo., 3d.

STAINER, JOHN.—My Maker and my King. Sacred Song, for a Soprano. Words from Dr. Watts. 1s. 6d.

—Slumber-Song. Words translated from Körner, by N. B. 1s. 6d.

DAVIS, GABRIEL.—The Distant Sea. Four-part Song. 8vo., 2d.

LAWRENCE, EMILY M.—Sunbeams. Four-part Song. Words by Longfellow. 8vo., 3d.

HILLER, FERDINAND.—Modern Suite for the Pianoforte. Op. 144, 4s. Or, singly—No. 1, Preludio, 1s. 3d.; 2, Alla Polacca, 1s.; 3, Intermezzo, 1s. 6d.; 4, Ballata, 1s.; 5, Alla Marcia, 1s. 6d.; 6, Alla Cosacca, 1s. 6d.

THORNE, E. H.—Psalm xlvii., O clap your hands together. s.s.a. 6d. (Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 80.)

ABT, FRANZ.—Ave Maria. Op. 438. Sacred Song. Latin words and an English adaptation by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A. 1s. 6d.

THORNE, E. H.—On a faded violet. Song. Sung by Miss Enriquez. Words by Shelley. 1s. 6d.

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—Mr. R. Taylor, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

ALL SAINTS' CHOIR SCHOOL, Clifton, Bristol.—SIX CHORAL SCHOLARSHIPS of the value of £20 per annum, are now VACANT. Boys with good voices are invited to compete. Preference given to sons of professional men. For further particulars apply to Mr. George Risleley, 11, Buckingham-vale, Clifton.

CHOIR SCHOLARSHIPS.—FREE INSTRUCTION in an old and well-known School is offered to four Boys with good voice and ear, who in return would give their services as Chorists on Sunday at St. Augustine's Church, Queen's-gate. Address Rev. R. B. Choje, Vicar.

A GENTLEMAN residing in the N.W. District of London is desirous of obtaining for his son opportunities of accompanying Church Services. Any Organist willing to meet the wishes of the Advertiser, and to afford such opportunities, may address, stating terms and conditions, &c., to "Sigma," Post Office, Boundary-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

A LADY, good Vocalist and Musician, having some time disengaged during the day, wishes for further ENGAGEMENTS as Teacher of the Pianoforte and Singing either in Schools or Private Families. Address A. G. Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

WILKIE'S CHEAP PIANOS. Just issued, a new illustrated Book of Designs, gratis and post-free. Wilkie, Wood and Co., 47, Great Russell-street, London, W.C.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo., price 6d. each.
1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES AND HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This Work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This Pointing of the Canticles is authorized by His Grace the Archbishop of York. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part chorus, with Organ Accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK, Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

Sixth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK, edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo., without chants, 1s.; with Proper Psalms, 1s. 3d.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to., with chants, 6s.; large 4to., £1 1s.; each voice part, separately, 2s. Canticles, score, small quarto, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo., 1½d. Novello, Ewer & Co., and Parker & Co.

Tenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Price 5s. 6d.; sep. vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

SUPPLEMENT to the PREVIOUS EDITIONS of the ABOVE, containing Chants for the Venite, &c. Price 1s.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. (Large type.) Price 2s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo., price 1s., in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Third Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION.

Harmonized on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

NON NOBIS DOMINE, arranged to the Corresponding English Words, by Rev. W. G. LONGDEN, for the Use of Choral Meetings, as an Introit, or Anthem, or Grace after Meat. Price One Penny; Ninepence a dozen; or Five Shillings a hundred. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TE DEUM (new) in B flat. Harmony, unison, free organ part, &c. Highly effective. 1s. 6d.—Three Choral Hymns—"There is a blessed home," "O Love," and "Praise the Lord." Complete 1s.—Also the immensely popular arrangement of the Evening Hymn "Abide with me." Harmony and unison, with a free organ part. 1s.—Also the well-known "Six Kyries." 1s. By EDWARD LAWRENCE, Organist, Merthyr Tydfil. A very liberal discount on a dozen copies, direct from the composer. A specimen copy of either for twelve stamps. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For voices in unison and organ. Octavo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TWELVE KYRIES. By G. BAKER. Price Sixpence, 12 or more copies, 4d. each, and post-free. G. Baker, Music-seller, Wakefield.

Now ready. 8vo. Price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED, Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Second edition, price 6d.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Chant (for Voices only), composed for the Service at the Ordination of Priests in the Cathedral Church of Ely, and sung at the Installation of the Right Rev. Edward Harold, Lord Bishop of Ely, April 26, 1864, by GEORGE FREDERICK JACKMAN, Organist of Ewell, Surrey.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

CANTICLES NOTED. Second Set, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. 18mo., 8d.; 8vo., 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

HELMORE, REV. THOMAS.—The CANTICLES ACCENTED, 18mo., 3d.—Hymns of the Eastern Church, four voices, each 1s., PEACE, it is I; THE DAY IS PAST AND OVER; THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.—S. MARK'S CHANT BOOK (in daily use at the College Chapel, Chelsea), 4s. 6d.; or the same, Part I., being the main body of the work, price 3s. 6d.; and Part II., The Table of the Chants, price 1s. (useful for places where only the Canticles are chanted). Also Two "Te Deums" for Choir and People, in the alternate verses; adapted from Latin arrangements by Alfieri and Baini; vocal Score and Organ Accompaniment, price 3s. Also the People's Plain Song, separate, price 1½d. Four-part Cadences for the Holy Communion, 6d. The Carol for Christmas Morning, vocal score, 18mo. edition, 2d.; melody, 18mo., 1d.

HYMN IN TIME OF CATTLE PLAGUE, 2d. Words, 1s. per 100. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADDITIONS TO THE

REV. T. HELMORE'S PLAIN SONG WORKS.

The Canticles Accented. Price 3d.
The Psalter and Canticles Accented. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
Appendix 1 to Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory, Price 4d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 1, giving the Proper Psalms, noted as before in their right order of the six days to which they are Appointed. Price 6d. Bound up with recent editions of the Psalter Noted.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 3d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 2, giving the Proper Psalms newly noted for the Four Great Festivals (second set). Price 4d.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 4d.

Canticles Noted (second set). Large Edition, 2s. Small Edition, 8d.

For some of the Harmonies to this, see Accompanying Harmonies to Psalter Noted, Appendix 2 (above mentioned). For others, see Accompanying Harmonies to Brief Directory, Appendix 2, now in hand.

Cadences for the order of the Administration of the Lord's Supper, in compressed vocal score. Price 6d.

Paper on Church Music, with special reference to the joining of all the People in Sacred Song, read at the Church Congress, Wolverhampton, October 1867. Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A SERVICE for the HOLY COMMUNION for Men's Voices in four parts, consisting of Introit, Kyrie, Gloria tibi, Gratias, Offertory Sentences, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, composed by W. H. SANGSTER, Mus. Bac. Price 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

E. W. TAYLOR'S TE DEUM, in C (Patent Notation, can be read by either Old Notationists or Sol-faists), price 6d., 8vo. A liberal allowance when a number of copies are taken direct from the Composer, E. W. Taylor, Organist, Stafford. Published by W. Hamilton, 33, Bath-street, Glasgow.

Seventh edition.

CHANT SERVICE, in G, for the Te Deum laudamus, arranged from ancient sources, by H. M. HARVEY. 8vo., 4d. Small copy, 1½d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASY ANTHEMS for VILLAGE CHOIRS. By W. H. GILL. 2d. each. Nos. 1 to 6 now ready.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A Specimen Copy, post free for Stamps to the value.

FULL ANTHEM for ASCENSIONTIDE. "God is gone up with a merry noise," by J. NEWBERRY. To be obtained of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, London, or of the composer, Hayes, Beckenham, Kent.

"EXCEPT THE LORD BUILD THE HOUSE," an ANTHEM for five voices, suitable for the Opening of new places of Worship or School Anniversaries. Composed by JAMES HARDWICK; published at 1s. 6d. each; sold at half-price. Schools or congregations taking 12 copies may have them at 6d. each. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

BY REV. R. F. SMITH, M.A., Minor Canon of Southwell, TE DEUM, in F, in 4 parts, 3d. SHORT ANTHEM, "The Lord is high," S.A.T.B., 6d. London: Novello, Ewer & Co., 1, Berners-street, W., & 35, Poultry, E.C.

AND BEHOLD! A THRONE. Anthem for Trinity Sunday, by HENRY LAKE. Price 6d. "This Anthem is in many respects meritorious—the theme selected for treatment fugato is ably worked out, and the pedal-point is highly effective."—Musical Times. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Price in paper, 2s.; scarlet cloth, 3s. 6d.

HENRY FARMER'S MASS IN B,

With the Latin words, and an English adaptation to the Communion Service,

By the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

RUDALL, CARTE AND CO.,

Musical Instrument Manufacturers

TO HER MAJESTY, THE ARMY AND NAVY, AND THE ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA, 20, CHARING CROSS, S.W.

CLARIONETS,

From £3 13s. 6d. to £18 18s.

FLUTES, CONICAL AND CYLINDRICAL,

From Two to One Hundred and Seventy Guineas.

CORNETS AND BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS,

With Oate's Patent Ne plus ultra Pistons, from Two to Fifty Guineas.

MILITARY BAND INSTRUMENTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

PIANOFORTES, EXPRESSLY FOR EXTREME CLIMATES.

BROADWOOD'S, COLLARD'S, AND ERARD'S, AT MANUFACTURERS' PRICES.

For Hire, with option of Purchase upon the Three Years' System.

HARMONIUMS,

From Six to Eighty Guineas.

ORGANS FOR CHURCH OR CHAMBER.

From Seventy-five Guineas.

HARPS,

From Twenty to One Hundred and Fifty Guineas.

VIOLINS,

From One to Two Hundred Guineas.

DERAZEY'S PRIZE MEDAL COPIES OF STRADIVARIUS, GUANERUS, &c., Eight Guineas each.

VIOLONCELLOS,

From Three to One Hundred and Fifty Guineas.

CONTRA-BASSES,

From Ten to One Hundred Guineas.

GUITARS,

From One to Twelve Guineas.

ROMAN STRINGS.

A COMPLETE LIST OF PRICES FORWARDED UPON APPLICATION.

CONCERT AND CHOIR AGENCY, 20, CHARING CROSS, S.W.

Music for the Coming Season,

PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER, AND CO.

Music for Ascension Day.

- BARNBY, JOSEPH.—KING ALL GLORIOUS. Motett S.S.A.T.B.B., with Tenor and Bass Solos. Vocal score, 2s. 6d. Vocal parts, 10½d.
—O RISEN LORD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
BEETHOVEN.—HALLELUJAH CHORUS (from Engedi or Mount of Olives). Folio, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s. Vocal score, 8vo., 2d.
BLOW, DR. J.—O SING UNTO GOD. Verse A.T.B. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s. 6d.
COLBORNE, LANGDON.—O LORD OUR GOVERNOR. Full, S.S.A.T.B. Vocal score, 8s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s. 7½d.
CROFT, DR.—GOD IS GONE UP WITH A MERRY NOISE. Verse S.S.A.T.B. Folio, 1s. 3d. Vocal parts, 1s. 8vo. score, 4d.
CROTCH, DR. W.—SING WE MERRILY. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s. Vocal parts, 1s.
GREENE, DR.—O SING UNTO GOD. Verse A.T. Vocal score, 1s. 3d. Vocal parts, 9d.
—O CLAP YOUR HANDS. Full, S.S.A.T.B. Vocal Score, 1s. Vocal parts, 9d.
HANDEL.—LIFT UP YOUR HEADS. Chorus, 5 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal score, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 1s.
—HOW BEAUTIFUL ARE THE FEET. Verse s. THEIR SOUND IS GONE OUT. Chorus. Vocal score, 8vo., 1d. Vocal parts, 1s.
HATTON, J. L.—THOU ART GONE UP ON HIGH. Full, 4 voices, 2s. Vocal parts, 1s.
HOPKINS, DR. J. L.—LIFT UP YOUR HEADS. Full, 4 voices. Folio, 9d. 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
—O CLAP YOUR HANDS. Full, 4 voices. 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
KENT, J.—O LORD OUR GOVERNOR. Verse A.T.B. Vocalscore, 1s. 6d. Ditto 8vo., 3d. Vocal parts, 1s.
LAHEE, HENRY.—GRANT, WE BESEECH THEE. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Vocal score, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
MARCELLO.—O LORD OUR GOVERNOR. For s. or t. solo, with Chorus. Vocal score, 1s. Class copy, 1½d.
MEDELSSOHN.—ABOVE ALL PRAISE. 8vo., 1½d.
MACFARREN, G. A.—WHY STAND YE? (Macfarren's Intros, No. 19.) 8vo., 2d.
—THE LORD REIGNETH. (Ditto, No. 20.) 8vo., 2d.
USELEY, the REV. SIR F.—THEY THAT WAIT UPON THE LORD. S.S.A.T.B.B. 1s. Vocal parts, 9d.
—O SING UNTO GOD. Full, 8 voices. Vocal score, 2s. Vocal parts, 1s. 6d.
ROGERS, B.—LORD, WHO SHALL DWELL? Full, 4 voices. 6d. Vocal parts, 6d. Class copy, 1½d.
SEWELL, J.—THEY THAT WAIT UPON THE LORD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d. Vocal parts, 6d.
SMART, HENRY.—O GOD THE KING OF GLORY. Full, 4 voices, 1s. 3d. Vocal parts, 1s.
STEGGALL, DR. CHAS.—O CLAP YOUR HANDS TOGETHER. Full, 4 voices, 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
WALMSLEY, DR. T. A.—O GOD THE KING OF GLORY. Full, 5 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 7½d.

Music for Whit Sunday.

- ATTWOOD, T.—COME, HOLY GHOST. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d.
BARTHOLOMEW, R.—COME, HOLY SPIRIT, COME. A new translation of King Robert's Pentecost Hymn, by M. C. 8vo., 2d.
CROFT, DR.—PRAISE THE LORD, O MY SOUL. Verse A.T.B. Vocal score, 2s. 6d. Vocal parts, 10½d.
GREENE, DR.—LET GOD ARISE. Verse A.T.B. Vocal score, 2s. Vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

MUSIC FOR WHIT SUNDAY—continued.

- HATTON, J. L.—COME, HOLY GHOST. Full, 4 voices, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s.
HAYES.—GREAT IS THE LORD. Full, 5 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 3d. Vocal score, 8vo., 4d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
LONGHURST, W. H.—GREAT IS THE LORD. Verse, s.s. and Chorus. Vocal score, 9d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
MACFARREN, G. A.—O HOLY GHOST, INTO OUR MINDS. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 6d. Ditto, 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 6d.
—THE SPIRIT OF THE LORD. (Macfarren's Intros, No. 21.) 8vo., 2d.
MONK, DR. E. G.—VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Male voices and Four-part Chorus. 8vo., 3d.
MOZART.—O GOD, WHEN THOU APPEAREST. Chorus for 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s. Ditto, 8vo., 6d. Vocal parts, 1s.
USELEY, REV. SIR F.—I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD. Full, for double Choir. Vocal score, 1s. 3d. Vocal parts, 1s. 1½d.
—GREAT IS THE LORD. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s.
REAY, S.—THE LOVE OF GOD. (Hook's Anthems, No. 28.) 8vo., 3d.

Music for Trinity Sunday.

- BISHOP, JNO.—HOLY, HOLY, HOLY. Full, 4 voices. Small class copy, 1½d.
BLOW, DR.—I WAS IN THE SPIRIT. Verse A.T.B. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s. 1½d.
GARRETT, DR. G. M.—IN HUMBLE FAITH AND HOLY LOVE. Full, 4 voices, 9d. 8vo., 1½d. Vocal parts, 7½d.
HANDEL.—WHEN THE EARTH WAS WITHOUT FORM. Recit. and Chorus, 1s.
—LET US NOW MAKE MAN. Recit., solo, tenor, and chorus. 1s. 3d.
—WE PRAISE THEE, O GOD. Full, 5 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal score, 8vo., 2d. Vocal parts, 1s. 10½d.
—TO THEE ALL ANGELS. Full, 5 voices. TO THEE CHERUBIN AND SERAPHIN. Vocal score, 1s. 6d. Vocal score, 8vo., 6d. Vocal parts, 1s. 10½d.
HOPKINS, J.—HOLY, HOLY, HOLY. Hymn, 4 voices. Folio, 6d. 8vo., 3d.
HOPKINS, J. L.—WE GIVE THEE THANKS. Verse, t. and b. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 9d.
LAHEE, HENRY.—AND BEHOLD A THRONE. Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 6d.
MACFARREN, G. A.—WE GIVE THEE THANKS. Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 6d.
—HOLY, HOLY, HOLY (Macfarren's Intros, No. 22.) 8vo., 2d.
—THEY THAT PUT THEIR TRUST, and O HOW AMIABLE, (Macfarren's Intros, Nos. 23 and 24.) 8vo., 2d.
—O TASTE AND SEE, and KEEP INNOCENCY (Macfarren's Intros, Nos. 25 and 26.) 8vo., 2d.
—ONE THING HAVE I DESIRED, and NOT UNTO US (Macfarren's Intros, Nos. 27 and 28.) 8vo., 2d.
—O MAGNIFY THE LORD, and LET US NOT BE WEARY (Macfarren's Intros, Nos. 29 and 30.) 8vo., 2d.
—SING UNTO THE LORD, O YE SAINTS (Macfarren's Intros, No. 31.) 8vo., 2d.
—O WORSHIP THE LORD (Macfarren's Intros, No. 32.) 8vo., 2d.
—O SING UNTO THE LORD A NEW SONG (Macfarren's Intros, No. 33.) 8vo., 2d.
—REMEMBER ME (Macfarren's Intros, No. 34.) 8vo., 2d.
POHR.—COME UP HITHER, and HOLY, HOLY, HOLY. Vocal score, 1s. Vocal parts, 1s.
STAINER, DR. JNO.—I SAW THE LORD. For 8 voices. Vocal score, 2s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL. SATURDAY EVENING CONCERTS.

A SERIES OF CONCERTS

WILL BE COMMENCED ON

SATURDAY, MAY 17,

And continued throughout the month of May.

A characteristic feature of these Concerts will be that they will begin at SEVEN O'CLOCK, and terminate at NINE, thus affording special facilities to persons residing at a distance.

THE FIRST CONCERT ON MAY 17

WILL BE EXCLUSIVELY A

MENDELSSOHN NIGHT,

THE PROGRAMME CONSISTING OF

ATHALIE,

THE MUSIC OF THE UNFINISHED OPERA

LORELEY,

AND THE

WEDDING MARCH.

THE SECOND CONCERT ON MAY 24

WILL CONSIST OF

BALLADS, PART-SONGS, MADRIGALS, &c.,

Together with Orchestral Selections.

The most eminent Solo Vocalists will assist at these Concerts.

The Chorus will consist of the Members of the
ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY,
And the Band of the Members of

MR. BARNBY'S EXHIBITION ORCHESTRA,

The whole numbering nearly

1200 PERFORMERS.

CONDUCTOR ——— MR. BARNBY.

Doors open at Six, commence at Seven o'clock.

Prices of Admission to each Performance—Boxes (Grand Tier), £2 5s.; Loggia (to hold 8 persons), £1 15s.; Boxes (Upper Tier), £1 1s.; Amphitheatre Stalls, 5s.; Arena Stalls, 4s.; Balcony, 3s.

ADMISSION ——— ONE SHILLING.

Tickets may be had of NOVELLO, EWER AND Co., 1, Berners-street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.); the usual Agents; and at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

WANTED, by a Young Lady, a SITUATION as ORGANIST. Having had experience in a City Church, she is fully qualified to undertake the duties. No objection to Deputize. Address L.A., 9, Church-street, Lambeth.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman of experience in training Choirs is desirous of a RE-ENGAGEMENT as Organist and Choirmaster. Address CCC, 12, St. Hugh-road, Anerley, S.E., London.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, High Church, Anglican, wishes a POST. Twelve years' experience, nominal salary, high testimonials, fair Organ. Oxon., 21, Broke-rd., Haggerston.

ORGANIST.—A YOUTH is desirous to act as DEPUTY to a Gentleman (London or suburbs), or open to an independent ENGAGEMENT. Three years' testimonials. Address A. B., 18, St. Stephen's-road, Lewisham, S.E.

Eighth edition.

301 ANCIENT and MODERN CHANTS, edited by WILLIAM RIDLEY, Organist of the Parish Church, and of St. John's. Free for stamps from the Editor (bound, 36 stamps, paper, 24 stamps), West Derby, Liverpool. "A fine collection."

MR. WENTWORTH PHILLIPSON has much pleasure in announcing that the second edition of his very popular "Guide to Young Pianoforte Teachers and Students," is now ready, price two shillings, by post 26 stamps. Author, 14, Harrington-street, N.W., or W. Czerny, 81, Regent-street, W.

FOURTEENTH EDITION.

"The air once heard haunts the memory."—Church Opinion.
MARCH OF THE CHORISTERS.—"Mr. Allen's subjects are bold and suggestive."—The Illustrated Review. Net 1s. 6d.
"Its freshness will make it a favourite."—Weekly Times. Novello & Co.

W. W. PEARSON'S MUSIC.—The whole of Mr. Pearson's Glees and Part-Songs, and the "National Method of Vocal Music" for Schools and Choirs, price 3s. 6d., can be had of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., and the above, with the full-size Dance Music, Songs, &c., may now be obtained of Messrs. Reeves and Turner, Booksellers and Publishers, 185, Fleet-street, London. A single copy of the "National Method" will be sent post free to Professors or School Teachers, from the Author, Mr. W. W. Pearson, Organist, Elmham, Norfolk, or from Mr. Pearson, Brompton, Rotherham, for 2s. 6d. in stamps.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for Small Choirs. The texts selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe.

First Series, for Boys' and Females Voices—1. "Come, and let us return." 2. "I will look unto the Lord." (These Anthems may appropriately be used in Advent and Lent.) 3. "Behold the Tabernacle." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmastide.)

Second Series, for Female and Male Voices—1. "Unto us was born." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.) 2. "Blessed is the soul." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Whitsuntide.) 3. "Come ye and let us go up." (This Anthem may be appropriately used at the opening of a church.) 4. "Blessed be the name of God." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at a Harvest Festival.)

A separate accompaniment for use where there is not a Pedal Organ, may be had, price 2d.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private performance. Price 6d. for each Anthem, or 2s. 6d. for each series of six.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Second edition, price 2d. each.

THREE NEW PART-SONGS.—"O Tranquil Eve," "Sweet Echo," and "Cheerily," by ALEX. S. COOPER.

"The first of these three charming Part-Songs is for A.T.T.B., and the other two for S.A.T.B. They are the work of a thorough musician."—Choir. "Melodious and flowing. We can recommend all these Part-Songs to Choral Societies wanting something fresh."—Musical Standard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 2s. 6d.

A CONCISE and PRACTICAL EXPLANATION of the RULES of SIMPLE HARMONY and THOROUGH-BASS, with Chapters on Time, Keys, Intervals, and general Elementary Musical Knowledge, respectfully dedicated (by permission) to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., Mus. Doc., Professor of Music at the University of Oxford, by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury.

Extract from the Preface.—"It is commonly regretted that, amongst the thousands of persons who are taught to play the Pianoforte, few, certainly not one in a hundred, are instructed in the simplest rudiments of harmony. Harmony has always been considered so abstruse in its character, and so difficult of comprehension that amateurs generally have disregarded it. Nor is this surprising; for nearly all the books published seem to assume that the student has already made a certain amount of progress, and so prevent his acquiring elementary knowledge by starting him in the middle of a subject of which he has little or no idea of the beginning. The object of this little Manual is to give a practical explanation of the nature and treatment of the chords most commonly used in Music, avoiding as far as possible the use of technical terms and extraneous matters."

* * * Contains all that is necessary for Students for the Oxford and Cambridge Examinations.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

And Singing-Class Circular,

Published on the 1st of every Month.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped, those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c., can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 364.—Vol. 16.

JUNE 1, 1873.

Price 2d.; Post-free, 2½d.

Registered for transmission abroad.

Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 2s. 6d.

W. HATTERSLEY'S CELEBRATED ORGAN TONE HARMONIUMS,

Manufactured only by W. HATTERSLEY and Co.,

10 AND 12, BOW STREET, SHEFFIELD.

It will be seen, by the following Testimonials, that these Instruments have given universal satisfaction, alike for quality of tone, repetition of touch, and durability; and are justly regarded as superior to those of any other Maker, either English or Foreign.

The improvements invented by W. HATTERSLEY supersede all others by the tone produced nearly approaching that of the Organ, all the objections hitherto found in Harmoniums being entirely obviated.

These Instruments are manufactured from well-seasoned materials, in double veneered cases, on our own premises, and under our own personal supervision; and contain all our latest improvements, which ensure a sweet and powerful tone, many of the stops being easily mistaken for pipes, instead of reeds, the articulation being equal to that of the Piano-forte. The nature of these improvements entails a considerable extra cost in their construction, yet we, being Manufacturers, are enabled to supply them as low in price as the ordinary Harmoniums so much inferior in every respect.

W. H. and Co. direct especial attention to their DRAWING ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, full Organ tone, with knee swell to Treble and Bass. These charming Instruments cannot be too highly spoken of for their rich quality of tone and quickness of touch, together with their beautiful crescendo (produced so easily by the swells), either in Treble or Bass, and entirely supersede anything yet invented as Harmoniums.

TESTIMONIALS.

Clay Cross, near Donmouthshire.
Dear Sirs,—The Harmonium I bought of you has proved to be a very good Instrument. I am much pleased with it, and I think it is superior to any I have seen.—Yours truly,
JAS. BRYAN.

Annesley.
Dear Sirs,—It gives me great pleasure to recommend your Harmoniums, for they are the best toned Harmoniums I ever heard. Mine is a good one: I like it very much. I have had many friends to try it, and they all say they never saw such splendid Instruments in their lives. Our schoolmaster gives them a wonderful good word.—Yours truly,
THOMAS ALLEN.

Duke's Town, Sirhowy, Monmouthshire.
Dear Sirs,—It is with the greatest of pleasure that I forward you this Testimonial respecting the two Harmoniums which you supplied to me in January and December last year. They are excellent in every respect, and for sweetness of tone and rapidity of touch they are unequalled. I can confidently recommend your Instruments to all persons wishing to have a good Harmonium.—Yours truly,
A. DAVIES.

5, West-street, Doncaster.
Gentlemen,—I have much pleasure in informing you that I am much pleased with the small Harmonium I purchased from you, price £9 9s. The tone is excellent, and the very free working of the bellows allows a full supply of wind, with less trouble than I have experienced with other Instruments.—Yours truly,
G. GILL.

Annesley Woodhouse, Mansfield.
Gentlemen,—After giving the Fourteen Guineas Harmonium (which I had from you) a fair trial, I must conscientiously say that it is the best I have seen, being as loud, when required, as some at £20. The other six, which came here through my recommendation, have given great satisfaction also. I shall with confidence recommend your Harmoniums to all my friends who are in want of a really good Instrument.—Yours truly,
HIRAM FLETCHER.

Vine Cottage, Holymoorside, near Chesterfield.
Gentlemen,—I am perfectly satisfied with the Harmonium you sent to me. The tone is peculiarly sweet and mellow, the bellows ample, and not a Dummy stop in it. As you are aware, I never saw it till delivered to me by the Railway Company, but I am convinced that if I had inspected the whole of your stock, I could not have pleased myself better, if indeed so well. I have purposely delayed writing to you, on the principle, "it is stronger the test, the greater the recommendation."—I remain, yours respectfully,
J. HURSTHOUSE.

St. John's Quay, Kilkenny, Ireland.
Dear Sirs,—The Harmonium has given me the greatest satisfaction.—Yours truly,
M. M. CROWLEY, Professor of Music.

Matlock Bridge.
Gentlemen,—In reply to your inquiry respecting the Harmonium you supplied to me, I am pleased to say that my family seem perfectly satisfied with the same, and consider it improves. Personally, I cannot say, not being a judge of such things, but I endorse what the children say.—Yours obediently,
THOS. BECK.

High Green House, near Sheffield.
Dear Sirs,—I have very great pleasure in testifying to the quality of your Harmoniums. They are very sweet and even in tone, whilst in the larger kinds great variety is secured; and the mechanical parts are carefully and durably constructed.—Yours respectfully,
B. E. C. CHAMBERS.

Staveley.
Sirs,—I can confidently bear my testimony to the excellence of your Harmoniums, as regards purity of tone. The one I got from you, January, 1869, is beautifully sweet and clear; I have never seen its equal—every stop, without exception, is absolutely perfect in tone, power, and expression; and I can with pleasure recommend all persons requiring a really good Instrument to give you an order.—Yours truly,
CLAY NEWHAM.

Burley Moor, Derbyshire.
Dear Sirs,—I beg to say that I am very much pleased with the Harmonium I purchased of you, both as regards its tone and power. Many of my friends have tried it, and speak very highly of it, and also consider it very cheap at the price.—Yours respectfully,
JOSEPH HUTCHINSON.

Marsden Moor, near Chesterfield.
Dear Sirs,—I wish to express the satisfaction I feel in having obtained one of your Harmoniums; and I am fully persuaded that Instruments of the like quality cannot fail to gain for you a great reputation. I am sure that I shall feel great pleasure in recommending them to any person wishing to purchase one.—Yours truly,
JOHN WOODWARD.

National School, East Cawton, Northallerton.
I have purchased three Harmoniums of Messrs. Hattersley and Co., and I can confidently affirm that they have proved themselves all that could be required in their respective places, viz., the Church, School, and a private dwelling.—I am, Sirs, yours respectfully,
GEO. FIELDSEND.

Buenos Ayres, South America.
Gentlemen,—Having seen one of your Harmoniums, I came direct from London to purchase the one I took with me to Buenos Ayres. Please send me another one, the same size.—Yours truly,
R. SUTHERLAND.

Lists of Prices, Books of Designs, and above 200 Testimonials, free by post or upon application.

Estimates and Specifications furnished for special Instruments, for Concert Rooms, Churches, School Rooms, &c.

SALE ROOMS, 10 and 12, BOW STREET.

WORKS: ORANGE WORKS, ORANGE STREET.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS GRACE ARMYTAGE (Primo Soprano),
2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MISS BLANCHE REIVES (Principal Soprano only).
Oratorios, Opera, Concerts, &c. 54, Lupus-street, S.W., and 106, Renfrew-street, Glasgow.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)

Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS GRACE EATON (Soprano)

Is prepared to accept Engagements for Concerts, Readings, &c. Terms arranged. Address 10, Hobury-street, King's-road, S.W.

MISS JENNY TWIGG (Soprano).

Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 41, Hampton Villas, Clough-road, Sheffield.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE (Soprano),

2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, W.

MISS ANNETTA GWILT, R.A.M. (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons in Singing, and Pianoforte, address Messrs. Duncan Davison and Co., 244, Regent-street, W.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),

50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MISS GLEDHILL (Contralto).

Concerts and Pupils. 51, Devonshire-road, N.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).

Address 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).

For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 1, St. George's-terrace, Kilburn.

MR. REDFERN HOLLINS (Tenor).

Address 26, St. Stephen's-road, Shepherd's Bush, London.

HENRY C. SANDERS (Baritone),

(Of S. Andrew's, Well-street) 2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MR. CHARLES ROWCLIFFE (Bass),

Choirmaster of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate.
Address 23, Great Prescott-street, Minorities.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Basso).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; also for Oxford Glee Party.
Address Principal Bass, Ch. Ch. Cathedral, Oxford.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),

Sunnybank, Hazleville-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).

(Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts), for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address 2, Halfpenny-place, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. J. TILLEARD,

Removed to Seaton-villa, Slaitwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder,

29, Minorities, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertina &c. 29, Minorities, London. List for stamp.

E. & W. SNELL'S IMPROVED HARMONIUMS.
37, Kelly-street, Kentish-town, London, N.W.

ORGAN FACTORY, 141, Stanhope-street, Hampstead-road.—T. NORTON has ORGANS from four to seventeen stops for SALE. Amateurs supplied with Pipes (Metal and Wood), voiced ready for use. Tunings and repairs.

ORGAN METAL PIPES; best quality; zinc front pipes; voicing and tuning.—S. Fowler, 127, Pentonville-road, N.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ-Accordions. Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarinetas, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 7th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices at J. MOORE'S, Buxton-road, Huddersfield. Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

WARD'S

ROYAL PIANOFORTE AND HARMONIUM
LAMP AND CANDELABRA,

FOR PROVIDING A CENTRAL AND DIRECT LIGHT
FOR THE PERFORMER.

The inconvenience of the present mode of lighting a performer, at a pianoforte or harmonium, by means of sconces fitted at the extremities of the instrument, has long been a subject of complaint. The requirement is, a central light to fall direct upon the music book. This can be obtained by using Thomas Ward's Royal Pianoforte Lamp and Candelabra, which can be fitted to any form of instrument, without defacing the same. It consists of an elegant bronze stem, which fits securely into a brass groove fixed to the centre of the back of the instrument; or to the wrist-board of a grand piano; the stem can be removed at pleasure. From the stem proceeds a branch, which crosses the top of the piano, enabling the instrument to be opened freely; one end of the branch supports a lamp or candelabra, and thus brings the light directly over the music book. The other end of the branch is fitted with a joint, by means of which the light can be raised and moved to the right or left to suit the performer. Vocalists also will thus find a convenience which does not exist in other modes of lighting.

Prospectuses Post Free.

Price of Lamp, £2 2s.; Candelabra, £1 1s.

Agents—Messrs. Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and J. Williams, 23, Berners-street, Oxford-street.

THE NEW IRON COTTAGE "GRAND" PIANOFORTE, 36 Guineas, possesses a powerful yet pure quality of tone, combined with a crisp elastic touch, and is nearly equal to a "Grand," while its convenient size and elegant appearance renders it suitable for any drawing room.—Wilkie, Wood and Co., 47, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London, W.C.

THE COTTAGE HARMONIUM, Full compass, £5 5s., possesses a rich pure tone. Illustrated Lists gratis.—Wilkie, Wood and Co., 47, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

WILKIE'S CHEAP PIANOS. Just issued, a new illustrated Book of Designs, gratis and post-free. Wilkie, Wood and Co., 47, Great Russell-street, London, W.C.

ORGANS for SALE.—One £16, the other £40. Easy terms. Also, 30 Clarabella Pipes, 17s. Edwards, Chesham, Bucks.

ORGAN HARMONIUM, £20 and £22. Fine Organ tone, 2½ rows of reeds, bourdon on full compass, German pedals, with coupler to keys, foot and side blower. Manufactured for pedal practice by W. J. Robertson, 107, Tottenham-road, Kingsland, London, N. Lists free, with extracts of letters from Organists.

CC ORGAN for SALE, now in course of construction. 2 complete rows of keys, CC to G, and 2½ octaves of pedals and pedal pipes, 17 stops, and can be finished to suit Church or Chamber, according to wish of purchaser. For particulars and terms apply to G. T., 23, Brunswick-street, Poplar, E.

ORGAN (American) for SALE.—Full compass, 9 stops, including octave coupler, by Breavington and Sons. Organ quality of tone, Italian walnut case, to be sold very cheap. Apply to G. T., 23, Brunswick-street, Poplar.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE, by HOLDICH. Two full manuals and pedals. For particulars, address Messrs. Hill and Son, York-road Organ Works, Camden-road, N.

ORGAN for SALE, new. Compass CC to G, 8 stops on the great organ, 7 ditto on the swell organ, separate bourdon pedal organ, suitable for Church, Chapel, or Hall. To be seen at A. Hunter's Organ factory, 379, Kennington-road.

CC ORGAN for SALE, by GRAY, of London, equal to new, with 2 manuals, 12 stops, and separate pedal organ of 29 notes, in handsome carved oak case, with gilt front speaking pipes; a bargain. Address A. B., Clifton House, Deal.

ORGAN for CHAMBER or CHAPEL.—8 stops, 2 manuals, 1½ octaves of pedals. Price 50 guineas. W. Palmer, 53, High-street, St. John's Wood.

SMALL ORGANS with pedals, for Church or Chamber, from 35 guineas. HARMONIUMS, 5 octaves of organ tone, simple mechanism, for Chapels, Schools, or private use, from 6 guineas. PIANOFORTES, 7 octaves, from 21 guineas. Warranted. Rosewood COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, 2½ octaves of pedals. William Sprague, 7, Finsbury-pavement, London. Established 1837.

CHURCH ORGAN.—For SALE, a powerful instrument, in thorough good order, suitable for Church or Chapel, containing open diapason, stop diapason, principal and fifteenth, in all 224 pipes; German pedals, oak case, and gilt front pipes. Price £40. May be seen at the factory of W. Norman and Son, Organ Builders, Denmark-street, Diss.

ORGAN for SALE, 6 stops, 2½ octaves, pedals, open through metal. A. B., 127, Pentonville-road, N.

ORGANS.—Stock Selling off, at half price. Organs with 2 complete rows of keys, and full compass of pedals, from 35 guineas. PIANOFORTES, great bargains, 7 octaves, 16 guineas. Hammond and Sons, 366, Old Kent-road.

ORGAN for SALE, cheap, 5 stops, CC to G, 1 octave of pedals, hand and foot blower. E. B., 7, Brunel-street, Kennington-lane, S.E.

ORGAN for SALE, cheap.—20 stops, CC swell, and pedal organ. Adapted for a large Chapel, powerful tone. Apply to Mr. Maley, Organ Builder, 5, Werrington-street, Oakley-square, N.W.

ORGAN WANTED.—Two manuals and bourdon, by a good Maker, and not much used. Measurement of height, depth and width, lowest price, and full particulars, to be sent to the Rev. R. M., Post Office, Lewes.

VIOLONCELLO, by JOSEPH GUARNERIUS, A.D. 1713. A genuine Instrument, in beautiful preservation, for SALE. Dean's Music Warehouse, 77, City-road, near Finsbury-square.

PEDALIER, by PLEYEL. Full compass C to F, with new pedals, recently added by Bryceson. Can be attached to any Cottage Piano for Organ practice, for SALE. Apply to C. H. Ogle, Organist, Abbey Church, Pershore, Worcestershire.

SELLING OFF.—PIANOS and HARMONIUMS, by all the best Makers, at reduced prices, for alteration of premises, at R. Mellor's, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield. 10s. worth of Music for 1s., post free for 15 stamps.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous. London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUBLISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

LITHO. COPYING CHEAPER than ENGRAVING. Should be tried by all wanting to publish. Hymns neatly got up. Specimens. Fredk. Wood, 32, Vincent-square, Westminster.

TO PROFESSORS and COMPOSERS of MUSIC.—Authors' works published at very moderate charges, and brought before the public on mutual terms most advantageous to Professors of Music, by E. Donajowski, Music Publisher, 6, Poland-street, Oxford-street, London.

ORGAN MUSIC.—Catalogue (pp. 50), gratis and post free, of a valuable collection of Organ Solos—Duets—Pedal Exercises—Choruses—Voluntaries—Soft Movements—Cathedral and Church Music—Anthems—Oratorios—Services—Masses—Instruction Books, &c.—London: Sole Publishers, Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

ONE GUINEA'S WORTH of MUSIC for 2s. 6d., slightly soiled, including the surplus of the past year's issue. Post free, 2s. 10d. JAMES SMITH & SON, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

10s. WORTH of MUSIC for One Shilling. Post free for fifteen stamps. Each Shilling Lot contains pieces quite new. R. Mellor, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield. Established 1838.

ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, HARMONY, &c., One Guinea per quarter; Lessons and Practice on fine modern instruments. Organist, 51, Fenchurch-street, E.C.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, Strand.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—(HILL and SON)—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with two manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Pianoforte with 2½ octave pedals, organ seat, &c., fitted up expressly for owner's practice, price only £12. Address P. Z., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry.

TO ORGANISTS.—PRACTICE may be had on a very fine ORGAN. Two manuals, swell, variety of stops, 2½ of pedals, and bourdon to CCC. Terms very moderate. Address E. Francis, Organist of St. Peter's (W.C.), 188, Upper-street, Islington, N.

ORGAN for PRACTICE.—2 manuals, full compass, 30 bourdon pedal pipes, CCC to F.—Mr. Warren's Organ Studio, 245, Kentish-town-road. TO LET, PARLOUR as BEDROOM (furnished), with or without Practice on above Organ. Cars continually passing the door. Pianos tuned and Organ taught.

MISS BESSIE M. WAUGH (Eos Mynwy), Solo Pianist, Accompanist, and Teacher of the Pianoforte. 6, Mortimer-street, Cavendish-square, W.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.), begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts, may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

MRS. HENRY REED (Pupil of the late M. Thalberg), Teacher of the Pianoforte. Concerts and Dinners attended. 197, Hampstead-road.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Sixth Season).
Mr. H. ASHTON. Mr. T. PEARSON.
Mr. J. F. MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN.
Assisted by
Madame ASHTON.
(Miss F. Danielson.)

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c., address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

MONTHLY SALES of MUSIC and MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON beg to announce that they continue to hold Monthly Sales of Music in all classes, ancient and modern, together with Musical Instruments, including Pianofortes, Organs, Harmoniums, Harps, Cremona, and other Violins and Violoncellos, Double Basses, &c. Single lots or entire collections, if sent in by the 12th of each month, will be in time for insertion in the succeeding sale. Messrs. P. and S. also undertake Trade Sales of Music Plates and Copyrights, Printed Stocks, Stocks of Instruments, &c.

MR. FREDERICK LUCAS, Public Accountant and Auditor, 28, Maddox-street, Regent-street, London, W., having had great experience in Accounts peculiar to the Pianoforte and Music Trade, and the valuation of such Stocks, undertakes to prepare Partnerships and other statements, or carry out arrangements in connection with the Trade.

The PIANOFORTE STOCK BOOK, arranged for 80 Pianos or Harmoniums, price 4s., or 400 Pianos, price 14s. The TUNING REGISTER, arranged for 60 Tunings to each letter of the alphabet, price 4s. NOW READY.

IMPORTANT and VALUABLE STOCK of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, HARPS, SHEET MUSIC, &c., to be SOLD, by order of the Executrix of the late Charles Kelly, comprising about 500 Instruments, including Grand, Semi-Grand, Cottages, Semi-Cottages, Obliques, &c., by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Kirkman, Ziegler, Allison, and others, together with the whole stock of Harmoniums manufactured and especially examined by the late Charles Kelly whose Instruments received the only award for English Harmoniums at the Paris and Dublin Exhibitions, and as supplied to the Queen and the Royal Family, also to the Imperial Family of France, and many of the principal nobility, in walnut, rosewood, oak, and mahogany cases, specially adapted for School, Church, Chapel, Drawing room, and Concert purposes; a large quantity of modern Sheet Music, which will be sold in convenient lots for purchasers; also a number of Music Stools and Sundries. CHARLES KELLY and Co. will SELL by AUCTION on the premises, 11, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital, on Wednesday and Thursday, the 11th and 12th of June next, at 11 for 12 o'clock precisely (in consequence of the number of lots), the entire Stock of the late Charles Kelly, as described above, offering unusual advantages to the Trade and private buyers. On view two days prior and morning of Sale. Catalogues will shortly be ready, and may be obtained of B. H. Tromp, Esq., 37, Essex-street, Strand, W.C., Solicitor to the Executrix, and of the Auctioneers, 11, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital.

* * After the Sale, the business will be carried on as heretofore by Messrs. C. Bloo and Micklefield (who have been for many years associated with the late Mr. Kelly), under the style of Kelly and Co.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS.—For SALE, a small TEACHING CONNECTION in a fashionable Watering Place in the West of England. The Purchaser could be introduced as Organist to a Parish Church. If he could tune Pianos, the income could be doubled. For particulars, apply to Mr. Frederick Lucas, 28, Maddox-street, London, W.

FOR SALE, an old-established PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, near the West End. From 60 to 80 Pianos out on hire. A good Tuning connection and Music Library. Satisfactory reasons can be given for disposal. Every convenience for carrying on an increased trade. For further particulars, apply to Mr. Frederick Lucas, Accountant, 28, Maddox-street, London, W.

PASCALL'S VOICE JUJUBES.

Strongly recommended to Singers and Public Speakers. Agreeable and effective. In boxes only, Sixpence and One Shilling each, or post free for eight and fourteen stamps. None genuine without the name and address on each box.—Jas. Pascall, 21, Wells-street, Oxford-street, London, W.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

E P P S'S C O C O A. BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.

MANUFACTURE OF COCOA.—"We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Euston-road, London."—See Article in "Cassell's Household Guide."

Made simply with boiling water or milk.

Each Packet is Labelled.

JAMES EPPS and Co., HOMOEOPATHIC CHEMISTS, London.

Now Ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo., price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series, bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES AND HYMNS
OF THE CHURCH,
POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS,
SINGLE AND DOUBLE;

TOGETHER WITH

Responses to the Commandments,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains a Selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry. New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 258 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

" 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

" 3. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 0d.

" 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 2s. 6d.

Congregations or Associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and musicsellers.

NOW READY,

A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS AND ANTHEMS, arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford.

Very neat and compact, 218 pp. Imperial 32mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in ... 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered ... 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered ... 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co.

Bradford: Thomas Brear.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK AND PSALMS AND CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Ninth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book; also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON, and for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.; cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,

FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS AND SCHOOLMASTERS.

By RICHARD MANN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES and ROUNDS; or Musical Precept and Example, combined in Easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J. POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c.

London: Novello, Ewer, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TWENTY-SECOND EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Now ready, in Three Books, 6s. each. Post-free for Half-price.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

Specially adapted for Colleges, Public Schools, Singing Classes, &c.

Books 1 and 2 (Duets); Book 3 (Trios).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Fourth edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

"FROM INTERVALS TO COUNTERPOINT."

SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and all Musicsellers.

BACH'S PASSION MUSIC.

In fcp. 4to., price 12s. 6d. cloth.

THE CHORALE BOOK FOR ENGLAND: the Hymns translated by Miss C. WINKWORTH; the Tunes arranged by Sir W. S. BENNETT and OTTO GOLDSCHMIDT.

The Chorale Book for England contains a correct and authentic version of the several Chorales which form part of Bach's Passion Music, according to both St. Matthew and St. John, with Hymns and Tunes adapted for English Part-Singers.

London: Longmans, Green and Co., Paternoster-row.

Second Edition.

GUIDE to YOUNG PIANOFORTE TEACHERS and STUDENTS, by WESTWORTH PHILLIPSON, 2s., by post 2s. 6d. Author, 14, Harrington-street, N.W., or W. Czerny, 81, Regent-street, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS, now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.

No. 1. The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.

No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katrine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra.

Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.

W. H. BIRCH'S EASTER MUSIC.

Anthem, "If ye then be risen with Christ," price 6d.

Anthem, by JOSEPH KEY, "Now is Christ risen," price 6d.

Anthem, "Ponder my words," price 6d.

Six Good Friday Hymns; six Easter Hymns, price 1s.

Address W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton-place, Reading.

TO CHOIRS.

SIX PART-SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, Composed and dedicated to Edinburgh University Musical Society, by H. S. OAKLEY, Mus. Doc., and Professor of Music at that University. No. 1, "Abandoned;" No. 2, "True Love;" No. 3, "Hunting Song;" No. 4, "Love's Philosophy," are now ready. Price, Nos. 1 and 2, and 3 and 4, 4d. vocal score. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TEN TRIOS for FEMALE VOICES, composed by

- CARL REINECKE. (Op. 100.) 8vo., 1s. 6d.; or singly—
- No. 1.—"The Dreaming Lake," 2d.
 - "2.—"Praise of Spring," 2d.
 - "3.—"Of Oak thy mournful bier's prepared," 3d.
 - "4.—"Sunbeams in Winter," 2d.
 - "5.—"The Awakening of Morn," 3d.
 - "6.—"The Winter hath not a blossom," 3d.
 - "7.—"Thou that thyself with death hath striven," 2d.
 - "8.—"The Evening Wind," 3d.
 - "9.—"As in a field goodly fruit will grow," 3d.
 - "10.—"The Elves," 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

THEY LATEST SIGH. New Song by Mrs. GLASS. Post free for 2s. 2d. in stamps. R. Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

T. J. PROUT'S admired Song "I am Love's Messenger," inscribed to Miss Robertson, and sung by that lady, is exceedingly simple, and within the range of any ordinary Soprano voice. Post free for 18 stamps. Address 14, Mulgrave-street, Plymouth.

The Western Morning News of May 1st says:—"Miss Robertson achieved a great success in Mr. T. J. Prout's charming song 'I am Love's Messenger,' which the audience applauded to the echo, and vigorously re-demanded." Trade terms as usual.

Just published, price 3d., post free, 3½d.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS' FESTIVAL SONG.—Full Chorus. Composed and dedicated to the Lodges of England and America, by ALFRED HARBOROUGH, R.A.; words by the Rev. GEORGE PACKER.

"The Templar banner danceth
Exultant in the air,
High Heaven's truth advanceth,
Faith, Hope, and Love appear."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Price Sixpence, post free.

"MUSIC IN PLAY and MUSIC IN EARNST," by A. ORLANDO STEED. Reeves and Turner, 185, Fleet-street.

Just published.

SONGS for the NURSERY.—OLD RHYMES TO NEW TUNES, by a LADY. Simply arranged, very popular with children. Price 2s. 6d. To be had at Mr. Blackbourne's, Stationer, Motcombe-street, Belgrave-square.

HOME TREASURES; a Selection of Twenty-five popular Melodies, arranged and fingered for the Pianoforte by WM. SMALLWOOD. "A series of very prettily and easily arranged melodies, suitable for children or musical students who require simple pieces. Of these, 'Fading away' is the easiest and one of the prettiest. Mr. Smallwood's 'Home Treasures' are aptly named, for they are above the average of the generality of productions for beginners."—Wide Weekly Register. 2s. 6d. each; free by post 15 stamps each.

HOME TREASURES, arranged as Piano Duets by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. "Far away," Melody by Miss M. Lindsay (Mrs. J. W. Bliss). "The Flower Gatherers," "Fading away," "Home they brought her warrior dead," and "The Gipsy Countess," 3s. each; and as Piano Solos, 2s. 6d. each. All post free at half-price in stamps.

WHAT SHALL I SING TO THEE? A new song. Poetry by REA, music by CIRO PINSUTI, 3s.; free by post for 18 stamps.

LET THE HILLS RESOUND. A New Part-Song, by the Composer of the new National Song, "God bless the Prince of Wales." Post free for 18 stamps. Published by Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street, and of all Musicsellers.

C. JEFFERYS, 67 BERNERS ST. THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

A COLLECTION OF

PART-SONGS, GLEES, CHORUSES, &c.

EDITED BY MICHAEL WATSON.

1 'Tis silent eve	Michael Watson.
2 Corin's fate	E. Turner.
3 Where the pearly dew-drop falleth	E. J. Loder.
4 The Winter being over	Ellen Avery.
5 Fairy voices	T. G. B. Hatley.
6 Moonlight	J. H. L. Glover.
7 Good-bye	J. L. Hatton.
8 I thought of thee	W. F. Banks.
9 The Forsaken	J. L. Hatton.
10 Bonny May	J. H. L. Glover.
11 Spring Song	J. L. Hatton.
12 The Winds	C. J. Frost.
13 County Guy	G. A. Macfarren.
14 The birds that had left their song	do.

Price 2d. each number. Other Numbers in the Press.

THE POPULAR

Operatic Arrangements,
SOLOS AND DUETS,
And Original Pianoforte Pieces,
By FELIX GANTIER,
Of which lists may be had on application.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

1. FOUNTAINS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire movement) s. d.
from Haydn's 16th Mass ... 3 0
2. NETLEY ABBEY. Cujus Animam (the entire movement)
from Rossini's Stabat Mater ... 3 0
3. KIRKSTALL ABBEY. Kyrie (the entire movement) from Mozart's 12th Mass ... 3 0
4. TINTERN ABBEY. Gloria in Excelsis (the entire movement) from Mozart's 12th Mass ... 3 0

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, with views of English Abbeys.

THE LYRIC STAGE, a Series of Brilliant Operatic Fantasias:—

1. Martha ... Flotow 4 0
2. Lucia di Lammermoor ... Donizetti 4 0
3. Il Flauto Magico ... Mozart 4 0
4. Les Huguenots ... Meyerbeer 4 0
5. La Traviata ... Verdi 4 0
6. Norma ... Bellini 4 0
7. L'Ombre ... Flotow 4 0
8. Robert le Diable ... Meyerbeer 4 0
9. Il Trovatore ... Verdi 4 0

THE QUEEN ... 4 0

Brilliant Fantasia on English National Airs, "Heart of Oak," "Rule, Britannia," and "God save the Queen."

- THE PRINCESS LOUISE WEDDING MARCH 3 0
- PRINCESS VICTORIA MARCH ... 3 0

Each illustrated with fine Portrait in Colours.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE VIENNA MARCH.

BY

MICHAEL WATSON.

Illustrated with a beautiful view of Vienna from the Danube.
Price 3s.

NEW BASS SONG

BY

ED. REYLOFF,

"THE ARMOURER,"

COMPASS, B FLAT TO E FLAT.

Price 3s.

NEW FANTASIAS,

BY

WILLIE PAPE.

- | | | |
|----------------------|-----|-----|
| IL TROVATORE—(Verdi) | ... | 4s. |
| MARTHA—(Flotow) | ... | 4s. |
| SALADIN GRAND MARCH | ... | 4s. |

C. JEFFERYS, 67, BERNERS STREET (W.).

HANDEL'S "THEODORA" will be performed at the Queen's Concert Rooms, Hanover-square, on Tuesday evening, June 10. The Solo parts will be sung by Ladies and Gentlemen Amateurs, and the chorus will be composed of the Voluntary Choir of St. Anne's Church, Soho, augmented to about 100 Voices, and supplemented by a complete Orchestra. Conductor, Mr. BARNY. The proceeds of the Concert will be devoted to the Fund for the Restoration of the Church of St. Anne, Soho. The performance will commence at nine o'clock precisely. Tickets, price One Guinea, may be obtained on application at the Rectory, 28, Soho-square; of Mr. A. C. Curtis Hayward, 17, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square; and of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

WELLINGTON COLLEGE, WOKINGHAM.—The Organist desires to engage TWO ASSISTANTS under 20 years of age, as soon as possible. Applications to be made by letter, enclosing copies of testimonials. A salary of from £20 to £40 will be given to each. This is a good opportunity for any young men who wish for further improvement in musical art, and experience in training choirs.

PETERBOROUGH CATHEDRAL.—WANTED, a LAY CLERK, with TENOR Voice, to fill a vacancy, caused by the translation of Mr. Williams to Canterbury. Stipend, &c., £70. Applications, with testimonials, to be sent immediately to H. P. Gates, Esq., Chapter Clerk, Peterborough.

THE REV. HARRY JONES would be glad to hear from gentlemen willing to assist in the prospective formation of a CHOIR at St. George's-in-the-East. Anglican music. Address, with particulars, by letter to the Rev. Harry Jones, 2, Duchesse-street, Portland-place, W.

WANTED for the Parish Church of Folkestone, a LEADING TREBLE Voice. Boy not under 12; must read music at sight. Remuneration, board, lodging, and education. Apply to the Rev. M. Woodward, Vicar.

A LEADER of CHOIR in Church or Chapel. A young professional Lady wishes above position. Address S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

ALTO REQUIRED for St. Paul's, Herne Hill, Camberwell, S.E. Two Services on Sunday. State remuneration required. Address H. L. Morley, 1, Buccleugh-terrace, Coldharbour-lane, Camberwell.

SOPRANO and CONTRALTO WANTED as ARTICLED PUPILS to train for Operettas and Concerts. No premium. Address "Professor," Novello, Ewer and Co., 85, Poultry.

SOPRANO and BASS WANTED for St. Michael's and All Angels, Notting-hill; must have good voices, and be able to read well. Salary £10. Apply by letter, with references, &c., to Mr. S. Naylor, 9, Loughborough-road, Brixton, S.W.

WANTED for the Choir of St. Paul's, Paddington, two ALTOS, one TENOR, and one BASS. Salary £10 per annum. Application to be made to Dr. Verrinder, 15, Westbury-road, Westbourne-square, W.

ALTOS and TENORS WANTED for All Saints Church, Blackheath, S.E. Stipend £10, with an additional £5 for travelling expenses, unless resident within three miles of the Church. Apply by letter to T. C. Hepworth, Esq., 12, Beaufort-gardens, Lewisham, S.E. N.B.—Good reading indispensable.

REQUIRED an ALTO, TENOR, and BASS at the end of the month for the Surplined Choir of a City Church. Two Services on Sunday and Friday evening Rehearsal. £5 per annum allowed for expenses. Communicants preferred. There is also an opening for two good TREBLES. Address A. T. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

ALTO, TENOR, and BASS (Communicants), WANTED for the Choir of Hampstead Parish Church. Duties—Two Services on Sunday, with Service and Choir Practice on Friday at seven o'clock. Salary, Alto, £20, Tenor, £15, Bass, £15. Application to be made at once to Mr. Geo. F. Geaussen, Spring Cottage, Downshire-hill, Hampstead, N.W.

TO TENORS.—WANTED, a Good TENOR, who is a fair Reader, for the Choir of Allhallows Church, Lombard-street, E.C. Two Sunday Services, and one week-night Rehearsal. Salary £12. Apply by letter to Organist, 76, George-street, Richmond.

TENOR, Amateur, desires an ENGAGEMENT in a Church Choir. No salary. Address Fides, 81, The Polygon, N.W.

TENOR REQUIRED for Dulwich College Chapel. Stipend £20. Must be able to read at sight. Apply by letter only to the Organist of the College, Dulwich, S.E.

TO CHOIRMASTERS, &c.—A TENOR and BASS (good Readers and efficient Soloists) will be DISENGAGED at Midsummer. Address "All's well," Novello, Ewer and Co., 85, Poultry.

WANTED, a TENOR for the Surplined Choir of St. Thomas', Portman-square; must be able to read Music well. Salary £10 per annum. There are also VACANCIES for VOLUNTEERS with good voices. Apply by letter to Edmund Rogers, Lorne House, Lorne-villas, Hanover-gate, Regent's-park, N.W.

MAGDALEN COLLEGE, OXFORD.—There is a VACANCY in the Magdalen College Choir for a LAY CLERK. A BASS Voice is required. Stipend £110 per annum. Residence about nine months in the year. An ACADEMICAL CLERK, with TENOR Voice is also required. Stipend £95. For further particulars, apply to the Dean of Divinity, Magdalen College, Oxford.

ORGANIST.—WANTED at Midsummer, for Holy Trinity Church, Penge, an efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Three Services on Sunday, and one week evening. Salary £50 a year. Application to be made, and testimonials sent to Rev. T. Scott, 12, Derwent-road, Penge.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for the Quebec Cathedral. Applications from persons desirous of filling this situation will be received at the office of Messrs. Boosey and Co., 24, Holles-street, W., until 15th June next. Salary 500 dollars, or about £100 per annum, with a prospect of a bonus of 100 dollars, or about £20, if approved of; and passage to Quebec will be paid. The situation when filled by a competent musician, ensures a good connection for private tuition, &c.

WANTED, an ORGANIST for the Parish Church at Tetbury, Gloucestershire. The Organ is a full-sized Church Organ, with full row of pedals, new within the last twelve years. No daily services, except on a few special occasions. The salary, including teaching the choir, is £30. Private tuition in the neighbourhood depends very much on the individual. Apply, enclosing testimonials, to the Churchwardens, Tetbury, Gloucestershire.

ORGANIST WANTED for a Small Organ at the Wesleyan Chapel, Shepherd's Bush. Sundays, morning and evening; Wednesdays, Service and practice. One living within walking distance, and who would take an interest in the Service and Choir, preferred. Address by letter only, with full particulars, stating salary required, to J. Draper, 2, Bassein-park-road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

ORGANIST.—A Gentleman is open to ENGAGEMENTS as ASSISTANT. Town or Country. A. G. W., 13, Renfrew-road, Kennington, S.E.

ORGANIST, or ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—WANTED, a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Good references and testimonials. Address Alpha, Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

A N ORGANIST desires TEMPORARY ENGAGEMENT till middle of July. Address S., Post Office, Haworth, Keighley, Yorkshire.

WANTED by an Experienced ORGANIST, a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Is used to full Choral Services. Good references. Address W., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-st.

MR. KINKEE, Jun. is desirous of obtaining an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST at a Church in or near London. Excellent references from Clergymen and Organists. Address F. R. K., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.

TO ORGANISTS.—A Young Man is desirous of acting as DEPUTY for Sunday afternoon Services. No remuneration required. Address A. B., 103, Tottenham-court-road.

A N Efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of many years' experience, desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT. High testimonials. Address Organist, 11, Hungerford-road, Camden-road, N.

ORGANIST.—An APPOINTMENT required by an Organist with good references. F. J., 6, Approach-road, Victoria-park, E.

A N Experienced ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open for an ENGAGEMENT. First-class testimonials. Address Organist, Mr. Warren's Organ Studio, 245, Kentish-town-road.

ORGANIST.—WANTED, RE-ENGAGEMENT where there is an opening for Teaching. Good testimonials and references. Address Organist, St. Michael's, Mitcheldean, Ross, Herefordshire.

A LADY ORGANIST wishes for further ENGAGEMENTS as TEACHER of Organ, Harmonium, and Pianoforte, either in schools or families. Address Pedal, 41, Great Coram-st., W.C.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Professional Gentleman is open to an ENGAGEMENT as above, or to deputize. Address H. D., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

ORGANIST.—A Young Gentleman requires an APPOINTMENT as above; could also undertake the instruction of Choir or School. Testimonial from the Sub-Dean of St. Paul's. E. Straker, 9, Devonshire-terrace, Kingsland-green.

A N ORGANIST requires an ENGAGEMENT. Has held his present appointment five years. London preferred. Address E. C. T., 7, Oakley-road, Southgate-road, London.

WANTED by a Young Man (pupil of a Mus. Doc.), who wishes to take his degree as Mus. Bac., an ENGAGEMENT as ASSISTANT to a gentleman of good ability and position. The advertiser is a splendid Pianist, good Organist, and can train a Choir. Excellent references given. Address Organist, care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, London.

THE MUSICAL TIMES,

2nd Singing-Class Circular.

JUNE 1, 1873.

THE "THEODORA" OF HANDEL.

By G. A. MACFARREN.

THE riddle of public success never appeared more insoluble than in the case of Handel's Oratorio of "Theodora." The merit of the work is great, even when referred to that highest standard—the other works of the composer; and in comparison with the productions of other artists, it stands very high indeed, if not pre-eminent. Yet it was unacknowledged when it was first brought out; it was rarely given during the author's life, and, from being unperformed for more than a century, it has passed into almost entire forgetfulness, its very name being only preserved in lists of Handel's compositions, and itself being only represented in general knowledge by the airs "Angels, ever bright and fair," and "Lord, to Thee each night and day," and the choruses "He saw the lovely youth," and "Venus, laughing from the skies." The first of these is in the repertory of every soprano singer, public and private; the next is less, but not much less known; the two last were not unfrequently heard at the Ancient Concerts, and "He saw the lovely youth," was given with good effect at the Handel Festival, in 1868, at the Crystal Palace; but still the popularity of these excerpts has not as yet induced inquiry into the character and quality of the work whence they are drawn. One would think—for the thought would be dear to all who honoured genius, and felt that lasting esteem was its just tribute—that the authorship of any one work of art which held universal reverence, should secure an interest as universal in whatever might issue from the same source, and that to have written the "Messiah" ought to certify the immediate success and enduring popularity of every thing to which the same hand gave form, the same spirit gave life. One would think this, but that the delightful image is shattered by the inexorable facts cast at it by history, and one is compelled to own that the greatest artistic worth, and even the dull world's admission of this, give no indemnity from the disregard of kindred excellence wrought by the same power. The moral is a sad one, but it has too many illustrations to admit of dispute, and the long oblivion in which "Theodora" has lain, is one of the most striking.

This oratorio was the last work but one that Handel produced, it having been followed, after nearly two years, by "Jephtha," and preceded in the year before its composition by "Solomon," and "Susannah." According to his custom, the author dated the beginning and the end of the MS., and these records show that he entered upon his task on the 28th of June, and completed it on the 31st of July, 1749; this being the middle of his sixty-fifth year. As in other instances with him, the amazingly brief period of labour followed a long period of inactivity, and it was succeeded by one yet longer. It is curious to note that Handel's habit was to rest from composition for a period of from eight to ten months, during which no traces are to be found of his having written anything, not the smallest trifles, and then to set himself to work, and within the average term of a month or two, to write as many oratorios, which, from the evidence of the manuscripts, may be believed to have been truly extemporized upon the paper, or in other words, called into existence without any pre-consideration. The dates of the works just named exemplify this habit, which gives as great cause for admiration of the master's prodigious rapidity, as for wonder at his long reticence.

"Theodora" was first performed at Covent Garden Theatre, on Friday, March 16, 1750. It was repeated on the 21st, and again on the 23rd, but not afterwards until March 5th, 1755. Subsequently to its republication, at the close of 1860, for the German Handel Society, it was performed at Cologne, under the direction of Dr. Ferdinand Hiller, with a German version of the text, when it excited much interest. It was privately given, in the original language, at the residence of an amateur lady, Miss Frith, in Wimpole Street, London, May 2, 1865, when it was conducted by Sir Sterndale Bennett. Other than on these occasions, the oratorio seems never to have been performed between Handel's time and the present.

The work, as often happens with non-successes, was a great favourite of its composer. It is related that, having been asked "If he did not consider the grand chorus in the 'Messiah' (probably the 'Hallelujah') his best production," he replied that "He thought the Chorus 'He saw the lovely youth,' far beyond it." He was nettled at its non-attraction, and enforced his invitation of a friend to its performance, by saying that "the music would sound well, for the theatre was sure to be empty." In like manner, on being told that a city gentleman intended to buy up all the boxes for the third representation, Handel exclaimed, "He is a fool then, for the Jews will not come to it as they did to 'Judas Maccabæus,' because it is a Christian story, and the ladies will not, because it is a virtuous one." Much as the failure seems to have sharpened his wits, these pleasantries betoken spleen more than good humour, and there is too much ground to regret the artist's mortification at the miscarriage of some of his brightest conceptions.

The "Biographia Dramatica," but no other authority, ascribes the libretto of "Theodora" to Thomas Morell, D.D., Secretary of the Society of Antiquaries, the author of "Judas Maccabæus," and of "Jephtha." In style it resembles those inflated works, having occasional strong expressions which stand out well in the many repetitions that occur in Handel's settings, having no distinctive personifications, and abounding in the metrical peculiarities which seem to have been the special aim of its time, but which in previous ages seem always to have separated poets, or writers who would be thought so, from ballad writers, and thus to have established a different order of literature for book verses from song verses. The preface of the first edition of the book of words (of which Dr. Rimbault possesses one of the extremely rare copies) declares it to be founded on a tale entitled "The Martyrdom of Theodora and Didimus," by Robert Boyle, the philosopher, which was written in his youth, but not printed until 1687, four years before his death; it refers the derivation of the libretto also to a French tragedy, the name of which, and of its author, however, are not given.

The argument of the oratorio runs thus:—Valens, the President of Antioch, proclaims a feast in honour of the birthday of Diocletian, fixing the period of the action at somewhere about the year 303, when the Emperor had his triumph in Rome. Theodora, a lady descended from King Antiochus, is a pious Christian, and by the President's mandate is required with her companions in faith to join in the sacrifice to Venus, refusing which act of profanation, she is cast into prison. Didimus, a Roman officer, has been converted by Theodora to the true belief, and is her ardent lover. By connivance of his friend and superior officer, Septimius, he obtains access to her in her cell, and prevails on her to change dresses with him, and thus disguised to escape. Didimus is then condemned to death for this act of dereliction, and Theodora in turn offers herself as a victim, in hopes to save him; but the two are steadfast in their creed as faithful to each other, refuse to participate in the rites of the false gods of the Heathens, and are borne away therefore to execution together. In Butler's "Lives of the Saints," 1756 (seven years after the composition of the oratorio), the narrative is circumstantially related, agreeing in all points with the above, save that Alexandria, instead of Antioch, is assigned as the scene of the events, that 304 is given as their date, and that Eustratius Proculus (not Valens) is stated to have been the name of the Prefect; moreover, Didimus is shown to have been a stranger to Theodora, who was actuated by respect for her heroic virtue, not by personal love. The learned writer quotes St. Ambrose as authority for the incidents, but admits that this contemporary refers their occurrence to Antioch.

This story is of a more domestic or at least personal nature than those of other oratorios by Handel, and it gives scope for the display of different artistic qualities, than could be exercised in those productions. The power of delineating and distinguishing individual characters, which is one of the most important branches of the dramatic art, was possessed in a very high degree by our composer—witness the living personification of Polyphemus as relieved against the shepherds and shepherdesses, the strongly opposed expression in the demands of the two mothers who claim the child from Solomon, and the marked distinction and gradual development of all the characters in "Jephtha." The poetical as much as dramatic power is happily brought to bear upon the work under consideration, wherein each of the five personages and the two choruses of Heathens and Christians has each a characteristic speciality that separates the music from that belonging to all the others.

The title-role of the drama is in several respects the most important, one of which is that more music is assigned to it than to either of the others, the character of Theodora having six Airs, besides two Duets with Didimus, and one with her friend and confidant, Irene. She is represented as fervently devout, with implicit faith in the tenets of the Christians, and in the God of their adoration, and with perfect resignation to the sufferings drawn upon her by her fidelity. Her earthly passion is not evinced in the course of the action, for even her voluntary immolation in order to rescue Didimus, is rather in the spirit of a martyr than of a lover, showing indeed that she cannot hold her life at the cost of his, but that she rejoices in death for the truth's sake. Except the widely favourite Air, "Angels, ever bright and fair," whose simple beauty as much as its popularity ought to have saved the entire oratorio from its long obscurity, all the music of this part is in minor keys. In spite of the current fiction that minority of 3rds and 6ths bespeaks sadness, melancholy is by no means the chiefly prevalent tone of the music, or of the person. She is pensive, she is earnest, she is firm, but she is totally untinged by the black sickness that would give a morbid air to her self devotion, and a sentimentality to her religious feeling. The form, immeasurably tedious in our age, of the repetition, Da Capo, of a long Air after its second part, seems to have almost worn itself out when this oratorio was written; for, not only in the Airs of Theodora but in those too of the other characters, it is, save in a few instances, abandoned throughout the work, and the music gains vitality, and its intensity of expression is far increased by the effective adoption of the concise design. Theodora's first Air, "Fond, flatt'ring world, adieu!" wherein she dedicates herself to the seclusion of conventual life, is a particular example of the advantageous departure from the old formalism: its powerful declamation would become cold and lifeless, were the song to be recommenced after its impressive climax and rehearsed for a second time, and its effect of natural impulse would degenerate into artificial routine. It is curious to observe in this piece the anticipation of a principal phrase in one of the Choruses in "Jephtha," set to the words, "Whatever is, is right;" but it would be vanity to assume that either passage bore any reflective allusion, purposed or accidental, to the other. "Angels, ever bright and fair" is too well known to need a comment; Theodora sings it when the decree is announced to her that she must worship the false sensual goddess, and she pours forth in it her deprecation to the purest of beings for protection from the revolting doom. "O that I on wings could rise," is linked by the intervening Recitative, and the instrumental Interlude to the preceding Air, "With darkness deep," so as to constitute one continuous scene out of the four separate pieces. The first Air pictures horror indeed at the impending fate and at the shame it involves, but this horror is softened by pious resignation; the second Air expresses hope if not of deliverance from her doom, certainly of fortitude to bear it; and the strain, which, in her trance, the victim of erroneous zeal for the expiring religion supposes to be music of heavenly choirs revealed for her encouragement, is what a waking and sensitive hearer might well believe to be divine. This last is a nearer approach, than is often to be found in the music of its period, to Mozart's beautiful principle of orchestration which materially distinguishes the modern from the ancient in the tonal art; the absence of all the heavy bass instruments from the score, and the employment of the delicate, pure, innocent tone of the then rarely used flute upon notes of sweetest expression, give to it a sound that realises our conception of what may be seraphic. Theodora's prayer for death, "The pilgrim's home," is an unelaborated melody of two repeated strains; it is lovely and tender to a marvel even for Handel, whose capability of tenderness is proved again and again. The Duet of Theodora and Didimus, "To thee, thou glorious son of worth," is exquisitely persuasive; the musical artist felt the situation more keenly and truthfully than did the literary, and he shows the wishes rather than the words of the lover to be so irresistible, that the doomed virgin is compelled to break her prison by their passionate behest. The Air, "When sunk in anguish," when she has rejoined her companions, though far from meritless, is the least interesting portion of Theodora's music. Her Duet with Irene, "Whither, princess, do you fly?" when she has resolved to surrender herself rather than let her lover pay with life for her freedom, represents gentle but invincible firmness. Lastly, the Duet "Thither let our hearts," which is a consequence, if not a continuation, of the sweetly beautiful Air of Didimus, "Streams of pleasure ever flowing," paints the happy and loving tranquillity with which martyrs await the doom that is to translate them out of worldly cares into the joys of heaven.

The part of Irene, written for a mezzo-soprano, ranging upwards to F sharp and to B below, is quite unlike in character to that of the heroine, being generally cheerful and more animated while less intense, and resembling it only in its quality of beauty. In the Air reviling prosperity, "Bane of virtue," there is plainly a reminiscence of the always prominent accompanying phrase in "What though I trace," in the oratorio of the preceding year, "Solomon;" and an equal likeness to the same is to be found in the Air of Didimus, "Streams of pleasure." How strangely is a musician sometimes haunted by a recollection that will—there is, indeed, as one must think, a will in such things—inweave itself in his passing thoughts! Lucky he, if the recollection be of his own idea. "As with rosy steps the morn," is one of the prettiest, simplest, and most winning songs of its composer. The Air "Lord, to Thee each night and day" is well known to be lovely; and the remarkable change of character in the second part, "Though convulsive rocks the ground," admirably relieves and thus enhances the devotional spirit of what precedes and follows.

The music of Didimus has also a character entirely its own. It is impassioned always, once heroic, and tenderly affectionate in every other instance. It is for a female voice ranging about a tone lower than that required for Irene. It is interesting to observe in the Air sung over the sleeping Theodora in prison, "Sweet rose and lily," a compromise between the then antiquated and now obsolete Da Capo form and the modern progressive plan which includes an allusion to the opening theme of a song; like signs appear in other places, such as "Rejoice greatly" in the "Messiah," of our composer's prospective insight of the pliability of design, and hence we trace in him an example which musicians were slow to follow, but by which latest times have infinitely profited. A coincidence, less fortunate in its prototype than those with "Solomon" and in its archetype, than that with "Jephtha" which have been cited, is very evident between the charming Air "Sweet rose and lily," and one by Giovanni Battista Bononcini (brother of that Marco Antonio who is famous for having slighted Handel in Berlin and opposed him in London, and for having owned a Madrigal which proved to be the composition of Lotti), "Per la gloria d'adorarvi," in the opera of "Griselda," the performance of which, at Drury Lane Theatre, the author came to London to direct, prior to Handel's first visit to this country. Such coincidences are worth remark, if only for the consolation of lesser artists than Handel, who may have the accident to alight upon other men's ideas and suppose them to be their own, mistaking thus memory for creation.

Septimius has the most florid music in the oratorio. It is the most indifferent too; indifferent, comparatively speaking, in merit, but still more so in expression. The Roman officer is one of those steady-going old believers, who persevere in the creed of their fathers, because they will not be at the pains of collating its corruption with the purity of a new faith. He has no cruelty toward the Christian sect, but likes the ease of following established order, and gaily obeys commands, even to the execution of believing victims, rather than suffer the inconvenience of disputing them. He is willing to serve his friend, as shown in his accommodating him with entrance to Theodora's dungeon; but he takes no steps to save his life or that of the heroine for whom this friend is self-sacrificed. It cannot be too much to advance that the character here set forth is portrayed in the music, which is fluent, vocal, and effective as a medium for vocal display, but less interesting than that of the other personages.

By the laws of—nature may not be said, but of nature as conventionally represented in art, basses are either tyrannic or venerable, or malevolent, or comic. Valens belongs to the first of these types; he is a thorough tyrant without a redeeming quality, and according to custom if not to prescription, his music is for a bass voice. The librettist did nothing for him that would not repulse more than inspire the musician, who, with such words as "Racks, gibbets, swords, and fire," for the beginning of an Air, may indeed be wondered at and justly be admired, for having escaped the ludicrous, and given a spirit of dignity to the fierce declamations of the President of Antioch. The pieces of this part are all brief; they are all emphatic, and they have the value in the general effect of the work of contrasting the music of the others.

The Heathen Choruses are quite individual. They have not the riotous jollity of those of the Babylonians in "Belshazzar," nor the rugged fierceness of those of the Philistines in "Samson," but they have a character of their own which is as distinct and as appropriate as that which distinguishes the music of either of their pagan cognates. The citizens of the Roman empire are presented as pleasure-loving, but as finding pleasure in grace and gaiety, certainly not in ebriety or savage violence. The choral continuation of the air of Valens "Go, my faithful soldier," is a joyous acceptance of the proclamation of the festival. When the mortal penalty is announced of refusal to share in the rites of Venus, the people's exclamation "For ever thus stands fixed the doom," in simply melodious and rhythmical phrases, betokens no vengeful lust for the blood of those who refuse compliance with usages that have made them and their fathers happy, but a pleasant content with things as they are, and an entire unwillingness for anything that may disturb their enjoyment. "Venus, laughing from the skies," and the preceding address to the same deity, "Queen of Summer," are what no one but Handel ever could have written, and in their clear and charming tunefulness, exempt from every kind of elaboration, they prove as much the self-reliance as the poetical conception and the happy invention of the great master.

The Choruses of the Christians are of a totally different type. They are grave in expression and comparatively complicate in structure; but though the fugal element abounds in them, there is scarcely a set fugue among their number, and indeed there are fewer pieces in this form in all the oratorio than in any other, except "Athaliah," by the composer. "Go, pious youth," addressed to Didimus, when he departs in the hope to rescue Theodora, is a particularly favourable specimen, and the termination of this with the often repeated words "Glory, peace, and rest"—the reward that will be merited by his generous act—has a charm that may not be described; the voices, at their softest, end upon the harmony of the dominant, the piece being completed by the fading sound of the instruments, and the effect is as of a farewell blessing upon the mission, as much of valour as of religious zeal, and of personal love. The most important choral piece, as much because it is the longest as because it is the most elaborated and the most beautiful, is that which ends the Second Part, "He saw the lovely youth." The Christians, uncertain of the fate of Theodora, whose holiness they revere, and whose gentleness they love, pass the night in praying for her deliverance, addressing their prayers to Him who raised the dead and can protect the living. The story of the Widow of Nain illustrates their faith, and gives strength to their reliance; and this is recounted in the Chorus under consideration. The first movement is beautifully pathetic, having somewhat the manner of a funeral march—so much so at least as to suggest to the mind's eye the procession to the sepulchre, the grief of the mourners, their vain efforts to console the bereft mother, and the Saviour's benign contemplation of the sorrow He alone could heal. A change of tempo gives most joyous and majestic colour to the words "Rise, youth, he said;" and to the narrated result of the divine behest. The final movement, "Lowly the matron bowed," tells of the widow's gratitude; it is the completest fugue in the work, the form in which Handel loved to invest his loftiest aspirations and grandest expressions of praise, and it closes the eminently dramatic episode with dignity worthy of the theme and of the technical excellence of the foregoing portion of the Chorus. This noble piece will always be a foremost feature in the oratorio, and its occasional selection for separate performance is quite accountable on the ground of its self-sufficiency, the incident it describes being entirely comprehended within its limits. The chorus sequent upon the leading away of the martyrs to execution, "How strange their end," is beautifully plaintive; but that which closes the work, "O love divine," is scarcely appropriate to its position. As music, it is by no means equal to many a piece that has gone before it; its effect is gloomy, which is not a little induced by the nature of its key of G minor, and not a little by the nature of its phraseology, and it is likely to stamp the hearer with an unhappy impression of the oratorio, and even of their sufferings who glory to die for the sake of truth. It cannot but be regretted that Dr. Morell (if it were he that wrote the words) made not this an opportunity for exultation, showing the triumph of heavenly constancy over the passing pangs that earthly tyrants can inflict, and it is still more to be wished that Handel had taken the rule into his own hands, and insisted on terminating his great work with a piece of such brightness as he, more than other musicians, could have produced, irradiating the crown of martyrdom.

Anticipating a plan that has become general, if not unexceptional, the Overture to "Theodora" is in the same key, G minor, as the closing Chorus. It would be futile and pedantic to lament, that the effect of tonal consistency and consequent internal completeness, thus given to a large work composed of many several portions, prevails not in many of the master's finest productions. Any of them may well rest upon its own merits, but this has the satisfactory excellence of ending where it begins, of returning after wide divergence to its starting key, and a consequent effect of entirety that is admirable, in addition to its other beauties. Such is the case in operas and masses by Mozart, and reference might easily be made to masterpieces of other musicians, as proving that these men thought the plan desirable. The Overture to this oratorio is one of the very finest by its author. The Maestoso wherewith it opens is most majestic. An incident in it of distinguishing beauty, is where an E flat in the bass, bearing an inversion of the suspended ninth of C and its resolution, is followed, not by the chord of D major which the context tempts one to expect, but by an inversion of that of B flat which has the full beauty of effect that always accompanies surprise; and it is not unlike in character to a movement of similar expression and in the same key in the Overture to "Ariodante," and to another in the harpsichord Suite, also in G minor, both by Handel, but it surpasses them both in merit. The Allegro is a far better wrought fugue than the kind of piece the author mostly placed in a corresponding position; the subject is answered in the second bar, and is continued through the answer, so as to comprise as it were a counter-subject within itself. A movement in E flat ensues, of sweetly melodious charm, bearing the inexplicable definition of "Trio"—inexplicable, because the music is written for the entire band, and it stands not between a foregoing portion and the repetition of the same—and this is described as Larghetto e piano, as if to imply that no modification of tone was to be made during its performance, an implication that Handel can scarcely have meant by the general definition, though he not rarely employed it. Lastly, there is a Courante, which is as good of its kind as the other portions, and this concludes in the opening key the excellent Overture.

Much more might have been written of this fine work, which should be as attractive as it is unknown; but that to talk of music apart from the music itself, cannot convey the faintest notion of the sound or its beauty; and to attempt a description could but be tedious, and could raise no image of the matter it described. The coming performance of "Theodora" will enable those who are interested in its beauties to hear and to judge them, and the aim will be fulfilled of these scanty comments, if they direct the attention of real music lovers to the oratorio itself, and urge them to look in it for a grand specimen of Handel's genius.

THE Exhibition Concerts, under the direction of Mr. Barnby, at the Royal Albert Hall, have fully maintained their character; and, as we predicted, by the constant introduction of works of the highest class, by giving an occasional appearance to artists who have yet to make a name, and by the promise of the production of compositions comparatively unknown, have shown to the public that music can be made as important a feature at an International Exhibition as any other of the arts and sciences. Mr. W. H. Thomas, son of Mr. Lewis Thomas, the vocalist, made a highly successful debut as a pianist in Mozart's Concerto in C, playing the work throughout with a facility of execution and a reverence for his author which elicited the warmest applause; and we may also mention the first appearance of Madlle. Napoléone Voarino, who performed Mendelssohn's "Capriccio Brillante" with much success. Two concerts have also been given on successive Saturday evenings, commencing at seven and terminating at nine, in which the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society took part. At the first of these the programme was devoted exclusively to the works of Mendelssohn, and comprised the music to "Athalie," the fragments from "Loreley," the "Wedding March," and the Overture to "Ruy Blas." The solo vocalists were Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Emily Spiller, and Miss Dones. The second concert consisted of popular vocal solos, part-songs, &c., the singers being Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Dones, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Thurley Beale. Mr. Sims Reeves was in fine voice, and responded to encores for Clay's ballad "Tis better not to know" and "Tom Bowling," both of which he sang to absolute perfection. Madame Sherrington was also compelled to repeat the "Shadow Song," and the audience finding these demands complied with, encoired Sullivan's "O hush thee, my babe" and Barnby's "Sweet and low," unquestionably the two most attractive choral pieces in the selection. Some dashing pianoforte pieces by Mr. Willem Coenen, were admirably played by the composer; and at a reasonable hour concluded one of the best popular concerts ever given in this Hall. Mr. Barnby may be fairly congratulated on the result of his efforts to establish music as a permanent attraction in this locality; and there can be little doubt that he has but to persevere to ensure a still greater success.

AN event peculiarly interesting to the musical public during the present month will be the revival of Handel's Oratorio "Theodora," on the 10th inst. at the Hanover Square Rooms. Thanks are already due to Mr. Barnby for reviving "Jephtha" and "Belshazzar," and it is to be under his direction that "Theodora" (an analysis of which forms the leading article of our present number) will be heard for the first time in England since its composer's death. The work will be performed with complete orchestra and a chorus composed of the voluntary choir of S. Anne's Church, Soho, augmented to about 100 voices; and the solo parts will be entrusted to ladies and gentlemen amateurs. The proceeds of the concert are to be devoted to the restoration of S. Anne's Church.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA.

DONIZETTI'S "La Favorita" has been revived at this establishment, chiefly for the purpose of bringing forward Madlle. Titiens in the part of Leonora, a character admirably suited to display both her vocal and histrionic powers, the more tragic portions, especially, being realised with an intensity rarely approached by former representatives of the part. Signor Aramburo, who made his first appearance as Fernando, in the same opera, was suffering from a cold, and failed therefore to do himself justice until the second representation of the work, when he proved the possession of a good voice and excellent stage presence, although perhaps somewhat wanting in dramatic energy. The singing of Signor Rota, as Alfonso, must also be mentioned as highly satisfactory. The debut of Signor Castelmarty as Mefistofele, in "Faust," was successful, his acting especially telling with excellent effect, and his singing showing signs of careful cultivation. He is now announced to appear in Ambroise Thomas's Opera "Mignon." Madlle. Alwina Valleria, who made her first appearance as Lady Enrichetta in "Marta" has a genuine soprano voice, especially good in the upper notes, and sings with an ease and freshness which ensured her a highly favourable reception. We trust shortly to see her in a new character. Signor Campanini has added to his former list of successes by his assumption of the parts of Raoul, in "Les Huguenots," and Lionello, in "Marta;" and Madame Christine Nilsson has re-appeared with an increased power of voice and a decrease in that demonstrative style of acting which we feared last season was rapidly growing upon her.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

THE revival of "Guillaume Tell" for the first time these two years, and of "Masaniello" after a slumber of six years, are the only two productions of any note during the past month. M. Maurel, of whom we spoke in high terms on his debut in "Un Ballo in Maschera," has more than confirmed the impression he then made upon the usually frigid audience at this establishment. His singing and acting in the part of Tell, and also as Valentino, in "Faust," have so firmly secured his reputation that we have little doubt of his becoming one of the most valuable permanent members of the company. The failure of Signor Urio in the arduous part of Arnold, in "Guillaume Tell," was an event which seems to have been foretold by all except those most interested in putting him forward; and the welcome accorded to Signor Mongini in the same character, on the next representation of the Opera, was perhaps even more cordial in consequence. "Guillaume Tell" also brought forward Madlle. Sebel in the small part of Tell's son. She has a somewhat feeble voice, but sings with refinement, and may be found useful in minor characters. The debut of Signor Nannetti as Mefistofele in "Faust," produced but little effect, although he is evidently both a singer and actor of experience: his greatest success was in the well-known Serenade, which elicited much applause. The return of Madame Adelina Patti (who made her first appearance this season as Rosina, in "Il Barbiere") has created the usual amount of enthusiasm; but she has not as yet sustained any new part. It is to be hoped, now that Signor Mongini has succeeded from Her Majesty's Opera, and joined the company at this establishment, that the best use will be made of his services, for the cast of the operas still suffers from the weakness of the tenor department.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

WE are glad to find that the series of Summer Concerts, which commenced on the 10th ult., are now transferred from the central transept to the concert-room, for we are inclined to believe that this new locality, and the abolition of the term "Opera Concerts" will have a highly beneficial effect upon the character of the programmes. At the first concert, Mendelssohn's Overture to "Ruy Blas" and Rossini's to "Semiramide" were the orchestral pieces; and Dr. von Bülow's performance of Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in G was an attractive feature in the selection. Well-worn vocal music from the operas were contributed by Madlle. Titiens, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Signor Mongini, and Signor Agnesi, which elicited the usual amount of enthusiastic applause from those who adhere to the opinion that classical works are not suited for warm weather. Mr. Manns, as usual, conducted.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

THE opening of this beautiful Palace and grounds, which took place on the 24th ult., was a decided success. No State ceremonial was arranged to inaugurate an event which has so long been looked forward to with much interest; but as nothing of this kind can be considered complete without music, Sir Michael Costa was there to preside over an efficient orchestra and choir, and Madlle. Titiens, Madame Natalie Carola, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Madlle. Macvitz, Signori Campanini, Borella and Agnesi contributed a number of popular vocal pieces. The concert would have acquired additional interest had the acoustical effects been carefully studied before the opening day; but—at least in the seats which we occupied—much of the music reached us but feebly, the opening violoncello solos in the Overture to “Guillaume Tell,” especially, being almost inaudible. All this will no doubt be speedily remedied, for the musical arrangements in contemplation are, we understand, to be on an extensive scale; and the services of Mr. H. Weist Hill having been secured as conductor, the excellence of the concerts may be confidently relied upon. By the programme for the first season, issued on the opening day, it appears that a constant succession of entertainments will be provided during the summer months; and we may safely predict, therefore, a brilliant future for this attractive place of resort.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

THE production of Handel’s “Belshazzar” by this Society on the 7th ult., was an event which—whatever may be the ultimate verdict upon the claims of this Oratorio to rank with the better-known works of its composer—fully merits the warmest thanks from all interested in musical progress. The revival of “Jephtha” at the “Oratorio Concerts” must have afforded sufficient proof that great compositions by Handel were still almost unrecognised in the very country to which he devoted the best years of his life; and this second resuscitation, under the same energetic conductor, may be accepted as a pledge that the spirit which animated the association known as “Mr. Barnby’s Choir,” so far from diminishing, may even increase, since its amalgamation with a larger body of singers, and its removal to a more extensive concert-hall. “Belshazzar” unquestionably contains some of the grandest choruses Handel ever wrote; and those who listened to such pieces as “Behold, by Persia’s hero made,” “Sing, O ye heavens,” “By slow degrees,” and the fine Bacchanalian chorus, “Ye tutelary Gods,” could not but wonder that such noble music should have been allowed to remain so long in comparative obscurity: indeed, in spite of the libretto (which is by no means inspiring), we are of opinion that in no one of the composer’s Oratorios do we find such dramatic variety, such grandeur of subject, and such contrapuntal vigour united. The effect of performing the score as Handel wrote it, was to us as perfect a realisation of the author’s intention as was the presentation of the tragedy “Antigone,” many years ago, on a stage made to resemble as accurately as possible that of a Greek theatre. It is true that our ears were not filled with the instrumentation, but then we heard the voices; and that, as we all know, from the composer’s own words, was what he especially desired. “Additional instruments” are all very well if judiciously used; but who is to protect us from the additional “additional instruments,” to the noise of which modern audiences are too often compelled to submit? To render the performance a thoroughly Handelian one, the very excellent organ accompaniment, written for the work by Mr. G. A. Macfarren, was played to perfection by Dr. Stainer, and some of the recitatives were ably accompanied on the pianoforte by Mr. Oliver King. The whole of the choral music was finely given, the leads being especially firm throughout, and the tone of the choir gaining increased effect by the absence of that antagonistic element of brass and wood against which the vocalists have usually to struggle. Madame Lemmens-Sherrington was especially effective in the air, “The leafy honours of the field,” the executive difficulties of which were vanquished with consummate ease, and Madame Patey in the air “Great God who yet,” and indeed in all the contralto music created a marked sensation with the audience. Mr. W. H. Cummings and Mr. Lewis Thomas were unfortunately suffering from colds, the last-named artist being compelled, after the end of the first part (through which he struggled manfully) to resign his place to Mr. Patey, who, although at a few minutes’ notice, sang so finely, especially in the recitatives, as to elicit a storm of applause. Mr. Cummings, in spite of the drawback we have mentioned, threw much dramatic feeling into the tenor part; and Mr. Thurley Beale was as earnest and painstaking as ever in the music entrusted to him. It would be impossible to praise too highly the careful conducting of Mr. Barnby in a work for the reading of which he could have had no precedent to guide him. In every respect the performance of “Belshazzar” was honourable to all concerned, and its presentation formed a fitting termination to the six subscription concerts of the present season.

MR. HENRY LESLIE’S CHOIR.

THE third concert, on the 24th April, was a decidedly popular one, the programme containing several vocal solos by Madame Pauline Rita, Miss Julia Wigan, Madame Patey, Mr. Santley, Mr. Henry Guy, Mr. Valentine Smith, and Mr. R. Latter, the last-named gentleman displaying a fine bass voice and cultivated style in Bishop’s “’Tis when to sleep the world retires.” The part-songs included the favourites “Oh! who will o’er the downs so free?” (Pearsall), “The dawn of day” (Reay), “You stole my love” (W. Macfarren), “Hunting Song” (Benedict), “Sweet and low” (Barnby), “O hush thee, my babe” (Sullivan), and an effective arrangement of “Believe me, if all those endearing young charms,” by the conductor. Pianoforte solos were also contributed by Madlle. Le Brun, which were well received.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE principal feature at the third concert, on the 28th April, was the performance of Beethoven’s Concerto in E flat, by Dr. Hans von Bülow, an artist who comes to us with a German reputation which raised public expectation to the highest pitch of excitement. To say that in the rendering of this great work he fully realised our ideal is more than we could conscientiously do; but that he evinced the possession of true artistic feeling and of consummate powers of execution, especially in the Adagio and Rondo, is unquestionable. His reception was most enthusiastic; and, after his performance of Bach’s “Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue,” in the second part of the concert, the applause was so prolonged, that he returned to the platform and played the “Passepied,” from the same composer’s “Suites Anglaises.” The orchestral pieces were Haydn’s charmingly melodious Symphony in G (Oxford), Sir Sterndale Bennett’s Overture, “The Naiades,” Mendelssohn’s “Reformation Symphony,” and Wagner’s Overture, “Der Fliegende Holländer,” all of which, under the steady conductorship of Mr. W. G. Cousins, were finely played. Madlle. Gelmina Valdi, has a fine contralto voice, but somewhat overtaxed her powers by selecting the trying Scena, “O Prêtres de Baal” (from “Le Prophète”), the applause, however, proving that our opinion was not shared by many! The other vocalist was Madame Alvsleben, of whom it is only necessary to say that she fully sustained her reputation. At the concert on the 12th ult., the programme included a new Violin Concerto, by Mr. G. A. Macfarren, played by Herr Straus, and the Andante and Rondo from Molique’s Concerto for the flute, performed by Mr. Oluf Svendsen, an artist who has so fairly won his reputation in this country, that we cannot but wonder why we miss him this season from his accustomed place in the orchestra of Her Majesty’s Opera. Mr. Macfarren will, we are certain, thank us for doing no more than record our conviction of the excessive merit of his new Concerto, for a work which demands both time and thought from a composer is not to be dismissed with a few hasty words, either of praise or censure, by a listener. Our impression is that it shows a consummate knowledge of the capabilities of the instrument, and is scored throughout with a masterly hand. The first movement is the most elaborated, but we prefer the “Larghetto,” which has an exquisitely melodious theme, the accompaniments being so delicately written as materially to enhance its effect, and the final Rondo—a vivacious movement, the brilliant passages in which appear to grow up spontaneously, instead of being, as is too often the case, patched on for display. Herr Straus proved himself thoroughly master of the work, and when he led on the composer at the conclusion of the performance, the applause was most enthusiastic. Mr. Svendsen’s rendering of the two movements from Molique’s Concerto was faultless, both in executive power and expression. His tone is pure and full, and his playing so sympathetic as to command the earnest attention of his hearers, a fact amply demonstrated by the genuine expressions of approval with which he was greeted on his retiring from the platform; indeed, the general regret appeared to be that the entire work had not been given. The orchestral pieces were Mozart’s “Grand” Symphony in C major, Beethoven’s in C minor, and the Overtures to “Anacreon” (Cherubini), and “Le Nozze di Figaro” (Mozart). Madlle. Justine Macvitz, and Madlle. Alwina Valeria were the vocalists, but the music chosen was not particularly interesting.

WAGNER SOCIETY.

THE third and last concert of the present series was given at St. James's Hall, on the 9th ult., with a success so decisive as to set at rest all doubt as to the fate of the composer's music in this country. The Overture to "Der Fliegende Holländer" was received with perfect enthusiasm, and the extracts from "Tannhäuser" and "Lohengrin," which were performed at the former concerts, were again applauded with a vigour which must have astonished those who believed that by the next generation only could Wagner's works be accepted. Mr. Edward Dannreuther, who conducted all these compositions, resigned his bâton to Dr. Hans von Bülow, to direct the Introduction to, and Finale to the third Act of, "Tristan und Isolde," which he did entirely from memory, and with a vigour which produced a magical effect upon the band. Dr. Bülow also performed the fifteen variations and fugue on the theme of the Finale to Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony, with a power and executive skill which held the audience spell-bound; and although we could not quite endorse the burst of applause with which he was greeted, there can be no question that, disagree as we may with what we must call eccentricities in his playing, his mastery over the key-board, and his command over every gradation of tone, stamp him at once as an artist of the highest rank. The only vocalist at this concert was Madame Otto-Alvsleben, who sang Elsa's song from "Lohengrin" and Elizabeth's Prayer from "Tannhäuser" with the most earnest and truthful expression. The performance was terminated by the stirring "Huldigungsmarsch," which was finely played. We are glad to find that the Society intends to give a series of concerts, commencing in November next, at which not only the works of Richard Wagner will be performed, but also those of the great classical masters, from Sebastian Bach to the present time.

MISS AGNES ZIMMERMANN assembled a highly-appreciative audience at the Hanover Square Rooms on the evening of the 29th April, the programme, as usual, appealing only to those of cultivated musical taste. With praiseworthy modesty, Miss Zimmermann introduced one piece only of her own composition, the "Suite" for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, of which we spoke in such favourable terms at her concert last year. This characteristic chain of little gems was beautifully played by the composer, Madame Norman-Neruda and Herr Daubert, and warmly applauded, especially the clever "Canon à la 7^{ème}" and the final "Gigue." An effective pianoforte arrangement, by Miss Zimmermann, of Handel's Overture to "Ariodante," Mendelssohn's variations for pianoforte and violoncello, and Brahms's Quartett in G minor, for pianoforte, violin, viola, and violoncello, were the other pieces in which the concert-giver displayed her exceptional powers as a pianist, and we need scarcely say that in all these compositions she was equally successful. The vocalists were Miss Abbie Whinery and Madame Anna Regan-Schimon, the last-named lady kindly supplying the place of Mr. Santley, who was absent from indisposition. We were glad to find that Miss Zimmermann not only announced upon her programme that the doors of the concert-room would be closed during the performance of the last piece, but had the firmness to act upon this notice by refusing egress to the many persons who, as usual, remaining until the composition had commenced, were desirous of treating it as a voluntary to play them from the room. Our readers know how anxious we have always been to institute this reform, and we warmly congratulate Miss Zimmermann on the courage she has shown in carrying it out.

THE first morning concert of Miss Alie Lindberg attracted a select audience to the Hanover Square Rooms on the 28th April. The concert-giver's high qualifications as a pianist were shown to the utmost advantage in the pianoforte part of Mendelssohn's Trio in D minor, and in the following solos:—a Loure and Rondo by Bach, Schumann's "Dream," Thalberg's Fantasia on "Don Juan," a Nocturne by Field, a Gavotte by Martini, and a Russian melody ("Le Rossignol"), by Liszt, all of which were received with well-deserved applause. Madlle. Lindberg was assisted in the Trio by Herr Wiener (violin), and Herr Daubert (violoncello), both of whom also performed solos, the former a Sonata by Handel, and the latter a Sonata by Marcello. Madame Elena Corani and Miss Mary Crawford were the vocalists.

THE usual monthly concert of the St. George's Glee Union took place at the Pimlico Rooms on the 2nd ult., the work selected for performance being Sir Sterndale Bennett's

"May Queen." Mr. Thurley Beale, who was in excellent voice, was highly successful, especially in the ballad "Tis jolly to hunt." Miss Horder, both in her solo and duet, sang with much taste, and Mr. Carter and Miss Clara Buley were also deserving of warm praise. The choruses were well given, and reflected great credit on the conductor, Mr. Garside. We are glad to hear that this Society increases in numbers and popularity.

AN amateur concert was given by the Bayard Cricket Club, assisted by several friends, on the 9th ult., at Store Street Hall. The performance was for a charitable purpose, and £25 net profit was realised. The singing of Mrs. Tom Smith, Miss Jones, and others elicited much applause and numerous encores.

MR. JACOB BRADFORD, of New College, Oxford (organist of St. Peter's, Eltham Road, Lee), passed the second examination for the Degree of Bachelor of Music in Easter Term.

THE Southwark Choral Society gave an excellent concert, at the Emerson Street School-rooms, on Tuesday, the 13th ult. The chief features of the evening were a small selection of the least-known of Handel's Oratorios, "Joseph," and a reading, by Mr. W. F. Taunton. Solos were given by Master Porter, Miss Dear, Miss L. Giblett, Miss Jenkins, Mrs. Underwood, and Mr. A. Bunker; and Mr. W. Harper on the harmonium, and Mr. Ralph Horner on the piano, lent their valuable aid, both in solo and accompaniment. Mr. J. Courtney conducted with his usual ability.

A VERY excellent concert was given at St. James's Hall, on the 10th ult. by Mr. J. G. Callcott, an artist whose name has been so long connected with Mr. Henry Leslie's concerts as to ensure not only a large audience, but the cordial co-operation of some of the most eminent vocalists and instrumentalists. An admirable programme was provided, the principal singers being Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Helen D'Alton, Madlle. Justine Macvitz, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Maybrick, and Signor Borella, the part-music being sung to perfection by Mr. Henry Leslie's Choir. The selection included two melodious and well-written part-songs by the concert-giver—"Love wakes and weeps," and "Hark, hark, pretty lark"—(the latter given for the first time), and several favourite choral compositions by Sullivan, Benedict, and Henry Leslie. The "Andante" and "Allegro" from Beethoven's Quintett in E flat was finely rendered by Messrs. Lazarus, C. Harper, Hutchins, Horton, and J. G. Callcott, and much applauded; and a feature in the programme was the violin performance of Mr. Henry Holmes. The accompanists were Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. John C. Ward, Signor Pinsuti, and, Mr. J. G. Callcott.

A BAND of real negro vocalists has appeared in the metropolis during the past month, and given concerts, which have been highly successful. The troop consists of four males and seven females, most of whom are emancipated slaves. Their singing elicits the sympathy of the audience by its extreme purity; and their simple eloquence makes even the somewhat uncouth sacred verses, to which their music is allied, acceptable to hearers who, under other circumstances, might pronounce such words profane. These "Jubilee Singers," as they term themselves, are students of Fisk University, and their object in visiting this country is to raise funds to build a "Jubilee Hall" in connection with the University. There can be little doubt that they will succeed in this laudable undertaking, for their concerts have all been fully attended, and their popularity is increasing.

IT is with sincere regret that we announce the death of Mr. J. A. Brown, well known for so many years as Secretary to the stewards of the Gloucester Musical Festival. His funeral, which took place at the church of Highnam, was attended by many sympathising friends, and Luther's Hymn, "Great God, what do I see and hear," was sung at the grave.

THE annual performance of the "Messiah," for the benefit of the Royal Society of Musicians, took place at St. James's Hall on the 2nd ult. The principal vocalists were Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Georgiana Maudsley, Madame Patey, Messrs. Cummings and Lewis Thomas. The choruses were excellently sung, and the band, led by Mr. Willy, was highly efficient. Mr. W. G. Cousins, was, as usual, the conductor.

THERE can be no question that Dr. Bülow should be heard at his Pianoforte Recitals by all who desire to form an opinion of his real power. Three of these performances have now been given, the programmes of which were in the highest degree interesting. We confess to liking him less in the music of Beethoven than in that of any other composer: his rendering of the compositions of Bach, Chopin, and Liszt has a charm which can scarcely be described, apart from its executive accuracy; and at his last concert we may also mention his refined interpretation of a "Suite," by Joachim Raff, the "Minuetto," in which was a marvellous display of manual dexterity, combined with true poetical feeling. When we say that since his arrival in England he has never had a note of music before him at his public performances, we desire only to place upon record such a wonderful exhibition of memory, for we are not of those who believe that this is a matter with which intelligent listeners should have any concern. His reception at his Recitals has been most enthusiastic; and the crowded state of the Hall is a convincing proof that there is in England an audience for all who can appeal to his hearers with the exceptional eloquence of Hans von Bülow.

THE fifteenth annual concert of the Great Northern Musical Society took place on the 2nd ult. in the large Meeting Room at King's Cross Station, H. Oakley, Esq., General Manager, in the chair. Several solos, duets, and choruses were given with much success; and the vocal music was agreeably relieved by instrumental pieces, amongst which must be mentioned the clever pianoforte playing of the Misses Usher, aged respectively eleven and thirteen. At the conclusion of the performance the chairman warmly congratulated the members of the Society on their progress.

MADAME HENRIETTA MORITZ, a niece of Hummel, gave a Matinée at the Hanover Square Rooms on Tuesday, the 6th ult., the programme of which contained several pieces admirably calculated to display this clever pianist's powers to advantage. In Mendelssohn's Trio in D minor, and Schumann's "Phantasiestücke" (assisted by Herr Straus and M. Pagne) she elicited well-deserved applause. The vocalist was Madame Patey, and the conductors Sir Julius Benedict and Mr. J. L. Roeckel.

MR. WALTER MACFARREN has been appointed conductor of the concerts and orchestral practices at the Royal Academy of Music.

On the 20th ult., a miscellaneous concert was given by the choir under the direction of Mr. George Tolhurst at the Lower Norwood Institute. The programme was chiefly made up of vocal pieces from "Novello's Part-Song Book," and a selection from Tolhurst's "Ruth," a work which, notwithstanding much adverse criticism, appears to be constantly gaining ground. The vocalists were Miss Jeannie Brown, Miss Kate Worth, Mrs. Fincham, Mr. Robert Carter, and Mr. Ambrose Copping. The concerted music from the Oratorio, as well as the solos, met with great favour from a very numerous audience. The duet, "Surely we will return," by the two first-named ladies, had to be repeated. Miss Jeannie Brown was encored in Benedict's "Rock me to sleep," and a similar compliment was awarded for Gounod's "Serenade," to Miss Kate Worth, who has only been recently heard in metropolitan circles. Mr. W. Bowyer contributed De Beriot's Seventh Air Varied, with good tone and style.

MRS. JOHN MACFARREN gave an evening concert at the Hanover Square Rooms on the 9th ult., before a large audience. Her performance of Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata, a Rondo by Dussek, Mozart's Sonata in A for pianoforte and violin (with Mr. Carrodus), and Chopin's Polonaise, for pianoforte and violoncello (with Herr Daubert), exhibited her powers as a pianist of the highest order with much effect, and she was most warmly applauded. The vocalists were Madlle. Nita Gaetano, Miss Banks, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Signor Caravoglia, and Mr. Santley, the latter of whom sang, with decided success, a "Hunting Song," composed for him by Signor Piatti. Mr. Walter Macfarren was a most efficient accompanist.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD BLAGROVE's annual morning concert at the Beethoven Rooms on the 21st ult., drew a large and fashionable audience. The principal features in the programme were the pianoforte performance of Mrs. Blagrove and the concertina playing of Mr. Blagrove, which, it is needless to say, were of the highest order of merit. Mrs. Blagrove (who earned her reputation before the public as Miss Freeth) has a firm touch, facile execution, and a command over the gradations of tone, which must always ensure the sympathy of her hearers; and in the compositions selected on this occasion these qualities were displayed to the utmost advantage. We were especially pleased with her rendering of Stephen Heller's arrangement of "La Truite," a little piece, which, although of course a mere transcription, severely taxes the powers of any pianist. Something more than conventional words of commendation should be bestowed upon the concertina performance of Mr. Blagrove, for in his hands it appeals to us with a power of which we hardly believed it to be capable. It must be remembered that this is an instrument for which even Molique has written, and at this concert we had a work cast in the truly classical form by Mr. Silas—a Quintett for pianoforte, violin, viola, violoncello and concertina—evidently composed with a part for the concertina under the full conviction that it has qualities which deserve a more extensive recognition. Perhaps the expressive powers of the instrument were most successfully revealed in a MS. "Duo Concertante" for concertina and pianoforte, on airs from Gounod's "Mirella," by Sydney Smith (exquisitely played by the two concert-givers), which was warmly and most deservedly applauded. Messrs. Dando, J. Zerbin, and Daubert lent their valuable assistance in the instrumental department; and the vocalists were Miss Matilda Scott, Miss Abbie Whinery, Miss Atkins, and Miss Arabella Westbrook; Herr Oberthür contributed a solo on the harp, and the accompaniments to the vocal music were most efficiently played by Mr. J. Zerbin.

Two of the New Philharmonic Concerts, under the direction of Dr. Wylde, have been given, with much success, at St. James's Hall, the programme of the first containing a judicious selection from Handel's "L'Allegro ed Il Penseroso," which appears again coming into public favour. At the second concert, a welcome item in the performance was Mozart's Opera, "Idomeneo" (or rather the principal pieces from it), which went exceedingly well. Dr. Hans von Bülow's rendering of Henselt's Concerto in F minor produced the usual amount of enthusiasm, and he also performed a Fugue by Mendelssohn, and a Fantasia by Mozart with equal success. We are glad to find that Wagner's Opera "Lohengrin" will be recited, with soloists, chorus, and orchestra, for the first time in this country, on the 11th inst.

MR. W. T. BEST, on his recent visit to Paris, gave an organ performance, which was listened to with the deepest attention by the many leading professors and amateurs assembled. We extract the account of the event from Galignani:—"A most interesting organ performance was given by Mr. Best, the well-known player, on a magnificent instrument built expressly by M. Cavallé-Coll, 15, Avenue du Maine, for the new music-hall at Sheffield. This organ has been erected at a cost of £5,000, and contains 64 speaking stops, inclusive of two of the 32-foot scale. The programme was varied and of great interest, and fully showed off all the resources of this splendid work of art, and Mr. Best's playing attracted all the principal artists in Paris, as well as many English visitors."

THE 219th Festival of the Sons of the Clergy was held in St. Paul's Cathedral on the 14th ult., before a large congregation. The choir consisted of about 250 voices, under the steady conductorship of Dr. Stainer. Mr. George Cooper presiding at the organ. The service was rendered most impressively throughout, the "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis," the composition of Dr. Stainer, especially producing a marked effect upon the listeners, a result attributable alike to the truly devotional and masterly setting of the words and the admirable manner in which they were sung. A complete orchestra (led by Mr. Weist Hill) played the two first movements of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," at the commencement of the service; and the choral portion of the same work was given as an anthem, the tenor solos being well sung by Mr. Kerr Gedge. The Psalms were sung to Sir John Goss's chant in E. After the sermon the "Hallelujah" chorus was given by the choir, and the concluding voluntaries, finely played by Mr. George Cooper, included a beautiful "Andante," by Mr. Henry Smart.

MR. E. H. THORNE's first evening concert took place on the 30th April, at the Hanover Square Rooms, before a large audience. The programme was excellently selected, not only for the display of the concert-giver's powers as a pianist of the highest class, but also for the exhibition of his claims as a composer. His first Trio in G major, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello (in which he was ably assisted by Herr Louis Ries and Mr. Howell) was deservedly received with the warmest marks of favour, and three vocal pieces—the "Lake and Waterfall" (a part-song for the choir), a Psalm, for ladies' voices, and a song, "On a faded Violet" (charmingly sung by Miss Enriquez and encoored)—are works of so melodious and refined a character as to justify us in anticipating a successful career for a writer who has but lately made his appeal to a London public. The Trio is remarkably well written for all the instruments, the first movement (preceded by a short Adagio) having much vivacity in the opening phrases, and containing a charmingly melodious second subject. The Adagio, which follows, is based upon a theme which speedily won its way to the sympathies of the audience; and the "Finale à la Polonoise," is brisk and animated, the passages for the pianoforte especially, being extremely brilliant and effective. The Part-song has been composed with a thorough appreciation of the verses, which are taken from "All the Year Round." The melody is appropriately simple, and the voice parts are written with much care throughout. A point which told admirably in the performance, was the unison passage in the tonic minor, which was boldly sung by the choir, and afforded an excellent contrast with the more subdued portions of the composition. There can be no doubt, that the "Lake and Waterfall," will become a favourite with Choral Societies. Mr. Thorne's performance of Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata," and of the pianoforte part in Bach's Sonata in A major (Herr Ries joining him with the violin) proved alike his thorough mastery over executive difficulties, and his true feeling for classical music. A choir of about fifty voices sang the choral music, with much effect. Mr. Thorne's second evening concert is announced for the 6th instant, when he will perform his new Trio in C minor (with Messrs. Henry Holmes and Paque), and several pianoforte pieces of his own composition.

MR. RIDLEY PRENTICE's evening concert, on the 14th ult., at the Hanover Square Rooms, was well attended, and in every respect thoroughly successful. The concert-giver's performance of Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata" was highly appreciated, and the applause which it elicited was as genuine as it was well deserved. The programme also included an "Allegro Assai" of Schubert, for two violins, viola, and violoncello, Mendelssohn's Variations in D major, for pianoforte and violoncello (in which Mr. Prentice was ably seconded by Mr. Walter Pettit), Weber's "Duo Concertante," in E flat, for pianoforte and clarinet (by Messrs. Prentice and Lazarus), and a Quintett in G minor, by Mr. Prout, for pianoforte, two violins, viola, and violoncello, excellently played by Messrs. Prentice, Holmes, Folkes, Barnett, and Reed. Miss Katharine Poyntz, Madame Patey, and Mr. Cummings were the vocalists, all of whom were highly effective; a sacred song, by Mr. Prentice, "Hear my prayer" (exquisitely sung by Madame Patey), receiving an enthusiastic encore. Mr. Minson accompanied with much ability.

UPON the recommendation of Sir Frederick Gore Ouseley, Sir Julius Benedict, Sir George J. Elvey, and Sir John Goss, the degree of Doctor in Music has been conferred upon Mr. C. G. Verinder, Mus. Bac., Oxon, by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

WE are informed that Mr. W. H. Cummings's Cantata "The Fairy Ring," is to be performed at Penzance by the Choral Society, in September, under the conductorship of Mr. J. H. Nunn, A.R.A., and that the composer will sing on the occasion.

Reviews.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The Hymnary. A Book of Church Song. Edited by the Rev. W. Cooke, M.A., Hon. Canon of Chester, and the Rev. B. Webb, Rector of S. Andrew's, Wells Street. The Music edited by Joseph Barnby.

(Concluded from p. 51.)

In tune 395, by Mr. Barnby, much dignity and breadth is noticeable. Mr. Brown-Borthwick's cheerful and excellent tune 397, is, perhaps, a little injured by the alteration of the penultimate of the second and fourth lines from a minim (as he originally wrote it) to two crotchets. No. 415 is a fine melody by old Benjamin Rogers. It was set by him to the "Hymnus Eucharisticus" beginning—

"Te Deum patrem colimus Te laudibus prosequimur."

The following quotation from Wood's "Fasti" (1669), though apparently referring to another "Hymnus Eucharisticus," will not be without interest:—"After his Majesty's restoration, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and chief Citizens of London, being unanimously disposed to entertain the King, the two Dukes, and both Houses of Parliament, with a sumptuous feast, it was ordered among them that there should be added to it the best music they could obtain: and B. Rogers being then esteemed the prime composer of the nation, he was desired of them to compose a song of several parts, to be performed while the King and company were at dinner. Whereupon, in order to do it, Dr. Ingelo made 'Hymnus Eucharisticus,' the beginning of the prelude to which is 'Exultate justi in Domino,' &c. This also he translated into English, and both were printed in single papers. These things being done, B. Rogers composed a song of four parts to that hymn, which was more than once tried in private. At length, on the 5th of July (Thursday), 1660, being the day that His Majesty, James Duke of York, Henry Duke of Gloucester, and both Houses of Parliament, were at dinner in the Guildhall of the city of London, the said printed papers in Latin and English being delivered to the King, two Dukes, and disposed among the nobility, &c., purposely that they might look on them while the performance was in doing, the song was began and carried on in Latin by twelve voices, twelve instruments, and an organ, mostly performed by His Majesty's servants. Which being admirably well done, it gave very great content: and Mr. Rogers, the author, being present, he obtained a great name for his composition, and a plentiful reward." This extract abounds with useful hints to every one of us—to directors of music, that they should always give translations of foreign tongues for the edification of hearers while the performance is in doing; to composers, that they should, before making them public, try their compositions more than once in private; to performers, that new works ought to be admirably well done; and lastly, to the general public, that composers not only deserve a great name, but also the unromantic plentiful reward.

But to return to Rogers's tune. It is, we believe, sung every year on the top of the tower of Magdalen College, Oxford (Rogers's last organistship), at sunrise on May morning, and is still part of the splendid Grace used at the College Gaudy. Both melody and harmony are equally beautiful, and no doubt Mr. Barnby has inserted the tune in the "Hymnary" to the very great content (as it is quaintly expressed) of its users. There is some peculiarity in the rhythm of 416, by Ferdinand Hiller, but when once thoroughly mastered there will not be two opinions as to its excellence. Dr. Gauntlett has produced a most valuable C.M. in 419, which will take its rank among his happiest efforts. Simple and sweet is the melody of 427, by J. Baptiste Calkin. Mr. Turle always writes well for voices, and 429 will be found very smooth and elegant. Mr. Docker shews plenty of breadth and strength in his setting of the hymn, "Praise the Rock of our salvation" (430). No. 447 is a capital L.M. by the Rev. F. A. J. Hervey. We now light upon one of the finest tunes in the whole work, No. 449, by Dr. Hiller.

This composer has been fortunate in here being the exponent of a very grand set of words by Wesley:—

"The Lord is King: ye saints rejoice,
And ceaseless alleluias sing;
The angry floods lift up their voice
In vain, for lo, the Lord is King!"

The repetition of the words "in vain" adds greatly to the magnificent effect of the music of the first verse. Unfortunately, the words to be repeated in the succeeding verses do not bear a similar relation to the construction of the stanzas; but this does not mar the general effect of the performance, which, if on a large scale, would be sublime. Mendelssohn's harmonies to "Nun danket alle Gott" have (459) been cleverly condensed into four parts. Bach's versions of this are not very different from Mendelssohn's. Both authors have a cadence into the minor of the subdominant at the end of the last line but one, but in one case Bach has a dominant close at the end of the last line but two, where Mendelssohn goes into the relative minor of the subdominant. No. 466 is a good tune by the Rev. E. B. Whyley. The good effect of a change from minor to major, which we before noticed in one of Calkin's tunes, is again noticeable in 469 by Henry Leslie. The processional hymn, No. 475, has been most successfully set by Henry Smart, as also 476 by Sullivan. Two excellent S.M. tunes deserve notice—477 by S. Wesley, which is not as well known as it should be, although it has appeared in other collections, and 481 by Trembath. One of the most melodious tunes in the book is 484, by E. J. Hopkins. One hearing is sufficient to stamp it on the memory. It is to be regretted that words were not found for Mendelssohn's beautiful Chorale which would not have necessitated the elimination of two lines of his music. Those who know the original (and who does not?) will hardly be satisfied with the form of 494. A tune entirely in unison is a novelty, but the reason for its existence

Silent Night.

FOUR-PART SONG.

WORDS BY ALFRED BELL.

THE MUSIC

(ORIGINALLY WRITTEN TO THE CAROL, "HOLY NIGHT,")

BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

Larghetto.

TREBLE. p Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are ALTO. p Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are TENOR, (3ve lower.) p Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are BASS. p Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are

ACCOMP. p Larghetto.

The first system of the musical score for 'Silent Night'. It features four vocal parts (Treble, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and an accompaniment. The time signature is 6/8. The tempo is marked 'Larghetto'. The key signature has one flat (B-flat). The lyrics are 'Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are'. The vocal parts are written in treble clef, and the bass part is written in bass clef. The accompaniment is written in grand staff (treble and bass clef). The dynamics are marked 'p' (piano) for the vocal parts and 'p' for the accompaniment.

dim. pp cres gleam - ing bright: Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are

dim. pp cres gleam - ing bright: Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are

dim. pp cres gleam - ing bright: Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are

dim. pp cres gleam - ing bright: Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are

dim. pp cres

The second system of the musical score for 'Silent Night'. It continues the four vocal parts and the accompaniment. The lyrics are 'gleam - ing bright: Si - lent night! Peace - ful night! Now the stars are'. The dynamics are marked 'dim.' (diminuendo), 'pp' (pianissimo), and 'cres' (crescendo). The vocal parts are written in treble clef, and the bass part is written in bass clef. The accompaniment is written in grand staff (treble and bass clef). The tempo remains 'Larghetto'.

cen do. mf mp
gleam - ing bright, Now the stars are gleam - ing bright: Moon-beams rest on

cen do. mf mp
gleam - ing bright, Now the stars are gleam - ing bright: Moon-beams rest on

cen do. mf mp
gleam - ing bright, Now the stars are gleam - ing bright: Moon-beams rest on

cen do. mf mp
gleam - ing bright, Now the stars are gleam - ing bright: Moon-beams rest on

cres.
crag and tow'r— Silv'r - ing stream and mead and bow'r.

cres.
crag and tow'r— Silv'r - ing stream and mead and bow'r.

cres.
crag and tow'r— Silv'r - ing stream and mead and bow'r.

cres.
crag and tow'r— Silv'r - ing stream and mead and bow'r.

dim. p pp e rall.
Si - lent, Peace - ful night! Si - lent, Peace - ful night!

dim. p pp e rall.
Si - lent, Peace - ful night! Si - lent, Peace - ful night!

dim. p pp e rall.
Si - lent, Peace - ful night! Si - lent, Peace - ful night!

dim. p pp e rall.
Si - lent, Peace - ful night! Si - lent, Peace - ful night!

dim. p pp e rall.
Si - lent, Peace - ful night! Si - lent, Peace - ful night!

2nd VERSE. Larghetto.

Ho - ly Peace! Kind - ly Peace! Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease: Ho - ly Peace! Kind - ly Peace! Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease:.. Ho - ly Peace! Kind - ly Peace! Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease:... Ho - ly Peace! Kind - ly Peace! Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease: Ho - ly Peace! Kind - ly Peace! Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease, Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease: Wea - ry eyes now

toil re-lease, Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease: Wea - ry eyes now

toil re-lease, Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease: Wea - ry eyes now

toil re-lease, Wea - ry hands from toil re-lease: Wea - ry eyes now close in sleep: . . Com - fort give to them that weep, . .

close in sleep: Com - fort give to them that weep,

close in sleep: Com - fort give to them that weep,

close in sleep: Com - fort give to them that weep,

cres.

dim. Com - fort, rest, and peace! . p Com - fort, rest, and peace! . pp e rall.

dim. Com - fort, rest, and peace! . p Com - fort, rest, and peace! . pp e rall.

dim. Com - fort, rest, and peace! - p Com - fort, rest, and peace! . pp e rall.

dim. Com - fort, rest, and peace! . p Com - fort, rest, and peace! . pp e rall.

dim.

is sound. Harmony is not always obtainable on board ship, and Mr. Barnby's melody (511) is tuneful and appropriate to the words. The first tune, 525, is very good. Two arrangements of the popular "Jerusalem the Golden" are given (600), but it is doubtful if the tune is improved by elaboration of detail. There is much beauty in the melody, coupled with a lack of harmonic form which no amount of touching-up seems to remedy. Dr. Steggall's beautiful tune to "Jerusalem on high" (607) is not given in its best form. Mr. W. H. Gladstone is very happy in his setting of "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun" (608). Dr. Gauntlett's tune (619) to "Soldiers of Christ, arise," is original and effective. It is to our mind much improved by transposition into the key of D. Both settings of "The roseate hues of early dawn" (621) are good. The first is sweetest, the last strongest.

It is now necessary to say a few words on the "Hymnary" generally. And first, no hymn book should appear unless there is some special reason for its existence. The "Hymnary" claims to be, and is, a treasury of modern tunes of all kinds, and as such it cannot but exercise a great influence over the present generation. Whether we have, as musicians, or Churchmen, reason to congratulate ourselves on the general character into which our hymn tunes seem to be drifting, is doubtful. Our forefathers steadily sang through long rows of stanzas to tunes which now annoy us by their sombre tint or their actual colourlessness. We love a tune which shall run into the other extreme, and be an exact reflection of just the sample of words which appeals to us most strongly at the time. From time to time the popular style of words varies largely, hence a sketch of the history of hymns, would be also a sketch of contemporary religious thought, and to a very great extent to trace the variations of style in hymn tunes would lead up to the same point. This, however, is far too large a question to be entered into now. Suffice it to say, that a warning to composers is very necessary on one subject,—hymn-singers or hearers are not always the best judges of the musical value of a tune, several qualities which make a tune valuable to them do not make it more valued by the trained musician. But clergy and musicians alike are to some extent compelled, or at the least are strongly tempted to select tunes which shall receive the quickest and warmest welcome by the masses. Hence, sterling qualities in composition, which are not patent at first hearing, but require to be studied before they can be appreciated, are not only often overlooked by the composer, but if he wants popularity, more often carefully set aside. Or in other words, there is the strong influence of those whose only knowledge is contained in the expression what they like, dragging the composer, who ought to be striving up to his ideal, down to their level. This statement may be argued against or ridiculed, but facts are stubborn, and no thoughtful student of the "Hymnary" (the "Hymnary" deserves real study) can avoid seeing that many authors simply throw out weak and trifling melodies, just as crumbs to little fishes. On the other hand, to the great credit of many writers be it said, there are many, very many, fine tunes in the "Hymnary" whose fame will date from the time when their more favoured neighbours begin to produce nausea. If it be seriously urged that the short-lived popularity of a hymn tune is the genuine test of its merit, inasmuch as it has thus succeeded in performing its function, no hymn tune comes within the sphere of art-criticism at all; it stands on a different footing, and should, in fact, not be criticized as music.

But, happily, so voluminous are the contents of the "Hymnary," so varied in style, so carefully are words and music generally linked, that the lover of any speciality will be sure to find it in abundance. The book has some faults, which are perhaps not less faulty because common to many modern tune books. Why melt down all tunes into black-headed notes? Is there no relation in a musician's mind between the appearance of music and its sound? It is to be feared that, in this respect, uniformity has to be considered. Double bars are, as a rule, but little wanted in a hymn tune, but, on the other hand, why always exclude them? It makes one nervous to contemplate the efforts to recover his lost place, which an organist would entail upon himself if, whilst playing No. 460, he should venture to look at the words. Little else need be said in the way of fault-finding. Both editor and publisher deserve the highest praise, the one for his conscientious and musicianly work, the other for his boldness and broadness of design. Heartily and sincerely do we pray that this important work may exercise a large and beneficial influence not only on the art of music, but also on the spirit of devotional worship which pervades our great congregations of Christians.

Handel's "Belshazzar." Edited by G. A. Macfarren.

"BELSHAZZAR" has been so seldom performed since the author's death that it is all but unknown to the present generation. Except, indeed, once by the Sacred Harmonic Society, in 1847, and once by the London Sacred Harmonic Society, in 1848; it has never been publicly given within the time of living man, until its recent resuscitation at the last of the Concerts of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society. Yet, it is a fine work, a great work, and has but the one fault of excessive length, which fault may be remedied, though regretfully, by the free use of scissors. To pass over the admirable distinction of character, between persons, and between one and another mass of people, that prevails in the oratorio, one may refer briefly to the "Banquet Scene," with the miraculous writing on the wall, as one of the most powerfully dramatic series of pieces that Handel has given to the world; even Handel, whose strength is transcendent in this class of writing. The several Airs, Duets, and Choruses are all Handel's, which is to say, interesting; but the majority of them are far beyond this, they are beautiful and eminently effective. The merits of the work should command for it an occasional if not frequent hearing; and the issue of the present portable and cheap edition, should insure for it the careful study of lovers of music, to whom it hitherto has been inaccessible. The publication appears with an extensive preface, which is enriched with a series of letters from the composer to his librettist, Charles Jennens, on the structure of the book and on its necessary condensation, which are characteristic of the writer and immensely interesting. The volume comprises a copy of the original drama—for such is the form of the book, though it was never meant for stage performance—and this is valuable as filling up blanks in the action, occasioned by the inevitable curtailments, and it is more valuable as proving Handel's clear sense of fitness exercised in the compression of the text. Alas for Jennens! He did well in the selection of biblical passages for the "Messiah;" he did daringly in the appendage of his rapid "Moderato" to the exquisite "Allegro" and "Penseroso" of Milton; but the comicality is only screened by the dulness of his "Belshazzar," the almost infinite length of which shows more industry than judgment, more self-esteem than genius. The footmen who preceded and followed him with gold-headed canes when he walked the London streets, may have cleared his pathway to places of fashionable resort, but it was his association with the great musician that alone could open for him a road to fame, and fame thus reached is scarcely to his advantage. The pianoforte arrangement in this edition incorporates an organ part written by the editor for use in public performance, and supplying, with better fidelity to the composer's intention, such matter as might else have been given to extra orchestral instruments. It is well known that it was the custom, not only of Handel but of his contemporaries, to leave large gaps in instrumental scores, to be filled up by the organist or harpsichordist, according to his skill in invention and in playing. Mozart wrote wind instruments for the "Messiah" and some other works of the master, for use in a hall wherein there was no organ; and he wrote them so beautifully that, being once in existence, they can never be spared from a performance of the works in question. It is anomalous, however, in this country, where there is an organ in every locality for choral performance, to insert other instruments into Handelian music than the composer would have employed, and the organ ought, therefore, to have the whole and only "additional accompaniments" that may be engraved on Handel's compositions. It is a characteristic of our age, to seek to purify the masterpieces in the arts of poetry and painting from the corruptions time has encrusted upon them; and it is monstrous that, while most judicious pains are spent to this laudable end, as great talent and care should be exercised in modernizing the music of old masters, so as to annul in it the peculiarities of its own age, and present it, like old wine in new bottles, under an aspect that could not have been conceived by the original artist. When Dryden inserted new characters into the plays of Shakspeare, it might have been consistent to introduce new instruments with appropriate passages into the music of Handel, had that music been in existence at the time; that time has happily gone by in the literary art, and let us hope that it may go by-and-bye in the musical art for ever.

My Maker and my King. Sacred song for a Soprano. Words from Dr. Watts.

Slumber Song. Words translated from Körner, by N. B. Music by J. Stainer.

THAT music written to sacred words is not necessarily sacred music is now we think becoming generally felt; and we are glad, therefore, to find that those whose musical training has been especially within the Church are devoting their talents to religious compositions; for the spread of such works will do much towards displacing those vapid effusions which have so long been tolerated in our drawing-rooms. The composer of the song before us is now making his way as rapidly in creative as he has before done in executive art; and we may cordially commend this latest specimen of his talent to all who can appreciate healthful and pure writing. The words are set with a devotional feeling and a sympathy with their true import too rarely observable in modern sacred songs to be passed over. The flowing quaver accompaniment at the commencement—the figure given out in the symphony being well preserved—adds much interest to the voice part; and the harmonies, although occasionally somewhat bold, especially on the second page, are well considered and treated with the skill of an experienced theorist. The chorus at the conclusion will be found exceedingly effective, but it is announced that when a choir is not available, the upper notes may be taken by the soloist. We may mention that a harmonium part is published with the song, which we think will prove a valuable addition to the pianoforte accompaniment. The “Slumber Song” is no doubt destined to become extremely popular. It commences with a flowing and melodious subject (in 9-8 rhythm) for the pianoforte, which is continued on the entry of the voice with much effect. A beautiful change from A flat to E major occurs on the words, “Sleep, tired eyes,” the original subject and key being returned to by an enharmonic alteration, which is unquestionably one of the most charming points in the composition. The phrase, “Sweet, good night,” with which the song concludes, is most effectively lengthened out, the pianoforte part dying off with the subject which accompanies the opening of the song. A part for the harmonium is also added to this composition, which is equally available for the violoncello.

Ave Maria. Sacred Song. The English words adapted by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A. Composed by Franz Abt.

We are quite certain that this beautiful composition, by one of the most popular song writers of the day, requires only to be known to gain a general appreciation. “Ave Marias” are so plentiful that it is difficult indeed to set the well known words to music with the slightest claim to originality; but Herr Abt has given us a version of it which is so fresh and unconventional as to command attention; although, well as the Rev. J. Troutbeck has performed his task, we infinitely prefer the music to the Latin text, which is given underneath the English words. It commences with a fervent and truly religious melody in E major, accompanied with semiquavers in arpeggio, which are continued to the words “Teach us to know Thee,” when an animated triplet accompaniment occurs. An earnest and tranquil setting of the words “So in temptation” follows, the return to the arpeggios having an excellent effect as a contrast. The “Amen” is treated with much sympathy, both voice and pianoforte most truthfully expressing the devotional feeling of the hymn. We are glad to find that this “Ave Maria” is also published arranged for four voices by the composer; and have little doubt that in this form it will be warmly welcomed by those amateurs who prefer singing in parts.

On a faded Violet. Song. Written by Shelley. Composed by E. H. Thorne.

We have often said that the words of an artist must be set by an artist; for as an inferior composer can never rise to the level of a first-rate poet, his failure is made additionally apparent from the contrast. Mr. Thorne, however, is justified in the attempt he has here made, for he has on many occasions proved his fitness for the task, and in the song before us has thoroughly fulfilled our predictions as to the high rank he must take amongst the vocal writers of the day. His quiet theme, in E minor, with a simple chord accompaniment, breathes the true spirit of Shelley’s poetry; and a good effect is gained by the change to an agitato movement, accompanied with quavers, on the words “And mocks the heart which yet is warm.” The song is written for a low contralto; and as it has been already sung by Miss Enriquez, we have no doubt that it will speedily make its way both in public and private.

Notturmo, a due voci. For the Pianoforte. By Lindsay Sloper.

THE name of this accomplished artist appears but too rarely before the public, either as a pianist or a composer; but in both capacities he has already won a reputation which will ensure him a ready welcome. The little Notturmo before us is a graceful and musicianlike trifle, the parts being clearly and effectively written throughout, and the subject extremely melodious. Now that Mr. Sloper has broken his long silence, we hope shortly to meet him again in a composition of more importance.

A concise and practical explanation of the rules of simple Harmony and Thorough Bass, with chapters on Time, Keys, Intervals, and general elementary musical knowledge. By Thomas Smith.

THOSE who are constant readers of our reviewing columns must by this time be convinced that if amateur pianists do not study the theory as well as the practice of music, it is not for want of a sufficient supply of books on the subject. In spite of this fact, however, here is one more, by the “organising choir-master to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury,” the great fault of which is that, in the attempt to teach too much, it teaches nothing thoroughly. For instance, “The scale,” our author says, “is composed of thirteen semitones, comprised in an octave;” “all (major) scales are composed in precisely the same manner—i.e., with a semitone between the third and fourth, and seventh and eighth notes of the scale, all the rest being tones.” Nothing is said about the construction of a minor scale; but afterwards, in speaking of keys, we are told that every “major key has its relative minor;” and then, two minor scales being given, the pupil is left to discover for himself how it is formed. The false notion of believing a composition to be in a major key until it is proved to be in a minor is then enforced in these words: “To find out whether a piece is in a major or minor key, look through one or two lines of the music, and if the fifth of the key is repeatedly sharpened from its position according to the signature, it is not the major key represented by the signature, but its relative minor, the affected note being the seventh of the minor scale.” Why, this is teaching the student to do the very thing that he should be cautioned against doing. Will Mr. Smith turn, for example, to the opening of Beethoven’s “Sonata pathétique,” and say whether he believes that any pupil, even of average intellect, could “look through two or three lines of the music,” and imagine the key-note to be anything but C; and, if so, is it not utterly absurd to talk about the “fifth of the key” being “repeatedly sharpened?” Whilst young players are allowed to grow up thus instructed by those in whom they have a right to believe, we can expect but a limited amount of musical knowledge amongst our rising generation. In the chapter on “Time,” there is no explanation of the difference between duple and triple rhythm; but “all the other times” are said to be “taken from common time.” The only information as to compound time must be gathered from the following observation: “Simple times are those with only one principal accent in a bar,” by which we may infer that compound times only have more than one: what this means we are at a loss to understand. The chapter on Intervals contains a complete table of those which are chromatic, but diatonic intervals are left to be found out by the student, the only guide being that they are “those composed of notes incidental to the signature of the key.” Speaking of the first inversion of a common chord, our author says that the figure 6 indicates the harmony to be played, “which is the common chord of the sixth note above,” although he has previously explained that the chord is formed by taking the third for a bass instead of the fundamental note. The chord of the diminished seventh, he says, “is formed by raising the bass of the dominant seventh a semitone; the other notes incident to that chord remaining unaltered;” but as no mention is made of the fact that both root and key are completely changed by this process, we question whether “a little knowledge” of this kind is not “a dangerous thing” for young pupils. We agree with Mr. Smith that the “popular idea as to the use of Time in music is quite an erroneous one,” because, as he truly says, “the figures which denote time at the commencement of a piece do not in any way indicate the speed at which it is to be played.” Some other observations on the usual methods of teaching have also much weight; but, as we have shown, the matter contained in the book wants more careful consideration than the author has bestowed upon it; and we can by no means admit the truth of the assertion in the Preface that “sufficient is advanced to enable the student to modulate and extemporize fairly, and to understand what he plays,” especially as no rules either for modulation or extempore playing are given throughout the work, nor indeed (curiously enough) are these important subjects even mentioned.

F. PITMAN.

Music in the Western Church. A Lecture on the History of Psalmody, illustrated with examples of the music of the various periods. By William A. Leonard.

THE subject of Psalmody is occupying so large a share of public attention in the present day that a book popularly written and conveying reliable information upon the gradual growth of Church music cannot but prove of the highest interest. Such a work Mr. Leonard has provided, and in a form especially suited for extensive circulation. In his preface he truly asserts that the various "Histories of Music" do not present the subject in a sufficiently compact manner to be of service to students, and also mentions what we have ourselves seen in books professing to treat the matter historically, that the Gregorian Tones are often given with modern harmonies, although, as he says, "the merest tyro in musical history must know these tones were always sung in unison (and are to this day in the Roman Catholic Church except on special occasions), the employment of harmony being but of recent date." Mr. Leonard very wisely dwells but a short time upon the probable origin of music—passing over the question as to whether the songs of birds or the whistling of the wind in the hollow reeds first gave to man the notion of constructing a science of sound—and comes rapidly to the period when music in the Western Church may be said to have commenced. The several reforms introduced by Ambrose, Gregory and Guido are lucidly explained, and the influence of Luther is ably dwelt upon. The rise of psalm singing, after the Reformation, by the whole English nation, is shown to have given an impetus to the spread of sacred music which has ever since been felt. Bishop Jewel wrote in 1560, "You may sometimes see at Paul's Cross, after the service, 6,000 persons, old and young, of both sexes, all singing together and praising God;" and he adds, "this sadly annoys the mass-priests and the devil, for they perceive that by these means the sacred discourses sink more deeply into the minds of men, and that their kingdom is weakened and shaken at almost every note." Amongst the several Tune-books published was one in 1583, with this extraordinary title, "Seven Sobs of a Sorrowful Soul for Sinne, comprehending those seven psalms of the princelie prophet David, commonly called Penitential, reduced into prophet William Hunnis, whereunto are also annexed his handfull of honisuckles." From this book no extracts are given; but from Ravenscroft's Psalter the tune set by Ravenscroft himself to the 104th Psalm is printed in full, and indeed the various specimens of Church music, as representative of the different epochs, render this book extremely interesting. Mr. Leonard is an enthusiastic advocate of congregational singing; and although he cannot but admire the many beautiful services for the Church, as abstract religious music, he does not believe that their performance by a trained choir apart from the people, can possibly conduce to true devotion. "Where a company of singers are paid to 'perform' certain music in public worship," he says, "neither 'a natural and spontaneous utterance' nor due reverence are to be found;" but our author must recollect that the clergyman and organist also are paid; and unless, therefore, the people are to perform the service themselves, it is an exceedingly difficult thing to know where to draw the line.

HOULSTON AND SONS.

The Life of J. Sebastian Bach. An abridged translation from the German of C. H. Bitter. By Janet E. Kay-Shuttleworth. With Preface by Sir Julius Benedict.

SINCE the publication of a small book on the life and writings of John Sebastian Bach, adapted from the German of Hilgenfeldt and Forkel, and noticed in the Musical Times of July, 1869, the interest in everything relating to this great composer has steadily increased; and there can be little doubt, therefore, that this somewhat more important work, so ably translated by Miss Kay-Shuttleworth, will be extensively read. Bach's was certainly an uneventful life, but it is one which may be studied with profit by those who, impatient to court a fleeting fame, are too prone to trifle with the art which it should be their mission to ennoble. When we read that in his nineteenth year Bach received his first appointment as organist of the new church at Arnstadt at a salary of fifty florins, besides thirty thalers for board and lodging (making in all about £8 13s. in English money), it is certain that at the very commencement of his career he must have worked hard enough at teaching in order to get the bare means of living; and it is wonderful indeed that he could have found sufficient time to bestow upon that severe study which in after years produced such noble results. That the furtherance of Church music, apart from all selfish considerations, was the one object he kept steadily in view may be gathered from the fact of his continuing to display his artistic skill at the organ, instead of simply playing the tunes, and positively refusing to conduct the music with no better choir than the school children, in spite of his being constantly rebuked by the elders of the church for his insubordination. As an additional reason for their dissatisfaction with the young artist, it may be mentioned that having obtained leave of absence for four weeks to go to Lüneburg, for the purpose of hearing the celebrated organist, Dietrich Buxtehude, he stayed upwards of three months, although there can be no doubt of the sincerity of his mission when we find that he made the journey on foot, about sixty German miles, in bleak autumnal weather, and that he listened in a corner of the church to the great organist's performance until the emptiness of his purse warned him to return to his duties at Arnstadt. Although Bach composed several important pieces (and amongst the rest the first part of the "Wohltemperirte Clavier"), before his appointment as choir-master of the Thomas School at Leipzig, it was not until he obtained this position that he was enabled to dispense with teaching, and consequently the whole of the time that he could snatch from the duties of his office was bestowed upon composition. To show the attention that he gave to the choice of music in the Church service, we may mention that instead of allowing Cantatas or Motets to be sung merely as abstract compositions, he made it a rule to ascertain from the clergymen the texts of the sermons for the following Sunday, and to choose Cantatas on the same or corresponding texts. It is said that "a series of Cantatas for every Sunday and festival for five years—about 380 in all—was composed by Bach, chiefly during the first years of his stay at Leipzig," and of these we find that 186 for particular days, and 32 without any days specified, still remain. When we consider how little the works of this great composer were valued after they had served the purpose for which they were written, we cease to wonder that so many have entirely disappeared. The greater part of his manuscripts were divided between his two sons, W. Friedemann and C. P. Emanuel. Friedemann parted with many of these during his lifetime, and although Emanuel carefully preserved his share of his father's works, after his death they were sold by auction, and as a proof how little was thought of them, we are informed that the "Kunst der Fuge" went for 8 marks, 2 schillings, the Orgelbüchlein for the same, the Magnificat in A flat for 10 marks, 4 schillings, and the Magnificat in D for 7 marks, 8 schillings, at an auction where other compositions were sold at high prices. On the manuscript score of the Sanctus, in the Mass in B minor, is a note in Bach's handwriting:—"The separate parts are in Bohemia, at Count Spork's." Investigations were made in consequence of this note; the parts were not found, and it was supposed they had been given to the gardener to bind round grafted fruit trees. It appears to have taken ninety-three years to discover that Bach was worthy of a monument; for, after this interval of time, such a memorial was erected, in admiration of his genius, opposite the house in which he had lived by one of his most ardent worshippers—Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy. We cannot conclude our notice of this interesting volume without awarding the highest praise to Sir Julius Benedict for the admirable Preface with which he gracefully introduces the book to the English reader. So much excellent advice is here tendered to youthful students that we should like to quote many portions of his earnest address, but our limited space shall not prevent our extracting the following sentence, with every word of which we cordially agree:—"In these stirring times, when we see a boundless ambition but too often prompting artists to seek the satisfaction of a world-wide renown by the applause and demonstrations of the multitude, and overthrowing honest convictions to pander to the vitiated taste of the present day, it is truly refreshing to revert to the last century and behold a most eminent musician revelling solely in his art, and seeking no other reward than the inward consciousness of his own merit—no other recompense than the acknowledgment of his worth by his family and a few kindred spirits."

LAMBORN COCK.

The Brooklet. A Musical Sketch for the Pianoforte. By Eaton Fanning.

WE do not like this sketch any less because it reflects throughout the graceful and melodious style of Sir Sterndale

Bennett. It is charmingly written, and, evidently the work of a trained pianist, may be conscientiously recommended both for practice and performance to all students who are desirous of cultivating the various shades of touch. The creeping semiquaver accompaniment, although played with the same hand which sings the melody, is well considered; and, the leading fingers being marked, no difficulty will be experienced in realising the effect intended by the composer. We congratulate Mr. Fanning on having made an excellent beginning.

ENOCH AND SONS.

The Musical Monthly. A Magazine of new copyright Music. Edited by Sir Julius Benedict. No. 6.

THE number for May of this magazine contains a fair amount of attractive music, both vocal and instrumental, but we scarcely think that in these periodical works composers, as a rule, put forth their greatest strength. In the instrumental part a "Sérénade mauresque," by Ed. Roedel, and a March by E. Metzendorff; and in the vocal part a Prayer by Gounod, "After Parting," by Henry Smart, and "Were I a little bird," by Franz Behr, may be cited as amongst the best pieces. As we before said, there is a foreign air about the publication which will, we fear, prevent its general acceptance here, especially as we find that even the English fingering is not adopted.

Original Correspondence.

MR. W. DAWSON'S "LARGO AND ANDANTE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—In your review of my "Largo and Andante," in this month's number of the Musical Times, you say "He is very scrupulous about enharmonic propriety, for he writes successively E♭, D♯, and E♭ again. I may here say that the D♯ should be D♭, as the sharp was not to be found in the original manuscript, and must have been inserted by the engraver in a mistake, and which I failed to correct in the proof.

Assuming it to have been in the manuscript, I fail to see how F♯ can be derived from the chord of ♯ on D, as D♯ is not the 9th, but an augmented 8th from D. The real root of the chord, in my opinion, is B♯, if 7♯ is understood; or, if not, then A♭ with 3 resolved enharmonically.

Yours faithfully,

15, Jasmine Street, Liverpool,
May 10th, 1873.

W. DAWSON.

[Mr. Dawson is undoubtedly correct as to the root of the chord which is printed; but this chord is alien to the key of C minor, in which his passage is cast, and the printed D sharp must be translated into E flat, to assimilate it to this tonality, and it was translated accordingly by the reviewer when he described it harmonically as the minor 9th of D. Such false notation is not rare in the writings of the best masters, by whom it is employed to economise accidentals, and save the trouble of reading the contradiction of a flat to one E by a natural to the next. In the substitution of D♯, the appearance of the printed incident under notice suggested the supposition that the author considered a chord of the 9th of B to be available in C minor, and it is satisfactory to find that the appearance is due to the engraver's error, and that Mr. Dawson entertains no such view.—THE WRITER OF THE REVIEW.]

"MANFRED."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—Having seen in last month's Musical Times your answers to "Subscribers'" questions respecting the above opera, I write to say, in answer to your second answer ("We do not know of any part of either of them being arranged for the organ") that the entr'acte from Reinecke's setting of the above opera is arranged for the organ by E. Prout, and published by Augener and Co.

Believe me, Sir, yours truly,

May 1st.

A. B. ALLEN.

MR. JACKSON'S TRIO.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—Permit me to correct your reviewer. In the last number, viz., for this month, he stated my Vocal Trio to be published by Messrs. Duncan Davison and Co.; such is not the case—it is published by Lamborn Cock.

Believe me, yours, &c.,

JOHN JACKSON.

29, Alfred Place, Bedford Square,
May 7th, 1873.

MUSIC IN BATH ABBEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—Had Mr. Pyne chosen to tell the whole truth, there would have been no need of this reply.

When I penned my former note I was ignorant of the fact that, in a recent edition, the last line of the hymn had been altered. I and two friends, sitting in different parts of the congregation, unfortunately had books of a former edition, and (my friends agree in this) heard the people round us singing the words and music exactly as I have before stated. Moreover, my principal objection is to the tune being sung to those words at all, whether the last line be sung through twice or not. My case stands thus:—Is it right, or wrong, to sing the following words, being the first verse of the hymn, to "Adeste Fideles," when such tunes as "Hanover," "Montgomery," &c., are available, and equally well known?

"Though troubles assail, and dangers affright,
Though friends should all fail, and foes all unite
Yet one thing secures us, whatever betide
The Scripture assures us 'The Lord will provide.'"

Were the above submitted to a musical jury, I doubt not their verdict would justify

Your humble and thankful servant,

D.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

ENQUIRER.—Yes.

J. G. C.—We would recommend Novello's "Concise Explanation of the Gregorian note," and Charles Child Spencer's "Concise Explanation of the Church Modes," both published by Novello, Ewer and Co.

J. STEWART.—Thompson's Collection of Scottish Airs edited and arranged by Haydn and Beethoven (published in several volumes), and Napier's Collection, in three parts, for Violin, Voice, and Bass, edited by Haydn are out of print, and can only be occasionally met with at second-hand music shops.

AN AMATEUR.—The Organ is used in the performance of Oratorio, because in nine cases out of ten the composer has intended it. The organ part played on the occasion alluded to was written by the composer himself. The loudness of the organ may be explained by the position "An Amateur" occupied in the hall.

Brief Summary of Country News.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary; as all the notices are either collated from the local papers, or supplied to us by occasional correspondents.

ABERDEEN.—The concert by the bands of children that were successful in the late contest for the prize money offered by the Aberdeen Musical Association took place in the Music Hall on Saturday afternoon the 10th ult., and was, as might have been expected, very largely attended. Sheriff Dove Wilson, who occupied the chair, introduced the business of the evening, and paid the highest compliment to the President of the Association, Mr. James Walker, to whom he said they were not only indebted for the idea of the competition, but for the means of carrying it out by supplying himself the necessary funds. Mr. James Walker, after a felicitous speech in which he expressed an earnest hope that time would bring forth a higher standard of ability amongst musical teachers of the young, proceeded to distribute the prize money to the instructors of the successful bands. Of course, the lady teachers received very hearty welcome, but the ovation of the evening was unmistakably given to the blind teacher of the Garlogie band, Mr. John Moir, who, strangely enough, received the eight guinea prize for reading music at sight. The applause with which he was greeted on being led forward merged into cheers, when it became palpable to the audience that Mr. Moir had not the use of his vision. After the prizes had been presented, the beautiful badge of the Association, wrought in silk, was given to each child that took part in the proceedings. In regard to this badge, Sheriff Wilson stated that it had been designed by Mr. George Reid, A.R.S.A., and had been executed with great beauty by Coventry weavers. He also mentioned that these badges in themselves were of greater value than all the other money prizes put together. The children of the prize bands, numbering about six hundred, then sang an excellent selection of music, under the conductorship of Mr. Alex. Laing, Mr. Morrison presiding at the organ; and all the pieces were given with a very distinct enunciation, and with a precision and effect in the highest degree commendable. It remains now that this stimulus which has been given to music, originated by Mr. Walker, in which he has had the valuable assistance of Mr. Alexander Machray, the secretary, and the other members of the committee, be carried on to still more successful results.—HANDEL'S Oratorio Jephtha was given by the Choral Union with great success on the 25th April. The Union may well be congratulated in obtaining the valuable aid of Mr. Thurley Beale, whose singing throughout the evening proved how thoroughly he had been trained to appreciate and expound Handel's eloquent music. He has a fine, rich baritone voice, which has evidently been most carefully cultivated; and in all his solos he so effectually won the good opinion of the audience as to create a strong desire that his services may be secured for future performances. Miss Banks has already earned a reputation for the rendering of the music in Jephtha, and on this occasion she sang with even more than her usual effect "The smiling dawn of happy days," "Farewell, ye limpid streams, and 'Tune the soft, melodious lute," all of which were much applauded. Miss Adelaide Newton was also highly successful in the contralto solos, and Mr. Alfred Kenningham received a well-deserved encore for the air "Waft her, angels." The choruses were finely given, especially "When his loud voice in thunder spoke," "How dark, O Lord, are Thy decrees," "Cherub and Seraphim," and "Ye house of Gilead," with the final "Amen." The band was ably led by Mr. Justice, junr.; Mr. Morison was an excellent accompanist at the organ, and Mr. Laing conducted with much care and judgment.

BELFAST.—A farewell complimentary concert was given to Mr. A. McElaney, Band-master of the 78th Highlanders, at the Ulster Hall, on the 30th April. Amongst the vocalists particular mention must be made of Miss Josephine Briggs (a pupil of Mr. B. Hobson Carroll), who was enthusiastically encored in a song by Ardit, and a similar compliment was paid to the young tenor Mr. McGuchin in both his solos. The band of the 78th Regiment, conducted by Mr. McElaney, played several pieces, including compositions by the band-master. Mr. Carroll conducted a choir of about fifty voices with much ability, and also performed a brilliant pianoforte solo.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—The St. Mary's Choir Glee and Madrigal Society, gave its concluding concert for the season on the 6th ult., when, as usual, there was a very numerous auditory. The glees and part-songs were executed in almost faultless style, the light and shade being most attentively observed. The solo vocalist was Madame Ashton, of London, who was most enthusiastically encored in all her songs. A band of amateur instrumentalists added much to the enjoyment of the audience, by their excellent performance of the overtures to Zampa and Masaniello. Mr. G. Whitehead played the accompaniments in good style, and Mr. T. B. Richardson (who was warmly congratulated on the great improvement in his choir) conducted with his well-known ability.

CAMBRIDGE.—On the 21st ult., the St. John's College Musical Society, gave its annual concert, in the Guildhall, to a large and fashionable audience. The pieces performed were Gounod's Psalm, De Profundis; the 3rd part of the Creation; the last two movements of Mozart's Pianoforte Concerto, in D minor; and Macfarren's Cantata, May Day. Miss Jessie Jones, of the Royal Academy of Music, took the soprano solos, the remaining parts being entrusted to Messrs. Bennett, Bilton, Poole, and Reynolds. Mr. F. W. Reynolds played the Concerto, and Dr. G. M. Garrett, Organist of the College, conducted. The orchestra of about 30 performers, was chiefly composed of amateurs, but was under the leadership of Mr. Kettenus.—The Amateur Musical Society gave its fifty-fourth quarterly concert in the Guildhall, on the 21st ult., the principal feature in which was the performance of Henry Smart's Cantata, The Bride of Dunkerron, a work which appears to be fast gaining ground in public favour. Miss Edith Wynne, Mr. Lloyd, and Mr. O. Christian, were the principal vocalists, all of whom were highly effective. The choruses of sea-maidens were especially successful with the audience; and the applause throughout the Cantata proved how thoroughly the melodious music of Mr. Smart was appreciated by the listeners. There were several encores for the songs in the miscellaneous part which followed, and a solo on the harp, by Mr. Ffrench Davies, was also re-demanded.

CHELMSFORD.—The Chelmsford Vocal and Instrumental Society gave a highly successful performance of Handel's Messiah at the Corn Exchange on the 14th ult. The principal vocalists were Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Julia Elton, Mr. Raynham, and Mr. R. Hilton, all of whom were thoroughly effective in the solos allotted to them. Madame Sherrington in "I know that my Redeemer liveth," Miss Elton in "He was despised," Mr. Raynham in "Comfort ye," and "Every valley," and more especially in the whole of the Passion Music, and Mr. Hilton in "Why do the nations," receiving the heartiest and most genuine applause. The choruses were given with excellent precision and effect, reflecting the utmost credit upon the enterprising and zealous conductor Mr. Harold E. Stidolph.

CHELTONHAM.—The first public rehearsal of the Glee and Madrigal Society was given on Monday the 12th ult., at the Corn Exchange, under the conductorship of Mr. Loaring, before a large and influential audience. The rendering of the concerted music was such as could not fail to satisfy the most critical ears. Mr. Loaring's pianoforte solo, "A Festive March," composed by himself, received a well-merited encore, a compliment which was also paid to Messrs. Twining, Gilding and Waddams, for the very tasteful rendering of their respective songs.—On Thursday evening, the 15th ult., at the usual weekly practice of Mr. J. A. Matthews's Choral Society, the members presented the conductor with a testimonial in the form of a bâton, subscribed for by them in recognition of the regard and esteem he has been held in during the three years the Society has been in existence. The presentation was made on behalf of the members, by Mr. A. Bruton. The bâton was supplied by Messrs. Hawkes and Co., of Soho Square, London, and is made of ivory, the handle being beautifully carved, and richly ornamented with gold. An address, printed in gold letters on a blue ground, and handsomely framed, was presented at the same time.

CHESTERFIELD.—On Thursday the 1st ult., the members of the Choral Society gave another of their high class concerts in the Market Hall. The pieces selected were Spohr's sacred Cantata, God, Thou art great, and Sir Sterndale Bennett's May Queen. Both works had been most carefully prepared by the Society, which includes in its list of members nearly all the local amateurs of musical tastes, and it is almost needless to say that under the direction of Mr. T. T. Trimmell, everything had been done that was possible to faithfully represent the ideas of the composers. The principal performers were Miss Twigg, soprano; Miss Morton, mezzo-soprano; Mr. Cooper, tenor; and Mr. Fletcher, bass. The performance of the Cantata was remarkable for the excellence of the choruses, which were given with great precision and unity. The solos and duets were also sung with taste and expression, Miss Twigg doing full justice to "Thou earth, waft sweet incense," and being also very effective (with Mr. Cooper) in the duet "Children, pray this love to cherish." The second part was more appreciated by the audience, from the beauty and lively character of the music in the May Queen, coupled with the fact that secular music is generally more liked on such occasions as these than even the grandest works of a sacred character. The overture was brilliantly performed, and in the solos Miss Twigg, Messrs. Cooper and Fletcher were thoroughly successful; Mr. Norman Biggin presided at the harmonium, and Mr. Trimmell conducted with his accustomed skill. The concluding choruses were given with vigour and precision, and the performance ended amid hearty applause.

DEVIZES.—The Choral Society gave an excellent performance of Samson in the Corn Exchange, on Tuesday, the 13th ult. The solos were sung with much taste and feeling by Miss Fannie Osman, Miss Julia Elton, Mr. Hunt, and Mr. Orlando Christian, and were thoroughly appreciated by an audience of nearly 1,100 persons. Mr. Sharpe's admirable accompaniments on the harmonium greatly contributed to the success of the performance. The choruses were given with much precision and effect, and the band, ably led by Mr. Salisbury, was highly efficient. Miss Osman's rendering of "Let the bright Seraphim" (trumpet obbligato by Mr. Lugg) was one of the features of the concert. The band and chorus of about 120 performers was, as usual, under the direction of Mr. J. T. Abraham, the honorary conductor of the Society.

DOUGLAS, ISLE OF MAN.—Miss Wood, who has for so long been known as an able instructress of large vocal classes, gave a highly interesting concert on the 7th ult., at the Victoria Hall. Madame Bellinie Porter achieved a marked success in all her vocal solos, especially in Blumenthal's song "A Day-dream," and Bishop's "Bid me discourse," the latter of which was encored. Miss Wood was most warmly received and heartily applauded for her artistic singing in the solo part of "Autumn winds," and also for her share in Kalliwoda's duet "The meeting," with Madame Porter. Mr. Kerruish and the Rev. T. H. Raven contributed songs with much effect, and a solo on the pianoforte by Mr. Musgrave was re-demanded. The choir sang well throughout the concert, Sullivan's "O hush thee, my babe," being especially well rendered. Mr. J. B. Mason, late of Chester, conducted with skill and judgment.

DUNOON.—A performance of Handel's Messiah, was given by the Choral Union in the Baptist church on the 29th April, before a highly appreciative audience. This young society, which was organised only last year, sang the choruses in very creditable style, and the principals, Miss Ramsay (soprano), Miss Ogilvie (contralto), Mr. Methven (tenor), and Mr. Currie (bass), rendered the solos with much effect. The gentlemen, who are amateurs, consented at a day's notice to supply the places of the tenor and bass who were unable to fulfil their engagement. Mr. Galloway was an efficient conductor, and Mr. Scott presided ably at the harmonium.

EARLESTOWN.—The first concert of the Earlestown Choral Society was given on the 13th ult. The Society was only formed about three months ago, but owing to the talent and untiring energy of the conductor, the Rev. J. Sandish (recently appointed curate of the Parish Church), it has arrived at a very good state of efficiency. The sacred part of the programme comprised selections from Handel, Mozart, Mendelssohn, &c.; and the secular part from Hatten, Mendelssohn, Sullivan, &c. The choruses which call for especial remark were, "Lead on" (Judas Maccabæus), "Kyrie" and "Gloria" (12th Mass), "Belfry tower," and "Whether kissed by sunbeams." The soloists were Miss Lythgoe (soprano), Miss Taylor (contralto), Messrs. Porter, Jackson, and Pearson (tenors); and Messrs. Bowns, Burchall and Hume, (basses). Miss Lythgoe's most successful effort was "Up to the forest hie;" and Miss Taylor (who possesses a good voice) sang "O rest in the Lord," "He was despised," and Mendelssohn's "Cradle song," very charmingly. Mr. Porter gave an intelligent rendering of "Waft her, angels," and Mr. Bowns sang "Arm, arm, ye brave," in a very spirited manner. In the secular part, Mr. Porter in "Once again," and Mr. Bowns in "The iron blacksmith," were highly effective; and Mr. Burchall (who made his début on the occasion) was well received. Miss Greenall very ably acted as accompanist. The Society, numbering about sixty voices, may be congratulated upon a complete success for its first concert both musically and financially.

ESSEX.—Mr. Septimus Parker's third subscription concert took place at the Spread Eagle Assembly Rooms on the 22nd ult. The programme was varied and interesting, and the performance gave the utmost satisfaction to a large audience.

FREIBERG, SAXONY.—The Musical Union, conducted by Herr Eckhardt, Music Director of this town, produced at the last concert, given April 27th, Haydn's Seasons, and a work by Reinecke, entitled Der Vierjährige Posten. The performance was a complete success. Mlle. Martha Eckhardt, a daughter of the conductor, sang some of the solos in a highly effective manner, displaying musical culture of no mean order.

GRANGE.—On the 26th April, the Grange-over-sands Musical Society gave its annual Easter concert, the programme of which was composed exclusively of sacred music. The principal vocalists, Miss Hubbersty, Miss Lolloway, Mrs. Strongtharm, Miss Drewry, Mr. T. J. Harrison and Mr. Ashley, were highly effective in all their solos, and the pianoforte playing of the Misses Bigland and Drewry and Mrs. James Harrison, was also much admired. Mr. Bather was a most efficient conductor.

GREENOCK.—The seventeenth annual private concert of the Choral Society was given in the Town Hall on the 8th ult. The programme consisted of Mr. A. S. Sullivan's Te Deum, (composed for the Festival held at the Crystal Palace to celebrate the recovery of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales), a selection of cathedral anthems by Doctors Croft, Hayes, and Wesley, and Mr. G. A. Macfarren's Cantata May Day. The Te Deum was excellently sung throughout, the soprano solos being most effectively rendered by Miss Reid. May Day was also highly successful, Miss Reid obtaining a deserved encore for the melodious and characteristic song with a burden. Mr. Pearce's organ performance was an interesting feature in the programme, and his accompaniments were also extremely well played. Mr. Middleton, who conducted, deserves the utmost credit for the state of efficiency to which he has brought this now flourishing Society.

Haverhill, Suffolk.—A concert was given by the Haverhill Choral Union, on the 9th ult. The programme consisted of Mr. J. F. Barnett's Cantata, Paradise and the Peri, and a miscellaneous part. The principal soloists were Miss Jessie Jones, R.A.M., and Messrs. Booth, Robson and Duffell, of King's College, Cambridge. The band was led by Mr. C. Sippel of Cambridge. Mrs. Gurteen presided at the pianoforte, Mr. Thos. Jarvis at the harmonium, and Mr. D. Gurteen, jun., conducted. The band and chorus numbered about 80 performers. The solo parts, quartets, and choruses, were well rendered, and the performance generally was considered a great success.

HOLYWELL, OXFORD.—An excellent amateur concert was given in the Music Room, on Friday evening the 2nd ult, in aid of the funds of the Oxford Homeopathic Dispensary, under the auspices of Dr. Guinness, who is at the head of that Institution. The whole of the programme was gone through in the most satisfactory manner, and the audience remained in the room until the end—sufficient proof that the various performances were appreciated. The pianoforte playing of Dr. Guinness's daughter (Mrs. Wentworth Austin) was loudly applauded, and Thalberg's "Home, sweet home" was encored. We must also speak of the reading of Mr. A. D'Esterre Guinness, who possesses histrionic abilities of a high order, and was listened to with the deepest attention. Dr. Guinness received much applause for his song "The dream of life," which was composed by the late Rev. Dr. Slater, of Exeter Cathedral. It has never been published, and this was the first time it had been sung in public. Mr. Edgar Sheppard, Mr. C. Jones, Mr. Bellairs, Mr. Carboneil, Mr. Pereira, and his talented son and daughter, were highly effective in all their solos, and Mr. Sheppard, Mr. Jones and Miss Pereira were encored. Mr. Dodds, the organist of Queen's College, conducted the concert most ably, and, as usual, delighted everybody with his pianoforte playing. The room was quite full, and Dr. Guinness may be congratulated on the success which has attended his first musical effort in Oxford, on behalf of this useful charity.

LANCASTER.—The organ of the Parish Church was re-opened on Monday, the 19th ult, after extensive alterations. G. P. England, the original builder of the organ in the Parish Church, was a man of considerable note in his day, having erected instruments in numerous churches throughout England, all of which appear to have earned for him a good name. The cost of the organ in the "High Church" at Lancaster, according to Hopkins and Dr. Rimbault, in their History of the Organ, was £672, and the date 1809. This latter however does tally with the brass plate which used to be in front of the keys, before the present alteration took place, and on which was engraved: "G. P. England, Londini, fecit, 1811." In all probability the last-named date is the correct one, as there were to be found on other parts of the instrument further proofs of this. The organ was in a most unfinished state on the day of opening, so that it was impossible for Mr. Dean to display it to anything like advantage, but as soon as it is really complete, one or two recitals of sacred music will be given on it in order to afford the inhabitants of Lancaster an opportunity of judging of the various qualities of the instrument. The following was the music sung at the morning and evening services by a choir of about sixty voices—Morning: Venite, chant by Jones; Psalms for the day, chant by Kelway; Te Deum, chant by Rimbault; Benedictus, chant by Battishill; Anthem, "Stand up and bless the Lord," (Sir John Goss); Hymns 121 and 124 from Hymns Ancient and Modern; Kyrie, Creed, Sanctus, Gloria in Excelsis (Marbeck). Evening: Psalms for the day, chant by Aldrich; Magnificat, chant by Macfarren; Nunc Dimittis, chant by Savage; Anthem selected from the Messiah—Bass Solo, "Thou art gone up on High;" Chorus, "Lift up your heads;" Recitative, "He that dwelleth in heaven;" Chorus, "Hallelujah;" Hymns, 121, 293, 318, 136, Hymns Ancient and Modern. An offertory was made at the close of the services which realised upwards of 65*l*. We understand that the cost of the alterations amounts to between 1400*l*. and 1500*l*. of which about one half yet requires to be raised.

LEICESTER.—On Wednesday the 14th ult., Mr. W. T. Best, the celebrated organist of St. George's Hall, Liverpool, and the Albert Hall, London, gave two enjoyable recitals in St. Martin's Church, the programme in the forenoon being as follows:—Adagio, W. T. Best; Andante, S. S. Wesley; Allegretto and Fugue, Bach; Pastoral, C. M. Widor; Allegretto and Allegro, A. Guilmant; Allegro gioioso, W. T. Best; Andante from an organ concerto, Handel. We need scarcely add that Mr. Best not only fully maintained the high reputation he has gained, but amply realised the most sanguine expectations which had been formed, and displayed the power and varied capabilities of the organ to the best advantage. The evening programme was—Andante, H. Smart; Allegretto, A. Guilmant; March (with vox humana), W. T. Best; variations on the hymn, "O sanctissima," F. Lux; Andante, Handel; Marche funebre, et chant seraphique, A. Guilmant. On each occasion the pieces were interspersed with verses of hymns by the choir. At the conclusion collections were made on behalf of the organ fund, the total amount realised being about £48.

LINCOLN.—The re-opening of the Wesleyan Chapel organ, after extensive additions and improvements by Mr. T. H. Nicholson, organ builder, of Lincoln, took place on the 23rd ult., when two recitals were given by Mr. W. T. Best, the celebrated organist of Liverpool. The instrument is now one of the best, if not the best, in the county of Lincoln. It possesses three complete claviers, and a separate pedal organ. There are thirty-six stops (thirty-two of which are sounding stops) containing 1,635 pipes. The wind is supplied by two large horizontal bellows, placed in the basement and remote from the organ itself, which are blown by an hydraulic engine. The first recital took place in the afternoon, the company numbering about 700. The pieces selected thoroughly tested the instrument, and showed that Mr. Nicholson fully deserves the high reputation he has attained as an organ builder. Mr. Best's manipulation was really wonderful, and so rich a musical treat has not been provided in this city for many years. The following was the programme of the afternoon recital: Overture to the oratorio, Samson (Handel); Andante with variations (J. Lemmens); Prelude and Fugue (Bach); Allegretto, from the Symphony to the Hymn of Praise (Mendelssohn); March, from an Orchestral Suite (F. Lacner); Air with variations (W. T. Best); Chorus "Hallelujah," (Mount of Olives), Beethoven. The second recital took place at 7 p.m. The gallery of the chapel was crowded to excess, and the lower part was fairly filled, the company numbering about 1,700. The programme was as follows: Organ Concerto (Handel); Variations on the Hymn, "O Sanctissima" (F. Lux); Organ Sonata (Mendelssohn); Chorus, by the Choir, "Hallelujah" (Messiah), Handel; Toccata and Fugue (Bach); Air with variations (Haydn); air, "He layeth the beams of His chambers in the waters" (Handel); chorus, by the choir, from the Creation. "The Heavens are telling" (Haydn). The chapel choir was assisted by members of the Cathedral and other choirs in the city, and the choruses were rendered in a style rarely heard in Lincoln. The "Hallelujah" was wonderfully effective, and was deservedly applauded enthusiastically. Mr. C. Roberts conducted with his usual ability.

LIVERPOOL.—Miss Lillian Barrett gave her first annual concert on the 1st ult., assisted by Mrs. Skeaf, Mrs. G. Keef, Mr. Geo. Barton, Mr. G. Hardie, and Mr. W. Jarrett Roberts. Mr. Skeaf presided at the piano. There was a numerous audience, and the concert gave much satisfaction.

LONGSIGHT.—Mr. C. W. Whitmore gave a concert on Monday the 12th ult., in the Mechanics' Institute, for the benefit of some orphans in the neighbourhood. All the artists gave their services, namely, Miss Catherine Pickering, Miss Edith Clelland, Miss Hancock, Mr. Alfred Coleman, Mr. Ellis, Mr. Greenwood, and Mr. Whitmore. The last named gentleman performed two solos on Mr. Hargreaves's American cross strung iron frame pianoforte, which were well received by a very critical audience. Miss Catherine Pickering and Mr. Ellis were recalled after their songs; and the trio "O Memory" (sung by Miss Pickering, Miss Clelland and Mr. Whitmore) was one of the vocal gems of the evening. A quintet, "Good Night," brought the concert to a successful close.

LOWESTOFT.—The performance of Handel's Messiah at the Public Hall on the morning and evening of the 25th April was thoroughly successful. Madame Wells, Madame Poole, Mrs. Browne, Messrs. Minns and Smith were highly effective in the solos, and the choruses, under the skilful direction of Mr. F. A. Mann (who has spent some time in the preparation of the work) were finely given throughout. Mr. Wilkin led the band, and Mr. A. Mann ably presided at the harmonium. The hall was crowded in every part.

MALVERN.—The members of the Malvern Link Choral Union gave their third concert for the season on the 13th ult., in the Lecture Hall, Malvern Link. The performance was excellent throughout, several pieces being encored. Between the parts of the programme, Mr. Klitz, (whose indefatigable exertions have brought the Society to its present state of efficiency) was presented by the Rev. E. Acton Davies, with a handsome ornamental clock as a mark of esteem from the members of the Association, and in testimony of their high appreciation of his valuable services.

PAISLEY.—On the evening of Friday, the 25th April, the Tonic Sol-fa Institute gave a successful concert at the Drill Hall. The choral music was excellently rendered, and pianoforte pieces were most efficiently performed by Miss Hoek, who also acted as accompanist. Mr. John A. Brown conducted with much care and judgment.

PERTH.—On Monday evening the 19th ult., the Enterpene Society gave the second rehearsal of this season in the City Hall. The programme included Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, Schubert's "Twenty-third Psalm," and Haydn's Seasons (Spring). Several part-songs were also given, and three vocal solos were successfully rendered by lady members of the Society. The Hymn of Praise and Haydn's Spring, were accompanied on the pianoforte by a member of the Society in a very efficient manner, and Mr. Hurst (Dundee), presided with much ability at the harmonium. Mrs. Hempel, in addition to accompanying Schubert's Psalm and the songs, conducted throughout the evening most effectively.

PLYMOUTH.—The performance of Handel's Oratorio Israel in Egypt by the Amateur Vocal Union, at the Albert Hall, on the 23rd April, was a decided success, in spite of the absence of Mr. Vernon Rigby, from indisposition, and the fact of Madam Demeric-Lablache being unable, from the same cause, to sing more than one song. Their places were supplied at a short notice by Mr. Selwyn Graham and Madlle. Pauline Rita, both of whom, considering the circumstances, acquitted themselves extremely well. The difficult choruses were rendered with a precision and effect reflecting the highest credit upon Mr. Löhr, who conducted the work with much ability. There was a thoroughly efficient orchestra, led by Mr. Reed.

RETFORD.—A full dress rehearsal was given by the Choral Society in the Town Hall on the 30th April, before a large audience. Sir Sterndale Bennett's Cantata, the May Queen, was excellently sung throughout, both the choral and solo parts showing the result of much judicious training. The second part was miscellaneous, and contained some well-selected part-songs, glees, and choruses, all of which were warmly received, W. Macfarren's "You stole my love" being enthusiastically re-demanded. Mr. Hamilton White was an efficient conductor.

RUNCORN.—A concert was given at the Public Hall on Monday, the 5th ult. The artists engaged were Miss Edith Wynne, Mrs. Kate Wynne Matheson, Mr. H. T. Bywater, Mr. T. J. Hughes, and Mr. Skeaf, solo pianoforte and conductor. Miss Wynne received a most cordial reception, and all the other artists were highly appreciated; the hall was filled in every part, and no doubt the object of the promoters would be realised by having a good surplus to hand over to the Welsh Chapel fund.

SCARBOROUGH.—On Tuesday evening the 29th April, an invitation concert was given by the members of the Amateur Vocal and Instrumental Society, at the Prince of Wales Hotel. The Society was only established rather more than two years ago, and the office of conductor is undertaken by Dr. Sloman as a labour of love, from a wish to promote a taste for good music amongst the inhabitants of Scarborough. Two entire works, besides many part-songs, have now been publicly performed by the members of this Society. The concert on the 29th April consisted of Mozart's 12th Mass, followed by a miscellaneous selection consisting of part-songs, vocal solos, and an instrumental trio. The choir and instrumentalists showed by their performance of the Mass, and especially of the difficult fugue "Cum Sancto Spiritu" (which is frequently omitted by amateur societies), that they had been most carefully trained.

SELKIRK.—The Choral Union, which was formed in November last, and has been meeting for weekly practice during the winter, under the conductorship of Mr. F. K. Ströth, organist of the Episcopal Church, Selkirk, gave a concert in the Volunteer Hall on the evening of Friday, the 25th April. There were about 70 members of the Society on the platform, and the services of Miss H. C. Lindley and Mr. G. M. Davidson, Edinburgh, had been secured for the soprano and tenor solos, Mr. C. Guild (Dalketh), acting as accompanist. The concert consisted of two parts, sacred and secular. In the former, choruses and anthems were given from the works of Handel, Haydn, Beethoven, Mozart, &c.; and the second part comprised various glees and part-songs. Under their able conductor, the members of the Union rendered the pieces with a precision and just expression which evidenced skilful training on his part, and much careful practice on theirs; and the sacred solos and songs of Miss Lindley and Mr. Davidson contributed much to the success of the entertainment.

SOUTHPORT.—On Tuesday the 29th of April the Southport Choral Union gave its second concert in the Town Hall, with a band and chorus of upwards of 100 performers. The band was led by Mr. Lawson, and Mr. H. Hudson presided at the harmonium. The principals engaged were Miss Clelland, Mr. Edmondson and Mr. A. Wroe. The first part of the programme consisted of Gounod's Messe Solennelle, selections from Mendelssohn constituting the second part. The manner in which both band and chorus acquitted themselves gave evidence of appreciative study and careful training, reflecting the utmost credit on their conductor Mr. Dobson, under whom this Society has made steady progress.

STAMFORD.—In accordance with an effort that is being made to secure the better observance of Ascension Day, there were services in nearly all the churches of the town; at St. John's there was a choral celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 a.m.; morning prayer, with Communion at 11 a.m., a full evening service at 7.30 p.m.; at St. Michael's, evening service at 7.30 p.m.; at St. Mary's, morning prayer with celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 a.m.; a full evening service at 7.30, when the anthem "Lift up your heads," Messiah, was sung by the choir in a very creditable manner; the "Cantate" was chanted to Lawes in C, followed by Mammatt's "Deus," the duet in which was effectively rendered by the Misses Parker and Rippon. Mr. Pearce presided at the organ, playing the "Hallelujah Chorus," as a concluding voluntary. At Tinwell (near Stamford), a service was held in the afternoon of the same day to inaugurate a new American organ, the choir being augmented by members of St. Mary's and St. Michael's choirs. The services commenced with the hymn, "Hark! hark! the organ loudly peals," by H. S. Irons. The Psalms were chanted to a selection of Anglican and Gregorian chants, and the singing throughout was excellent. It is only necessary to say that the organ was played by Mr. Nicholson, to give assurance that its powers and capacities would be fully tested.

WALTON-ON-THE-HILL, LANCASHIRE.—A very successful concert was given in Mr. Griffith's barn, Walton Vale, on Tuesday evening, April 29th, by the members of the Highfield Musical Society (Walton), under the conductorship of Mr. R. B. Carmichael. The barn was tastefully decorated, and filled with an appreciative audience. The choral music was rendered in a careful and creditable manner, and the efforts of some of the soloists were greatly applauded, several demands being made for encores. The principal vocalists were Miss Webster, Miss Alleyne, Mrs. Roskell, Mrs. Cullen, Mrs. Carmichael, Mrs. Chapman, Mr. D. Webster, Mr. Lenton, Mr. Brindle, Mr. Wess, and Mr. Roberts. The Rev. J. Evans, the president of the Society, delivered a suitable speech during the interval. At a meeting held on the 5th ult. (terminating the season) the above Society presented its conductor (Mr. Carmichael), in appreciation of his services, with an ivory bâton, surmounted with silver, on which is engraved a suitable inscription.

WARMINSTER.—On Wednesday, April 30th, the Choral Society gave a successful performance of Mendelssohn's St. Paul, under the conductorship of Mr. Frank Spinney, F. C. O., the solos &c., being entirely taken by members of the class. At the close it was announced, with great regret, that the conductor was about to leave the neighbourhood, he having accepted an appointment in Warwickshire.

WEST BROMWICH.—On Tuesday evening, the 20th ult., the Trinity Church Choral Society, gave its annual concert in aid of the school fund. The programme consisted of a Cantata, The Gipsies, by Aspa, and a selection of new part-songs, by Pinsuti, Silas, and others, with pianoforte solos by Miss Lizzie Hartland and Mr. W. Hartland. The Cantata was much applauded, and several pieces were re-demanded. The whole of the work was rendered by members of the Society; and the performance was unquestionably one of the most successful ever given by the Association. Mr. Haywood Hartland conducted. The Rev. W. S. Escott, President of the Society, has generously given to the members copies of Sir Sterndale Bennett's Cantata, The Woman of Samaria, which is to be performed at the next concert.

WESTBURY, WILTS.—The members of the Westbury Singing Class (which originated in January last, under the conductorship of Mr. Herbert Leach, organist of the Parish Church), gave their first concert to a large audience in the Drill Hall, on Wednesday the 14th ult. Mr. T. Grant, presided at the pianoforte, Mr. C. Grant at the harmonium, and Mr. Leach conducted. The programme consisted of songs, vocal and instrumental duets, and glees, all of which were rendered by the members of the class with much taste and precision, reflecting great credit upon their conductor, Mr. Leach. The Messrs. Grant and Leach gave two duets upon the pianoforte and harmonium in very good style, and Mr. Leach also played "Adeste Fideles" and Krieger's "Lust March" on the pianoforte, both of which were warmly applauded. The concert in every respect was highly successful.

WESTERHAM, KENT.—The Amateur Choral Association gave a very successful concert in the Public Hall, on Tuesday the 8th ult. The first part of the programme consisted of sacred pieces from the works of Handel, Mozart, Spohr, Mendelssohn, Rossini, and Costa. The second part opened with an effective performance of Auber's Overture to Marco Spada, Pianoforte, Mrs. Gibbs and Miss Cowling; Harmonium, Mr. Kinkee; succeeded by several excellent part-songs and glees, interspersed with vocal and instrumental solos and duets. Walter Macfarren's capital part-song, "You stole my love," was unanimously encored, as were also several of the songs, and Ganz's "Qui Vive." Pianoforte, Mrs. Gibbs, and Miss Cowling, Harmonium, Mr. Kinkee. The solo vocalists were Misses Meeke, C. Warde, Hoare, Hammond, Streathfield, Mrs. Streathfield, the Rev. Messrs. Fynes, Webber, and George Hoare. Miss Kate M. Ward was an efficient accompanist, and Mr. Kinkee ably conducted.

WINDSOR.—The third concert of the Windsor and Eton Choral Society for the present season was held on the 12th ult. at St. Mark's School-room, before a large audience. The programme comprised Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, and Sir Sterndale Bennett's Cantata, the May Queen, both of which, under the able direction of Sir George Elvey, were admirably performed. The principal parts were sung by Miss Ellen Horne, Master Cook (of the St. George's Choir), Mr. Guy, and Mr. O. C. Christian (of Eton College Choir). By special desire of the Princess Christian (who was present) the Festival March, composed by Sir George Elvey for the marriage of H. R. H. Princess Louise, was performed during the evening.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Frank Spinney, F. C. O. (late Organist of the Parish Church, and Chapel of St. Lawrence, Warminster), Organist and Choirmaster of the Parish Church, of All Saints, Embsote, Warwick.—Mr. Frank G. Ogbourne (late Organist and Choirmaster to the Church of S. Mary the Virgin, Kilburn), Organist and Choirmaster to S. George's Kensington.—Mr. Henry Blennerhasset to the Battle Bridge Congregational Church.—Miss Mary Ratcliff, of St. Thomas's Church, Colnbrook, to the Parish Church of Great Milton, Oxon.—Mr. G. B. Dobson, late Organist and Choirmaster of S. Mary-the-less, Lambeth, to S. Peter's, London Docks.—Mr. Alfred J. Dye, Organist and Choirmaster, to Christ Church, Crouch End, Hornsey.—Mr. Charles Joseph Frost, Organist and Choirmaster, to Holy Trinity Church, Lee.—Mr. Frederic Done, to the Rectory Church, St. Marylebone.—Mr. Charles J. H. Wilkes, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Harwich.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. F. Busby, Alto, to St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Holyrood Crescent, Glasgow.—Mr. Charles F. Combe, Choirmaster to S. Olave, Southwark, and S. John, Pancras, has been also appointed to the Choirmastership of St. James's, Paddington.—Mr. F. Budge (bass), (late of St. George's Church, Hanover Square), to All Saints, Finchley Road.—Mr. J. Harris, (alto), from Christ Church, May Fair, to St. James's Church, Westbourne Terrace, Bayswater.

JUST PUBLISHED, AN OCTAVO EDITION OF

HANDEL'S THEODORA.

In Vocal Score, with a separate accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte.

Price, in paper cover, 3s. Scarlet cloth, 5s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

DURING THE LAST MONTH,

Published by NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HANDEL.—Theodora. An Oratorio in vocal score, with organ or pianoforte accompaniment. 8vo., paper covers, 3s. Cloth, gilt, 5s.

YOUNG, REV. EDWARD, M.A.—A Morning Service, consisting of Te Deum, Jubilate, and Kyrie eleison. 8vo., 4d.

PYNE, J. KENDRICK.—A Morning and Evening Service in score, with organ accompaniment. Te Deum and Jubilate. 8vo., 6d.

HOPE, WILLIAM.—Praised be the Lord. Anthem for four voices. 1s. 6d.

MACFARREN, G. A.—Simplified accompaniment to two-part Anthems. "Blessed is the soul," "Come ye and let us," "Come and let us return." 2d. each.

DYKES, REV. J. B.—Four Hymns. Words by Rev. Godfrey Thring. 8vo., 6d.

PYNE, J. KENDRICK.—Hark! Hark! my soul. Hymn, 8vo., 6d.

MILBURN, R. M.—Eight Hymn Tunes. 1s. 6d.

OKELY, W. SEBASTIAN.—Missa in Festis Semiduplicibus. Harmonized for four voices. "Nello stile osservato." 2s. 6d. Organ part, 1s. 6d.

—Missa Tempore Paschali. Harmonized for four voices. "Nello stile osservato." 2s. 6d. Organ part, 1s. 6d.

KING, ALFRED.—Missa Regia (Dumont). A complete Plain song Service for the Holy Communion, for unison or harmonized singing. Harmonies, 1s. 6d. Plain song, 4d.

THORNE, E. H.—Lake and Waterfall. Four-part Song. 8vo., 1½d.

PEARSALL, R. L.—Glees, Part-Songs and Madrigals. See page 125.

HARBOROUGH, ALFRED.—The Good Templars' Festival Song. 8vo., 3d.

NATURE'S LULLABY. Arranged for four voices or solo. Subject from Beethoven. 8vo., 6d.

WELCOME NEW MAY DAY. Arranged for three voices or solo. Subject from Weelkes. 8vo., 6d.

AS YOUR FATHERS, BE YE MEN. Arranged for four voices or solo. Subject from Auber. 8vo., 6d.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN. With language newly revised and music arranged in Choral Harmony. 8vo., 6d.

MACFARREN, WALTER.—Sonata in E minor, for Pianoforte and Violoncello. 6s.

ZIMMERMANN, AGNES.—Suite pour Piano, Violon, et Violoncello. Op. 19. 7s. 6d.

ROGERS, ROLAND.—Festal Organ March. 1s. 6d.

DOWN IN A FLOW'RY VALE.

MADRIGAL FOR FOUR VOICES,

BY

CONSTANTIUS FESTA,

In A for Mixed Voices, and in F for Male Voices.

A new Edition of the MUSICAL TIMES, No. 3, price 1½d., is just published, containing the above Madrigal, with the original English words by THOMAS OLIPHANT, and the second verse by F. W. R., commencing "Soon as I careless strayed."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

New Edition just published, price 1½d.

SOUND THE LOUD TIMBREL.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY THOMAS MOORE.

THE MELODY COMPOSED BY AVISON.

Arranged for One or Four Voices. The MUSICAL TIMES, No. 127.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOW READY.

HANDEL'S BELSHAZZAR,

Oratorio in Vocal Score, with Accompaniment for Organ or Pianoforte.

EDITED BY G. A. MACFARREN.

Octavo, paper covers, 3s.; cloth gilt, 5s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

REPAIRER.—A Permanent SITUATION is now open for a steady, industrious Man, well qualified to undertake the general repair of Pianofortes, &c. One who can Tune preferred. Address with terms and references, Harrison and Harrison, Music-sellers, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER and REPAIRER.—WANTED immediately for the country, a thoroughly competent Man. Apply to Messrs. J. & J. Hopkinson, 235, Regent-st., W.

SITUATION WANTED as TUNER, Regulator, Voicer, &c. Pianofortes, American Organs, and Harmoniums thoroughly repaired, tuned, and regulated. A first-rate Organist and Salesman. B. F. C., Mr. Windus, 120, Great Portland-street.

TUNER.—WANTED a Young Man as IMPROVER, where he can gain experience in general repairs, tuning Organs, Harmoniums, &c. He must tune a Piano moderately well. Bezant Brothers, Hereford.

WANTED, a SITUATION as PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER in town or country. Apply to J. Lincoln, 10, Weldale-street, Reading.

TO MUSIC SELLERS, STATIONERS, &c.—A practical PIANOFORTE TUNER is open to an ENGAGEMENT for one or two days per week. A. Z. A., 204, South Lambeth-rd., S.W.

TO PIANOFORTE TUNERS.—To be DISPOSED OF, an excellent PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNING BUSINESS. For a steady and persevering man, this is a very good opening. The reasons for the disposal of this business will be given, if required. Address N. J. 53, Musical Times Office, 1, Berners-street.

WANTED, a PIANOFORTE HIRING, TUNING and MUSIC BUSINESS in London or its immediate suburbs. It must be ten years' old at least, and bear strict inquiry. Price not above £1,200. Address A.D., care of H. Stephens, Hyde Park Piano Warehouse, 22, London-street, Sussex-gardens.

WANTED an APPRENTICE, who would have opportunities for learning thoroughly the Organ, Piano, and Violin, and all parts of the Music Trade, including the elements of Organ Building. A. Dixon Holloway, Music Depot, St. Ives, Hunts.

A PROFESSOR OF MUSIC, residing in a large provincial town, close to the sea, requires a PARTNER. The gentleman wishing to join him must be an excellent Pianist, a sound musician, and competent to teach singing, harmony, and composition. The practice is of twenty years' standing, and is increasing year by year. Address "Beethoven," care of Messrs. Metzler and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

A LADY, good Vocalist and Musician, having some time disengaged during the day, wishes for further ENGAGEMENTS as Teacher of the Pianoforte and Singing either in Schools or Private Families. Address A. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

A YOUNG LADY, well qualified and good Pianist, requires a SITUATION in a Music Shop. Address, Musicus, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

WANTED for a Musicseller a few miles from London, an ASSISTANT. Must play the Pianoforte, and tune well. None but a competent and gentlemanly man will be dealt with. Address A. A. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TO PIANOFORTE and MUSICSELLERS.—

WANTED, a RE-ENGAGEMENT in a Music Warehouse by a Young Lady who thoroughly understands the Sheet Music Trade. Good Saleswoman and Pianist: unexceptionable references. Address L. M. W., 22, Plowman-street, Rugby, Warwickshire.

REQUIRED by a Young Lady, good Pianist and Vocalist, DAILY EMPLOYMENT in a Music Warehouse, or any position where these qualifications would be serviceable; also open to ENGAGEMENT as Accompanist. Address N. L. W., 89, Clapham-road, S.W.

THE ORGANIST of a City Church is prepared to receive one or two ORGAN PUPILS: good Organ; terms moderate. Address E. G., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultrey.

MR. ARTHUR E. DYER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist of the Parish Church, Weston-super-Mare, requires an ARTICLED PUPIL (Resident). A Gentlemanly Youth, who could play a Plain Service, might be appointed to a vacant post immediately.

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—Mr. R. Taylor, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

CHOIR SCHOLARSHIPS.—FREE INSTRUCTION in an old and well-known School is offered to four Boys with good voice and ear, who in return would give their services as Chorists on Sunday at St. Augustine's Church, Queen's-gate. Address Rev. R. R. Chope, Vicar.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 2s. 6d. paper covers; 3s. 9d. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part chorus, with Organ Accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK,

Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

Sixth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK, edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo., without chants, 1s.; with Proper Psalms, 1s. 3d.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to., with chants, 5s.; large 4to., £1 1s.; each voice part, separately, 2s. Canticles, score, small quarto., 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo., 1½d. Novello, Ewer & Co., and Parker & Co.

Tenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Price 5s. 6d.; sep. vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

SUPPLEMENT to the PREVIOUS EDITIONS of the ABOVE, containing Chants for the Venite, &c. Price 1s.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. Sr. J. B. JOULE. (Large type.) Price 2s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo., price 1s., in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Third Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonized on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. Sr. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

NON NOBIS DOMINE, arranged to the Corresponding English Words, by Rev. W. G. LONGDEN, for the Use of Choral Meetings, as an Introit, or Anthem, or Grace after Meat. Price One Penny; Nineteen a dozen; or Five Shillings a hundred. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and G. DEUS MISEREATUR. For voices in unison and organ. Octavo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TWELVE KYRIES. By G. BAKER. Price Sixpence, 12 or more copies, 4d. each, and post-free. G. Baker, Music-seller, Wakefield.

Now ready. 8vo. Price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED, Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A SERVICE for the HOLY COMMUNION for Men's Voices in four parts, consisting of Introit, Kyrie, Gloria tibi, Gratias, Offertory Sentences, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, composed by W. H. SANGSTER, Mus. Bac. Price 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1 Berners-street.

Seventh edition.

CHANT SERVICE, in G, for the Te Deum laudamus, arranged from ancient sources, by H. M. HARVEY. 8vo., 4d. Small copy, 1½d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

BY REV. R. F. SMITH, M.A., Minor Canon of Southwell, TE DEUM, in F, in 4 parts, 3d. SHORT ANTHEM, "The Lord is high," S.A.T.B., 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer & Co., 1, Berners-street, & 35, Poultry.

Just Published.

CANTICLES NOTED. Second Set, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. 18mo., 8d.; 8vo., 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

HELMORE, REV. THOMAS.—The CANTICLES ACCENTED, 18mo., 3d.—Hymns of the Eastern Church, four voices, each 1s. PEACE, IT IS I; THE DAY IS PAST AND OVER; THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.—S. MARK'S CHANT BOOK (in daily use at the College Chapel, Chelsea), 4s. 6d.; or the same, Part I., being the main body of the work, price 3s. 6d.; and Part II., The Table of the Chants, price 1s. (useful for places where only the Canticles are chanted). Also Two "Te Deums" for Choir and People, in the alternate verses; adapted from Latin arrangements by Alfieri and Baini; vocal Score and Organ Accompaniment, price 3s. Also the People's Plain Song, separate, price 1½d. Four-part Cadences for the Holy Communion, 6d. The Carol for Christmas Morning, vocal score, 18mo. edition, 2d; melody, 18mo., 1d.

HYMN IN TIME OF CATTLE PLAGUE. 2d. Words, 1s. per 100.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADDITIONS TO THE

REV. T. HELMORE'S PLAIN SONG WORKS.

The Canticles Accented. Price 3d. The Psalter and Canticles Accented. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Appendix 1 to Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory, Price 4d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 1, giving the Proper Psalms, noted as before in their right order of the six days to which they are Appointed. Price 6d. Bound up with recent editions of the Psalter Noted.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 3d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 2, giving the Proper Psalms newly noted for the Four Great Festivals (second set). Price 4d.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 4d.

Canticles Noted (second set). Large Edition, 2s. Small Edition, 8d.

For some of the Harmonies to this, see Accompanying Harmonies to Psalter Noted, Appendix 2 (above mentioned). For others, see Accompanying Harmonies to Brief Directory, Appendix 2, now in hand.

Cadences for the order of the Administration of the Lord's Supper, in compressed vocal score. Price 6d.

Paper on Church Music, with special reference to the joining of all the People in Sacred Song, read at the Church Congress, Wolverhampton, October 1867. Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MARCH OF THE CHORISTERS.—"Mr. Allen has found a good subject, and worked it out in a thoroughly artistic manner. Few better Marches have come under our notice for some time."—Leeds Mercury. Net 1s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

HYMN TUNES, Composed by R. M. MILBURN, B.A., Magd. Coll., Cantab., adapted to words in "Hymns Ancient and Modern" (Nos. 24, 113, 152, 189, 275, 307, 335, 336). Price 1s. 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Now ready, price Sixpence.

FOUR HYMNS. Words by the Rev. GODFREY THRING. Set to Music by the Rev. J. B. DYKES, M.A., Mus. Doc. No. 1, Church Consecration Hymn. 2, Churchyard Consecration Hymn. 3, Hymn for Synods, Conferences, Choral Festivals, &c. 4, Dismissal Hymn, Friendly Societies, Guilds, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Fifth Edition, revised and enlarged, price 7s.

PARR'S CHURCH OF ENGLAND PSALMODY, containing 381 Tunes in 100 Metres; 289 Chants, with Responses, &c., in all nearly 700 compositions, free from modern alterations and corruptions, with Memoirs of all the Composers, affording an amount of information on the subject, nowhere else to be found. London: W. Macintosh, 24, Paternoster-row.

MERCER'S CHURCH PSALTER and HYMN BOOK. An APPENDIX of ADDITIONAL HYMNS, CHANTS, SANGSUSES, and RESPONSES, the Harmonies carefully revised by Sir JOHN GOSS, may now be had, either separately, or bound up with the work in all its various sizes and forms. Prospectuses of the complete work, with full particulars, will be forwarded on application. London: James Nisbet and Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; Lamborn Cock, 62 and 63, New Bond-street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Price in paper, 2s.; scarlet cloth, 3s. 6d.

HENRY FARMER'S MASS IN B₇,

With the Latin words, and an English adaptation to the Communion Service,

By the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

"This beautiful composition has been so long before the public, and its merit so distinctly recognised, that we have no need here to introduce a single word of criticism upon its musical value. Our object in mentioning it at all is to call attention to its recent publication in a handsome and convenient form. In a small volume of clear and legible print, the musician can now obtain the whole of the Mass in Vocal Score, with an Accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte."—Nottingham Guardian.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASY ANTHEMS for VILLAGE CHOIRS. By W. H. GILL.

2d. each. Nos. 1 to 6 now ready.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.
A Specimen Copy, post free for Stamps to the value.

"EXCEPT THE LORD BUILD THE HOUSE,"
An ANTHEM for five voices, suitable for the Opening of new places of Worship or School Anniversaries. Composed by JAMES HARDWICK; published at 1s. 6d. each; sold at half-price. Schools or congregations taking 12 copies may have them at 6d. each. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for Small Choirs. The texts selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe.

First Series, for Boys' and Females Voices.—1. "Come, and let us return." 2. "I will look unto the Lord." (These Anthems may appropriately be used in Advent and Lent.) 3. "Behold the Tabernacle." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.)

Second Series, for Female and Male Voices.—1. "Unto us was born." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.) 2. "Blessed is the soul." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Whitsuntide.) 3. "Come ye and let us go up." (This Anthem may be appropriately used at the opening of a church.) 4. "Blessed be the name of God." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at a Harvest Festival.)

A separate accompaniment for use where there is not a Pedal Organ, may be had, price 2d.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private performance.

Price 6d. for each Anthem, or 2s. 6d. for each series of six.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SACRED SONGS, BY MILES BENNETT. (Compass from B natural to F natural.)

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. (Words from Psalm cxlii.) 3s.
GRATITUDE. (Words from Psalm cxvi.) ... 4s.
I WAITED PATIENTLY FOR THE LORD. (Words from Psalm xl.) ... 4s.
CONSOLATION. (Words from "The Dove on the Cross") ... 3s.

"Good Sacred Songs are certainly rarely to be met with; but we are able confidently to recommend each of the above to every true musician. The spirit of the familiar words of the Psalms is admirably caught and sustained in these compositions. In all, the musician will find modulations and harmonies accurately arranged, airs remarkable for their sympathy with the words, and accompaniments containing passages of considerable and, in some places, of exceptional beauty and elegance. We turn to these songs with a degree of pleasure, when we remember the quality of many of the sacred airs of the present day, some of which can boast their illuminated title-page as their chief or only charm."—Church Bells, March 29th, 1873.

"Mr. Bennett has given a sacred character to his music in excellent sympathy with the words he has selected; and we cannot too much commend the musicianlike manner in which the whole of the accompaniments are written."—Musical Times, Oct. 1st, 1871.

Sent post-free for half price in stamps.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

HAIL, SEVENTH DAY OF SACRED REST, No. 4 of "Songs for the Sunday Circle," by BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Post free, 15 stamps.—The Studio, 8, Maida-hill West, London.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MUSIC.—Ten Anthems and Sacred Pieces (from the "Sabbath Garland"), composed by A. J. DAVIS, for use in Sabbath Schools. Cloth, 1s. 6d.; by post, 19 stamps. London: Alfred J. Davis, Broadway, Victoria-park-road, E., or of F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster-row.

SIX DOUBLE CHANTS.—Kyrie, Sanctus, and Gloria, composed and dedicated to Sir R. P. Stewart Mus. Doc., Trin. Coll., Dublin, &c., by CHARLTON TEMPLEMAN SPEER, &at. 9, price 3d.

TWELVE DOUBLE CHANTS, composed and dedicated to George Cooper, Esq., Organist of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James, by CHARLTON TEMPLEMAN SPEER, &at. 11, price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Eighth edition.

301 ANCIENT AND MODERN CHANTS, edited by WILLIAM RIDLEY, Organist of the Parish Church, and of St. John's. Free for stamps from the Editor (bound, 36 stamps, paper, 24 stamps), West Derby, Liverpool. "A fine collection."

Now ready.

ECCLESIASTICAL MUSIC.—Compositions for Four Voices on the Plain Chant of the Roman Gradual, Ratibon, ed. 1871, by W. SEBASTIAN OERLY, M.A., "nello stile osservato," with Organ accompaniment.

I.—Missa Tempore Paschali, price 2s. 6d.; organ part, 1s. 6d.
II.—Missa in Festis Semiduplicibus, price 2s. 6d.; organ part, 1s. 6d.
III.—Nearly ready, the Sequence for all the year, price 5s.; organ part, 2s. 6d., consisting of Victimæ Paschali, Veni Sancte Spiritus, Lauda Sion, Stabat Mater, Dies Iræ. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

W. W. PEARSON'S MUSIC.—The whole of Mr. Pearson's Glee and Part-Songs, and the "National Method of Vocal Music" for Schools and Choirs, price 3s. 6d., can be had of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., and the above, with the full-size Dance Music, Songs, &c., may now be obtained of Messrs. Reeves and Turner, Booksellers and Publishers, 185, Fleet-street, London. A single copy of the "National Method" will be sent post free to Professors or School Teachers, from the Author, Mr. W. W. Pearson, Organist, Elmham, Norfolk, or from Mr. Pearson, Brompton, Rotherham, for 2s. 6d. in stamps.

Just published, price 2s. 6d.

A CONCISE AND PRACTICAL EXPLANATION of the RULES of SIMPLE HARMONY and THOROUGH-BASS, with Chapters on Time, Keys, Intervals, and general Elementary Musical Knowledge, respectfully dedicated (by permission) to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., Mus. Doc., Professor of Music at the University of Oxford, by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury.

Extract from the Preface.—"It is commonly regretted that, amongst the thousands of persons who are taught to play the Pianoforte, few, certainly not one in a hundred, are instructed in the simplest rudiments of harmony. Harmony has always been considered so abstruse in its character, and so difficult of comprehension, that amateurs generally have disregarded it. Nor is this surprising; for nearly all the books published seem to assume that the student has already made a certain amount of progress, and so prevent his acquiring elementary knowledge by starting him in the middle of a subject of which he has little or no idea of the beginning. The object of this little Manual is to give a practical explanation of the nature and treatment of the chords most commonly used in Music, avoiding as far as possible the use of technical terms and extraneous matters."

* * * Contains all that is necessary for Students for the Oxford and Cambridge Examinations.

From John Bull, May 10.—"A very simple and clear tractate on the subject, such as the merest tyro could understand. Mr. Smith has avoided the danger, brevis esse laboro, obscurus fio, for, though his little manual consists of only twenty-seven pages, there is nothing omitted of the rudiments which a learner ought to know. We do not indeed accept all his conclusions, e. g., as to the derivation of the 7-5 on the supertonic, the writer agrees with the Oxford Professor of Music in assigning it to a double root; whereas we prefer the theory of Macfarren, that it springs from the eleventh, which the writer notices only to reject it, as a theory held by some authors. But these are, after all, matters of opinion, and do not detract from the value of the work, especially as the writer fairly notices that these divergences of opinion exist. The manual bears the imprimatur of Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, in itself no slight passport; and we must add, for ourselves, that, after careful examination, we do not know any work of its kind so thorough and well-digested; and we say this without ignoring the existence of Burrowes' Primer, to which we owe the first glimmerings of light shed on a subject we had heretofore deemed shrouded in 'Cimmerian darkness,' to say nothing of the present manual being less than half the cost of Burrowes' Thorough-Bass Primer."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S ONLY COMPLETE AND UNIFORM EDITION OF

MENDELSSOHN'S Thirteen Two-Part Songs,

With the German and W. Bartholomew's Original English Words. Complete in One Volume, folio, 5s. net. Octavo, paper, 2s. net; cloth gilt, 4s. net; or, singly, 2s. each. The separate Numbers are sold at half-price.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| No. 1. I would that my love. | No. 7. My bark is bounding. |
| 2. The passage bird. | 8. Can I light-hearted be. |
| 3. Greeting. | 9. Evening song. |
| 4. Autumn song. | 10. Zuleika and Hassan. |
| 5. O wert thou in the cauld blast. | 11. The sabbath morn. |
| 6. The maybells, and the flowers. | 12. The harvest field. |
| | 13. Song from Ruy Blas. |

N.B.—The Quartet Score to No. 13, 1s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OBLONG FOLIO EDITION.

RINK'S PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL.

Carefully revised, with the German directions and terms translated into English, and the pedal part printed on a separate staff.

THE WHOLE EDITED BY W. T. BEST.

- Price 20s., or in Six Books, 4s. each.
- Preface. Part I., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 1 to 12.—Short and Easy Pieces in Two parts.
13 to 24. " " Three parts.
25 to 36. " " Four parts.
37 to 66.—Preludes in all the Major and Minor Keys.
Part II., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 67 to 132.—Exercises for the Pedals.
133 to 144.—Twelve Chorales, or well-known German Psalm Tunes, with Variations.
Part III., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 145 to 159.—Fifteen Easy Postludes, or Concluding Voluntaries, in the Fugue Style.
Part IV., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 160 to 174.—Fifteen Postludes, or Concluding Voluntaries for Alternate Manuals, in the Fugue Style.
Part V., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 175 to 181.—Seven Preludes and Fugues.
182.—The Flute Concerto.
183.—Variations on "Heil dir im Sieges Kranz," or "God save the Queen."

Part VI., price 4s., contains—

Nos. 184 to 192.—Nine Preludes and Fugues.

193 and 194.—Fantasia and Fugue.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

(SECOND SERIES.)

A COMPLETE EDITION

OF

Part-Songs, Glees, and Madrigals,

COMPOSED BY

R. L. DE PEARSALL, Esq.,

(OF WILLSBRIDGE.)

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO. having recently purchased all the Part-Songs, Glees, and Madrigals composed by R. L. DE PEARSALL, Esq., formerly published by Mr. Oliphant and Messrs. Hammond (Jullien and Co.) will now issue them in the popular Octavo form, together with those originally published by them, in Two Volumes, and also in separate Numbers, as follows:—

NOW READY.

284	The Hardy Norseman	S.A.T.B.	4d.
284*	do. do.	A.T.T.B.	4d.
285	Nymphs are sporting	S.A.T.B.	3d.
286	O who will o'er the downs	" "	4d.
286*	do. do.	A.T.T.B.	4d.
287	Who shall win my lady fair	S.A.T.B.	4d.
288	Why with toil	" "	3d.
289	When Allen-a-Dale went a-hunting. Glee	" "	4d.
290	I saw lovely Phillis. Madrigal	" "	4d.
291	The River Spirit's song	A.T.T.B.	3d.
292	It was upon a Spring-tide day. Madrigal	S.A.T.T.B.	4d.
293	Take heed, ye shepherd swains	"	S.S.A.T.T.B.	4d.
294	Spring returns	"	S.S.A.T.B.	2d.
295	Great God of love. 8 voices	"	3d.
296	In dulci jubilo. Christmas Carol	3d.

IN THE PRESS.

297	The song of the Frank companies	S.A.T.B.	3d.
298	How bright in the May-time	" "	3d.
299	The Winter song	" "	2d.
300	The Bishop of Mentz..	" "	3d.
301	When last I strayed	" "	2d.
302	See how smoothly	" "	2d.
303	Let us all go Maying	" "	2d.
304	List! Lady, be not coy. Madrigal	S.S.A.T.T.B.	3d.
305	O ye roses. Madrigal	" "	3d.
306	Sing we and chaunt it. Madrigal for double choir	2d.
307	" " For four voices	2d.
308	The Red Wine flows	T.T.B.B.	2d.
309	Shoot false love, I care not. Ballet Madrigal	S.A.T.B.	3d.
310	Laugh not, Youth, at Age. Madrigal	" "	3d.
311	Down in my garden fair.	" "	3d.
312	Adieu! my native shore	" "	2d.
313	Purple glow the forest mountains	" "	2d.
314	Caput apri defero	" "	2d.
315	A Chieftain to the Highlands bound	" "	2d.
316	A King there was in Thule	" "	2d.
317	Come, let us be merry. Twelfth Night song	" "	2d.
318	Mihi est propositum	A.T.B.B.	2d.
319	Light of my soul. Madrigal	S.S.A.T.T.B.	3d.
320	Lay a garland. Madrigal for 8 voices	3d.
321	Summer is y' coming in. Madrigal	S.S.A.T.T.B.	2d.
322	Why should the Cuckoo's tuneful note. Madrigal	S.S.A.T.B.	3d.
323	Why weep, alas! my lady love. Madrigal	" "	3d.
324	There is a paradise on earth	A.T.B.B.	3d.
325	O! all ye ladies fair and true	" "	2d.
326	War Song of the Norman Baron Taillefer	S.A.T.B.	2d.
327	Why do the roses. Madrigal for 4 voices	2d.
328	Sweet as a flower in May. Madrigal for 4 voices	2d.
329	The praise of good wine	T.T.B.B.	2d.
330	{ The Watchman's Song	T.T.B.B. }	2d.
	{ Ditto ditto.	S.A.T.B. }
331	The Waters of Elle	S.S.A.T.B.	2d.
332	No! No! Nigella. For double choir	2d.
333	Sir Patrick Spens. In ten parts	4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 35, POULTRY (E.C.).
NEW YORK: J. L. PETERS, 599, BROADWAY.

NOVELLO'S OPERA CHORUSES,

EDITED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN AND BERTHOLD TOURS.

AUBER'S FRA DIAVOLO.

1. Comrades, fill your glasses 4d.
En bons militaires.
 2. Hail, festal morning 2d.
C'est grand fête.

AUBER'S MASANIELLO.

3. All hail the bright auspicious day 2d.
Du Prince objet de notre amour.
 4. All hail the bright auspicious day 1d.
Du Prince objet de notre amour.
 5. O holy Power 1d.
O Dieu puissant!
 6. Companions, come. (Fishermen's chorus) 2d.
Amis, amis.
 7. Behold the morn in splendour 2d.
Amis la matinée est belle.
 8. Come hither all who wish to buy. (Market chorus) 3d.
Au marché qui vient de s'ouvrir
 9. We come, we will avenge thee 3d.
Courons à la vengeance.
O Power benign.
Saint bien heureux.
 60. All hail, the noble victor. (March and chorus) 6d.
Honneur! honneur et gloire.

BEETHOVEN'S FIDELIO.

10. Oh what delight. (Prisoners' chorus) 3d.
O welch Lust.
 11. Farewell, thou warm and sunny beam 4d.
Leb' wohl, du warmes Sonnenlicht.

BELLINI'S I PURITANI.

12. When yonder bugle calls us 1d.
Quando la tromba squilla.
 13. Rejoice we! 1d.
A festa.
 14. Noble Arthur, welcome 1d.
Ad Arturo onore.
 15. Once I sought thee 2d.
A te, o cara.
 16. Fatal day 2d.
Ahi! dolor

BELLINI'S NORMA.

17. Hasten, ye Druids, the heights ascend 2d.
Ite sul colle, O Druidi.
 18. Norma cometh 1d.
Norma viene.
 19. Not yet gone? no, yet they linger 1d.
Non parti? finora è al campo
 20. Vengeance, vengeance 1d.
Guerra, guerra!

BELLINI'S LA SONNAMBULA.

21. Hail! Amina 1d.
Viva! viva, Amina!
 22. Fairest flower of the mountains 1d.
In Elvezia non v'ha rosa.
 23. When dusky twilight 1d.
Ah fosco cielo.
 24. Here a moment we'll shelter and rest us 2d.
Qui la selva è più folta ed ombrosa.

DONIZETTI'S LA FIGLIA.

25. What pleasure, what gladness 2d.
Cantiamo, cantiamo.
 26. Hark, how the drums are rolling 1d.
Sprona il tamburo e ancora.
 27. Ratanplan, Ratanplan 1d.
Ratanplan, ratanplan.

DONIZETTI'S LUCIA.

28. Let us roam through these ruins deserted 1d.
Percorriamo le spiagge vicine.
 29. Hail, to the happy bridal day 1d.
Per te d'immenso giubilo.
 30. What from vengeance yet restrains me 2d.
Chi raffrena il mio furore.
 31. With warlike minstrelsy 1d.
D'immenso giubilo.

DONIZETTI'S LUCREZIA BORGIA.

32. Not a word. 2d.
Non far motto.
 33. From his window 1d.
Rischiata è la finestra.
 34. Would you know how to while away sorrow 1d.
Il segreto per esser felice.

MOZART'S DON GIOVANNI.

35. Let's enjoy while the season invites us 1d.
Giovinette, che fate all' amore.

MOZART'S LE NOZZE DI FIGARO.

36. Come deck with flowers 1d.
Giovani liete.
 37. Noble Lady, fairest roses 1d.
Ricevete, o padroncina.
 38. Each voice now rejoices 1d.
Amanti, costanti.

ROSSINI'S IL BARBIERE.

39. Sir, we humbly thank your honour 2d.
Mille grazie, mio signore.

VERDI'S IL TROVATORE.

40. See how the darkness of night dissolves. (Gipsy chorus) 1d.
Vedi! le fosche notturne.
 41. Now the dice invite our leisure! 1d.
Or co'dadi ma fra poco.
 42. Miserere Scene 2d.

VERDI'S RIGOLETTO.

43. Hush, in silence fulfil we our errand 2d.
Zitti, zitti, moviamo a vendetta
 44. Unto a lonely abode directed. 1d.
Scorrendo uniti remota via

WAGNER'S LOHENGRIN.

45. The call hath summoned us betimes 2d.
In Früh'n versammelt uns der Ruf
 46. We follow where he leads! 1d.
Zum Streite säumet nicht!
 47. May every joy attend thee 1d.
Gesegnet soll sie schreiten
 48. Faithful and true we lead ye forth 1d.
Treulich geführt ziehet dahin

WAGNER'S TANNHÄUSER.

49. Hail, bright abode (the March). 4d.
Freudig begrüßen
 50. Once more with joy. (Pilgrim's Chorus) 2d.
Beglückt darf nun dich

WEBER'S OBERON.

51. Light as fairy foot can fall 2d.
Lieve il piè colà volgiam
 52. Honour and joy 2d.
Gloria! omaggio
 53. Glory to the Caliph 2d.
Gloria al giusto
 54. Who would stay in her coral cave 4d.
Chi potria fra l'onde restar
 55. For thee hath beauty (Women's voices) 3d.
Per te pomposa
 56. Do. do. (Mixed voices) 2d.

WEBER'S DER FREYSCHUETZ.

57. Victoria, victoria 1d.
Victoria, Victoria
 58. The Bridal wreath for thee we bind 1d.
Wir winden dir den Jungfernkranz
 59. The joy of the Hunter. (Huntsman's chorus) 2d.
Was gleicht wohl auf Erden

ROSSINI'S GUILLAUME TELL.

61. Brightly the rosy morn 1d.
Quel jour serain
 62. Come, with flowers crown the bowers 2d.
Hyménée, sa journée
 63. Hark, how the horns gaily sounding 2d.
Quelle sauvage harmonie
 64. Hail to the mighty ruler 2d.
Gloire au pouvoir suprême
 65. Swift as the bird in summer sky (Tyrolean) 1d.
Toi que l'oiseau ne suivrait pas

(To be continued.)

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 35, POULTRY (E.C.)
 NEW YORK: J. L. PETERS, 599, BROADWAY.

The Musical Times.

Published on the 1st of every Month.
Price 2d.; post free, 2½d.

THIS Journal is now enlarged to 32 pages (four times its original size), and, in addition to the critical notices and musical articles contains reviews on new music. The price is raised from 1½d. to 2d.; but the music published in each number, when purchased separately, will be as before, 1½d. Its extensive circulation renders it a most desirable medium for advertisers; and it should be remembered that, to ensure insertion in the current number, advertisements must be sent early. The annual subscription to the MUSICAL TIMES will be 2s. 6d., including postage.

SECULAR MUSIC (PRICE THREE-HALFPENCE EACH).

GLEES, MADRIGALS, or PART-SONGS, for Four Voices (S.A.T.B.), unless otherwise expressed.)

- | | | |
|---|--|--|
| 223 A Canadian boat song (3 voices) T. Moore | 69 { Here's a health unto His Majesty (s.s.b.) J. Saville | 270 Sweete flowers, ye were too faire (s.s.a.t.b.) T. A. Walmisley |
| 56 A Christmas madrigal T. Ions | { How merrily we live (t.t.b.) M. Este | 18 20 & 21 Sweet honey sucking bees (s.s.a.t.b.) Wilbye |
| 117 A little song of thankfulness (s.s.) Parry | 79 Huntsman's chorus (s.s.s.s.) Weber | 38 Sweet peace descending Mozart |
| 187 All among the barley E. Stirling | 220 Hurrah for merry England F. Berger | 272 Sweet and low J. Barnby |
| 119 A Selection of Five Catches Various | 75 In good truth, when fondly loving Palestrina | 226 Take care Mrs. Bartholomew |
| 9 Amidst the myrtles (s.a.t.b.) Battisill | 1 In these delightful, pleasant groves Purcell | 254 Tell me, where is fancy bred? do. |
| 101 Adieu, ye streams (a.t.t.b.) Atterbury | 256 { I saw the moon rise clear A. R. Gaul | 327 { The Angels breathe on flowers J. Naylor |
| 93 April is in my mistress' face T. Morley | 51 Oh for the swords A. R. Gaul | { May Carol Dr. Garrett |
| 308 A vintage song, (Loreley) (t.t.b.b.) Mendelssohn | 24 Italy (s. Solo and Chorus) V. Novello | 122 The Battle of the Baltic C. A. Macirone |
| 78 Awake, Æolian lyre Danby | 152 Just like love Davy and V. Novello | 115 The Boar's-head carol (s. and b. Solos, with Chorus) |
| 282 Awake, my love, awake J. H. Walker | 208 Let us all to the fields (s.s.s.) Ferrari | 324 The Cambrian plume Brinley Richards |
| 87 Awake, sweet love John Douland | { Lightly tread, 'tis hallow'd creeping (Zitti, zitti, s.t.b.) Rossini | 212 The "Carnovale" G. Rossini |
| 158 { Breathe soft, ye winds (s.s.b.) W. Paxton | 230 { (s.s.b.) J. Scotland | 102 The Christmas fairies C. Goodban |
| { The Blue Bells of Scotland Neithardt | { Lines on the pleasures of music C. Stokes | 49 The cloud capt towers (a.a.t.b.b.) Stevens |
| Breathe soft, ye winds S. Webbe | 359 Loose the sail, rest the oar J. F. Bridge | 356 The Cuckoo sings G. A. Macfarren |
| 268 { Britons, strike home Purcell | 104 Lordly gallants (s.s.b.) Callcott | 179 { The dream E. Stirling |
| { Oh, were I but a drop of dew Cummings | 335 Love me little, love me long H. Lahee | 313 The dream of home E. H. Thorne |
| 160 By Celia's harbour (a.t.t.b.) W. Horsley | 99 Lutzow's Wild Chase (t.t.b.b.) Weber | { The Fisherman (s.s.s.) |
| 130 Calm is the glassy ocean (s. Solo and Chorus) Mozart | 26 Maidens fair of Mantua's city (s.s.a.t.b.) Gastoldi | 79 { Weel may the keel row (s.s.s.) |
| 83 Catch on tobacco Dr. Aldrich | 289 March of the Men of Harlech | 109 The Flower greeting (s.s.s.) Curschmann |
| 134 Christmas G. A. Macfarren | 89 Mark'd you her eye (Duet a.t., and Chorus, a.a.t.t.b.) Spofforth | 210 The Forester E. Stirling |
| 252 Chloe and Corinna E. J. Hopkins | 128 Mark the merry elves (s.s.b.) Callcott | 323 The lark's aloft (A May Carol) Walker |
| 303 Chorus of Houris (Paradise and the Peri) Schumann | 45 May day (s.a.t.b.) Müller | 250 The last night of the year A. S. Sullivan |
| 164 Come again, sweet love J. Douland | 48 Monody on Mendelssohn (t.t.b.b.) F. Schneider | 106 The Lullaby Storace and V. Novello |
| 53 Come, follow me W. Horsley | 79 Music for Trebles or other equal voices | 344 The Maiden of the "Fleur de Lys" E. A. Sydenham |
| 260 Come, gentle zephyr (a.t.t.b.) W. Horsley | 111 My love's like the red rose Knyvett | 90 The May fly (s.s.b.) Dr. Callcott |
| 40 Come if you dare (t. Solo and Chorus) Purcell | 199 Now Autumn strews E. Stirling | 147 The Nightingale (s.s.a.) T. Bateson |
| 287 Come let us be merry (Twelfth Night Song) R. L. de Pearsall | 87 Now is the month of Maying (s.a.t.t.b.) Morley | 317 The parting kiss E. A. Sydenham |
| 3 Come let us join the roundelay W. Beale | 213 Now, O now, I needs must part. Douland | 47 The Red Cross Knight (s.s.b.) Dr. Callcott |
| Full fathom five (s. Solo and Chorus) Purcell | 21 Now pray we for our country E. Flower | 83 The silver swan (s.a.t.t.b.) O. Gibbons |
| 124 Come unto these yellow sands (do.) Purcell | 22 Now the bright morning star (s.s.a.t.b.) Greenville | 222 The sleep of the flowers B. Congreve |
| Gently touch the warbling lyre (a.t.t.b.) Geminiani | 60 Nymphs of the forest (a.t.t.b.) W. Horsley | 312 The song of the poppies E. Stirling |
| 3 Down in a flow'ry vale Festa | 183 { Now spring in all her glory J. Arkadelt | 239 The Spring Henry Lahee |
| 3* Down in a flow'ry vale (a.t.t.b.) Festa | { Come, let us all a maying go. L. Atterbury | 305 The Swallow Prince de Polignac |
| 146 Dulce Domum J. Reading | 167 O'er desert plains H. Walrant | 302 The victors' return Mendelssohn |
| 284 Evidente C. Goodban | 352 Oh! the flowery month of June Jackson | 295 The welcome home R. Haking |
| 171 Fair Flora decks (a.t.b.) Danby | 115 Oh, the roast beef of old England | 57 The waits Saville |
| 172 Fair and noble lady (Noble châteline) Rossini | 234 Old May-day Sir J. Benedict | 132 This pleasant month of May (a.t.t.b.) Beale |
| 329 Fair Katie J. W. Elliott | 807 Once upon my cheek Dr. Callcott | 293 This world is all a fleeting show Waley |
| 343 Field Flowers F. Stanislaus | 300 O, my love's like a red, red rose Dr. Garrett | Thy voice, O harmony S. Webbe |
| 239 Five times by the taper's light S. Storace | 13 O, Nanny, wilt thou gang with me? Harrison | To fair Fidele's grassy tomb (a.t.t.b.) T. F. Walmisley |
| 34 Flora gave me fairest flowers (s.s.a.t.b.) Wilbye | 315 O sing again that simple song Dr. Garrett | 197 To our next merry meeting (a.t.t.b.) H. Phillips |
| 311 For the new year Mendelssohn | 154 Partant pour la Syrie Weber | 142 To Rome's immortal leader Mozart |
| 7 Four rounds for three voices | 9 Pleasures of Innocence s.s.b. Rossini | 7 To the old, long life (3 equal voices) Webbe |
| 330 Gentle winds around her hover Emanuel | 42 & 43 Popular Ode to Pope Pius IX. Rossini | 331 To the redbreast J. Baptiste Calkin |
| 162 Gipsy chorus, in Preciosa Weber | 176 Protect us, ye Powers (A.B.B.) Rossini | 28 To Woden's hall Purcell |
| 136 Glorious Apollo (a.t.b.) S. Webbe | 351 Raise again the bold refrain Russian Melody | 91 Twelfth Night Song (Chorus, with Solos) V. Novello |
| 31 God save the Queen V. Novello | 30 Rule, Britannia V. Novello | 298 Up, brothers, up (for Christmas) J. Baptiste Calkin |
| 173 Go, faithless Clori (Perfida Clori, s.s.s.) Cherubini | 55 See the chariot at hand W. Horsley | 113 Vadasi via di qua (Tickling Trio, s.t.b.) Martini |
| 206 Good morrow to my lady bright Macirone | 36 See the conqu'ring hero comes Handel | 215 Venetian boatman's evening song (s.s.b.) S. Bach |
| 196 Good night, beloved! (t.t.b.b.) Dr. Monk | 126 See our oars Sir J. Stevenson | 258 Venetian boatman's evening song. Hatton |
| 348 Good night, farewell Dr. G. Garrett | 81 Sign no more, ladies (s.s.a.t.b.) Stevens | 37 & 57 Vocal Rudiments C. D. Collet |
| 193 Great Bashaw—Al Bascia (Il Seraglio) Mozart | 275 Sign no more, ladies G. A. Macfarren | 291 Wake thee, my dear Clara Gottschalk |
| 3 Hall! all hail! thou merry month of May (s.s.b.) Weber | 73 Since first I saw your face T. Ford | 362 We happy shepherd swains J. Nethercliff |
| 184 Hail, blushing goddess Paxton | 350 Sing lullaby C. E. Horsley | 201 What mournful thoughts (s.s.a.t.b.) Best |
| 189 Hail, hallow'd fane Mornington | 245 Sleep, while the soft evening breezes Sir H. R. Bishop | 280 When the sun sinks to rest J. F. Bridge |
| 5 Hall! smiling morn R. Spofforth | 278 Snow-flakes Arthur Cottam | 14 & 15 When winds breathe soft (s.a.t.t.b.) Webbe |
| 203 Happy is our soldier band (Bella vita militar) Mozart | 16 Soldiers, brave and gallant be (s.s.a.t.b.) Gastoldi | 138 Who comes so dark? (a.t.b.) Callcott |
| 7 Hark! the bonny (3 equal voices) Aldrich | 341 Song to spring Francesco Berger | 246 Who is Sylvia? G. A. Macfarren |
| 67 Hark! the lark Dr. Cooke | 3 Soon as I careless strayed Festa | 328 Who shall be fleetest (Trebles) J. Barnby |
| 338 Hark! Hark! the lark (s.s.c.) E. H. Thorne | 45 Spring's delights (s.a.t.b.) Müller | 7 Wind, gentle evergreen (3 equal voices) Dr. Hayes |
| 267 Hark! to the rolling drum (3 voices) Sir H. R. Bishop | 145 Spring's delights (t.t.b.b.) Müller | 62 Winds gently whisper (s.s. or t.t.b.) R. Whittaker |
| 150 Harvest home Dr. Ions | 216 Spring-time (t.t.b.b.) Beethoven | 363 Wreath ye the steps to great Allah's throne R. Schumann |
| 85 Haste thee, nymph (Solo & Cho.) Handel | 353 Summer and Winter B. Tours | 64 Ye spotted snakes Stevens |
| 186 Hear, holy power (s.s.t.t.b.) Auber | 95 Summer is a coming in (for 4 Trebles) | 242 Ye Shepherds, tell me (Trio) J. Mazzinghi |
| 11 Here in cool grove Mornington | 7 Sweet enslaver (Round, for 3 voices) J. Atterbury | |
| 174 How gently the moonlight F. Paer | | |
| 156 How sleep the brave Dr. Cooke | | |

LONDON; NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 35, POULTRY (E.C.).

NEW YORK: J. L. PETERS, 599, BROADWAY.

CHAPPELL & CO.

Have now on View the largest Stock in London of PIANOFORTES by all the great Makers, of ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, greatly improved, and of ORGAN HARMONIUMS. Any of these Instruments can be Hired for Three Years, and, provided each Quarterly Instalment shall have been regularly paid in advance, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer at the expiration of the third year.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SIX-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM.

SOLID OAK CASE, FIVE OCTAVES, AND TWO FOOT-BOARDS.

The ever-increasing musical culture of all classes of society has established so large a demand for free reed instruments that many makers have sprung up who offer articles of such inferior and nasal quality of tone that the title of Harmonium suggests to many lovers of music the nearest approach to an instrument of torture that can be met with in the present age.

In the Instruments now offered to the public the tone will be found divested of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable. This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the tone rich and organ-like.

Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.

The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect, and without extra cost.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET.

NEW WORK FOR SINGING CLASSES.

CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS.

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass.

The present collection of Part-Songs is entirely new, being selected and adapted from the most striking and popular Choruses in the Favourite Foreign Operas. The Arrangement is purely Vocal, such Choruses only being chosen as can be sung without the aid of an Instrumental Accompaniment. The Words have been expressly written for the work, and the harmonies arranged in four parts, as likely to be most useful in small classes.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Hymn of the Fisherman's Children | Adapted to a Melody from Herold's "ZAMPA." |
| 2. Fays and Elves (In mia fe) | From Flotow's "MARTA." |
| 3. Spring's Bright Glances (In Elvezia non v'ha) | From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA." |
| 4. From Yonder Vale and Hill (D'immenso giubilo) | From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR." |
| 5. Here we Rest (Qui la selva) | From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA." |
| 6. Onward to Battle (Squilli echeggi) | From Verdi's "TROVATORE." |
| 7. Ratanaplan (Ratanaplan) | From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO." |
| 8. The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche) | From Verdi's "IL TROVATORE." |
| 9. War Song of the Druids (Dell' aura tua profetica) | From Bellini's "NORMA." |
| 10. In Mercy, hear us! (Cielo clemente) | From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO." |
| 11. Come to the Fair! (Accorrete, giovinette) | From Flotow's "MARTA." |
| 12. Friendship (Per te d'immenso giubilo) | From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR." |
| 13. Away, the Morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen). | From Auber's "MASANIELLO." |
| 14. Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus). | From Gounod's "FAUST." |
| 15. The soft Winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus) | From Weber's "PRECIOSA." |
| 16. See how lightly on the blue sea (Senti la danza invitaci) | From Donizetti's "LUCREZIA BORGIA." |
| 17. See the Moonlight Beam (Non fav Mollo) | " |
| 18. On yonder rocks reclining | From Auber's "FRA DIAVOLO." |
| 19. Happy and light | From Balfe's "BOHEMIAN GIRL." |
| 20. Come, come away (Ah! que de moins) | From Donizetti's "LA FAVORITA." |
| 21. Hymen's torch (Il destin) | From Meyerbeer's "LES HUGUENOTS." |
| 22. Come on, Comrade (The celebrated Chorus of Old Men) | From Gounod's "FAUST." |
| 23. 'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Chorus of the Crose) | " |
| 24. O Balmly night (Com è gentile) | From Donizetti's "DON PASQUALE." |

Postage free, 1½d. each; or 3 for 3½d.

(To be continued.)

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.

Original VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM.

Composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs, by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post free, 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written."

HANDEL'S CHORUSES

Arranged for the Organ, with PEDAL OBBLIGATO, EXPRESSLY for the use of AMATEURS, by DR. RIMBAULT. Price 3s. each. Nos. 1 to 12 are now ready:—

- | | | |
|-----------------------------|--------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| No. 1. ZADOCK THE PRIEST. | No. 5. SING UNTO GOD. | No. 9. FOR UNTO US A CHILD IS BORN. |
| 2. FROM THE CENSER. | 6. HALLELUJAH. | 10. HE TRUSTED IN GOD. |
| 3. WE NEVER WILL BOW DOWN. | 7. LIFT UP YOUR HEADS. | 11. BUT THE WATERS OVERWHELMED THEM. |
| 4. HE GAVE THEM HAILSTONES. | 8. LET US BREAK THEIR BONDS ASUNDER. | 12. THE HORSE AND HIS RIDER. |

(To be continued.)

The present publication has been undertaken with a view to supply a musical want long felt by amateurs and lovers of the organ, i.e., an edition of HANDEL'S CELEBRATED CHORUSES arranged for the organ with pedal obligato, that shall be effective, combining all the salient parts of the score, and yet at the same time be within the reach of those performers who have not made the instrument their entire study. We have, it is true, many arrangements; some for "Organ or Pianoforte," others by our most eminent organists. The first belong to a past age; the second, in all cases, are only fit for professional performers, and require an amount of skill for their proper execution rarely attained by amateurs. In the present edition, the notation has been carefully studied so as to simplify the reading, whilst the pedals, in all cases of difficulty, have the assistance of the left hand of the performer. Many other points have been considered so as to render the arrangement fitted to the object it has in view—to supply an edition of HANDEL'S CHORUSES for the Organ expressly for the amateur.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster-row.
And by J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway, New York.—Saturday, May 31, 1873.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

And Singing-Class Circular,
Published on the 1st of every Month.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped, those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c., can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 365.—Vol. 16.

Registered for transmission abroad.

JULY 1, 1873.

Price 2d.; Post-free, 3d.

Annual Subscription, Postage-free. 2s. 6d.

HEREFORD MUSICAL FESTIVAL, SEPTEMBER 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th, 1873.

Mlle. TIETJENS,
Miss EDITH WYNNE,
Mlle. BARTOWSKA,
Miss ENRIQUEZ, and
Mme. TREBELL-BETTINI.

Mr. W. H. CUMMINGS,
Mr. MONTEM SMITH,
Mr. E. LLOYD,
Mr. S. SANTLEY,
Signor AGNESI.

Conductor, Mr. G. TOWNSEND SMITH.

Programmes after 15th instant at Mr. E. K. Jakeman's, High Town.

LEADING BOYS WANTED for S. James, Paddington. Two Services.—Apply by letter, stating experience, &c., to Mr. C. M. 17, Westbourne-terrace North, W.

AS LEADER OF CHOIR in Church or Chapel. A young professional Lady wishes above position. Address S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

SOPRANO WANTED for a Church in Kensington. Good Voice and first-rate Reader. No week-day practice. Salary £10. Apply to Organist, 9, Young-street, Kensington-square, W.

CHORISTER.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir of S. Mary's, Arley Hall, Northwich, Cheshire, for a TREBLE BOY. For particulars apply to H. King, Shipton, Chipping Norton, Oxon. Organist of S. Mary's, but away during the Summer Vacation.

WANTED, a CONTRALTO and TENOR for a City Church. Good readers; Choral Service. Sunday mornings; Wednesday evening practices. Small amount for travelling expenses. Apply to Mr. Bicknell, 4, Primrose-street, Bishopsgate.

WANTED, a CONTRALTO VOICE; must be able to read at sight and the Alto clef. Apply at St. Mary-at-Hill Church, Eastcheap. City, on Sunday evenings before 8 o'clock, or by letter to A. B. Burlington House, Whitton, Middlesex.

SOLOIST.—A TENOR desires an ENGAGEMENT. Can read well at sight. Address 10, Davies-st., Berkeley-sq., W.

BASS SINGER.—WANTED a First Bass Singer for the Pro-Cathedral, Kensington. Also, some Amateur SINGERS. Apply to R. Sutton Swaby, 1, Leonard-place, Kensington, W.

BASS WANTED, Christchurch, Lee Park. Choral Service Sunday morning and evening; Practice Friday evening. Ten guineas. Apply to Mr. Ridley Prentice, 30A, Wimpole-street, W.

BASS REQUIRED at St. Paul's, Avenue-road. Salary £10. Two Services on Sundays, Christmas Day, and Good Friday. Apply by letter to Mr. Forbes, 176, Adelaide-road, N.W.

WANTED, a BASS in a Surpliced Choir, must be able to read Music. Two Sunday Services, and one Weekly Rehearsal. Salary at the rate of £10 per annum for the first six months, afterwards £12. Apply by letter to Everard Hulton, Mus. B., Oxon., 33, Redcliffe-road, Brompton, or at the Vestry of St. Luke's, Chelsea, after Sunday evening Service.

WANTED by an Experienced ORGANIST, a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Is used to full Choral Services. Good references. Address W., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-st.

AN Efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of many years' experience, desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT. High testimonials. Address Organist, 11, Hungerford-road, Camden-road, N.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Professional Gentleman is open to an ENGAGEMENT as above, or to deputize. Address H. D., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman requires an APPOINTMENT as above in London or Suburbs. Experienced as a Choir Trainer, and Pupil of Dr. Steggall.—Mr. Wm. Shaw, 4, Sydenham-terrace, Sydenham-road, Croydon.

WANTED, an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Unexceptional references; several years' experience. Address A. F. W., care of Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO ORGANISTS.—A Young Organist is willing to DEPUTIZE for a Gentleman in return for further Practice. A. M., 11, Robert-street, Hampstead-road, N.W.

AN ORGANIST desires an ENGAGEMENT. Ten years' experience. Address 20, Market-street, May-fair, W.

TO ORGANISTS.—A qualified DEPUTY is prepared to undertake Occasional Duty. Terms for two Services, 10s. 6d. Address, W. H. 22, Poland-street, Oxford-street, W.

DEPUTY ORGANIST.—A Professional Gentleman, unexpectedly at leisure, will be happy to DEPUTIZE during the summer months in London or Suburbs. Address G. H., 6, Pembury-grove, Lower Clapton, E.

WANTED, by a Gentleman Amateur, a SITUATION as ORGANIST or DEPUTY in Church or Chapel. Address P. O., 48, Southgate-road, Islington.

ORGANIST, or ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—WANTED, a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Good references and testimonials. Address Alpha, Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

THE ASSISTANT ORGANIST of S. Michael and All Angels, Brighton, desires the post of ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER to a Church in or near London. Can play Gregorian Services. Apply Assistant Organist, care of Alfred King, Esq., Mus. Bac., Oxon., and Fell. Coll. Org., Walton-villa, Buckingham-place, Brighton.

THE ORGANIST of a West-End Church requires a Gentleman to assist him at a Weekly Rehearsal and an occasional Sunday Afternoon Service, in return for which he offers practice on a good three-manual Organ. Address W. W., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TO the CLERGY and ORGANISTS.—Mr. R. T. WILMOT, F.C.O., is open to undertake Regular or Occasional Week Day Services, and on Sunday Afternoons. 54, Lupus-street, S.W.

A LADY, good Vocalist and Musician, having some time disengaged during the day, wishes for further ENGAGEMENTS as Teacher of the Pianoforte and Singing either in Schools or Private Families. Address A. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

WANTED a Young Man as ASSISTANT TUNER in a large Pianoforte Warehouse in the South of England. Address, stating age, qualifications, &c., to M. T. W., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

AN ASSISTANT WANTED in the Country who can TUNE and REPAIR Harmoniums and various Instruments. A good Pianoforte Tuner indispensable. Apply, stating wages required and capability, to Frank Attwells, Music Warehouse, Reading.

TUNER.—A Young Man desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT as Pianoforte Tuner. Been at Broadwood's; understands Harmoniums, and the Music Trade generally; would not object to live in the house. Address, stating salary (country preferred), W. D., E. G. Burling and Co., 9, City-road, Finsbury-square, E.C.

WANTED, an ENGAGEMENT as TUNER by a competent Man from Collard's, who understands repairs, and is accustomed to Country work. Good references. Address 0011, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

ATTENDANT REQUIRED for the County Asylum at Hayward's Heath. Wages £30 a year, rising £1 to £36, with uniform, board, lodging and washing. Preference given to a Musician. Apply, stating age, height, and name of last employer, to Mr. Williams at the Asylum.

S. MICHAEL'S, BRIGHTON.—The ORGANIST requires an ASSISTANT, Pupil or otherwise, who can take a Plain Service.—Mus. Bac., 30, Buckingham-place.

A MUS. DOC. Oxon., residing in a large and fashionable town, would be glad to meet with an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages for improvement. Organ contains four manuals. Several musical societies in the town. Apply to Kappa, care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, London, W.

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—Mr. R. Taylor, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS GRACE ARMYTAGE (Primo Soprano),
2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud green-road, N.

MISS BLANCHE REIVES (Principal Soprano only).
Oratorios, Opera, Concerts, &c. 54, Lupus-street, S.W., and 106, Renfrew-street, Glasgow.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
64, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS JENNY TWIGG (Soprano).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 41, Hampton Villas, Clough-road, Sheffield.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE (Soprano),
2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill W.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),
50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MISS GLEDHILL (Contralto).
Concerts and Pupils. 51, Devonshire-road, N.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
Address 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 1, St. George's-terrace, Kilburn.

HENRY C. SANDERS (Baritone),
(Of S. Andrew's, Well-street) 2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Basso).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; also for Oxford Glee Society.
Address Principal Bass, Ch. Ch. Cathedral, Oxford.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),
Sunnybank, Hazlewood-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
(Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts), for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address 2, Hallfield-place, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. J. TILLEARD,
Removed to Seaton-villa, Slathwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder,
29, Minories, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas &c. 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUBLISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC by LITHO. COPYING cheapest way for Publishing, &c. Organists and Composers should give it a trial. Specimen. Fredk. Wood, 32, Vincent-square Westminster.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ-Accordions.
Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

ACCURATE METRONOMES 1s., post free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 7th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices at J. Moore's, Buxton-road, Huddersfield. Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

ORGAN FACTORY, 141, Stanhope-street, Hampstead-road.—T. NORTON has ORGANS from four to seventeen stops for SALE. Amateurs supplied with Pipes (Metal and Wood), voiced ready for use. Tunings and repairs.

ORGAN HARMONIUM, £32. Two manuals, fine organ tone, walnut case, dulciana stops, bourdon on full compass, Bourdon pedals, 2 couplers. One manual, with pedals, 24 rows of reeds, £24 and £22. Manufactured for pedal practice by W. J. R.bertson, 107, Tottenham-road, Kingsland, London, N. Lists free, with extracts of letters from Organists.

CC ORGAN for SALE, now in course of construction. 2 complete rows of keys, CC to G, and 2½ octaves of pedals and pedal pipes, 17 stops, and can be finished to suit Church or Chamber, according to wish of purchaser. For particulars and terms apply to G. T., 23, Brunswick-street, Poplar, E.

ORGAN for SALE, new. Compass CC to G, 8 stops on the great organ, 7 ditto on the swell organ, separate bourdon pedal organ, suitable for Church, Chapel, or Hall. To be seen at A. Hunter's Organ factory, 379, Kennington-road.

ORGANS for SALE.—One £15, open & stop diapason, pedals; the other 6 stops, great bargain. Edward, Chesham, Bucks.

WANTED, a Two Manual CHAMBER ORGAN, with pedal and bourdon, second-hand.—J. W. Kennard, Bishop Sutton, near Bristol.

ORGAN for SALE, suitable for a small Church or Chapel, Mahogany Case, good Tone, now in use at Christ Church, Frome. Price £30. Apply to S. Harris, Story-street, Frome.

ORGAN (American) for SALE.—Full compass, 9 stops, including octave coupler, by Breavington and Sons. Organ quality of tone, Italian walnut case, to be sold very cheap. Apply to G. T., 23, Brunswick-street, Poplar.

CC ORGAN for SALE, by GRAY, of London, equal to new, with 2 manuals, 12 stops, and separate pedal organ of 29 notes, in handsome carved oak case, with gilt front speaking pipes; a Bargain. Address A. B. Clifton House, Deal.

SMALL ORGANS with pedals, for Church or Chamber, from 35 guineas. HARMONIUMS, 5 octaves of organ tone, simple mechanism, for Chapels, Schools, or private use, from 6 guineas. PIANOFORTES, 7 octaves, from 21 guineas. Warranted. Rosewood COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, 2½ octaves of pedals. William Sprague, 7, Finsbury-pavement, London. Established 1837.

ORGAN for SALE, quite new, well built, very suitable for a small Place of Worship. Compass CC to G, separate pedal organ, 8 stops, including bourdon, 25 notes, general swell, composition pedals, neat stained case, with illuminated (or gilt) pipes. Net £65. Particulars E. N., 4, Little Gower-place, Euston-square.

ORGAN.—WANTED a Small C Organ, 2 manuals, pedals (radiating preferred), with bourdon.—Thomas Readwin, Organist, Fakenham, Norfolk.

WANTED an ORGAN capable of lending a Congregation of 1,200 persons. 2 manuals, pedal organ, with bourdon throughout. State full particulars and maker's name, with lowest price for cash. Address A. D. P., Post-office, Glasgow.

HARMONIUM for SALE, 2 manuals, price £10 10s. W. Reeves, 83, Approach-road, Victoria-park.

FOR SALE, Two Octaves of OAK ORGAN PEDALS (full size) with roller board, trackers, and all the necessary apparatus for applying to a Piano for Organ Practice. Easily attached; has been at work; £3 3s. Apply to Thomas Smith, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

OBOE STOP for SALE, second hand. To Fiddle G, 30s. only. W. F., 9, Portugal-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument with two manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and practice on other Instruments also.

TO ORGANISTS.—PRACTICE may be had on a very fine ORGAN. Two manuals, swell, variety of stops, 2½ of pedals, and bourdon to CCC. Terms very moderate. Address E. Francis, Organist of St. Peter's (W.C.), 183, Upper-street, Islington, N.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, Strand.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—(HILL and SON)—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

ORGAN LESSONS or PRACTICE, 166, Strand.—Mr. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE has pleasure in notifying that the Organ at his Studio has just undergone entire reconstruction and most careful revision at the hands of Messrs. Hill and Son, the eminent Organ builders, and that the Organ is now consequently in excellent condition and tune.

TO AUTOGRAPH COLLECTORS.—To be SOLD, an extensive Collection of Autograph Letters, comprising some from Mendelssohn, Rossini, Schumann, Spohr, Charles Dickens, Leigh Hunt, John Keats, Hazlitt, C. Lamb, Wordsworth, Garibaldi, Mazzini, Cobden, Macready, Cruikshank, Etty, Wiseman, and other eminent men. Also a Musical MS. (part of a Mass) by Haydn, ditto by Mendelssohn, &c. Apply by letter to S. N., Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGAN MUSIC.—Catalogue (pp. 50), gratis and post free, of a valuable collection of Organ Solos—Duets—Pedal Exercises—Choruses—Voluntaries—Soft Movements—Cathedral and Church Music—Anthems—Oratorios—Services—Masses—Instruction Books, &c.—London: Sole Publishers, Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

ONE GUINEA'S worth of MUSIC for 2s. 6d., slightly sold, including the surplus of the past year's issue. Post free 2s. 10d. JAMES SMITH & SON, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

10S. WORTH OF MUSIC for One Shilling. Post free for fifteen stamps. Each Shilling Lot contains pieces quite new. R. Meilor, Cross Church-street, Huddersfield. Established 1838.

MISS BESSIE M. WAUGH (Eos Mynwy), Solo Pianist, Accompanist, and Teacher of the Piano-forte. 6, Mortimer-street, Cavendish-square, W.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.), begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts, may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

MUSIC.—J. VON JOËL, from the Berlin and Milan Conservatoires, gives FINISHING LESSONS on the Piano-forte, Singing and Harmony. Testimonials from Sir Julius Benedict, Dr. Kullak, Herr Pauer, and Signor Vaschetti. Terms, Four Lessons, a Guinea. Address, care of Harris, 33, Rathbone-place, W.

MR. ALFRED KENNINGHAM (Tenor), of St. Paul's Cathedral, begs to inform his pupils and the public generally that he has REMOVED from 3, Alfred-place, Bedford-square, to 3, New Ormond-street, W.C., and that all communications respecting Oratorio and Concert Engagements shall have immediate attention.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S MUSICAL ACADEMY.—The THIRD TERM commences Monday, Oct. 20. Madame Sainton-Dolby receives Candidates for admission at her residence, 71, Gloucester-place, Hyde Park, every Tuesday afternoon from three to four o'clock, until the middle of July, when she leaves town until the Academy re-opens. Prospectuses containing all particulars can be obtained of Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street, and Messrs. Chappell, 50, New Bond-street.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Eighth Season). Mr. H. ASHTON. Mr. T. PEARSON. Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN. Assisted by Madame ASHTON. (Miss F. Danielson.)

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c., address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

MONTHLY SALES OF MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. MESSRS. PUTTICK AND SIMPSON beg to announce that they continue to hold Monthly Sales of Music in all classes, ancient and modern, together with Musical Instruments, including Piano-fortes, Organs, Harmoniums, Harps, Cremona, and other Violins and Violoncellos, Double Basses, &c. Single lots or entire collections, if sent in by the 12th of each month, will be in time for insertion in the succeeding sale. Messrs. P. and S. also undertake Trade Sales of Music Plates and Copyrights, Printed Stocks, Stocks of Instruments, &c.

QUARTERLY SALE OF UNREDEEMED MUSICAL PROPERTY, consisting of nearly 100 Piano-fortes by Broadwood, Collard, Kirkman, Erard, Allison, Brinsmead, &c. Harmoniums by Alexandre, Christophe and Etienne, Niedermeyer, &c. Sheet Music and Sundries, being the Unredeemed Pledges from the principal Pawnbrokers, and the Stock of a Music-seller (deceased.) Messrs. KELLY and Co. will SELL the property as above at their great Rooms, 11, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital, W., on Wednesday, July 9th, 1873, at one o'clock precisely. May be viewed, and Catalogues had, the day prior and morning of Sale.

PASCALL'S VOICE JUJUBES.

Strongly recommended to Singers and Public Speakers. Agreeable and effective. In boxes only, Sixpence and One Shilling each, or post free for eight and fourteen stamps. None genuine without the name and address on each box.—Jas. Pascall, 21, Wells-street, Oxford-street, London, W.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

E P P S'S C O C O A.
BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.

MANUFACTURE OF COCOA.—"We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Euston-road, London."—See Article in "Cassell's Household Guide."

Made simply with boiling water or milk.

Each Packet is Labelled

JAMES EPPS and Co., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS, London.

The King of all Reed Instruments yet invented.

W. HATTERSLEY and CO.'S Celebrated Improved HARMONIUMS, for quality of tone, rapidity of touch, workmanship, improved action, &c., stand unequalled. These charming instruments have been compared side by side with the American organs, and pronounced superior at half the price.

DRAWING ROOM MODEL.

Full Organ Tone, with knee swell to Treble and Bass, all stops effective.

9 Stops, Walnut case, 17 guineas.

12 " Burr " 22 "

13 " " 26 "

New designs and new testimonials now ready.

W. Hattersley and Co., 10 and 12, Bow-street, Sheffield.

CHOIR-BOY (LEADER) WANTED for the Church of St. German's-place, Blackheath. Stipend £8 to 12, according to ability; or to a Boy who has a good voice, but only slight knowledge of music, thorough instruction and a small Stipend would be given. Apply by letter to J. T. Field, 6, Brunswick-place, Blackheath, S.E.

ORGANIST.—A Young Gentleman would be glad of an APPOINTMENT as above.—Address Mr. E. Straker, 9, Devonshire-terrace, Kingsland-green.

PIANO-FORTE TUNER. WANTED, by a respectable Young Man, with a fair knowledge of Tuning, a SITUATION as Improver in a Warehouse. Apply to F. V. Richer, 2, Brunswick-hill, Reading.

TO PIANO-FORTE TUNERS.—WANTED for London, an experienced Tuner, who can also regulate. Apply to Mr. Jefferys, 67, Berners-street.

A YOUNG LADY desires a SITUATION in a Piano-forte or Music Warehouse. Plays at sight. Good references. R, 9, Oxford-terrace, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MR. MARCELLUS HIGGS requires a YOUTH as an ARTICLED PUPIL (out of the house). Terms for three years, 50 guineas. Address 22, Bessboro'-street S.W.

PSALMODY.—REQUIRED, all or either of the following Works. Must be perfect and the latest editions, but if otherwise damaged it will not affect purchase. Short score copies preferred. Rev. W. J. Blew's Church Hymn and Tune Book; Barnby's Original Tunes; Bembridge's Psalmody; Bemrose and Adlington's Chorale Book, with Supplementary Tunes; Brvan's Psalms and Hymns; Christian Psalmist; Sunday School Union; Church Choir; Church of Scotland Tune Book; Clark's Psalmody, 4 vols.; Clark's Jubal's Lyre; Chambers's Lauda Sion; Durner's Gems of Song with Music; Easy Litanies, Hymns, and Antiphons; Exeter Hall Magazine, all the vols., except 1, 2, and 3; Elves's Harmonia; Elford's Selection of Tunes; Elvey's University Psalm Book; Gardner's Holy Trinity Choir Book; Gaskie's Sacred Harmony of the Church of Scotland, with Supplement; Novello's Home Music; Hymnal Noted, with Harmonies; Holy Family Hymn Book; Painter's Hymns for Missions; Harris's Twelve Sacred Melodies; Haehery's Collection; Holder's Twenty-three Tunes; Hayes' Sixteen Psalms; Ions's Cantica Ecclesiastica; Jacobs's National Psalmody; Jones's Melodies of the Church; Kelly's Hymns and Tunes; Mainzer's Standard Psalmody of Scotland; Nelson and Sons' Hymn Music; Novello's The Psalmist; Oratory Hymn Book; Parish Choir; Charles Purday's Church and Home Metrical Psalter and Hymnal (Routledge); Standard Tune Book; Shepherd's Divine Amusement; Sheldermine's Psalms and Hymns, parts 1 and 2; Sutton's Six Tunes; Sale's Psalms and Hymns; Thorne's Selection of Psalm and Hymn Tunes; Tolpitt's Parish Tune Book; Viner's Hundred Psalms and Hymns; Wortham's Ten Chorales; Weber's Church of England Chorale Book.—Address to S. D. Major, 7, Charlotte-street, Bath.

Reduced price, 6d.

SCHUMANN'S GIPSY LIFE. The English Version by JOHN OXFORD. Composed by ROBERT SCHUMANN, Op. 29. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, B-ners-street, W.

NEW SONGS, by STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

Dreaming in the Shadow.	Poetry by C. Mackay, LL.D.	20 net.
Winter and Spring.	Contralto " R. Y. Sturges	20 "
Arise, my love!	Tenor " Robert Crompton	16 "
Wert thou mine!	Tenor " Chas. Mackay	16 "
Serenade.	ATTB. " Robert Crompton	06 "

Birmingham: Adams and Beresford, 17 and 18, Ann-street; London: Willey and Co., 52, Great Marlborough-street.

Just Published.

SONATA for PIANO-FORTE, Op. 20, by H. S. OAKELEY, Mus. Doc., and Professor of Music at the University of Edinburgh. Lamborn Cook, 63 New Bond-street.

TO VOLUNTEERS. Just published price 4d.

SPANISH MARCH, by M. REILLE (Bandmaster 25th Regiment), as used for Marching purposes by the 1st Batt. Wilts R. V. Arranged for Men's Voices by H. MILLINGTON (Bandmaster 1st Batt. Wilts R. V.), with Words specially written by W. EVERETT, Esq., 93rd Regiment. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Trowbridge: H. Millington, Piano-forte Saloon. (Military Brass and Drum and Fife Band Parts supplied.)

GOTTFRIED'S GAVOTTE. HANS VON BÜLOW Edited and revised with the sanction of the Composer, by HANS VON BÜLOW, played by him at his recent Recitals, and received with enthusiasm. Price 3s., half price post free. Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co., 84, New Bond-street, London, W.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 2s. 6d. paper covers; 3s. 9d. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS,

SINGLE AND DOUBLE,

EDITED BY THE
REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND
EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with special reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry. New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 258 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

" 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

" 3. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 0d.

" 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered... 2s. 6d.

Congregations or Associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and music-sellers.

NOW READY,
A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS AND ANTHEMS, arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford. Very neat and compact, 218 pp. Imperial 32mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in ... 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered ... 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered ... 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co.

Bradford: Thomas Brear.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK AND PSALMS AND CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Ninth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book; also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DONSON, and for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.; cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES and ROUNDS; or Musical Precept and Example, combined in Easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J. POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c.
London: Novello, Ewer, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,

FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS AND SCHOOLMASTERS.

By RICHARD MANN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TWENTY-SECOND EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello. Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Now ready, in Three Books, 6s. each. Post-free for Half-price.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

Specially adapted for Colleges, Public Schools, Singing Classes, &c.

Books 1 and 2 (Duets); Book 3 (Trios).

London: Novello. Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Fourth edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello. Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

"FROM INTERVALS TO COUNTERPOINT."

SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and all Music-sellers.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS, now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.

No. 1. The Merry Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.

No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katrine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra.

Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.

W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton Place, Reading.

TEN TRIOS FOR FEMALE VOICES, composed by CARL REINECKE. (Op. 100.) 8vo., 1s. 6d.; or singly—

No. 1.—"The Dreaming Lake," 2d.

" 2.—"Praise of Spring," 3d.

" 3.—"Of Oak thy mournful bier's prepared," 3d.

" 4.—"Sunbeams in Winter," 2d.

" 5.—"The Awakening of Morn," 3d.

" 6.—"The Winter hath not a blossom," 3d.

" 7.—"Thou that thyself with death hath striven," 2d.

" 8.—"The Evening Wind," 3d.

" 9.—"As in a field goodly fruit will grow," 3d.

" 10.—"The Elves," 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

DOWN IN A FLOW'RY VALE.

MADRIGAL FOR FOUR VOICES,

BY

CONSTANTIUS FESTA,

In A for Mixed Voices, and in F for Male Voices.

A new Edition of the MUSICAL TIMES, No. 3, price 1½d., is just published, containing the above Madrigal, with the original English words by THOMAS OLIPHANT, and the second verse by F. W. R., commencing "Soon as I careless strayed."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S ONLY COMPLETE AND UNIFORM EDITION OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

Thirteen Two-Part Songs,

With the German and W. Bartholomew's Original English Words.

Complete in One Volume, folio, 5s. net. Octavo, paper, 2s. net; cloth gilt, 4s. net; or, singly, 2s. each. The separate Numbers are sold at half-price.

- | | |
|-----------------------------|----------------------------|
| No. 1 I would that my love. | No. 7 My bark is bounding. |
| 2 The passage bird. | 8 Can I light-hearted |
| 3 Greeting. | be. |
| 4 Autumn song. | 9 Evening song. |
| 5 O wert thou in the | 10 Zuleika and Hassan. |
| cauld blast. | 11 The sabbath morn. |
| 6 The maybells and the | 12 The harvest field. |
| flowers. | 13 Song from Ruy Blas. |

N.B.—The Quartett Score to No. 13, 1s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OBLONG FOLIO EDITION.

RINK'S PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL.

Carefully revised, with the German directions and terms translated into English, and the pedal part printed on a separate staff.

THE WHOLE EDITED BY W. T. BEST.

Price 20s., or in Six Books, 4s. each.

Preface. Part I., price 4s., contains—

Nos. 1 to 12.—Short and Easy Pieces in Two parts.

13 to 24 " " Three parts.

25 to 36 " " Four parts.

37 to 66.—Preludes in all the Major and Minor Keys.

Part II., price 4s., contains—

Nos. 67 to 132.—Exercises for the Pedals.

133 to 144.—Twelve Chorales, or well-known German Psalm Tunes, with Variations.

Part III., price 4s., contains—

Nos. 145 to 159.—Fifteen Easy Postludes, or Concluding Voluntaries, in the Fugue Style.

Part IV., price 4s., contains—

Nos. 160 to 174.—Fifteen Postludes, or Concluding Voluntaries for Alternate Manuals, in the Fugue Style.

Part V., price 4s., contains—

Nos. 175 to 181.—Seven Preludes and Fugues.

182.—The Flute Concerto.

183.—Variations on "Heil dir im Sieges Kranz," or "God save the Queen."

Part VI., price 4s., contains—

Nos. 184 to 192.—Nine Preludes and Fugues.

193 and 194.—Fantasia and Fugue.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR CLASS SINGING.

CIRO PINSUTTI'S CHORUSES for Soprano and Contralto Voices (with Solos.)

- | | | |
|--------------|---|-----------|
| LE ALFUGIANE | } | 3s. each. |
| LE VENEZIANE | | |
| LE ROMANE | | |
| LE INGLESI | | |
| LE FRANCESI | } | 4s. each. |
| LE ALLEMANE | | |

N.B.—All the above may be sung as Trios.

London: R. Mills and Sons, 140, New Bond-street.

ROBERT COCKS and Co.'s POPULAR MUSIC.

High-class Music for Amateurs, Students, and others.—To be had gratis and postage free a LIST of 400 CLASSICAL WORKS, bound at greatly reduced prices. Amateur Pianists will find a large and attractive selection of Pianoforte Compositions, by the first Composers of the day, in Robert Cocks and Co.'s Catalogue of Pianoforte Music, sent gratis and postage free. Also the Ladies' List of Songs and Piano Music.

THE SHAH'S MARCH for the PIANOFORTE, by

J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated by a faithful Portrait. Price 4s.; post free for 24 stamps. It is a pleasing memento of this great Monarch's visit to our country.

LET THE HILLS RESOUND. A New Part-Song, by the Composer of the new National Song, "God bless the Prince of Wales." P. st free for 13 stamps. Published by Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

C. JEFFERYS, 67 BERNERS ST.
THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

A COLLECTION OF

PART-SONGS, GLEES, CHORUSES, &c.

EDITED BY MICHAEL WATSON.

- | | | | |
|---------------------------------------|-----|-----|------------------|
| 1 'Tis silent eve | ... | ... | Michael Watson. |
| 2 Corin's fate | ... | ... | B. Turner. |
| 3 Where the pearly dew-drop falleth | ... | ... | E. J. Loder. |
| 4 The Winter being over | ... | ... | Ellen Avery. |
| 5 Fairy voices | ... | ... | T. G. B. Hatley |
| 6 Moonlight | ... | ... | J. H. L. Glover |
| 7 Good-bye | ... | ... | J. L. Hatton. |
| 8 I thought of thee | ... | ... | W. F. Banks. |
| 9 The Forsaken | ... | ... | J. L. Hatton. |
| 10 Bonny May | ... | ... | J. H. L. Glover. |
| 11 Spring Song | ... | ... | J. L. Hatton. |
| 12 The Winds | ... | ... | C. J. Frost. |
| 13 County Guy | ... | ... | G. A. Macfarren. |
| 14 The birds that had left their song | ... | ... | do. |

Price 2d. each number. Other Numbers in the Press.

THE POPULAR

Operatic Arrangements,

SOLOS AND DUETS,

And Original Pianoforte Pieces,

By FELIX GANTIER,

Of which lists may be had on application.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

- | | |
|--|---------|
| 1. FOUNTAINS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire movement) | s. d. |
| from Haydn's 16th Mass | ... 3 0 |
| 2. NETLEY ABBEY. Cujus Animam (the entire movement) | ... |
| from Rossini's Stabat Mater | ... 3 0 |
| 3. KIRKSTALL ABBEY. Kyrie (the entire movement) from | ... |
| Mozart's 12th Mass | ... 3 0 |
| 4. TINTERN ABBEY. Gloria in Excelsis (the entire move- | ... |
| ment) from Mozart's 12th Mass... | ... 3 0 |

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, with views of English Abbeys.

THE LYRIC STAGE, a Series of Brilliant Operatic

Fantasias:—

- | | | | | |
|------------------------|-----|-----|-----------|-----|
| 1. Martha | ... | ... | Flotow | 4 0 |
| 2. Lucia di Lammermoor | ... | ... | Donizetti | 4 0 |
| 3. Il Flauto Magico | ... | ... | Mozart | 4 0 |
| 4. Les Huguenots | ... | ... | Meyerbeer | 4 0 |
| 5. La Traviata | ... | ... | Verdi | 4 0 |
| 6. Norma | ... | ... | Bellini | 4 0 |
| 7. L'Ombre | ... | ... | Flotow | 4 0 |
| 8. Robert le Diable | ... | ... | Meyerbeer | 4 0 |
| 9. Il Trovatore | ... | ... | Verdi | 4 0 |

THE QUEEN ... 4 0

Brilliant Fantasia on English National Airs, "Heart of Oak," "Rule, Britannia," and "God save the Queen."

THE PRINCESS LOUISE WEDDING MARCH 3 0

PRINCESS VICTORIA MARCH ... 3 0

Each illustrated with fine Portrait in Colours.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE VIENNA MARCH.

BY

MICHAEL WATSON.

Illustrated with a beautiful view of Vienna from the Danube.
Price 3s.

NEW BASS SONG

BY

ED. REYLOFF.

"THE ARMOURER,"

COMPASS, B FLAT TO E FLAT.

Price 3s.

NEW FANTASIAS,

BY

WILLIE PAPE.

- | | |
|----------------------|-----|
| IL TROVATORE—(Verdi) | 4s. |
| MARTHA—(Flotow) | 4s. |
| SALADIN GRAND MARCH | 4s. |

C. JEFFERYS, 67, BERNERS STREET (W.).

HARVEST ANTHEMS.

GARRETT, G. M., Mus. D.—"The Lord is loving unto every man." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 1s.

BARNBY, J.—"I will give thanks unto Thee." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 2s.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

—"O Lord, how manifold are Thy works." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio 9d.; ditto 8vo., 1½d.; vocal parts, 6d.

—"The Harvest-tide Thanksgiving." Hymn for 4 voices. Words by the Rev. S. CHILDS CLARKE. 8vo., 1½d. Words only, 1s. 6d. per 101.

GROSS, Sir JOHN—"Fear not, O Land, be glad and rejoice." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s. 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.;

—"I will magnify Thee, O God." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 6d.

OUSELEY, The Rev. Sir FREDERICK—"The Lord is my Shepherd." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d.; vocal parts, 1s.

CALLCOTT, W. H.—"Thou visitest the earth and blessest it." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

—Ditto, treble solo. 6d.

MACFARREN, G. A.—"God said, Behold, I have given you every herb." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

—"O Lord, how manifold are Thy works." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

HAYES, Dr. W.—"Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s.

HERVEY, Rev. F. A. J.—"Make melody within your hearts." Carol. 8vo., 3d.

GREENE, Dr.—"Then visitest the earth." Tenor solo and chorus. Vocal score, folio, 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 1½d.; vocal parts, 6d.

CLARKE, Dr. JOHN WHITEFIELD—"Blessed are all they that fear the Lord." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 7½d.

THORNE, E. H.—"All Thy works praise Thee." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 1s.

STEGGALL, CHARLES, Mus. D., Cantab.—"Praised be the Lord." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

HOPKINS, JOHN L., Mus. D.—"The fostering earth, the genial showers." Words by GEORGE E. SHIRLEY, Esq. 8vo., 3d.

PATISON, T. M.—"O how plentiful is Thy goodness." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d.; 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 6d.

TAYLOR, W.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." Solo, Trio, Quartett, and Chorus. 8vo., 6d.

BRIDGE, J. FREDERICK—"Give unto the Lord the glory." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

MATTHEWS, J. J.—"The Lord said in His heart." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

ARNOLD, GEORGE B., Mus. D., Oxon.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." S.S.A.T.B. 8vo., 3d.

KEETON, HAYDN—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

HARVEST ANTHEM, "The eyes of all wait on Thee, O Lord" by H. KEETON, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist of Peterborough Cathedral. Price 4d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES

FOR

HARVEST,
SELECTED FROM
THE HYMNARY.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

SING TO THE LORD A JOYFUL SONG	- J. BARNBY.
O LORD, THE HEAVEN THY POWER
DISPLAYS	- SIR F. OUSELEY.
FATHER BLESSING EVERY SEED TIME	DR. DYKES.
LORD, IN THY NAME THY SERVANTS
PLEAD	- W. METCALFE.
THE WINTRY TIME HATH ENDED	DR. GAUNTLETT.
COME, YE THANKFUL PEOPLE COME	SIR GEO. ELVEY.
GOD, THE FATHER, WHOSE CREATION	H. SMART.
LORD OF THE HARVEST, THEE WE HAIL	ANONYMOUS.
LO, SUMMER COMES AGAIN	REV. E. B. WHITLEY.
PRaise, O PRAISE OUR HEAVENLY KING	GERMAN.
SUMMER ENDED, HARVEST OER	J. ADCOCK.
O LORD OF HEAVEN, AND EARTH AND
SEA	- DR. WESLEY.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; New York: J. L. Peters.

SECOND EDITION. Just published, price 2s. 6d.

A CONCISE AND PRACTICAL EXPLANATION

of the RULES of SIMPLE HARMONY and THOROUGH-BASS, with Chapters on Time, Keys, Intervals, and general Elementary Musical Knowledge, respectfully dedicated (by permission) to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., Mus. Doc., Professor of Music at the University of Oxford, by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury.

* * * Contains all that is necessary for Students for the Oxford and Cambridge Examinations.

From John Bull, May 10.—"A very simple and clear tractate on the subject, such as the merest tyro could understand. Mr. Smith has avoided the danger, brevis esse laboro, obscurus fio, for, though his little manual consists of only twenty-seven pages, there is nothing omitted of the rudiments which a learner ought to know. We do not indeed accept all his conclusions, e.g., as to the derivation of the 7-5 on the supertonic, the writer agrees with the Oxford Professor of Music in assigning it to a double root; whereas we prefer the theory of Macfarren, that it springs from the eleventh, which the writer notices only to reject it, as a theory held by some authors. But these are, after all, matters of opinion, and do not detract from the value of the work, especially as the writer fairly notices that these divergences of opinion exist. The manual bears the imprimatur of Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, in itself no slight passport; and we must add, for ourselves, that, after careful examination, we do not know any work of its kind so thorough and well-digested; and we say this without ignoring the existence of Burrows' Primer, to which we owe the first glimmerings of light shed on a subject we had heretofore deemed shrouded in 'Cimmerian darkness,' to say nothing of the present manual being less than half the cost of Burrows' Thorough-Bass Primer."

From Dr. Buck, Norwich Cathedral:—"Dr. Buck has great pleasure and satisfaction in expressing his approbation of Mr. Smith's easy, and yet comprehensive system of the Rudiments of Harmony for young pupils."

From Henry Farmer, Esq. (the popular Composer):—"I feel sure that your book will be a boon to many Teachers of Music; it is a thing that has been much wanted, and I shall certainly use it wherever I can."

From Rev. W. Borrow (Hon. Inspector to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury):—"I am very much pleased with your little Manual of Simple Harmony; it is concise and clear—just, in fact, what such a primer should be. I trust that it will obtain as wide a circulation as it deserves."

From J. A. Alloway, Esq., Teacher of Harmony, Calham College, Oxford:—"An admirable little work; most suitable for Students in Training Colleges."

From the English Churchman:—"Mr. Smith has succeeded perfectly in his effort to afford a practical explanation of the chorals most commonly used in music. . . . Will serve as an excellent introduction to the most abstruse and elaborate works which have been published. The merits of the Manual proclaim themselves on the first examination; but an additional guarantee of the worthiness of the work will be found in the fact that the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley has accepted the dedication of it to himself."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. THOMAS SMITH, Author of "A Concise and Practical Explanation of the Rules of Simple Harmony and Thorough-Bass," (dedicated, by permission to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart.), gives LESSONS in SIMPLE HARMONY, by post, to any part of the country. A guinea and a half per course of ten lessons; the system complete in two courses.

Authors' Manuscripts revised, 10s. 6d.

Just published, price 3d.

HARVEST ANTHEM, "Thou crownest the year," by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury. Written specially for Village Choirs; easy and effective. Can be got up by an ordinary Choir in three or four practices.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Post free direct from the Composer, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

The Offertory Sentences,

WITH AN APPENDIX FOR FESTAL USE,

SET TO MUSIC BY
JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 1s. 6d.; or in Numbers at 2d. each.

- | | |
|---|--------------------------------------|
| No. 1. Let your light so shine. | 13. Charge them who are rich. |
| 2. Lay not for yourselves. | 14. God is not unrighteous. |
| 3. Whatsoever ye would that men. | 15. To do good. |
| 4. Not every one that saith unto Me. | 16. Whoso hath this world's goods. |
| 5. Zachaeus stood forth. | 17. Give alms of thy goods. |
| 6. Who goeth a warfare. | 18. Be merciful after thy power. |
| 7. If we have sown. | 19. He that hath pity upon the poor. |
| 8. Do ye not know. | 20. Blessed be the man. |
| 9. He that soweth little. | 21. Let your light so shine. |
| 10. Let him that is taught in the word. | Festive Setting. |
| 11. While we have time. | |
| 12. Godliness is great riches. | |

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES,

2nd Singing-Class Circular.

JULY 1, 1873.

THE DRIFT OF MODERN MUSIC.

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

"WHITHER am I going" is perhaps the oldest question familiar to humanity; without doubt it is the question most often expressed. Self-interest has something to do with our persistence in seeking the reply which never comes. We know that somewhere is our destination, and naturally feel curious, not to say anxious, as to its position and circumstances. But putting self-interest aside, a good deal of curiosity is explained by the instinctive desire of men to foresee what may come after them. Our in-born thirst for knowledge finds stimulus in the mystery which hangs over the future. We would get behind the veil if we could, but there is no rent in its black expanse. We stand, as Carlyle puts it, between "two great silences:"

"Stars silent rest o'er us, Graves under us silent."

According to Bulwer Lytton, "The veil which covers the face of futurity is woven by the hand of mercy," and a greater than he,—St. Augustine,—said "God will not suffer man to have the knowledge of things to come; for if he had prescience of his prosperity he would be careless, and understanding of his adversity he would be senseless." None the less, however, must the future be taken into account, its anticipated exigencies provided for, and its conditions influenced for good by wise action in that Present out of which the Future is to grow. All thoughtful men in every department of human activity do more than limit their action to the time being. They look beyond the Now to the consequential Then, and, as the steersman guides his vessel by the distant harbour light, so they govern their doings by reference to some high and ultimate end. There is no reason why this practice should not be applied to music. Indeed, there are abundant reasons why it should. Music is the youngest of all the arts. As an art, its existence began in times which appear recent when compared with the dawn of the historic era, or even with the age which saw the sister arts flourishing "like a green bay tree." Where was music when the immortal poets of Greece sang their glowing strains of love and death? Where was it when Praxiteles carved his Phryne, and when Apelles painted his Sleeping Venus? At that time the powers of music lay dormant, or were no more than feebly evoked by ignorant hands. How slowly did the now universal art develop! Generation after generation of worthies laboured in its cause, with results which, seen from our point of view, appear small indeed, and the greatest substantial progress has been made within the last hundred years. Looking at these things, who can venture to preach the doctrine of musical finality? Painting and sculpture, poetry even, may have reached their highest development, but music is in its vigorous youth, and is advancing—whither? That is the question.

At no time has this question possessed a greater significance than now. In our day music is suffering the consequences of an age of portentous action, which inevitably ensured certain results. The law of action and re-action pervades all nature. Etna blazes up now and then, but in the interval of eruption there is a time when children might play on the edge of the crater, and when the mountain adds the attraction of safety to that of grandeur and beauty. As a matter of course the prodigious musical eruption which began with Bach and ended when Mendelssohn passed away, is now followed by a time of relaxed energies. In this case such a time is one of danger. No great commanding genius dominates the art, and guides its progress by the light of his inspired faculties. Were the sun of a Beethoven shining there would be little cause for anxiety, though owl-like creatures blinking in its radiance, would probably hoot their loudest. But no such phenomenon adorns the firmament of music, and its place is feebly supplied by stars. With darkness come false lights. It is at night that the glow-worm entices the curious traveller into the roadside ditch, and that Will-o'-the-wisp lures uncertain wanderers into swamps. Are any false lights doing a like ill-service for music in the time now present?

Beyond question, the world of music is far from easy regard to this matter. A feeling of anxiety and apprehension prevails, taking its rise in certain unmistakable tendencies, the logical issue of which would be to upset the canons of art as fixed by the genius of the past, and to substitute others which genius has never sanctioned. Prima facie, there is good reason for anxiety and apprehension when a multitude of prophets divide among them the mantle of Beethoven, and assume to take his ultimate standard as their point of departure. We say nothing here against the non-proven grounds for the pretensions of these men, but the fact of their existence, of their work, and of their undoubted influence, is a legitimate cause for grave inquiry. They may be charlatans, in which case everybody can answer the question—What then? On the other hand, they may be agents for the further development of the art in a direction which shall not only enlarge its dominion, but also increase its resources. Our present object is to see, how far a general view of the question presents reasons adapted to encourage those who regard possible consequences in an unfavourable light.

First, however, let us receive a lesson from the past. "Histories make men wise," said Lord Bacon, and one part of their teaching is to lessen the importance which each generation attaches to the phenomena of its own time. We are accustomed to talk a good deal about the portentous and exceptional significance of what is taking place around us. The records of the past show that our forefathers did precisely the same thing. They, too, lived in the "crisis of the world," and the events of their day were exaggerated, by nearness of view, to an importance which, looked back upon by us, seems ludicrous. In this sense, the teachings of musical history possess a special value, because showing that at no time has music been wholly free from conditions analogous to those now causing anxiety and alarm. One notable illustration, one which we cite because of its parallelism to the case of Beethoven and his soi-disant successors—may be found in the records of the fifteenth century, after Johannes Ockenheim, the "Sebastian Bach of his day," and his gifted pupil, Josquin des Prés (whom Luther called "master of notes, while others are mastered by notes"), had mightily developed the resources of counterpoint. Music was then overrun and almost crushed to death by a crowd of merely mathematical practitioners of the art, who treated it much as though it were a new branch of "permutations and combinations." Of them it has been said:—"Delighted to have found in music a concrete variety reducible to certain laws, they applied themselves to the study of polyphony and interweaving of parts with such intense ardour, that they took little account of melodious expression, and seemed quite to divert the art from its real aim and object. It is therefore not to be wondered at that an art exercised in so formal and restricted a manner frequently degenerated into barren artificialness, and that beauty was lost in erudition and formalism." Hence the ridiculous excess to which contrapuntal devices were carried at the time referred to—an excess which took all the soul out of music and left a residue with no more sympathetic attraction in it than is to be found in the multiplication table. No doubt many a worthy and anxious amateur "of the period" lamented this state of things, protested that music was "going to the dogs," and threatened to abandon all connexion with a mere simulacrum. But what was the upshot? The "mathematical exercises" of the fifteenth century formed the basis of a new development of music. Objectionable in themselves, like the process of fermentation, they created a new body into which the spirit of the art passed, and became a greater and a nobler thing. "The intricacies and subtleties of simple, double, three or more part counterpoint," says a writer, "appear stiff and strange to us; nevertheless, they were the needful preparatory exercises on newly trodden ground. The harsh, unpliant harmonic forms had to undergo a thorough intellectual elaboration, before genuine vitality and expression could be breathed into them; and never would modern music have developed its powers so freely and so happily, had not the Belgians undertaken this severe mental labour with energy and zeal." It would be easy to find similar cases, in all of which circumstances apparently inimical to the welfare of music really served its best interests. Distasteful at the time, and harmful in their direct action, they were overruled for ultimate good.

Fortified by the teaching of the past, let us look with more coolness and confidence upon the present.

Struck, first of all, with the parallelism between the circumstances of our time and those of the era when Ockenheim and Josquin flourished, we cannot fail to see that, in one respect, the phenomena of the two ages are exactly opposed. The composers of the fifteenth century exaggerated musical scholasticism, while the composers of the present day, underrating scholasticism, exaggerate that which is emotional and expressional in the art. Let it be noted that this is the phase of music which was the last to present itself in a distinct and independent form. Music had long been emotional and expressive in alliance with words, and from the writings of every great master who lived after the mathematical period to which reference has been made examples might be taken wherein its resources are fully developed. But it was reserved for Beethoven, carrying on a work inaugurated by Mozart, to demonstrate the power of music as an independent means of conveying ideas;—a comprehensively eloquent language, because not bounded by the limits of a vocabulary;—"a kind of inarticulate unfathomable speech," as says Carlyle, "which leads us to the edge of the infinite, and lets us for moments gaze into that." For such work the genius of Beethoven was eminently fitted. He was great poet and great musician in one, and the result of a combination so unique was to his contemporaries and successors much as the discovery of America by Columbus was to the adventurous spirits of the Old World. It opened up a field of effort, having all the attraction of that which is new and undeveloped, and, as a matter of course, everybody rushed to take possession. The movement is still so young that we look upon its pristine vigour, and, if we be wise, we regard the present contempt of form and rule, the sneers levelled at composers ante-Beethoven, and the enthusiasm with which music is distorted, and applauded in its distortion, as simply the vagaries of youthful spirits who, having been presented with a new hobby, are riding it to death. The entire phenomenon was to be expected in regular course; the more because the new development of music enabled mere pretenders to mask their shallowness to the common eye. They had no such opportunity in the old contrapuntal days. Then, the rents in a man's artistic clothing were detected as easily as an imperfect education can be inferred from bad grammar. In the new school, which has little to do with musical grammar, the mere pretenders flourish. They write incoherence by the yard; cover vast pages with "tone-pictures" as striking—and as rough—as the work of a theatrical scene-painter, and trust for success to the confusion of a public who hear that thus the mission of Beethoven is carried on. In point of fact, the greater the charlatan, the greater his chances of making a noise in the world. If a man can wrap himself up in fog, he looms more largely than when standing in sunlight. But, putting the mere pretenders aside as vermin of whom we shall be rid when we are musically clean, there is no cause for alarm at the apparent drift of modern music. The good art-ship, which has steadily made way through centuries, is not to be beached by the current just now influencing her. On the contrary, all experience goes to show that we are witnessing the rough process destined by-and-by to work out a glorious result. It would be ridiculous to suppose that we have reached the limit of the resources of music as a means of emotional expression, and this fact is one of a very consoling nature. True, nobody can demonstrate that the limit is not reached, but there are things to be believed which cannot be proved as conclusively as a theorem in Euclid. Looking at the undoubted truth that the poetic and expressional capacity of music in an independent form has had little more than half-a-century of development; looking, also, at the equally undoubted truth that, by a common instinct, musicians everywhere are labouring to develop it further, the conclusion is irresistible, if not absolutely provable, that much remains to be done, and that the phenomena which alarm so many in connexion with modern art are simply efforts made to do it, though often made in ignorance and error. Thus regarded, those phenomena give no cause for anxiety. All formative processes are more or less rough and unsatisfactory in themselves, especially when speculative means have to be used for a theoretical end. In that case the workers work in the dark, groping their way as best they can, towards the desired result. What marvel if they blunder, pursue false issues, and commit many mistakes! So it has been in all departments of human knowledge when men have sought to "add new kingdoms to the realm of thought," and so it ever will be till human knowledge is perfect. "It is troublesome and deep digging for pure waters; but, when once you come to the spring, they rise up and meet you." The end consoles for the painfulness of the means.

If from these generalizations we "condescend to particulars," the same encouraging aspect of things presents itself. Injustice is done by comprehensive sneers against "modern German music." No doubt, the present race of Teutonic composers, taken in the mass, is guilty of much that may fairly be described as extravagant and inartistic. But there are many honourable exceptions—men of talent who, without parading themselves before the world as demigods, labour honestly and conscientiously, and with good results, to continue the development of their art. The stern necessities, to which all things minister if called upon, may require a Richard Wagner, with his self assertion, his dogmatism, and his unyielding "pluck" to enunciate, amid boundless exaggeration, what after all is the real truth about dramatic music; and they may require a Franz Liszt, with his personal fascination, and his wonderful gifts, to assert, amid a good deal that is meretricious and valueless, the poetic side of musical art. We do not believe, and we should be sorry to entertain the thought, that these men exist in vain; but it is not to them—brilliant emanations from the seething mass—that we now refer. The real workers of our day are those in whose ranks Johannes Brahms stands foremost. Few who know the works of Brahms will refuse to accept him as the typical composer of the present. We do not intend here to insist upon his genius, or to enter upon comparisons between him and others, preferring rather to indicate the character and influence of his works. In character, Brahms's music essentially illustrates the "drift" referred to at the head of this article. It is not mathematical in the sense that form and rule are made primary considerations, but it is emotional, reflective, æsthetic—an attempt to excite feeling, convey impressions, and even stimulate definite thought. Here, then, we have the ideal of the latest development of "pure" music. The works of Brahms, and those of his fellows who stand nearest to him, embody modern principles in their most artistic shape. They stand apart from surrounding exaggerations, and they are also clearly separable from the creations of the past. This being so, it is matter for rejoicing that Brahms is not absolutely a "bogy," even to musicians of conservative tastes. He puzzles them, at the outset, but in the result, his works grow upon them, and only within the last two or three years we have seen this "modern German composer" rapidly passing into the ranks of accepted masters, cheered on by a well-nigh unanimous public voice. This is a matter for congratulation apart from any question as to the exact degree of Brahms's genius, and the precise status which will ultimately be his. It shows that modern musical development, in the hands of a thoughtful and conscientious composer, does not necessarily lead to incoherence, and to flagrant offence against the true principles of art. The quacks abuse it, the qualified practitioner dominates it for good. By-and-bye will come the genius who, separating the dross from the gold, will burn up the former and stamp the latter with a hall-mark none can question. The genius of music is not exhausted. Etna silent—to fall back upon our old illustration—is Etna gathering force for another outburst, and the seemingly barren years of art are really preparing a harvest. When genius does come again it will have a field in which to work, and resources lying to hand greater than ever it had before, and these advantages will be due to the tentative processes through which, accompanied by many disagreeable adjuncts, we are now passing.

"It has just occurred to me," says Mendelssohn in a letter to his sister, "that if you wish to sing anything during the next few months, send for 'Theodora,' by Handel, and look it over; at all events it will please you, as there are some splendid choruses and airs in it; and perhaps you might manage to have it translated into German (which, indeed, ought to be very much better done, for the text is perfectly absurd), and perform it in your own house with a small choir. Unluckily, it is not adapted for performance on a large scale; but some parts of it, the final chorus, for instance, are as fine as anything you ever heard of Handel's." Those who were present at the presentation of this work at the Hanover Square Rooms, on the 10th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Barnby, must have been fully impressed with the truth of this opinion; some of the airs, especially those for Theodora and Irene, are charming; and the choruses are instinct with dramatic feeling throughout, the marked distinction between those sung by the Christians, and those assigned to the Heathens, investing the Oratorio with an interest scarcely equalled by any other work of its composer. "Go, gen'rous, pious youth," and "Venus, laughing from the skies,"—the first as a type of the Christian, and the second of a Heathen chorus—may be cited as ranking amongst the finest of Handel's pieces; and sung as they were, on the occasion to which we refer, by the voluntary choir of St. Anne's Church, Soho, they produced an electrical effect upon the audience. After the able analysis of "Theodora" by Mr. G. A. Macfarren, which appeared in our last number, it is unnecessary to say more than that the revival of the work fully revealed to a large body of sympathetic listeners the many beauties there dilated upon, and that its reception amply justifies us in hoping that Mr. Barnby—to whom all Handel-lovers already owe so deep a debt of gratitude—may next season enable us to hear the work at one of the concerts of his Royal Albert Hall Choral Society. The solos being entirely sung by amateurs, we must content ourselves with an expression of the warmest thanks for the zealous interest shown in the revival by so many talented vocalists, and an assurance that the applause with which their efforts were greeted was as sincere as it was enthusiastic. The band was excellent; and the effect of the Oratorio was materially enhanced by the performance of the additional orchestral and organ parts written for the work by Dr. Ferdinand Hiller, who kindly lent them for the occasion. Mr. Barnby conducted with his accustomed skill and judgment, and Mr. Oliver King ably presided at the organ.

Those who believe with us in the refining nature of music, and regard it therefore as a powerful agent in the cause of civilisation, will be glad to find that it has latterly been employed with most successful results at an institution expressly established for the reception of young thieves. From an article, describing a visit to Kossie Reformatory, extracted from the Montrose Standard, we quote the following paragraph:—"Another most interesting feature in the administration of the establishment was the performance of ten of the boys, who have been formed into a brass band, under the tuition of Mr. C. B. Taylor, Montrose. We understand it is only about three or four months since the Directors, at their own cost, supplied the instruments, at an expense of about £25, and within that short time it is surprising to see the progress which these previously imperfectly educated young 'criminals' have made in playing Psalm tunes, Scotch airs, &c. They are taught by Mr. Taylor on the Sol-fa system, and although none of them can at present read the ordinary musical notation, we found to our surprise that an air they had never heard before they were able to play in excellent tune and time in the course of a few minutes. The same boys are equally efficient as a flute-band, and as a singing choir.' If the humanising effect of the art can have real power in reforming a young criminal, it is highly probable that it might have prevented his becoming one; and we may reasonably hope, therefore, that when the subject has been duly weighed by those most qualified to judge, boys may, as a rule, be banded together for the study and practice of choral and instrumental music without the necessity of being sent to a Reformatory."

THE magnificent appearance of the Royal Albert Hall on the occasion of the reception of the Shah of Persia on the 23rd ult., was a thing to be remembered for years by those who were fortunate enough to be present; and, were it our province to dwell upon the effect of colour instead of sound, we might fill many columns of our journal with a rapturous description of so gorgeous a pageant. Musically speaking, however, the fête was in every respect worthy of the occasion, for the concert included the services of Madlle. Titiens, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Mr. Sims Reeves, Signor Rota, the Albert Hall Choral Society, Mr. Barnby's Exhibition band, and several picked men from the Household Regiments, the Artillery, Engineers, Rifle Brigade, and Marines; Dr. Stainer (in his robes of an Oxford Mus. Doc.) presided at the organ, and performed a solo (as did also Mr. Best); and Mr. Barnby (in court costume) directed the vast body of vocal and instrumental artists with a decision and judgment which cannot be too highly commended. There is no occasion to dwell upon the well-known pieces which were included in the programme, but we may say that the March from Wagner's "Tannhäuser," (with the choral accompaniment) was finely given, and that the Overture to "Masaniello," was also well played. The novelty of the evening was an Ode written in honour of the visit of the Shah by Mr. Joseph Bennett, and composed by Mr. Barnby. The choral portion of the work shows that, although unquestionably intended as a mere occasional piece, the composer has put forth his best powers, the writing throughout giving evidence of much care, especially in the second chorus and martial finale, both of which are extremely effective. The solo, excellently sung by Madlle. Titiens, was greatly applauded; and the "Marche caractéristique," which is based upon a quaint theme and admirably instrumented, might, we think, become popular if published apart from the work. Mr. Barnby, who conducted the Ode, was warmly greeted at its conclusion. The finale of Mr. Sullivan's "Te Deum," conducted by the composer (who also appeared in court dress) was included in the programme; but the late arrival of the Shah necessitated the omission of some pieces, the performance of the National Anthem, which concluded the concert, not taking place until after midnight.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON has again appeared in Ambroise Thomas's "Mignon," a part in every respect admirably suited for her, both her singing and acting being displayed to the utmost advantage, and indeed almost redeeming the worthlessness of the music. Another débütant, Signor Catalani, has been heard as the Jester in "Rigoletto," and achieved but a small amount of success. The return of M. Capoul, with his old merits and his old defects, may also be mentioned, but beyond this, there is nothing to record. Balfe's "Talisman" is still announced as being in preparation.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

THE revival of Ambroise Thomas's "Hamlet" at this establishment, with Madlle. Albani in the part of Ophelia, was perhaps scarcely a judicious step, as it placed this really excellent vocalist at a disadvantage, by compelling the audience to comparisons which had better have been avoided. That she sang the whole of the music well need scarcely be said; but there are subtle touches of feeling which are, at least at present, beyond her; and although she was warmly applauded, we doubt whether this will permanently rank as one of her best characters. Verdi's "Ernani," after a slumber of seventeen years, has proved a welcome resuscitation, as it affords Madame Patii an excellent opportunity of proving her power of depicting tragic emotion in the arduous part of Elvira. Her singing in the Cavatina "Ernani, involami," and in the whole of the last Act was extremely fine. She has also appeared as Desdemona, in Rossini's "Otello," with her usual success. The only other events of the slightest interest have been the débüt of Madame Trisolini as Elvira, in "I Puritani"—a lady with a thin soprano voice, who found it difficult to reach the conclusion of the Opera with safety—and the assumption of Valentina, in "Les Huguenots," by Madlle. d'Angeri, a part which sadly overtaxes her limited powers. The State visit of the Shah of Persia need scarcely be dwelt upon in a musical record, for the audience went to see, and not to hear.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE performance of Rubinstein's Pianoforte Concerto in G, by Dr. Hans von Bülow, at the fifth concert, was a marvellous exhibition of memory and mechanism; but as neither of these qualities appeal to us with that force which they do to many others, and, moreover, as Herr Rubinstein's music seems written chiefly for display, we must content ourselves with recording that it was "displayed" to perfection. Beethoven's elegant little "Rondo a Capriccio" in G, was marred by Dr. Bülow's taking it so fast that it was almost impossible to recognise the theme; but it was much applauded, and we presume therefore that to the majority of the audience it was satisfactory. Spohr's Symphony in C minor, which commenced the concert, was a treat of the highest order; it was finely played and warmly received. The performance of the Abbé Liszt's "Symphonic Poem" at the sixth concert will scarcely we think advance his fame in this country. It was fairly rendered, but fell coldly upon the audience. The execution of Spohr's Violin Concerto in D minor, by Herr Leopold Auer, at the same concert was a great success. In tone, execution and phrasing, he proved himself a genuine artist, and deservedly elicited the warmest marks of approbation.

NEW PHILHARMONIC CONCERTS.

AT the third of these concerts, on the 11th ult., we are informed that Wagner's Opera, "Lohengrin," was recited, with full band, chorus and solo vocalists; but as no admissions were furnished to us, we are of course unable to do more than place the event on record. On the 18th ult., Mr. J. F. Barnett's Oratorio, "The Raising of Lazarus," was given for the first time, under the direction of the composer. That the effect of this work upon the audience was decidedly favourable, and that Mr. Barnett has very materially increased his reputation by its production there cannot exist a doubt; but we are not of those who believe that a composer satisfactorily accomplishes his mission by "making the most of his materials;" for we hold him as responsible for his choice of subject as for the music with which he clothes it. Candidly, then, we believe that although the incident of the Raising of Lazarus would form an excellent theme for a Sacred Cantata, it is by no means suited for a full Oratorio, and that nobody could be more aware of this fact than Mr. Barnett himself, is, we think, fully proved by the manner in which he has evidently struggled to invest with interest the innumerable choruses, which have in reality so little to do with the main incidents of the narrative that they might have been taken bodily from some other work. Beyond this, however, there is little to be said in disparagement of the libretto, for it is on the whole well laid out for music, and had it concluded with a thanksgiving chorus, after the Resuscitation, much of what we have said respecting the choral comments upon the principal incidents might have been overlooked. Throughout the Oratorio the writing is of an elevated character; and although the reflections of Mendelssohn are occasionally too evident, it must be remembered that this is an early work, and that it is perhaps neither easy nor desirable for a composer, at the commencement of his career, to aim at a thorough individuality of style. The overture is exceedingly clever, the "Allegro moderato" containing a well wrought Fugue, although not based upon a subject particularly winning. The choruses which produced the greatest impression upon the audience were not always the best. The Hymn of the Disciples on the banks of the Jordan, and that for female voices, "She goeth to the grave," in our opinion show more real musical invention and spontaneous writing than any others in the Oratorio. In many, however, where the highest scholastic training is evidenced, some excellent choral effects are obtained, although in most of these the voices are somewhat overweighed by the instrumentation. The tenor aria, "Shew forth Thy wonderful mercies," that for soprano, "They that sow in tears," the expressive contralto solo, "Thou art near, O Lord" (encored), and the Recitative and Air for Lazarus, "Lord, when wilt Thou look upon me," may be cited as admirable specimens of pure vocal writing; but we care not for the conventional "unaccompanied Trio," although it was loudly re-demanded, as a matter of course. The principal vocalists, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Patey, Mr. Wilford Morgan, and Mr. Santley exerted themselves to the utmost to ensure the success of the work; and Mr. Barnett has a right to feel gratified at the well-deserved tribute of applause with which he was greeted at the conclusion of the performance.

WE regret that a press of matter in our present number prevents our making any large quotation from an interesting article, (with the well-known signature "H. S. O.") on the Lower Rhenish Musical Festival of 1873, which recently appeared in the columns of the Guardian. On the evening of Whit-Sunday (the first day of the Festival), Handel's "Messiah" was given, preceded by Beethoven's festive "Namensfeier" overture. Strangely enough, we learn that in the performance of the Oratorio, some of the finest pieces were omitted, including "And He shall purify," "He trusted in God," "Let all the angels of God," "Let us break their bonds," and "But thanks be to God." But the following extract will show that a still more glaring instance of inartistic taste was committed:—"Allusion is made to an attempt to exaggerate Handel's contrasts, which in the first instance about to be quoted has also been made—perhaps in a less absurd manner—at Handel festivals and on various other occasions chez nous. Thus in "Unto us a Child is born" (not a chorus to play tricks with), under the idea, it is supposed, of increasing the effect at the sublime passage at "Wonderful, Counsellor," &c., nearly the whole of the rest of the chorus—that is, those portions of it which are sometimes "whispered" at Exeter Hall and elsewhere—was sung as a quartett, the first delivery of the joyful tidings "For unto us a Child is born" being by a single soprano voice, as if a profound secret. The same liberty was taken with the whole of "His yoke is easy," with the exception of the last few bars, where the subject enters for the last time." On the second day Sebastian Bach's "Credo" from the Mass in B minor, Mozart's Cantata "Der büssende David" and Beethoven's Choral Symphony were given; and the following model programme was selected for the third day:—

PART I.

Overture—"Jubiläums," Op. 53	Rietz.
Scene from "Orpheus and Eurydice," Madame Bettelheim	Gluck.
Concerto for Pianoforte, Madame Schumann	Schumann.
Air and Duet from "Euryanthe," Hubert and Wilt	Weber.
Hallelujah Chorus, "Messiah"	Handel.

PART II.

Overture—"Midsommer Night's Dream"	Mendelssohn.
Air from "Die Entführung aus dem Serail," Madame Wilt	Mozart.
Concerto for Violin, No. 9, Herr Lauterbach	Spohr.
(a) Waldenacht } Sung by Madame Bettelheim } Schubert.
(b) Frühlingnacht } Gomperz	Schumann.
(a) Der Wegweiser (Winterreise) }	Schubert.
(b) Aufensthat }
(c) Wanderleid Herr Karl Hill	Schumann.
Chorus—Die Himmel erzählen (Schöpfung)	Haydn.

The Festival appears to have been in the highest degree successful.

THE Church Congress of 1873, will take place at Bath, early in October. The paper on Church Music will be on this occasion contributed by Professor Oakeley.

THE calamitous fire which has completely destroyed the Alexandra Palace (an account of the opening of which we gave in our last number) will not, we are glad to hear, put a stop to the musical performances, although the loss of the magnificent organ, built by Willis, must of course be seriously felt. We are sorry to find that a large quantity of music has been burnt; and have even heard rumours that at least one valuable instrument is missing.

It is with much regret that we record the death of Mr. J. F. Puttick, which occurred during the past month, at the age of 52. The deceased succeeded Mr. Brewer as Secretary of the Sacred Harmonic Society, and was much esteemed by the members, many of whom attended his funeral at Highgate Cemetery, on the 24th ult.

AT the third annual meeting of the Worcester Musical Society, held on the 27th May, Mr. E. J. Spark, the hon. sec., read a report from the committee, congratulating the members upon the continued success of the Association, and paying a high compliment to Mr. A. J. Caldicott, the honorary musical conductor of the Society, for his indefatigable exertions in the cause. In order to ensure a more complete performance of the instrumental accompaniments to the Cantatas and other works given at the Society's concerts, it was proposed to engage a certain number of professional orchestral players, and to meet the extra expense of this by raising the subscription of the present honorary members from 10s. to 15s. a year, a suggestion which received a most cordial support. A special vote of thanks was given to Mr. Spark for his invaluable services as honorary secretary; and the whole of the officers and committee were unanimously re-elected.

MR. CHARLES GARDNER'S ninth annual concert was given at the Hanover Square Rooms, on the 7th ult., before an audience evidently prepared to appreciate the carefully selected programme which was provided. Mr. Gardner's solo performances—including a Divertimento by Cramer, and two pieces by Raff—proved him an able and intelligent pianist; and in Sir Sterndale Bennett's Chamber Trio, and a duet by Beethoven, for violoncello and pianoforte, he also displayed the highest artistic qualities. Mr. Gardner was assisted by Herr Ludwig (violin) and Herr Daubert (violoncello), and the vocalists were Miss K. Poyntz, Miss Marion Severn, Madame Anna Regan-Schimon, and Mr. W. H. Cummings. The conductors were Messrs. Walter Macfarren, A. Schimon, and C. Gardner.

THE concert of Mr. E. Silas, on the 4th ult., at St. George's Hall, included a large number of his own works, prominent amongst which was a well written and most effective Trio in A, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, which was excellently played by the concert-giver, Messrs. Holmes and Pezze. Mr. Silas also performed three short pianoforte solos, amongst which we must mention with commendation a Caprice, called "Florida," which was deservedly much applauded. He was ably assisted in the vocal department by Miss Jenny Pratt, and by M. Gounod's choir, two members of which gave some solos with decided success. Several choral pieces, the composition of M. Gounod, were enthusiastically re-demanded. The concert was well attended, and gave the utmost satisfaction.

MR. BRINLEY RICHARDS'S annual evening concert was given at the Hanover Square Rooms on the 12th ult., the programme, as usual, containing a large amount of Welsh music, the greater portion of which was selected from a book lately issued, under the editorship of Mr. Richards, entitled "Songs of Wales." Miss Mary Davies (who made her début on the occasion) has a voice of pleasing quality, and received a well merited encore for the song "Thou gentle dove," Miss Sophie Ferrari was equally successful in "A gentle maid," and Mr. Lewis Thomas was warmly applauded in "She must be mine," all these pieces being extracted from the above mentioned book. The St. Thomas's Choir (under the able direction of Signor Randegger) gave a highly effective rendering of some beautiful melodies from the same volume, and elicited an enthusiastic burst of applause and a genuine encore for a new part-song, by the concert-giver, called "Let the hills resound," which is no doubt destined to a lasting popularity. Mr. Vernon Rigby was unfortunately prevented by indisposition from attending; but Madame Patey contributed some songs, which were received with the utmost favour. Mr. Richards's pianoforte solos were Mendelssohn's "Andante and Rondo Capriccioso," and two of his effective Welsh Fantasias, the second of which he was compelled to repeat. The vocal music was well accompanied by Mr. Edwin Bending.

MR. E. H. THORNE'S second evening concert took place at the Hanover Square Rooms on the 6th ult., when a most interesting programme was provided, the principal feature in which was a new Trio, by the bénéficiaire, in C minor, for pianoforte, violin and violoncello. Of this composition we must speak in the highest terms; not only is it written with the fluency of an accomplished musician, but there is an originality of thought in the treatment of the various subjects which at once secured the attention of the listeners. The opening Allegro has a bold theme, which is developed with much skill; but the gem of the work is unquestionably the Andante, which is founded on a winning melody, the expressive qualities of each instrument being admirably displayed in several cantabile phrases of the utmost beauty, and the movement showing an unity of design which cannot be too strongly commended. The Scherzo, although less to our mind than the other movements, has a light and fanciful subject, which, especially near the conclusion, seems thrown, as it were, for the instruments to play with; and the final Rondo is vivacious and effective throughout, the passages affording ample scope for the exhibition of the talent of each performer. The work was admirably played by Messrs. Thorne, H. Holmes and Pague, and warmly applauded by a most attentive audience. The concert-giver was also heard to much advantage in Chopin's "Polonaise," for pianoforte and violoncello (with M. Pague), and Beethoven's Sonata in E flat, for pianoforte and violin (in which he was ably assisted by Mr. H. Holmes); and the refined rendering of his "Four characteristic Pieces" was thoroughly appreciated, especially the "Eastern Tale," which is a highly picturesque little sketch. M. Pague was much applauded for his performance of two violoncello solos (accompanied on the pianoforte by Mr. Thorne), one of which, a quaint Gavotte by Martini, was re-demanded. Three solo violin pieces were also given by Mr. Holmes, and songs were contributed by Miss Jessie Jones and Mr. Henry Guy, the former of whom gave Mr. Thorne's "May-day" with good effect. Signor Randegger was a most efficient accompanist.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD, gave her Annual Benefit Concert at the Cavendish Rooms, on Monday the 9th ult., assisted by the following artists:—Miss S. Cole, Miss Horder, M. Pellissier, Messrs. H. Gordon and Thurley Beale. Miss Wydford was loudly applauded in all her songs. Mr. C. P. Mann conducted in a highly efficient manner.

THE members of the St. George's Glee Union held their Monthly Concert at the Pimlico Rooms on the 6th ult., before a highly appreciative audience. Miss Horder gave an excellent rendering of "Bel Raggio," Mr. Chaplin Henry gained an enthusiastic encore for "Rage, thou angry storm" (Benedict), and Miss Janet King gave with much taste "Biondella" (Suchet Champion), and as an encore, "Should he upbraid." Thalberg's Grand Duet for two pianos, on themes from "Norma," was executed in a brilliant manner by the Misses Julia Augarde and Clara Buley. The Choir, under the able conductorship of Mr. Garside, was very successful in the Glee and Part-Songs—"All hail! thou Queen of night" (Martin); Mendelssohn's "Farewell to the Forest," and "In a wood," being particularly worthy of notice. The Society announces another performance of the "May Queen" during the ensuing season.

ON the 19th ult., a concert was given at the City of London College, by the College Choir, under the able direction of Mr. Constantine. The singers were Miss E. Robertson, Miss Chaplin, Mrs. Hooper, Mr. Stedman, and Mr. C. Harris. All the vocal solos were exceedingly well received, Guglielmi's "Gratias Agimus," by Miss E. Robertson (with clarinet obbligato, by Mr. Clinton), being an especially good performance; and Bishop's ballad, "My pretty Jane," by Mr. Stedman, being enthusiastically re-demanded. Miss Hoare was an efficient accompanist.

THE first concert of Madame Rebecca Jewell, which was given on the 31st May, at the Hanover Square Rooms, stood quite apart from the usual benefit entertainments of the season, a new pianoforte Sonata, by Sir Sterndale Bennett, being performed for the first time on the occasion. The work was entrusted to Miss Channell, one of the most promising students of the Royal Academy of Music, by whom its merits were revealed with a skill and intelligence which must have been highly gratifying to the composer. The Sonata is entitled "Die Jungfrau von Orleans" (the "Maid of Orleans"), the first movement "Andante Pastorale,"—In the Fields; the second, "Allegro Marziale,"—In the Field; the third, "Adagio Patetico,"—In Prison; and the fourth, "Moto di Passione,"—The End. At present we must content ourselves with saying that all these movements are charmingly suggestive of their subjects; and that the writing throughout is of that refined and intellectual character which so eminently distinguishes the works of a composer, whose whole life has been devoted solely to the highest interests of the art of which he is so bright an ornament. At the conclusion of the piece the applause was most enthusiastic, and Sir Sterndale Bennett, who was sitting in one of the private boxes with Dr. Ferdinand Hiller, was compelled to come forward and receive the congratulations of the audience. Madame Rebecca Jewell's vocal solos elicited warm and well deserved applause; and Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Marion Severn, and Mr. W. H. Cummings, also contributed songs with their usual success. The instrumentalists were Mr. Henry Holmes (violin), Mr. John Thomas (harp), and Mr. Walter Macfarren (pianoforte); and a choir of ladies, from the Royal Academy of Music, sang some part-songs with excellent effect.

MISS ANNIE STOCKEN'S concert, at St. George's Hall, on the evening of the 6th ult., was well attended and highly successful. Schumann's Trio in D minor, and Beethoven's Sonata in D major, for pianoforte and violoncello, were admirably selected to test the concert-giver's power of rendering classical music; and in these, as well as some solo pieces, she fairly won the warm applause of her listeners. In the instrumental department, Miss Stocken was assisted by Mr. A. Burnett (violin), and Signor Pezze (violoncello); and the vocalists were Miss A. Dwight, Miss Maas, and Mr. Montem Smith. Mr. Shedlock was an efficient accompanist.

THE very excellent series of Chamber Concerts given by Mr. Otto Booth deserve warm praise, although a lengthened notice of their merits is impracticable with such imperative demands upon our space. The programmes have been invariably selected with the utmost care, the instrumentalists being Mr. Otto Booth (first violin), Mr. Dando (second violin), Mr. Richard Blagrove (viola), Signor Pezze (violin-cello), and Herr Jules Sprenger, Mr. H. Parker, and Mrs. R. Blagrove (pianists). Vocalists of reputation have also appeared, amongst which Miss Edith Crauford, of the Royal Academy of Music, deserves honourable mention; and Mr. J. Stedman, whose voice and style invariably secure him a welcome, was highly effective in two songs.

An excellent concert was given on the 27th May at the Onslow Hall, Brompton, by Mr. Horace Buttery, organist, &c., of St. Mary, West Brompton. The choir was composed of St. Mary's Choral Society and St. Mary's choir, and numbered about eighty voices. The programme comprised sacred and secular music, the first part concluding with a selection from Haydn's "Creation," in which the choir gave with much effect, "The heavens are telling." The choruses and glees were sung with a delicacy and precision in the highest degree commendable, especially when it is considered that St. Mary's Choral Society is quite young, this being its first season. Solos were contributed by the Misses Holman Andrews, Miss Bliss, Miss A. Barnett, Mr. Stedman, Mr. John Evans, and Mr. W. H. Hook. The Misses Andrews pleased greatly by their duet singing, and elicited unanimous encores. Mr. Stedman also won the good opinion of the audience. His solos were, "His salvation is nigh them" (Sir W. S. Bennett), "In splendour bright" (Haydn), and Braham's popular song, "The Anchor's weighed," for which he gained an enthusiastic encore. Mr. W. S. Hoyte (of All Saints, Margaret Street), rendered in a brilliant manner Weber's Rondo, "La Gaité," and was compelled to repeat it. Mr. J. M. Jones, and Mr. C. Lovejoy assisted most efficiently in the accompaniments, and the concert throughout was conducted by Mr. Horace Buttery, the conductor of St. Mary's Choral Society.

HERR GUSTAV KÜSTER gave an evening concert at Victoria Hall, Westbourne Grove, on the 18th ult., which was well attended. The vocalists were Miss Matilda Scott, Miss Alexandrina Dwight, Madame Poole, Mr. Stedman, Mr. Selwyn Graham, and Mr. Thurley Beale, each of whom contributed in no small degree to the success of the concert. The instrumental portion of the programme was of a strictly classical character, and the various "numbers" were ably rendered by Miss Florence Küster (piano), Master Küster (violin), Herr G. Küster (viola), and Mr. Edmund Woolhouse of Her Majesty's Opera (violin-cello). Beethoven's Quartett in E flat, was admirably performed by the last named artists; and Miss Florence Küster with Mr. Edmund Woolhouse, played Hummel's Grand Sonata in A, for piano and cello, in excellent style. The bénéficiaire proved himself to be a musician of no mean order, both by his artistic playing in the instrumental concerted pieces, and by his vocal compositions. Of the latter we must specially mention "Hopeless love," a tenor song from the MS. Opera "Rosamond," which was delivered by Mr. Stedman in such a manner as to elicit a spontaneous burst of hearty applause, with a peremptory demand for its repetition. Another very effective contralto song in E minor, entitled "Sing me to rest" (well given by Madame Poole), created a most favourable impression, and was repeated in answer to numerous calls. Encores were also conceded by Mr. Stedman for Braham's old song, "The Anchor's weigh'd," and by Mr. Thurley Beale for Sullivan's song "If doughty deeds." Mr. Richard Limpus and Mr. Frederick Scarsbrook deserve a word of praise for their efficient and careful accompaniments.

Reviews.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Antiem, "The Lord is my light and my salvation." Composed and dedicated to his friend, John Stainer, Esq., M.A., Mus. Doc., by C. Warwick Jordan, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

THE critic here perceives "a divided duty." It would not be a duty only, but a pleasure, to praise this whole piece, were it not for the exceptionalities of the first page, which unluckily take it beyond the pale of unqualified admiration. Such are the false relation between D in the bass and D[♯] in the Alto, in the successive chords of B minor and major, in bars 11 and 12; the ascent of the 7th of B to the 5th of E, and, worse, the simultaneous descent of B to G, in bars 12 and 13. These are cited as specimens in justification of what has been said; it would be to no purpose to swell the list. A fault of another kind is the reading of the words; for instance, the punctuation of the first sentence would stand thus, according to the musical setting:—"The Lord is my light, and my salvation whom then," &c., whereas, there surely should be a breathing place before "whom." Now, however, may one turn to the pleasanter division of the task of judgment, and say that the treble or tenor solo, "One thing have I desired," is charmingly melodious and nicely accompanied; that the preceding movement has character; and that the last chorus is full of spirit, though it would sound broader were the few chromatic notes omitted.

Eight Hymn Tunes. Composed by Robert M. Milburn, B.A.

THERE is much melodious grace in these tunes. Those for long metre verses are barred so as to throw the strong accent on the third syllable from the last, which is always at variance with musical rule and good effect, and often gives a wrong emphasis to the words. They bear evidence of the author's feeling for harmony, but he feels in the dark and often stumbles. The last of the tunes is the purest; but it must be said, though said with regret, that there is not one of the eight in which some fault in harmony might not be named.

Psalm XLVII. For Female Voices. By E. H. Thorne.

A HIGHLY effective piece is this, with interest of many kinds. It is always melodious; it is full of character which never sleeps; the vocal distribution is judicious; the piano-forte part relieves as much as supports this, and the part for the harmonium enriches the general effect by doubling sometimes the voices and sometimes being independent of them. Add to all this, that the words are well set in respect of accentuation and expression—an ambitious composer can wish for no greater praise. The voices are generally divided into three parts, and the effect of these three is much enhanced by the occasional omission of one or two, and the consequently greater fulness of effect where they again come together. Some points of imitation, in which two parts cross and recross judiciously, vary the elsewhere prevalent arrangement of note against note. An indiscretion is the setting of the word "with" to the high A for the first soprano, immediately before the end, and this is at variance with the judgment generally evinced in the voicing of the piece. Some points of harmony might be disputed, but it would be irrelevant to discuss such trifles as they are in noticing a composition of such merit as the present. Composition—this is the very word that stands in the way of unreserved admiration; the art of putting together has yet to be mastered by the author, and when it is, he will scarcely in another work return to the key of A after his bold and capital digression to F, and hover for some time between the said A and his principal key of D, as he does here for some while prior to the conclusion. Let him take this remark in good part, and study design in the works of the best masters.

He is risen! Anthem for Easter. By W. H. Holloway.

A FEEBLE affair, whose effect—if it have any that is good—will spring from its simplicity. What then, may be asked, is not simplicity the greatest strength? Yes, truly it is, and he is indeed a great writer who can give interest to the simplest combinations, and to successions of notes that are easiest to execute; but such interest is wanting here, and there is no melodic charm to atone for the thinness of bare 4ths or diminished 5ths in the harmony. There are not a few instances of grammatical errors, such as are acknowledged to be so by theorists of all schools. It is at all times dangerous to set texts to which other music is already familiar; comparisons will arise in such cases in the thoughts even of the most good-natured hearers, which can rarely be in favour of the new work; unluckily, they are not so in this case, where certain words from the Messiah—"O grave," &c., and "Thanks be to God," &c., have been chosen for the framework of the musician's thoughts.

Te Deum Laudamus. Set to Music in the key of F. By W. H. Treffry.

THE less that is said of this piece, the more will the author be served. He has much to learn in harmony, and all to learn in composition. "In the key of F" is the music? There is little need to say so, for it has so many full closes in that tonic, that the greatest disbeliever could not question the fact. The first phrase that begins and ends out of F is that to the words, "Thou sittest at the right hand," and one is grateful at least for the consequent freshness of C major. Apart from musical qualities, it is scarcely logical to connect, as in one sentence, the distinct passages ending "lift them up for ever" and "day by day we magnify;" but it should be the province of the composer to enforce and not confuse his text.

Andante. For the Organ. Composed by J. Makinson Fox.

A CONCISE melody of two strains, with eight Variations. The fourth of these presents the theme in canon, at least, so far as the first strain, and the second strain is imitated, if not strictly canonic. The last Variation is in the style of a March, and the melody is scarcely improved by being thus modified. The author appears to have been at sea on the subject of rhythm, and at sea without compass, for in one place (Var. 2) he gives half a bar short of the lawful measure, and elsewhere he divides the same phrases diversely in different Variations, making them sometimes to begin on the third and sometimes on the first crotchet of a bar. This subject of bar-lines is strangely little understood by composers, so the writer of the present piece is by no means without company in his shortcomings; but it is one that demands and will well repay special study, since it is of grave importance to metrical propriety. In other respects, the piece is decidedly clever, and evinces intimate knowledge of organ effects.

"The eyes of all wait upon Thee, O Lord." Harvest Anthem. Composed by W. Taylor, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

THE idea set forth in this anthem is of a gradual accumulation of power, showing the constant expansion of thankfulness in the hearts of the devout. Thus, it begins with a bass solo, which is succeeded by a trio for the three adult voices, and this is followed by a semi-chorus written in four parts, the full choir being reserved for the final movement. Organ composers, particularly those who have much the habit of playing on their instrument, are sometimes prone to incertitude, or at least obscurity, in their part-writing; it is so easy to use a finger or two more or less in one chord than the next, that one cannot now and then help doubling a salient note, even though its progression be unaccountable, and still less does it seem possible to help enriching a chord in the organ part with notes that have no place in the vocal score. This explains, if not justifies, the confusion of F and F♯, and the leap from $\begin{smallmatrix} E\flat \\ C \end{smallmatrix}$ to $\begin{smallmatrix} B \\ G \end{smallmatrix}$ in bars 1 and 2, score 3, of page 5. It is more novel than satisfactory that the third movement is mostly in the key of B♭ (though signed with but one flat), while those which precede and follow it are in the little analogous key of C. The full chorus has too much modulation and too many chromatic harmonies, to express the jubilation implied in the words.

"House of Israel." Full Anthem. Composed by Charles Henry Shepherd.

THE first movement of this piece is in the free if not chromatic style, having general melodiousness and some pleasing soft harmonies. It consists of but eight bars, which are first given to the organ alone, and then repeated by the voices. It fails in clearness, until the reader can reverse the position of the bar-lines in his mind, so that he may throw the chief accent throughout on the second half of the bar; this, as was remarked in speaking of Mr. Fox's "Andante," is a matter of more importance than writers generally appear to consider it, and our young composer will do wisely to give it serious consideration in future productions. The next movement somewhat stultifies the definition "Full Anthem," since it is written for a vocal quartet only; but it is even shorter than the preceding, and the chorus is resumed for the phrase which completes its verbal and its rhythmical sense, so that the employment of the solo voices is as a piece of colouring rather than as an incident in the plan. This choral entry gives appropriate emphasis to the words "But standeth fast for ever," describing Mount Zion as the symbol of "those that put their trust in the Lord." A capably sustained movement follows, which fully makes up for the brevity of the two preceding, and which owes much of its truly forcible effect to the prevalence of suspended discords; there is nothing to compare for breadth with this style of harmony, and its use in choral writing, especially for the Church, is most judicious. The final portion of the Anthem is a resumption of the theme of the quartet, which is allotted now to all the body of voices, and extended to a completeness which it has not when it is first announced. The whole ends softly, in a manner that cannot fail to leave a pleasant impression. The Anthem has very decided merit, and is worthy the attention of those who have the opportunity to bring such music into public use. Mr. Shepherd is stated to be an Associate of the Academy, and he does credit to his schooling.

Sonata in E minor. For Pianoforte and Violoncello. By Walter Macfarren.

WE are glad to find that, in spite of the many demands upon his time, Mr. Macfarren continues to give us works moulded in that classical form which appeals not to the many, because it proves that the commercial spirit of the day does not so thoroughly rule our English composers as to make them unmindful of the truest interests of their art. The Sonata before us is we think destined to take a high rank amongst the compositions of its class, for it is not only excellently written throughout for both instruments, but is so extremely melodious as to be certain to win its way even with an audience incapable of appreciating many of its more recondite merits. The first movement, in E minor, is based upon a charming theme, first given out by the violoncello. The pianoforte passages which follow are most skilfully woven in with the violoncello part, and a cantabile subject, richly accompanied, gives much relief to the animated writing which precedes it. We greatly admire the manner in which portions of the original melody appear in various keys before its return in E minor, and the conclusion of the movement is exceedingly brilliant and effective, the showy pianoforte part being in excellent contrast with the more quiet passages for the violoncello. The Scherzo, in G major, which follows, begins with a vivacious and striking theme for the pianoforte, the two instruments being afterwards united in animated conversational phrases of much interest. The second subject, a quiet melody, with a chord accompaniment, contrasts well with the playful opening; and a coda, formed of fragments of the first subject, brings the movement to an effective conclusion. In a Sonata of such pretension we seem to miss a developed slow movement; but in its place we have an Adagio, marked "Più tosto Recitativo," which appears a sort of dreamy meditation upon the principal subject in the first movement, and merely serves as an Intermezzo to introduce the final Rondo with additional effect. This begins in the Tonic major, with a Cantabile theme for the pianoforte, the violoncello afterwards playing the melody with the piano, an octave below. Some effective passages for both instruments then lead to a second subject in C sharp minor for the violoncello; and amongst the points worth noticing we must mention the unexpected introduction of the opening theme in F major, before its re-entry in the original key, and the modulation of the second subject into A minor, the management of all these changes of key showing a thorough mastery over the resources of harmony, without any pedantic attempt at a mere display of learning. We regret that in our necessarily brief notice of this Sonata we can but indicate some of the many beauties which it contains; but we hope that enough has been said to draw attention to the composition and to lead violoncellists as well as pianists to examine it and judge for themselves. It would be faint praise to the composer to say that he has merely sustained his reputation; for an artist should always progress; and we are glad therefore to record our conscientious conviction that this is by far the best work we have yet seen signed by his name.

Mon Rêve. Impromptu, pour le Piano; par J. N. Perger.

THIS little sketch has an exceedingly melodious and quietly harmonized theme for its principal subject; but little is attempted in the way of development. The melody in the subdominant is treated in the usual dream-like manner, with an accompaniment of semiquavers in piano chords, which may be made effective with a refined touch. M. Perger writes gracefully; but pieces like "Mon Rêve" will scarcely make a name.

The shadow on my heart. Song. Composed by Arthur O'Leary.

IF Mr. O'Leary's songs should succeed in making their way through the crowd of conventional ballads which block up the musical thoroughfare in the present day, it may be accepted as a wholesome sign of the times; for it cannot be said that they have been much aided in their progress by any of our popular vocalists. Whether as a rule public singers ever read reviews we cannot tell; but there is no question that they would by doing so constantly have songs brought under their notice which they might otherwise never hear of; and it would certainly be additionally gratifying to those whose duty it is to draw attention to the merits of a new composer if they could think that professional, as well as amateur, artists would be influenced by their opinions. The beauties of the song before us do not lie upon the surface, for Mr. O'Leary never writes commonplace phrases; and the poetical feeling which pervades it, therefore, unless revealed to the listeners by a sympathetic vocalist, will remain for ever hidden. The placid accompaniment in the opening bars contrasts well with the agitated arpeggios at the change of key; and an excellent effect is gained by the lingering on the minor ninth upon the dominant, before the voice re-enters with the original subject. On the whole we consider this one of the most intellectual of its composer's vocal pieces, which we find, by the list on the title-page, are now fast multiplying.

The Windmill. Song. Words by the Rev. H. W. Pullen. The music by C. J. Read.

THE danger of composing music to songs the words of which tempt you to preserve a continuous figure in the accompaniment, is that the instrumental part may override the vocal to such an extent that the melody becomes a mere bald succession of notes to fit in with the accompaniment. The best remedy for this is to test the voice part by itself; for assuredly if it possess but small abstract interest, the song will have no solid worth. We do not say that Mr. Read has altogether failed in writing an effective melody; but his unceasing semiquavers, presumed to represent the action of the mill, which "goes on all day," have evidently prevented his thinking sufficiently of the due expression of his vocal theme. In spite of this however, there is much to admire in the song; the harmonies are natural, and the modulations give a life to the composition which to a certain extent relieves the monotonous effect inseparable from the nature of the accompaniment.

March of the Choristers; for the Pianoforte.

Eily's Reply. Song. Words by Alfred B. Allen. Composed by Alfred B. Allen.

THE harmonies of this march are scarcely those which we think would be agreeable to the ears of "Choristers." Beginning, strangely enough, upon a 4-2, we have a succession of chords in the introduction which appear by no means suited to usher in so simple a subject as Mr. Allen has taken for the theme of his composition. We will not attempt to pass through the March and point out what particular harmonies we dislike, because no doubt the composer will say that this is a mere matter of opinion; but the drop of two consecutive fifths between bass and treble in the first bar of page 5 (G, D—F, C), is a fact we think beyond dispute. The melody of the song, if not very original, is at least pretty; and although rather too fully harmonized, there is little objection to be made to the accompaniment. We should however advise Mr. Allen not to be his own poet in future songs.

The Distant Sea. Four-part Song. Written by Philip F. Aldred. Composed by Gabriel Davis.

THE theme of this song is simple and melodious, and the voice-parts written throughout with an ease which shows an experienced hand. The harmonies evidence an amount of careful thought highly creditable to the composer, although we can scarcely reconcile ourselves to the 4-2, with the dissonant note rising in the upper part, in the chord before the first pause. The pianoforte accompaniment is independent of the voices, and appears essential to the composition.

CHAPPELL and Co.

Scherzo; from Beethoven's String Quartett in G major, Op. 18. Transcribed for the Pianoforte by Berthold Tours.

THE multiplication of pianoforte arrangements of classical works originally written for other instruments is one of the most hopeful signs of the times. Good music must be always welcome; and although but a feeble notion of the real beauty of a composition can be obtained by a "Transcription," as it is popularly called, it is an agreeable reminiscence to persons who are familiar with the music, and may lead those who hear it for the first time to take an early opportunity of becoming acquainted with it in the form bequeathed to the world by its composer. Mr. Tours takes high rank amongst the many arrangers of the day, for he not only understands the instrument he writes for, but treats the work he handles with becoming reverence. The Scherzo before us is a good specimen of careful and judicious translation, the passages lying so pleasantly under the hand as to give but little trouble to the performer. If well played, few persons who do not know the quartett would ever imagine that the piece was not composed for the pianoforte; and, both for practice and performance, it may therefore be warmly recommended to amateurs in search of novelty.

WEEKES and Co.

Farewell. Romance pour Piano.

The Dream. Romance pour Piano.

Par Arthur Polinski.

If these two pieces are put forward as specimens of the style of a new candidate for public favour he will have small chance, we fear, of making himself heard in the crowd. "Farewells" and "Dreams" in music, as in poetry, have been so often used as themes for authors to exercise their talents upon, that, unless a writer has something new to say about them, the public will assuredly pass them over with a silence more discouraging than the most adverse criticism. To say the very best that we can upon the first Romance, it is graceful and mild—never soaring above what any cultivated musician would play extempore, and never sinking below the standard of respectability. The "Dream" we like better. There is character in the figure which accompanies the theme, and the melody evinces a refinement of feeling which should we think produce higher results. Perhaps the composer is reserving his power, and if so we shall be glad to meet with him on a future occasion.

The Soldier Lover. Song. Words by Lovelace. Music by C. L. Coghlan.

MR. COGHLAN has we think been somewhat fettered in the composition of this song by his determination to adhere to an accompaniment the character of which is scarcely sufficiently winning to be worth preserving. We know how fascinating this style of writing is to the author, and how easy it seems when met with in the works of such consummate artists as Schubert, for instance; but in the hands of inexperienced composers it is dangerous; and, as in the case before us, is very apt to lead both to bad melody and bad harmony. The theme of this song would flow agreeably enough with a quiet and well considered accompaniment, but let Mr. Coghlan look carefully through his composition and see whether (apart from the figure so constantly used) he has written a good bass to his melody; we know this is a powerful test, but it is the only true one.

The Lord is my light. Duet for Soprano and Contralto. Composed by Sonus.

ALTHOUGH laying no claim to originality, this unpretentious sacred duet may prove thoroughly satisfactory both to vocalists and listeners who are contented with a smooth and musician-like treatment of the words. The voice-parts are carefully written, and the accompaniment throughout is in good keeping with the character of the text. If we could have had a triad, instead of a chord of the 6th, on the first note of the 9th bar in page 5, we should infinitely have preferred it; but this is the only point where we differ in opinion from the composer, who has really harmonized the duet very well.

J. B. CRAMER and Co..

Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis. In the key of C. Composed by Lizzie Wheeler.

THIS is a remarkable publication. Let our first remark be on the seeming inconsistency of announcing with a nickname—and by no means a sweet sounding one—the author of a sacred composition. "Lizzie" may have an endearing sound in a family circle and among familiar friends, but it scarcely elicits the respect that should be due to one who writes for the Church, aiming to lead the thoughts of worshippers. Let our next be on the very great merit of the music, which is fresh, unrestrained, totally unconventional if not conspicuous for originality, and certain to please if it be efficiently performed. One more remark must be on its being the production of a lady, the rarity of the case making it remarkable; but the music having nothing in it to distinguish it from male authorship, even authorship of high pretensions. It would have been well had the fair composer paid a little more attention to verbal accent, than to set the word "Saviour" with a dotted minim on the first of the bar to the second syllable, or "regarded" with a syncopated minim to the last syllable. There is so much modulation in both of the Canticles, that "the key of C" prevails but through a small portion of each. For the most part, the changes of key are highly effective, and are into such tonalities as bear satisfactory affinity to the original; but the digression into D, shortly before the end of the "Nunc Dimittis," with the dominant pedal in this key, may not be comprehended in the above observation, for it is out of place where it occurs, and could scarcely be appropriate anywhere. The major key of the supertonic is perhaps, of all keys, the least desirable, into which the plan of a piece can proceed, and its ill effect here is proof sufficient of its undesirability. The setting of the Doxology is the same in the two compositions, forming a link to unite them into one, with the same good effect that the device elsewhere produces. Our final remark must be that we look with pleasure for more music from the same hand.

La Fontaine. Morceau de Salon pour Piano.

L'Etoile Rouge. Polka brillante, pour le Piano.

Le Bon Retour. Caprice Caractéristique pour le Piano.

Par M. Lafuente.

THE first of these pieces is decidedly the most "characteristic" of the three, although the last is the only one so termed by the composer. The light groups of demisemi-quavers which form a marked feature in the composition, and are presumed to represent the aquatic element, are effective, although we can hardly reconcile ourselves to the fifths between bass and treble (G, D,—A, E) in the third bar of page 3. The principal theme is rather tame, when first given out; and we do not admire the break in the demisemi-quaver passages in the last few bars; but pianists with a light finger will have ample opportunity for the display of their touch in the course of the piece, and the subject is sufficiently graceful to command attention. "L'Etoile Rouge" is a spirited Polka, but scarcely more brilliant than the hundreds with which we are already familiar. "Le Bon Retour" is merely a theme with variations, none of which will severely tax the powers of the performer. Surely it is time that some individuality should be stamped upon the works which are submitted for review; pieces merely cut to the modern pattern may satisfy the majority of the music-buying public, but when they are sent for critical judgment what new set of words can be invented to describe their negative virtues?

The Songs of Wales. With accompaniments for the Piano or Harp. Edited by John Thomas. Part 2.

THAT Welsh music has latterly engaged a large portion of public attention is in a great measure owing to the zealous and patriotic exertions of Mr. John Thomas and Mr. Brinley Richards, both of whom have thrown their heart into the movement, and being artists of the highest standing, practically demonstrated the excessive beauty of the melodies, which are as truly national and as dear to the natives of the Principality as are the traditional tunes of any other part of the world. The work before us is issued monthly, and will be completed in about twelve parts. It is announced as a re-publication of the collections of the late John Parry and George Thomson, with the addition of other melodies which have not hitherto appeared in a vocal form. In some cases the same air is given with different words and accompaniments; and an interesting feature in the publication is the addition of historical notes in connection with the songs. Under the careful supervision of Mr. John Thomas, it is almost unnecessary to say that the music is most accurately printed; and to all lovers of the songs of Wales we cannot too cordially commend a work which is evidently a labour of love to its editor.

AUGENER and Co.

"Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us." An Anthem for Four Voices. By Richard Payne.

THIS Anthem is melodious, and for the most part vocal, but in one place at least it demands extraordinary compass in the basses, where it goes to D^b below the staff. Its variety consists more in change of key than change of matter. It has some good contrasts of piano and forte, by which, quite as much as by other means, it will make a pleasing effect. It merits and is likely to obtain a certain kind of popularity; and it says something for the progress of music in the Congregational Church that such a piece should be written for its use by one of its organists.

JEFFERYS and Co.

On beds of snow (Ellen's Tear). Poetry by Thomas Moore. Sleeping Flowers. Written by Rea.

Composed by Berthold Tours.

MR. TOURS has thoroughly sustained his reputation as a vocal writer in both these songs. Moore's words are set with a sympathetic feeling which fully justifies the composer in selecting the verses of a true poet. The commencement, in C minor, is well contrasted with the themes in the dominant and tonic major, the triplet accompaniment, on the return to the original time, being especially effective. "Sleeping Flowers" is perhaps even more popular in character. The words are coloured throughout with remarkable fidelity, and the melody cannot fail to win its way with the most impassive listeners. As in all Mr. Tours's compositions, the accompaniment is an integral portion of the song and changes its character with the alteration of feeling in the poetry as truly as the voice part itself. Singers who desire something really good as well as really new, should at once possess themselves of these two charming songs.

LAMBORN COCK.

Sonatina. For the Pianoforte. Composed by Muzia Clementi. Edited by H. C. Lunn.

AMONGST the many Sonatinas of Clementi, all of which are so admirably adapted for teaching, this one in E flat, containing only two movements, is unquestionably the most popular. The first movement is a stream of melody throughout, and the Presto subject of the Rondo is so light and playful as to ensure a warm welcome wherever it is played. For practice, too, it is excellent, for it shadows forth the form of the more elaborate classical works in so attractive a manner as to make the study of it a pleasure, even to young performers. We trust that its re-publication will lead to a more general knowledge of a composition which, although called a "Sonatina," is by no means diminutive in inventive or constructive power.

Grand Choral March. From Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens." Arranged for two performers on the Pianoforte. By Arthur O'Leary.

THE recent performances of Beethoven's music to the "Ruins of Athens" has brought this beautiful March somewhat prominently into notice; and amateurs who desire to possess a four-handed arrangement of it will do well to procure this excellent transcription from the score by Mr. O'Leary: it will be found highly effective, and by no means difficult to play.

Wagner's "Lohengrin." For the Pianoforte. By Francesco Berger.

WAGNER'S Operas, as a rule, offer but small attraction to Fantasia writers, for so little do they abound in set melodies that it is difficult to lay hold of any portion of a scene which can be made effective in a pianoforte transcription. Considering this drawback, however, we think that Mr. Berger has been fairly successful. To those who are acquainted with the opera, of course such a presentation of some of the principal subjects will not prove very attractive; but the Fantasia may be the means of spreading some knowledge of Wagner's music amongst amateurs, and for this purpose it may be recommended.

Sweetest Saviour. Dialogue. The Words by the Rev. George Herbert, A.D., 1630. The Music by C. A. Macirone.

MISS MACIRONE always writes well, and both in her pianoforte and vocal music evinces an earnest appreciation of the highest forms of art which must ever ensure her a welcome with a cultivated audience. The composition before us is truly sacred, and treated throughout with a refinement which lifts it far above the manufactured religious songs of the day. The theme is in the purest sympathy with the words; and the accompaniment is appropriate and free from any obtrusive display of learning. As the title page expresses that this is No. 1 of a series called "Sunday Songs," we may reasonably hope that amateurs will be provided by Miss Macirone with a number of sacred vocal pieces of a more elevated character than they have hitherto been accustomed to exercise their talents upon.

IN THE QUEEN'S BENCH.—WESTMINSTER SESSIONS HOUSE, 21st June, 1873.

LITTLETON v. GOUNOD.

Before Mr. Justice DENMAN and a SPECIAL JURY.

Counsel for the Plaintiff, Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE, Mr. MURPHY, and Mr. E. S. ROSCOE.

Counsel for the Defendant, Mr. DIGBY SEYMOUR, Q.C., Mr. BRANDT, and Mr. J. BOWEN JAY, JUN.

(Transcript from Messrs. Marten and Meredith's Shorthand Notes.)

Mr. ROSCOE opened the pleadings.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: May it please your Lordship, Gentlemen of the Jury, I regret very unfeignedly having the duty cast upon me of stating this case and conducting it against the defendant. I cannot help thinking that it is extremely ill-advised on his part to appear here at all, and also I think that before this case is ended he will join in the regret that I have expressed that it has ever been brought into Court. As far, however, as those whom I represent are concerned, I think you will agree with me that there was an absolute necessity to bring the matter into Court, although, at the same time, I believe every man of intelligence and fair judgment will be of opinion that the course which ought to have been adopted would have rendered further proceedings unnecessary. The gentlemen I represent are the well known musical publishers, Messrs Novello and Co. The name upon the record is Mr. Littleton; but he is the representative of the firm, and I am told that he is at present the sole representative of the firm. It is not necessary to do more than mention the name of this firm to carry with me the public opinion that they are persons of irreproachable honour and integrity, and have been so in all their dealings. Probably, if a person of inferior rank or position had made an attack upon their character he would have been treated with contempt; but the gentleman who appears as the defendant is M. Gounod, a gentleman who is thoroughly well known to all as a man to whom we are indebted for some of the most beautiful musical productions and operas of the present day. He is a man, therefore, of position, and, undoubtedly, of character, whose assertions will carry weight with them in the public mind. Under those circumstances the plaintiff has been obliged to bring this action; and I will shortly tell you what the circumstances are, as far as I am able to understand them, that have given rise to these proceedings. Mr. Littleton had dealings with M. Gounod as a musical publisher, publishing certain of his works upon contracts entered into between the parties, and those contracts existed from time to time. I must briefly refer to them, as the article to which I shall have to call your attention refers to those contracts and makes them an excuse for the libel in the article. The first of these matters took place, I believe, on January 14th, 1871. I may say that the defendant on this occasion sold the plaintiff the Copyright in certain musical compositions and agreed to take the sum of £200. As far as I know no question ever arose about that amount of money. A regular contract was entered into and the £200 was paid according to the contract. On the 16th of the following July a further contract was entered into to purchase certain other works of M. Gounod's, amounting to £320. I believe that a question arose upon that as to whether a portion of that sum, namely, £100, should be guineas or pounds; but it was afterwards conceded that £100 was the amount for which the contract was entered into. This amount was paid. Now on the third and only remaining occasion in question there was an agreement to purchase certain songs under circumstances to which I will call your attention. As the songs were to be purchased upon the option, as it was understood by Mr. Littleton between the parties, of paying £20 for each song, with a royalty of 4d., or paying nothing whatever for the song and giving a royalty of 6d. When the songs were given to him they certainly did not answer Mr. Littleton's expectations. He thought that M. Gounod ought to take a smaller sum of money, and he offered £10 instead of £20. This M. Gounod positively declined to take. Of course my client had no power to enforce what he thought was a reasonable proposition. He accordingly said if you will not take a smaller sum I will grant you a royalty of 6d., and accept the alternative. M. Gounod refused that also, and my client insisting on his rights, M. Gounod very hastily, as I cannot help thinking, commenced an action; and as it was a matter comparatively immaterial to my client, and as he was not at all disposed to make a law affair of a matter of a few pounds, he consented to pay £20, and accordingly he did pay that sum and also the costs of the Attorney who had brought the action, amounting to £19. Those are the circumstances, as far as I know them, existing between the litigant parties in the present case. They are perfectly clear, and I believe they will be proved beyond all question. A receipt was given for the bill of costs, and also the last amount amounting to £240; and this occurred in January, 1872. The transactions terminated between the parties at that time, and certainly we had no reason to suppose that anything like evil feeling was created between the parties. However, in this case as in a great many others (and it seems very odd that it should be so in a purely mercantile transaction) there appears to be a lady at the bottom of the affair; M. Gounod takes a great professional interest in a lady named Mrs. Weldon; she is said by him to be a most accomplished singer. I have no reason to say that she is not, because I have never had the pleasure of hearing her, although I shall take an early opportunity of forming my judgment upon the subject after this case. However, M. Gounod thought the public press and the public generally did not appreciate at the value that he did, the talents that this young lady possessed, and there seems to have been between him and the press a good deal of angry correspondence with which we have nothing more to do than we have with what has been going on in the moon. Mr. Littleton never had entangled himself in these matters, and, like myself, never saw Mrs. Weldon, and knew nothing about her. Some of the papers wrote upon the subject, and M. Gounod seems to have become extremely angry, and in some way or other to have mixed up Mr. Littleton with the criticisms that appear to have been made upon Mrs. Weldon. That is the only account that I can give, and I gather my information upon that rather from the tenor of the entire article to which I shall call your attention, than from any other information I have. I have said before that all matters were terminated between these parties eleven months before the article was published, and this article was published in a musical paper, having a very considerable circulation amongst musical people, called the Choir. It is a long article and probably for the purpose of rendering the matter intelligible, it will have to be read; but for the purpose of opening the case (inasmuch as I do not wish to go into the Weldon controversy), I will only call your attention to what we consider the very grave charge which must be met. No respectable tradesmen, when such assertions are made about them by a person of position, could put up with such attacks without remonstrance; and if such remonstrances were unavailing, they must take steps to clear their characters. The article in question is headed in this way—"M. Gounod and the Sunday Times." Now you know that Mr. Littleton has nothing on earth to do with the Sunday Times, and I believe he knew nothing whatever about the article in the Sunday Times. Certainly, he had nothing whatever to do with it. The Editor does not hold himself responsible for the opinions of his correspondents, and inasmuch as M. Gounod made no concealment, but signed his name, there was no necessity to go against the newspaper. To show you in what way

Mrs. Weldon is mixed up, and how, somehow or other, we are made the unfortunate victims of other people's criticisms, I will read this paragraph. "I reiterate my assertion"—

Mr. Justice DENMAN: You had better begin earlier than that.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: It is only a portion that I am reading. "I reiterate my assertion about people being sent to hiss Mrs. Weldon at concerts." It is wonderful, when you remember the ordinary criticism that goes on in this country, how little they are likely either to be bribed or bullied into ill-treating an artiste who really deserves to have the public approbation; and M. Gounod, who has expended much time and has attained a most accomplished and eminent position, as high as any person in modern days has done, ought to be well satisfied with the approbation which has been voluntarily accorded to him by the public, and the appreciation shown to him; and if they did not agree on all matters on which he expressed an opinion he ought to have remembered what they did approve with him, and not to have entertained animosity because there was an adverse view upon matters which he thought ought to be otherwise. It then proceeds, after a long paragraph in which the names of Cramer, and Chappell, and Boosey are mentioned, to make further observations upon the subject of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon: "Mr. Littleton, manager of the firm of Novello, Ewer and Co., had bought a Spanish Duet of me."—

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Begin earlier—"Let me, since I feel so inclined, acquaint the public with the primary reasons"—

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: "Primary reasons for my unpopularity, and that of my friends Mr. and Mrs. Weldon, among the trade and critics." "My unpopularity!"—Why, I thought he was about as popular a composer as any in England, and I believe he is. "Mr. Littleton, manager of the firm of Novello, Ewer and Co., had bought a Spanish duet of me, entitled 'La Siesta' to which English words were to be added. The proofs of this duet were sent to me with the words appended at the bottom of this letter attached to them. I leave the public to judge whether Mr. and Mrs. Weldon were right when they told me that the words were very ugly and nonsensical; Mr. Littleton said they were beautiful. I asked several literary men their opinion, which coincided with that of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon. I therefore told Mr. Littleton I would ask Mr. F. Turner Palgrave to write some adaptation to the music, which was eventually approved by my friends. Mr. Littleton and Mr. Barnby, however, did not approve, and the duet with English words remains unpublished. I believe the law affords me no protection on this point and that Mr. Littleton's bad taste precludes me from reaping any benefit from this composition with impunity to himself." You know, gentlemen, upon the subject of bad taste Mr. Littleton thinks one thing, and Mr. and Mrs. Weldon think another, and those persons who are selected give their opinion in favour of the view of M. Gounod; but really when you hear what follows you will be almost amazed at what it is founded upon.

"About a month after this little dispute, being on the eve of returning to France, I asked Mr. Littleton to settle his account with me. Before this he had mulcted me twice on two different sums of £200"—that is utterly untrue; there is not an atom of foundation for it—"to which I had with my accustomed indifference submitted. Mr. Littleton told me that he could not afford to pay me the sums first agreed upon, which statement I at first believed. He knew the war had nearly ruined me, and that my house had been burnt down. I could not believe, therefore, he would have bargained with me under such circumstances."

Gentlemen, I have given you the history of the only transactions that took place between these parties, and you will see how far this is a fair representation of what took place. There is not a word of truth in it. There was no such figure in dispute as £40; the whole thing is imaginative, and entirely and absolutely without foundation. Then he goes on to say, "This third time it was £240 he owed me, and this time he wished to mulct me of half that sum. Had it not been for Mrs. Weldon's advice"—Mr. Weldon again; M. Gounod had better get rid of Mr. Weldon—"I should certainly have submitted again; but he told me what the Sunday Times tells me, that there are law courts, that I was fairly entitled to the money, that the proofs were on my side, and that I must not submit to be done again. So to law I went, and, with the exception of law expenses, about £23, to which I was put in consequence, I got my money."

Now, gentlemen, those are the matters complained of by the plaintiff, and they are complained of in a gentlemanly spirit, and with an endeavour to get M. Gounod to say, "Well, that was written under irritation, and I am extremely sorry it has been done." M. Gounod has offered no apology of any kind. Subsequently an action was brought stating this libel, and stating what you will agree with me was the meaning intended to be conveyed by it, viz., that in trade transactions between Mr. Littleton and M. Gounod, Mr. Littleton had behaved with sharpness, and unfairness and dishonesty, and that in point of fact, he had endeavoured in certain transactions to "do," and had succeeded in "doing" (as it is called) M. Gounod—that is to say, swindling him, if it means anything at all—that he ultimately tried to "do" him again, but in that he failed.

Gentlemen, I am not going to say a word upon the truth or falsehood of such an imputation. You will hear Mr. Littleton and judge for yourselves. I would a great deal rather that you did form an unbiased judgment for yourselves upon the subject. Now, instead of meeting this matter in a spirit of fairness, and instead of saying, "Well, how wrong I have been to attack a man upon a subject with which he had nothing to do, and in making insinuations for which there was no earthly foundation," those who have been advising M. Gounod have thought it right to put upon this record a plea of justification—whether Mr. Littleton has been a rogue in these transactions. I am not afraid to submit that to the jury. Even at this last moment, I would hope to see the defendant treat the matter with those feelings which ought to characterise a gentleman. If this case is forced to a conclusion, I shall have to ask you to give such damages as to teach gentlemen who have full opportunity of knowing what is right that they are not to be allowed to libel those who have never done one single act to deserve it in their lives.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Is there anything to be said, Mr. Seymour?

Mr. SEYMOUR: I am obliged to your Lordship. I am sure my Requited Love.

FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by C. J. ROWE.

Composed by FREDERIC ARCHER.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

Allegretto.

TREBLE. The mer - ry lark his joy - ous lay Is tril - ling out on ALTO. The mer - ry lark his joy - ous lay Is tril - ling out on TENOR (3ve. lower). The mer - ry lark his joy - ous lay Is tril - ling out on BASS. The mer - ry lark his joy - ous lay Is tril - ling out on ACCOMP. Allegretto.

high, From out the ful - ness of his heart He sings . . and so do

high, From out the ful - ness of his heart He sings . . and so do

high, From out the ful - ness of his heart He sings and so do

high, From out the ful - ness of his heart He sings . . and so do

I, . . He sings . . and so do I, . . My heart is glad for

I, . . He sings . . and so do I, . . My heart is glad for

I, . . He sings . . and so do I, . . My heart is glad for

I, . . He sings and so do I, . . My heart is glad for my true love Loves me and me a - lone . . So like the my true love Loves me and me a - lone . . So like the my true love Loves me and me a - lone . . So like the my true love Loves me and me a - lone . . So like the lark my tune - ful lays . . Must take a joy - ous tone, So lark . . my tune - ful lays Must take a joy - ous tone, So lark my tune - ful lays . . Must take a joy - ous tone, So lark my tune - ful lays Must take a joy - ous tone, . . So like the lark my tune - ful lays Must take a joy - ous tone. . .

like the lark my tune - - ful lays Must take a joy - ous tone. . .

like the lark my tune - - ful lays Must take a joy - ous tone. . .

like the lark my tune - - ful lays Must take a joy - ous tone. . .

The musical score is written for four voices (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and piano accompaniment. It features a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a common time signature. The lyrics are repeated for each voice part. The piano accompaniment consists of a grand staff with treble and bass clefs. The score includes dynamic markings such as mf (mezzo-forte) and cres. (crescendo). The lyrics are: "my true love Loves me and me a - lone . . So like the lark my tune - ful lays . . Must take a joy - ous tone, So". The score is divided into three systems, each with four staves for voices and piano accompaniment.

mf

Sweet bird, that up to hea - ven soars To raise thy ca - rol there, O

mf

Sweet bird, that up to hea - ven soars To raise thy ca - rol there, O

mf

Sweet bird, that up to hea - ven soars To raise thy ca - rol there, O

mf

Sweet bird, that up to hea - ven soars To raise thy ca - rol there, O bear my bear my grate - ful song on high, O take . . my ear - nest pray'r, O

bear my grate - ful song on high, O take my ear - nest pray'r, O

bear my grate - ful song on high, O take my ear - nest pray'r, O grate . . ful song on high, O take . . my ear - nest pray'r, O meno mosso.

legato.
p

take . . my ear - nest pray'r, The pray'r that fond re - qui - ted love E'er meno mosso.

legato.
p

take my ear - nest pray'r, The pray'r that fond re - qui - ted love E'er meno mosso.

legato.
p

take . . my ear - nest pray'r, The pray'r that fond re - qui - ted love E'er meno mosso.

legato.
p

take my ear - nest pray'r, The pray'r that fond re - qui - ted love E'er meno mosso.

legato.
p

f a tempo.

breathes in grate - ful tone, Is sent by thee, sweet bird, on high, To

f a tempo.

breathes in grate - ful tone, Is sent by thee, sweet bird, on high, To

f a tempo.

breathes in grate - ful tone, Is sent by thee, sweet bird, on high, To

f a tempo.

breathes in grate - ful tone, Is sent by thee, sweet bird, on high, To bear to Love's own throne, Is sent by thee, sweet bird, . . on high, To bear to Love's own throne, Is sent by thee, sweet bird, on high, To bear to Love's own throne, Is sent by thee, sweet bird, . . on high, To bear to Love's own throne, Is sent by thee, sweet bird, on high, To rall. marcato.

bear to Love's own throne, by thee, . . . sweet bird, to Love's own throne.

rall. marcato.

bear to Love's own throne, by thee, . . . sweet bird, to Love's own throne.

rall. marcato.

bear to Love's own throne, is sent by thee, sweet bird, to Love's own throne.

rall. marcato.

bear to Love's own throne, is sent by thee, sweet bird, to Love's own throne.

rall. marcato.

bear to Love's own throne, is sent by thee, sweet bird, to Love's own throne.

friend would give me credit for advising for the best. My own personal opinion is that technically, and legally, this is a libel, and I am not going to raise false issues, because, being in writing, it undoubtedly tends to affect him in his relations to the publishing world.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: I think it right to say, that after the quasi invitation thrown out by my brother Ballantine, if there be a possibility of setting the matter right without a bitter war, now is the time.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Entirely so, my Lord. The letter was written in French by the defendant, and it was translated, I believe, by the lady to whom reference has been made. The word mult was translated from "privé de la monnaie"—"I have lost the money," or, "he has deprived me of the money," which was in the original French.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: Does it amount to this, that you disavow a considerable portion of the innuendoes in this, but you admit you use language which your client has reason to regret, and which is libellous? because, if so, a handsome retraction of any offensive words, and an expression of regret, might settle this matter.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Your Lordship will allow me to communicate with the defendant; I have spoken to him before.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I hope I have not done injustice to my client, but I have a feeling of sympathy with M. Gounod, because I believe he is not acquainted with the meaning of the thing.

Mr. SEYMOUR: He has his own notion of the meaning of words.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: Now talk to him.

Mr. SEYMOUR: I wanted him to hear what your Lordship said.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: I cannot express myself in French so well as I should wish, as representing the Lord Chief Justice of England.

[A consultation took place between the learned counsel for the defendant and their client.]

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I think I may say one word—that I have abstained from putting the case in the strongest form. If my friend has read the article in the Sunday Times, he will see how much more strongly I might have put this.

Mr. SEYMOUR: I am quite aware of that.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: All that would come out in the course of the case.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: It would all come out in the course of the case.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: I think I may express to you, Mr. Seymour, that there are innuendoes which are a little too high.

Mr. SEYMOUR: That is exactly what creates the difficulty, and I will tell you at once what the defendant's difficulty is. He says "I never meant to impute fraud," and the innuendoes are my difficulty.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: Then he will be prepared to say, "If I have used language which does impute fraud, I will withdraw it."

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I wish to make my friend perfectly understand, there has been no comment.

Mr. SEYMOUR: If the declaration had been without innuendoes there would be no difficulty in my way.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: The article in the Sunday Times imports every innuendo.

Mr. SEYMOUR: My difficulty still is the innuendo. He says, "I never meant to impute fraud; I stated that which I can prove."

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: He used language which, in the understanding of any Englishman reading it, would be taken to impute fraud.

Mr. SEYMOUR: He says he never meant to impute fraud.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: But he has justified his words.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: You must remember that there is a justification on the record.

Mr. GOUNOD (from the floor of the court): M. Le President—may I speak?

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: No, you had better leave it to your counsel; you had better take the advice of your counsel. I do not want to see you embark in litigation; it is a sad thing. It would not be hospitable in me if I did not try to prevent it.

(After a further consultation with his client)

Mr. SEYMOUR said: I have done my best, my Lord, to influence the defendant, but we cannot instil into him the notion of English law, that if he uses words which are capable of bearing the construction of an imputation of fraud, they are libellous.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: You have said you did not mean to impute fraud?

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: It justifies the truth of those words. If those are words upon which the imputation may arise, then it justifies the imputation of sharp practice. So far that is quite clear.

Mr. SEYMOUR: I can only say that if the defendant was an Englishman I would take the law into my own hands; I would do what I thought right, and throw up my brief. He will not take my advice.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: Then the case must proceed.

Mr. LITTLETON, sworn. Examined by Mr. MURPHY.

Are you the sole partner in the house of Novello and Co., who carry on business as musical publishers in Berners Street?—I am.

I need hardly say it is a long established firm and its transactions are numerous?—Certainly.

In the year 1871, did you purchase from M. Gounod a copyright of certain works for £200?—Yes.

In or about January, 1871?—Yes.

I believe that transaction was paid and settled?—Yes.

In the following month of May, did you purchase the copyright of four other works, or three other works, and pay £320 for them also?—Yes.

Mr. SEYMOUR: When was the first purchase?—January, 1871, and the second in May.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: How much?—£320.

Mr. MURPHY: Shortly afterwards had you a conversation with M. Gounod as to some twelve hymn tunes?—Yes; and eight songs including a duet called "La Siesta," the number was not named. "La Siesta" was offered to me, but the others were not named.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: It included "La Siesta"?—Yes; and others were to follow.

Mr. MURPHY: Was any final arrangement come to as to the terms on which these songs and other musical pieces were to be written?—M. Gounod offered them to me at £20 with a royalty of 4d., and also at a royalty of 6d. I felt that I rather inclined to pay £20 and 4d. a copy; but afterwards, when the songs were delivered, I offered him £10 and the 4d., which he declined.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: At whose option do you say it was to be according to the offer?—I have a notion that I accepted them at the £20 and the 4d. per copy, and I have always said so; but when I received them, I did not think they would answer my purpose at that price, and I confess I offered him half the terms and the royalty at 4d. a copy. When he declined that, I said, "very well, I would rather take them on your other alternative," because certainly he did offer them to me at 6d. a copy, and I offered him 6d., and no money down; that he also declined.

Mr. MURPHY: Did M. Gounod then bring an action against you to recover the £20 and 4d. royalty?—Yes.

And on the 7th of November, 1871, did your Solicitors, by your direction, write a letter to M. Gounod,—7th November. Dear Sir,—To save the unpleasantness of litigation, Mr. Littleton has instructed us to pay the amount sued for in this action, although he still persists, that he had the alternative of the two modes of payment to which we have already referred. And although a number of the copies signed by M. Gounod and included in the amount sued for have not been sold, we find, however, that you have included in the declaration a claim for damages for the non-publication of five of the songs. Independently of any question as to terms, Mr. Littleton tells us that he did not get these manuscripts until so late a period of the season, that it would have been most unwise to publish them as they would not have sold, and in the approaching season would have been regarded as somewhat old. We presume your client would not contend that a publisher has not a reasonable discretion as to the best time for publishing, and we shall certainly be prepared confidently to go to a jury upon the question, whether there has been any such unreasonable delay in the publication of these songs as would entitle your client to damages. We presume, however, that there is no serious intention to claim such damages, and that you are willing to accept the £250 3s. 8d. sued for, and taxed costs in discharge of the action. If so, if you will instruct your agents by return, the matter can be so far settled; and if M. Gounod really wishes the other songs to be published at once, Mr. Littleton has no objection to put them in hand without further delay. We write direct to you to save time."

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: Are there many of these documents?

Mr. MURPHY: There are not a great many, my Lord. (To the witness.) Were those terms accepted by M. Gounod, and did you on the 17th January pay the amount of the debt claimed and the taxed costs, £269 4s. 5d., and receive an assignment of all these songs from the defendant?

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: How much did you say?

Mr. MURPHY: The claim in the action was £250 3s. 8d., and together with the costs it came to £269 4s. 5d. the receipt in full for the debt and the costs was for that amount, and there was an assignment of these songs. (To the witness.) Now at this time had some gentleman written the words for "La Siesta"?—Dr. Dulcken.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: Was that for you or for him?

Mr. MURPHY: It was for Mr. Littleton. He was the proprietor of the copyright.

Had you sent a copy, with the words, to Dr. Dulcken?—Yes, for his correction.

Shortly afterwards did M. Gounod and Mrs. Weldon call upon you with reference to that matter?—I think they did. I am nearly certain that it was not a communication, but that M. Gounod and Mrs. Weldon came. I feel sure of that.

Did M. Gounod object to the words written by Dr. Dulcken?—He objected to them thoroughly. I do not remember the exact words. He said they were trashy, or something of the kind.

Did he then say he would get Mr. Palgrave to write some others?—Of course, after having got them done, I declined; and then he said he would get them himself. I am not sure that I named any names.

Eventually was a copy of some other words, written by Mr. Palgrave, sent to you in order that you might form a judgment upon them?—It was sent to me with a view to publishing.

Exercising the best judgment that you could, did you think they were unsuitable for the music?—The words themselves were not bad, but the words were not fitted to the music.

That was the best judgment you could form upon the matter?—And as I was advised.

Did you in consequence decline to adopt the words published by Mr. Palgrave?—Certainly.

In this state of affairs did there on the 5th January appear an article in the Sunday Times, and is this a copy of the article? (Showing the same to the witness.)—Yes.

Mr. MURPHY: My Lord, it is a very long article, and it contains a letter of M. Gounod. If my learned friend wishes it I will read the whole of it. Probably the best thing would be to read the whole, although it is long. The jury cannot understand it unless I read the whole.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: What is the date?

Mr. MURPHY: 5th January, my Lord.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: January 1872?

Mr. MURPHY: 1873.

Mr. JUSTICE DENMAN: When did all this about the words take place?

—The Witness: It must have been I think in the summer of 1871. I am not quite sure. It was about two or three months after the "Siesta," was written.

Mr. MURPHY: Perhaps, my Lord, I can shorten this matter. If my learned friend Mr. Digby Seymour wants any other part read, I can find it afterwards. First of all here is a letter of M. Gounod to the Sunday Times, dated 25th December 1872, and then there is the article in the Sunday Times in answer to it on the 5th January: "Sir, I have been shown a paragraph in the Sunday Times, dated as far back as the 20th October. As it is a fabrication from beginning to end, I think it due to myself and Mrs. and Mr. Weldon to deny the truth of the statements therein contained, and I shall be much obliged to you to allow me to contradict them through the medium of your columns. The Sunday Times says, M. Gounod has offered a new three-act opera to M. Verger, manager of the Théâtre Italien, on condition that the chief part be assigned to Mrs. Weldon. I never offered any work of mine to M. Verger, moreover, although I have not exactly refused his application, he knows from me it is very unlikely I can accede to his request that I should write an opera for his theatre. Mrs. Weldon's name was not mentioned. M. Du Locle asked me last year to write an opera on the subject of Ruth, and wished Mrs. Weldon to sing the principal part. She declined because she had other objects in view apart from her own career or glory, and her occupations kept her in England. Hence may come the report which the Sunday Times correspondent falsely construes into my offering a manager a work of mine under the conditions that Mrs. Weldon should be assigned the first part. The correspondent goes on to say 'the lady has sung in Paris and therefore M. Verger knows exactly the significance of M. Gounod's stipulation. Under these circumstances it may be that he will not close with the French composer's offer.' Mrs. Weldon did sing, and sang most successfully in Paris, almost all the critics even being unanimous in her praise; considering that she was an Englishwoman by birth, and that English artists do not enjoy a high reputation on the Continent, but there were in her case at that particular moment especial reasons why (not unreasonably) a little hostile feeling might have been shown, it was all the more gratifying that such was not the case. She sang at the two first concerts of the Conservatoire with great success, and M. Du Locle immediately afterwards engaged her to sing at the Opéra Comique. The article goes on to say either M. Gounod is deceived in the lady's power or the public have done the lady gross injustice. Even if the public had failed to recognise Mrs. Weldon's talent which is manifestly not the case; it is not likely a man of my age and experience could be deceived in an artist's powers, and I think it will be generally admitted that I am more likely to know more about art than the public; but it is not true that the public do not appreciate, and have not appreciated Mrs. Weldon. In England, it is doubtless the fact, that most critics have managed to either run her down, or suppress the fact that she has sung. Moreover, I know for a fact that when she has sung out of town, people have been sent down from London to hiss her, and when she has sung in London the same thing has happened. The applause after she has sung has drowned the hisses, but I have heard them with my own ears, and know from people friendly to me, that the hisses had been sent by publishers and agents in London." This is the part to which I want to call your Lordship's attention. "As it is owing to the general disinterestedness Mr. and Mrs. Weldon have taken in my affairs since I knew them, that this persecution, if I may so call it, of Mrs. Weldon has existed, I think it my duty not any more to keep silent on the subject. The goose with the golden eggs has been squeezed too tight, and though not so dead as the goose of the fable, I feel I am worse than that to my former traders, and that they try and revenge themselves in every possible manner by practising malice, envy, and uncharitableness to their hearts' content. I remain, your obedient servant, CH. GOUNOD.—Tavistock House, W.C., Dec. 25th." Then in reference to that letter the Sunday Times writes this: "Did M. Gounod's letter stop at the point first noticed, it would simply reflect credit upon him by its desire that the truth should be known, and by its chivalrous defence of a lady to whose generous disinterestedness he confesses himself indebted. But, happily, it illustrates the proverbial peril of a man who rushes into print. M. Gounod goes on to speak of a persecution of Mrs. Weldon, and instances the manner in which she is run down or ignored by most critics. With every desire to be courteous, we are bound to say that this looks like the unreasoning irritation of defeat. Why in the name of common sense should most critics persecute Mrs. Weldon. The charge is beneath notice, and for ourselves we put it aside with the equanimity of contempt. He more than hints at a dark plot against the lady concocted by his former traders, and carried out by their agents in town and country. We have only to remind the public that M. Gounod's former traders were Messrs. Cramer and Co., Messrs. Chappell and Co., and Messrs. Boosey and Co., in order to bring home all the gravity of the accusation. If M. Gounod knows for a fact that hisses have been employed by publishers in London to ruin Mrs. Weldon, why does not he direct the lady to the Law Courts? He can show the way thither, and is probably aware that the penalties for conspiracy are heavy." That is the only part I need read.

Mr. SEYMOUR: I should like you to read the next sentence.
Mr. MURPHY: "We have already spoken of the irritation of defeat, but these accusations look like the recklessness of despair. Is M. Gounod conscious that his career in England has failed? If so, why not examine carefully into causes ere it be too late? Has he neglected to study English feeling or prejudice? Have well-meaning but foolish advisers trained his ear? A search for the true answer to such questions would do more good than any amount of letter writing to public journals. At present M. Gounod stands on the verge of a catastrophe. M. Gounod and his wrongs is already a familiar heading in print, and should it ever be said by a bored newspaper reader—'Here's M. Gounod again!' The distinguished magician whom we would gladly keep in England might sing 'Nunc Dimittis,' for a reason opposite to that which prompted old Simeon's original utterance." That being the state of things on the 5th of January, let me ask you this: Have you ever heard Mrs. Weldon sing?—No.

Had you ever mixed yourself directly or indirectly with the differences between M. Gounod and other persons as to Mrs. Weldon's merits?—Most certainly not in any way.

On the 18th January did this letter upon which this action is brought appear in the Choir?—Yes.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: You will take it as read, I suppose?

Mr. DIGBY SEYMOUR: We will take it as read. I can read any part that I want.

Cross-examined by Mr. DIGBY SEYMOUR:

When did you first become acquainted with M. Gounod?—It is almost impossible to remember, but it would be just before the date of our first contract.

Shortly after his arrival in England?—Certainly.

I think his first contract with you was for two pieces known as "Salterelle" and "La Marguerite"?—Yes.

You paid him £200 for each?—No, that was for four.

Did you afterwards, about the month of January, 1871, agree with him to compose two pieces of music, one "De Profundis," and the other "O Salutaris Hostia"?—Yes.

I think you agreed with him also for the sale of a piece called "Gallia"?—Yes.

Were you to pay him £200 for "Gallia"?—No.

And £200 for the "Profundis" and the "O Salutaris Hostia"?—Yes.

Which were you to pay the £200 for?—The "Profundis" and the "O Salutaris," were to be £200.

Do you mean each, or the two together?—The two together.

Did you not afterwards agree to give him £200 for "Gallia"?—No.

Was not £200 mentioned as the price?—No.

Are you quite sure of that?—I am quite sure, to the best of my belief.

That will not do.—Then I will say certainly not.

That is not the way to give evidence.—Will you repeat your question if you please?

The question I ask you is this: Whether originally in the first instance you did not agree to give £200 for the "Gallia"?—No.

Now you have no doubt at all?—Not the least doubt.

It is not to the best of your belief now—you will swear it?—I will swear it.

Afterwards had you a conversation with the defendant before you paid him for those pieces?—Did he claim £200 for the "Gallia"?—No.

Never?—No, never.

Did he not claim £400 for the three pieces?—No.

Finally, did he not agree to take £40 off the price of the "Profundis" and the "O Salutaris Hostia"?—No.

And £40 off the "Gallia"?—Of that I am not certain.

You are not certain then whether he did not agree to take £40 off the "Gallia"?—I really am not quite sure what he asked for the "Gallia," but I believe it was just what he had.

I was justified in pressing this question of memory, you see. You believe you paid him what you agreed to pay?—Yes.

But you will not undertake to say that he did not take £40 off?—Is it a question of what he asked or what we agreed to pay? I never agreed to pay more than £120 for the "Gallia," and I did pay it. What I am uncertain about is whether M. Gounod asked more. It was never agreed that he should have more.

I must put my question finally—Did he settle for £320?—that is the £320 for the "Profundis," and the "O Salutaris," and the "Gallia."

Let there be no misunderstanding about my question. I am instructed to ask whether he was not to receive two sums—£200 for the "Profundis" and the "O Salutaris," and £200 for the "Gallia," and whether you did not press him and he agreed to take £40 off each—that is, making £80 off the £400, leaving £320?—The question is whether he may not have asked for something, but I am confident there was no agreement to give him anything more than £120 for the "Gallia."

Mr. Justice DENMAN: It comes to this: he does not deny that in the negotiation there may have been £40 more mentioned.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Your Lordship will see that it has a bearing upon one part of this libel. (To the witness) I only want to ask one question more about this. You did pay him this £320?—Yes.

The price of three pieces?—Yes.

Was any sum taken off, leaving £320 as the final amount?—No. £320 was always the amount agreed upon.

Now you mean to say there was nothing more asked?—No; at least nothing more was agreed to be given.

Did he not claim £400 before the settlement?—No; certainly not.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: He never claimed £400?—Certainly not.
Mr. SEYMOUR: Did he not claim that his contracts were £200 for the one piece, and £200 for the other?—Certainly not.

You mean to say he never claimed that?—No.
Now with regard to the other pieces, "La Siesta" and so on, there was an Anthem and several tunes?

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Are you coming to the third now?

Mr. SEYMOUR: Yes, my Lord.

Now was it not agreed between you in the first instance with regard to the Anthem and the piece "La Siesta" that he was to be paid £20 down, beside the royalty?—It is my impression that I agreed to that, but I shall be contradicted by somebody who was present.

Is it that you are afraid of being contradicted by some one who was there?—No.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: He never said a word about being afraid. The WITNESS: I meant that I shall be contradicted in my favour.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Your impression is, that you agreed to the £20 and 4d. a copy?—Yes: I have always said so.

Mr. SEYMOUR: You had, I think, some correspondence with the defendant about this matter. On the 26th July, 1871, you wrote to him, I think. This is from the plaintiff to the defendant, my Lord: "My dear Sir,—With regard to the songs and the duet, I have come to the conclusion that I cannot afford to give you £20 (reading the letter down to the words 'Awaiting your reply')." Mr. Justice DENMAN: That is exactly the transaction he spoke of.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Yes. This is the reply of the same day from the defendant to the plaintiff—"Sir, I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of to-day's date. I beg to inform you that I can accede to no new proposition respecting the payment of the songs and duet I have placed in your hands to publish, but adhere to the arrangement entered into between us more than two months ago. I have therefore to request that you will at once favour me with a cheque." Then there is another letter.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: It does not appear from that which M. Gounod insists upon.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Yes, my Lord. "Adhere to the arrangement entered into between us more than two months ago. I have to request that you will at once favour me with a cheque."

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Yes; but it does not say on which basis of arrangement; there were two, you know. There must have been some specified sum.

Mr. SEYMOUR (to the witness). Was not £20 agreed upon as a present payment, besides the royalty?—That was my impression.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Is this only as to that?

Mr. SEYMOUR: Yes, my Lord.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: That related to the £20 down.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: We understood that he rejected the alternative, and wanted £20.

Mr. SEYMOUR: The arrangement being for £20 down, there is then a proposition that he should only take £10 down. Then a correspondence takes place.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: £20 down is not something besides the original £20 and 4d., is it?

Mr. SEYMOUR: No, my Lord—the answer puts it clear. The plaintiff replies on the 28th:—"Dear Sir,—As you will not accept my offer at £10 each and 4d. per copy for the songs, I will take them on your other proposal, viz., a royalty of 6d. per copy on each, and no present payment. If you will name a time when it will be convenient for you to call, I will hand you a cheque for the Anthem and tunes."

Mr. Justice DENMAN: M. Gounod assumes, and probably rightly, that it was at his option; and he says "I can accede to no new terms."

Mr. SEYMOUR: Yes; and our case is, that there was no option left open, but at the time and on the spot, the defendant agreed to accept £20. Here is the answer to that letter:—"I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, and in answer beg to inform you that unless I to-day receive a cheque for the payment of my songs and duet, according to the terms offered and preferred by yourself, namely £20 and 4d. a copy royalty, I shall place the matter in the hands of my solicitors." Then the matter does go into the hands of the solicitors, and ultimately a writ was issued, and the amount was paid at £20.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: What is the date of that letter?

Mr. SEYMOUR: The last letter is dated on the 28th. It was written on the same day.

Mr. SEYMOUR: I am called away to another Court, my Lord, in a very important case, and perhaps your Lordship will allow my learned friend, Mr. Brandt, to continue the cross-examination.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Certainly.

Cross-examination continued by Mr. BRANDT.

I see, Mr. Littleton, that you object to an imputation in the declaration with reference to certain words that were used.—Yes.

The words were "very ugly and nonsensical"—Mr. Littleton (meaning the plaintiff) said they were beautiful. I (meaning the defendant) asked several literary men their opinions, which coincided with that of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon. I (meaning the defendant) therefore told Mr. Littleton (meaning the plaintiff) I (meaning the defendant) would ask Mr. F. Turner Palgrave.

What were the words; do you remember them; have you a copy of them?—We have them in Court.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Are these the words of Mr. Palgrave that you refer to?

Mr. BRANDT: No, certainly not.

The WITNESS: The words are there.

Did the words you suggested commence "Where the leaves murmur twining"?—Yes.

Those are your words?—Yes; they were done at our request.

You object to be told in this article that they were "ugly and nonsensical," and that Mr. Littleton, being the plaintiff, said they were beautiful?—I do not know that I said they were beautiful, but I have no doubt I said they were very good.

Mr. BRANDT: I will read them.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I think we will leave the Officer of the Court to read them.

Mr. BRANDT: If the Officer of the Court will be so kind as to read them with expression. (Laughter.)

The WITNESS: Will you allow me to say that it is not so much a question of the literary expression, so long as they are fitted to the music.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: You, as an expert, say that it does not matter whether the words are nonsensical or not?—No; I do not go so far as that.

Mr. BRANDT: In your declaration you say the defendant said the words were "ugly and nonsensical, and Mr. Littleton said they were beautiful." The invento is, "I told Mr. Littleton (meaning the plaintiff) that I (meaning the defendant) would ask Mr. Palgrave to write some adaptation of the music, which was eventually approved by my friends. Mr. Littleton (meaning the plaintiff) and Mr. Barnby, however, did not approve, and the duet with English words remains unpublished. I (meaning the defendant) believe the law affords me no protection on this point whatever, and that Mr. Littleton's (meaning the plaintiff's) bad taste precludes me (meaning the defendant) from reaping any benefit from this composition with impunity to himself; meaning thereby that the plaintiff, as such publisher, as aforesaid, was incompetent properly to manage his said business, and was wanting in the qualifications necessary for duly and successfully carrying on the same."

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: If it will save any time, I will give that up.

Mr. BRANDT: Those are your words (showing the same to the witness)?—Yes.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Would you like me to read them from this? I will read them if you wish it. I will read them as far as possible without prejudice.

"Where the leaves murmur twining

Zephyrs are creeping,

There in dark shade reclining

Will I lie sleeping.

And a breeze prevaileth

So freshly and so brightly,

And onward so lightly,

So gaily fancy's ship now saileth,

So it doth content me

Such fair rest is given,

There seemeth now sent me

A choice gift from heaven.

Now in dark shade reclining

Will I lie sleeping,

By chance then recalling

In dreams, amid the flowers

Troubles oft befalling.

When dark tempest lowers,

Sad thoughts fade before me,

The sound frights them daily,

And new life comes o'er me,

Where leaves murmur gaily,

Where in dark shade reclining,

Will I lie sleeping."

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: This is Mr. Palgrave's version. If your Lordship will look at it (handing same to his Lordship).

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Now I will read Mr. Palgrave's version.

"Happy breeze that wanders,

Sweetness mixed with sigh,

Down the long, long valley,

'Neath a purple sky;

O'er the myrtle blossoms

Floating gently by,

In the purple twilight

The myrtle leaves among.

Say what dost thou murmur?

What, O what thy song?

All her silver blossoms,

With a low sweet sigh,

Heave beneath thy kisses,

When thy breath goes by;

As white stars that tremble

When winds sweep the sky,

In the purple twilight

The white flowers among.

Say what dost thou whisper?

What, O what thy song?

Face to face we feel thee,

Breathing fresh and clear,

To our hearts we clasp thee,

O whisper sweet and near.

Say what is thy message

To the flowers so dear?

In the purple twilight

The myrtle leaves among.

Say what dost thou whisper?

O say what is thy song?"

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: With your Lordship's permission I will hand the original to the Jury, who probably understand Spanish. (Laughter.)

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Is it in Spanish?

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Yes, my Lord.

Mr. BRANDT: It is not a translation; there are no Spanish words. It was an original air by M. Gounod to which it was intended to have English verses and Spanish verses.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: It would look very much as though there were an understanding that the words that would suit that music would be something about flowers and murmurs, and leaves, and shades.

Mr. BRANDT: Yes, my Lord; loves and doves, and blisses and kisses. (Laughter.) I merely wish it to be understood that the English was not a translation.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I think you are right about that.

The WITNESS: M. Gounod wrote a duet to Spanish words, which words are in Court, with the music with them.

Mr. BRANDT: The music is an adaptation to the Spanish words.—The music was written for the Spanish words.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Then did Dr. Dulcken, who acted for you in the matter, understand that as well as Mr. Palgrave?—Do you mean did he understand Spanish?

No, did he understand that he was to furnish words?—He had the Spanish.

They were both in a position to re-produce the effect of the Spanish words so as to suit this music?—Yes.

Mr. BRANDT: You complained of that because you felt rather offended that your judgment should be impugned with reference to those words?—I might; but we did not object to other words being furnished.

It is a fact, is it not, that at one time you owed M. Gounod money and there were little disputes?—That has been admitted.

And that afterwards you had to pay something like £21 for costs?—We did.

I will not go into the question about the word "mulct," but do you understand French?—No.

But you belong to the firm of Novello and Co.?—Yes.

Then do not you know enough of French to know that the word privé means deprived?—No; I may say that I do not know a word of French.

I see that you have put it here?—"He had mulcted me (meaning the defendant) twice of £40 (on two different sums of £200 to which I (meaning the defendant) had with my accustomed indifference submitted. Mr. Littleton (meaning the plaintiff) told me (meaning the defendant) that he could not afford to pay me the sums first agreed upon."

You did tell him that?—You are speaking now of the songs?

Yes; of the songs.—Yes; I did not think they were worth it.

In your profession the words "cannot afford" mean "will not pay"?—You must construe that as you like.

"Meaning thereby that the plaintiff had cheated and fraudulently deprived him of the said sum of £40, and that the plaintiff had made certain false statements with regard to the payment of the said certain sums of money." It would not mean that, would it? Do you think it ever did mean that? Of course you are complaining of it.—The words in his printed letter must be read and construed by strangers and not by me.

By the Jury, no doubt. Did you yourself complain of this? Do you think he ever intended to charge you with fraudulent cheating?—Certainly he did.

You think so?—Yes.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: When?—By that letter.

Did you know that the war had nearly ruined him, or rather—that it is a loose way of putting it—that he had suffered by the war?—I think I saw in London a photograph of M. Gounod's house after the fire. The photograph showed that his house had suffered—that it had been burnt by the fire during the war.

Directly, or indirectly, you knew that M. Gounod had suffered by the war?—I saw the photograph of his house.

Where was the house?—I cannot say.

Is it in Paris?—In Paris.

You say here that the defendant stated that you wished to mulct him of half the sum of £240. You never did attribute to him any ill-feeling towards you, or any anxiety to get more money out of you than was natural?—He wanted to get as much as he could, I suppose.

Yes. As you wished to get your music as cheap as you could?—I suppose that is it.

To buy in the cheapest and sell in the dearest market. That is so in music publishing as well as elsewhere?—Certainly.

Did you ever really on reading that article believe that he had attributed to you dishonest conduct?—Yes.

You really did?—Yes.

I will ask you as to the very last paragraph in your declaration; what injury has this libel of M. Gounod's done you?—It is impossible to tell that.

Do you think it has hurt you one sixpence?—I do not think it would with persons who know me, but it might with foreign composers who were intending to come to me.

But you cannot lay your finger on one item of injury that you have sustained in consequence of that libel?—I cannot point out any particular one, but I do not know how many it may be.

I do not know but that I may be injured by appearing in this case?—I do not think you will.

Was this piece of paper written in your presence (handing same to the witness)?—No.

Was it shown to you?—No.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Whose writing is it?—M. Gounod's.

Re-examined by Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE.

Of course nobody has been and told you that he has not come to your establishment in consequence of this article?—No.

But, however, I will call your attention to this article, which I will take the liberty of reading over to you. What I want to call your attention to is this, "Before this he had mulcted me twice in £40, on two different sums of £200, to which I had with my accustomed indifference submitted." Was there ever any agreement of any kind whatever by which you were to pay £80 more than you ultimately paid, either in gross or in the two sums of £40 each?—The only money in dispute, I must say, please, was on the songs.

If you had waited, that was the very question I was going to put. Was there, after the agreement had been entered into, any question ever raised as to the amount to be paid except upon the songs?—No.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Was that as to the whole transaction you had with him from first to last?—Yes, my Lord.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Although you do not understand French, I suppose you do understand English. What is your notion of the term "mulcted"?—It seems to me to mean to cheat or to swindle.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: That is for the jury to say.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: There are one or two matters which I am sorry have been gone into. You have been shown this song, and my Lord has read the one supplied by Mr. Palgrave. Now, in addition to words when they are set to music, is there any consideration beyond the actual words with reference to the mode in which they work with the music?—Yes.

What is it?—I do not understand it, but there is what they call accent.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: We all know that, I think. Every jurymen would know that if a composer had the tune of the Old Hundredth Psalm given to him it would be no use to send him a piece of poetry written in the metre of the One Hundred and Forty-Eighth Psalm.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: You see that the original being in Spanish, the words have not only to be written to the music, but they have to be fitted to the metre (To the witness.) Now I believe Mr. Hullah has seen both of these?—Yes.

In dealing with them have you acted upon Mr. Hullah's advice?—No; Mr. Barnby's.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Is Mr. Barnby a composer himself?—Yes.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Will you be good enough to look at that (handing a piece of paper to the witness) and tell me whether you wrote that memorandum at the time you made the arrangement as to the song?—This was made in M. Gounod's own lodgings.

It was made in his presence, was it?—It was made in his presence.

And at the time of this transaction?—Yes.

And are those your entries?—Yes.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: When?

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: At the time of the arrangement for the purchase?—At the time of the contract.

Are you sure you wrote it down at the time?—Yes.

Then there were two items of £40 each not in dispute?—The tunes and anthems were not in dispute.

Then there was a duet; that was £20?—£20. That was the sum to be paid for each song.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: On what occasion was that?

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: That was on the occasion of the contract for the "Siesta."

Mr. Justice DENMAN: There is no question on that.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Yes there is, my Lord. The next is "royalty ditto, 4d.," and then "royalty on songs 6d." Now do you understand that to be the alternative?—Yes.

And this is the memorandum that you have upon the subject; but I understand you to say that as far as your own impression goes there was no direct undertaking on his part to accept the 6d. That is your impression. Who is the gentlemen that was with you at the time?—Mr. Barnby.

You remember perfectly well that the 6d. was spoken of as an alternative, but you are not aware that he understood it as being agreed to?—No; I thought I agreed to the £20.

At the time that you purchased this duet, you purchased it, I suppose, upon the reputation of M. Gounod?—Yes.

The song at that time had not been composed, or, at all events, you had never seen it?—I think there was nothing composed at that time—there was only the duet.

Mr. J. BARNBY, sworn. Examined by Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE.

Are you upon the staff of the plaintiff as musical adviser?—I am.

How long have you been so?—I should think as long as ten years.

In January, 1871, do you remember any meetings at which you were present with M. Gounod and the plaintiff?—I do.

When a discussion took place about the price to be given for certain songs?—I do.

Will you just give your recollection of the transaction?—My recollection was that the two sums already named were offered by M. Gounod.

What two sums?—The sum of £20 down and 4d. per copy royalty, and no sum down with 6d. per copy royalty.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: What was done about that? You say your recollection is that there was an alternative proposition of £20 down and 4d. per copy royalty, and no sum down and 6d. per copy royalty, was that what was arranged?—For a certain number of songs to be hereafter supplied to Messrs. Novello.

At whose option was the price to be?—Mr. Littleton's.

Do you mean that anything was said about that?—Certainly: the two things were made optional.

With him?—Yes; certainly.

With Mr. Littleton?—Quite so.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I suppose Mr. Littleton knew very well what your opinion was when the action was brought?—Perfectly: but we have never agreed upon that point.

He was not confident upon that point?—He was not confident upon that point.

Now, here are the words that were supplied by Dr. Dulcken—were they adapted to the music?—By Dr. Dulcken and myself.

I will not say anything about the beauty of the verses or anything of that kind, but were they adapted to the music?—I believe so.

Here are some verses supplied by Mr. Palgrave. Would it have been possible to have sung those words to that music?—I do not say that it would be impossible to sing these words to the music, but I do say that these words would not fit the music.

I am afraid we do not hear so much of the words at the Opera as we ought to do?—I am afraid not.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I do not see at all how this is to be settled except by setting Mrs. Weldon to sing Mr. Palgrave's words.

Mr. BRANDT: Mrs. Weldon will be quite ready to do that.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I neither introduced this matter, nor did I want to introduce it, but I am obliged to refer to it because my learned friends have brought it in, although it has nothing to do with the case. The question whether a man is to be called a rogue, cannot depend upon whether a lady can sing a song.

Mr. BRANDT: You introduced Mrs. Weldon's name first.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I beg your pardon; it is introduced in the libel itself.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: It is really a very small part of the case.

Cross-examined by Mr. BRANDT.

At all events, I will only ask you one question upon these words. You have some kind of parental feeling that you have spoken of?—Not the least.

But you adopted the words?—But I did not write them.

You adopted them?—I adapted them.

I suppose when Mr. Littleton had to pay this £23 costs to M. Gounod, he had a legal adviser? You have told us there was a doubt about his liability?—I suppose he had.

You have said you did not know whether he was bound to pay it, but it was advisable to pay it?—No; I don't think I said so.

But at all events, he did pay it?—I believe so. I have no personal knowledge of the fact.

I want to know about these compositions for which Mr. Littleton was to pay £20 each song and the royalty? You said that it was with reference to future songs to be written, an uncertain number of songs?—Yes.

Was it £20 each song and the royalty?—Yes, certainly.

You say you have been the musical adviser of Messrs. Novello, they used to be in Soho, did they not?—Yes, they did.

Let me know what a musical adviser is—is it like a reviser of novels and manuscripts?—I suppose as Mr. Littleton has no personal technical knowledge of music, and I have, I simply advise him on all points upon which I am competent to advise him.

As to whether it will pay?—As to whether it is good music or bad.

And what it is worth?—Quite so.

Is £20 and 4d. royalty for a song by M. Gounod, high or low as compared with the songs of other composers?—It is not very high nor yet very low.

Do you know Mrs. Weldon? have you heard her sing?—Never.

Do you know that M. Gounod lives in Tavistock House, in the house with Mr. and Mrs. Weldon?—I simply know it on account of general reputation.

And that they have a class of music there at which Mrs. Weldon presides, and which M. Gounod conducts?—I have heard so.

Now I will ask you whether there is not some little feeling of jealousy among the musical public that such an illegitimate style of business is carried on?—I should like to assure the Court that so far from having the least jealousy of M. Gounod, I hold him in the highest affection, both personal and musical.

I ask you as to the profession—not yourself personally—but you know M. Gounod very well?—I do.

Do you think he would do or say anything maliciously?—I am afraid I do not know him sufficiently to say that.

But from what you do know, do you know anything in his disposition which would lead him to wish to injure anybody?—No, certainly not.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: That will be the case for the plaintiff. I can only say that I am ready at the present moment to accept a withdrawal of the libel.

Counsel having consulted with their clients,
Mr. BRANDT said: Gentlemen of the Jury. In the absence of my friend Mr. Digby Seymour, I have a somewhat difficult and onerous duty placed upon me. Although I cannot call myself a young junior, I am a junior, and I am not in the position of silk gown. I cannot speak with the authority of my friend Mr. Digby Seymour, neither can I follow out what passed in his mind during the conduct of this case, but the best thing I can do in this matter, and the best thing for my client, I will do, I will commence by telling you precisely what just passed here. I said to M. Gounod, cannot there be some arrangement made, and he said, "but I am in my right." That is what he feels, and he expresses himself as a foreigner would do. He thinks he is in his right, and he says he will go into the witness-box and tell you his story, and that is what he must do. But previously to that you must listen, if you please, to a few words from me upon this declaration. When an action is brought, first of all a man is served with a writ; then there is an opportunity of paying; then what is called a declaration is served—that is to explain to the man about to be sued what the charge against him is; it is like an indictment in criminal matters. It is to explain what you have to answer. Just bear with me whilst I read to you a few passages in this declaration because there are three points, as I apprehend, in this case. First, and this is for you (I am under the correction of his Lordship), libel or no libel? Is this a libel as it is "intended," as we call it, in the declaration? Has the plaintiff been libelled? Has the defendant been guilty of libelling him? that is the question for you; and the first point that I shall put to you very confidently is this, namely, that he has not. That is under my first plea of not guilty. When you have considered the question of libel or no libel, you must in a great measure—and you cannot divest yourselves of the surrounding circumstances—consider whether the one man was likely to libel the other—whether he was disposed, and whether there was any bitter feeling, I shall show you that there was nothing of the kind. M. Gounod is as good and kind a Christian as ever lived, and is willing to go on in the world in peace and quietness with everybody. He is a harmless man, but he is a very talented man; and he has raised a furore in this country since the composition of that Opera Faust et Marguerite, and he has gained great celebrity; and, of course, like all other prominent men, there has been a good deal of envy towards him, at all events, in the world of musicians. Mr. and Mrs. Weldon are persons of some property, living in Charles Dickens's old house, Tavistock House, Tavistock Square. Mrs. Weldon is half an amateur and half a professional. She is an amateur, as she sings at concerts; and she is a professional, as she takes money and gives it to hospitals. I shall call her before you, as she does not put money into her pocket; she is partly an amateur, and partly a professional. M. Gounod, whilst living there, fancied himself not properly and well treated by the musical world, and some articles appeared upon the subject in the paper over which he has command. We admit that, if it be a libel, he published it, and is answerable for it. We have not put them to the trouble of proving that. In this paper called the Choir, he thought he would say what he had to say upon the conduct of Mr. Littleton with reference to this "Siesta." Now this music, we have heard, he composed, and he was rather hurt when those nonsensical words were sent to him. It got his spirit up, and he was very cross about it being supposed that he would allow such beautiful music as that "Siesta" to be wedded to such nonsensical words.

I will not inflict long readings upon you, but M. Gounod says, "I am in my right." He wrote this letter, and he says I had a right to write that letter. But Mr. Littleton has gone further; he has said you wrote this letter, and your letter meant this, that, and the other which makes it a libel. Says M. Gounod, "I meant nothing of the kind, I never meant it to be a libel, it was not a libel, it will not bear the construction of a libel, and if you chose to inuendo it, it is you yourself who libel yourself—you may put the cap on, and if it fits, well and good." Mr. Littleton says you said so and so about me. "So I did," says M. Gounod, "but I meant nothing wrong." Mr. Littleton says "but you did mean wrong;" thereupon he tells you in his declaration what was meant, having started with the story about the "Siesta;" he says, "I leave the public to judge whether Mr. and Mrs. Weldon were right, when they told me the words were very ugly and nonsensical." Mr. Littleton puts his own construction on those words, and what do you think he says was the meaning of those words? actually "meaning thereby that the plaintiff, as such publisher as aforesaid, was incompetent properly to manage his business, and was wanting in the qualifications necessary for duly and successfully carrying on the same." Now does it mean that? It is only a portion I admit, because Mr. and Mrs. Weldon told him that these words were ugly and nonsensical. Mr. Littleton says, "You said I am not fit to manage my business." Mr. Littleton must be very far sighted, and very thin skinned to bring an action against poor M. Gounod. Then comes the other, that "he had been sued." That is true—he had sued Mr. Littleton. Why did not Mr. Littleton pay him at first? M. Gounod had to go to law with Mr. Littleton; he had to consult an attorney, and he brought an action.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Mr. Littleton, I think, was not asked the question whether he said they were beautiful, or would say so—he had better be asked that.

(Mr. LITTLETON recalled.)

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Did you say that those words were beautiful?—I have no recollection of saying so.

You may have said so?—I may have said so.

Mr. BRANDT: I am very much obliged to your Lordship for that—he may have said it, and we will take it that he did say they were very beautiful. Then, says M. Gounod, he is rather vexed at this, that music which is admittedly beautiful should be wedded to these words "I leave the public to judge whether Mr. and Mrs. Weldon were right when they told me that these words were very ugly, and very nonsensical." Mr. Littleton said they were beautiful. Now is it not comic—does it not shew how thin-skinned Mr. Littleton is—Mr. Littleton ought to be ashamed of himself as the successor of the great firm of Novello, of Soho Street? It shows the greatest weakness that a man could possibly be guilty of; and saying "meaning thereby that the plaintiff as such publisher as aforesaid was incompetent properly to manage his said business." Now I ask you did he mean that? He leaves it "to the public to judge whether Mr. and Mrs. Weldon were right in saying the words were very ugly and nonsensical." Mr. Littleton said they were "beautiful." Did that mean that Mr. Littleton was unfit to conduct his business. Look as reasonable men at the meaning of words in the English language—a man cannot make a libel out of innocent words by saying "You meant this, that and the other"—I say if the cap fits let Mr. Littleton put it on, but do not say—"You made a cap which fitted me, and you must put it on." We say the cap was not for you, but you yourself have stretched it or contracted it, and now you have made it fit. Now, gentlemen, I have done with that, and I will say no more about it. It is clear that Mr. Littleton was sued—Why was he sued? Why did he not pay? It is clear he had to pay the costs. What did he pay that £23 for? the sum was a small one. Then says Mr. Littleton, "I, not having paid you your money that you were entitled to, the money that I, Littleton, owed to you, Gounod," knowing as Mr. Littleton did that poor M. Gounod had had his house burned in Paris, and that he was half-starving—

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Really, Mr. Brandt, you should not let your imagination carry you to such an extent.

Mr. BRANDT: Mr. Ballantine's income is very different from that of a poor musical composer. Well, at any rate, Mr. Littleton knew that he was in some distress—that is to say, that he was suffering from the losses he had sustained—I withdraw what I said about starving. This action is brought for the money, and then he complains that M. Gounod has said, that "I (meaning the defendant) had with my accustomed indifference submitted; Mr. Littleton (meaning the plaintiff) told me, (meaning the defendant) that he could not afford to pay me the sums first agreed upon, which statement I (meaning the defendant) at first believed." "Before this, he (meaning the plaintiff) had mulcted me (meaning the defendant) twice of £40 on two different sums of £200, to which I (meaning the defendant) had with my accustomed indifference submitted." Here, he has put on his own cap on his head instead of simply meaning that M. Gounod had simply recovered his judgment, and got his money, and got his costs besides, which is the straightforward meaning, he says, "meaning thereby that the plaintiff had cheated and fraudulently deprived the defendant of the said sum of £40, and that he, the plaintiff, had made certain false statements with regard to the payment of the said sums of money." Gentlemen, how can it bear that construction, libel, or no libel? Is that a libel? and if it will not bear that construction it is no libel. M. Gounod is not answerable for that construction. The value of words depends upon what they mean, and what we, the world, think they mean, and in the present instance, what twelve jurymen think they mean. But Mr. Littleton says the meaning of these words was, "the plaintiff had cheated and fraudulently deprived the defendant of his money." Do they mean that? They really mean that M. Gounod had to sue for the money. He used the word mulcted. I will tell you how that word came in. The word mulct comes from mulgeo, to milk, and the word mulct is a very innocent word indeed. M. Gounod wrote it in French and Mrs. Weldon translated it, and she rendered the word privé into mulct. I do not know where she got it from, unless it was from a Dictionary. Now it meant no more than to extract milk. M. Gounod extracted money from Mr. Littleton, but why did he not pay that before £23 costs were incurred. Is that fair comment or not, and if it is not, this gentleman must suffer, and he must pay, there is no doubt about that; but I would have you, before you arrive at your verdict, carefully consider how far the liberty of speech may be allowed to prevail in this country, and how far a man like Mr. Littleton, who is evidently burning under some fancied injury—very probably this mulcting—should be allowed to put his own construction upon that kind of sentence, and then come up to a jury, and say, "Give me damages."

Mr. Justice DENMAN: May I tell you what I think are the worst words in the libel: "I must not submit to be done again."

Mr. BRANDT: Meaning thereby that the plaintiff had cheated and deprived the defendant, by tricks and dishonourable means, of certain sums lawfully due. I do not know what the word was in French. I daresay Mrs. Weldon will tell us it was an innocent word; but I will not shirk the case. Mr. Littleton was asked by me, "What damage have you received?" and he said, "I really cannot say." Have you received one farthing damage? And I assume now this will be another question for you, because it is libel or no libel, truth or no truth; and then, if you think it is a libel and not truth, comes the question of damages. I am not allowed to tell you at what he lays his damages, but it is a large sum, and he comes to you in that witness-box and he says to you, "I received no damage at all."

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: He does not say that.

Mr. BRANDT: He says, "I cannot tell you what damage I received. I may have suffered from a problematical kind of loss, namely, the absence of the crowd of foreign composers which might happen during this season to come to my doors." Now, is that gentleman to come here and say, "I ask you for damages, and I cannot tell you what I have suffered." Now I have done with that; let us come to what appears to me to be very much more important. I think five minutes more will see me to the end of this. I have just come to one point which I think is a very serious one indeed. I asked the last witness, who said he held M. Gounod in high estimation—I think he used the words admired and loved him—is he such a man as would be likely to act maliciously or conduct himself in a spiteful way to a man, and in the end he said, "certainly not, I do not think so." Now, the way the matter was done was precisely this: Mrs. Weldon took this letter down and translated it, and when a lady gets translating French into English there is sometimes a sting in the matter, and you can see there is. There is this amateur lady who, perhaps, to some extent, may have excited jealousy and ill feeling in the musical world by taking the bread out of the mouths of the professionals. Let me end what I have to say—libel or no libel—truth or no truth—damages, if you think that these words are libellous and will bear the construction laid upon them, I think should be nothing at all. You have heard that there were a good many attempts to settle the matter. M. Gounod insists upon carrying it on. It is a pity they could not end the case; but he wished to go into the witness-box because he says, I am in the right; I will not give in; I will tell the Jury my story. If, after having heard his story, you think he ought to pay damages, he must pay damages. I do beg you to consider these points, and, secondly, to forgive me for occupying your time so long in the absence of my friend Mr. Seymour.

Mr. CHARLES GOUNOD, sworn. Examined by Mr. DIGBY SEYMOUR. You are the defendant in this case?—Yes.

Are you by profession a musical composer?—I think I am.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I know you are.

Mr. SEYMOUR: We all know, but we must get it on his Lordship's notes.—Not every one agrees with that.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Yes, we all agree.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Did you enter into a contract to write a piece in 1871, for Mr. Littleton—for Novello and Co.?—Which pieces.

I am going to ask you, "La Marguerite"?—Yes.

And another piece?—Yes; three songs and a fourth piece entitled "Saltarello."—These first four pieces I sold to Mr. Littleton.

For how much?—For £200 the four.

Did you afterwards agree to sell him two pieces, the "De Profundis" and the "O Salutaris Hostia"?—Yes; those two pieces were the object of a second bargain, and there was another piece "Ave Verum" dedicated to Mr. Leslie, which was not sold nor included in the bargain, but which was given.

You made him a present of it?—Yes; I gave it to him.

You say you had another bargain with him—you made him a present of a piece called "Ave Verum," and did you agree to sell him two other pieces, the "De Profundis," &c.?—Yes.

What were you to get for those two?—£200.

Did you also compose a piece that you entitled "Gallia"?—Yes.

What price were you to get for "Gallia"?—£200 equally.

Was that the agreed price between you?—Verbally as well as for the preceding bargain verbally agreed.

You verbally agreed that you were to get the same price as you got for the previous pieces?—I did not mean if it was at the same price or not, but I know that our verbal agreement about those two cases has been the same.

Now after you agreed with him for the price that you were to receive for those three pieces, making £400 altogether, did he speak to you about reducing the price?—Yes, some weeks afterwards.

What did he ask you?—He said to me that he had reflected—I cannot think of the word.

Reflected will do—reconsidered.—Reconsidered that the £400 for the two bargains seemed too much, and he asked me to reduce them—each of them £40, which was instead of £200 each—£160 for each, it was.

Taking £40 off each, the £400 would be reduced to £320?—Off each previously agreed sums, but only verbally; no contract was written?—

You agreed then to take £40 off £200?—I consented.

And you took £320 instead of £400?—Yes.

Are those the two £40's referred to when you speak of being mulcted twice of £40?—I alluded to those circumstances.

You wrote in French I believe, and left the translation to Mrs. Weldon?—Yes.

What was the French expression you used?

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Let us see it, please.

Mr. SEYMOUR: You would have it.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Not the French letter, we will see that. Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I think he is entitled to be tried by what he actually wrote, and not what was actually published.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: He signed his own name to the letter.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Not to the English one?

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Yes.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Of course I do not dispute his responsibility for the letter.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: It does follow that he must be judged by the letter in English, and by what Englishmen would understand by it. (To the witness.) You explained that the word mulct refers to those two sums of £40?—Yes. I meant that Mr. Littleton came back on our verbal agreement, that is what I meant; and as no contract was written, I consented to the diminution of price.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Did you, after the contract for the "Gallia," enter into an agreement with Mr. Littleton to write some other pieces for him, "La Siesta," and so on?—After the "Gallia."

Yes?—Yes, I did.

What did he agree to pay you for each of those pieces?—For each of those songs?

Yes; were you to receive £20 in cash and a royalty?

Mr. Justice DENMAN: My brother Ballantine went so far as to say he would drop it, and not insist upon the innuendo that be imputed to him, that he did not understand his business.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Yes: I do not care about that a bit. I have heard the same thing said of several of my friends around me.

Mr. SEYMOUR: This innuendo with regard to the taste of the publisher—

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Leave it.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: The stress of the case really is in those words, "Must not submit to be done again."

Mr. SEYMOUR: Those words must be taken with reference to what there is before.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Yes, but then there is an allegation as to the £40.

Mr. SEYMOUR: I cannot ask him what his meaning was, but I do not think my learned friend will object to this question. (To the witness.) Allow me to ask, had you any idea of imputing fraud to Mr. Littleton—did you mean to tell him he was a rogue?

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: That is another question. We do not care so much what he intended, as what appears upon the face of the publication.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Did you mean to say that he cheated you?—I did not mean to say anything injurious.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I must object. I mean to say we must try this case like others, and I think I have not shown any disposition to be hard.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I am not quite sure about the innuendo—whether it is not admissible. I think it is an admissible question. Have you any authority, Mr. Murphy?

Mr. MURPHY: I should have thought the question was for the Jury.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Of course if Mr. Seymour asks the question, you will ask what he did.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I must seriously object to it.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: He has adopted the words and he is responsible for them, and he is entitled to the most favourable construction that they are capable of. It is for the jury to say, of course, what he really meant and what the words meant. I do not lay that down as law, but only as a line that juries might adopt. They will not visit a man with an innuendo which is more than they feel the words must reasonably intend.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I am not going into innuendoes, I am only going into common sense. I think I have already gone farther than I ought to have gone in this matter, and I cannot allow further irregularities.

Mr. SEYMOUR: I do not wish to keep this matter up further than is avoidable. I may ask whether he intended to impute that the plaintiff cheated.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: That is a question for the Jury. He has already said he did not; before the objection came I did not take it down.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Then, the way in which I can put it occurs to me to be this —.—You have got the original print.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: You can tell me whether you wrote it. The words "done again" are put as a quotation from something else that Mr. Weldon had said.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: You see they are not only between inverted commas, but they are in italics.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Yes, my Lord, they are Mr. Weldon's words. "Had it not been for Mr. Weldon's advice, I should certainly have submitted again. But he told me what the Sunday Times tells me, that there are Law Courts, that I was fairly entitled to the money, that the proofs were on my side, and that I must not submit to be 'done again.' So to law I went." And the words "done again" are put in italics and as a quotation. Then, when I asked him whether he understood that I proposed to ask this question whether he, when he repeated the words of Weldon intended that "done again" meant cheating.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: There is no proof at present that those words, "done again," were Weldon's words.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I must really ask that the case may be conducted regularly. This is a matter which my learned friend, Mr. Seymour, can discuss with the Jury.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: But this point is really a subsequent one altogether to the one we were discussing just now. Here are words in a libel in inverted commas and in italics. I think counsel has a right to ask him were those your own words or somebody else's; if so, whose words were they?

Mr. SEYMOUR: As bearing upon malice?

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Is there a single case? If my learned friend asks that question, I shall ask you to take it under protest.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Yes, if you ask the question, you take it at your peril. It may go to the question of malice, or it may go some other way.

Mr. SEYMOUR: (To the witness.) Now will you first take this (handing the same to the witness); first look at the words "done again," read the rest of the passage on the bottom leaf. Were the words "done again" used by Mr. Weldon to you or by anyone belonging to you?

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: How is it possible that such a question can be asked?

Mr. Justice DENMAN: It is at Mr. Seymour's peril.

Mr. SEYMOUR: My Lord, I will take all the consequences and ask all the questions. I think they are admissible in the way I put them. I will ask him why the words "done again" appear in inverted commas?—Does it mean what I intended to express?

You see the words "done again"?—They were put as a quotation.

Mr. SEYMOUR: From whom were they quoted. They are put as a quotation?—I do not know, this is an English translation.

Whose words are they?—I do not remember the French word used in my letter, but I remember the sense of the words what they meant. Shall I say what I meant?

Mr. Justice DENMAN: No, answer the questions of your counsel.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Attend to me if you please. Had you a conversation with Mr. Littleton?

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I think you must establish the fact, if it be a fact, about the words.

Mr. SEYMOUR: The words "done again"—are they a quotation of your words, or somebody else's words?—Not my words.

Whose words are they?—Mr. Weldon's words.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: He is responsible for them if he chooses to adopt other person's words, making them into a quotation for the purpose. I don't know that it does not become then rather stronger.

Mr. SEYMOUR: Of course they have to be taken with reference to the context.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I wish to tell the jury, that I think it makes no difference, or, if any, that it makes it rather stronger from being in inverted commas and underscored.

Mr. SEYMOUR: I should have liked to have called the attention of the Court to the words of the song. I thought Mr. Palgrave's song was very pretty.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I have read both.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: They may be pretty, but they would not do for the music.

Cross-examined by Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE.

Kindly answer me this question. You remember the action you brought against Mr. Littleton?—When, sir, please?

You only brought one, you know?—About the songs?

Yes. You remember it was all settled in 1872. That all was settled. In January, 1872, do you remember that that was the fact?—I could not remember the exact date.

No, but it was about that time?—I think so.

What I want to ask is, why, after everything had been settled, and 11 or 12 months had elapsed should you dig them all up again, and write about them in the newspapers?—Because I have been the object of so many, great many attacks in the newspapers. I consider with those attacks, concurred with the most appreciable diminution of my royalties and benefits and my copyrights. I answered to all the attacks of which I was the object in the newspapers, merely quoting the facts of my musical life since I have been in London.

Then what I understand, is that as the newspapers had the impertinence to criticise you and to criticise those who performed with you, you thought it right to write this letter about Mr. Littleton and your transactions?—No. I know that I am a public man.

Why did you drag in Mr. Littleton on an affair that was eleven months old?—All came because I observed that in a quotation which has been made on my musical farmers, the only name of Mr. Littleton was omitted, and I asked why it is omitted? Whence can all this sudden change in my musical position in London come? Please you remark that until the time my quarrel with Mr. Littleton came, every song of mine brought to me about £40 or £50 every six months, and since that time it has failed suddenly at £1 and 13s. That Mr. Littleton sold me for one celeste.

What you mean to say, and what you meant to convey, is that Mr. Littleton had been a party to a conspiracy against you. Is that what you meant?—No. I was only told by persons who went to Mr. Littleton.

Did you mean, when you wrote this letter in conjunction with Mr. Weldon, to insinuate that Mr. Littleton was party to a conspiracy against you?—I did not mean to insinuate anything. I only quoted facts.

What did you mention Mr. Littleton's name for the purpose of conveying?—Because his name was omitted in the list of my preceding musical farmers.

That is to say, you count the public generally—two or three names were included in the Sunday Times, and then you included Mr. Littleton in the accusation you made.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I do not think he quite meant that.

Was the omission of Mr. Littleton's name in the list of publishers with whom you had come into conflict in that way that made you suspect they had not been doing you justice?—I daresay that my dealings with Mr. Littleton until then made me most suspicious about his feelings referring to me. I think that the last instance of my musical lessons with him are rather a proof and a justification of my apprehensions towards him.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: And that is what you meant to convey. You meant to convey that he was a party who sent parties to the theatre to hiss Mrs. Weldon. You were told he did?—Yes.

I was myself at Brighton, and I heard from witnesses that people—

Mr. Justice DENMAN: We really ought not to go into anything of this.

The WITNESS: That was what I heard. It made me rather suspicious, and I apprehended his disposition.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: We cannot try all your suspicions.

Re-examined by Mr. SEYMOUR.

There is only one question. You refer to the names being omitted. You say the names of Messrs. Novello were omitted from the list of your musical traders?—Yes. I did not know why.

The passage is—"We have only to remind the public that M. Gounod's 'former traders' were Messrs. Cramer and Co., Messrs. Chappell and Co., and Messrs. Boosey and Co." The others are left out. Had you had more transactions with Messrs. Novello and Co. than you had with other houses?—I do not understand the question.

Did you sell more pieces of music to Novello and Co. than you did to the other houses?—Yes; much more. In fact, until the moment of quarrelling with Mr. Littleton he was my only publisher.

Mrs. GEORGINA WELDON SWORN, examined by Mr. BRANDT. I believe that you and your husband live in Tavistock House, Tavistock Square?—Yes.

And that M. Gounod lives with you and your husband?—Yes.

I believe that you are very musical. You are an amateur—you sing yourself?—Yes.

You have been very anxious to give evidence upon this matter. Can you tell us anything about it?—I can tell a great deal more about it than Mr. Ballantine wants to hear.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I do not see the end of the answer to that question.

Mr. BRANDT: Were you present when M. Gounod entered into an agreement with Messrs. Novello for the purchase?—I was.

Have you heard his account of what the agreement was?—Whose account?

About the £40.—Very well.

I believe he had to sue him.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: The whole thing has been proved.—No, it has not. It has been muddled from beginning to end. Now let me speak.

Mr. BRANDT: One more question. Are you aware that there was a deduction?—Yes, I know everything.

You know the article that has been complained of?—I do.

Who wrote that article in English?—The Sunday Times or the Choir.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: Did you see it in writing?—That letter? I wrote it, of course. I tell you you cannot manage it. Let me tell you all about it. You see the lawyers do not understand these musical matters.

Mr. BRANDT: Just answer my question as shortly as possible. How came you to write that letter?—I wrote it because M. Gounod and I and Mr. Weldon said it was a great shame they went on so.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: I must ask your Lordship to decide that this is not evidence.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: I do.

Mr. BRANDT: My friend presses me and takes advantage of my youth. Can you give us any explanation?—It is what my husband always said. I cannot show you the letter. He said, "You jolly old humbug, I won't be done again." That is what he proposed to send to Mr. Littleton.

You know M. Gounod reduced his account?

Mr. Justice DENMAN: That is all proved.

The WITNESS: Why do you not ask me more questions?

Mr. SEYMOUR: I will ask you this question. Will you have the very great kindness to step out of the box?

Mr. SEYMOUR: That is our case, my Lord.

I have only a few words to say to you. You will now see that it is not always roses with us at the bar, and even the fairest sometimes causes the most trouble. Now, M. Gounod considers that he has a clear justification, morally and honourably, for what he has done. He is a gentleman whose artistical powers and musical ability are known to all of us. Mrs. Weldon has the worship and respect of a pupil for him—she is a great admirer of his compositions—she has frequently sung before admiring audiences, and it puzzles her and no doubt puzzles him to understand ordinary rules of English Courts of Justice, and you cannot enter into the depth of feeling which they have, I have done my best to explain the matter to her. I will now ask you to consider—having had the opportunity of hearing the evidence, and having had the words read, and the circumstances laid before you—at what result you should arrive. There will be two questions for you to consider; I will be very short now, the facts have come out. If before the facts had been proved I could have saved this by a "Nunc Dimittis," to use an expression of the Sunday Times, I should have been most happy to do so, so as to avoid a dispute; but now the facts are here, and to these you must apply your minds. The law imposes upon you, since Mr. Cox's Act, a constitutional duty of saying is a certain written matter a libel. I take it from what my Lord has said that these are words which will bear the construction of being libellous, but that if those words, taken in reference to their context, are not capable of innuendo, and do not necessarily impute that which imputes dishonesty or that which lowers and degrades the person referred to in the eyes and respect of those who trust him—if they are not capable of that, then it will be your duty to say that they are not a libel, because really it would be an endless and a wearying source of constant anxiety if for anything a man wrote an action for libel could be at once entertained, and a solemn enquiry before a Court of Justice entered upon. Here is a letter written under peculiar circumstances, and to a certain extent I should have thought there was a certain amount of privilege attaching to it on the part of the writer: for instance, about hissing on the public stage. If he heard it, and he writes and announces it and says, "I have heard it," is a jury to denounce that as libellous? The law will protect him; that is not what is declared on as being the libel here. What they complain of is this: They say, "here is one passage which attacks your taste as a musical publisher"—that is given up. I have not to go into a comparison of composition of music and poetry—that part of the libel is gone. What remains is this. There are two passages here of which they complain. One is this expression: "Before this he had mulcted me twice of £40 on two different occasions. Now, gentlemen, let us see that justice is done to this Frenchman. He is a very eminent man; there is not one of us present who has not been charmed by some of his beautiful compositions. We have either heard his Masses or his Oratorios, or his sweet Sonatas. We know many of his musical compositions, and he has had a very high tribute paid to him to-day. The circumstances under which he is brought before the public are calculated to irritate him. In the first place, he has a statement made reflecting upon this lady, and he writes a letter to the Choir, which is not like writing a letter to a paper with a world-wide circulation such as some of our daily papers have. It is a paper simply circulating in the musical world. Now, gentlemen, I do not think this is an idle observation. I say it is a point which goes to the bona fides of my client, and which ought to affect your mind by-and-by in whatever view you take of this case. He has a complaint to make of something which appeared in the Sunday Times. He does not write to the Sunday Times, but he writes this little private circular, if I may so call it, making it a professional grievance, and inserting it in a paper where it will come only to professional ears and eyes; he is, therefore, not making an imputation to the world at large, but gives, through the channel of this paper his explanation of that which was agitating or exciting attention in the musical world. Observe the circumstances in which he writes. A letter is written by him, which appears in the Choir, in answer to the article in the Sunday Times. Then follows a very remarkable article upon him, and I must say it strikes me that if M. Gounod chose to do what would have been in point of fact very foolish, but what would have been in point of law justifiable, he might have applied the same thing to that letter which appeared in the Sunday Times. Here is the passage: "Is M. Gounod conscious that his career in England has failed. If so, why not enquire carefully into causes ere it be too late; and so it goes on—"M. Gounod stands on the very verge of a catastrophe," and then it suggests that he might receive a "Nunc Dimittis" in a different sense to that in which Simeon uttered the words. Now the meaning of that passage was calculated greatly to irritate him, and, smarting under this passage, he reads it through, and what have we got here? "We have only to remind the public that M. Gounod's 'former traders' were Messrs. Cramer and Co., Messrs. Chappell and Co., and Messrs. Boosey and Co., in order to bring home all the gravity of this accusation." What does he say? He knows there must be musical critics, whether Mr. Barnby or any other gentleman may have floated across his mind at the time, it was obvious to his mind from the omission of his principal patron there was some personality intended. Here is the name of the principal house that the defendant dealt with is exclusively omitted; the notorious, or rather, the notable name of Novello, for whom he had written so many things, and for whom he had written so many articles, is omitted entirely. Then he writes a letter beginning by referring to this controversy. It is part of a conversation. It is part of a correspondence. And if you think this is written by him to explain his position and to account for his strong feeling, and what he wrote upon a former occasion, then, gentlemen, there will be no malice whatever in it, and you would be rather astute to discover any other interpretation for this language, not imputing fraud, but explaining that he wrote that which did not impute fraud to Mr. Littleton, but meant to explain the position in which he was then placed.

Then he writes this—"The Sunday Times has reminded the public that my former traders were Messrs. Cramer and Co., Messrs. Chappell and Co., and Messrs. Boosey and Co. I would remind the public that the name of one firm, my principal former trader, is conspicuous by its absence; and doubtless, again, the Sunday Times has reasons best known to itself for suppressing his name. It was, however, a well known and powerful house, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co. Let me, since I feel so inclined, acquaint the public with the primary reasons for my unpopularity, and that of my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon, among the trade and critics. Mr. Littleton, manager of the firm of Novello, had bought a Spanish duet of me, entitled 'La Siesta,' to which English words were to be added. The proofs of this duet were sent to me with the words appended at the bottom of this letter attached to them. I leave the public to judge whether Mr. and Mrs. Weldon were right when they told me that the words were very ugly and nonsensical. Mr. Littleton said they were beautiful. I therefore asked several literary men their opinion, which coincided with that of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon. I therefore told Mr. Littleton I would ask Mr. F. Turner Palgrave to write some adaptation to the music, which was eventually approved by my friends. Mr. Littleton and Mr. Barnby, however, did not approve, and the duet with English words remains unpublished. I believe the law affords me no protection on this point; and that Mr. Littleton's bad taste precludes me from reaping any benefit from this composition, with impunity to himself. About a month after this little dispute, being on the eve of returning to France, I asked Mr. Littleton to settle his account with me. Before this he had mulcted me twice of £40 (on two different sums of £200), to which I had, with my accustomed indifference, submitted."

Now he is explaining how he has got unpopular and lost money, and got into the position in which he is. Is that his motive? If you are of opinion that he is only explaining and justifying himself, and was dragged into this correspondence by the Sunday Times dragging in the names of his publishers, then you will not endeavour to give an interpretation to these words, that this man actually compels his Counsel to allow him in the witness-box to protest against, and which to the last he vehemently protests that they were never intended to convey. Observe what he goes on to say, "Before this he had mulcted me twice of £40 on two different sums of £200, to which I had with my accustomed indifference submitted. Mr. Littleton told me he could not afford to pay the sums first agreed upon, which statement I believed. He knew the war had nearly ruined me, and that my house had been burnt down; I could not therefore believe he could have bargained with me under such circumstances." You have heard explained to-day as to the question of accuracy of memory, and I will not make any comment offensive to Mr. Littleton, but you will recollect that once or twice he showed us that his memory was not distinct upon what occurred. Pardon me if I ask you only to accept the direct evidence of M. Gounod, supported as it is by Mrs. Weldon. "Before this he had mulcted me twice of £40 (on two different sums of £200)." Now is that a charge of fraud, or is it an explanation of the position in which he was placed? He goes on to say, "the third time it was £40 he owed me, and this time he wished to mulct me of half that sum. Had it not been for Mr. Weldon's advice, I should certainly have submitted again." So far as this last affair goes, there is no doubt he did agree to pay him £20; there is no doubt that he wrote asking him to take £10, and he says, "I will not take £10," and then there was the writ, and under that the money was paid; the only question is, he goes on to say, "but he told me that the Sunday Times tells me, that there are Law Courts, that I was fairly entitled to the money, that the proofs were on my side and that I must not submit to be 'done again.' So to law I went, and with the exception of law expenses (about £23), to which I was put in consequence, I got my money." All I have got to say, and I think it will be put to you by my Lord, is, do you think, taking it with the context, that it is an explanation. Recollect, it is not charging a man with doing you or being done by him; it is not a general charge; there is an explanation; it refers to a specific transaction; it points to words so as to give them a distinct meaning. It refers to an action at law; to a disputed price; to a deduction. Is that what they charge here, that it imputes to him the words of this inuendo, "meaning thereby that he, the plaintiff, had cheated and deprived the defendant by tricks and dishonourable means of certain sums lawfully due and owing to him." Gentlemen, I venture to say you will pause before you accept that explanation. The words taken with reference to law, mean "that I was not to have my amount, which was lawfully due to me, reduced by one half, and so I went to law. If you think the words mean really, subtracted, deprived of, lessened to that amount, and do not mean cheating or trickery, and were not used in that sense, it is open to you to say that they are not capable of the inuendo put upon them, and if you take that view, the defendant will be entitled to your verdict. That is substantially the only libel left, the others are withdrawn. The question of a libel upon his character as a musical publisher is not pressed; it only remains now to say whether you think these words are capable of the inuendo put upon them. One word more. I have not wasted your time in this more than I could help. You have two questions before you. Is it a libel? If it be not a libel, then the defendant will be entitled to your verdict; but suppose you say that the inuendo reflects upon the plaintiff, I suppose you will feel it necessary to consider the question of damages. Then what damages were there? the man protests he never meant to impute fraud. He has explained the way in which the matter arose; he is dragged into the dispute; he is made himself the subject of libellous observations and taunting observations and ridicule in a public journal, and smarting under that, and feeling a sense of wrong, you must, gentlemen, put yourselves in the position of a high-minded foreigner—a man in a distinguished position, being doubly hurt at the suggestion of his professional career being probably on the wane, the attack also being made on a lady associated with him in singing some of his best compositions. All this comes upon him, and he is dragged in by this allusion to him in this very offensive article in the Sunday Times. Are you going to visit it upon the defendant as though he had done something malicious—as though he had been wishing to do an amount of damage to the plaintiff. I think all the elements out of which damages are generally composed, and upon which they are generally based, if you view the case calmly, are wanting. That being so, the plaintiff himself says "I suffered no damage," he has not lost one shilling, he has not lost a customer, by this article in the Choir; and therefore, the only ground upon which you could give damages would not be to compensate loss sustained, but either to vindicate him from some supposed charge which we protest he never made, or to punish him in the form of damages for the malice which he declares his breast is free from. Gentlemen, I have nothing more to say to help you in this case. I venture to submit to you these grounds upon which you shall give a verdict for the defendant; and if you find a verdict for the plaintiff, I venture with still more confidence to submit to you that it should be for a very small amount.

Mr. Serjeant BALLANTINE: May it please your Lordship, Gentlemen of the Jury, this case has taken a very considerable time, and it has involved a good many matters which I have almost regretted to see exposed in a Court of Justice. I regret, on my own part, that I seemed almost to lose sight that I was acting as a Counsel in a Court of Justice, desiring as I do on all occasions to conduct my professional business according to professional rule. I am not at all sorry to express regret that I rather went beyond what I ought. As far as I can understand this question now (and it is one that is presented to you, in my humble judgment, in a very fair aspect), my friend has had an opportunity of dealing with this matter as my friend knows very well how to do. An utterly unjustifiable libel has been published—a libel imputing that which is as serious an imputation as could very well be cast upon the character of a tradesman; it is an imputation cast by a man whose name is known to the public, and, therefore, that gives to the imputation a certain amount of weight. He is a foreigner, it is true, but his attention being called to the gravity of what has taken place, and of what he had done by those who were capable of informing him, he persists in the libel published. He has offered no apology or retraction; and now he places before you the question whether the plaintiff deserves those terms which he has applied to him, or whether there is any ground for them. If the plaintiff deserves those terms, upon that ground, and that only, the defendant is entitled to your verdict. If he does not deserve them, I think, I must ask you to give by your verdict such damages as will enable my client to say that there was not the slightest shadow of foundation for the imputation cast upon him. Some of the arguments I am obliged to dissent from. I could see my learned friend was weighted, and with what difficulties he had to contend. Under such circumstances I am able to sympathize with his position, a position which any one of us may be placed in having clients of the same description. My learned friend has not indulged in any unnecessary attack upon Mr. Littleton, but has made himself the mouthpiece, undoubtedly, of certain suggestions, and he has not in any way whatever withdrawn those suggestions which the libel undoubtedly contains. Now, first of all, what is it that is really my friend's proposition. There has been a good deal of eloquence, and my learned friend who calls himself youthful, and who is youthful in mind and youthful in appearance, although not in experience, which alone has given him anything like a claim to be called "not aged" but approaching to middle life. My learned friend was extremely energetic, and I listened to my learned friend, Mr. Digby Seymour, to see what was the point, and, as I understand, it is really brought to this: that if a London tradesman is libelled by a foreigner of distinction, he has no remedy in any English Court of Justice. That is really what it comes to. Let us see whether or not Mr. Littleton deserves what is imputed to him; and then I may call your attention to what, in my opinion, is imputed to him. My learned friend, by his quotations, has made the imputation more grave, because he has justified the course adopted. Mr. Littleton has had three transactions. With regard to the first, you heard his account—there is a difference of testimony with regard to the two £40. Mr. Littleton declaring that the bargain was made as ultimately paid. Considering the extremely fair way in which he gave his evidence upon another matter, namely £20 for the songs, being unwilling to adopt what one of the witnesses was so very confident of—that the option had been given to him to take it either at sixpence royalty, or a sum of money. It is for you to say whether there is any cause whatever to exhibit him in a Court of Justice, in any other light than as a respectable and fair tradesman. I ask you to come to this conclusion and to pronounce your verdict upon that foundation. I endeavoured, as far as I could, to settle this matter. As far as M. Gounod was concerned he certainly offered no apology. With regard to his eminent heart qualities no human being can entertain a doubt—there cannot be a greater misfortune than when a person gets the idea that somebody whom he chooses to patronise, is a star of the first magnitude, and the British public will not accept him—if he persists he must expect his income to diminish. Now as I said to you the lady, I never heard her, I am quite sure—whether she sings for charity or not, it is perfectly immaterial—she may be a nightingale or exactly the reverse—the public have not taken to her, and M. Gounod is exceedingly angry in consequence. I do not know that this case is much improved by its being perfectly apparent that these letters are a combination between him and this lady's husband—he knows English, the lady herself was extremely voluble, that distinguished her. I think that in a Court of Justice a perfectly quiet demeanour is what one would like to see in an English lady, and that although extreme vehemence may be extremely amusing, one would hardly like to see it exhibited upon many occasions; at all events she let out when my learned friend, in his insinuating manner (nobody can be so insinuating as my learned friend), asked her what it was "to be done," what that meant, and expecting that she would have given a perfectly innocent construction. "Oh" but she says, "we have often talked about the old humbug, we won't be done again." So we had it from her lips that the plaintiff was a humbug, and I think presently you will agree that the article goes a great deal further and "done" means "cheated again." Now I make these observations in no spirit of unkindness to any of these people. I believe in the long run, art is properly appreciated; nobody has been more properly appreciated than M. Gounod. There may be the envy of the writer, there may be some female assassin behind the scenes who wants to stab Mrs. Weldon in the cruellest way, and these parties may probably think so; but what has Mr. Littleton to do with that? We know very well the history of it. It was, I think, James the First, who, whenever he did anything naughty, had another boy flogged for it. Why should the honesty of Mr. Littleton, who had a transaction eleven months before, which was concluded in perfect amity, be attacked because Mrs. Weldon gets attacked in the Sunday Times, I leave you to judge. I only want to bring your attention to what the libel is, and to ask your opinion of what that libel intends to convey—one observation should be made before I do it, and that is as to where and how it is published. My learned friend says the Choir is not like the Times and other papers, that it is purely an artistic paper. It is perfectly true, that when in a paper which is sure to be read by young composers and writers, and those who want information upon such matters, the libel is contained, it is extremely likely that persons coming from France, would not read such an article in the Times, but they might read the Choir when they want simply to print their compositions, and to get to know the best means of doing it, and to go to somebody upon whom they could rely. Gentlemen, I venture to say that makes it of still more importance; but my learned friend says the plaintiff has derived no injury. If you have been libelled up hill and down dale, and in consequence people do not come to your establishment, they do not come to you and say "We have read in the papers that you are an uncommon rogue, I don't mean to come to your shop again." The libels that destroy are the libels that cannot be met, and affect people you do not know, and in the same way with M. Gounod, who has a suspicion that in consequence of the conspiracy of the publishers his income has fallen off. Mr. Littleton may have a very strong notion, upon looking at his books at the end of the year, that his income has fallen off considerably, by what he cannot explain. Now my learned friend has gone very fully into the whole matter. I did not do so in opening the case. Now let me follow my learned friend; let us see what it is. The letter is violent and in bad taste, as all the letters appear to be that come from these people who are the advisers of M. Gounod. It alludes to the hisses that accompanied this lady's performances, and directly imputes it to a conspiracy among the music publishers. Directly the Sunday Times apply that, she says your former publishers were So-and-so and So-and-so. How can you impute to men of such respectability conduct so utterly scandalous as that upon which Mr. Gounod writes a letter in which he brings Mr. Littleton's name forward as being a name not mentioned in the Sunday Times, and only in the sense of being a publisher, upon whom he cast the imputation of sending people to the house to hiss the lady. That is quite clear that that is what he meant from the beginning to the end; and when the question really arises of malice, we have a right to take that into our consideration, and see what he really meant—what a scandalous imputation he intended to cast—then look at the words which are really in the libel, and see if they conveyed that which is libellous, or that which, according to my learned friend's contention, is justifiable. Now I will not read you what you have heard over and over again in relation to those songs, but "about a month after this little dispute, being on the eve of returning to France, I asked Mr. Littleton to settle his account with me. Before this he had mulcted me twice of £40." Now, gentlemen, my learned friend says, "mulcting" means "milking," and he says milking is an innocent diversion, that it affects the cow but nobody else, and that what is meant here is milking and not cheating. Now I do not know that milking is not an offensive term, and the question is the sense that it conveys to your mind. You, gentlemen, I daresay believe that the law is a very flowery profession, and that most flowery of all practitioners in the law are Special Pleaders, and they are most amusing in the way in which they develop ideas in a single word. Now these poetical fancies are called in the language of the law inuendoes, but when we get into a Court of Justice we get rid of these flowers, and get back to common sense. The question is what it means in your mind. Now, you know you have a Special Pleader, and he puts it, "mulcting, meaning thereby being milked." I shall ask you to dismiss from your minds that definition of mulcting and take mine, that it is a process, of an irregular description, for getting money out of the pockets of another, where it ought to remain; that is my idea of what it conveys to your mind and what it conveys to mine. It is not a compliment, that is quite true—it does not mean to say that has been a very fair transaction, it means to convey something else—"the third time it was £240 he owed me, and this time he wished to mulct me of half the sum." I have expressed my opinion of the word mulct; you will have to express yours presently. What was this transaction of £240? you have it present to your minds. Mr. Littleton would not fight the battle, because the impression upon his own mind was that although the sixpence had been mentioned as an alternative, M. Gounod had not adopted that; and although he was told by a gentleman who was present, that it was perfectly clear, and although it was upon a piece of paper, which was presented to him, where it was clearly taken down as an alternative of sixpence. Mr. Littleton in a perfectly fair and honourable spirit, not being quite sure upon the point paid the money sooner than fight the question. Now, gentlemen, was that the act of a dishonourable man? was that the act of a man who wanted to mulct another? It was the act of a man who went beyond anything like a necessity to be perfectly fair. Then we come to the words that have been so much commented upon: "But he told me what the Sunday Times tells us"—that is, Mr. Weldon, "that there are law courts, that I was fairly entitled to the money, that the proofs were on my side, and that I must not submit to be 'done' again." Well, gentlemen, Mr. Littleton considers that these paragraphs are a grave assault upon his honesty of conduct, and the propriety of the manner in which he carries on his business. It is immaterial to consider what form of cheating is intended, what form of plunder was intended to be conveyed. It is quite sufficient (and I think I shall have my Lord's sanction for that) if it is intended to be conveyed that he had a sharp way of dealing with his customers; that he got money from them by means that deserved the term mulcting; and that he had in some transactions "done" his customers, and his customers must take care not to be "done" again. That is sufficient to support what I allege this to be, namely, an extremely grave charge of libel, unapologized for, and unexcused, and utterly unmitigated, by the course that has been pursued on the part of the defence. Therefore, although I do it very unwillingly, I must ask you to do justice to an English tradesman, in an English Court of Justice, who has not only behaved with perfect fairness in the transaction, but who, when forced into Court, has given every opportunity that a candid and kindly-hearted man could give for the retraction of those libels on the part of the libeller, who is now forced to stand upon his rights, and to ask you to meet the public, judge between him and his accuser as to whether or not he is the unfair trader that he is imputed to be in the article in question.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Gentlemen of the Jury, I feel very great regret that, at an early stage of this case, some other termination did not take place different from that to which it must be brought by your verdict, because I cannot help thinking it is a very great misfortune and a thing which all right-minded people ought to regret that a highly respectable publisher on the one hand, and one of the greatest musical geniuses of the day, as M. Gounod is, on the other, should be fighting to the bitter end in an action for libel in a Court of Justice, and so possibly embitter the relations between them for a longer period than might have occurred if they had agreed to settle their differences by something reasonable in the nature of a compromise. However, we are here now to settle this case. The plaintiff, Mr. Littleton, appears to be interested in the firm of Novello and Co., the great musical publishers. Originally in the declaration certain things were complained of in the alleged libel, which is set out in the declaration, which are not now relied upon, and I think that after having that matter thrashed out, it is quite a wise discretion to have exercised on the part of the plaintiff's advisers, to withdraw that altogether from your consideration, because it is quite clear that an article, which only comes to a quarrel with the bad taste of a man, is an article which, however it may be in bad taste itself, still is one which ought not to be the subject of an action. But as regards the latter words in the alleged libel, and which are also set out in the declaration, it becomes a question for you to consider whether they are libellous or not in the sense of being actionable or not in your judgment, because the law of libel has been quite correctly stated by the learned counsel on both sides. It is for me only to tell you, if I see on the face of a document in writing words which are capable of being considered libellous, if you put certain constructions upon them, it is for me to say whether they are words which are libellous—in fact, that is to say, which do impute conduct to the plaintiff so disgraceful to him, and so wrong on his part that they tend to disgrace and lower him in the sight of the world. It is therefore for you in every one of these cases, to say, whether you do, or do not think that the inuendo (that is, the construction put upon the libel by the plaintiff himself) is warranted, or not. As an illustration of it, take the first part of the declaration. It struck me, and I take it it must have struck everybody that the inuendo was strong—that it was not necessarily imputed that he did not know his business as a musical publisher, but that there was a want of taste and judgment between one piece of poetry and another. Now about these words, you must consider them. I will read the words so that you may have them all before you; of course you will bear in mind that they are words in allusion to an article which appeared in the Sunday Times—an article no doubt itself in parts in very bad taste and in very bad feeling towards a foreigner having gained a great reputation as a musical composer, and now amongst us earning his living, after the misfortune of being driven from his own country by the siege of Paris, I suppose. It was not a hospitable or kind or friendly sort of article which was inserted in the Sunday Times; and you must remember that this letter of M. Gounod, sent to the Choir, was originally produced by that; but you must also remember that M. Gounod evidently fixes the responsibility in some way of that transaction. The letter in the Sunday Times fixes it upon Mr. Littleton without, as it appears in this case, any real foundation. Mr. Littleton was not cross examined to show that he had anything to do with the article in the Sunday Times. Therefore, so far as you are concerned, it is a gratuitous imputation that Mr. Littleton has anything to do with it; but it is in answer to an article in the Sunday Times introduced by a letter to the Sunday Times. There is a part of the libel which still remains for your consideration. "About a month after this little dispute"—that is about the matter of taste—"being on the eve of returning to France, I asked Mr. Littleton to settle his account with me. Before this he had mulcted me twice of £40 (on two different sums of £200) to which I had with my accustomed indifference submitted. Mr. Littleton told me he could not afford to pay me the sums first agreed upon, which statement I believed. He knew the war had nearly ruined me, and that my house had been burnt down." You must take that with the expression which afterwards comes: "I could not, therefore, believe he could have bargained with me under such circumstances." You must take them together, the learned counsel said the word "mulct" comes from the Latin mulgeo, to milk. I should not quite have used that defence, because the word mulct, we all know, has got another use—viz., to mulct a man is to fine him, and to fine is sometimes used in a loose sense, as equivalent to docking him—equivalent to taking something off payments. Take the case of a contractor—you may do it according to contract. I should have thought there might have been some such sense as that suggested, that it really did not mean to impute that he had milked him in the sense of cheating; that is securing anything he had no right to secure out of him, but that he had been hard with him, and had driven a hard bargain, especially as the expression is afterwards used—"I could not, therefore believe he could have bargained with me under those circumstances." It is not for me to suggest anything as to the true construction, but I am bound to put anything possible before you. If you think that is one of several meanings that may be attributed to it, and it is a reasonable idea that he meant to take anything off it, it would certainly wear a different aspect from what the word "mulcted" would mean. All these things are entirely for you. If you think that those words, whatever they mean, were meant in a sense that they would tend to degrade and injure Mr. Littleton in his trade as a publisher, or to injure him as a man—they being written words are words which would be libellous; they certainly would be most libellous if you came to the conclusion that they meant that the plaintiff had cheated and fraudulently deprived the defendant of the sum of £40. It may be that you will not take that view of the case, but still you will consider that they meant something that might degrade him and injure his position. If so, you may find that the words were libellous, as used, without finding the innuendo at all. In any sense, it is for you to say whether those words are capable of bearing a construction which is libellous according to the animus you put upon them. It is for you to say whether, in point of fact, they did in that article constitute a libel. Now I go on a little further, it goes on to another occasion altogether. He says, "This third time it was £240, he (meaning the plaintiff) owed me (meaning the defendant), and this time he (meaning the plaintiff) wished to mulct me (meaning the defendant) of half that sum (meaning thereby that he the plaintiff was desirous of and attempted to cheat the defendant of the sum of £120, due and lawfully owing to him (the defendant)). Had it not been for Mr. Weldon's advice, I (meaning the defendant) should certainly have submitted again. But he told me what the Sunday Times tells me that there are Law Courts, that I (meaning defendant) was fairly entitled to the money, that the proofs were on my side, and that I (meaning the defendant) must not submit to be "done again." Certainly, those words being placed in inverted commas and underscored, look as if they were meant to be quotations from the words of another, and it is for you to consider whether they are or not. M. Gounod has said they were the words of Mr. Weldon. Do they in the article appear to be so. He says, "Had it not been for Mr. Weldon's advice, I should certainly have submitted again." Does he mean that even though they were Weldon's words to adopt them as his own, and does he mean to give them additional force by underscoring them as he has? If you think so, then it is for you to say whether you think those words "done again," do not, according to the ordinary interpretation of English words at the present day, mean that he did intend to impute that he had "done" him or tricked him? Or do they mean something very different from that, or something like it, but not quite it? At all events, do they mean something which imputes to Mr. Littleton that he had not behaved straightforwardly and properly, and in a business-like way as a tradesman ought to do. If they do, you will find that they are libellous—if they do not, then you will not be entitled to say that they were libellous at all. I cannot say positively as a matter of law that those words mean to imply that there had been any such cheating on the part of Mr. Littleton, but it is entirely a question for you to say. It is purely within the functions of the jury. Now, gentlemen, that is the dispute between the parties. Mrs. Weldon herself was called. One cannot help observing upon the evidence of Mrs. Weldon (and it really amounted to very little indeed in matter) that this is a case in which Mr. and Mrs. Weldon have to some extent been advising M. Gounod, and it may be that you may think that they, feeling that he acted chivalrously towards them, and he feeling great admiration for Mrs. Weldon's talents as a singer, and feeling that that was impugned by Mrs. Weldon—that that led him on to write more spiced and vehement expressions of respectable tradesmen, than he was warranted in using; if he has done that in such a way as to lead you to think that the words are injurious to Mr. Littleton as a tradesman, then you will say those words are libellous, even though you might admire in certain respects the chivalry of M. Gounod in standing up for Mrs. Weldon, and the strong feeling of Mrs. Weldon (with which we have nothing to do here) who feels that M. Gounod has not had proper appreciation. But still it will not justify you in jumping to the conclusion that Mr. Littleton who was not asked a question about having had anything to do with the article in the Sunday Times, or mixed up with the affair in the way in which they thought. Gentlemen, if you think that M. Gounod under that suspicion did get very angry on the belief that that was true, and that he set to work with a strong idea that Mr. Littleton had something to do with that article, that really would be some evidence of the very malice which if you think this is a libellous article, would not require to be affirmatively proved. But if, on the other hand you think there was really no great malice in the letter, but there was a use of language here, and the publication of language without strong malice, but from ignorance of the English language partly, it would then make you wish at all events not to fine M. Gounod so severely. I cannot tell you that you are justified in taking into account the fact that M. Gounod is a foreigner, because he has made himself responsible for a letter in the English language, and he is responsible so far as that is concerned here to-day. Then, gentlemen, suppose you find that this is a libel, there comes the question of what damages should be given. Upon that you have heard so many comments by the counsel on both sides, and you are so well able to judge of such a matter that I do not feel I should be justified in dwelling at any length upon that topic before you. Provided you think it is a libel, Mr. Littleton ought to have damages sufficient to satisfy the world at large that an unfounded action, and dare say (although I have no right to dwell upon it) he would not wish to get an exaggerated verdict. That is a topic which I have no right to urge upon you in anyway, nor indeed could it properly be urged as a ground for diminution of damages; and you would therefore find such reasonable and fair damages as will on the one hand not be cruel towards the defendant, and on the other would be reasonable and satisfactory to the plaintiff in such a case as this. I need say no more to you. I have made sufficient comments upon the case to enable you to do justice in it. I think the rest of the words of the libel which remained after the words I read carried the thing no further, one way or other, except that he said he went to law and got his money! I think, perhaps, I ought to make this observation upon that:—That the conduct of the plaintiff seems to be honourable about that matter. Though his own musical adviser, who expresses his strong feeling to M. Gounod, was convinced that the bargain upon the other matter which is in issue was in his favour, and not in M. Gounod's, his own recollection went the other way, and therefore he paid the whole amount. I do not think you ought to take that into account in a verdict for damages to Mr. Littleton. He did what a man ought to do under the circumstances, although he had an actual witness whose recollection was the other way. You will now be good enough to consider your verdict.

The Jury consulted for a short time.—The ASSOCIATE: Gentlemen, are you all agreed upon your Verdict.

The FOREMAN OF THE JURY: We are.

The ASSOCIATE: Do you find for the plaintiff or for the defendant?

The FOREMAN: We find for the plaintiff.

The ASSOCIATE: What damages?

The FOREMAN: 40s. if it carries costs.

Mr. Justice DENMAN (to the learned Counsel): Is there any difficulty about the certificate?

Mr. MURPHY: No, it is in your Lordship's power.

Mr. Justice DENMAN: Then I will make it carry costs; I will certify for costs.

Original Correspondence.

THE RULES OF SIMPLE HARMONY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—Permit me space to reply to some of the remarks made in your review of my "Manual of Simple Harmony" in your last number. I should not have troubled you but that your reviewer seems to have so thoroughly misrepresented me.

In the first place, he complains that "nothing is said about the construction of a minor scale, but afterwards, in speaking of keys, we are told that 'every major key has its relative minor,' and then, two minor scales being given, the pupil is left to discover for himself how it is formed." Does not the latter part of this sentence stultify the first? I have given the form of the two minor scales most commonly used, so that the pupil can hardly be said to be "left to discover for himself" how it is formed. The minor scale takes so many forms, that your reviewer would confer a boon on the musical public if he could give it a distinctive formation. Dr. Stainer, in his admirable "Treatise on Harmony," quotes four ways of writing it.

Again—your reviewer complains of the plan I advanced for finding out whether a piece was in a major or minor key, viz.—to "look through one or two lines of the music, and if the fifth of the key is repeatedly sharpened from its position according to the signature, it is not the major key represented by the signature, but its relative minor, the affected note being the seventh of the minor scale;" and I am invited to turn to Beethoven's Sonata Pathétique, and say whether I believe any pupil, even of average intellect, could "look through two or three lines of the music" and imagine the key note to be anything but C? Well, I don't know what the "average intellect" pupil might imagine, but I venture to say that three out of every four of those who have been taught to play (without the theory), would tell you that it was in E flat; and that not a few of them, if questioned as to the difference between major and minor scales, would astonish your reviewer by telling him that all major pieces are written in sharps, while minors are written in flats! But this rule in my book contains a note that it is not infallible; though I still maintain that it is a good guide.

As to the omission of any explanation of the difference between duple and triple rhythm, I do not think any such explanation is required for a practical knowledge of simple harmony. I have already done violence to my own feelings by inserting a good deal of what I may term simply "book knowledge," which is of little or no use in practice. Why, "rhythm" itself could have occupied one-half the manual. Again—I state that "all times are taken from common time." Does your reviewer dissent from this? If so, why? Again—the only information I give as to compound time, is that "simple times are those with only one principal accent in a bar." He might have quoted a little farther, that "all times of less than six beats in a bar are simple, those with six or more are compound." Again—while I have given a complete table of the chromatic intervals, I have given no rule for finding out the diatonic intervals, except that they are "composed of notes incidental to the key;" there is not much mystery about this, at any rate.

There is more heresy yet: for in speaking of the first inversion of a common chord, I state that the figure 6 indicates the harmony to be played, "which is the common chord of the sixth note above," although he had previously explained that the chord is formed by taking the third for a bass instead of the fundamental note. Am I to understand, then, that when a chord is inverted, its character is altered? Surely the 6 does indicate the common chord of the sixth note above.

Lastly—I state that the chord of the diminished seventh "is formed by raising the bass of the dominant seventh a semitone, the other notes incident to that chord remaining unaltered;" but that "no mention is made of the fact that both root and key are completely changed by this process." This is really too bad. If your reviewer had read to the end of the chapter, he would have found that the change of root, at any rate, is fully explained.

If I had followed the dictates of your reviewer, I must have altered the title of my manual from "concise and practical" to "elaborate, but impractical." My object was to treat the rules of simple harmony as they are used; your reviewer has not succeeded in attempting to show that I have failed in my endeavour.

Believe me, yours, &c.,

THOMAS SMITH,
Organising Choir-master to the Church
Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury.

Bury St. Edmunds,
June, 1873.

[We have on several occasions shown, by inserting letters from authors who have been reviewed in our columns, that no notice is approved of unless it is laudatory, and Mr. Smith's communication affords another instance of the truth of our belief. If our correspondent can make his readers think that he has a grievance against us, we willingly give him the opportunity of doing so. For ourselves, we see no reason to re-state our opinion, especially when we find Mr. Smith actually defending a false method of teaching theory to pupils who have been taught to play, as he says, "without the theory."—THE WRITER OF THE REVIEW.]

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

••• Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued unless the Subscription is renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

T. HORTON.—Peace on Violins and Violin Makers, 3s. 6d.; Published by Longman and Co., Paternoster Row; Fets on Stradivarius, 6s.; Published by R. Cocks and Co., New Burlington Street. Dake's Violins are nearly 100 years old.

The report of the performance of Spohr's "Last Judgment," at Southsea, merely informs us that it took place on "Monday evening." As the correspondent who furnishes us with the notice appears anxious that we should give it insertion, it seems strange that he should have designated his object by supplying us with no indication of the date of the concert.

J. H. LAMIN.—It is difficult to define the exact meaning of the Italian words used in music to express certain shades of feeling. Allargando is from the verb Allargare—to extend or enlarge; but its applicability to the passage over which it is placed can only be understood by those who sufficiently sympathise with the author to accept so vague an indication. "Con Direzione" we have never met with.

Brief Summary of Country News.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary; as all the notices are either collated from the local papers, or supplied to us by communication of correspondents.

ARMAGH.—On Monday, the 25th May, the Rev. S. L'Estrange Malone (Vicar Choral of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Armagh) delivered a lecture on Church Music in the Theatre of the Armagh Natural History and Philosophical Society. The musical illustrations were rendered in a most efficient manner by the celebrated Cathedral choir of the Town, under the able direction of Mr. T. O. Marks, Mus. Bac., organist. The house was filled by a most attentive and highly appreciative audience. The President, the Rev. William Reeves, D.D., Praelector, occupied the chair, and introduced the lecturer and his subject by a clever speech. The Rev. S. L'Estrange Malone opened this theme by vindicating the position of music in worship, proving from Scripture, custom, and authority, both in the Old and New Testament, the antiquity of its use. He sketched the history, and referred to the peculiar traits, of the Hebrew and Greek musical system, and pointed out the prominent position assigned to it in the Jewish worship, tracing its history down to the Christian era. In the second part of his subject he reviewed the history and development of Church Music from the earliest Christian date down to the present time; and towards the close of his lecture, introduced several compositions as illustrations of music suitable to the various offices of our Church. Beginning with a quartett and chorus from Spohr's Oratorio, The Last Judgment, "Blast are the departed," he contrasted his style of treatment with that of Felix Mendelssohn in a similar subject, viz., "Happy and blest are they who have endured" from the Oratorio, St. Paul. Hymn No. 50, Church Hymnal was much appreciated, and was followed by E. J. Hopkins's descriptive Anthem, "Why seek ye the living among the dead." As an example of the devotional spirit in music, the lecturer selected Sir John Goss's Anthem, "O Saviour of the world." The beautiful composition was followed by a hymn of the Greek Church (Eucrolydon), "Peace! it is I," by a celebrated Dublin composer, G. W. Torrance, Esq., M.A. Nothing could exceed the cordiality with which this hymn was received by the listeners, who now heard it for the first time. Handel's Coronation Anthem, "God save the King," gave an appropriate finish to the illustrations. The Rector, the Rev. G. A. Chadwick, moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer, in a telling speech, which was seconded by Mr. Lochrane.

BOMBAY.—On Tuesday, the 29th April, the fine organ presented to Bombay by Sir Albert Sassoon, was opened with great éclat. Mr. G. F. Frye, organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta, was specially invited to preside; and in compliance with so complimentary a request, he undertook a railway journey of between 1200 and 1300 miles across the country. Mr. Frye was assisted by Mr. Bishop, son of the builder of the organ, and by Mr. Cope, honorary organist of St. Thomas's Cathedral, Bombay. The Tem's of India states that Mr. Bishop played the opening piece (Wely's Offertoire in G) with much ability; and that the style in which Mr. Frye (who is spoken of as about the most accomplished performer on the instrument in India) followed with an Andante by Bati-te, abundantly fulfilled all expectations that had been formed of his power. Mr. Cope is also highly commended for his skill; and the singers, Mr. Constable, Mr. Punnett, and Mr. Sevastopulo are said to have acquitted themselves in excellent style.

BRADFORD.—The fifth Festival of the Church choirs of Bradford was held on Thursday evening, the 19th ult., in the Parish Church. Mr. A. R. Swaine, organist of the Parish Church, was the originator of these Festivals; his desire being to bring the Church choirs in the town into closer connection, for the purpose of mutual improvement and social intercourse. The number of voices upon this occasion was about 320, representing 15 churches. The procession of boys, men, and 24 clergy, all surprised, entered at the west-end of the church, and sang a Processional Hymn as they marched to their seats in the chancel. Every part of the service was highly creditable to the choirs engaged in it, the chanting, anthems, &c., being rendered with the greatest precision, without the aid of a conductor. The service was intoned by the Rev. J. Watkins, Praelector of Leeds Parish Church; the lessons were read by the Right Rev. Bishop Ryan, D.D., and the Rev. W. R. Smith, M.A., Vicar of Christ Church. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Baynes, M.A., Vicar of St. Michael's, Coventry, from Revelations xvii., 2, 3. The first anthem was Sir John Goss's "Wilderness," in which the solo and verse parts were sustained by members of the Parish Church choir. The second anthem (after sermon) was Dr. Wesley's "Blessed be the God and Father," which was very well sung, the two treble solos, "But as he," by Master C. Sutcliffe, of the Parish Church, and "Love one another," by Master W. Golden, of Christ Church, being admirably given. The chorals, &c., in both these anthems, for men's voices only, were very fine. After the Benediction, the clergy and choirs left the church singing a Recessional Hymn. Mr. A. R. Swaine deserves great credit for the untiring zeal with which he has devoted himself to making these Festivals successful. At the organ he was assisted by his brother Mr. A. Swaine, organist of Bingley Parish Church, who played the Processional and Recessional Hymns.—On Thursday, the 29th May, the members of the Church Institute Singing Class presented Mr. G. F. Sewell with a beautiful timespiece, in acknowledgment of his services as honorary conductor. The presentation was made by the Secretary, Mr. W. Oddy, and was suitably acknowledged by Mr. Sewell. An ivory-mounted bâton was also given at the same time by Mr. Poole.

CHRISTCHURCH, NEW ZEALAND.—A very successful performance of the Oratorio Elijah was given by the Mendelssohn Society on the 17th March. The principal vocalists were Mesdames Pember, D'ghy, Patiret, Barry, and Hornhook, the Rev. F. Pember, Messrs. E. D. Price, and T. Jones. The choruses were sung with the utmost precision and spirit. The orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. C. Bonnington, rendered very efficient service. The performance was under the direction of Mr. Robert Parker, Miss Marshman presiding at the pianoforte.

ELY.—The Church choir, assisted by the ladies of the Church Choral Society, gave its sixth annual concert, on Wednesday, the 18th ult., in the Corn Exchange, which was completely filled by more than 300 of the élite of the town and neighbourhood. The concert music was well rendered, and gave evidence of careful and judicious training. The duet "The Fairy Queen," by Glover, was well sung by Miss Eliza Engleheart and Miss Barker, and was loudly applauded; and the trio, "The Mermaid's Song," in which the same two ladies were joined by Miss Bishop, had to be repeated. The Rev. F. Page received quite an ovation at the end of each of his songs, "For ever and for aye," by Smart, and "A life that lives for you," by Sullivan. Mr. Ship received an unanimous encore for Operetti's "Pirate," and a similar compliment was awarded to Mr. Burrough for his song, "The friends of other days." Mr. Ship and Mr. Burrough then joined in Glover's duet, "Music and her Sister Song," which was re-demanded with enthusiasm.

Miss Ling presided at the pianoforte with great ability, and Mr. M. Deadman, the organist of the Parish Church, conducted.

FAIRWATER.—The usual Midsummer Prize Distribution and Musical Performances at the Independent College took place in the principal Hall on Wednesday, the 18th ult. Mr. Comer, who conducted the concert, deserves the utmost credit for the zeal with which he has directed the studies of the boys committed to his charge. Many of the vocal pieces were extremely well rendered; and a reading of Collins's "Ode to the Passions," by Mr. Burrington (a former pupil of the College), with instrumental illustrations, was highly successful.

HARROGATE.—The Philharmonic Society gave its first concert, in the Spa Concert Rooms, on Thursday, the 29th May. The first part consisted of a selection of glees, songs, &c., and the second of an original Cantata, by T. J. Paley, The Village Festival. The overture is highly effective; the first song is musically, and the ballad, "O tell me not of costly gems" (excellently sung by Miss Place), is one of the best numbers in the work. A melodious chorus, unaccompanied, is followed by a song for baritone, "The days of childhood," which is very good. The libretto is by D. S. Ward, who, like the composer, is a native of this town. The concert was a complete success.

HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA.—On the 21st May, Mr. S. Porter, organist of St. Paul's Church, gave a recital on the new Bervington organ recently purchased by the congregation. The programme, which commenced with Handel's "Occasional Overture," was varied and well selected. The power and beauty of the instrument were admirably exhibited in all the pieces, Mozart's Andante in A, the air "Watther, Angels," and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," being especially worthy of commendation. Not the congregation alone, but the whole musical public of Halifax, must be congratulated on the acquisition of so fine an instrument; and still more on the possession of an organist who, by his training and talent, is so well able to promote the study and love of high class music in this city.

HONLEY.—The annual Festival, in connection with St. Mary's Church, took place on Whitsunday. Special sermons were preached afternoon and evening. The choir, which was augmented for the occasion, numbered over 60 voices. The tunes were Nos. 255, 307, 817, and 360 from Hymns Ancient and Modern, and Nos. 97 and 603 from the Hymnary. The Psalms were chanted to Ouseley in E, and Barnby in E; the Cantate, No. 289, Nunc dimittis, No. 185, from Ouseley and Monk's Psalter Chants; the Magnificat to Palestrina in D. The Deus was sung to a chant, composed expressly for the choir, in G, the voices singing the Canto Fermo in unison, with independent organ part, for verses 3 and 5, and Gloria Patri, the effect of which was very striking. The anthem was "I will give thanks unto Thee, O Lord" (J. Barnby), which was well sung throughout, especially the chorales. Mr. J. C. Beaumont presided at the organ, and played with considerable ability the following:—Introductory Voluntary, Benedictus from Cherubini's First Mass. During collection—Slow movement from Hummel's Trio, Op. 65. Concluding Voluntary, "Hallelujah Chorus" (Handel). The church was well filled in the evening. The Festival was a complete success.

LEAMINGTON.—Mr. C. Sydney Vinning gave an excellent performance on the new organ at Trinity Church, on Saturday, the 21st ult. The programme included Bach's fine Fugue, in G minor, No. 8; Lefebure-Wely's "Offertoire," No. 4; besides other works of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, &c. The whole was rendered with great precision, and elicited much approbation.

MALVERN LINK.—The members of the Choral Union gave, on Tuesday evening, the 17th ult., their fourth concert for the season in the Concert-hall, which was moderately filled with a very respectable and highly appreciative audience. The programme contained Roedel's "Sea-Maidens," for female voices; Philip Kiltz's scena, to Mrs. Eliza F. Morris's words, "The Shipwreck," and Thomas's "Pic-nic." Mr. Kiltz presided at the pianoforte and conducted. If any proof were required that Mr. Kiltz is an efficient teacher and conductor, it was given on the above night, for the pieces were most effectively performed throughout; and, considering that the Union relies entirely upon its own resources, the success of the evening deserves the warmest recognition. The Cantata is highly spoken of by the local press, and Mr. Kiltz's choral song was enthusiastically and most deservedly applauded. The "Pic-nic," too, was excellently received, several of the pieces being re-demanded. The concert gave the utmost satisfaction to the audience, and reflected much credit upon the Society.

MOXLEY.—A new organ, built by Mr. Wm. Johnson, of Moxley, for the Primitive Methodist Chapel, Salop Row, Bilston, was opened on Sunday, the 25th May, by Mr. George Bond, of Wednesbury. The instrument reflects the greatest credit alike on the author of the specification, Mr. S. Waldron, organist of St. Leonards, and on the builder. Mr. Bond admirably rendered some well-chosen selections from the works of Handel, Mendelssohn, &c., together with arrangements and variations on well-known airs from the artistic pen of Mr. Stimpson, of Birmingham Town Hall. A similar instrument, we understand, is about to be built by Mr. Johnson, for another Chapel in Bilston.

OXFORD.—An excellent concert was given on Tuesday evening, the 27th May, in the Princes Street School-room, by permission of the Rev. R. M. Benson, in aid of the Church Schoolmasters' and Schoolmistresses' Benevolent Institution. The boys of New College, conducted by Mr. Carter, and a party composed of Misses Kate Harvey, Jackson, Lucy Pritchett, and Messrs. Roebuck (New College Choir), Hayward (Magdalen), and Shaw, sang with much precision and effect, the part-songs "Spring, gentle Spring," "Now the twilight," "There stands a little cot," "Oh, the Summer night," "Memory of the past," "When evening's twilight," and "The moon just peeps," all of which were most enthusiastically welcomed. Mr. Dodds's admirable rendering of Handel's "Harmonious Blacksmith," and Heller's "Tarantella," which are both suited to display his delicacy and precision of execution, elicited an enthusiastic encore. He also gave Kube's "Fantaisie de Concert," and in response to an encore, substituted Thalberg's solo "Home, sweet home." Songs were also contributed by Miss Lucy Pritchett, Mrs. Berry, Miss Kate Harvey, Messrs. Carter, Roebuck, Shaw Keyloff, and Masters Aldridge and Lyster. The performance concluded with the National Anthem.—On the first day of Trinity term, the degree of Bachelor in Music was conferred upon Mr. Jacob Bradford, New College, organist and director of the choir of St. Peter's, Eltham Road, Lee, late of St. James's, Hatcham. The exercise composed for the degree was a sacred Cantata (Psalm 103rd) for full orchestra and voices.

SITTINGBOURNE.—The fourth annual Festival of the Sittingbourne Choral Union took place in the Parish Church on the 3rd ult., when full Choral Even-song was devotionally and efficiently performed by the choirs of the Union, numbering nearly 200 voices; Organist, Mr. Kinke; Præcentor, The Rev. J. S. Hoare. An eloquent sermon was preached by the Rev. Daniel Moore.

SKELMORLIE.—An Organ Recital was given in the Parish Church, on Thursday evening, the 12th ult., by Mr. J. E. Senior, before a large audience. The selection commenced with the overture to Samson, and comprised pieces from the works of Bach, Handel, Haydn, H. Smart, Romberg, Meyerbeer, Schumann, and Rink, and was executed in a highly satisfactory manner. Special mention must be made of the vocal music, which consisted of "Honour and arms" (Samson), "If with all your hearts" (Elijah), the duet "For so hath the Lord himself commanded" (St. Paul), Benedictus (from Weber's Mass in G), and Ave verum (Mozart), all of which were admirably given by a number of amateurs.

STAFFORD.—On Tuesday, the 27th May, the second annual concert of Herr Emil Behnke's Tonic Sol-fa Class took place in the Covered Market before a large audience. The principal vocalists engaged were Miss Edith Wynne, Madame Patey, Miss Jessie Jones, Mr. Cumrings, and Mr. Patey. The first part of the programme consisted of Mr. Henry Lahee's Cantata The building of the Ship, the composer presiding at the pianoforte, and Mr. Spivey at the harmonium; and the choir of about 300 voices (in the absence of Herr Emil Behnke, through illness) being ably conducted by Alfred Gaul, Esq., Mus. Bac. The Cantata was very creditably performed, the choruses being exceedingly well rendered, and the solos admirably sung by the above-named vocalists. At the conclusion of the first part, a eight-singing test was given to the class, having been forwarded specially by B. P. Wright, Esq., the Mayor. This piece, after having been sol-fa'd once, was twice sung to words; and with the exception of one bar, the test was very successful. The second part consisted principally of songs, Madame Patey was decidedly the favourite, her songs "Children" and "She wore a wreath of roses" being rapturously applauded. Miss Edith Wynne and Miss Jessie Jones also were very effective in their solos; and Mr. Patey in "I'm a roamer" was warmly appreciated. The National Anthem concluded a very agreeable concert.

STAMFORDHAM, NEAR NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE.—A new organ, built for the Parish Church, was recently opened by Dr. Armes (organist of Durham Cathedral) before a very large congregation. This instrument adds another to the list of successes achieved by the eminent firm of Messrs. Forster and Andrews, of Hull, for it may confidently be said that a more perfect organ of the size cannot be found in any parish church. Before the opening service began, Dr. Armes played a brilliant Voluntary, and effectively displayed both the beauty of the instrument and his own powers as a performer. The choir and the clergy to the number of twenty-two, entered the Church singing a Processional Hymn. The prayers were intoned by the Vicar, the Rev. John Bigge, and the Rev. Walker Featherstonhaugh, Rector of Edmonbyers, and the lessons were read by the Rev. Ambrose Jones, Vicar of Stannington, and the Rev. Frederic Gipps, Vicar of Corbridge. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Dwanis, who, judging from his discourse, is by no means an enthusiast in the cause of Church music; indeed, his whole sermon seemed rather an apology for having an organ in the Church at all, a line of thought rather out of place at an opening service. The music was extremely well rendered by the choir, and reflected the greatest credit on those who have bestowed their time and labour in training the voices. At the conclusion of the service the procession reformed and left the church, singing "The Church's one foundation" to Dr. Wesley's beautiful tune. As the congregation departed, Dr. Armes played the overture to Samson, and a most successful and impressive service was thus concluded. In the evening a public tea was given by the parishioners in aid of the organ fund; and it is understood that a very handsome sum was realized.

WARMINSTER.—A Festival of Church choirs of the Warminster District of the Salisbury Diocesan Choral Association, was held in the Parish Church of Sutton Veney (which was tastefully decorated for the occasion), on Thursday afternoon, the 12th ult., when the following choirs took part:—Sutton, Westbury (surpliced), Westbury Leigh, Codford, Imber, Bratton, Brixton, Deverhill, Hill Deverhill, and Boyton, the whole numbering about 140 voices. The first part of the Service (Tallis) was intoned by the Præcentor of the District, the Rev. J. H. Pearson, and the second part by the Rev. H. C. de St. Croix. The Processional Hymn was from the Hymnary, by Smart, the Psalms were sung to Anglican Chants, and the Canticles to Gregorians. The anthem was Dr. Stainer's "What are these that are arrayed." The hymn before the sermon was from the Hymnary, "The roseate hues," by Rev. F. A. Hervey, and the hymn after the sermon, was from the Hymnal, "Hark, hark, my soul," by Morley. The Recessional hymn was "Ye boundless realms of joy," Croft's 148th. The musical part of the service was gone through with much effect. The sermon was preached by the Rev. H. S. Armfield, M.A. (Minor Canon of Salisbury Cathedral), and Mr. Herbert Leach (organist of the Parish Church, Westbury, and District Choirmaster) presided at the organ, and played the Benedictus, from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, during the Offertory, and Kink's Flute Concerto for the concluding Voluntary. The capabilities of the organ, which is by Gray and Davison, were displayed to much advantage during the service by Mr. Leach. After the service, the clergy and choirs partook of a substantial repast in the Rectory grounds, the Rev. Arthur Everett presiding.

WESTBURY, WILTS.—The members of the Bratton Singing Class (assisted by a portion of the Westbury Singing Class) gave their first concert, on Wednesday, the 18th ult. The programme was miscellaneous, consisting of vocal and instrumental duets, songs, and glees, which were rendered with great taste and precision, reflecting much credit upon their conductor, Mr. Herbert Leach (organist of Westbury), who commenced the class in March last. Mr. Leach, during the concert, played two pianoforte solos, "La Garde Montante" (Wely), and "Blue Bells of Scotland" (Logier), in a highly efficient manner. Mr. T. Grant presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Leach ably conducted.

WELLS.—The Wells Musical Association, assisted by some of the members of the Cathedral choir, gave an open night to their friends on Tuesday, the 10th ult. The first part of the programme was the charming Cantata, The Bride of Dunkerron, by Mr. Henry Smart, which was well performed, and gave, as it could scarcely fail to do, great pleasure to all present. The second part was miscellaneous. Conductor, Mr. Lavington, organist of the Cathedral.

WOOLWICH.—The summer concert of the first year's series of quarterly entertainments which Miss Mascall has undertaken to supply from year to year, took place on Friday, the 6th ult., at the Town Hall. Miss Mascall's Cantata Sunshine (the music and words of which are her own) was produced on the occasion, and was highly successful; her pupil, Miss Rice, who displayed a good contralto voice and cultivated style, winning much favour with the audience. Other ladies contributed to the concert, mostly pupils likewise of Miss Mascall, and Mr. Jeffreys, a deep basso, was exceedingly well received. Besides taking a leading part in the Cantata, he sang "The Armourer" and some other songs with much power and excellence. Solos were also given by Mrs. G. H. Baker, Miss Day, Miss Wheeler, Miss Kelly, Miss Chambers, Mdlle. Cissie de Naeyer, the Misses Foss, Mr. Scudder, and Mr. Davies; and pianoforte performances by Mdlle. Aimée de Naeyer (a clever young executant), Miss Edwards (a very promising young performer), Miss Rose Newstead, Miss Annie Lloyd, the Misses Milne, the Misses Foss, Miss Gordon, Miss E. Jones, Miss Rice, and Miss Mascall. The hall was well filled; the reserved seats being especially patronised, and the programme, which was entirely secular, seemed to give complete satisfaction.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—On Monday evening, the 9th ult., the members of the St. Matthew's Choral Society gave their fourth concert in St. Matthew's School-room, H. T. Barker, Esq., in the chair. The room was quite full. Great praise is due to the band (which was led by Mr. Joseph Morton, and conducted by Mr. William Beach) for the efficient manner in which the pieces were performed. Songs, glees, part-songs, duets, &c., were sung, the principal vocalists being Mrs. Griffin, Miss Tranter, Miss E. Lewis, Mr. Griffin, Mr. F. Walker and Mr. C. Hodgkiss. Readings were also given by the chairman and Mr. T. Bowen. At the conclusion of the programme, a vote of thanks was accorded unanimously to the chairman for his kindness in presiding. In replying to which, he thanked the performers, and congratulated them upon their success. The concert concluded with the National Anthem.

WREXHAM.—On the 11th ult., two concerts were given by Mr. F. H. (organist of St. Mark's), being a continuation of the opening ceremonies of a new Hall, just completed. The playing of the band of the 14th Regiment, under the conductorship of Mr. Miller, gave the utmost satisfaction to the audiences, and Madame Billinie Porter, who has a voice of considerable range and power, sang, among other songs, the walse "L'Arditi." In highly finished style. Eos Morlais also gave several songs, his best piece being "Sound an alarm." Mr. Harris played some pianoforte and harmonium solos, and was recalled. The chorus consisted of the Mold Eisteddfod choir numbering about 250 voices. The Hall was well filled in the morning, and in the evening it was crowded.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. William R. Stubbs (late Conductor of the Sheffield Choral Union), Organist and Choir-master to Christ Church Cathedral, Waterford.—Mr. J. Watson Lee, Organist and Choir-master to Christ Church, Falkirk.—Mr. Arthur Crook, Organist and Choir-master to Shelton Church, Stoke-on-Trent.—Mr. John Jackson, A.R.A.M. (late Organist and Choir-master of the Royal Naval School, New Cross), to St. John Baptist's Church, Leytonstone, Essex.—Mr. Arthur Randall, to Trinity Chapel (Wesleyan), Perry Vale, Forest Hill.—Mr. Hubert Smith, Organist and Choir-master to St. Matthew's Church, Rugby.—Mr. F. Smith, Organist and Director of the Choir to the Parish Church, Walton-on-Thames.—Mr. Hedley Carns, Organist and Choir-master to St. Mark's, Notting Hill.—Mr. H. J. White, Organist and Choir-master to St. Stephen's, Walbrook.

PERSIAN LOVE SONG,

WRITTEN BY

H. SUTHERLAND EDWARDS,

In imitation of the Persian; attributed to Mirza Schaffy. The Persian melody arranged with Pianoforte accompaniments by

A. MANNS.

Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

WANTED for a Music-seller a few miles from London, an ASSISTANT. Must play the Pianoforte, and tune well. None but a competent and gentlemanly man will be dealt with. Address A. A. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TO BASSES.—WANTED, a Good BASS, who is a fair Reader, for the Choir of Allhallows Church, Lombard-street, E.C. Two Sunday Services, and one week-night Rehearsal. Salary £12. Apply by letter to Organist, 76, George-street, Richmond.

DURING THE LAST MONTH,

Published by NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

BARNETT, J. F.—The Raising of Lazarus, an Oratorio. The words selected and arranged from the Holy Scriptures. Dedicated to his friend, George Norbury, Esq. Paper covers, 8s.; cloth, 10s. 6d.

HILES, HENRY, Mus. Doc., Oxon.—The Crusaders. A Sacred Cantata. The words written and selected by Marian Millar. Paper cover, 2s. 6d.

TOURNEUR, J. B.—Hommage à sa Sainteté Pie IX, Messe à Trois voix, avec accompagnement d'Orgue ou de Piano. 6s.

GOSS, Sir JOHN.—Chant Te Deum and Benedictus (in C), for Four Voices. 8vo., 4d.

COTES, DIGBY.—Te Deum laudamus (a Chant Service). 8vo., 3d.

ALFORD, Rev. J. G.—The Te Deum. A Simple Chant Service for the use of Parish Choirs. Post 8vo., 3d.

MACFARREN, G. A.—Two-part Anthems for small Choirs. Second Series for Female and Male voices. No. 4, "Blessed be the Name of God," 8vo., 6d.

WILLIAMS, SYDNEY H.—If ye love Me. Anthem. 8vo., 4d.

TAMPLIN, AUGUSTUS L.—The Music of the Hymn of Praise and Thanksgiving. 2nd Setting, as sung at the Services conducted by the Rev. Charles Voysey. 8vo., 1s. 6d.

SWEET, Rev. J. H.—Great God! Thy wrath deserving. Penitential Hymn for Advent, Lent, or special occasions 8vo., 3d.; 2s. 6d. per dozen.

—Dear Lord, in Thee. Hymn. 8vo., 3d.; 2s. 6d. per dozen.

—Eight Hymns, in paper cover. 8vo., 1s. 6d.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES, No. 357. Domine salvam fac (Festival Te Deum), A. S. Sullivan. 4d.

BARNETT, J. F.—Thou art near, O Lord. Song from the Oratorio "The Raising of Lazarus." Sung by Madame Patey. 1s. 6d.

ROGERS, ROLAND.—Arise! for the day is passing. Song, words by Adelaide Procter. 1s. 6d.

PEARSALL, R. L.—Glees, Part-Songs and Madrigals. See page 164.

MEADOWS, WILLIAM W.—The Sailor's Song. Words by Charles L. Roberts. 8vo., 4d.

FARMER, JOHN.—The Harrow Glee Book, No. 31. Sweet and low. 8vo., 4d.

—Part-Songs for Public Schools. Vol. I. 1s. 6d.

MELTZER, OSCAR.—Galop, Merry Times. 2s.

MANNS, A.—Persian Love Song. Written by H. Sutherland Edwards, in imitation of the Persian; attributed to Mirza Schaffy. The Persian melody arranged with Pianoforte Accompaniment, price 2s.

SPARK, Dr. W.—The Organists' Quarterly Journal, Part XIX:—

1. Solemn March. Charles E. Horsley.
2. Introductory Voluntary. C. G. Verrinder, Mus. Doc.
3. Postlude (D major). Berthold Tours.
4. Romance (G major). R. Forsy Brion.
5. March (F major). J. H. Wallis.
6. Andante Pastorale. James Tomlinson.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Evers-street, W.

ORGAN for SALE, suitable for a large Church or Chapel, Gothic case, with gilt front pipes, containing three manuals, and the following tops:—

GREAT ORGAN, GG to F—1, Double diapason; 2, Open ditto; 3, Open ditto; 4, Clarabella and stop; 5, Principal; 6, Fifteenth; 7, Mixtures; 8, Trumpet; 9, Clarion. CHOIR ORGAN, GG to F—1, Open diapason; 2, Viol di Gamba; 3, Stop diapason; 4, Principal; 5, Flute; 6, Bassoon. SWELL ORGAN, TENOR, C to F—1, Double diapason; 2, Open ditto; 3, Stop ditto; 4, Principal; 5, Trumpet; 6, Hautboy. COPPLERS—Swell Stop ditto; Swell to choir; Choir to great; Great to pedals; Octaves to pedals. PEDAL ORGAN, CCC to D—Open diapason. 4 composition pedals to great organ. For further particulars, apply to Abbott, Organ. Builder, Cookridge, Leeds.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo., price 6d. each.
1st and 2nd Series bound together; cloth, 2s. 9d.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This Work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This Pointing of the Canticles is authorized by His Grace the Archbishop of York. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by

EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part chorus, with Organ Accompaniment, ad lib. Price 8d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK,

Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

Sixth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK, edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND

CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo., without chants, 1s.; with Proper Psalms, 1s. 8d.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to., with chants, 5s.; large 4to., £1 1s.; each voice part, separately, 2s. Canticles, score, small quarto., 9d.; separate parts, 8d.; words only, 24mo., 14d. Novello, Ewer & Co., and Parker & Co.

Tenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57

RESPONSES, &c. Price 5s. 6d.; sep. vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

SUPPLEMENT to the PREVIOUS EDITIONS of the ABOVE, containing Chants for the Venite, &c. Price 1s.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES, Pointed for Chanting by B. St. J. B. JOULE.

(Large type) Price 2s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI-

CANUM. 18mo., price 1s., in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI-

CANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Third Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION.

Harmonized on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. St. J. B. JOULE. Price 8d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

NON NOBIS DOMINE, arranged to the Corresponding English Words, by Rev. W. G. LONGDEN, for the Use of Choral Meetings, as an Introit, or Anthem, or Grace after Meat. Price One Penny; Nineteen a dozen; or Five Shillings a hundred. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and

DEUS MISEREATUR. For voices in unison and organ. Octavo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TWELVE KYRIES. By G. BAKER. Price Sixpence, 12 or more copies, 4d. each, and post-free. G. Baker, Music-seller, Wakefield.

Now ready. 8vo. Price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED, Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

By the Composer of "Hymns of the Eastern Church."

QUEEN MAUDE'S FAREWELL TO S. ANSELM, and other Songs, 1s.

HYMNS OF THE EASTERN CHURCH, 1st Series, 1s.; 2nd Series 1s. 6d.

CATHOLIC HYMNS, 1st and 2nd Series, 1s. each.

THE ANGELUS, 9d.

TWELVE LITANIES OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN, 9d.

MAY CAROL, 4d.

FOUR SACRED SONGS. Words by the Rev. Dr. ANDERDON, 1s. 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., Leicester: Crossley and Clarke.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS' FESTIVAL SONG.

Full Chorus, by ALFRED HARBOROUGH, R.A. Price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

Just Published.

CANTICLES NOTED. Second Set, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. 18mo., 8d. 8vo., 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

HELMORE, REV. THOMAS.—The CANTICLES ACCENTED, 18mo., 3d.—Hymns of the Eastern Church, four voices, each 1s. PEACE, IT IS I; THE DAY IS PAST AND OVER; THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.—S. MARK'S CHANT BOOK (in daily use at the College Chapel, Chelsea), 4s. 6d.; or the same, Part I., being the main body of the work, price 3s. 6d.; and Part II., The Table of the Chants, price 1s. (useful for places where only the Canticles are chanted). Also Two "T's DEUMS" for Choir and People, in the alternate verses; adapted from Latin arrangements by Alfieri and Baint; vocal score and Organ Accompaniment, price 3s. Also the People's Plain Song, separate, price 14d. Four-part Cadences for the Holy Communion, 6d. The Carol for Christmas Morning, vocal score, 18mo. edition, 2d; melody, 18mo., 1d.

HYMN IN TIME OF CATTLE PLAGUE. 2d. Words, 1s. per 100.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADDITIONS TO THE

REV. T. HELMORE'S PLAIN SONG WORKS.

The Canticles Accented. Price 3d.

The Psalter and Canticles Accented. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

Appendix 1 to Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory, Price 4d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 1, giving the Proper Psalms, noted as before in their right order of the six days to which they are Appointed. Price 6d. Bound up with recent editions of the Psalter

Noted.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 3d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 2, giving the Proper Psalms newly noted for the Four Great Festivals (second set). Price 4d.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 4d.

Canticles Noted (second set). Large Edition, 2s. Small Edition, 8d.

For some of the Harmonies to this, see Accompanying Harmonies to Psalter Noted. Appendix 2 (above mentioned). For others, see Accompanying Harmonies to Brief Directory, Appendix 2, now in hand.

Cadences for the order of the Administration of the Lord's Supper, in compressed vocal score. Price 6d.

Paper on Church Music, with special reference to the joining of all the People in Sacred Song, read at the Church Congress, Wolverhampton, October 1867. Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SACRED MUSIC BY EDWARD LAWRENCE,

(Organist, Merthyr Tydfil).

TE DEUM (new) in B flat. Harmony, unison, free organ part, &c. "Highly effective." 1s. 6d.—Three Choral Hymns

Set 1. "There is a blessed home," "O Love," and "Praise the Lord,"

1s.—The well-known and immensely admired Six Responses to the Commandments, new edition, 1s.—Three Choral Hymns, Set 2, "O

Paradise," "A few more years shall roll," and "Thou seest a hues,"

(just published) 1s.—The Evening Hymn "Abide with me." Harmony and unison, with a free organ part. "Everywhere exceedingly popular."

A specimen copy of either for twelve stamps. A very liberal discount on a dozen copies. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TE DEUM for Parish Choirs. A simple Chant Service, by the Rev. J. G. ALFORD, M.A. Conductor to the Chew

Deanery Choral Association. 3d. each, or 2s. 6d. per dozen.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

REV. R. F. SMITH, M.A., Minor Canon of South-well, TE DEUM, in F. 3d.

"Simple yet impressive—will, we feel convinced, ere long become one of the most popular of its kind."—Nottingham Journal, June 18, 1873.

"8 me passages of remarkable beauty."—votum in Guerdin, June 18, 1873. ANTHEM, "The Lord is nigh," 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

"MISSA REGIA." (DUMONT.) A complete Plain-

Song Service for the Holy Communion, from the Roman Service

Books. Edited by ALFRED KING, Mus. Bac., Oxon. Vocal and Accompaniments 1s. 6d.; Plain Song, 4d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A SERVICE for the HOLY COMMUNION for Men's Voices in four parts, consisting of Introit, Kyrie, Gloria tibi, Gratias, Offertory Sentences, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, composed by W. H. SANGSTER, Mus. Bac. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1 Berners-street.

No. 2.

NEW UNISON EVENING SERVICE, Cantate

Domino and Deus Misereatur, in B flat, by EDWARD J. HOPKINS.

Price 6d. Metzler and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MERCER'S CHURCH PSALTER and HYMN

BOOK. An APPENDIX of ADDITIONAL HYMNS, CHANTS, SANCTUSES, and RESPONSES, the Harmonies carefully revised by Sir JOHN GOSS, may now be had, either separately, or bound up with the work in all its various sizes and forms. Prospectuses of the complete work, with full particulars, will be forwarded on application.

London: James Nisbet and Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; Lamborn Cock, 62 and 63, New Bond-street, W.

Just Published. Part IV., price 1s.

THE PEOPLE'S HYMNAL TUNE BOOK, edited

by RICHARD REDFERN. London: J. Masters, 73, New Bond-street;

Metzler and Co.; F. Pitman.

A SERVICE for the TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in the key of A, composed by FREDERICK LIFFE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Fellow of the College of Organists, London, and Organist of St. Wilfrid's Church, Kibworth. Price 4½d.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, Set to Original Chants, price 2d., comp. sed by FREDERICK LIFFE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Fellow of the College of Organists, London.

"In writing these Chants for the Te Deum I have divided it into its doctrinal parts. The 'first' thirteen verses are a Creed setting forth the doctrine of the Trinity. The 'second' part beginning with the words 'Thou art the King of glory,' and the four following verses, set forth the Divinity and Incarnation of the Son. The solemn verse 'We believe that Thou shalt come,' expresses our belief in our Lord's second coming. A separate Chant is provided for this verse. The 'third' part, beginning with the words 'We therefore pray Thee,' is a Litany.

"The Rev. Thomas Keble was the first, I believe, who suggested this ancient mode of dividing the Te Deum into these several parts, and I have adhered to this arrangement as far as possible; there is, however, one exception, and that is in the first part of the verse 'Holy, Holy, Holy,' which seems to me to demand a different kind of expression to any of the other verses. I may also say that I had written another Chant of a more pensive character for the 'Litany part,' but it was thought advisable to go back to the melody of the first Chant, in order to avoid many changes."—Prefatory Remarks by the Composer.

A PRIZE TUNE in E flat, "Jesu, Refuge of my soul," for four voices, by the same author, price One Penny.

This Tune gained the Prize offered by the College of Organists, Midsummer, 1872. Published by Novello, Ewer and Co., London, and by Mr. W. R. Bowden, Holywell-street, Oxford.

Now ready, price Sixpence.

FOUR HYMNS. Words by the Rev. GODFREY

THRING. Set to Music by the Rev. J. B. DYKES, M.A., Mus. Doc. No. 1, Church Consecration Hymn. 2, Churchyard Consecration Hymn. 3, Hymn for Synods, Conferences, Choral Festivals, &c. 4, Dismissal Hymn, Friendly Societies, Guilds, &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

EASY ANTHEMS for VILLAGE CHOIRS. By W. H. GILL. 2d. each. Nos. 1 to 6 now ready.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A Specimen Copy, post free for Stamps to the value.

"EXCEPT THE LORD BUILD THE HOUSE,"

an ANTHEM for five voices, suitable for the Opening of new places of Worship or School Anniversaries. Composed by JAMES HARDWICK; published at 1s. 6d. each; sold at half-price. Schools or congregations taking 12 copies may have them at 6d. each. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for Small Choirs. The texts selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe.

First Series, for Boys' and Females' Voices.—1. "Come, and let us return." 2. "I will look unto the Lord." (These Anthems may appropriately be used in Advent and Lent.) 3. "Behold the Tabernacle." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.)

Second Series, for Female and Male Voices.—1. "Unto us was born." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.) 2. "Blessed is the soul." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Whitsuntide.) 3. "Come ye and let us go up." (This Anthem may be appropriately used at the opening of a church.) 4. "Blessed be the name of God." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at a Harvest Festival.)

A separate accompaniment for use where there is not a Pedal Organ, may be had, price 2d.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private performance.

Price 6d. for each Anthem, or 2s. 6d. for each series of six.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SACRED SONGS, BY MILES BENNETT.

(Compass from B natural to F natural.)

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. (Words from Psalm cxlii.) 3s.

GRATITUDE. (Words from Psalm cxvi.) ... 4s.

I WAITED PATIENTLY FOR THE LORD. (Words from Psalm xl.) ... 4s.

CONSOLATION. (Words from "The Dove on the Cross") ... 3s.

"Good Sacred Songs are certainly rarely to be met with; but we are able confidently to recommend each of the above to every true musician. The spirit of the familiar words of the Psalms is admirably caught and sustained in these compositions. In all, the musician will find modulations and harmonies accurately arranged, airs remarkable for their sympathy with the words, and accompaniments containing passages of considerable and, in some places, of exceptional beauty and elegance. We turn to these songs with a degree of pleasure when we remember the quality of many of the sacred airs of the present day, some of which can boast their illuminated title-page as their chief or only charm."—Church Bells. March 29th, 1873.

"Mr. Bennett has given a sacred character to his music in excellent sympathy with the words he has selected; and we cannot too much commend the musicianlike manner in which the whole of the accompaniments are written."—Musical Times, Oct. 1st, 1871.

Sent post-free for half price in stamps.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Eighth edition.

301 ANCIENT AND MODERN CHANTS. edited by WILLIAM RIDLEY, Organist of the Parish Church, and of St. John's. Free for stamps from the Editor (bound, 36 stamps, paper, 24 stamps), West Derby, Liverpool. "A fine collection."

NOW READY.

NEW EDITION, CORRECTED TO JUNE, 1873,

NOVELLO, EWER & CO'S CATALOGUE, No. 6,

CONTAINING

SACRED MUSIC WITH LATIN WORDS.

GRATIS ON APPLICATION, OR SENT POST FREE FOR ONE STAMP.

JUST PUBLISHED, AN OCTAVO EDITION OF

HANDEL'S THEODORA.

In Vocal Score, with a separate accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte.

Price, in paper cover, 3s. Scarlet cloth, 5s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOW READY.

HANDEL'S BELSHAZZAR,

Oratorio in Vocal Score, with Accompaniment for Organ or Pianoforte.

EDITED BY G. A. MACFARREN.

Octavo, paper covers, 3s.; cloth gilt, 5s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE RAISING OF LAZARUS,

AN ORATORIO, BY

J. F. BARNETT.

The Words selected and arranged from the Holy Scriptures. Dedicated to his Friend, GEORGE NORBURY, Esq.

Paper covers, 8s.; Cloth gilt, 10s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

New Edition just published, price 1½d.

SOUND THE LOUD TIMBREL.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY THOMAS MOORE.

THE MELODY COMPOSED BY AVISON.

Arranged for One or Four Voices. The MUSICAL TIMES, No. 137.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MOZART'S MASSES,

Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, Oblong quarto, 2 volumes, 14s. each.

HAYDN'S MASSES,

Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, Oblong quarto, 2 volumes, 14s. each.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Price in paper, 2s.; scarlet cloth, 3s. 6d.

HENRY FARMER'S MASS IN B_b,

With the Latin words, and an English adaptation to the Communion Service.

By the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

"This beautiful composition has been so long before the public, and its merit so distinctly recognised, that we have no need here to introduce a single word of criticism upon its musical value. Our object in mentioning it at all is to call attention to its recent publication in a handsome and convenient form. In a small volume of clear and legible print, the musician can now obtain the whole of the Mass in Vocal Score, with an Accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte."—Nottingham Guardian.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Price Sixpence, post free.

"MUSIC IN PLAY AND MUSIC IN EARNEST" by A. ORLANDO STEED. Reeves and Turner, 185 Fleet-street.

W. W. PEARSON'S MUSIC.—The whole of Mr. Pearson's Glee and Part-Songs, and the "National Method of Vocal Music" for Schools and Choirs, price 3s. 6d., can be had of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., and the above, with the full-size Dance Music, Songs, &c., may now be obtained of Messrs. Reeves and Turner, Booksellers and Publishers, 185, Fleet-street, London. A single copy of the "National Method" will be sent post free to Professors or School Teachers, from the Author, Mr. W. W. Pearson, Organist, Elmham, Norfolk, or from Mr. Pearson, Brompton, Rotherham, for 2s. 6d. in stamps.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK. (SECOND SERIES.)

A COMPLETE EDITION

OF

Part-Songs, Glees, and Madrigals,

COMPOSED BY

R. L. DE PEARSALL, Esq.,

(OF WILLSBRIDGE.)

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO. having recently purchased all the Part-Songs, Glees, and Madrigals composed by R. L. DE PEARSALL, Esq., formerly published by Mr. Oliphant and Messrs. Hammond (Jullien and Co.) will now issue them in the popular Octavo form, together with those originally published by them, in Two Volumes, and also in separate Numbers, as follows:—

NOW READY.

284	The Hardy Norseman	S.A.T.B.	4d.
284*	do. do.	A.T.T.B.	4d.
285	Nymphs are sporting	S.A.T.B.	3d.
286	O who will o'er the downs	"	4d.
286*	do. do.	A.T.T.B.	4d.
287	Who shall win my lady fair	S.A.T.B.	4d.
288	Why with toil	"	3d.
289	When Allen-a-Dale went a-hunting. Glee	"	4d.
290	I saw lovely Phillis. Madrigal	"	4d.
291	The River Spirit's song	A.T.T.B.	3d.
292	It was upon a Spring-tide day. Madrigal	S.A.T.T.B.	4d.
293	Take heed, ye shepherd swains	"	S.S.A.T.T.B.	4d.
294	Spring returns	"	S.S.A.T.B.	2d.
295	Great God of love. 8 voices	"	"	3d.
296	In dulci júbilo. Christmas Carol	"	3d.
297	The song of the Frank companies	S.A.T.B.	3d.
298	How bright in the May-time	"	3d.
299	The Winter song	"	2d.
300	The Bishop of Mentz..	"	3d.
301	When last I strayed	"	2d.
302	See how smoothly	"	2d.
303	Let us all go Maying	"	2d.
304	List! Lady, be not coy. Madrigal	S.S.A.T.T.B.	3d.
305	O ye roses. Madrigal	"	3d.
306	Sing we and chaunt it. Madrigal for double choir	"	2d.
307	For four voices	"	2d.
308	The Red Wine flows	T.T.B.B.	2d.
309	Shoot false love, I care not. Ballet Madrigal	S.A.T.B.	3d.
310	Laugh not, Youth, at Age. Madrigal	"	4d.
311	Down in my garden fair.	"	"	3d.
312	Adieu! my native shore	"	2d.
313	Purple glow the forest mountains	"	2d.

IN THE PRESS.

314	Caput apri defero	"	3d.
315	A Chieftain to the Highlands bound	"	2d.
316	A King there was in Thule	"	2d.
317	Come, let us be merry. Twelfth Night song	"	2d.
318	Mihi est propositum	A.T.B.B.	2d.
319	Light of my soul. Madrigal	S.S.A.T.T.B.	3d.
320	Lay a garland. Madrigal for 8 voices	"	3d.
321	Summer is y' coming in. Madrigal	S.S.A.T.T.B.	2d.
322	Why should the Cuckoo's tuneful note. Madrigal	S.S.A.T.B.	3d.
323	Why weep, alas! my lady love. Madrigal	"	3d.
324	There is a paradise on earth	A.T.B.B.	3d.
325	O! all ye ladies fair and true	"	2d.
326	War Song of the Norman Baron Taillefer	S.A.T.B.	2d.
327	Why do the roses. Madrigal for 4 voices	"	2d.
328	Sweet as a flower in May. Madrigal for 4 voices	"	2d.
329	The praise of good wine	T.T.B.B.	2d.
330	The Watchman's Song	T.T.B.B. }	2d.
	{ Ditto ditto.	S.A.T.B. }
331	The Waters of Elle	S.S.A.T.B.	2d.
332	No! No! Nigella. For double choir	"	2d.
333	Sir Patrick Spens. In ten parts	"	4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 35, POULTRY (E.C.).
NEW YORK: J. L. PETERS, 599, BROADWAY.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped; those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c., can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 366.—Vol. 16.
Registered for transmission abroad.

AUGUST 1, 1873.

Price 2d.; Post-free, 2½d.
Annual Subscription, Postage free, 2s. 6d.

BRISTOL MUSICAL FESTIVAL, COLSTON HALL, BRISTOL, OCTOBER 21, 22, 23, AND 24, 1873.

PRINCIPAL ARTISTS.

MADAME LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON

AND

MADAME OTTO-ALVSLEBEN,

MISSSES JULIA WIGAN AND ADA JACKSON,
MADAME PATEY AND MDLLE. ENRIQUEZ.

MR. SIMS REEVES,

MESSRS. VERNON RIGBY AND EDWARD LLOYD,
MR. LEWIS THOMAS,

AND

MR. SANTLEY.

Other Engagements are pending, and will be duly announced.

WORKS TO BE PERFORMED:—

CREATION, ELIJAH, MESSIAH,
HYMN OF PRAISE, STABAT MATER,

AND

G. A. MACFARREN'S NEW ORATORIO
ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST.

MR. CHARLES HALLÉ'S ORCHESTRA.

The Band and Chorus will number 400 Performers.

CONDUCTOR - - MR. CHARLES HALLÉ.

TICKETS AND PROGRAMMES WILL SHORTLY BE ISSUED.

CHARLES PRICE, Hon. Sec., Bristol.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS GRACE ARMYTAGE (Primo Soprano),
2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MISS BLANCHE REIVES (Principal Soprano only)
Oratorios, Opera, Concerts, &c. 54, Lupus-street, S.W., and 106,
Renfrew-street, Glasgow.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE (Soprano),
2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, W.

MISS GLEDHILL (Contralto).
Concerts and Pupils. 51, Devonshire-road, N.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),
50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
Address 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 1, St. George's-terrace, Kilburn.

HENRY C. SANDERS (Baritone),
(Of S. Andrew's, Wells-st.) 2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Basso).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; also for Oxford Glee Party.
Address Principal Bass, Ch. Ch. Cathedral, Oxford.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),
Sunny-bank, Hazleville-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
(Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts), for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address 2, Halffield-place, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. J. TILLEARD,
Removed to Seaton-villa, Slaithwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder,
29, Minorities, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds,
Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minorities,
London. List for stamp.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having
the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUB-
LISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions,
Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Cla-
rionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, IS., post free.
Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 7th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholfield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE
BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied
at wholesale prices at J. Moore's, Buxton-road, Huddersfield.
Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

E. & W. SNELL'S IMPROVED HARMONIUMS.
37, Kelly-street, London, N.W. Lists free.

ORGAN FACTORY, 141, Stanhope-street, Hampstead-road.—T. NORTON being about retiring from business, has for SALE on moderate terms, ORGANS from four to fifteen stops, suitable for Church, Chapel, or Drawing Room. Also, well-seasoned Stock for Amateurs and Gentlemen building their own instruments.

ORGAN for SALE. Compass CC to F, 6 stops,
German pedals, hand and foot blower.—M., 4, Milverton-street,
Kennington-road, London, S.E.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE, by WHITE, finished by Hill and Son of London. Contains 6 stops in great organ, 4 in swell, pedal bourdon, and two couplers, Gothic case. Apply at Hills' Organ Works, York-road, near the Brecknock, where the instrument may be heard.

ORGAN for SALE, suitable for a large Church or Chapel. Gothic case, with gilt front pipes. Containing 3 manuals and 27 stops, with pedal pipes and 4 composition pedals.
Apply to Mr. I. Abbott, Organ builder, Cookridge-street, Leeds.

ORGAN for SALE, new; excellent build—very suitable for a small place of worship. One manual, 8 stops, including bourdon, 25 notes. Compass CC to G; general swell; composition pedals; neat case, with illuminated or gilt front. Particulars.
E. N., 4, Little Gower-place, Euston-square.

ORGAN for SALE or HIRE.—Two manuals, full compass, pedal organ, bourdon, and principal, 18 stops, price 130 guineas, built five years; to be replaced by a larger Organ. Estimates given for larger Organs, additions, and repairs. A. Monk, Organ Builder, Angler's-lane, Kentish-town-road, London, N.W.

ORGAN for SALE, CC, fine tone, two manuals,
14 stops, full compass, pedal organ, in handsome case. Apply to W. A., 53, Burdett-road, Bow, E.

ORGANS for SALE, equal to new. Six stops, Handsome case, with pedals, £28; also 3 stops, £19 10s., with pedals.—Edwards, Chesham, Bucks.

ORGAN for SALE, cheap, 5 stops, 1 octave of pedals, hand and foot blower.—E. B., 7, Brunel-street, Kennington-lane, London.

CC ORGAN for SALE, by GRAY, of London, equal to new, with 2 manuals, 12 stops, and separate pedal organ of 29 notes, in handsome carved oak case, with gilt front speaking pipes; a bargain. Address A. B., Clifton House, Deal.

ORGAN for SALE, new.—Great organ, CC to G,
8 stops; swell organ, CC to G, 7 stops; pedal organ, CCC to F, bourdons, couplers, and compositions. To be seen at A. Hunter's Organ Factory, 379, Kennington-road. Also, a SMALLER ORGAN, new. Great organ, 6 stops; swell organ, 4 stops; separate bourdons, 30 notes.

ORGAN for SALE, a very fine Instrument, a bargain, quite new. To be sold to make room for a larger one.
Contains 20 stops; CC swell, and pedal organ. Apply to Mr. Maley, Organ Builder, 5, Werrington-street, Oakley-square, N.W.

CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE. Three manuals, mahogany case, full compass, pedal bourdon, 11 stops, sweet tone. Apply to J. Hunter Neilson, 61, Bessborough-street, London.

SMALL ORGANS with pedals, for Church or
Chamber, from 35 guineas. HARMONIUMS, 5 octaves of organ tone, simple mechanism, for Chapels, Schools, or private use, from 6 guineas. PIANOFORTES, 7 octaves, from 21 guineas. Warranted.
Rosewood COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, 2½ octaves of pedals. William
Sprague, 7, Finsbury-pavement, London. Established 1837.

ORGAN HARMONIUM, £32. Two manuals, fine organ tone, walnut case, dulciana stops, bourdon on full compass, German pedals, 2 couplers. One manual with pedals, 24 rows of reeds, £20 and £22. Manufactured for pedal practice by W. J. Robertson, 107, Tottenham-road, Kingsland, London, N. Lists free, with extracts of letters from Organists.

FOR SALE, Two Octaves of OAK ORGAN
PEDALS (full size) with roller board, trackers, and all the necessary apparatus for applying to a Piano for Organ Practice. Easily attached; has been at work; £3 3s. Apply to Thomas Smith, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

TO be SOLD, a First VIOLONCELLO, in Case,
in excellent condition, by GULEMUS FABER, 1807. Price 20 guineas. Apply to J. Cookson, Wyburnbury, near Nantwich.

MONTHLY SALES OF MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

MESSRS. PUTTICK AND SIMPSON beg to announce that they continue to hold Monthly Sales of Music in all classes, ancient and modern, together with Musical Instruments, including Pianofortes, Organs, Harmoniums, Harps, Cremona, and other Violins and Violoncellos, Double Basses, &c. Single lots or entire collections, if sent in by the 12th of each month, will be in time for insertion in the succeeding sale. Messrs. P. and S. also undertake Trade Sales of Music Plates and Copyrights, Printed Stocks, Stocks of Instruments, &c.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
E P P S'S C O C O A.
BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.

MANUFACTURE OF COCOA.—"We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Euston-road, London."—See Article in Cassell's Household Guide.

Made simply with boiling water or milk.
Each Packet is labelled
JAMES EPPS and Co., HOMOEOPATHIC CHEMISTS,
London.

LITHO. COPYING EQUAL to ENGRAVING.
Organists, Composers, and Amateurs will find it cheapest way for preparing Music. Specimen. F. C. Wood, 32, Vincent-sq., Westminster.

PRINTING.—Messrs. FITZSIMMONS & SONS supply Estimates for every description of Printing for Concerts, Entertainments, &c. Also Commercial Printing. Specimens forwarded, first-class work, and lowest prices. Orders by post and from country promptly attended to. Office, 39, Essex-road, London, N. N.B.—Music Printing (Old Notation or Tonic Sol-fa.)

ORGAN MUSIC.—Catalogue (pp. 50), gratis and post free, of a valuable collection of Organ Solos—Duets—Pedal Exercises—Choruses—Voluntaries—Soft Movements—Cathedral and Church Music—Anthems—Oratorios—Services—Masses—Instruction Books, &c.—London: Sole Publishers, Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

TO THE CONDUCTORS OF CHORAL SOCIETIES.
TO BE SOLD, sorted and indexed, CHORAL MUSIC, suitable for a large Choir, comprising over 200 Part-Songs and other important works. The Messiah, Creation, Judas Maccabæus, copies for one thousand voices. Apply to Mr. Jennings, The Oxford, 6, Oxford-street, from 2 till 3 afternoon, 8 till 9 evening, or by letter. . Must be sold immediately.

12S. WORTH OF MUSIC for One Shilling, post free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock. James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.) begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Eighth Season).
Mr. H. ASHTON, Mr. T. PEARSON,
Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN,
Assisted by
Madame ASHTON,
(Miss F. Danielson),

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c., address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—MR. R. TAYLOR, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—New Instrument, with pedals, full compass. Terms very moderate.—1, Charles-street, Camberwell-new-road, Kennington-park, S.E.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 24 octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, STRAND.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—HILL and SON—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

HARMONY LESSONS (by post) by a Fellow of the College of Organists. Candidates prepared for the College examinations; terms moderate. Address F. C. O., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

HOW TO OBSERVE HARMONY, by JOHN CURWEN, with Exercises in Analysis, the illustrations being printed in both Sol-fa and Staff notations. This work contains the system on which the students have learnt who have been so successful in obtaining prizes and certificates in Mr. Hullah's Examination in the Theory of Music at the Society of Arts. Any one who plays the Chants and Hymn Tunes used for illustration in regular order, will soon notice that the easiest and commonest things in Harmony are shown first, and afterwards those which are more difficult. He will also hear that each new illustration introduces some new thing which has not been heard in any previous illustration. Thus the student, beginning with a Chant formed by the Major Tonic and Dominant chords, passes on through the other chords of the scale, through all the varieties of Passing tones, through the different sorts of Transition, through the peculiarities of the Minor Mode, to a new theory of Discords, and a full exhibition of Chromatics. The work contains 236 illustrations and 195 exercises in analysis. Price 2s., sent post free.—J. S. Crisp, 8, Warwick-lane, London, E.C.

Price Sixpence, post free.
"MUSIC IN PLAY and MUSIC IN EARNEST,"
by A. ORLANDO STEED. Reeves and Turner, 185, Fleet-st.

This day, extra foolscap 8vo., price 2s. 6d.
THE MUSIC PRIMER for SCHOOLS. By the Rev. JOHN TROUTBECK, M.A., and the Rev. R. F. DALE, M.A., B. Mus. Oxford: printed at the Clarendon Press, and published by Macmillan and Co., London, Publishers to the University.

SECOND EDITION. Just published, price 2s. 6d.

A CONCISE and PRACTICAL EXPLANATION of the RULES of SIMPLE HARMONY and THOROUGH-BASS, with Chapters on Time, Keys, Intervals, and general Elementary Musical Knowledge, respectfully dedicated (by permission) to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., Mus. Doc., Professor of Music at the University of Oxford, by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury.

. Contains all that is necessary for Students for the Oxford and Cambridge Examinations.

From John Bull, May 10.—"A very simple and clear treatise on the subject, such as the merest tyro could understand. Mr. Smith has avoided the danger, brevitas esse laboro, obscurus fio, for, though his little manual consists of only twenty-seven pages, there is nothing omitted of the rudiments which a learner ought to know."

From Dr. Buck, Norwich Cathedral.—"Dr. Buck has great pleasure and satisfaction in expressing his approbation of Mr. Smith's easy, and yet comprehensive system of the Rudiments of Harmony for young pupils."

From Henry Farmer, Esq. (the popular Composer).—"I feel sure that your book will be a boon to many Teachers of Music; it is a thing that has been much wanted, and I shall certainly use it wherever I can."

From Rev. W. Borrow (Hon. Inspector to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury).—"I am very much pleased with your little Manual of Simple Harmony; it is concise and clear—just, in fact, what such a primer should be. I trust that it will obtain as wide a circulation as it deserves."

From J. A. Alloway, Esq., Teacher of Harmony, Culham College, Oxford.—"An admirable little work; most suitable for Students in Training Colleges."

From the Choir.—"This is a plain and simple manual of the subject of which it treats; there is a lucidus ordo in it which makes it a very useful book to the beginner, and will serve to diminish the prevailing ignorance which the writer notices in the preface, if its circulation is in any degree corresponds to its merits."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. THOMAS SMITH, Author of "A Concise and Practical Explanation of the Rules of Simple Harmony and Thorough-Bass" (dedicated, by permission, to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart.), gives LESSONS in SIMPLE HARMONY, by post, to any part of the country. A guinea and a half per course of ten lessons; the system complete in two courses.

Authors' Manuscripts revised, ros. 6d.

Just published, price 3d.

HARVEST ANTHEM, "Thou crownest the year," by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury. Written specially for Village Choirs; easy and effective. Can be got up by an ordinary Choir in three or four practices.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Post free direct from the Composer, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

Just Published, price 1s.

A SHORT PRACTICAL METHOD for TEACHING SINGING, designed with a view to meet the new Rule in the Revised Code, and for the use of Choirs generally, by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury, author of "A Concise and Practical Explanation of the Rules of Simple Harmony and Thorough-Bass," dedicated (by permission) to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., Mus. D.

EXTRACT FROM THE PREFACE.—"Most of the systems of vocal music already in use fail through being too comprehensive and elaborate for children. What is required is a short but well-digested series of rules and exercises which can be gone through in a limited number of lessons, and repeated over and over again, until the juvenile mind realises, from sheer repetition, as it were, the art of singing—whether 'at sight,' depends a good deal on the skill and perseverance of the teacher."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street. Post free from the Author, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

This day in crown 8vo., price 8s. 6d.

SOUND and MUSIC: a non-Mathematical Treatise on the Physical Constitution of Musical Sounds and Harmony, including the chief acoustical discoveries of Professor Helmholtz, by SEDLEY TAYLOR, M.A., late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge. Macmillan and Co., London.

های شاهسی مم
های شاهنشاه

"Haeae shaahee mim
Haeae shahinshah."

"Behold my King
Behold the King of Kings."

THE NATIVE MUSIC and WORDS of the PERSIAN "God save the King," and the PERSIAN WAR SONG, arranged for the piano and harp. Dedicated by special permission to His Majesty the Shah of Persia. Price 3s. London: HUTCHINGS & ROMER, 9, Conduit St.; and CLAYTON & Co., Bouvrie St., Fleet St.

Now Ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo., price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series, bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES AND HYMNS OF THE CHURCH,

POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS,
SINGLE AND DOUBLE;

TOGETHER WITH

Responses to the Commandments,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains a Selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry. New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of
Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 258 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

" 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

" 3. Limp cloth, turned in ... 2s. 6d.

" 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered 2s. 6d.

Congregations or associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and musicsellers.

NOW READY.

A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS AND ANTHEMS, arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford.
Very neat and compact, 218 pp. imperial 32mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in ... 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered ... 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered ... 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co.

Bradford: Thomas Bear.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK AND PSALMS AND CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Ninth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book; also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON, and for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row.
Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.; cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes,
as used at ST. ALBAN'S HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES AND ROUNDS; or Musical
Precept and Example, combined in easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J.
POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the
Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH
GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

"FROM INTERVALS TO COUNTERPOINT."

SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT. Price 3s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and all Musicsellers.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,
FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS & SCHOOLMASTERS.
By RICHARD MANN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWENTY-SECOND EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL
SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Now ready, in Three Books, 6s. each. Post-free for Half-price.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

Specially adapted for Colleges, Public Schools, Singing Classes, &c.
Books 1 and 2 (Duets); Book 3 (Trios).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

Fourth edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS,
now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.

No. 1. The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.

No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katherine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.
The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra.

Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.

W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton Place, Reading.

HARVEST ANTHEMS.

GARRETT, G. M., Mus. D.—"The Lord is loving unto every man." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 1s.

BARNBY, J.—"I will give thanks unto Thee." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

—"O Lord, how manifold are Thy works." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 9d.; ditto, 8vo., 14d.; vocal parts, 6d.

—"The Harvest-tide Thanksgiving." Hymn for 4 voices. Words by the Rev. S. CHILDS CLARKE. 8vo., 14d. Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

GROSS, Sir JOHN.—"Fear not, O Land, be glad and rejoice." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s. 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

—"I will magnify Thee, O God." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 6d.

OUSELEY, The Rev. Sir FREDERICK.—"The Lord is my Shepherd." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d.; vocal parts, 6d.

CALLCOTT, W. H.—"Thou visitest the earth and blessest it." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

—Ditto, treble solo, 6d.

MACFARREN, G. A.—"God said, Behold, I have given you every herb." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

—"O Lord, how manifold are Thy works." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

HAYES, Dr. W.—"Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s.

HERVEY, Rev. F. A. J.—"Make melody within your hearts." Carol. 8vo., 3d.

REENE, Dr.—"Thou visitest the earth." Tenor solo and chorus. Vocal score, folio, 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 14d.; vocal parts, 6d.

CLARKE, Dr. JOHN WHITFIELD.—"Blessed are all they that fear the Lord." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 74d.

THORNE, E. H.—"All Thy works praise Thee." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 1s.

STEGGALL, CHARLES, Mus. D., Cantab.—"Praised be the Lord." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

HOPKINS, JOHN L., Mus. D.—"The fast'ring earth, the genial showers." Words by GEORGE E. SHIRLEY, Esq., 8vo., 3d.

PATTISON, T. M.—"O how plentiful is Thy goodness." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d.; 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 6d.

TAYLOR, W.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." Solo, Trio, Quartett, and Chorus. 8vo., 6d.

BRIDGE, J. FREDERICK.—"Give unto the Lord the glory." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

MATTHEWS, J. J.—"The Lord said in His heart." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

ARNOLD, GEORGE B., Mus. D., Oxon.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." S.S.A.T.B. 8vo., 3d.

KEETON, HAYDN.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES

FOR

HARVEST,

SELECTED FROM

THE HYMNARY.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

SING TO THE LORD A JOYFUL SONG
O LORD, THE HEAVEN THY POWER
DISPLAYS
FATHER, BLESSING EVERY SEED
TIME
LORD, IN THY NAME THY SERVANTS
PLEAD
THE WINTRY TIME HATH ENDED
COME, YE THANKFUL PEOPLE, COME
GOD, THE FATHER, WHOSE CREA-TION
LORD OF THE HARVEST, THEE WE HAIL—
LO, SUMMER COMES AGAIN—
PRAISE, O PRAISE OUR HEAVENLY
KING—
SUMMER ENDED, HARVEST O'ER
O LORD OF HEAVEN, AND EARTH,
AND SEA

J. BARNBY.
SIR F. OUSELEY.
DR. DYKES.
W. METCALFE.
DR. GAUNTLETT.
SIR GEO. ELVEY.
H. SMART.
ANONYMOUS.
REV. E. B. WHYLEY.
GERMAN.
J. ADCOCK.
DR. WESLEY.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; New York: J. L. Peters.

C. JEFFERYS, 67, BERNERS ST.

THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

A COLLECTION OF

PART-SONGS, GLEES, CHORUSES, ETC.

EDITED BY MICHAEL WATSON.

1. 'Tis silent eve	Michael Watson.
2. Corin's fate	R. Turner.
3. Where the pearly dew-drop falleth	E. J. Loder.
4. The Winter being over	Ellen Avery.
5. Fairy voices	T. G. B. Hatley.
6. Moonlight	J. H. L. Glover.
7. Good-bye	J. L. Hatton.
8. I thought of thee	W. F. Banks.
9. The Forsaken	J. L. Hatton.
10. Bonny May	J. H. L. Glover.
11. Spring Song	J. L. Hatton.
12. The Winds	C. J. Frost.
13. County Guy	G. A. Macfarren.
14. The birds that had left their song	Do.

Price 2d. each number. Other Numbers in the Press.

THE POPULAR

OPERATIC ARRANGEMENTS,

SOLOS AND DUETS,

AND ORIGINAL PIANOFORTE PIECES,

By FELIX GANTIER.

Of which Lists may be had on application.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

1. FOUNTAINS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire movement)	s. d.
from Haydn's 16th Mass	3 0
2. NETLEY ABBEY. Cujus animam (the entire movement)
from Rossini's Stabat Mater	3 0
3. KIRKSTALL ABBEY. Kyrie (the entire movement) from
Mozart's 12th Mass	3 0
4. TINTERN ABBEY. Gloria in Excelsis (the entire move- ment) from Mozart's 12th Mass	3 0

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, with views of English Abbeys.

THE LYRIC STAGE, a Series of Brilliant Operatic Fantasias:—

1. Martha	Flotow	4 0
2. Lucia di Lammermoor	Donizetti	4 0
3. Il Flauto Magico	Mozart	4 0
4. Les Huguenots	Meyerbeer	4 0
5. La Traviata	Verdi	4 0
6. Norma	Bellini	4 0
7. L'Ombre	Flotow	4 0
8. Robert le Diable	Meyerbeer	4 0
9. Il Trovatore	Verdi	4 0

THE QUEEN ... 4 0

Brilliant Fantasia on English National Airs, "Hearts of Oak," "Rule Britannia," and "God save the Queen."

THE PRINCESS LOUISE WEDDING MARCH ... 3 0

PRINCESS VICTORIA MARCH ... 3 0

Each illustrated with fine Portrait in Colours.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE VIENNA MARCH.

BY

MICHAEL WATSON,

Illustrated with a beautiful view of Vienna from the Danube.

Price 3s.

NEW BASS SONG

BY

ED. REYLOFF,

"THE ARMOURER,"

COMPASS, B FLAT TO E FLAT.

Price 3s.

NEW FANTASIAS

BY

WILLIE PAPE.

IL TROVATORE—(Verdi)	4s.
MARTHA (Flotow)	4s.
SALADIN GRAND MARCH	4s.

C. JEFFERYS, 67, BERNERS STREET, W.

HEREFORD MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

SEPTEMBER 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th, 1873.

Mdlle. TIETJENS, Mr. W. H. CUMMINGS,
Miss EDITH WYNNE, Mr. MONTEM SMITH,
Mdlle. BARTOWSKA, Mr. E. LLOYD,
Miss ENRIQUEZ, and Mr. SANTLEY, and Mdlle. TREBELL-BETTINI. Signor AGNESI.

Conductor, Mr. G. TOWNSEND SMITH.

Programmes at Mr. E. K. Jakeman's, High Town.

WANTED, a LEADING TREBLE BOY for the Clapham Congregational Church. Must read music well. Salary £8 to £10. Apply by letter to C. Colman, Clapham-common, S.W.

WANTED for the Parish Church of Folkestone, a LEADING TREBLE Voice. Boy not under 12; must read music at sight. Remuneration, Board, Lodging, and Education. Apply to Rev. M. Woodward, Vicar.

ALL SAINTS' CHOIR SCHOOL, CLIFTON.—

There are FOUR SCHOLARSHIPS (value £20 a year) VACANT in the above Choir for LEADING TREBLES. Address the Rev. the Precentor, All Saints' Church, Clifton.

TREBLES and ALTOS (Boys), also TENOR

WANTED for St. Mary's Chapel, Park-street, Grosvenor-square. For particulars, apply to the Organist, after Morning Service.

TWO BOYS WANTED for Chichester Cathedral.

Must be able to sing an ordinary verse or solo. The boys will receive education and stipend. Apply at once to J. K. Pyne, Esq., Organist.

SOPRANO and ALTO Voices WANTED for the Voluntary Choir of a Chapel in the Parish of Hackney. Those able to take a leading part in the Choir would receive a small salary. Services morning and evening on Sundays, and rehearsal Thursday evening. Apply by letter in the first instance to Mr. E. J. Wallis, 4, Northampton-park, Canonbury, N.

WELLS CATHEDRAL.—WANTED for the Choir, a Person aged between 20 and 30, with a good ALTO Voice, experienced in Music, and of good moral character. The position for the present is that of supernumerary, there being no actual vacancy in the College of Vicars. Stipend at present £70 per annum. Duty daily. Applications, with testimonials as to ability (and also character, which will be an essential qualification) to be addressed on or before the 12th of August, to Mr. Lavington, Cathedral Organist, Wells.

TENOR.—A Professional REQUIRED for a Wesleyan Church, N.W. Services and Anthems performed. Attendance, Sundays; Good Friday, morning and evening; Christmas Day, morning. No week-day rehearsal. Stipend £10. M. D., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

ADVERTISER, Aged 25, Good TENOR Voice, desires ENGAGEMENT. If thoroughly taught Organ, will accept Engagement on low terms. Not object to binding agreement for few years, if preferred. G. G. Soltykoff, 37, Wyvill-road, Wandsworth-road, South Lambeth.

TO CHOIRMASTERS. — BARITONE (good Soloist) wishes an ENGAGEMENT for August (or part) in a Cathedral. References given. Address H. J. D., Musical Times Office.

YORK MINSTER.—WANTED, a Junior BASS

Voice. The duties are attendance at the Daily Services, and at Choir Practices, whenever required by the Organist. The Junior Members of the Choir will receive £70 per annum, and will be promoted to £90 per annum, if duly qualified and approved, as vacancies occur amongst the Seniors. Applications, stating age of the candidate, and enclosing testimonials as to musical efficiency and character, may be addressed to Dr. Monk, Minster-yard, York.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE, Tenbury.—TWO

PROBATIONERSHIPS VACANT. Trial of voices, &c., at Messrs. Broadwoods' manufactory, 33, Great Pulteney-street, London, at two p.m. on September 2nd. For particulars, apply to Rev. John Hampton, St. Michael's, Tenbury.

A LADY, good Vocalist and Musician, having some time disengaged during the day, wishes for further ENGAGEMENTS as Teacher of the Pianoforte and Singing either in Schools or Private Families. Address A. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—Mr. E. A.

SVENHAM (from the Royal Conservatorium of Music, Leipzig), 44 years Organist of St. Martin's, Dorking, requires an ENGAGEMENT as above. (Sunday duty only.)

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED

after Michaelmas for Church near Blackheath. Surplised Choir. Two Sunday Services; one rehearsal and one special for boys. Stipend £50. Address the Vicar, Burnside's Library, Blackheath.

ORGANIST wants an APPOINTMENT, or would DEPUTISE for an Organist in London or suburbs. Good references; moderate salary. Address A. G., Mr. Garrod, Lower Tooting, Surrey.

WANTED by a Good ORGANIST, a Church in or near London. Good testimonials. Address G. H. Swift, 42, King-street, Long Acre.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Professional Gentleman is open to an ENGAGEMENT as above, or to deputise. Address H. D., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

AN Efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of many years' experience, desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT. High testimonials. Address Organist, 11, Hungerford-road, Camden-road, N.

A CHOIRMASTER and ORGANIST of some years' experience, and great success in training Choirs, will shortly be open to an APPOINTMENT in or near London, where there is a full Choral Service and a good Organ. He possesses the highest testimonials, is zealous and earnest in his duties, and a thorough Churchman. Address M. B., care of Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO ORGANISTS.—A Professional Man, of great Church experience, can take SERVICES on Sundays during the months of August and September. Terms moderate. Address Organist, 36, Cave's-terrace, Shepherd's-bush, W.

WANTED, a RE-ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST, &c. Satisfactory references. Address S. E. D., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED for St. James's Church, Croydon, an Efficient ORGANIST, competent to train a Choir, who can reside in or near Croydon. Stipend £40. Organ erected by Messrs. Hill. Apply to Rev. H. C. Watson, St. James's Parsonage, Croydon.

WANTED, an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST.

Good references and testimonials as to character and ability. Address E. T., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-st.

S. BARNABAS, Pimlico.—The Organist would be glad to OFFICIATE, for two or three weeks in August, at any country place where the air is bracing (coast preferred) in exchange for the use of three rooms.

MR. C. BANSON, Organist of the Parish Church, Egham, Surrey, wishes to take as ARTICLED PUPIL a Youth who has some knowledge of Music. Premium moderate.

AN OXFORD BACHELOR OF MUSIC is open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Address Mus. Bac., Messrs. Ashdown and Parry, Hanover-square, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED

for the Parish Church in one of the most wealthy and rising towns in the Colonies. He must be a fine player, and a thoroughly competent Choirmaster. There is an unusually advantageous opening for a Professor of Music. The population is 15,000, and there is no competent professor resident in the town or neighbourhood. The Church contains a new two-manual Organ by Walker, of London. The gentleman on whom this appointment falls will have introductions for teaching to the best families in the neighbourhood, which should result in an income of from £400 to £500 per annum. The salary will be £75 per annum, with a free first-class passage from England. Duties, morning and evening on Sundays (fully choral), with one Weekly Rehearsal. Applications, with copies of testimonials, to be addressed to C., care of E. J. Griffiths, Esq., 2, Angel-court, Throgmorton-street, London, E.C.

ORGANIST.—The Rev. John Oakley, Vicar of St. Saviour's, Hoxton, wishes to recommend a Young Man, pupil of the Organist of St. Saviour's, as Organist of some Church or Mission Chapel in London; a small salary required. Address R. H. G., 10, Somerset-terrace, Stoke Newington.

TO ORGANISTS and MUSIC SELLERS.—The younger son of a Professor desires an ENGAGEMENT. Country in-door preferred; salary optional. Qualifications, Organ, Piano, Harmonium; Piano and Harmonium Tuner and Repairer. Two years' experience in teaching and shop duties. Address A. Z., 25, Cave's-terrace, Shepherd's-bush, Notting-hill, London.

TUNER and REPAIRER WANTED, Piano and Harmonium. To a sober, active, and skilful man, a good salary and permanent situation are offered. Address A. B. V., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

PIANOFORTE TONER and TUNER WANTED.

A permanent engagement and a liberal salary. Apply to Challen and Hodgson, 20, Oxford-street.

TUNER.—WANTED by a thoroughly competent

Pianoforte Tuner, a SITUATION, in town or country. Address C. H., 13, Powell-street, Goswell-road, London.

TO ORGAN BUILDERS.—WANTED, a General

Inside Hand. Also, a YOUNG MAN as out-door Hand and Tuner. Permanent employment to steady men.—Robert Allen and Co., Organ Builders, Bristol.

FOR SALE, an old-established MUSIC and FANCY

REPOSITORY in first-class position, double fronted. Terms moderate. Apply to J. B., 4, Well-street, Hackney.

TO AUTOGRAPH COLLECTORS.—To be

SOLD, an extensive Collection of Autograph Letters, comprising some from Mendelssohn, Rossini, Schumann, Spohr, Charles Dickens, Leigh Hunt, John Keats, Hazlitt, C. Lamb, Wordsworth, Garibaldi, Mazzini, Cobden, Macready, Cruikshank, Etty, Wiseman, and other eminent men. Also a Musical MS. (part of a Mass) by Haydn, ditto by Mendelssohn, &c. Apply by letter to S. N., Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES, AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

AUGUST 1, 1873.

TO MENDELSSOHN VIA MOSCHELES.

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

THE world is always eager for personal details concerning its great men. Admiration stimulates curiosity, and if the inner life of a genius cannot be reached, curiosity fixes itself upon his outward relationships. His letters are printed, dinner invitations included; his family life is exposed to the general gaze, and everybody to whom he has said anything in jest or earnest feels bound to gratify the world by retailing it. This is all very natural, though per se the thing smacks of vulgarity to a nauseous extent. Prying, for prying's sake, behind the screen which separates a man's public life from his private life has no redeeming feature in itself. It is that form of curiosity represented by quaint old Fuller as "a kernel of the forbidden fruit, which still sticketh in the throat of a natural man, sometimes to the danger of his choking." In former days, a fashion prevailed among royal Courts whereby inquisitiveness was officially gratified. His Majesty dined in public, and whosoever wished could see how the King ate his food, and demeaned himself in the bosom of his family. But where no such opportunities are afforded, it is at least open to question how far our modern habit of peeping through key-holes and listening at windows is a respectable one. Moreover, it possibly does harm to those for whom we wish to feel increased admiration. The old adage that "no man is a hero to his valet" expresses a profound and universal truth, always discovered when heroes are made a study. The little weaknesses of humanity, invisible at a distance, are visible near, and too close inspection has results both unpleasant and undesired. But, after all, this species of curiosity is not an unmixed evil. Wise men know how to use the materials it gets together, and can turn them to a good purpose, because not even the smallest details of a man's life are without significance as regards his character; indeed, it often happens that a trivial incident throws more light upon character than one of seemingly far greater consequence. Thus it comes to pass that the vulgar eaves-dropper acts as a kind of jackal or lion's provider, and is useful to somebody nobler than himself.

Probably no great man's life has been more thoroughly laid bare than that of Mendelssohn. Among musical composers, at all events, he is the most intimately known. From early boyhood to the day of his lamented death Mendelssohn's career has had thrown upon it a light fiercer than that "which beats upon a throne." Thanks to his family and friends, and to those who, knowing him less have been proud to show that they knew him at all, we are as familiar with his sayings and doings in private as in public. It is our own fault if we do not know Mendelssohn, both as an artist and as a man, in all his intimate and varied relationships with the world. The facilities for an acquaintance so complete are themselves the effect of a cause, and that cause lies in the phenomenal interest which Mendelssohn excited. No other composer had such a personal fascination or left behind him such an abiding memory of personal character,—a fact which appears additionally remarkable when we consider that the life of more than one other presented features of greater real attraction. By the side of Beethoven's heroic figure, or even when compared with the pitiful mystery of Schubert's genius and fate, Mendelssohn appears common-place. He was like a happy child playing in a sunny garden; they wandered through desert places, holding aloft the banner of Art amid the storms of Fate. But human nature instinctively turns to that which is bright and joyous. "Happiness is reflective, like the light of Heaven," says Washington Irving, and in the Walhalla of musical composers the eye seeks first, and rests longest, upon the "happy Felix," the child of Music and of Fortune, whose "path was as the shining light," and whose crowning mercy, for aught we know, was his early death. Every addition to our stock of knowledge concerning him is, therefore, eagerly welcomed, and because Mendelssohn has a prominent place in the just issued Life of Moscheles, a value and an interest is given to that work such as hardly anything else could bestow. Moscheles himself was no ordinary man, having fallen short of the highest rank in his profession only by a little way. To see Mendelssohn as he saw him, and to obtain admittance to their intimate companionship is a privilege of rare value, deserving all the attention we now propose to give it.

In 1824, Moscheles visited Berlin, and there met with the boy Mendelssohn, whose genius he not only discerned at once, but acknowledged in terms so glowing as to prove that it made the profoundest impression. "Felix," he wrote, "is a phenomenon. What are all prodigies as compared with him? Gifted children, but nothing else. This Felix Mendelssohn is already a mature artist, and yet but fifteen years old." The idea of maturity took such firm hold upon Moscheles, that when requested to give the boy lessons he could hardly bring himself to do so, urging that Felix had "no need of lessons." Ultimately he consented, but took care to write in his diary, "I gave Felix Mendelssohn his first lesson, without losing sight for a single moment of the fact that I was sitting next to a master, not a pupil." In this connexion we find a reference to Mendelssohn's parents which may go far to remove an idea that, conscious of their son's genius, they unduly forced his powers. "They are far from over-rating their children's talents; in fact, they are anxious about Felix's future, and to know whether his gift will prove sufficient to lead to a noble and truly great career. Will he not, like so many other brilliant children, suddenly collapse? I asserted my conscientious conviction that Felix would ultimately become a great master, that I had not the slightest doubt of his genius, but again and again I had to insist on my opinion before they believed me. These two are not specimens of the genus prodigy-parents, such as I must frequently endure." In 1826, we find Moscheles again at Berlin, hearing Mendelssohn play his Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and that other Overture, "The Trumpet," which remained so long unpublished. On this occasion, Moscheles made a curious entry in his diary:—"The great and still youthful genius has once more taken gigantic strides, but, strange to say, these are little recognized, except by his teachers, Zelter, Louis Berger, and a select few. This prophet, too, is not honoured in his own country; he must go elsewhere." Taken in connexion with the actual luke-warmness of Germany towards Mendelssohn, and the devotion with which he is worshipped in England, these remarks are an example of coming events casting their shadows before. In 1829, as everybody knows, Mendelssohn first visited this country, bringing with him his Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," his String Quartet in A minor, and other works. Moscheles had just then lost his eldest boy, and his diary gives us a charming glimpse of Mendelssohn's sympathetic nature:—"As a friend, he is of untold value; cheerful, yet full of sympathy with us in our recent loss, and our anxiety for the frail treasure still left to us; he is always ready to exchange the attractions of London for our rural solitude, where his society acts like healing balm on our wounded spirits. He seems to have set himself the task of compensating us for our sufferings." With this quick and generous nature was still joined the modesty of the boy:—"How delightful it is," wrote Moscheles, "when he brings some of his new compositions, and, after playing them, waits with child-like modesty for an expression of my opinion. Any other would long since have become aware that in him I recognize my own master, and that I am in raptures where he is expecting to be sharply criticised. Do what I will to give him a correct view and appreciation of our relative positions, he always insists upon subordinating himself to me as his master." This is charming as regards Mendelssohn; hardly so as regards Moscheles, who, in his enthusiasm, did all that was possible to ruin the modesty he admired. Whatever of conceit there was in Mendelssohn's nature owed its existence to such foolish flattery, and the marvel is that, always surrounded by flatterers, worse results were not entailed.

The record of Mendelssohn's second visit to London, in 1831, presents little that calls for notice; but in connexion with Moscheles's subsequent visit to Berlin, we see how the irrepressible spirits of the younger artist influenced his older and graver colleague. Mendelssohn invented a game on the pianoforte, and the two used to play it in a manner thus described:—"We often extemporise together, each of us trying to dart quick as lightning on the suggestions implied by each other's harmonies, and to construct others upon them. Then Felix, whenever I introduce any motive out of his own works, breaks in and cuts me short by playing a subject from one of my compositions, on which I retort, and then he, and so on, ad infinitum. It is a sort of musical blindman's-buff, where the blind-folded now and then run against each other's heads." This amusement seems to have had a great attraction for Mendelssohn, who often entered into the fun of it with characteristic zest. Indeed, both men appear to have sometimes come very near combining want of dignity with want of reverence. "They often play to one another Beethoven's Sonatas," says Mrs. Moscheles, "which not unfrequently diverge into joint improvisations of the maddest kind, and musical caricatures. On one occasion the nursery song 'Polly, put the kettle on' is chosen for a subject on purpose to please the two little girls." All this—in Mendelssohn's case, at any rate—was but the reaction of too severe a strain upon a finely-strung and sensitive organisation. Now and then, reaction would take another and more ominous form:—"If Felix came to her (Mrs. Moscheles) complaining of weariness, she used to make him sit down quietly on the sofa in a dark corner; there he would rest for a few minutes whilst the children would stop their game and keep perfect silence. Then, after taking some slight refreshment, he would rouse himself and discuss with his usual animation some severe musical rehearsal, a morning concert, or a political meeting, where he was constantly to be found." At home, in the intervals of his enthusiastic and exhausting labours, Mendelssohn sought relief and change in childish musical fun, especially when he could get Moscheles to play with him. Both artists were together in Berlin in 1835, and in one of his letters Moscheles wrote:—"We have had a regular day of it. * * * We then allowed ourselves all manner of musical extravagances; extemporising jointly and alternately on two pianos—an intellectual sort of tournament. We * * * perpetrated all manner of musical absurdities." These particulars, if they throw no new light upon Mendelssohn's character, have a significance even the tyro in psychology cannot fail to appreciate. An organisation which, in moments of leisure, rose to half hysterical excitement, or sunk to profound depression, could not long endure the wear and tear of life.

In 1840, Mendelssohn visited Birmingham to conduct his "Lobgesang" at one of the Festival concerts. By this time the composer had recovered from the great shock of his father's death; he was happily married, moreover; and, in the full flow of his excitable nature—it would, perhaps, be wrong to say animal spirits—Mrs. Moscheles wrote of him as "the same hearty, cheerful, delightful old friend as ever." Even at Birmingham, with the most serious artistic duties occupying his attention, Mendelssohn could sketch the town for the amusement of Moscheles's children. "Whilst Birmingham prided herself on bringing out his newest work," wrote the gratified father, "he still found time to make a pen and ink drawing of Birmingham for our children. We have a view of the town with its chimneys, warehouses, Town Hall, and the railway carriage in which he and I sat." From Birmingham, "the two M.'s," as Mrs. Moscheles loved to call her husband and his friend, went to Leipsic, where they arrived late at night. The next morning Moscheles wrote, "Felix, in the room next to me, is teaching his little boy to sing," the work under rehearsal, perhaps, being the Prussian post-horn signal which father and son used to perform between them, to the syllable "da," one taking up where the other left off. It was on this occasion that Mendelssohn submitted to Moscheles "some numbers which had been intended for 'St. Paul,' but which were never performed or printed." The opinion of Moscheles with regard to them was that they were "treated in a more dramatic way (than the rest of the work?) and therefore, perhaps, more adapted for isolated performance in the concert-room than to be heard in connexion with the Oratorio itself." Without dwelling upon this very inconsequential judgment, we may ask what has become of those pieces? Their interest would be immense, especially if issued as an appendix to the work of which they were originally intended to form part. Some of the letters written by Mendelssohn at this period give glimpses of happiness too great to last. In one, addressed to Mrs. Moscheles, we find him saying—"but the quiet, peaceful time since Moscheles started in the railway, and Chorley in the mail-coach, is no theme for description; in fact, happiness cannot be defined; and certainly, I ought neither to have nor to express any wish, seeing that I happen just now to be hard at work, with my wife and children in good health and spirits around me." In one of her most eloquent passages, Charlotte Brontë said:—"Some real lives do—for certain days or years—anticipate the happiness of Heaven; and I believe if such perfect happiness is once felt by good people (to the wicked it never comes) its sweet effect is never wholly lost. Whatever trials follow; whatever pains of sickness or shades of death, the glory precedent still shines through, cheering the keen anguish, and tinging the deep cloud." We may at least hope that a remembrance of the sunny, peaceful days of Mendelssohn's life (and they were not a few) cheered him when, seven years later than the time of which we write, he entered the "valley of the shadow of death."

In 1841, we find Mendelssohn deprecating certain English comparisons between Spohr and himself. "These things are unaccountable," he wrote to Moscheles, "and I heartily deplore them; in truth, not the slightest idea of such a competition or comparison has ever entered my mind. * * * I never can or should like to be pitted as an opponent to a master of Spohr's standing." Mendelssohn's sincerity in this matter is proved by his besetting habit of undervaluing many of his works and persistently keeping them from the world. During his visit to London in 1844, Moscheles reasoned with him on this matter, and "endeavoured to impress Felix with the necessity of dealing fairly by himself, instead of undervaluing writings the sterling worth of which was everywhere acknowledged." That the reasoning did not succeed everybody knows. Mendelssohn could never get over the barrier which diffidence on the one hand, and artistic pride on the other, threw across his path.

In 1846, Moscheles accepted a post at the Leipsic Conservatoire, but remained in England to conduct the ever-memorable Birmingham Festival whereat "Elijah" was first performed. The "two M.'s" were thus brought together once more in the central English town. We get a few glimpses of the preparations for "Elijah";—how, for example, the Oratorio was rehearsed at Moscheles's house in Chester Place, and at the Hanover Square Rooms; and how the lady singers, as their habit is, "gave Mendelssohn some trouble; one finds fault with the song, and insists upon its being transposed; Mendelssohn resists with studied politeness," &c. The actual performance was thus recorded by Moscheles in his diary:—"August 26.—Mendelssohn achieved his most brilliant triumph in this day's performance of his 'Elijah.' In my opinion this work has more vividness and more dramatic variety than 'St. Paul,' and yet it is written in the purest Oratorio style, and places him yet another step higher." This reads like the veriest truism now, and we turn from it to an interesting anecdote illustrative of Mendelssohn's readiness of action. "The orchestral parts of a short recitative (by Beethoven or Spohr) were not forthcoming; we were all in a difficulty, but Mendelssohn came to the rescue. He quietly betook himself to an adjoining room, and there he composed the recitative, scored it, and copied the parts, and these were admirably played at first sight by the band—the public knowing nothing of what had happened. That's the way a Mendelssohn manages." At the close of the Festival, Moscheles broke up his English home, and joined Mendelssohn at Leipsic, much to the delight of the younger master, to whose heart the Conservatoire was so near that not even when composing "Elijah," did he neglect the pupils for a day. The two families appear to have lived in perfect union, for Mrs. Moscheles wrote to a friend at the time, "We are truly happy in our intercourse with the Mendelssohns; * * * what a happy household it is. The abundant means at his command are never squandered upon outward show, but judiciously spent on a well-regulated, comfortable household." We are permitted a glimpse of this happy family in the sanctum of home—almost the last glimpse before the shadow of death falls over all. It was Mendelssohn's birthday, and his friends combined to keep it with due festivity. Moscheles must describe the revels:—"The proceedings were opened with a capital comic scene between two ladies' maids, acted, in the Frankfort dialect, by Cécile (Madame Mendelssohn) and her sister. Then came a Charade on the word 'Gewandhaus,' Joachim, adorned with a fantastic wig, à la Paganini, played a hare-brained Impromptu on the G string. The syllable 'wand' was represented by the Pyramus and Thisbe wall-scene from the 'Midsummer Night's Dream;' for 'haus' Charlotte (Mrs. Moscheles) acted a scene she had written herself, in which she is discovered knitting a blue stocking, and soliloquizing on the foibles of female authoresses, advising them to attend to their domestic duties. By way of enforcing the moral she calls her cook—the cook was I myself, and my appearance in cap and dress was the signal for a general uproar. Mendelssohn was sitting in a large straw arm-chair which creaked under his weight as he rocked too and fro, and the room echoed with his peals of laughter. The whole word 'Gewandhaus' was illustrated by a full orchestra, Mendelssohn and my children playing on little drums and trumpets, Joachim leading with a toy violin, my Felix conducting à la Jullien. It was splendid." On the seventeenth of September following, Moscheles made a very different entry to the foregoing. Mendelssohn had returned from Switzerland, and his friend wrote:—"In mind dear Felix is the same as ever, but physically he seems altered; he is aged, weakened, and his walk is less elastic than before." This was the beginning of the end, and soon we read of his seizure at Frau Frege's house, his partial recovery, the final blow, and the sad spectacle presented as the master lay unconscious on his death-bed, surrounded by loving and despairing friends. On the morning of the fatal day (Nov. 4) Moscheles wrote:—"To Thee, O Creator, it is known why Thou hast lodged those treasures of heart and soul in so frail a tenement, that now threatens to dissolve. Can our prayers win from Thee the life of our brother?" No, they could not; and a few hours after, the beloved master "expired with a deep sigh." But to this day, Mendelssohn yet speaks—speaks by that beautiful life of which, thanks to volumes like the one here noticed, we are permitted to know so much.

MUSICAL REMAINS OF THE ANCIENT CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

SOME wise body has told us that man is a bundle of habits; he might have added—and of traditions. There is surely no more prevailing source of opinion and action than what our forefathers have thought and done. Popular customs, popular superstitions, popular feelings, all bear testimony to this—living, as they do, even after their origin is lost in the dim past. It may be safely concluded that no great epoch has occurred in the history of our island, even to the remote pagan times, but has left behind it its traces in custom, superstition, and popular feeling.

It would be indeed rather a matter for surprise than otherwise if the ancient pre-Gregorian Church of England had left no traces amongst us but the old material fabrics to be seen to this day in Cornwall. If vestiges of pagan times are still to be detected amongst us, it would indeed be strange if that ancient Church had left behind it not a foot-print in the feelings, customs, and uses of the people. Think—it was founded, if not indeed verily by St. Paul himself, at least by one who must have been alive with the Apostle. Then, it was that Church that had brought the first British Christians “out of darkness into marvellous great light,”—that had supplanted pagan cruelty by Christians kindness. It was the nation’s first love, and when Gregory choose to treat our land as infidel, and sent his haughty Italian priests to bully the national Church, and quarrel with her Bishops on the mighty important matter whether Easter should be a fixed or a moveable feast—important in one sense, however, as showing that from the very first, we drew no church life-blood from Rome—are we to suppose our sturdy forefathers bowed and scraped to the foreigners, and asked them to supply them with National Church customs and uses? Nay, would not the heart of ancient Christian England throb quicker and quicker at the sense of indignities and injustice cast on their own Bishops? Would not every custom of their own Church become dearer and dearer to the Christian people as the tide of tyranny rose against their own National Church? Those who lived in our island in those early days must have been very different to us now, if they did not feel their hearts uprise within them against the overbearing of strangers, made powerful by foreign help or native treachery, and their love for the old ways made stronger and stronger in proportion. And look down the vista of history—was there anything in the conduct of the exotic Church, when it had crushed out the rival native hierarchy, to win over the people of England and make them forget their old love? If there happened a time of national mismanagement and misgovernment, the Pope of Rome and his Legate were sure to be in the thick of the muddle, If the Sovereign of the day threatened to play false to his people, the rulers of the exotic Church were on tiptoe to rush in and turn the chance to their own advancement. A weak King made a bold Pope. As King went in, Pope came out like the little weather-telling men and women. The old people’s ballads show us the feeling all this engendered and kept alive in the people’s heart. No such never-wearying source of mirth and merriment as the discomfiture and trouble of a poor Bishop, no such well-worn whetstone for wit as the Churchmen. Truly there was no evidence of any such change of popular feeling as would have caused the people to forget the old Church. Now in what form might we naturally expect the memories of the ancient Church would live? Not in ritual; the exotic Church contrived to get power sufficient to thrust in its own ritual into every Church in the land. Surely we may expect to find the ancient tradition living, if anywhere, in music—music that can find a well-nigh imperishable name in a people’s heart and feelings. Now it so happens that there do exist two musical uses whose origin can only be traced to the existence of some pre-Gregorian form of worship in our island. The first is the special use of people’s response; and what would the people retain in heart and memory longer and more lovingly than the way in which the people made answer of old? Across Yorkshire, and to a less degree in the neighbouring districts, did universally prevail, and still does prevail where the old custom has not been broken up, by the introduction of the more orderly but less venerable monotone—the custom of answering in uninflected speech. It is not the monotone of our Cathedrals, which is only the normal and simplest form of recitative, with a tendency to break out into melodic ending, so running into the plain chant more fully developed in the preces. In the Yorkshire custom, the responder takes his own one-tone irrespective of his neighbour’s tone, but each holds that tone without variation: being simple speech, without inflection, the articulation predominates over the tone, so to say, to such an extent that the musical ear is not tortured by the sense of discord the custom when described on paper seems to promise. This Yorkshire use is clearly and distinctly a Church use, as clearly and distinctly not a Roman Church use. The use of what Church, then, can it be but that of the ancient pre-Gregorian Church, living still in a district once under British kings, whose subjects—some of them—ravished tumuli even now from time to time proclaim in emblems—died in the faith of Christ.

By even stronger links can we connect with the ancient Church the old tunes that were first wedded to the metrical version of the Psalms of Sternhold and his co-labourers. We may clear the ground by showing whence these venerable melodies could not have come. First, though we find them in the earliest psalm-tune books called “The Church Tunes,” they most certainly did not come from the dominant Church of Gregory’s introduction. We have in our hands, through the labours of Morrell and others, the whole body of the Latin Mediæval hymnody, and did we not also possess a vast number of the original tunes to which these hymns were sung, we should still see at once that they never could by any possibility have been sung to the 8,6,8,6 Iambic measure so generally prevailing in old English psalm-tunes as to be called specially “the common measure.” Secondly, we may also say as positively, that “The Church Tunes” were not secular ballad tunes, as were a large proportion of the tunes in Marôt’s and Beza’s Psalter, and as a larger proportion would have been had not Calvin protested against the ill-assorted wedding of secular and sacred, and put forth Goudimel to supply sacred tunes for sacred verses, the doing of which cost the good composer his life, and indignities to his dead body, in the massacre of St. Bartholomew. True, the common measure—“the people’s vulgar verse,” as Archbishop Parker calls it—is the measure of Chevy Chase and the majority of our other story ballads, but quite sufficient is known of our old ballads to enable us to assert with confidence that no trace whatsoever of “The Church Tunes” is to be found amongst them. Besides there is the special and peculiar construction of the tune that entirely negatives the supposition of its identity with the old secular ballad—the peculiar use of syncopation by itself is sufficient for our decision. Thirdly, we may at once discard Sir J. Hawkins’s blind supposition. “With respect to the author of those original melodies, published in the more early impressions of the version of Sternhold and Hopkins, we are somewhat to seek. It is probable that in so important a service as this seemed to be, the aid of the ablest professors of music was called in.” Yes, called in truly was this aid, not to compose, but to harmonize these what Hawkins himself calls “The Ancient Church Melodies” in strange contradiction to his own suggestion. The very year after the Metrical Psalter first appeared, “with apt notes to sing them withal,” came forth Day’s (1563) four-part Psalter, the first of that long succession of harmonies by the greatest living composers to the old tunes, and others that from time to time were added to them. Is it possible that these harmonists would agree to dignify the melodies of their contemporaries or immediate predecessors by the title of "The Church Tunes," and would lavish on them all their skill, ingenuity and learning in setting and resetting them? Impossible, surely. One word more upon that title. We have seen that the old tunes could not have got their prefix from use in the Romish Church, the measures of the Latin hymns would altogether preclude their ever being "Church Tunes" in the Mediæval Church, and strangely enough, they never had authoritative entry into the Reformed Church. "Allowed to be sung in churches" is the very farthest any editor dared to print on his old version. Not one single word of any rubric even hints at the existence of such a thing; in fact, the versions of the "Veni Creator," in the Ordination Service, are the only representatives of hymnody in a prayer-book. And if we look at the title-pages of our earlier psalters, though some do say of the tunes that they are "sung in churches," others give as their purpose "for the encrease of virtue and abolishing of other vayne and triflyng ballads, to the use of the Godly Christians recreating themselves in stede of fond and unseemly ballades," and so on—in fact, for home rather than Church use. And yet there stands the oft repeated phrase, "The Church Tunes." What Church? If not the Roman Church—if not the Reformed Church—what Church but the ancient pre-Gregorian Church of England? Is it concluding too much from all these premises that of the forty or so tunes that were first wedded to the metrical psalter in 1562, the English portion—(for a few chiefly of peculiar metre, we know, came from France and Germany)—the English portion contains ancient melodies that had lived in the people's heart and been handed down traditionally from the days of the Ancient Church of England.

The Druids are said to have committed their sacred sayings and moral precepts to verse, that they might be the more easily retained in the memories of the people. Have we in a "Kentish Tune," a "Cheshire Tune," a "Glasenburie Tune," the chant used to some primitive psalter that conveyed the thought of the psalms in the "people's vulgar verse," for the same purpose of storing those thoughts in the memory?

That no relic, however slight, of such primitive psalter remained clinging about the tune is no argument against a former union.

Verbal language is for time and place; melody is a language that knows no such beginnings or endings. Over and over again, so to speak, must the old tongue have been turned to a new one, but the tune would live on, "though men might come and men might go," clinging to the ground itself, almost like the daisies they trod underfoot, cherished for dim, perhaps but half comprehended, memories that grew upon it, hallowed by an indefinite feeling that it still echoed with a protest against tyranny and oppression. And how completely would the bringing forth to light once again these old tunes out of the recesses of the people's hearts and memories be in accordance with the whole tone and tenour of the Reformation. For what was that great movement? It was the cleansing away from the Church all that was false and new and foreign, and restoring all that was true and old and national. It was the building up on God's word, of Catholic truth and Church custom, so as to form the "national or particular Church of England." In essentials, God's Word was the final court of appeal; in non-essentials, national feeling was first consulted. If such traditional Church-tunes did exist, the Reformation must needs have brought them to light; and, moreover, in exactly the way that they did come forth. It would have been quite as much at variance with the spirit of the Reformation to have authorized the use of metrical paraphrases of the Psalms, when the necessarily more faithful prose translation could be recited in chant—quite as much at variance with its spirit this, as to have wholly ignored the existence of the old tunes and the metrical versions, whose metre, doubtless, was prescribed by these tunes. "Allowed to be sung in Churches,"—and sung in Churches they were from the beginning,—exactly seems to be the position the spirit of the great movement would have assigned to them. Of course it may be urged that all this is but circumstantial evidence. Of what but circumstantial evidence does the case admit? Here are two facts. 1st, To this day exists in a large district—a district specially rich in ancient British memorials—a peculiar mode of people's Church response, distinct and separate from the Cathedral preces on the one hand, and the response of ordinary speech on the other. 2nd, That at the time of the Reformation there were found ready to hand when required certain "Church Tunes," not of the previously dominant Romish Church, yet somehow of authority and mark sufficient to demand the utmost skill of successive leading musicians in their setting and resetting. Let those who can show of what Church this was the people's Church response—these the "Church Tunes," unless of the ancient pre-Gregorian Church of England.

J. POWELL METCALFE.

It is satisfactory to find that the social position of those who own a pianoforte or harmonium is now beginning to be thoroughly recognised, for respectability was some few years ago defined as belonging only to persons who "kept a gig." Mr. Normansell, Secretary of the South Yorkshire Miners' Association, in his recent examination before the select Committee appointed to enquire into the supply of coal, says "Fifteen years ago it was scarcely possible to find a collier who could write his name, and now every child he had could read and write. A great number owned their own houses as freeholders, and the system was on the increase." Some of them had pianos and harmoniums, and even perambulators. He looked upon the piano as a cut above the perambulator." Had Mr. Normansell omitted to supply us with his own opinion on the subject, by his assertion that some had pianos and harmoniums, and even perambulators, it might have been imagined that he considered carriages of any kind ranked above musical instruments; but his declaration that he "looked upon the piano as a cut above the perambulator" is a delicate compliment to our art which we are certain will be universally appreciated.

We are glad to hear that the meeting in aid of the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind, held at the Mansion House, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor, on the 30th June, was attended by such a successful result. The Marquis of Westminster, in the course of his address to the meeting, stated that the number of blind throughout the country was estimated at about 30,000, and of these he believed that only 2,250, were instructed or assisted. The object of this College is so to educate persons thus afflicted as to enable them to maintain themselves by teaching music and tuning pianofortes. The subscriptions received amounted to about £1,000, and the Committee have now £6,000, towards the £25,000, which will be required. It is sincerely to be hoped that the efforts of those who have exerted themselves in this benevolent cause will be tangibly rewarded by the collection of a sum amply sufficient to place so desirable an Institution upon a permanent basis.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA.

DURING the past month this establishment has imitated the rival Opera-house by having its "Shah night" when, as before, scraps of lyrical works were given, for the purpose of displaying the talents of Mdlle. Titens and Madame Christine Nilsson, His Majesty, however, missing as much as he conveniently could of the entertainment by arriving at twenty minutes past nine o'clock. Amongst the most successful revivals has been Ambroise Thomas's "Mignon," other more popular Operas having sufficed to fill up the season until the final night, Saturday the 19th ult., when "Le Nozze di Figaro" was given for the benefit of Mdlle. Titens.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

THE production of Auber's sparkling Opera "Les Diamans de la Couronne," with Madame Patti in the part of Caterina, was naturally looked forward to as the great event of the season; but the version of this composition submitted to the audience of the Royal Italian Opera on the 3rd ult., could have satisfied none but the vocalists and the conductor. In the first place the work suffers from the heavy recitatives, composed according to the "serious" Italian Opera model, by Signor Vianesi; but this we could forgive were Auber's music left untouched. So far from this being the case, however, in addition to ruthlessly cutting out portions of the original, pieces are taken from the composer's early Operas, "La Neige," and "Leicester," and introduced without, as we can perceive, the slightest reason; then a duet and some songs written especially for the occasion by Signor Vianesi, are dragged in with as much coolness as if the Italian Opera stage were merely intended as a platform for the display of the caprices of singers; and, perhaps worst of all, the music of Sebastiano, composed by Auber for a tenor, has been mutilated and altered to please the baritone, Signor Cotogni. In spite of all these artistic offences, however, the Opera was listened to with the utmost delight, for Madame Patti's vocalisation throughout was simply perfect, and Madame Monbelli, although somewhat cold, gave the music with admirable grace and finish, especially distinguishing herself in the beautiful duet with Madame Patti, "Dans les défilés des Montagnes" (we cannot persuade ourselves to give the Italian title) which was deservedly encored. With the exception of Signor Bettini, who was at least painstaking, as he ever is, the less that is said of the male characters the better. To compensate for the shortcomings in the presentation of this Opera, a fine performance of Meyerbeer's "L'Etoile du Nord" has been given, Madame Patti's charming acting and singing in the principal part drawing forth the most enthusiastic applause from one of the most crowded audiences of the season. The début of Mdlle. Pezzotta, as Amelia, in "Un Ballo in Maschera," on the last night but three of the season, was an unmistakable proof how little the management reckoned upon her success; but she secured some genuine applause in many parts of the Opera, and displayed a voice which (presuming that the tremolo so constantly marring some of her best singing was partially due to nervousness) may yet be turned to good account. The establishment closed on Saturday, the 26th ult.

NATIONAL MUSIC MEETINGS AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

THESE interesting meetings are exhibiting a gradual and healthy development, which cannot fail to give assurance of ultimate success. The grand Challenge Prize was this year well contested; and it may fairly be said that a visible improvement over last season was exhibited in nearly every class. There is still some room for improvement in the rules and regulations; which improvements, if report may be trusted, will be effected before the next year's competitions take place. They consist of dividing the prizes for the Single Voice Competitions into first and second, and removing the restrictions which have hitherto limited the candidates to those who have not received and fulfilled public engagements more than twelve months previous to the competitions. This limitation has always appeared an unwise one, considering that public singers of the second class, and not merely promising pupils, are the persons who require recognition and encouragement. All who know anything about the matter must have seen that whereas one or two public singers have gained a position in the musical world, there are many others hardly less good who spend their whole life in the constant and vain endeavour to gain an adequate recognition. Of course this must ever be the case to a certain extent; but the aim of such meetings as these should be, as far as possible, to lessen the disproportion. Hitherto pupils, more or less promising, have competed for and received prizes. In the future it is to be hoped singers will take their place.

Perhaps the most satisfactory exhibition of training and real musical culture was afforded by the Male Voice Choirs and the two great choirs which competed for the Thousand Pound Prize. In both these classes it would seem next to impossible to hear finer singing than was exhibited on this occasion. Should, however, the report be correct that foreign choirs are likely to enter the lists next year, it is to be hoped that the unaccountable lethargy of the celebrated Yorkshire choirs will be at once thrown off, and patriotism succeed in effecting what ordinary emulation has failed to do.

The prizes were awarded as follows:

SOPRANO SOLO SINGERS.—Judges: Sir Julius Benedict, Signor Ardit, Herr Ganz. Prize:—Miss Jessie Jones. Miss E. Tomsett was specially commended.

TENOR SOLO SINGERS.—Judges: Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. H. Leslie, Mr. Hullah. Prize:—Mr. Frank Gifford. Mr. C. Wilkinson was specially commended.

JUVENILE WIND BANDS.—Judges: Messrs. D. and F. Godfrey, Signor Ardit. Prize:—The Band of the Marylebone Schools, Southall.

CONTRALTO SOLO SINGERS.—Judges: Sir Julius Benedict, Signor Ardit, Messrs. Barnby, Hullah, Leslie. Prize:—Miss Bolingbroke. Miss Minnie Simpson was specially commended.

BASS AND BARITONE SINGERS.—Judges: Sir Julius Benedict, Signor Ardit, Messrs. Barnby, Hullah, Leslie. Prize:—Mr. H. E. Thorndike. Messrs. P. Ley Greaves, C. Price, and E. W. Crothy were specially commended.

BRASS BANDS.—Judges:—Messrs. Barnby, Leslie, F. Godfrey. 1st Prize: The Brass Band of the Royal Artillery, Woolwich. 2nd Prize: The Cairow Works Band. 3rd Prize: The Band of the Gloucestershire Artillery.

CHORAL SOCIETIES NOT EXCEEDING 200 VOICES.—Judges: Sir Julius Benedict, Messrs. Leslie, Barnby. First Prize: The Stepney Tonic Sol-Fa Association. 2nd Prize: The South London Choral Association. The Dalston Choral Association was specially commended.

TRUMPET SOLO PLAYERS.—Judges: Sir Julius Benedict, Signor Ardit, Mr. Cousins. Prize:—Mr. W. Wilmore.

CHURCH AND CHAPEL CHOIRS.—Judges: Sir J. Goss, Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. J. L. Hatton. Prize:—Saint Nicholas Church Choir, Liverpool.

MALE VOICE CHORAL SOCIETIES.—Judges: Sir Julius Benedict, Messrs. Barnby and Leslie. 1st Prize: The Liverpool Representative Choir. 2nd Prize: The Bristol Choral Union.

CHORAL SOCIETIES NOT EXCEEDING 500 VOICES.—Judges: Sir J. Goss, Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. Barnby. 1st Prize: The South Wales Choral Union. 2nd Prize: The Tonic Sol-Fa Association Choir.

To Mr. Willert Beale, the founder of these meetings, a special tribute of praise is due for his admirable management. The authorities of the Crystal Palace also deserve the warmest commendation for so ably carrying out the details of this great undertaking.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

THE annual public concert of this Institution, which was given at the Hanover Square Rooms on Saturday morning the 26th ult., before a large and highly appreciative audience, afforded ample proof of the excellent system of tuition now pursued in every department of study in the Academy. The eminent pianoforte players who have been educated in this National School of Music sufficiently attest the attention which has ever been given to this instrument; but we have now to bear testimony to the talent of the many singers who have already made a name beyond the walls of the Institution, to the still unknown pupils, who gave evidence at this concert of the artistic training to which they are subjected, and to the manifest improvement in the choir, a point which we consider of the utmost importance. The length of the programme prevents the possibility of our doing more than name a few of the most prominent performances; but Mr. Walter Fitton, in the first movement of Beethoven's Concerto, in E flat, Miss Curtis, in the last two movements of Mendelssohn's Concerto in D minor, and Miss Connolly, in the first movement of Schumann's Concerto, in A minor (the last-named student receiving a justly merited tribute of applause which the most experienced pianist might have envied), reflected such honour upon themselves and the Institution as to warrant us in anticipating the highest results in their future. An excellent rendering of the last two movements of Spohr's "Duo Concertante," in B minor, for two violins, by Messrs. Reed and Szczepanowski, was one of the most attractive features of the concert; and amongst the vocalists may be mentioned with warm commendation, Misses Beasley, Nessie Goode, Jessie Jones, Mayfield, Llewellyn Bagnall, Messrs. Guy, Howells, Dudley Thomas, Pope and Wadmore. The compositions of the pupils were the first movement of a Symphony in C (Roberts), the first movement of a Symphony in B minor (Florence Marshall), a part-song (Oliveria Prescott) two vocal pieces from a choral symphony in E minor (Wingham), and an Andante and Scherzo from a Symphony in C minor (Eaton Fanning), the two last named students having already received silver medals from the Institution, and Mr. Fanning having been elected "Mendelssohn Scholar." That due attention is paid to the organ in the Academy was evidenced by the efficient rendering on that instrument of J. S. Bach's Fugue in C minor by Mr. Done, a son of the well-known organist of Worcester Cathedral. The concert was conducted with much ability and judgment by Mr. Walter Macfarren. We append the list of prizes, which were distributed by Mrs. Gladstone, from which it will be seen that a very large amount of recognised talent in the Academy was necessarily unrepresented at this performance.

FEMALE DEPARTMENT.—Silver Medals: Miss Emily A. Troup (Pianoforte), Miss Elizabeth Connolly (Pianoforte); Miss Amy E. Turner Burnett (Pianoforte), Miss Mary Taylor (General Progress); Miss Jessie Jones (Singing); Miss Sarah A. Goode (Singing). Bronze Medals: Misses Emma Cornish, Isabella W. McCarty, Eliza J. Hopkins, Emma L. Beasley, Llewellyn Bagnall, Alice Mary Curtis, Lavinia Sheehan, Johanna Ludovici, Beata Francis. Books: Misses Helen Pamphilon, Ellen Edridge, Maria Combs, Ethel Harraden, Catherine Beaumont, Mary Roffe, Clara Buley, Ellen Hancock, Ellinor Blake, Edith Brand, Alice Chapman, Janie Burrough, Hannah Edouard, Mary E. Butterworth, Mrs. Florence Marshall. Letters of Commendation: Misses Louisa A. Turner, Jane Whitaker, Constance Harper, Annie Bradley, Elizabeth L. Rothwell, Marion Green, Fanny Boxell. Sterndale Bennett Prize (Purse, containing Ten Guineas): Miss Annie Jane Martin. Highly Commended: Miss Agnes A. Channell (Silver Medallist, 1872).

MALE DEPARTMENT.—Silver Medals: Master Harry Walker (Pianoforte); Mr. W. A. Howells (Singing). Bronze Medals: Messrs. F. Weekes, F. Done, B. E. Elmenhorst, J. L. Wadmore, H. A. Pope. A Prize Violin Bow (kindly given to the Institution by Mr. James Tubbs, of Wardour Street); Mr. J. H. Reed. Books: Messrs. T. Matthay, H. W. Little, A. J. Jackson, E. Hinchcliffe, H. R. Rose, D. Thomas, J. A. Breeden, A. G. Jopp, R. George, L. N. Parker, L. Szczepanowski, C. J. Regan, A. Rhodes, J. H. Roberts. Sterndale Bennett Scholarship (Two Years' Free Education in the Institution): Master Tobias Augustus Matthay (re-elected in April last). Westmorland Scholarship (Ten Pounds towards the cost of a Year's Instruction): Awarded to Miss Emma L. Beasley. Potter Exhibition (Twelve Pounds towards the cost of a Year's Instruction): Awarded to Miss Florence Baglehole. Mendelssohn Scholarship (Twenty Pounds per annum for Two Years): Awarded to Mr. Eaton Fanning.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE seventh concert, which took place on the 23rd June, afforded Herr Jael an opportunity of showing his high qualities as a pianist of the modern school in Brahms's Concerto, a work recently performed with much success by Miss Baglehole (of the Royal Academy of Music) at the Crystal Palace. The programme also included Mozart's so-called "Jupiter" Symphony and Beethoven's Symphony in F (No. 8). At the eighth and last concert of the season, on the 7th ult., the performance commenced with C. P. E. Bach's Sinfonia in D major, a composition historically interesting in the highest degree, as shadowing forth the great works based upon this form which have followed it. The selection from Rode's 8th violin concerto was well played by Mr. Colyns; and Mendelssohn's Rondo in B minor was dashed off with a brilliancy of touch and energy by Madame Carreno-Saurel which pleased the general audience more than the judicious few. Beethoven's Symphony in A, No. 7, was carefully rendered, and Mr. G. A. Macfarren's Overture "St. John the Baptist" (of which we spoke on its first performance at the British Orchestral Society), elicited the warmest marks of approbation. Mr. W. G. Cusins conducted with his accustomed skill and judgment.

CHURCH CHORAL SOCIETY OF LONDON.

THE concert given by this Society on the 22nd ult., at Exeter Hall, was, considering all things, a decided success. The first part of the programme was occupied by Sullivan's Oratorio, "The Prodigal Son;" the soloists being Miss Isabel Weale, Miss Marion Severn, Mr. Stedman, and Mr. F. A. Bridge, the last mentioned gentleman having generously undertaken, at a moment's notice, the part previously allotted to Mr. Thurley Beale, who was unavoidably prevented from appearing. Miss Isabel Weale, who has recently come into somewhat prominent notice in connection with Mr. Barnby's daily concerts at the Royal Albert Hall, sang with remarkable spirit, and gained great applause for her rendering of the soprano air, "O that thou hadst hearkened," and her singing of "With verdure clad," in the second part, called forth a twice repeated encore. In the contralto solo, "Love not the world," Miss Marion Severn was also highly successful. But the chief burden of the solo portion of the work falls upon the tenor and baritone. Mr. Stedman, whose reputation is increasing steadily and surely, sang the tenor airs with a skill and feeling which left nothing to be desired, and, especially in the one beginning "How many hired servants of my father's," deeply impressed the audience. Mr. Bridge's excellent baritone voice was shown to advantage in the airs, "Trust in the Lord" and "For this my son." The duets for tenor and bass, "Father, I have sinned" and "My son is yet alive," and the quartet, "The Lord is nigh," were most effective, and elicited much applause. The two principal choruses, "O that men would praise the Lord" and "Thou, O Lord, art our Father," were sung with vigour and precision, and also the chorus accompanying the tenor air, "Let us eat and drink." The second part was very brief, and consisted of a few sacred airs and anthems. A recitative and air, "The soft southern breeze," from Barnby's "Rebekah," was exquisitely sung by Mr. Stedman, and Mr. Vernon Linley gave "Is not His word like a fire," from "Elijah," and Gounod's "Nazareth," with a power which time and experience will further develop. We were also most favourably impressed by the singing of Mr. Percy Hamilton, whose rendering of the tenor air "Come unto Him," from Leslie's "Immanuel," showed much taste and vocal capability. Mr. Edwin Smyth, organist of the Society, presided at the organ, the solos being ably accompanied by Mr. H. Parker on the pianoforte. The whole was under the direction of Mr. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, the honorary conductor of the Society, and of Mr. G. Freke Smyth, one of the honorary secretaries.

THE London Gregorian Choral Association held a Festival Service on Wednesday evening the 9th ult., at the Church of St. Philip, Battersea Park, which was filled with a highly respectable and appreciative congregation. Before the service, the honorary organist to the Association, Mr. C. Warwick Jordan, Mus. Bac., Oxon, who presided at the organ, played a selection from Spohr, followed by an extempore voluntary. The choir had meanwhile assembled at the west end of the church, under the direction of Mr. S. Gee, R.A.M. At the closing cadence of the voluntary a trumpet led off the first strain of the processional hymn, "Angulare Fundamentum." This was taken up by the choir and the congregation, the succeeding verses being sung alternately by the boys, led by the trumpet; and by the men and congregation, led by an ophicleide, the organ accompanying. The Psalms for the evening were sung to the 5th Tone, with precision, the "glorias" coming out with much richness, the congregation joining heartily. These were judiciously and effectively accompanied on the organ, with the occasional use of the brass instruments. The "Magnificat," and "Nunc Dimittis" were sung to an arrangement, by Mr. Monk, of the 1st Tone. In the 2nd verse, "He hath shewed strength with His arm" &c, the effect of the instruments was very pleasing. The Versicles, by Tallis, were sung beautifully both by minister and choir, and very generally and heartily joined in by the congregation, the Plain-song being written for the trebles and congregation with the usual melody, taken by the tenors. Mendelssohn's Chorale, "Now thank we all our God," sung before the sermon, was quite a relief from the stiff and ragged hymn after the 3rd Collect ("Celi Deus Sanctissime.") The choir and congregation, organist and organ, epichleide and trumpet seemed inspired with its beauty. The pretty organ parts came out very distinctly and with much delicacy. The address, which was appropriate to the occasion, was delivered by the Vicar. The rev. gentleman described the organ of voice and its mode of action in emitting musical sounds, and dwelt upon the desirability and practicability of congregational singing. Want of space prevents us from following the vicar's address, which was decidedly interesting and instructive, though we cannot agree with him in some of his remarks on music. After the address the hymn "O quanta qualia sunt illa Sabbatta" was sung. Our observations upon the hymn "Celi Deus" may be applied to this also. The service closed with the "Te Deum," by Alfieri, the music of which was sombre, heavy, unpleasing, and un-English.

Mr. JOHN THOMAS'S morning concert (which was given at the residence of the Marquis of Downshire on the 30th June) attracted a large and fashionable audience. The favourite duet for two harps in E flat minor (played by Mr. Thomas and Mr. Wright), the duet for harp and pianoforte on airs from "La Favorita" (in which the concert-giver was joined by Mr. W. G. Cusins), and a selection from his harp studies, displayed Mr. Thomas's powers, both as a composer and executant, to the utmost advantage, and in all these pieces he was warmly and deservedly applauded. He also performed two of Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte" and some Welsh melodies, arranged by himself for the harp, which proved highly effective. The vocalists were Miss Edith Wynne, Madame Nita Gaetano, Mdle. Elene Angèle, Madame Patey, Signor Gardoni, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. Lewis Thomas and M. Jules Lefort. Solos were also successfully given by Mdle. Theresa Castellan (violin) and Mr. W. G. Cusins (pianoforte). Sir Julius Benedict, Signor Pinsuti and Mr. W. H. Thomas accompanied with their well known ability.

A good word must be said for an entertainment produced during the past month at the Polytechnic Institution, entitled "The Shah and the Persians at Home." Apart from the excellent insight it affords of Persian life, by the exhibition of several views and the introduction of innumerable anecdotes, it is highly interesting on account of the performance of some genuine Persian melodies, never before heard in London, which have been specially harmonized for the occasion by Mr. E. Frewin. The lecture, which is admirably delivered by Mr. King, is likely we think, to become extremely popular.

A highly successful performance of Sullivan's "Prodigal Son" was given by the blind pupils of the London Society for Teaching the Blind to Read, at the Institution, Upper Avenue Road, Regent's Park, on the 27th June. Much credit is due both to the scholars and their able teacher, Mr. Edwin Barnes, for so efficient a presentation of a work of this pretension; and praise must also be awarded for the careful manner in which the pieces in the second part, which was miscellaneous, were rendered. The chair was occupied on the occasion by Sir Thomas Gladstone, Bart.

It is with regret we record the death of Mr. William Miller, the organist of St. Giles, Cripplegate. He was the first organist of the Sacred Harmonic Society, and held that post for some thirteen years, and was appointed organist of St. Giles, Cripplegate, in 1832, when he was selected from 19 candidates. As a musician he ranked high, and was considered an excellent organ player of the Handelian school. He was also a frequent contributor to the columns of the City Press.

On the 14th ult the South Wales Choral Union visited Marlborough House, by express desire of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. The procession, marshalled into order by Mr. Brinley Richards, was received by Canon Jenkins, and the singers having taken up their places on the lawn, several pieces were excellently rendered by the choir, amongst the most effective of which were "The Ash Grove," "The March of the Men of Harlech" and Mr. Brinley Richards's two compositions "Let the hills resound," and "God bless the Prince of Wales." Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales expressed themselves highly gratified by the singing of the choir.

We record, with regret, the decease of Mr. Samuel Smith, of Bradford, which occurred during the past month, in his sixty-eighth year. Mr. Smith's indefatigable energy in promoting the improvement of hymnody, the extension of choirs and the introduction of organs into dissenting chapels in the West Riding, will make his name long remembered by all who have at heart the welfare of sacred music. He is also known as the editor of a West Riding Tune Book, and of several collections of chants and hymn tunes, which have a large local circulation.

The concerts of the Welsh Choral Union, the last of which was given on the 14th ult., at the Hanover Square Rooms, have been uniformly well attended and highly attractive. At this final concert two genuine Welsh vocalists, "Eös Morlais" and "Mynyddog," contributed much to the success of the entertainment; and, in addition to the excellent choral singing of the members of the Union, solos were given by Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Angèle, Miss L'Estrange, Miss Elmore, and Mr. Enderby. The instrumentalists were Mdle. Jansen, Mr. W. H. Thomas, and Mr. John Thomas.

Mr. FREDERIC ARCHER gave a concert at the Hanover Square Rooms on the 9th ult., which was well attended. Mr. Archer, who is organist to the Alexandra Palace Company, played only one solo upon that instrument, a "Grand Overture in D," by Batiste, the performance of which was in every respect highly satisfactory. "Drei Fantasiestücke," by Schumann, for pianoforte and clarinet, were finely rendered by the concert-giver and Mr. Lazarus; and a double duet for four performers on two pianofortes (two pieces by Benedict, arranged by Lindsay Sloper), was admirably given by Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. Lindsay Sloper, Mr. F. H. Cowen, and Mr. Frederic Archer. The vocalists were Mdle. Carola, Mrs. Weldon, Signori Gardoni and Caravoglia, M. Jules Lefort, Messrs. Vernon Rigby and Corney Grain; and the Alexandra Palace Company's Orchestra contributed some instrumental pieces with much effect.

PRINCE PONIATOWSKI, who died in London during the past month, had made a name as a composer not only of several popular vocal pieces, but of a number of Operas and Masses. Few of these works are, however, much known, save the Opera "Gelmiua" (the partial success of which was entirely owing to the excellent singing of Madame Adelina Patti in the principal part) and a Mass in F, which certainly contained some highly effective music. The funeral, which took place at Chislehurst, was attended by some of the most eminent operatic singers.

MISS EDITH WYNNE'S concert, which took place on Wednesday evening the 9th ult., at St. George's Hall, drew a large audience. The principal attraction in the programme was the performance of Signor Randegger's Operetta, "The Rival Beauties," under the direction of the composer, Miss Wynne sustaining the chief character, supported by Mdle. Elena Angèle, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mr. J. G. Patey, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. The exceedingly pleasing music in this unpretending little work was excellently sung throughout, and it was received with warm and well deserved approbation. The Operetta was preceded by a miscellaneous selection, in which Madame Pauline Rita, Mr. A. Mathison, and Eös Morlais contributed vocal solos with much success, and instrumental pieces were given by Mr. Brinley Richards and Miss Bessie Waugh (pianoforte), Mr. John Thomas (harp), and Mr. Radcliffe (flute), with their well known ability.

On Tuesday the 24th June, the exercise for the higher degree of Mus. Doc. was performed in the College Chapel, Dublin, by Mr. Thackeray (Mus. Bac., Oxon), who had previously passed the usual examination. The exercise consists of solos for soprano, tenor and bass, a duet for tenor and bass, and choruses in five and eight parts, the whole being arranged for full band. The degree was conferred on the following day.

AN Organ Recital was given on Wednesday evening the 9th ult., at Brixton Parish Church, by Mr. Geo. Shinn (Organist of the Church), when a selection from the works of Bach, Beethoven, Batiste, Haydn, Rink, and Wely was performed. The Choir of the Church sang several anthems during the evening. There was a very good attendance.

At a recent influential meeting, the Rev. H. W. Burrows, Vicar of Christ Church, Albany Street, presented to Mr. Roe an illuminated address, beautifully executed on vellum, by Mr. J. Slie, in the following words:—"Presented to Mr. John Roe, together with a purse of Fifty Guineas, by the Clergy, Choir, and following Members of the congregation of Christ Church, Albany Street, as a token of their respect and esteem, and of their appreciation of the singular ability and zeal with which, during the past thirty-one years, he has discharged the duties of organist at Christ Church." Here follow the signatures of the subscribers. Mr. Roe will be remembered by the older members of the profession as a

"O Lord, Thou art my God."

FULL ANTHEM FOR FOUR VOICES.

COMPOSED BY THE REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART.,

M.A., Mus. Doc., Præcentor of Hereford, and Professor of Music in the University of Oxford.

Isaiah xxv. 1.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). New York: 751, Broadway.

96.

TREBLE. mf O Lord, Thou art my God, Thou art my

ALTO. mf O Lord, Thou art my God, Thou art my

TENOR (Sve. lower). mf O Lord, Thou art my God, O . . . Lord, BASS. mf O Lord, Thou art my God, Thou art my

ACCOMP. mf ad lib.

Scri

God, Thou art my God; I will ex - alt Thee, I will

God, Thou art my God; I will ex - alt . . Thee, I will

. . Thou art my God; I will ex - alt . . Thee, I will

God, Thou art my God; I will ex - alt . . Thee, I will praise Thy Name; for Thou hast praise Thy Name; for Thou hast done, for praise . . Thy Name; for Thou hast done wonder-ful things, . . won-der-ful praise Thy Name; for Thou hast done wonderful things, for Thou hast done won-der-ful things, hast . . done won-der-ful things; Thy

Thou hast done won-der-ful things; Thy things, won-der-ful things; Thy done, Thou hast done . . won-der-ful things; Thy coun-sels of old . . are faith-ful-ness and truth. O

coun-sels of old . . are faith-ful-ness and truth. O

coun-sels of old . . are faith-ful-ness and truth. O coun-sels of old are faith-ful-ness and truth. O cres. mf

cres. mf

cres. mf

cres. mf

cres. mf

Lord, O . . Lord, Thou art my God; I will ex -

Lord, O Lord, Thou art my God; I will ex -

Lord, O Lord, Thou art my God; I will ex -

Lord, O Lord, Thou art my God; I will ex - alt

- alt Thee, I will praise . . Thy Name, I will praise, I will

- alt Thee, I will praise Thy Name, I will praise, I will

- alt Thee, I will praise Thy Name, I will praise, Thy Name, I will Thee, I will praise Thy Name, I will praise, I will praise . . . Thy Name. A - - - - - men.

praise . . . Thy Name. A - - - - - men.

praise Thy Name. A - - - - - men.

praise Thy Name. A - - - - - men.

PATENTED 1862, 1868, and 1871,
IN ENGLAND, FRANCE, PRUSSIA, AUSTRIA, BELGIUM, ITALY, AND AMERICA.

DIPLOME DE MENTION EXTRAORDINAIRE NETHERLANDS 1867.

JOHN BRINSMEAD

PATENTED 1862, 1868, AND 1871, IN ENGLAND, FRANCE, PRUSSIA, AUSTRIA, BELGIUM, ITALY, AND AMERICA.

& SONS'

GOLD MEDAL

PIANOS ❄️

THE GOLD MEDAL PARIS 1870.
LE DIPLOME DE LA MENTION EXTRAORDINAIRE
AMSTERDAM 1869.
LA MEDAILLE D'HONNEUR PARIS 1867.
PRIZE MEDAL LONDON 1862.
SILVER MEDAL NETHERLANDS 1869.

ON THE THREE YEARS SYSTEM
18, WICMORE ST LONDON W.

GUARANTEED FOR FIVE YEARS.

Illustrated Price Lists and descriptions of this invention, with opinions of the London Press and Musical Profession, forwarded by post on application.

STEAM POWER WORKS:

1, 2, 3, AND 4, CHENIES ST.; 8, LITTLE TORRINGTON ST.; AND 3, HERTFORD PLACE, LONDON.
AGENTS FOR GILBERT L. BAUER'S IMPROVED ENGLISH HARMONIUMS.

musician of no ordinary talent. He was for many years the chief musical preceptor of the family of the late King Louis Philippe, of France.

The daily orchestral concerts at the Royal Albert Hall have exhibited no falling off in interest or efficiency during the past month, either as regards the class of music performed, or the manner of its performance. An extremely classical reading of Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor was given two days in succession by Mr. E. H. Thorne, his quiet and refined rendering of this well-known work appearing to make a deep impression on the audience. On the three following days Mr. Willem Coenen gave an admirable and exciting performance of Liszt's Concerto in E flat. This fine work introduces the national anthem of Holland with great effect, and is characterised no less by enormous technical difficulties than by its intrinsic merit. The difficulties, however, completely disappeared under Mr. Coenen's supple hand, whilst the loud and prolonged applause which greeted the player testified that none of the beauties of the Concerto had been lost upon the audience. Altogether these were amongst the most enjoyable performances of the series.

REVIEWS.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Two Mazurkas, for Pianoforte. By Walter Macfarren.

MR. MACFARREN has here contributed two welcome pieces to the gradually accumulating stock of healthful music of the day. No. 1, in B flat minor, has a highly characteristic theme, which, like many of Chopin's Mazurkas, is not without a slight tinge of sadness. The second subject, in the relative major, is extremely melodious; and a third, in the tonic major, comes with delightful freshness upon the ear, after the prolonged shake upon the dominant, which holds the listener in suspense for the coming harmony. The return to the original key and subject is exceedingly effective; and a somewhat novel coda (with a change for eight bars from 3-4 to 2-4 tempo) brings the Mazurka to a most satisfactory conclusion. No. 2 commences with a quaint melody in F major, the alternate rising and falling sevenths giving much point to the theme. We like the subject in the relative minor extremely; and might cite the C natural, in the first bar on the 3rd page, as an excellent example of what is called the "true descending minorscale," the minor seventh acting, as indeed it always does, as a mere appoggiatura: in this place it has a peculiarly charming effect, followed immediately by the dominant harmony. A good point, too, is where the theme is played with the right hand, the left crossing it for the accompaniment; and, after the re-appearance of the first subject, we have some effective passages for the termination of the piece. Mr. Macfarren has written no trifles more attractive than these two unpretending Mazurkas.

Suite, pour Piano, Violon, et Violoncelle; par Agnes Zimmermann.

We have already spoken in the highest terms of this Suite when played, on two occasions, at the composer's concerts; and can conscientiously affirm that a closer knowledge of it than can possibly be gained by a public performance has materially increased our estimate of its merits. There is more skill, more constructive power, and more invention than in any one of the works of Miss Zimmermann which has yet come before us; and we sincerely trust that it may gradually make its way to the popularity it deserves. The Introduction, in D minor, leads to an "Allegro," in the same key, based upon an energetic subject, and containing some effective passages for all the instruments, a return to the opening "Andante," near the conclusion, bringing in a few bars of the Allegro theme as a Coda. The next movement, in B flat major—a "Canon à la 7ième"—is a most ingenious piece of writing, and in performance has invariably been highly successful. The Canon, commenced by the violin, and answered a 7th below by the violoncello, has a well marked subject, in 6-8 rhythm, the pianoforte part being limited to a mere accompaniment, with the exception of the last few bars, where (the canon ceasing) it dies off with fragments of the theme. The "Gavotte," which follows, starts with a most exhilarating subject, in D minor, in excellent contrast with which is a melody in the tonic major, given out by the violin, with holding notes for the other instruments. After a phrase in B minor, we have a charming change into G major; and a return to the original theme in D major, with a close upon the dominant, leads with excellent effect to the opening subject in D minor, in which key this well written and most original Gavotte concludes. An "Air" in G minor, follows, played first by the violin, with imitative passages for the violoncello, and a quiet accompaniment for the pianoforte. The melody of this instrumental song is extremely winning, and modulations into the tonic major and its relative minor give much interest to the movement. The "Gigue," in D major, which concludes the "Suite" is so spirited and tuneful as to ensure the enthusiastic applause of the most popular audience. The manner in which the animated phrases—so thoroughly characteristic of this old dance—are tossed from instrument to instrument keeps the excitement alive to its concluding note, and proves unmistakably that its composer can be merry as well as wise when occasion demands it. That this clever "Suite" will materially enhance the reputation Miss Zimmermann has already gained by her compositions cannot admit of a doubt; and being so admirable an interpreter of her own works, we may reasonably hope that the present success she has achieved will but nerve her to increased exertion in the future.

Un Fil de Perles. Grand Morceau de Concert. Par H. A. Wollenhaupt.

THIS graceful piece is so profusely embellished that its merits will scarcely be revealed by those who cannot command a fairy-like touch, combined with a power of singing an independent melody. The passages are well placed under the hand, as might be expected from so practised a writer, and the themes are extremely tuneful and refined, especially those in A flat and F minor; and the last three pages, where the melody is played with the thumb, accompanied with arpeggios, if well performed, will be found highly effective. The composition will be certain to please a drawing-room audience.

Lake and Waterfall. Part-song. Words from "All the Year Round." Composed by E. H. Thorne.

MR. THORNE has well studied his poetry before composing this Part-song, and the result is most successful. The theme is melodious, and carefully as the voice parts are written, there is an utter absence of anything like restraint. We especially like the unison passage, in the tonic minor; and the answering of the voices on the words, "Thou shouldst" is extremely effective. A point of much interest, too, is the quaint rhythm of the final phrase, which unexpectedly ends on the last note of the bar and thus gives a boldness of expression to the words in thorough consonance with the intention of the author. Compositions in which the poet and musician so truly sympathise should appeal with twofold force to intelligent listeners.

Spring Gusts. Part-song. Words by Lewis Thomas. Music by W. Henry Thomas.

AN unpretending and well written Part-song by a composer who, although new to us, is introduced by a name which should ensure for him a hearing, even if his music were not as good as it is. Mr. Thomas has set some graceful words to an appropriate melody, the harmony of which is unexceptionable throughout. The change to the tonic minor gives much freshness to the composition; and the return to the original theme is natural and effective. The future of so earnest and careful an artist will, we are assured, be watched with much interest.

LAMBORN COCK.

Humoresque, pour Piano, par Berthold Tours.

THE character of this piece scarcely perhaps justifies its title; but like all the compositions of Mr. Tours, it is excellently written, and has sufficient variety to create interest both in the performer and listener. The principal theme is light and playful, and the second subject affords a good contrast with the staccato passages which precede it. An effective point is gained by the introduction of the triplets, the energetic writing on the 6th page, especially, giving much vitality to the composition, and preparing well for the re-appearance of the opening theme. Pianists will find "Humoresque" amply repay them for the small amount of practice it demands.

Two Sketches, for the Pianoforte. By Georgina Bairnsfather.

THE composer of these two graceful sketches shows that she has been trained in a good school. We should have been better pleased if she had boldly called the first a Waltz, and the second a Mazurka, instead of putting "Tempo di Valse" and "Tempo di Mazurka" at the commencement of the respective pieces; for we see such a decided tendency in the present day, especially with young writers, to hide the fact of their having composed dance-tunes by christening them with the most fantastic titles, that it is good to remind them that the composers of the olden time gloried in the production of such works. The first "Sketch," in plain language then, is a very elegant Waltz, in F major, with a second subject in D flat, the first theme being re-introduced with the thumb of the right hand as the first note of groups of arpeggios, in the approved modern fashion. We like the Mazurka better. It commences with a highly characteristic subject in A minor, and afterwards moves with much effect into F major, the melody, particularly in the syncopated passages, being extremely pleasing. The composer will however, we are certain, thank us for pointing out the A which is printed twice over, instead of G, in the last bar of line 2. Amateurs, as a rule, have scarcely sufficient knowledge of harmony to correct even so glaring an error as this.

Loved one. Serenade. The Poetry after the German Music by Charles Salaman.

The refined and poetical vocal music of Mr. Salaman appears to be winning its way as speedily as it deserves, if we may judge from the list of his works which accompanies this song. As a rule, there is a little too much weaving in of the pianoforte with the voice in most of this composer's songs to gratify those unambitious amateurs who are content to sing a lack-a-daisical air with sufficient accompaniment to keep them in tune; but in the Serenade before us no such difficulty will prevent its achieving that popularity to which its merits certainly entitle it. The melody, commencing in B minor, is doubled in the bass for a few bars; and a charming change into the tonic major gives a passionate expression to the words which cannot fail to move the most impassive listener. The return to the minor is in true sympathy with the poetry; and in the last verse the concluding phrases in the major key have an excellent effect. As a melodious and simple vocal piece by a composer who has shown that he can be sufficiently complicated when occasion requires it, this beautiful love-song must take high rank amongst the many elegant contributions to the art which Mr. Salaman has from time to time given us.

Old English Songs for Schools. Harmonized by John Hullah.

This capital selection of twelve English songs will doubtless be highly popular in the schools for which they are intended; for there can be no question that young people (and indeed often those of more mature age) are always delighted with familiar airs. Such tunes as "The Roast Beef of Old England," "The British Grenadiers," "Hearts of Oak" &c., will be practised as a pleasure by school-boys, whilst "Part-songs for the study of Intervals" will be droned through as a duty: indeed we much question whether more is not actually learned by singing music in which the pupils take a real interest than by poring over those dry exercises which are generally to be found so plentifully scattered through class-singing books. Mr. Hullah has harmonized the songs he has taken in hand with much skill; they are all written in the treble clef, the voice-parts flow easily throughout; and the little book being published at a price within the reach of all, will no doubt command an extensive sale.

ROBERT COCKS AND CO.

Chiming May Bells. Nocturne. Composed for the Pianoforte by F. V. Kornatzki.

WHETHER this piece is or is not a "Nocturne" we leave to be discussed by those who presume to understand what the word, in its conventional acceptance, really means; but that it is a very charming little composition there cannot be a doubt. The melody, surrounded by its arpeggio accompaniment, is extremely pleasing; and in so simple a sketch we think the composer has been quite right in preserving the character with which it commences throughout, as the temptation was very great to break out into passages by no means in harmony with the original design, in order to get "contrast" by a return to the opening theme. Both on its intrinsic merits as a graceful trifle for drawing-room performance, and as a study for lightness of touch, we unhesitatingly recommend "Chiming May Bells" to amateur pianists in search of novelty.

Home Treasures. A choice selection of popular melodies, arranged as Pianoforte Duets. By William Smallwood. Nos. 1 and 2.

The list of pieces contained in this series being founded exclusively upon the melodies of songs published by one firm, we much question whether Messrs. Cocks's notion of so comprehensive a title as "Home Treasures" will agree with that of the general public. The beautiful themes bequeathed to the world by the great composers cannot be reproduced too often; and especially should they be made familiar to young people by arrangements in every possible shape. "Treasures" indeed they are, in the highest sense of the word; and we are always pleased to welcome them, even adapted for the tiniest fingers in the nursery. Apart from the objection we have stated, however, we have no fault to find with these duets. Both parts are easily and carefully written, and the fingering is accurately marked where necessary. The tunes of all the numbers of this publication are now tolerably well known; and in houses where a higher style of music is not cultivated, children will no doubt be delighted to play what they hear their elder sisters sing.

J. B. CRAMER AND CO.

Saltarello. For Pianoforte. By Charles Salaman.

THIS Saltarello has a light and playful theme which cannot fail to please, although it will tax the executive powers of amateurs if played up to the time intended by the composer. The changes of key give much freshness to the piece, especially that from D flat major to A; and an excellent effect is gained, in the return to the original subject in A flat, by enharmonically altering the dominant harmony of C sharp minor, the B sharp becoming C natural of the new key-note triad. The piece is, in our opinion, rather too long, the repetitions being somewhat overdone; but if performed as indicated, "Presto e Leggerissimo," few listeners may perhaps agree with us.

Goodwin's Handbook of Singing, for the use of Schools.

WE cannot head our notice of this little book with the name of any publisher, as the title-page merely informs us that it is "to be had of all book and music-sellers." We scarcely see any reason for its publication, as Wilhem's method of teaching singing, which it professes to explain, has been too long before the public to need a re-introduction by Mr. Goodwin; and so many systems especially adapted for class instruction have latterly obtained favour that the rule of the "fixed Do"—by which no two scales resemble each other to the eye—appears now somewhat antiquated. Of course in this work, as in all others based upon the Wilhem system, the exercises are in the key of C, and the pupil is left to find out the difficulty of seeing all the intervals of the scale in a different place when another sound is taken for the key-note. Some of the author's explanations we decidedly object to; as for instance, where in speaking of the interval of a third, he says "There are two kinds of thirds—Perfect and Imperfect. The Perfect is separated by two Tones; the Imperfect by a Tone and a Semitone only." According to this theory, a minor triad must be dissonant, because it contains an "imperfect" interval. Again we cannot endorse the truth of the sentence that "a syncopation is effected by accenting the second or fourth beats of a bar," for, in the first place, no pure syncopation can occur unless a note is commenced on the unaccented part of a bar and lengthened during the half of the next accented beat; and, in the second place, such a definition would convey the notion to a learner that syncopation could never be used in Triple time, which certainly should at least have no "fourth beat." Most of the simple songs, some of which are composed by Mr. Goodwin, are well adapted for their purpose; and, were the wording of some of the definitions re-considered, the book would be found serviceable to the admirers of Wilhem's method.

METZLER AND CO.

Te Deum. By William Spark, Mus. Doc.

THIS piece is extracted from the Practical Choirmaster, a serial which appears quarterly, and consists of original Anthems, Services, and other pieces of Church music, the whole being edited by Dr. Spark. This gentleman is so much before the world in the character of editor—choosing composers, accepting their music, nursing it through the press, and introducing it to the public—that when he appears as a producer, a particular interest centres in his name. The interest is justified by the piece before us, which is eminently pleasing throughout, generally suited to the voices, and constructed with capital regard to broad effect. The excellent resource of returning to the opening matter, when, near the end, the exactly analogous words appear, "Day by day we magnify Thee," has the admirable effect of uniting the sense of the two passages, and giving extra force to it in each place, by reference to the other. The continuance of the device is less happy, when the music of "To Thee all angels" is repeated to the words "Vouchsafe, O Lord;" since what should express the exaltation of all sentient nature, can scarcely be a just rendering of this most tender, contrite, self-denying of supplications. An earlier allusion to the same musical idea is as little pertinent to the sense, when this jubilant matter is appropriated or misappropriated to the description of the Redeemer's humility, "When Thou tookest upon Thee." A graceful episode in the key of E flat, extends from "We believe that Thou" to "bless thine heritage." It seems to utter a gentle reliance on the mercy of the last judgment, free from terror, and full of sweetest hope. The reading is perhaps unusual—the more its merit—but fully warranted by the text. As to the music of this extended passage, two things must be noted: the preparation of the suspended 9th of A flat (between bass and alto) by the 8th of B flat, on the words "number'd with Thysaints,"—a progression about whose propriety, the author's employment of it shows that doctors differ; and the employment of this key of E flat (the piece beginning and ending in F) for so long and prominent a portion of the design as it here occupies, and its bad effect being aggravated by the gradual approach to it through the key of B flat, as if folks went to church to learn the successive order of flats, F having one, B flat two, E flat three, and the like. Some excellent sounds are produced by the duplication in several places of the successive thirds of the sopranos and altos, accompanied by the tenors and basses an 8th below. This is an application to voices of an orchestral principle, which is well conceived and will have a good result. On the whole this setting of the "Te Deum" may well hold its own among compositions of a decidedly modern but by no means extravagant class.

C. JEFFERYS.

The Responses, Gloria and Sanctus from the Communion Service. Set to Music by William H. Maxfield.

This publication comprises four distinct compositions, or at least so many different settings of some if not all of the portions named of the Communion Service. They are all without pretension, and, save for a glaring false relation to the words "Thee, O," in the only music to the Sanctus, without fault. First we have all the four pieces set in E; second, the first three in E flat, there being three versions of the Kyrie, besides the needful change for its application to the 10th Commandment, so that no one is to be sung twice in succession, and a pleasant variety is thus secured; third, the same three pieces are set in F; and fourth, they are set again in E. The "Gloria," be it observed, is not the grand hymn beginning "Gloria in excelsis," but the interpolated words to be sung before the Gospel, which slightly vary according to the will of the presiding Minister, which may, probably, have controlled Mr. Maxfield's choice. We look with pleasure for a more ambitious effort from the same hand.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL AND Co.

Hymn Tunes. Composed by H. Hugo Pierson.

DEATH stays the hand of the critic that would point to vices in one who, if living, might have amended if he could not have defended them. Be they forgotten, while the merits of the late musician's work—albeit they speak clearly for themselves—afford a free and pleasant task to the commentator. We should show ourselves unable to judge the latter if we ignored the presence, in the work before us, of some incidents that are unworthy the writer of the very far greater portion, which evinces a large knowledge of music, a decidedly original feeling, a considerable power of invention, and a sense of beauty in melody as much as in harmony, which all who become acquainted with the music must reverence. The work is a second series of Hymn Tunes, consisting of thirty-six specimens, set to popular poems that are drawn from various sources. Let the question be set aside for the while, as to the desirability of multiplying tunes to the same verses, with the consequent risk of confusing the untaught singers who are supposed to take part in the hymnal music of the Church; and let these settings be regarded on their own strength, without comparison with foregone labours of other musicians in the same field, and it may fairly be stated that the strength is great, and that the interest of the series is in proportion. We remember the author's oratorio, "Jerusalem," and the effort that was apparent throughout that work to avoid precedent and to be novel though at the expense of beauty; such straining is not obvious here, art has become nature to the composer, and in seeming to be natural he has accomplished much more in this comparatively small work than was achieved in that intentionally large one. If the name of Henry Hugo Pierson is to live, as it indeed deserves, it will be remembered with brighter honour to himself in this collection of Tunes, than in the highly protensive work of one-and-twenty years ago. Some of the pieces that most agreeably impress us, are No. 5, a deeply pathetic setting of a translation of the "Dies Iræ;" No. 7, a melodious rendering of the Rev. G. Thring's "O God, the King of glory;" No. 9, best of all, a truly charming piece of music to the poem "Thou art gone up on high," by Emma Toke; No. 23, another poem by the Rev. G. Thring, "God the Father," in the music to which, the ordinary four parts were insufficient to contain the artist's meaning, so he extended the score to five, in this one instance, and the extra fullness highly enriches the effect; No. 27, Lyte's beautiful poem, "Abide with me," to the setting of which, the five bar rhythm gives marked individuality, but will not evade the poet's painful blunder against all musical necessity, of punctuating the last line of one of the later verses differently from that in all the others; the Rev. J. Marriott's "Thou, whose Almighty word," No. 30, in the treatment of which, the temptation in the metre to reproduce the tune of "God save the King" is most happily escaped; so we might go on numbering till our limits were far surpassed, and our praises were still incomplete. Poor Pierson was a genuine zealot in art; he aimed ever at the highest, and in the publication before us he has left the world matter for true admiration.

REEVES AND TURNER.

Music in play and Music in earnest. By Orlando Steed.

By the title-page we perceive that this is a lecture delivered at the Town Hall, Sudbury, and we can conscientiously say that were most of the lectures we are compelled to listen to only half as thoughtful and earnest, there would be little need for the addition of those "illustrations" without which such discourses are considered in the present day to offer no attraction to the general public. Mr. Steed, although a conscientious artist, is evidently not a musical fanatic, for he wisely commences his address by urging upon his hearers the necessity of enlarging the mind by a study of all arts, in order to work reverently and seriously in any one. "Not long ago," he says "Mr. Ella tells us, at a discussion upon Musical Education at the Society of Arts, a painter, a Royal Academician, who had received his education gratuitously, repudiated the idea of State aid for music on the ground that it was not worthy of being called an art at all. This want of comprehensiveness in those who are considered to belong to the educated classes was doubtless the cause of Channing's pregnant query, 'Did you ever know a senior wrangler who wasn't a fool?' which conveys the incontrovertible truth that exclusive or undue devotion to any kind of study, however legitimate or beneficial, cannot but cramp the powers of the intellect and narrow the sympathies of the mind." This is indeed true; and were it not for the firm belief a real lover of his art has in what Mr. Steed calls the "moral influence" of music, the chance would be small of its eventually making its way through the mist of ignorance which surrounds it. Pursuing his subject logically, illustrating his positions with much acuteness, and occasionally in most felicitous language, our author very ably proves that music is of all arts the most spontaneous, the germs of vocal music, indeed, being inseparable from articulation. "I must repeat," he says, "that while the organs for the production of effects upon the ear are innate to man, he has to go out of himself, as it were, to obtain the means of appealing to the eye. Poetry and vocal music are born with him; architecture, painting and sculpture, can only be practised when he has found out the use of tools." We regret that we have not space to follow Mr. Steed through the principal points of his very able lecture, but we cannot refrain from quoting some of his remarks respecting those who should be employed as instructors of youthful pupils, because we are certain that so much misapprehension exists upon this matter that the sooner the truth is spoken the better. "The custom," he says, "of having incompetent teachers for the young, in the hope that a more capable and expensive one will be able to put things right by and by, is another frequent cause for want of success. The rudiments of the art, unless correctly acquired at first, are rarely learnt at all. A bad position of the hands, and numberless other faults, if long persisted in, will stick to a pupil in spite of all the efforts of after years." And, speaking of eminent solo performers being engaged as teachers, he writes thus:—"Great players, independently of their disinclination, are seldom possessed of the requisite qualifications for teaching beginners of only average talent; . . . they can hardly be expected to sacrifice the maintenance of their executive proficiency, and their study of the higher branches of the art, in order to make themselves acquainted with the best method of teaching children their notes, and of arousing their dormant sensibilities." Precisely; but the delusion that they will do so is so common that it will require many years to root it out, especially with those parents and guardians who are themselves utterly ignorant of the subject for which they seek instruction. Meanwhile, however, it is good that the question should be ventilated whenever an opportunity arises; and Mr. Steed deserves every credit for the manner in which he has boldly come forward to challenge this, as well as many other conventional shams, connected with the art.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

HANDEL'S "THEODORA."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. G. A. Macfarren, in his paper on Handel's "Theodora," which appeared in the June number of your periodical, mentions the only occasions of performance of that Oratorio, I presume as far as he knew. It may be interesting to your readers to know that it was performed by the St. John's Coll. Musical Society at Cambridge, in the May Term of 1871, under the direction of Dr. G. M. Garrett.

I am, Sir, yours truly,

CHARLES J. LANGLEY.

Northampton, July 25th.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

A. B.—Apply to the Professor of Music at Oxford or Cambridge University.

NOVICE.—The Clarinet.

WALTER THOMSON.—Consult the list of Theoretical works issued by the principal music-publishers.

MUSICUS.—Write to Oxford or Cambridge University for an answer to the first question, and for the second to the Secretary of the College of Organists, 41, Queen's Square, Bloomsbury.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary; as all the notices are either collated from the local papers, or supplied to us by occasional correspondents.

CHRISTCHURCH, NEW ZEALAND.—A subscription concert was given by the Christchurch Orchestral Society in the Oddfellows' Hall, on the 8th May, which proved highly successful. The principal instrumental piece was Mozart's Jupiter Symphony, which was rendered throughout with excellent effect. Cherubini's Overture to Les Deux Journées, Rossini's Semiramide, Mozart's La Clemenza di Tito and Weber's Jubilee Overture, were also well played, and received with much applause. The vocalists were Mrs. Barry, Miss Little and Mr. Thomas Acland. An agreeable item in the programme was the singing of some part-songs, the execution of which reflected much credit upon the vocalists. The concert was extremely well attended.

CLOONEY, WATERSIDE.—On the 29th June (St. Peter's Day) the new organ of All Saints' Church, was formally opened and employed for the first time in public service. The Episcopal Bishop of the diocese had consented to preach on the occasion; but, owing to indisposition, he was unable to attend, and his place was filled by the Rev. George Smith, M.A., Rector of Tamelghnflagan. The new instrument was built by Messrs Foster and Andrews of Hull, at an estimated cost of £385, payable on completion of the instrument. Of this sum £10, reckoned for the gilding of the prospect pipes, has been presented, through Mrs. Stewart, by lady friends outside the parish, and the Select Vestry has made itself responsible for the remaining sum of £375. With the exception of the omission of the Litany, no change was made in the order of Morning Prayer. Mr. T. Palmer, organist of All Saints', aided by an efficient and numerous choir of ladies and gentlemen, rendered the various anthems, chants, and hymns in a highly creditable style. The following are the names of the principal sacred compositions given:—Venite, Chant No. 7, Anglican Chant Book. Psalm 139, verses 1 to 13, and Gloria Patri, No. 156; verses 13 to end, No. 157. Psalm 140, No. 158. Psalm 141, No. 158. Gloria Patri, No. 156. Te Deum, Service in F, Dr. Dykes. Jubilate, No. 108. As Anthem, Hymn 246; Church Hymnal. As Introit, Hymn 151 (in unison). Kyrie, Sir R. P. Stewart. Doxology, Tallis. Before Sermon, Hymn 194 (tune 40). The organ is a very handsome and sweet-toned instrument, and its qualities were fully displayed by Mr. T. Palmer during the course of the service, and particularly in the playing of the voluntaries "Andante con moto" (Mendelssohn), and "Hallelujah to the Father" (Beethoven). An eloquent sermon was preached by the Rev. George Smith, based upon the 16th verse of the 3rd chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Colossians, after which a collection was made. At four o'clock an afternoon service was held, at which the Litany was read, and a sermon preached by the Rev. Charles Russell, A.M., curate of St. Anne's Church, Dublin; and at six o'clock an evening service took place, on which occasion the Rev. B. B. Gough occupied the pulpit.

EASTBOURNE.—Mr. Hardy's annual concert was given in the Assembly Rooms on Tuesday evening, the 1st ult. The first part of the programme consisted of selections from Mendelssohn's Elijah. The soprano solos were effectively rendered by Mrs. Billing, and Miss Maas displayed considerable expression in the contralto music; Mr. Stedman's singing of "If with all your hearts" and "Then shall the righteous" was excellent, and was highly appreciated. The bass solos were given by Mr. Welch, who, though suffering from a cold, sang very creditably. The choruses were on the whole given with tolerable steadiness by the members of the Choral Society, under the efficient conductorship of Mr. Hardy, who deserves much praise for the care he has bestowed in their training. The second part of the concert consisted principally of popular songs, contributed by the above-named artists and Miss Carlisle. The audience was by no means so large as might fairly have been expected.

GLASTONBURY.—A concert was given in the Assembly Rooms on the 1st ult., by the Glastonbury Musical Society. The programme contained several excellent glees, part-songs and pianoforte pieces, all of which were rendered with taste and precision. Considering that the Society has been formed for a few months only, the greatest credit is due to the conductor, Mr. J. H. Hemsley, vicar choral, of Wells Cathedral.

HARTLEPOOL.—The new organ erected by Messrs. Harrison and Harrison of Durham and London in Holy Trinity Church, was opened on Thursday the 26th June, the Rev. J. B. Dykes, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., vicar of St. Oswalds, Durham, presiding at the instrument. The services were principally taken from Dr. Dykes's compositions, and the accompaniment and impromptu voluntaries were given in his usual mastery style. The Dean of Durham preached in the morning and the Vicar of Newcastle in the evening, the Rev. E. Shaw, vicar of Holy Trinity, taking part of the service, assisted by the Rev. D. R. Falconer, vicar of St. Hilda's, Hartlepool, and the vicar of Hartlepool. The services were continued on the Sunday following, when Mr. Jas. Hoggett, of Darlington (who was to have played) being absent on account of illness, his place was very ably filled by Mr. Septimus Lawson, the organist of the church, under whose skilful hands the qualities of the instrument were well displayed. The organ is very much admired. The diapasons are remarkably rich and good, and the soft stops in the swell superb. It has three manuals and a pedal organ of 29 notes. When thoroughly finished there will be 36 stops running through the instrument—6 couplers and 5 composition pedals. All the action is in for the above, but the pipes of 10 stops will be added as funds increase. The front, 30 feet high, including height of pipes, is of English oak, and the pipes of the 16 feet contral-salicional, the 8 feet open diapason in the south front, and the 8 feet pedal viola in the west front are of burnished metal. The total cost, when completed, will be about £850.

KIDDERMINSTER.—The first subscription concert of the season by the Kidderminster Choral Society was given on Tuesday evening, the 1st ult., at the Music Hall. There was a full and appreciative audience. The work selected was Barnett's Ancient Mariner, and the performance, on the whole, was an exceedingly good one. The principal vocalists were Miss Emilie Madeline Crane (soprano), Mrs. Hayward, of the Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, and Mrs. Boulter (contralto); Mr. Owen Davis, of Stourbridge (tenor), and Messrs. A. Cotton and J. Muston (bass). Mr. Fitzgerald conducted.

LIVERPOOL.—On the 1st ult, the choirs representing Liverpool at the National Music Meetings at the Crystal Palace, gave an open rehearsal at the Philharmonic Hall. Mendelssohn, Croft, Schubert, Beethoven, Schumann, Goss, &c., were represented in the works selected for performance, all of which were finely rendered, and reflected the utmost credit upon the training of the choirs. Mr. Jude's accompaniments were excellent, and Mr. Sanders conducted with much ability.

PICKERING.—The series of six district Festivals of the York Diocesan Choral Association, were brought to a close by a gathering here on the 3rd ult., the other places of meeting having been, Church Fenton, Abesford, St. Mary's, Castlegate, York, Normanton and Market Weighton. On the whole the singing has been a decided advance upon that of former years. Mr. E. J. Hopkins's noble unison Cantate Domino and Deus Misereatur have been sung at each gathering in such a manner as to prove that the best music is that which most successfully draws out the musical intelligence and feeling of choirs—at least of Yorkshire choirs. The novelty of this series of festival services has been the introduction of the old two-part anthem of small "places where they sing," in a modern form. Every one who has had to do with small choirs knows full well the utter impossibility of obtaining a balance of four-part register. Altos are well-nigh unknown things—their places being generally supplied—if supplied at all—by withdrawing from the trebles the most reliable and useful voices, thus destroying the substance and self-reliance of the first part without supplying an adequate second. The distinctive notes of the tenor are scarcely ever to be heard in small choirs for the simple reason that those distinctive notes can only be produced by very far more practice and care than the small-choir singer can afford to devote to his vocalization. The working compass of the ordinary small choir resolves itself into from about C to E for boys, girls and women, and the lower from C to E for the men. For these two sets of voices has Mr. G. A. Macfarren—always ready as he is to meet a real church musical want when set before him—composed some two-part anthems, two of which “Blessed is the soul,” and “Come ye and let us go up,” have been sung at these choral gatherings. At first of course the country choirs were hurt at the indignity of being reduced to two-part harmony, especially those that had no alto of any sort, and whose third bass generally sang the tenor; but as festival after festival came round, one and all joined in heartiest praise of what originally they had looked upon with disdainful eye. It was found in practice that far firmer singing, far purer tone, far truer expression, in fact far more real music, could be got out of the balanced two parts than out of the incomplete attempts at four-part anthems. On all hands has it been acknowledged that the specimens of two-part anthems that Mr. G. A. Macfarren has supplied, have entirely answered the purpose intended; and it is very greatly to be desired that other of our leading composers will join Mr. Macfarren in supplying the needs of our multitude of smaller churches, which hitherto, for lack of just such compositions, have been kept back from observing the one rubric on which there can be no dispute, “in choirs and places where they sing, here followeth the anthem.”

SHORWELL, ISLE OF WIGHT.—The first of two festival services to be held this year, under the auspices of the Isle of Wight Church Choral Association, took place on Thursday, June 26th, in the parish church. The following parish choirs were represented:—Calbourne, Shorwell, Newton, Arleton, Chale, Holy Trinity, Ryde, and East Cowes, numbering about 120 voices. There was a full rehearsal in the church at 12 o'clock, and afterwards a dinner in the National School-room, at which Sir H. P. Gordon, Bart., of Northcourt, occupied the chair, supported by the Archdeacon of the Isle of Wight, the Hon. Evelyn Ashley, Lieut.-Col. Atherby, the Rev. T. Renwick, vicar of Shorwell, etc., etc. At four P.M. the surpliced choirs and clergy entered the church singing the processional hymn, “Uplift the banner,” to Mr. Baptiste Calkin’s tune from the Hymnary, from which valuable collection all the hymns in the service book were selected. The psalms and canticles were sung to Anglican chants (single and double). The Anthem was Sir J. Goss’s “Fear not, O land,” which though somewhat arduous for country choirs, went steadily and well. A sermon was preached by the Rev. G. Williams, B.D., rector of Ringwood, Hants. The priest’s part in the service was sung by the Rev. F. Whyte, vicar of East Cowes; and the organ accompaniments were played by the Rev. H. Bischo, Curate of Brightstone. At the conclusion of the service the choir left the church singing as a recessional, “Onward, Christian soldiers,” to Mr. Sullivan’s very effective tune from the Hymnary. The Festival was altogether a success, both as regards the musical performance and general arrangements, thanks to the able and indefatigable pains bestowed by the secretary, the Rev. R. N. Durrant, and by Mr. S. Lake, organist of Holy Trinity, Ryde, the choir-master of the Association.

WARMINSTER.—Mr. Frank Spinney, F.C.O., who has just been appointed organist of Emscote Parish Church, Warwick, has received a most gratifying recognition of his services in the cause of music, from the people of Warminster, by being presented with a purse of gold, and a handsome timepiece, bearing the following inscription:—“Presented to Mr. Frank Spinney, late organist of the Parish Church of St. Denis, Warminster, together with the sum of £30 by his friends of all denominations, in appreciation of his readiness to help on all occasions.”

WEYBRIDGE.—A concert was given on Tuesday evening the 1st ult., at the National School-rooms, by the members of the St. James’s Church choir, conducted by Mr. H. P. G. Brooke, organist and director of the choir. The reception accorded to Mr. Brooke and the choir was very hearty. Several concerted pieces were exceedingly well sung, the choir paying strict attention to the pianos and fortes. Solos and duets were effectively rendered by the Rev. H. Spyers, and Messrs. J. and C. Morgan, some of which were re-demanded. The great success of the evening was the trio, “The Wood Thrush” (Hatton), which was beautifully sung by three of the choir boys (encored), and reflected the highest credit upon the singers and their teacher. The instrumental pieces, Overture Così fan tutte (Mozart), and Bach’s “Meditation,” were well played by Mr. and Mrs. Morgan and Messrs. J. and C. Morgan. Mr. Brooke conducted, and accompanied the songs, etc., with much judgment and skill.

WISBECH.—On Monday, the 21st ult., an entertainment was given at the Working Men’s Club and Institute, on the occasion of laying the foundation stone of the new Gymnasium. Several selections were given by the Philharmonic Band of the Institute, and the singing of Mr. W. H. Jude (of Liverpool) in the “Gambler’s Wife” and “The ship on fire” was much admired, both songs being encored. Some recitations and readings were also included in the programme.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Orlando Baker to the Congregational Church, Swindon.—Mr. R. T. Gibbons (Organist, &c., of the Royal Polytechnic Institution) to Holy Trinity Church, South Penzance.—Miss H. C. Sturton (late of St. Stephen’s Mission Chapel, Lewisham), to Morden College Chapel, Blackheath.—Mr. C. Gregory, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Paul’s Church, Bethnal Green.—Mr. C. Kitchen, Organist to Christ Church, Forest Hill.—Mr. J. G. Smith, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Botolph’s (New Church), Worthing.

—Mr. S. K. Hales, to Rams Episcopal Chapel, Homerton.—Mr. Henry Fort, to Holy Trinity Church, Beckenham.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Charles Hamford (of Bedford Episcopal Chapel, Bloomsbury), Principal Tenor to St. Thomas’s Church, Orchard St., Portman Square, W.—Mr. Walter J. Markley, Conductor of the Railway Clearing House Musical Society.—Mr. Major J. Smith, Choirmaster to All Saints, Park Road, Brixton, S.W.—Mr. John Nutton (Bass) of York Minster, to Magdalen College, Oxford.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

MOZART.—Die Zauberflöte. An Opera in Two Acts. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS, and translated into English by NATALIA MACFARREN. Being Volume XX. of Novello’s Octavo Edition of Operas. Paper covers, 2s. 6d.; scarlet cloth, 4s.

ARMONICA.—Te Deum Laudamus, with Organ Accompaniment. Octavo, 1s.

GLADSTONE, ROBERTSON, JUN.—Venite, exultemus Domino. Octavo, 3d.

HELMORE, Rev. THOMAS, M.A.—Accompanying Harmonies to the Canticles Noted. Magnificat VIII., 8th Tone transposed. Octavo, 8d.

WILLMORE, W. G.—Te Deum Laudamus, in D. Octavo, 6d.

YOUNG, Rev. EDWARD, M.A. An Evening Service. Consisting of Cantate Domino and Deus Misereatur. Octavo, 4d.

STAINER, J.—Benedictus. Octavo, 4d.

ASPA, ROSARIO.—Jesu, Pastor bone. (Offeratorium, or for Benediction.) Duet for Soprano and Tenor. 1s. 3d.

MOZART.—Plead Thou my cause. 6d. (Novello’s Octavo Anthems. No. 81).

STAINER, JOHN.—O clap your hands. 6d. (Novello’s Octavo Anthems. No. 82).

SMITH, THOMAS.—Thou crownest the year. Harvest Anthem. 3d.

HYMNARY.—Twelve Harvest Hymns, with Tunes selected from “The Hymnary.” Price 1d. For Contents see advertisement, p. 169.

BROWN-BORTHWICK, REV. R.—Hymn Tunes. Paper cover, 2s.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

LAWRANCE, EDWARD.—Three Choral Hymns. (Second set.) “O Paradise;” “A few more years shall roll;” “The roseate hues of early dawn.” Octavo, 1s.

SWEET, Rev. J. H.—No day so sweet. A Hymn for the Lord’s Day. 2d.

HERVEY, Rev. F. A. J., M.A.—Make Melody within your Hearts. Harvest Carol. Written by Rev. J. J. R. LEIGH KNIFE, M.A. Octavo, 2d.

STUBBS, LUCAS P.—Jesus Alone. A Sacred Song. Harmonized by HENRY T. WHITE. Octavo, 3d.

WIGAN, CLEVELAND.—Triumphal March. For Four Hands. By special permission, inscribed to H.R.H. Prince Arthur. 3s.

WESTBROOK, W. J.—Voluntaries for the Organ. Volume III., cloth, gilt lettered, price 15s.

ASSISTANT WANTED for Music Warehouse in Scotland. Good character indispensable. Apply to McMillan, Musical Times Office.

MUSIC BUSINESS.—A Gentleman desires an ENGAGEMENT. Has a fair knowledge of Tuning, could assist in teaching Music, good references, no objection to reside in the house. Address Frank, Post Office, Liverpool.

TO MUSIC WAREHOUSES.—A Young Lady, of good address, wishes to meet with a RE-ENGAGEMENT in a Pianoforte and Music Warehouse. Good Saleswoman and Pianist; excellent references. Address C. M., 154, High-street, Camden-town, London.

WANTED a SITUATION in a good Musical Establishment as ASSISTANT. Has been thoroughly trained in the Piano and Organ by some of the best Masters. Highest references given. Address H. O., 31, The Drapery, Northampton.

CHOIR LISTS.—To ORGANISTS and CHOIRMASTERS. Lists for filling up the Music to be used at the Morning and Evening Services, printed in red, post free for 1s. 6d. per 100.

The Musical Standard Office, Fleet-street, E.C.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 2s. 6d. paper covers; 3s. 9d. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting note.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part Chorus, with Organ accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK, Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK, edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

Large edition, cloth, 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Autho- rised by his Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo., without chants, 1s.; with Proper Psalms, 1s. 3d.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to., with chants, 5s.; large 4to., £1 1s.; each voice part, separately, 2s. Canticles, score, small 4to., 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo., 14d. Novello, Ewer and Co., and Parker and Co.

Tenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION of 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Price 5s. 6d.; sep. vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

SUPPLEMENT to the PREVIOUS EDITIONS of the ABOVE, containing Chants for the Venite, &c. Price 1s.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. Str. J. B. JOULE. (Large type), price 2s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI- CANUM. 18mo., price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI- CANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Third Edition.

THE ORDER for the HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. Str. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

NON NOBIS DOMINE, arranged to the Cor- responding English Words, by Rev. W. G. LONGDEN, for the Use of Choral Meetings, as an Introit, or Anthem, or Grace after Meat. Price One Penny: Ninepence a dozen; or Five Shillings a hundred.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For voices in unison and Organ. 8vo., 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWELVE KYRIES. By G. BAKER. Price 6d. 12 or more copies, 4d. each, post free. G. Baker, Musicseller, Wakefield.

Now ready, 8vo., price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED, Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

REV. R. F. SMITH, M.A., Minor Canon of South- well, TE DEUM, in F, 3d.

"Simple yet impressive—will, we feel convinced, ere long become one of the most popular of its kind."—Nottingham Journal, June 18, 1873.
"Some passages of remarkable beauty."—Nottingham Guardian, June 18, 1873. ANTHEM, "The Lord is nigh," 6d. Novello, Ewer & Co.

ANTHEMS, SPECIAL and GENERAL, 400 pages for 4s. to Subscribers. Contributions from Costa, Benedict, Ouseley, Sterndale Bennett, Elvey, Stewart, and other good Composers. The full "contents" page sent free. Address Editor of "Anthems Special and General," 48, Hunter-street, London, W.C.

ANTHEMS, SPECIAL and GENERAL.—TO PUBLISHERS.—This valuable work (with new Compositions by Costa, Benedict, Sterndale Bennett, Ouseley, Elvey, Stewart, and others) To be SOLD at a great sacrifice. A rare opportunity for publishers of Sacred Music. Address Editor of "Anthems Special and General," 48, Hunter-street, London, W.C.

Just Published.

CANTICLES NOTED. Second Set, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. 18mo., 8d.; 8vo., 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

HELMORE, REV. THOMAS.—THE CANTICLES ACCENTED, 18mo., 3d.—Hymns of the Eastern Church, four voices, each 1s., PEACE, IT IS I; THE DAY IS PAST AND OVER; THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.—S. MARK'S CHANT BOOK (in daily use at the College Chapel, Chelsea), 4s. 6d.; or the same, Part I., being the main body of the work, price 3s. 6d.; and Part II., The Table of the Chants, price 1s. (useful for places where only the Canticles are chanted). Also Two "TE DEUMS" for Choir and People, in the alternate verses; adapted from Latin arrangements by Alfieri and Baini; vocal Score and Organ Accompaniment, price 3s. Also the People's Plain Song, separate, price 14d. Four-part Cadences for the Holy Communion, 6d. The Carol for Christmas Morning, vocal score, 18mo. edition, 2d.; melody, 18mo., 1d.

HYMN IN TIME OF CATTLE PLAGUE, 2d. Words, 1s. per 100.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADDITIONS TO THE

REV. T. HELMORE'S PLAIN SONG WORKS.

The Canticles Accented. Price 3d.
The Psalter and Canticles Accented. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
Appendix 1 to Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory, price 4d.
The Psalter Noted. Appendix 1, giving the Proper Psalms, noted as before in their right order of the six days to which they are Appointed. Price 6d. Bound up with recent editions of the Psalter Noted.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 3d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 2, giving the Proper Psalms newly noted for the Four Great Festivals (second set). Price 4d.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 4d.

Canticles Noted (second set). Large Edition, 2s. Small Edition, 8d.

For some of the Harmonies to this see Accompanying Harmonies to Psalter Noted, Appendix 2 (above mentioned). For others, see Accompanying Harmonies to Brief Directory, Appendix 2, now in hand.

Cadences for the order of the Administration of the Lord's Supper, in compressed vocal score. Price 6d.

Paper on Church Music, with special reference to the joining of all the People in Sacred Song, read at the Church Congress, Wolverhampton, October 1867. Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS (Chant Service), by DIGBY COTES. 8vo., 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

To be published by subscription, price Sixpence.

A VILLAGE TE DEUM. By the Editor of the "Village Organist," the "Village Chant Book," &c.

Subscribers are kindly requested to send their names and addresses to the Rev. T. R. Matthews, North Coates Rectory, Great Grimsby. Profits in aid of the North Coates Organ Fund.

"MISSA REGIA" (DUMONT). A complete Plain-Song Service for the Holy Communion, from the Rouen Service Books. Edited by ALFRED KING, Mus. Bac., Oxon. Vocal and Accompaniment, 1s. 6d.; Plain Song, 4d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A SERVICE for the HOLY COMMUNION for Men's Voices in four parts, consisting of Introit, Kyrie, Gloria tibi, Gratias, Offertory Sentences, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, composed by W. H. SANGSTER, Mus. Bac. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

Second Edition, price 6d.; Unison copy, 1d.

NICENE CREED (Ely Prize Setting). By ALEX. S. COOPER. Equally adapted for Singing in Unison or in Harmony. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A SERVICE for the TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in the key of A, composed by FREDERICK ILIFFE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Fellow of the College of Organists, London, and Organist of St. Wilfrid's Church, Kibworth. Price 44d.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, Set to Original Chants, price 2d., composed by FREDERICK ILIFFE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Fellow of the College of Organists, London.

"In writing these Chants for the Te Deum I have divided it into its doctrinal parts. The 'first' thirteen verses are a Creed setting forth the doctrine of the Trinity. The 'second' part, beginning with the words 'Thou art the King of glory,' and the four following verses, set forth the Divinity and Incarnation of the Son. The solemn verse 'We believe that Thou shalt come,' expresses our belief in our Lord's second coming. A separate Chant is provided for this verse. The 'third' part, beginning with the words 'We therefore pray Thee' is a Litany.

"The Rev. Thomas Keble was the first, I believe, who suggested this ancient mode of dividing the Te Deum into these several parts, and I have adhered to this arrangement as far as possible; there is, however, one exception, and that is in the first part of the verse, 'Holy, Holy, Holy,' which seems to me to demand a different kind of expression to any of the other verses. I may also say that I had written another Chant of a more pensive character for the 'Litany part,' but it was thought advisable to go back to the melody of the first Chant, in order to avoid many changes."—Prefatory Remarks by the Composer.

A PRIZE TUNE, in E flat, "Jesu, Refuge of my soul," for four voices, by the same author, price One Penny. This Tune gained the Prize offered by the College of Organists, Midsummer, 1872. Published by Novello, Ewer and Co., London, and by Mr. W. R. Bowden, Holywell-street, Oxford.

EASY ANTHEMS for VILLAGE CHOIRS. By

W. H. GILL. 2d. each. Nos. 1 to 6 now ready.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A Specimen Copy, post free for Stamps to the value.

"EXCEPT THE LORD BUILD THE HOUSE,"

an ANTHEM for five voices, suitable for the Opening of new places of Worship or School Anniversaries. Composed by JAMES HARDWICK; published at 1s. 6d. each; sold at half-price. Schools or congregations taking 12 copies may have them at 6d. each. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS

For Small Choirs. The texts selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe.

First Series, for Boys' and Females' Voices—1. "Come, and let us return." 2. "I will look unto the Lord." (These Anthems may appropriately be used in Advent and Lent.) 3. "Behold the Tabernacle." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmastide.)

Second Series, for Female and Male Voices—1. "Unto us was born." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.) 2. "Blessed is the soul." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Whitsuntide.) 3. "Come ye and let us go up." (This Anthem may be appropriately used at the opening of a church.) 4. "Blessed be the name of God." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at a Harvest Festival.)

A separate accompaniment for use where there is not a Pedal Organ, may be had, price 2d.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private performance.

Price 6d. for each Anthem, or 2s. 6d. for each series of six.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MUSIC of HYMN of PRAISE, as sung at Rev.

C. Voysey's Services at St. George's Hall, composed by A. L. TAMPLIN. 1s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

STABAT MATER for Three Voices, Soprano,

Tenor and Bass, or two Tenors and Bass, composed by DIOMÈDE BELLI. This beautiful work, post free, 3s. 3d. Also AVE MARIA, for Soprano or Tenor, by HAYDN WAUD, free 1s. 6d. Waud and Co., 88, Fulham-road, London.

J. B. TOURNEUR.—Hommage à Sa Sainteté Pie

IX., Messe à trois voix, avec solo pour Tenor et Basse, accompagnement d'Orgue ou de Piano. Exécutée avec succès six fois consécutives à l'église des Pères Servites, à Brompton.

Eighth Edition.

301 ANCIENT AND MODERN CHANTS, edited by WILLIAM RIDLEY, Organist of the Parish Church, and of St. John's. Free for stamps from the Editor (bound, 36 stamps, paper, 24 stamps), West Derby, Liverpool. "A fine collection."

Just published, square 16mo, 2s. 6d.

THE CHORISTER'S GUIDE, by W. A. BARRETT,

Mus. Bac., Oxon., of St. Paul's Cathedral, author of "Flowers and Festivals." Rivingtons, Waterloo-place, London, Oxford, and Cambridge.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS' FESTIVAL SONG.—

Full Chorus, by ALFRED HARBOROUGH, R.A. Price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

RECESSIONAL MARCH, J. F. THORNE. Second edition, 4s.

"There is vigour and character in this March."—Choir.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MERCER'S CHURCH PSALTER and HYMN

BOOK. An APPENDIX of ADDITIONAL HYMNS, CHANTS, SANCTUSES, and RESPONSES, the Harmonies carefully revised by Sir JOHN GOSS, may now be had, either separately or bound up with the work in all its various sizes and forms. Prospectuses of the complete work, with full particulars, will be forwarded on application.

London: James Nisbet and Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; Lamborn Cock, 62 and 63, New Bond-street, W.

Just Published.

SONATA FOR PIANOFORTE, Op. 20, by H. S.

OAKELEY, Mus. Doc., and Professor of Music at the University of Edinburgh.

Also (in the press), "RONDO CAPRICCIOSO," Op. 19.

Lamborn Cock, 63, New Bond-street.

HAIL TO OUR HARVEST HOME. Harvest

Song, by BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 1d.

"This Harvest Song is a spirited composition, with nice words."—The Orb. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MISS JANET KING (Soprano), Daughter and

Pupil of Donald W. King, gives LESSONS on PIANO and SINGING at her father's residence, 48, Woburn-place, Russell-square.

ORGANIST.—A Gentleman is open to ENGAGE-

MENTS, town or country. A. G. W., 13, Renfrew-road, Kensington, S.E.

NOVELLO'S CIRCULATING MUSIC LIBRARY.

1, BERNERS STREET, W.

THIS Library has been established according to the principles of the best continental Institutions, and embraces every branch of Musical Literature up to the present time. Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co. have spared neither exertion nor expense in order to make this Library and Subscribers may for the moderate Subscriptions mentioned below, procure the loan of all the principal Publications, practical and theoretical, of home as well as of foreign production, and thus make acquaintance with the whole range of Musical Publications, both classical and ephemeral.

THE MOST VALUABLE, COMPLETE, AND EXTENSIVE IN EXISTENCE.

NOVELLO, EWER and Co. have published a Catalogue of the Library, containing a classified List of upwards of all of which are available for the use of Subscribers.

65,000 WORKS,

In addition to these, Subscribers are entitled to select any Music in NOVELLO, EWER and Co.'s stock, although it may not be included in the Library Catalogue.

Terms of Subscription:

TWO GUINEAS PER ANNUM.

Per HALF YEAR	.	.	.	£1	5	0
Per QUARTER	.	.	.	0	15	0
Per MONTH	.	.	.	0	8	0
Per WEEK	.	.	.	0	3	0

Town Subscribers will be supplied with Two Guineas' worth of Music, which may be exchanged once a week.

Country Subscribers will be supplied with Four Guineas' worth of Music, which may be exchanged twice a month.

At the end of their Subscription, Annual Subscribers are entitled to select Music to the amount of Half-a-Guinea, net.

REGULATIONS.

1. All Subscriptions must be paid in advance, and at the commencement of every subsequent term.

2. All Subscriptions will be considered renewed, if the Music belonging to the Library is not returned at the expiration of the term.

3. Subscribers are requested to give in their Names and Addresses, and, if required, to pay a deposit for all Music on hand.

4. All expenses of carriage, portage, booking, postage, &c., must be defrayed by the Subscriber, and all return parcels must be pre-paid.

5. Any pieces of Music which become torn, soiled, written on, or otherwise damaged, whilst in the possession of the Subscriber, will be charged for.

6. To facilitate the transmission of Music to and from the Library, and to prevent it from being rolled, every Subscriber must be provided with a portfolio, which can be supplied by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., price 1s. 6d. each.

7. All Music named in the Catalogue is for sale, those scarce works excepted which cannot be replaced.

8. Every piece of Music belonging to the Library is in a wrapper, numbered according to the Catalogue. Subscribers who wish to retain any Music for purchase, are requested to return the wrappers.

9. No Music to be kept longer than two months.

10. Subscribers, when exchanging Music, are requested to send in lists containing the numbers, according to the Catalogue, of about twice as many works as they are entitled to. The price of the Catalogue is 5s.

11. The Library is open from nine to six o'clock, Saturdays, excepted, when it closes at three.

12. The Subscription will date from the day of entrance.

13. All communications concerning the Library should be addressed to the Librarian.

NOW READY.

NEW EDITION, CORRECTED TO JUNE, 1873.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S
CATALOGUE, No. 6,

CONTAINING

SACRED MUSIC WITH LATIN WORDS.

GRATIS ON APPLICATION, OR SENT POST FREE FOR ONE STAMP.

JUST PUBLISHED, AN OCTAVO EDITION OF

HANDEL'S THEODORA.

In Vocal Score, with a separate accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte.

Price in paper cover, 3s. Scarlet cloth, 5s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOW READY.

HANDEL'S BELSHAZZAR,

Oratorio in Vocal Score, with Accompaniment for Organ or Pianoforte.

EDITED BY G. A. MACFARREN.

Octavo, paper cover, 3s. Cloth gilt, 5s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

New Edition just published, price 1½d.

SOUND THE LOUD TIMBREL.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY THOMAS MOORE.

THE MELODY COMPOSED BY AVISON.

Arranged for One or Four Voices. THE MUSICAL TIMES, No. 127.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MOZART'S MASSES,

Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, Oblong quarto, 2 volumes, 14s. each.

HAYDN'S MASSES,

Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, Oblong quarto, 2 volumes, 14s. each.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Price in paper, 2s.; scarlet cloth, 3s. 6d.

HENRY FARMER'S MASS IN B_b,

With the Latin words, and an English adaptation to the Communion Service,

By the REV. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

"This beautiful composition has been so long before the public, and its merit so distinctly recognised, that we have no need here to introduce a single word of criticism upon its musical value. Our object in mentioning it at all is to call attention to its recent publication in a handsome and convenient form. In a small volume of clear and legible print, the musician can now obtain the whole of the Mass in Vocal Score, with an Accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte."—Nottingham Guardian.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

OBLONG FOLIO EDITION.

RINK'S PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL,

Carefully revised, with the German directions and terms translated into English, and the pedal part printed on a separate staff.

THE WHOLE EDITED BY W. T. BEST.

Price 20s., or in Six Books, 4s. each.

Preface. Part I., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 1 to 12.—Short and Easy Pieces in Two parts.
13 to 24 " " " Three parts.
25 to 36 " " " Four parts.
37 to 66.—Preludes in all the Major and Minor Keys.

Part II., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 67 to 132.—Exercises for the Pedals.
133 to 144.—Twelve Chorales, or well-known German Psalm Tunes, with variations.

Part III., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 145 to 159.—Fifteen Easy Postludes, or Concluding Voluntaries, in the Fugue Style.

Part IV., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 160 to 174.—Fifteen Postludes, or Concluding Voluntaries for Alternate Manuals, in the Fugue style.

Part V., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 175 to 181.—Seven Preludes and Fugues.
182.—The Flute Concerto.
183.—Variations on "Heil dir im Sieges Kranz," or "God save the Queen."

Part VI., price 4s., contains—
Nos. 184 to 192.—Nine Preludes and Fugues.
193 and 194.—Fantasia and Fugue.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE RAISING OF LAZARUS,

AN ORATORIO, BY

J. F. BARNETT.

The Words selected and arranged from the Holy Scriptures.
Dedicated to his Friend, GEORGE NORBURY, Esq.

Paper covers, 8s.; cloth gilt, 10s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

DOWN IN A FLOW'RY VALE.

MADRIGAL FOR FOUR VOICES.

BY

CONSTANTIUS FESTA,

In A for Mixed Voices, and in F for Male Voices.

A new Edition of the MUSICAL TIMES, No. 3, price 1½d., is just published, containing the above Madrigal, with the original English words by THOMAS OLIPHANT, and the second verse by F. W. R., commencing "Soon as I careless strayed."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S ONLY COMPLETE AND UNIFORM EDITION OF

MENDELSSOHN'S
THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS,

With the German and W. BARTHOLOMEW'S Original English Words.

Complete in One Volume, folio, 5s. net. Octavo, paper, 2s. net; cloth gilt, 4s. net; or singly, 2s. each. The separate Numbers are sold at half-price.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| No. 1. I would that my love. | No. 7. My bark is bounding. |
| 2. The passage bird. | 8. Can I light-hearted be. |
| 3. Greeting. | 9. Evening song. |
| 4. Autumn song. | 10. Zuleika and Hassan. |
| 5. O wert thou in the cauld blast. | 11. The Sabbath morn. |
| 6. The Maybells and the flowers. | 12. The harvest field. |
| | 13. Song from Ruy Blas. |

N.B.—The Quarto score to No. 13, 1s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PSYCHE:

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

FOR SOLO VOICES AND CHORUS.

The Words by V. A. C. AMCOTTS.

THE MUSIC BY J. F. H. READ.

Vocal score, with Pianoforte accompaniment, price 5s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S

POPULAR PART-SONGS FOR S.A.T.B. 8vo.

- | | | |
|---|--------------|---------|
| 1. "I love the merry spring-time" .. | 15th edition | .. 0 2 |
| 2. "Gaily thro' the greenwood" .. | 19th | .. 0 2 |
| 3. "Welcome, merry May" .. | 6th | .. 0 2 |
| 4. "The mountain Maid" .. | 5th | .. 0 2 |
| 5. "Come o'er the mountain" .. | 8th | .. 0 2 |
| 6. "Hail, merry, merry Christmas" .. | 13th | .. 0 2 |
| 7. "Songs of praise the angels sang" .. | 5th | .. 0 3 |
| 8. "Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow" .. | 6th | .. 0 3 |
| 9. "Fairy revels" .. | 7th | .. 0 3 |
| 10. "Oh! peaceful vale of rest" .. | 5th | .. 0 1½ |
| 11. "The merry bird" .. | 5th | .. 0 3 |
| 12. "Come, let us be merry and gay" .. | 4th | .. 0 3 |
| 13. "Forest echoes" .. | 6th | .. 0 3 |
| 14. "Haste ye, merry elves" .. | 5th | .. 0 3 |
| 15. "The streamlet" (with Soprano solo) | 2nd | .. 0 3 |

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.
Messrs. Forsyth Brothers, Regent-street, London, and Cross-street, Manchester.

TEN TRIOS for FEMALE VOICES, composed
by CARL REINECKE. (Op. 100.) 8vo., 1s. 6d.; or singly—

- No. 1. "The Dreaming Lake," 2d.
 " 2. "Praise of Spring," 3d.
 " 3. "Of Oak thy mournful bier's prepared," 3d.
 " 4. "Sunbeams in Winter," 2d.
 " 5. "The Awakening of Morn," 3d.
 " 6. "The Winter hath not a blossom," 3d.
 " 7. "Thou that thyself with death hath striven," 2d.
 " 8. "The Evening Wind," 3d.
 " 9. "As in a field goodly fruit will grow," 3d.
 " 10. "The Elves," 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SCHUMANN'S SONGS,

EDITED AND IN PART TRANSLATED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN,

In One Volume, Folio size, Cloth, Gilt, 10s. 6d. or Singly.

PREFACE.

The present collection is a first instalment of the Songs of Schumann in the order of their production; as his vocal works are extremely voluminous, it does not seem desirable to re-publish all his songs, but wherever there is a connecting link between the different numbers of an Opus, as in the nine Songs of Op. 24, and the 26 of Op. 25, they will all be given. None of the Narrative Songs will be included in this series.

Four of the Songs will be found transposed: Nos. 12 and 16, because the publishers have already two editions of them in the original keys; and Nos. 19 and 29, because they lie beyond the range of voice generally practicable.

In adapting the original English words of those Songs, which Schumann set to translations, the music has been made the paramount consideration, and words have been altered to suit the musical text when necessary; thus Nos. 13 and 31 are called "Some one," and "No one," since the redundant syllable in Somebody and Nobody disfigures the musical phrase. Moreover, considerable alterations had to be made in the Songs of Burns, without reference to the declamation.

The present edition absolutely follows the text of the Composer, rejecting some supposed emendations which appear in several editions; a few slight changes in the distribution of syllables to notes have been made to accommodate the English text, and a very few evident oversights in the original editions have been amended with the sanction of Madame Schumann.

N. MACFARREN.

FIRST SERIES.

Op. 24.

1. { When the morning breaks }	2	0
2. { Now hopes and fears }
3. { Where sunlight thro' branches }	1	6
4. { My darling, oh, list }
5. Fair abode of all my sorrows	2	6
6. Stay thy oar, thou rugged boatman	2	6
7. On the Rhine	2	6
8. { First I felt near broken-hearted }	2	6
9. { With myrtles and roses }

Op. 25 "MYRTHEN"

10. Dedication	2	0
11. The free mind	1	6
12. The walnut tree	2	6
13. Some one	1	6
14. { To sit alone }	2	0
15. { Bump not the flask }
16. The lotos flower	1	6
17. Talismans	1	6
18. Suleika's song	2	0
19. The Highland widow's lament	2	0
20. { Song of the bride }	2	0
21. { Chide me not }
22. My heart's in the Highlands	2	0
23. Hey baloo	1	6
24. My soul is sad	2	6
25. Enigma	2	0
26. Row gently here	1	6
27. When thro' the Piazzetta	1	6
28. The captain's lady	1	6
29. Oh how can I be blithe	2	0
30. What would'st thou, lonely teardrop?	1	6
31. No one	1	6
32. { Out over the Forth }	1	6
33. { Thou'rt like unto a flower }
34. A message sweet as roses	1	6
35. { Conclusion }	2	0

Op. 27.

36. { The passage bird }	2	0
37. My love is like the red, red rose	1	6
38. The Jasmine	1	6
39. When thy eye's starry beam	2	0

Op. 30.

40. The Rover	2	6
41. The Hidalgo	2	6

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, BERNERS STREET.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION OF OPERAS,

Edited, Corrected according to the Original Scores, and Translated into English, by
NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS.

Price 2s. 6d. each; or in scarlet cloth, 4s.

NOW READY.

BEETHOVEN'S FIDELIO

(With German and English words).

With the two great Overtures as usually performed; being the only Piano Score that has been published agreeing with the Original Score as to the notes and signs for phrasing.

AUBER'S FRA DIAVOLO

(With French and English words).

Various portions of this Opera are now printed for the first time in England, making this the only English Pianoforte Score which agrees with the Composer's Original Score.

MOZART'S DON GIOVANNI

(With Italian and English words).

This Edition contains all the Recitatives, and is the only Pianoforte Score which agrees with the Author's MS., as to the notes, signs for phrasing and expression, and the stage directions; in every one of these particulars there are many new and important lights thrown upon the work.

BELLINI'S NORMA

(With Italian and English words).

VERDI'S IL TROVATORE

(With Italian and English words).

DONIZETTI'S LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR

(With Italian and English words).

WEBER'S OBERON

With the English words by J. R. PLANCHE, and Italian words as sung at Her Majesty's Opera.

ROSSINI'S IL BARBIERE

(With Italian and English words).

Containing the Music of the Recitatives, being the only complete Cheap Edition.

DONIZETTI'S LUCREZIA BORGIA

(With Italian and English words).

MOZART'S NOZZE DI FIGARO

(With Italian and English words).

Containing the Music of the Recitatives, being the only complete Cheap Edition.

VERDI'S RIGOLETTO

(With Italian and English words).

BELLINI'S LA SONNAMBULA

(With Italian and English words).

WEBER'S DER FREISCHÜTZ

(With German and English words).

WAGNER'S TANNHÄUSER

(With German and English words).

AUBER'S MASANIELLO

(With French and English words). Price 3s. 6d.; bound, 5s.

BELLINI'S I PURITANI

(With Italian and English words).

WAGNER'S LOHENGGRIN

(With German and English words).

DONIZETTI'S LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO

(With Italian and English words).

ROSSINI'S GUILLAUME TELL

(With French and English words). Price 5s.; bound, 7s. 6d.

MOZART'S DIE ZAUBERFLÖTE

(With German and English words).

(To be continued.)

Subscribers' Names will be received by the Publishers, NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS-STREET, and 35, POULTRY, LONDON; J. L. PETERS, 599, BROADWAY, NEW YORK; or by all Music and Booksellers in the Country.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK

(SECOND SERIES.)

A COLLECTION OF FOUR-PART SONGS AND MADRIGALS, BY MODERN COMPOSERS.

PUBLISHED IN VOLUMES, OCTAVO SIZE, ELEGANTLY BOUND IN CLOTH, GILT EDGES, PRICE 5s. EACH; OR IN SEPARATE NUMBERS, AS FOLLOWS:—

VOLUME I. CONTAINS—

Book I.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY
SIR J. BENEDICT.

37	Old May Day, in A (S.A.T.B.)	... 3d.
38	Invocation to Sleep (S.A.T.B.)	... 3d.
39	A Night Song (S.A.T.B.)	... 3d.
40	Dirge for the faithful Lover (S.A.T.B.)	1d.
41	A Drinking Song (T.T.B.B.)	... 3d.
42	Sylvan Pleasures (S.A.T.B.)	... 4d.

Book II.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY SMART.

43	Consolation ... (S.A.T.B.)	1d.
44	Good Night, thou glorious Sun	3d.
45	Hunting Song ...	3d.
46	Lady, rise, sweet Morn's awaking,	3d.
47	Summer Morning ...	3d.
48	The Sea King ...	3d.

Book III.—1s. 4d.

SEVEN SHAKSPEARE SONGS BY
G. A. MACFARREN.

49	Orpheus with his lute (S.A.T.B.)	... 3d.
50	When Icicles hang (S.A.T.B.)	... 1d.
51	Come away, Death (S.A.T.B.)	... 3d.
52	When Daisies pied ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
53	Who is Sylvia ...	1d.
54	Fear no more the heat o' the Sun,	3d.
55	Blow, blow, thou Winter Wind,	3d.

Book IV.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY J. L. HATTON.

56	The Belfry Tower ... (S.A.T.B.)	4d.
57	England ...	3d.
58	Come, celebrate the May ...	1d.
59	Song to Pan ...	3d.
60	The Indian Maid ...	3d.
61	The Pearl Divers ...	4d.

VOLUME II. CONTAINS—

Book V.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

62	Robin Goodfellow ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
63	Break, break on thy cold grey stones	3d.
64	Echoes (The Splendour Falls) (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
65	Song of the Railroads ...	1d.
66	Christmas ...	3d.
67	Adieu, Love, Adieu ...	3d.

Book VI.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY C. A. MACIRONE.

68	Sir Knight, Sir Knight (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
69	The Wounded Cupid ...	1d.
70	Woman's Smile ...	3d.
71	Autolycus' Song ...	3d.
72	Footsteps of Angels ...	3d.
73	The Sun shines fair on Carlisle Wall	3d.

Book VII.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY LESLIE.

74	The Pilgrims ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
75	My soul to God, my heart to thee,	3d.
76	Awake, awake, the Flow'rs unfold,	3d.
77	How sweet the moonlight sleeps,	1d.
78	Land, Ho! ...	3d.
79	Up, up, ye Dames ...	3d.

Book VIII.—1s. 4d.

SIX MADRIGALS BY VARIOUS COMPOSERS.Including the Bristol Prize Madrigals.

80	Thine eyes so bright (S.S.A.T.B.B.)	4d.
Henry Leslie.
81	All is not gold (S.A.T.T.B.)	3d.
W. F. Westbrook.
82	Hark how the birds (S.S.A.T.T.B.)	3d.
Henry Lahee.
83	All ye woods (S.S.A.T.B.)	Do. 1d.
84	My love is fair (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
Henry Leslie.
85	Charm me asleep (S.S.A.T.B.B.)	Do. 3d.

VOLUME III. CONTAINS—

Book IX.—1s.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY HILES.

86	When twilight dews ... (S.A.T.B.)	1d.
87	A Finland Love Song ...	1d.
88	Evening ...	1d.
89	To the Morning Wind ...	3d.
90	To Daffodils ...	3d.
91	Summer Longings ...	3d.

Book X.—1s.

SIX SONGS BY
FRANCESCO BERGER.

92	Night, lovely Night ... (S.A.T.B.)	1d.
93	Essay, my Heart ...	3d.
94	Childhood's Melody ...	1d.
95	Now ...	3d.
96	Sunset ...	1d.
97	Arise, the Sunbeams hail	3d.

Book XI.—1s.

SIX SONGS BY
J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.

98	Night winds that so gently flow	1d.
(S.A.T.B.)
99	Breathe soft ye Winds	1d.
100	My lady is so wondrous fair	1d.
101	Chivalry of Labour (S.S.A.T.B.)	4d.
102	Come, fill, my boys (A.T.T.B.)	3d.
103	Echoes (S.A.T.B.)	1d.

Book XII.—1s. 4d.

EIGHT SONGS BY J. BARNBY.

104	Phœbus ... (S.A.T.B.)	1d.
105	Luna ...	1d.
106	A Wife's Song ...	1d.
107	Home they brought ...	1d.
108	Annie Lee ...	1d.
109	Starry Crowns of Heaven ...	1d.
110	The Wind ...	3d.
111	The Skylark ...	3d.

Book XIII.—1s.

SIX SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

The Words by the Rev. Charles Kingsley.

112	The Sands of Dee ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
113	Alton Locke's Song ...	1d.
114	The Starlings ...	3d.
115	The Three Fishers ...	3d.
116	The World's Age ...	1d.
117	Sing, heigh ho!	3d.

VOLUME IV. CONTAINS—

Book XIV.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY A. ZIMMERMANN.

118	Fairy Song ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
119	Good night ...	1d.
120	Gone for ever ...	3d.
121	Flowers ...	3d.
122	To Daffodils ...	1d.
123	Good Morrow ...	3d.

Book XV.—1s. 4d.

EIGHT SHAKSPEARE SONGS BY
G. A. MACFARREN.

124	Sigh no more, ladies (S.A.T.B.)	... 3d.
125	You spotted snakes (S.S.A.A.)	... 3d.
126	Take, oh take those lips away	(S.A.T.B.) 1d.
127	It was a lover and his lass	... 4d.
128	O mistress mine	... 1d.
129	Under the greenwood tree	... 1d.
130	Hark, the lark	... 4d.
131	Tell me where is fancy bred	... 1d.

Book XVI.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY LESLIE.

132	The Violet ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
133	One morning sweet in May	3d.
134	Daylight is fading	1d.
135	Down in a pretty valley	3d.
136	The Primrose ...	1d.
137	Arise, sweet love	3d.

Book XVII.—1s.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY SMART.

138	'Tis break of day ... (S.A.T.B.)	2d.
139	My true love hath my heart	2d.
140	Doth not my lady come	2d.
141	Spring Song ...	2d.
142	The Curfew ...	2d.
143	Hear, sweet spirit	2d.

Book XVIII.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY SAMUEL REAY.

144	Spring Voices ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
145	Waken, lords and ladies gay	3d.
146	As it fell upon a day	3d.
147	Huntsman, rest ...	3d.
148	'Tis May upon the mountain	3d.
149	Take, oh take those lips away	1d.

VOLUME V. CONTAINS—

Book XIX.—1s.

SIX SONGS BY A. S. SULLIVAN.

150	The Rainy Day ... (S.A.T.B.)	1d.
151	Oh, hush thee, my babe	3d.
152	Evening ...	1d.
153	Joy to the Victors ...	3d.
154	Parting Gleams ...	1d.
155	Echoes ...	3d.

Book XX.—1s.

SIX SONGS BY W. MACFARREN.

156	Spring ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
157	Summer ...	1d.
158	Autumn ...	3d.
159	Winter ...	3d.
160	You stole my love	1d.
161	Dainty love ...	1d.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK—(Continued).

Book XXI.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY J. LEMMENS.

162 Drops of Rain ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
163 The Fairy Ring ... "	3d.
164 The Light of Life ... "	3d.
165 Oh, welcome him ... "	3d.
166 Sunshine through the clouds ... "	3d.
167 The Corn Field ... "	3d.

Book XXII.—Is.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY SMART.

168 Wake! to the hunting (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
169 Dost thou idly ask ... "	3d.
170 A Psalm of Life ... "	1d.
171 Only Thou ... "	1d.
172 I prithee send me back my heart ... "	1d.
173 The Moon ... "	3d.

Book XXIII.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY CIRO PINSUTI.

174 A Spring Song ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
175 An Autumn Song ... "	3d.
176 The Two Spirits ... "	3d.
177 The Crusaders ... "	3d.
178 The Caravan ... "	3d.
179 Stradella ... "	3d.

VOLUME VI. CONTAINS—

THIRTY-FIVE SONGS BY
J. L. HATTON.

*180 When evening's twilight (S.A.T.B.)	2d.
*181 Absence ... "	2d.
*182 April showers ... "	3d.
*183 The red, red rose ... "	3d.
*184 Beware, beware ... "	3d.
*185 The Sailor's Song ... "	3d.
*186 Good Night ... "	2d.
187 Blythe is the bird ... "	2d.
*188 Stars of the summer night ... "	3d.
*189 The hemlock tree ... "	4d.
*190 Jack Frost ... "	3d.
*191 I loved her ... "	3d.
*192 The Village Blacksmith ... "	3d.
193 The Bait (come live with me) ... "	3d.
194 Softly fall the shades of evening ... "	2d.
195 Auburn (Sweet village) ... "	3d.
196 Bird of the wilderness ... "	3d.
197 The Summer gale ... "	3d.
198 I met her in the quiet lane ... "	2d.
199 If thou art sleeping ... "	3d.
200 Spring song ... "	3d.
201 Good wishes ... "	3d.
202 Parting and Meeting ... "	2d.
203 Whether kiss'd by sunbeams ... "	3d.
204 The roses are blushing ... "	3d.
205 The Rivals ... "	3d.
206 The village dance ... "	3d.
207 Song of the Gipsy maidens ... "	3d.
208 The Waterfall ... "	3d.
209 Over hill, over dale ... "	3d.
210 Love me little, love me long ... "	3d.
211 Going a-maying ... "	3d.
212 See, the rooks are homeward flying ... "	3d.
213 Sweet Lady moon ... "	3d.
214 Hark, the Convent bells are ringing ... "	3d.

* Arranged by the Composer for mixed voices.

VOLUME VII. CONTAINS—
TWENTY-FOUR SONGS BY
J. L. HATTON.

FOR MEN'S VOICES.

215 When evening's twilight ...	2d.
216 Warrior's Song ...	3d.
217 Absence ...	2d.
218 April showers ...	3d.
219 The red, red rose ...	3d.
220 Beware, beware ...	3d.
221 The happiest land ...	3d.
222 The Sailor's Song ...	3d.
223 Busy, curious, thirsty fly ...	2d.
224 Good night, beloved ...	2d.
225 Bacchanalian Song ...	3d.
226 Stars of the Summer night ...	3d.
227 King Witlaf's drinking horn ...	3d.
228 Tars' song ...	4d.
229 The hemlock tree ...	4d.
230 Jack Frost ...	3d.
231 The Lyre ...	3d.
232 I loved her ...	3d.
233 The Village Blacksmith ...	3d.
234 The Letter ...	3d.
235 Shall I wasting in despair ...	3d.
236 The way to build a boat, or Jack's opinion ...	4d.
237 I lov'd a lass, a fair one ...	4d.
238 The Lifeboat ...	3d.

VOLUME VIII. CONTAINS—
TWENTY-ONE SONGS BY
HENRY SMART.

239 The Shepherd's farewell (S.A.T.B.)	2d.
240 The wave's reproof ...	3d.
241 Ave Maria ...	2d.
242 Spring ...	2d.
243 Morning ...	3d.
244 Hymn to Cynthia ...	3d.
245 Cradle Song ...	3d.
246 The joys of Spring ...	3d.
247 Dream, baby, dream ...	2d.
248 A Song for the Seasons ...	3d.
249 O say not that my heart is cold ...	2d.
250 Love and mirth ...	3d.
251 Sweet vesper hymn ...	3d.
252 Crocuses and Snowdrops ...	3d.
253 Stars of the summer night ...	3d.
254 Wind thy horn ...	3d.
255 The land of wonders ...	3d.
256 Ye little birds that sit and sing ...	3d.
257 How soft the shades of evening creep ...	2d.
258 How sweet is summer morning ...	2d.
259 Now May is here ...	3d.

VOLUME IX. CONTAINS—
TWENTY-FOUR SONGS BY
WALTER MACFARREN.

260 Hunting Song ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
261 Summer Song ...	3d.
262 The Curfew bell ...	3d.
263 The Warrior ...	3d.
264 Love's heigh-ho! ...	3d.
265 Good night, good rest ...	3d.
266 The Fairies ...	3d.
267 Cradle Song ...	3d.
268 Morning Song ...	3d.
269 Ye pretty birds ...	3d.
270 More life ...	3d.
271 Sweet content ...	3d.
272 Sea Song ... (T.T.B.B.)	3d.
273 The stars are with the voyager ...	3d.
274 Autumn ...	3d.
275 Highland War Song ...	3d.
276 Shortest and longest ...	3d.
277 Windlass Song ...	3d.
278 O Lady, leave thy silken thread ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
279 Lover's Parting ...	3d.
280 Shepherds all and maidens fair ...	3d.
281 Night, sable goddess ...	3d.
282 Hence, all you vain delights ...	3d.
283 Swallow, swallow hither wing ...	3d.

VOLUME X. CONTAINS—
SONGS AND MADRIGALS BY
R. L. DE PEARSALL.

284 The Hardy Norseman (S.A.T.B.)	4d.
284* do. do. (A.T.T.B.)	4d.
285 Nymphs are sporting (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
286 O who will o'er the downs ...	4d.
286* do. do. (A.T.T.B.)	4d.
287 Who shall win my lady fair (S.A.T.B.)	4d.
288 Why with toil ...	3d.
289 When Allen-a-Dale went a-hunting, Glee ...	4d.
290 I saw lovely Phillis. Madrigal ...	4d.
291 The River Spirit's song (A.T.T.B.)	3d.
292 It was upon a Spring-tide day. Madrigal ... (S.A.T.T.B.)	4d.
293 Take heed, ye shepherd swains. Madrigal ... (S.S.A.T.T.B.)	4d.
294 Spring returns. Madrigal (S.S.A.T.B.)	2d.
295 Great God of love. 8 voices. Madrigal ...	3d.
296 In dulci jubilo. Christmas Carol ...	3d.
297 The song of the Frank companies (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
298 How bright in the May-time ...	3d.
299 The Winter song ...	2d.
300 The Bishop of Mentz ...	3d.
301 When last I strayed ...	2d.
302 See how smoothly ...	2d.
303 Let us all go Maying ...	2d.
304 List! Lady, be not coy. Madrigal (S.S.A.T.T.B.)	3d.
305 O ye roses. Madrigal ...	3d.
306 Sing we and chaunt it. Madrigal for Double Choir ...	2d.
307 Sing we and chaunt it. Madrigal for 4 voices ...	2d.
308 The Red Wine flows (T.T.B.B.)	2d.
309 Shoot, false love, I care not. Ballet Madrigal ... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
VOLUME XI. CONTAINS— SONGS AND MADRIGALS BY R. L. DE PEARSALL.
310 Laugh not, Youth, at Age. Madrigal (S.A.T.B.)	4d.
311 Down in my garden fair. Madrigal ...	3d.
312 Adieu! my native shore ...	2d.
313 Purple glow the forest mountains ...	2d.
314 Caput apri defero ...	3d.
315 A Chieftain to the Highlands ...	2d.
316 A King there was in Thule ...	2d.
317 Come, let us be merry. Twelfth Night Song ...	2d.
318 Mihi est propositum (A.T.B.B.)	2d.
319 Light of my soul. Madrigal (S.S.A.T.B.B.)	3d.
320 Lay a garland. Madrigal for 8 voices ...	3d.
321 Summer is y' coming in. Madrigal (S.S.A.T.B.B.)	2d.
322 Why should the Cuckoo's tuneless note. Madrigal. (S.S.A.T.B.)	3d.
323 Why weep, alas! my lady love. Do. ...	3d.
324 There is a paradise on earth (A.T.B.B.)	3d.
325 O! all ye ladies fair and true ...	2d.
326 War Song of the Norman Baron Taillefer (S.A.T.B.)	2d.
327 Why do the roses. Mad. for 4 voices	2d.
328 Sweet as a flower in May. Do. ...	2d.
329 The praise of good wine (T.T.B.B.)	2d.
330 { The Watchman's Song (T.T.B.B.) } Ditto, ditto. (S.A.T.B.)	2d.
331 The Waters of Elle (S.S.A.T.B.)	2d.
332 No! no! Nigella. For Double Choir	2d.
333 Sir Patrick Spens. In 10 parts ...	4d.

SONGS BY A. S. SULLIVAN,
HENRY SMART, &c.

The long day closes (T.T.B.B.)	3d.
A. S. Sullivan
The Beleaguered (T.T.B.B.)	A.S.Sullivan 3d.
The Homeward Watch	Henry Smart 1½d.
Sleep, my sweet. (A.T.T.B.)	J. L. Hatton 3d.
The Wrecked Hope (S.A.T.B.)	J. L. Hatton 3d.
Going away (A.T.T.B.)	J. L. Hatton 3d.

(To be continued.)

Nearly all the above-named Four-Part Songs are published in score, folio size; also in separate vocal parts, either octavo or folio.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.—To remove the heavy taxes upon musical knowledge which had for so long a period prevented the possibility of the dissemination of the works of the great composers amongst the people of this country, Mr. J. Alfred Novello, in the year 1846, commenced the issue of those cheap editions of the standard oratorios and other sacred compositions, which are now too well known by all classes to need a word of recommendation. For some years the choruses in the octavo editions of these works have been published separately, with an organ or pianoforte accompaniment, at an exceedingly cheap rate. Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., however, believe that the time has now arrived when they may still further help forward the good work which has already produced such glorious results; and they have resolved, therefore, upon reducing the price of the whole of the octavo choruses fully fifty per cent.

HANDEL.			HANDEL.			HANDEL.
No.		Pence.	No.		Pence.	No.		Pence.
1	And the glory of the Lord	Messiah 1½	64	Hail, mighty Joshua	Joshua 2	101	Sing unto God	Judas 1½
2	And with his stripes	" 1	63	How soon our tow'ring hopes	" 1	102	Swell the full chorus	Solomon 1½
27	And he shall purify	" 1½		How are the mighty fallen	" 2	103	Now a different measure	" 1½
3	All we, like sheep	" 1½	279	Funeral Anthem	" 2	104	See the proud chief	Deborah 2
4	And the children of Israel	Israel 2		She delivered the poor	" 1	105	The Lord gave the word	Messiah 1
5	And Israel saw	" 1	280	How are the mighty fallen	" 1½	106	Their sound is gone out	" 1
6	And believed the Lord	" 1	222	The righteous shall be had	" 1½	107	They loathed to drink	Israel 1
7	He is my God	" 1		How excellent thy name	Saul 1½	108	The trumpet's loud clangour	Ode 1
8	And I will exalt him	" 1½	223	The youth inspired	" 2	109	Thy right hand, O Lord	Israel 1
9	The depths have covered	" 1½		Our fainting courage	" 2	110	And in the greatness	" 1½
10	And with the blast	" 1½	65	How excellent, and Hallelujah	" 2	111	Thou sendest forth thy wrath	" 1½
11	Ah, wretched Israel	Judas 1		Moses and the children	Israel 2	112	Who is like unto Thee?	" 1
12	All the earth	Dettingen 1½	66	I will sing unto the Lord	" 2	113	The earth swallowed them	" 1
13	To thee all angels	" 1½	67	In glory high	Jephtha 1½	114	The people shall hear	" 3
14	Awake the trumpet's	Samson 1½	258	Immortal Lord	Deborah 4	115	To our great God	Judas 1
15	Almighty ruler of the skies	Joshua 1½	260	King's daughters were among	" 1	116	To thee Cherubin	Dettingen 1½
16	As from the power	Ode 3	261	Kings shall be thy nursing fathers	" 1	117	The glorious company	" 1
17	At last divine Cecilia	Alex.'s Feast 1½	68	Let their celestial concerts	Samson 1½	118	Thine honourable, true	" 1
18	All your boast will end	Deborah 1½	69	Lift up your heads	Messiah 1½	119	Thou art the King	" 1
19	Bacchus' blessings are a treasure	" 1	71	Let all the angels of God	" 1½	120	Then shall they know	Samson 1½
20	Behold the Lamb of God	Messiah 1	72	Let us break their bonds	" 1½	121	Then round about the starry throne	" 1
21	Behold, Darius	Alexander's Feast 1	73	Let old Timotheus yield	" 1½	122	To dust his glory	Samson 1
22	Break his hands of sleep	" 1	75	Lead on, lead on	Judas 1	123	To man God's universal law	1½
23	But as for his people	Israel 1	76	Let thy deeds be glorious	Deborah 1½	124	Theme sublime	Jephtha 1½
24	But the waters overwhelmed	" 1	77	Let our glad songs	" 3	125	To song and dance	Samson 1½
25	O death, where is thy sting?	" 1	262	Let thy hand be strengthened	" 1½	126	To fame immortal go	" 1½
26	(Duet) Messiah	1½	263	Let justice and judgment	" 1	127	The princes applaud	Alex.'s Feast 1½
27	But thanks be to God	" 1½	78	Mourn, ye afflicted	Judas 1	128	Tune your harps	Judas 1½
28	By slow degrees	Belshazzar 3	79	Mourn, all ye Muses	Acis 1	129	Throughout the land	Solomon 1½
29	Cherub and Seraphim	Jephtha 2	288	Dead March	Saul 1	130	Thus rolling surges rise	" 1
30	Come and trip it	L'Allegro 1½	289	Mourn, Israel, mourn	" 1	131	The name of the wicked	" 2
31	Doubtful fear	Jephtha 1½	80	Must I my Acis still bemoan?	Acis 1½	132	To long posterity	Joshua 1½
32	Disdainful of danger	Judas 1	81	May no rash intruder	Solomon 1½	133	The Lord commands	" 1½
33	Day by day we magnify	Dettingen 2	82	Music spread thy voice	" 1	134	The Great Jehovah	" 1
34	Make them to be numbered	" 2	83	May all the host	Joshua 1	135	The listening crowd	Alex.'s Feast 1½
35	Draw the tear	Solomon 1	257	My heart is inditing (1st movement)	1½	136	The many rend the skies	" 2
36	Despair all around them	Deborah 1½	34	No more to Ammon's God	Jephtha 1½	276	The ways of Zion do mourn	" 1½
37	Alleluia	" 1½	321	Now love, that everlasting boy	" 1½	287	Their bodies are buried	" 1½
38	Egypt was glad	Israel in Egypt 1				288	But their name liveth	" 1½
39	Envy! eldest born of hell	Saul 1	85	Doleful tidings	Deborah 1½	289	The people will tell	" 1
40	Exceeding glad shall he be	" 1	351	O God, who in Thy heavenly hand	Joseph 3	290	And the congregation	" 1
41	For unto us a child	Messiah 2	86	O God, behold	Jephtha 1½	291	They shall receive	" 1
42	Fallen is the foe	Judas 1	87	O first-created beam	Samson 1½	292	The merciful goodness	" 1
43	For Sion lamentation make	" 1	89	O thou that tellest good tidings	" 1½	345	The mighty power	Athalia 3
44	Fixed in his everlasting seat	Samson 1		(Solo & Chorus)	1½	133	The great king of kings	Deborah 1½
45	From the censer curling	Solomon 4	90	O father, whose Almighty	Judas 1½	254	Doleful tidings	" 1
46	From the east unto the west	" 1½	91	O father, whose Almighty	Judas 1½	329	The king shall rejoice	" 1
47	From harmony	Ode 1½	92	O Lord, in thee	Dettingen 2	330	These delights if thou canst give	L'Allegro 1½
48	For all these mercies	Joshua 1	93	O Lord, bright orb	Joshua 1½	331	These pleasures, Melancholy, give	" 1½
49	Father of mercy	" 1	94	O the pleasure of the plains	Acis 1½	255	Thou hast prevented him	" 1½
50	Forbear thy doubts	Deborah 1	95	O blast with thy tremendous	Deborah 1½	302	Tyrants now no more	Hercules 1½
51	For ever to the voice	" 1	96	O hear thy lowly servants' prayer	" 1	259	Upon Thy right hand	" 1½
52	Galatea, dry thy tears	Acis 1½	227	O Baal, monarch of the skies	" 1½	134	Worthy is the Lamb	Messiah 2
53	Gird on thy sword	Saul 2	228	O fatal consequence of rage	Saul 1½	224	Amen	" 1
54	Great Dagon has subdued	Samson 1½	229	Eagles were not so swift	" 1½	135	Welcome, mighty King	Saul 1
55	Glorious hero!	" 1½		In sweetest harmony (Air)	" 1½	136	David his ten thousand slew	" 1
56	Glory to God	Messiah 1	327	O fatal day	" 1½	137	We come, in bright array	Judas 1
57	Glory to God	Joshua 2	328	Or let the merry bells	L'Allegro 1½	138	We hear	" 1
58	Happy we	Acis 1	329	Populous cities	" 1½	139	We never will bow down	" 1½
59	Happy pair	Alexander's Feast 1½	96	Praise the Lord	Solomon 3	140	When thou hadst overcome	" 1½
60	His yoke is easy	Messiah 1	227	Lord of Eternity	Deborah 1½	141	We therefore pray thee	Jephtha 3
61	He trusted in God	" 1½		Plead thy just cause	" 1	142	With thunder arm'd	Samson 1
62	How dark, O Lord	Jephtha 2	225	Preserve him for the glory	Saul 1½	324	Weep, Israel, weep	" 2
63	Hear, Jacob's God	Samson 1		Is there a man?	" 1½	143	With pious heart	Solomon 2
64	Hallelujah	Messiah 1	275	Sing, O ye heavens	Belshazzar 3	144	We with redoubled rage	Joshua 1
65	Hear us, our God	Samson 1	276	She put on righteousness	Messiah 1	145	Wretched lovers	Acis 1½
66	He spake the word	Israel 1	277	Surely he hath borne	" 1	278	When the ear heard her	" 1
67	He gave them halitones	" 1½	278	Since by man came death	" 1	146	Your harps and cymbals	Solomon 3
68	He sent a thick darkness	" 1½		The Lord shall reign	Israel 4	147	Ye voices of Israel	Alex.'s Feast 1½
69	He smote the thick darkness	" 1½	100	Sing ye to the Lord	" 4	148	Ye house of Gilead	Joshua 2
70	He rebuked the Red Sea	" 1½	36	See the conquering hero	Judas 1	149	Zadock the Priest	Jephtha 1½
71	He led them through the deep	" 1½
72	Hear us, O Lord	Judas 1
73	He saw the lovely youth	Theodora 1
74	Hail! Judea	Judas 1
75	Hallelujah. Amen	" 1

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 35, POULTRY (E.C.).

NEW YORK: J. L. PETERS, 599, BROADWAY.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES,

IN VOCAL SCORE.

HAYDN'S FIRST MASS.

No.		Pence.
290	Kyrie—Hear us, Lord ...	3
291	Gloria—Sing to the Lord ...	1½
292	Gratias—Lord, we adore ...	2
293	Quoniam—Praise the Lord ...	2
294	Credo—O be joyful ...	1½
295	Et incarnatus—O Lord, give ear ...	1½
296	Et resurrexit—Thou hast maintained ...	1½
297	Et vitam—Lord, thine be the power ...	1½
298	Sanctus—Holy, holy ...	1
299	Benedictus—He is blessed ...	2
300	Agnus Dei—God our Father ...	1½
301	Dona nobis—Sing the praises ...	1½

HAYDN'S THIRD MASS.

160	Kyrie—Hear our prayer ...	2
161	Gloria—Glorious is the King ...	1½
162	Qui tollis—Lord, why hast thou forsaken ...	1
163	Quoniam—Sing with joy ...	1½
164	Credo—Lord, thou hast made ...	1½
165	Et incarnatus—O Lord, rebuke me not ...	1
166	Et resurrexit—Thou hast maintained ...	1½
167	Sanctus—Holy, holy ...	2
168	Benedictus—He is blessed ...	2
169	Agnus Dei—Lord, we pray thee
170	Dona nobis—Hallelujah, Amen ...	2

HAYDN'S SEASONS.

251	Come, gentle Spring ...	1½
252	Be propitious, bounteous Heaven
253	(Trio and Chorus) ...	2
254	Spring, her lovely charms
255	(Duet and Chorus) ...	1½
256	God of light, God of life ...	2
257	Behold, on high he mounts ...	2
258	(Trio and Chorus) ...	2
259	Hark! the deep, tremendous voice ...	2
260	Now cease the conflicts (Trio & Chos.) ...	1½
261	Thus nature, ever kind ditto ...	2
262	Hark! the mountains resound ...	2
263	Joyful the liquor flows ...	3
264	Let the wheel move gaily ...	1½
265	A wealthy lord (S. Solo and Chorus) ...	1½
266	Then comes the dawn (Trio & Chos.) ...	2

HAYDN'S CREATION.

150	Awake the harp ...	1½
151	And the Spirit of God ...	1½
152	Achieved is the glorious work
153	(1st Chorus) ...	1
154	(2nd Chorus) ...	1½
155	By thee with bliss (Duet & Chorus) ...	1½
156	Despairing, cursing rage ...	4
157	Sing the Lord ...	2
158	The marvellous work ...	1½
159	The heavens are telling ...	2
160	The Lord is great ...	1½

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS.

197	Kyrie—I will call upon the Lord ...	3
198	Gloria—Glorious is thy name ...	1½
199	Qui tollis—Remember thy tender ...	1
200	Quoniam—Praise the Lord ...	2
201	Cum sancto—Thou, Lord, art God ...	2
202	Credo—Nations shall do him service
203	{ Et incarnatus—Bow down and hear me ...	3
204	{ Et resurrexit—God is gone up
205	Sanctus—Holy, holy ...	1
206	Benedictus—He is blessed ...	4
207	Agnus Dei—Lord, have mercy
208	Dona nobis—Praise the Lord ...	3

MOZART'S FIRST MASS.

285	Kyrie—Merciful and gracious Lord ...	1½
286	Gloria—Glorious in thy power ...	3
287	Credo—Nations shall do him service
288	Sanctus—Holy, holy, holy ...	3
289	Benedictus—He is blessed ...	3
290	Agnus Dei—Lord, we pray thee
291	Dona nobis—Turn thee unto us ...	1½

GOUNOD'S

MESSE SOLENNELLE.

323	Sanctus and Benedictus ...	2
324	Credo ...	4
325	{ Sanctus ... Communion Service
326	{ Benedictus ... Communion Service	2

WEBER'S MASS IN E♭.

327	Sanctus—Holy, holy, holy ...	4
328	Benedictus—He is blessed ...	4

BEETHOVEN'S MASS IN D.

No.		Pence.
344	Kyrie Eleison ...	3

MOZART'S LITANY IN B♭.

309	{ Viaticum—O Lord, hear our cry
310	{ Pignus futuræ—Sing to Jehovah	4

MOZART'S LITANY IN E♭.

310	Pignus futuræ—Lord God, to thee be glory ...	4
-----	--	---

MOZART'S REQUIEM.

213	{ Requiem æternam—Give unto the meek ...	2
214	{ Christe Eleison—Shew thy mercy
215	Dies Iræ—Day of vengeance ...	1
216	Tuba mirum—Hark, the angel ...	1
217	Rex, tremenda—King, tremendous
218	Recordare Jesu—Kindly Jesu ...	2
219	Confutatus maledictus—When the cursed ...	1½
220	Lachrymosa—Day of mourning ...	1
221	Domine Jesu Christe—Lord Jesu Christ ...	1½
222	Hostias et Preces—Offering of prayer
223	Sanctus—Holy, holy, holy ...	1½
224	Benedictus—He is blessed ...	1
225	Agnus Dei—Thou that takest upon thee ...	2
226	Lux Æterna—Shew thy favour ...	1½
227	Cum Sanctus—O shew thy mercy ...	1½
228	O God, when thou appearest
229	First Motett ...	3
230	Splendete Te, Deus ... ditto	3
231	Glory, honour, praise Third Motett

BACH'S PASSION.

334	{ My Saviour Jesus ...	3
335	{ Have lightnings and thunders ...	1
336	Now doth the Lord ...	1
337	In tears of grief ...	1½
338	I wrestle and pray (Motett) ...	4

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER.

232	{ Stabat Mater dolorosa ...	2
233	{ Eia Mater (B. Solo and Chorus) ...	1½
234	{ Thou hast tried our hearts ...	1½
235	{ Sancta Mater (Quartet) ...	2
236	{ I have longed for thy salvation
237	Inflammatus (S. Solo and Chorus) ...	2
238	Quando corpus ...	2
239	Quando corpus ...	2
240	Hear us, O Lord (Quartet) ...	1½
241	In sempiterna sæcula. Amen
242	To Him be glory ...	2

SPOHR.

267	Praise the Lord our God ...	1½
268	{ Holy, holy, holy (Solo and Chorus) ...	1
269	{ O Lord, thou art God alone (ditto) ...	1
270	Blessing, power, honour, glory
271	(T. Solo and Chorus) ...	1½
272	Hail, Lord Almighty ...	1
273	Seek the Lord ...	1
274	Destruction is fallen on Babylon ...	2
275	Blessed for ever are they that die ...	1
276	Great and wonderful art thou ...	3
277	God, thou art great (1st movement) ...	1
278	Thou earth, wait sweet incense ...	1
279	Walk ye, hundred thousands ...	1½
280	God, thou art great (final chorus) ...	1½
281	What threatening tempest ...	4
282	Haughty Babylon ...	3
283	Jehovah, Lord God of Hosts
284	(The 8th Psalm) ...	4
285	Gentle night, O descend ...	2
286	Though all thy friends prove faithless ...	2
287	His earthly race is run. Calvary ...	2

HUMMEL.

303	Quod in orbe—I will exalt thee ...	4
-----	------------------------------------	---

CHERUBINI'S REQUIEM MASS

331	{ Requiem æternam—Give unto the pure in heart ...	2
332	Dies Iræ—Day of vengeance ...	6
333	Pie Jesu—God of mercy ...	1

LEONARDO LEO.

347	Dixit Dominus ...	2
-----	-------------------	---

SAMUEL WESLEY.

348	In Exitu Israel ...	4
-----	---------------------	---

BEETHOVEN'S ENGEDI.

No.		Pence.
195	O praise him, all ye nations ...	3
196	Hallelujah ...	2
197	Where is he ...	3

BEETHOVEN'S MASS IN C.

190	Kyrie—When I call upon thee ...	1½
191	Gloria—Praise the Lord ...	1
192	Qui tollis—Give ear to my supplication ...	4
193	Quoniam—Thou alone art holy
194	Credo—Glory and great worship
195	Et incarnatus—O Lord, give ear
196	Et resurrexit—Be thou exalted
197	Et vitam—O praise ye the Lord
198	Sanctus—Holy, holy ...	4
199	Benedictus—He is blessed ...	4
200	Agnus Dei—Hear my crying
201	Dona nobis—Blessed be the Lord ...	2

MENDELSSOHN.

72	All men, all things
73	Praise thou the Lord
74	As the hart pants
75	And then shall your light ...	4
76	All ye that cried ...	4
77	I waited for the Lord
78	(Duet s.s. and Chorus) ...	3
79	I waited for the Lord (singly) ...	1½
80	Baal, we cry to thee ...	1½
81	Behold, God, the Lord ...	4
82	Be not afraid ...	4
83	Blessed are the men ...	4
84	But our God abideth ...	1
85	Cast thy burden ...	1
86	Come with torches
87	Come, let us sing ...	4
88	For his is the sea ...	1½
89	For I had gone forth ...	1½
90	Hearts feel that love Thee
91	Henceforth when ye hear
92	(T. Solo and Chos.) ...	1½
93	He watching over Israel ...	4
94	He that shall endure ...	2
95	Holy, holy, is God ...	4
96	Happy and blest are they ...	1
97	How lovely are the messengers ...	1½
98	Thus saith the Lord ...	1½
99	I praise thee, O Lord
100	(B. Solo & Chos.) ...	1½
101	Is this he? ...	1½
102	O thou, the true and only ...	1½
103	Lord, thou alone ...	2
104	Let all men praise ...	1
105	Now this man ...	1½
106	Not only unto him ...	2
107	O great is the depth ...	2
108	O be gracious ...	1
109	O come, let us worship
110	(T. Solo & Chos.) ...	1½
111	Promised joys ...	6
112	Hearts feel that love Thee
113	Rise up, arise ...	3
114	Sleepers, wake ...	1
115	To God on high ...	1
116	To thee, O Lord ...	1
117	Stone him to death ...	1½
118	See what love ...	1
119	The nations are now ...	3
120	The gods themselves ...	1
121	This is Jehovah's Temple ...	1½
122	Far be it from thy path ...	1
123	The night is departing
124	Thanks be to God ...	3
125	Why, my soul ...	1
126	Why, my soul (last Chorus) ...	3
127	Ye nations, offer ...	3
128	Yet doth the Lord ...	4

A. S. SULLIVAN.

357	Domine salvam fac (Festival Te Deum) ...	4
-----	--	---

WEBER'S MASS IN G.

304	{ Kyrie Eleison ...	1½
305	{ I will call upon the Lord ...	3
306	{ Gloria in excelsis ...	3
307	{ Praise the Lord ...	3
308	{ Credo ...	3
309	{ Nations shall do him service
310	Sanctus and Benedictus ...	2
311	Holy, holy, holy ...	2
312	He is blessed ...	2
313	Agnus Dei and Dona nobis ...	1
314	Shew thy favour unto thy people
315	Look with favour on thy people

CHAPPELL & CO.

Have now on View the largest Stock in London of PIANOFORTES by all the great Makers, of ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, greatly improved, and of ORGAN HARMONIUMS. Any of these Instruments can be Hired for Three Years, and, provided each Quarterly Instalment shall have been regularly paid in advance, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer at the expiration of the third year.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM.

SOLID OAK CASE, FIVE OCTAVES, AND TWO FOOT-BOARDS.

The ever-increasing musical culture in all classes of society has created a demand for free reed instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured.

The instruments now offered to the public will be found divested of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone. This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organlike.

Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.

The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect, and without extra cost.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET.

NEW WORK FOR SINGING CLASSES.

CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS.

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass.

The present collection of Part-Songs is entirely new, being selected and adapted from the most striking and popular Choruses in the Favourite Foreign Operas. The Arrangement is purely Vocal, such Choruses only being chosen as can be sung without the aid of an Instrumental Accompaniment. The Words have been expressly written for the work, and the harmonies arranged in four parts, as likely to be most useful in small classes.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Hymn of the Fisherman's Children | Adapted to a Melody from Herold's "ZAMPA." |
| 2. Fays and Elves (In mia fe) | From Flotow's "MARTA." |
| 3. Spring's Bright Glances (In Elvezia non v'ha) | From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA." |
| 4. From Yonder Vale and Hill (D'immenso giubilo) | From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR." |
| 5. Here we Rest (Qui la selva) | From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA." |
| 6. Onward to Battle (Squilli echeggi) | From Verdi's "TROVATORE." |
| 7. Rataplan (Rataplan) | From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO." |
| 8. The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche) | From Verdi's "IL TROVATORE." |
| 9. War Song of the Druids (Dell' aura tua profetica) | From Bellini's "NORMA." |
| 10. In Mercy, hear us! (Cielo clemente) | From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO." |
| 11. Come to the Fair! (Accorete, giovinette) | From Flotow's "MARTA." |
| 12. Friendship (Per te d'immenso giubilo) | From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR." |
| 13. Away, the Morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen) | From Auber's "MASANIELLO." |
| 14. Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus) | From Gounod's "FAUST." |
| 15. The soft Winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus) | From Weber's "PRECIOSA." |
| 16. See how lightly on the blue sea (Senti la danza invitaci) | From Donizetti's "LUCREZIA BORGIA." |
| 17. See the Moonlight Beam (Non fav Motto) | |
| 18. On yonder rocks reclining | From Auber's "FRA DIAVOLO." |
| 19. Happy and light | From Balfe's "BOHEMIAN GIRL." |
| 20. Come, come away (Ah! que de moins) | From Donizetti's "LA FAVORITA." |
| 21. Hymn's torch (Il destin) | From Meyerbeer's "LES HUGUENOTS." |
| 22. Come on, Comrade (The Celebrated Chorus of Old Men) | From Gounod's "FAUST." |
| 23. 'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Chorale of the Cross) | |
| 24. O Balm night (Com è gentil) | From Donizetti's "DON PASQUALE." |

Postage free, 1^d. each; or 3 for 3^d.

(To be continued.)

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.

ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.

Composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs, by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post free, 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written."

HANDEL'S CHORUSES

Arranged for the Organ, with PEDAL OBLIGATO, EXPRESSLY for the use of AMATEURS, by DR. RIMBAULT. Price 3s. each. Nos. 1 to 12 are now ready:—

- | | | |
|-----------------------------|--------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| NO. 1. ZADOCK THE PRIEST. | NO. 5. SING UNTO GOD. | NO. 9. FOR UNTO US A CHILD IS BORN. |
| 2. FROM THE CENSER. | 6. HALLELUJAH. | 10. HE TRUSTED IN GOD. |
| 3. WE NEVER WILL BOW DOWN. | 7. LIFT UP YOUR HEADS. | 11. BUT THE WATERS OVERWHELMED THEM. |
| 4. HE GAVE THEM HAILSTONES. | 8. LET US BREAK THEIR BONDS ASUNDER. | 12. THE HORSE AND HIS RIDER. |

(To be continued.)

The present publication has been undertaken with a view to supply a musical want long felt by amateurs and lovers of the organ, i.e., an edition of HANDEL'S CELEBRATED CHORUSES arranged for the organ with pedal obligato, that shall be effective, combining all the salient parts of the score, and yet at the same time be within the reach of those performers who have not made the instrument their entire study. We have, it is true, many arrangements; some for "Organ or Pianoforte," others by our most eminent organists. The first belong to a past age; the second, in all cases, are only fit for professional performers, and require an amount of skill for their proper execution rarely attained by amateurs. In the present edition, the notation has been carefully studied so as to simplify the reading, whilst the pedals, in all cases of difficulty, have the assistance of the left hand of the performer. Many other points have been considered so as to render the arrangement fitted to the object it has in view—to supply an edition of HANDEL'S CHORUSES for the Organ expressly for the amateur.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster-row. And by J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway, New York.—Friday, August 1, 1873.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped; those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c. can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 367.—Vol. 16.
Registered for transmission abroad.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1873.

Price 2d.; Post-free, 2½d.
Annual Subscription, Postage free, 25. 6d.

BRISTOL MUSICAL FESTIVAL, COLSTON HALL, BRISTOL, OCTOBER 21, 22, 23, AND 24, 1873.

PRINCIPAL VOCALISTS.

MADAME LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON

MADAME OTTO-ALVSLEBEN

MISS JULIA WIGAN - MISS ADA JACKSON

MADAME PATEY - MISS ENRIQUEZ

MR. SIMS REEVES - MR. VERNON RIGBY

MR. EDWARD LLOYD - MR. LEWIS THOMAS

MR. SANTLEY.

Other Engagements are pending, and will be duly announced.

WORKS TO BE PERFORMED:—

CREATION, ELIJAH, MESSIAH,
HYMN OF PRAISE, STABAT MATER,

MR. G. A. MACFARREN'S NEW ORATORIO

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST.

Miscellaneous Concert with Symphony each Evening.

MR. CHARLES HALLÉ'S ORCHESTRA.

The Band and Chorus will number 400 Performers.

CONDUCTOR - - MR. CHARLES HALLÉ.

PRICES OF TICKETS.

Secured Seats for Morning Performances, 21s.; Unsecured, 7s.

Secured Seats for Evening Performances, 15s.; Unsecured, 7s.

Serial Tickets for Secured Seats to all Seven Performances, £4 14s. 6d.

Set of Four Tickets for any one Morning Performance, except Messiah. Secured Seats, £3 3s.; Unsecured, 21s., if applied for before October 14th.

Set of Four Tickets for any one Evening Concert. Secured Seats, £2 2s.; Unsecured, 21s., if applied for before October 14th.

TICKETS AND PROGRAMMES WILL SHORTLY BE ISSUED.

CHARLES PRICE, Hon. Sec., Colston Hall, Bristol.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS GRACE ARMYTAGE (Primo Soprano),
2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MISS BLANCHE REIVES (Principal Soprano only)
Oratorios, Opera, Concerts, &c. 54, Lupus-street, S.W., and 106,
Renfrew-street, Glasgow.

MISS AGNES LARKCOM (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 14, Bedford-street, Reading.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS CLELLAND (Soprano).
For Terms and Critiques, address 51, Elizabeth-street, Cheetham-hill-road, Manchester.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE (Soprano),
2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, W.

MISS CHAPLIN (Soprano).
Address City of London College, 52, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

MRS. WARREN (Soprano)
Of Mr. C. Hallé's Concerts. For Oratorio or other Concerts, address
150, Radnor-street, Hulme, Manchester.
Lessons in Singing. References, Charles Hallé, Esq., and Edward Hecht, Esq.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),
50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
Address 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 2, Alma Square, St. John's Wood.

J. A. SMITH (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address Cathedral Choir, Worcester.

CARLOS LOVATT, Vocalist (Baritone).
For Oratorios and Miscel. Concerts, address Cathedral, Manchester.

HENRY C. SANDERS (Baritone),
(Of S. Andrew's, Wells-ct.) 2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Basso).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; also for Oxford Glee Party.
Address Principal Bass, Ch. Ch. Cathedral, Oxford.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),
Sunny-bank, Hazleville-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
(Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts), for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address 2, Hallfield-place, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. W. H. JUDE,
(Organist of Emmanuel Church and the Blue Coat Hospital, Liverpool), will give his "Vocal and Instrumental Recital," entitled "AN HOUR WITH HENRY RUSSELL," in the principal towns throughout England during the coming season. For terms and opinions of the press, address 33, Abercrombie-terrace, Oxford-street, Liverpool, E.

MR. J. TILLEARD,
Removed to Seaton-villa, Slaithwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder,
29, Minories, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds,
Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories,
London. List for stamp.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having
the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUB-
LISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions,
Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Cla-
rionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, is., post free.
Rudiments of Singing, is. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 7th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE
BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied
at wholesale prices at J. Moore's, Buxton-road, Huddersfield.
Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

SMALL ORGANS with pedals, for Church or
Chamber, from 35 guineas. HARMONIUMS, 5 octaves of organ
tone, simple mechanism, for Chapels, Schools, or private use, from 6 guineas. PIANOFORTES, 7 octaves, from 21 guineas. Warranted.
Rosewood COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, 2½ octaves of pedals. William
Sprague, 7, Finsbury-pavement, London. Established 1837.

CROGER'S CELEBRATED VIOLIN STRINGS, ss. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 5s. 6d. per Bundle. Soloists' Italian Firsts, 6s. per dozen, the finest ever imported. Croger's Warehouse, 184, Whitechapel-road. Several rare old Violins on sale. Established 30 years.

ORGAN FACTORY, 141, Stanhope-street, Hampstead-road.—T. NORTON being about retiring, has for SALE on moderate terms, ORGANS from four to fifteen stops, suitable for Church, Chapel, or Drawing Room. Also, well-seasoned Stock for Amateurs and Gentlemen building their own instruments.

TO THE TRADE.—T. BEASANT repairs Musical
Boxes, Barrel Organs, Concertinas, Harmoniums, Harps, Guitars, Violins, Flutes, &c.—72, Margaret-street, Clerkenwell, London.

ORGAN for SALE, formerly in Rugby School
Chapel. 18 stops, 3 manuals, and CCC pedal organ of 2 stops.
Apply to E. Edwards, St. Matthew-street, Rugby.

CC ORGAN for SALE, containing 2 manuals, 12 stops, 2½ octaves of bourdons. Height 13 ft., width 6 ft. 3 in., depth 6 ft. Price 100 guineas; a genuine bargain. Address Diapason, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

CC ORGAN for SALE, equal to new, by BATES of London, containing open diapason, stop diapason bass, clarabella, dulciana, principal, fifteenth, 1½ octaves of pedals, 2 composition pedals. Address Mr. Abram, Deal.

CC ORGAN for SALE, now being built, containing 17 stops, 2 rows of keys and pedals, &c. For particulars and price apply to E. Maley, Organ Builder, 5A, Werrington-street, Oakley-square, N.W., where it can be seen.

ORGAN for SALE.—Four stops, open diapason, stop diapason, stop treble and flute, foot blower. Address
2, Albion Grove Villas, Stoke Newington, N.

ORGAN for SALE, New, Suitable for a Small Place of Worship. One manual, 8 stops, bourdon on pedals, general swell, neat case, illuminated front. Letters, E. N., 4, Little Gower-place, Euston-square.

ORGAN for SALE, Second-hand, very cheap.—6 stops, German pedals, hand and foot blower.—M., 4, Milvertonstreet, Kennington-road, S.E.

ORGAN for SALE, suitable for a Temporary Church, Mission Room, &c., moderate price. To be seen at the Makers, J. Walker and Sons, 27, Francis-street, Tottenham-court-road.

SMALL CC ORGAN for SALE, a bargain. Apply to E. Edwards, Chesham, Bucks.

TO ORGANISTS.—For SALE, a Good PIANO, with 2½ octaves, C pedals, and stool complete. All in mahogany, and in thoroughly good condition. For cards to view, address
H. J. A. S., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

WANTED an ORGAN.—Two manuals, full compass, bourdon pedals, about sixteen stops. Apply by letter to
A. Roberts, 14, Old Change.

WANTED, Cheap ORGAN for Pedal Practice.
Advertiser, an Organist and Bookseller, is desirous of obtaining an Agency for the Sale of Pianofortes and Harmoniums. London references. Address C. E. Butcher, Bookseller, Brecon, South Wales.

PEDALIER, by PLEYEL. Full compass CC to F, with new pedals, recently added by Bryceson. Can be attached to any Cottage Piano for Organ practice, for SALE. Apply to C. H.
Ogle, Organist, Abbey Church, Pershore, Worcestershire.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
E P P S ' S C O C O A.
BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.

MANUFACTURE OF COCOA.—"We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Euston-road, London."—See Article in Cassell's Household Guide.

Made simply with boiling water or milk.
Each Packet is labelled
JAMES EPPS and Co., HOMOEOPATHIC CHEMISTS,
London.

PEDAL PIANO for SALE, action new, with stool; open to an offer. Apply to Bantry, care of P. Lawless, Philpot-lane, E.C.

TO be SOLD, a Seven-octave Walnut-wood PIANOFORTE, with 24 octaves of German pedals. Pedals made to remove from Piano. Price 28 guineas, the Piano worth 25. Apply at 346, Holloway-road, N.

CROGER'S GUINEA CONCERT FLUTES. Same with Tip Plates and Bushed holes, £1 11s. 6d.; with sterling Silver fittings, from £3.—Warehouse, 184, Whitechapel-road.

BOEHM FLUTE.—For SALE, a Gold Boehm Flute, by Rudall, Carte and Co., complete in case, in perfect order. Apply to W. Duck, Musicseller, Bath.

PREPARE MUSIC by LITHO. COPYING, cheaper and equal to Engraving. Excellent system for Amateurs. Specimen. F. Wood, 32, Vincent-square, Westminster.

PRINTING.—FITZSIMMONS & SONS supply Estimates for every description of Printing for Concerts, Entertainments, &c. Also Commercial Printing. Specimens forwarded, first-class work, and lowest prices. Orders by post and from country promptly attended to. Office, 39, Essex-road, London, N. N.B.—Music Printing (Old Notation or Tonic Sol-fa).

ORGAN MUSIC.—Catalogue (pp. 50), gratis and post free, of a valuable collection of Organ Solos—Duets—Pedal Exercises—Choruses—Voluntaries—Soft Movements—Cathedral and Church Music—Anthems—Oratorios—Services—Masses—Instruction Books, &c.—London: Sole Publishers, Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

H. WHITE and SON'S NEW CATALOGUE of MUSIC, Vocal and Instrumental, Ancient and Modern. Several of the Works mentioned in this Catalogue are from the Library of the late H. Perkins, Esq., Hanworth Park. Post free, one stamp. 337, Oxford-street, London, W.

12S. WORTH OF MUSIC for One Shilling, post free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock. James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.) begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Eighth Season). Mr. H. ASHTON, Mr. T. PEARSON, Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN, Assisted by Madame ASHTON, (Miss F. Danielson.)

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c., address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

ARTICLED PUPIL for the Musical Profession REQUIRED by Mr. ALBERT LOWE for three or five years. Great advantages offered. Must be able to play Organ moderately well. For particulars address Mr. Albert Lowe, Music Studio, 19a, Queen's-gate-place, South Kensington, S.W.

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—MR. R. TAYLOR, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 24 octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, STRAND.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—HILL and SON—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

ORGAN PRACTICE.—WANTED the above on a good Instrument (either Church or Chapel) once or twice weekly in Fimlico, Clapham, or South Lambeth. C. S. 5, Lansdowne-cottages, South Lambeth, S.W.

ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, HARMONY, &c., One Guinea per quarter; Lessons and Practice on fine modern instruments. Organist, 51, Fenchurch-street, E.C.

HARMONY LESSONS (by post) by a Fellow of the College of Organists. Candidates prepared for the College examinations; terms moderate. Address F. C. O., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TO ORGANISTS.—PRACTICE may be had on a very fine ORGAN. Two manuals, swell, variety of stops, 24 of pedals, and bourdon to CCC. Terms very moderate. Address E. Francis, Organist of St. Peter's (W.C.), 188, Upper-st., Islington, N.

QUARTERLY SALE OF MUSICAL PROPERTY.

MESSRS. KELLY and Co. beg to inform the Trade and the Public in general that their next Quarterly SALE by AUCTION will take place on Wednesday, October 8th, 1873, and will include choice Instruments by all the leading English and Continental Manufacturers, comprising Grands, Cottages, and Squares, in elegant Walnut, Rosewood, and Mahogany cases, a quantity of Sheet Music and Sundries. Catalogues free. Kelly and Co., Great Central Repository, 11, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital.

HERTFORD.—FURNITURE, MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, CHAMBER ORGAN, Rare OLD CHINA, a Collection of OLD PRINTS, OIL PAINTINGS, Vocal and Instrumental MUSIC, the property of the late Mr. Charles Bridgeman.

MESSRS. JACKSON and SON are honoured with instructions from the Executors to SELL by AUCTION at the Residence in West-street, Hertford, on Thursday, Sept. 18th, 1873, at 11 o'clock precisely, the ancient and modern Furniture, a valuable collection of rare Old China, about 250 pieces, Oil Paintings and Prints, fine old Italian Musical Instruments, including Violins and Violoncellos, by Straduaris and other eminent makers, two Grand Pianofortes, by Broadwood and Sons, a Chamber Organ, a very large quantity of Vocal and Instrumental Music, by the most eminent Composers, French Horns, and other Instruments, Music Stands, Metronome, a Spinette, and numerous Musical Requisites, the whole of which will be fully described in the Catalogues.

Catalogues may be obtained ten days previous to the Sale on the premises; of Messrs. Longmore, Sworder and Longmore, Hertford; of Mr. Jackson, Auctioneer and Appraiser, Hitchin and Baldock; and of Messrs. Jackson and Son, Land Agents and Auctioneers, Hertford, Ware, and Bishop's Stortford. The whole will be on view two days prior to the Sale.

HERTFORD.—Messrs. JACKSON and SON have the honour to announce they are favoured with instructions from the Executors of the late Mr. Charles Bridgeman, to SELL by AUCTION at the Corn Exchange, Hertford, on Saturday, Sept. 20th, 1873, at 3 for 4 o'clock, the following valuable ESTATES, viz., the Residence in West-street, Hertford, with the large Garden Ground adjoining, about 3 acres, having an extensive frontage to West-street; the Cottages adjoining, also an enclosure of Building Land, opposite the Horns Mill, well adapted for Building purposes, Cottages being so much required in the neighbourhood; the exceedingly valuable Freehold Public House, "The Old Ship" Inn, on the Old Cross, occupying a commanding position, and the Dwelling House and Blacksmith's Shop adjoining. N.B.—The Residence, Cottages, and Land are in hand; "The Old Ship" Inn and the Blacksmith's Shop are let to Messrs. Christie, on a repairing Lease, two years unexpired at Michaelmas next, at £50 per annum.

Particulars may be obtained of Messrs. Longmore, Sworder and Longmore, Solicitors, Hertford, of Mr. Jackson, Auctioneer and Appraiser, Hitchin, Baldock, and Royston, and of Messrs. Jackson and Son, Auctioneers, Land and Estate Agents, Hertford, Ware, and Bishop's Stortford.

TO PIANOFORTE DEALERS and others.—About 60 New and Second-hand PIANOS and HARMONIUMS for SALE, a Bargain. Also the BUSINESS and Freehold Premises.—Mr. Cassini, Finsbury House, Wood Green, near London.

Price Sixpence, post free.

"MUSIC IN PLAY and MUSIC IN EARNEST," by A. ORLANDO STEED. Reeves and Turner, 185, Fleet-st.

SECOND EDITION. Just published, price 2s. 6d.

A CONCISE and PRACTICAL EXPLANATION of the RULES of SIMPLE HARMONY and THOROUGH-BASS, with Chapters on Time, Keys, Intervals, and general Elementary Musical Knowledge, respectfully dedicated (by permission) to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., Mus. Doc., Professor of Music at the University of Oxford, by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Just Published, price 1s.

A SHORT PRACTICAL METHOD for TEACHING SINGING, designed with a view to meet the new Rule in the Revised Code, and for the use of Choirs generally, by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury, author of "A Concise and Practical Explanation of the Rules of Simple Harmony and Thorough-Bass," dedicated (by permission) to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., Mus. D. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street. Post free from the Author, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

Just published, Second Edition, price 3d.

HARVEST ANTHEM, "Thou crownest the year," by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury. Written specially for Village Choirs; easy and effective. Can be got up by an ordinary Choir in three or four practices.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Post free direct from the Composer, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

Second edition. Small 4to. Price 2s. 6d. paper covers; 3s. 9d. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS,

SINGLE AND DOUBLE,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with special reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry. New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of

Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 258 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in 2s. 6d.

" 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

" 3. Limp cloth, turned in 2s. 6d.

" 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered 2s. 6d.

Congregations or associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and musicsellers.

NOW READY.

A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS AND ANTHEMS,

arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford. Very neat and compact, 218 pp. imperial 32mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered ... 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co.

Bradford: Thomas Brear.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK and PSALMS and CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Ninth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.

—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book: also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON, and for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.: cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK,

with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES and ROUNDS; or Musical

Precept and Example, combined in easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J. POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the

Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Published by Henry Farmer, Nottingham. Price 1s. 1d., post free.

THE SINGER'S GUIDE, containing the Rules of Pronunciation in Singing, a Pronouncing Dictionary of Musical Terms, and the Rules of Italian Pronunciation.

"The need for such a book is self-evident; and it is only necessary to say that the little work now before us is distinguished by common sense, and is very plain and practical."—The Monthly Musical Record.

"FROM INTERVALS TO COUNTERPOINT."
SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT. Price 3s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and all Musicsellers.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,

FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS & SCHOOLMASTERS.
By RICHARD MANN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWENTY-SECOND EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Now ready, in Three Books, 6s. each. Post-free for Half-price.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

Specially adapted for Colleges, Public Schools, Singing Classes, &c.
Books 1 and 2 (Duets); Book 3 (Trios).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Fourth edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS,

now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.

No. 1. The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.

No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katrine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra.

Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.

W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton Place, Reading.

HARVEST ANTHEMS.

GARRETT, G. M., Mus. D.—"The Lord is loving unto every man." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 1s.

BARNBY, J.—"I will give thanks unto Thee." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

—"O Lord, how manifold are Thy works." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, folio, 9d.; ditto, 8vo., 1½d.; vocal parts, 6d.

—"The Harvest-tide Thanksgiving." Hymn for 4 voices. Words by the Rev. S. CHILDS CLARKE. 8vo., 1½d. Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

GROSS, Sir JOHN.—"Fear not, O Land, be glad and rejoice." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s. 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

—"I will magnify Thee, O God." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 6d.

OUSELEY, The Rev. Sir FREDERICK.—"The Lord is my Shepherd." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d.; vocal parts, 6d.

CALCOTT, W. H.—"Thou visitest the earth and blessest it." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

—Ditto, treble solo, 6d.

MACFARREN, G. A.—"God said, Behold, I have given you every herb." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 2s.; vocal parts, 1s. 6d.

—"O Lord, how manifold are Thy works." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

HAYES, Dr. W.—"Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s. 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 4d.; vocal parts, 1s.

HERVEY, Rev. F. A. J.—"Make melody within your hearts." Carol. 8vo., 3d.

GREENE, Dr.—"Thou visitest the earth." Tenor solo and chorus. Vocal score, folio, 6d.; ditto, 8vo., 1½d.; vocal parts, 6d.

CLARKE, Dr. JOHN WHITFIELD.—"Blessed are all they that fear the Lord." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 7½d.

THORNE, E. H.—"All Thy works praise Thee." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; ditto, 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 1s.

STEGGALL, CHARLES, Mus. D., Cantab.—"Praised be the Lord." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 1s.; vocal parts, 6d.

HOPKINS, JOHN L., Mus. D.—"The fostering earth, the genial showers." Words by GEORGE E. SHIRLEY, Esq., 8vo., 3d.

PATTISON, T. M.—"O how plentiful is Thy goodness." Full, 4 voices. Vocal score, 9d.; 8vo., 3d.; vocal parts, 6d.

TAYLOR, W.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." Solo, Trio, Quartett, and Chorus. 8vo., 6d.

BRIDGE, J. FREDERICK.—"Give unto the Lord the glory." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

MATTHEWS, J. J.—"The Lord said in His heart." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

ARNOLD, GEORGE B., Mus. D., Oxon.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." S.S.A.T.B. 8vo., 3d.

KETTON, HAYDN.—"The eyes of all wait upon Thee." Full, 4 voices. 8vo., 4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

C. JEFFERYS, 67, BERNERS ST.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

No. 5. GLASTONBURY ABBEY. Gloria (the entire s. d.
Movement) from Mozart's 1st Mass ... 3 0

6. MUCKROSS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire Movement) from Mozart's 1st Mass ... 3 0

THE LYRIC STAGE:—

No. 7. L'Ombre Flotow 4 0

8. Robert le Diable Meyerbeer 4 0

9. Il Trovatore Verdi 4 0

THE GRAND DUCHESS MARIE. A Wedding

March 3 0

Illustrated with Portrait in Colours.

LOUIS DUPUIS.

CATHEDRAL GEMS:—

No. 16. LINCOLN.—On subjects from Haydn's 4th
Mass 3 0

17. ELV.—On subjects from Mozart's 2nd
Mass 3 0

GRAND OPERATIC DUETS.

No.		Arranged by
No. 1.—	Lohengrin (Wagner) ...	J. Rummel	5 0
2.—	Tannhäuser (do.) ...	"	5 0
3.—	The Crown Diamonds (Auber) ...	"	5 0
4.—	Galathée ...	"	4 0
5.—	La Marquise (Boulanger) ...	"	4 0
6.—	Ernani (Verdi) ...	J. Lesage	5 0
7.—	Il Don Giovanni (Mozart) ...	"	5 0
8.—	La Gazza Ladra (Rossini) ...	"	5 0

WILLIE PAPE.

Il Trovatore (Verdi) ...	4 0
Martha (Flotow) ...	4 0
Saladin Grand March ...	4 0

JOHN OWEN.

MELODIOUS MELODIES:—

Twenty Subjects selected from the Works of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Heller, &c., arranged for the Organ or Harmonium. Price 2s. 6d. nett.

Now ready.

SONGS FOR CHILDREN.

Harmonized for School purposes by MICHAEL WATSON.

Price Sixpence.

This Selection consists of popular Copyright subjects, none of which can appear in similar collections. Great care has been taken in selecting the words.

LONDON: C. JEFFERYS,
THE BERNERS PIANOFORTE GALLERY,
67, BERNERS STREET, W.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES

FOR

HARVEST,

SELECTED FROM

THE HYMNARY.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

SING TO THE LORD A JOYFUL SONG	J. BARNBY.
O LORD, THE HEAVEN THY POWER	SIR F. OUSELEY.
DISPLAYS
FATHER, BLESSING EVERY SEED	DR. DYKES.
TIME
LORD, IN THY NAME THY SERVANTS	W. METCALFE.
PLEAD
THE WINTRY TIME HATH ENDED	DR. GAUNTLETT.
COME, YE THANKFUL PEOPLE, COME	SIR GEO. ELVEY.
GOD, THE FATHER, WHOSE CREA-	H. SMART.
TION
LORD OF THE HARVEST, THEE WE	ANONYMOUS.
HAIL
LO, SUMMER COMES AGAIN	REV. E. B. WHYLEY.
PRaise, O PRAISE OUR HEAVENLY	GERMAN.
KING
SUMMER ENDED, HARVEST O'ER	J. ADCOCK.
O LORD OF HEAVEN, AND EARTH,	DR. WESLEY.
AND SEA

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; New York: J. L. Peters.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.
Season 1873—4. There are a few VACANCIES in each Department. Only good readers and those well versed in Oratorio Music will be accepted. Applications should be made at once to Mr. Hedley, Royal Albert Hall, Kensington, W.

ALL SAINTS' CHOIR SCHOOL, CLIFTON.—
There are FOUR SCHOLARSHIPS (value £20 a year) VACANT in the above Choir for LEADING TREBLES. Address the Rev. the Precentor, All Saints' Church, Clifton.

CHOIR SCHOLARSHIPS.—Two Sons of Professional Men will be received in a first-class School near London at half terms, £45, if they have good voices.—Address L. W. G., Post Office, Streatham, near London.

WANTED, VOLUNTEERS for the Choir of St. Luke's Church, Berwick-street, Oxford-street. They must be Communicants, and produce testimonials of good character. Applications to be made to the Choirmaster, Mr. W. Fry, at the Church on Friday evening, between 8 and 9 p.m., or to the Rev. J. W. Festing, after any of the Services.

WANTED for a City Church Choir, SOPRANOS, ALTOS, TENORS, and BASSES. Apply to Mr. Samuel B. Gray, 11, Chester-street, Kennington, S.E. Sopranos and Altos on Wednesdays, the 3rd and 10th instant; Tenors and Basses on Fridays, the 5th and 12th instant, between 6 and 9 o'clock.

TENOR WANTED for a Church in Mayfair. Two Services (full Choral), and weekly Rehearsal. Stipend £10. Apply by letter to E. G. C., 8, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital, W.

WANTED at Michaelmas, a BASS for St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge. Duties—three Services on Sundays, attendance on the eves of the four great Festivals, and at one of the Services on Good Friday. Rehearsal every Friday from 8 to 10 p.m. Salary £20 per annum. Apply in the first place by letter only to W. C. A., St. Paul's Clergy House, Wilton-place, S.W.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of long experience in Church Music, requires a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Highest references and testimonials. Address B. C., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

AN Efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER will be open to an ENGAGEMENT at Michaelmas. Nearly 10 years' experience in Cathedral duties. Salary of not so much importance as good Organ and field for Tuition. Country town preferred. Address J. B., 60, Colveston-crescent, Ridley-road, N.

ORGANIST ASSISTANT.—A Gentleman is open to ENGAGEMENTS, Town or Country.—A. G. W., 13, Renfrew-road, Kennington, S.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman of many years' experience desires an APPOINTMENT. High testimonials. Address Organist, 20, Junction-road, Holloway, N.

AN ORGANIST wishes to meet with a Gentleman competent to take Choral Services. A good Opening to any one wishing to advance himself. Address Mr. Edwin Smyth, 5, Lincoln-terrace, Tuinell-park, N.

AN ORGANIST WANTED for a Country Village; he will be required to assist in the School. No one need apply who cannot play a Service similar to that at S. Alban's, Holborn. Salary £50, a furnished cottage, and coals. Apply to Mr. Hayes, 4, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Communicant) WANTED for a new Church, St. Margaret's, Anfield, Liverpool. For particulars, apply with testimonials, to Robert Preston, Esq., Belmont House, Anfield, Liverpool.

ORGANIST WANTED.—The Trustees of Worthing Chapel of Ease are desirous of engaging a competent person as Organist to the Chapel. Salary £45 a year. A printed form of the terms and conditions upon which the appointment will be made, will be forwarded to intending candidates on application. Applications by letter, accompanied by testimonials of the applicants' musical ability and moral character, to be addressed to the undersigned before the 15th September next.
HORATIO LUCKETT,
Worthing, 15th August, 1873. Clerk to the Trustees.

ORGANIST and MASTER of the PAROCHIAL CHOIRS WANTED for Christ Church, Bray. Salary £50 per annum. Apply before Sept. 10th, with testimonials, to the Rev. W. Sherlock, Bray, Co. Wicklow.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Professional Gentleman is open to an ENGAGEMENT as above, or to deputise. Address H. D., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of some years' experience, and great success in training Choirs, will shortly be open to an APPOINTMENT in or near London, where there is a full Choral Service and a good Organ. He possesses the highest testimonials, is zealous and earnest in his duties, and a regular Communicant. Address M. B., care of Novello, Ewer and Co.

WANTED by a Competent Pianoforte TUNER and REPAIRER, from Collard's, a SITUATION in Town or Country. Address A. J., 4, Cosmo-place, Russell-square, London.

PIANOFORTE TUNER for the Country.—WANTED, an Efficient Tuner, steady, good character, a knowledge of Music preferred; and to assist in taking charge of a Shop in the absence of a Lady Assistant. A permanent situation with a liberal salary to a thoroughly qualified Man. Letters addressed Messrs. Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street, or Mr. Battrum, Helensburgh, N.B.

TUNER, TONER, and REPAIRER.—WANTED for a first-class Man, a SITUATION as above. Applications to be addressed to his present employer, Mr. T. Rees Evans, Berwick-on-Tweed.

TO THE MUSIC TRADE.—A PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER of 16 years' experience will shortly be disengaged, and desires to meet with an eligible SITUATION in a first-class house, Town or Country. Address A. R., Post Office, Birmingham.

A YOUNG MAN, with Good References, wishes for a SITUATION in a Music Warehouse, or in the Music line; Pianist. J. D. W., Southwick Post Office, Sunderland.

WANTED by a Young Gentleman, 19, well-acquainted with business, an ENGAGEMENT in a Music Shop or Warehouse. Organ, Harmonium, Piano; references. Flute, Post Office, East Malling, Maidstone.

A YOUNG MAN wishes to gain experience in a Provincial Music Shop. Would pay a premium. Address Alex. Smith's Bookstall, Bognor, Sussex.

A YOUNG LADY desires a SITUATION in a Pianoforte or Music Warehouse. Has been in the business before. Would receive Lessons as part remuneration. Good references. Address E. M. C., 3, Stroud-street, Dover, Kent.

WANTED, a Good SALESMAN and PLAYER for a Music and Piano Warehouse. Apply, stating references, to Franz Groenings, Middlesbro'-on-Tees. Also, VACANCY for a Youth as ARTICLED PUPIL for Business or Profession. Premium required.

TO CLERGYMEN, PROFESSORS, and Others.—A Professor of character and good testimonials, offers services and bonus for introduction to Pupils or Tuning. Would purchase a Practice or Tuning Connexion, with Shop, Country preferred.—A. Z., 25, Caves-terrace, Shepherd's-bush, W.

A LADY, good Vocalist and Musician, having some time disengaged during the day, wishes for further ENGAGEMENTS as Teacher of the Pianoforte and Singing either in Schools or Private Families. Address A. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

A GENTLEMAN of eminence in the Musical Profession is anxious to meet with a Youth (Amateur or Professional) to assist him in playing the Organ on Sundays, at a West End Church. In return for his services he will have almost uncontrolled use of a very fine Organ, and Lessons in Composition and Instrumentation. No one but a really good Player need apply, as the works of the Great Masters are constantly performed at this Church. Address Musicus, 15, Redcliffe-road, West Brompton, S.W.

GOODWIN'S UNIVERSAL MUSIC LIBRARY,
(3, DUNCAN PLACE,) 15A, LEICESTER PLACE, LEICESTER SQUARE,
LONDON, W.C.,

Where may be obtained every description of MUSIC ON HIRE, including INSTRUMENTAL WORKS of every class; all the principal OPERATIC WORKS, ORATORIOS, ODES, CANTATAS (Sacred and Secular), MASSES, &c., for full Orchestra and Chorus; also full and Vocal Scores, &c.; being the largest Library of the kind in London, and affording the greatest advantages to societies not wishing to incur the heavy expenses that the purchase of Music necessarily involves.

Music copied and transposed; Scoring and arrangements for large or small bands; proofs corrected, &c. A selected list of Choral Works upon application.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.—A Large Quantity of PART-SONGS, MADRIGALS, and several ORATORIOS, &c., in very good condition, to be SOLD at half the retail price. Printed Lists will be forwarded by post upon application to J. H., Clarence Cottage, St. John's, Fulham. Please enclose directed stamped envelope.

TO TEACHERS of SINGING CLASSES, &c.
A Copy of GEORGE WELLS' "New Practical Singing-Class Hand book" (price 6d., Pitman and Co.) forwarded on application, with stamp. Address Mr. Wells, 6, Minson-road, South Hackney.

MUSIC BUSINESS.—For SALE, a Small Hiring and Tuning Connexion in an improving neighbourhood in the South-Western district. For further particulars apply to Mr. Frederick Lucas, 26, Maddox-street, W.

FOR SALE, an old-established MUSIC and FANCY REPOSITORY in first-class position, double fronted. Terms moderate. Apply to J. B., 4, Well-street, Hackney.

THE MUSICAL TIMES, AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1873.

THE LONDON MUSICAL SEASON.

BY HENRY C. LUNN.

No stronger proof of the tyrannical power of fashion over art could be adduced than the fact of the Opera (by which of course we mean the Italian Opera) continuing to occupy so large a share of public attention, and a record of its doings employing so prominent a space in Metropolitan journals. Season after season its real influence upon music is a mere blank—unless indeed it may be affirmed that, by the constant elevation of the executive over the creative artist, it effects a positive harm—and yet a chronicle of the routine performances at both houses appears to be considered an absolute necessity, the great musical events of the year being often passed over as comparatively unimportant. The recent performances of works new to this country, and the excellent revivals of almost forgotten old ones, seem looked upon as quite secondary matters in comparison with the announcement that Madame Patti or Madame Nilsson appeared in a character her assumption of which is known to be one of the regular occurrences of the season. Should it happen that one of our petted Queens of Song has not been heard in a part for some time, an additional excitement is manufactured, and the exact date of her last performance of it is hunted up with as much care as if it were a matter of vast artistic importance. When one of the well-worn Operas is played for the first time in the season, each singer is separately criticised almost in the same words that have been employed years before, and will be employed in years to come; and at the conclusion of the season a summary of the works given—accompanied with a few words upon those that were not—is as confidently looked for as the Royal speech on the prorogation of Parliament, the complimentary nature of which throws a halo of glory around an equally barren session which cannot but exercise a balmy influence upon those who have been actively engaged in its duties.

The prospectuses of the two Italian Opera Houses for the season just concluded, were singular instances of the mesmeric power possessed by the lessees of lyrical establishments over the public mind. By a system of electro-biology, an intending subscriber seems compelled to believe that a brilliant season is before him, although in fact nothing is promised. As in the catalogues of the late George Robins, the auctioneer—who by the aid of well-worded sentences and judiciously distributed capitals, made a small house with a back garden appear a magnificent mansion standing in its own grounds—an Operatic prospectus so effectually displays the attractions which can be guaranteed, and so delicately shades off those which cannot, that the season thus graphically described seems unquestionably the very best ever submitted to the notice of confiding readers. Divested of all the inflated eulogium upon artists who least required it, and on works already stamped with public approval, there was but one promise in each prospectus of the slightest interest—at Drury Lane the production of Balfe's Opera, "Il Talismano," and at Covent Garden the revival of Auber's "Diamans de la Couronne,"—and how have these pledges been redeemed? The Opera of our countryman, in which Madame Nilsson was to "create" the principal character, has not been given at all, and Auber's beautiful work was so mauled about by the singers and conductor that the real admirers of its gifted composer experienced more pain than pleasure in its performance. With these facts before us, are we not driven to admit the truth that our Italian Opera Houses have now degenerated into mere fashionable lounges; that real art is represented outside their walls, and that the lessees of these establishments, who simply cater for the tastes of their aristocratic patrons, neither desire nor deserve to be placed within the pale of that criticism which is not only accorded to, but courted by, those who appeal for support to the general public.

Of the number of singers who came up for trial before the subscribers to the Royal Italian Opera this season, only one has secured a really favourable verdict—M. Maurel, a baritone of undoubted mark, and of exceptionally high qualities as an actor. Madlle. D'Angeri may perhaps be mentioned as the most promising amongst the new lady vocalists; but, like the rest, she has suffered from being placed in parts so long occupied by our established favourites as to suggest comparisons which had better have been avoided. Of Madame Patti we cannot speak too highly, and only hope that the possession of such brilliant powers will not tempt her to peril her reputation by attempting the assumption of characters for the mere purpose of proving her versatility; she has unquestionably many qualifications which fit her for the portrayal of tragic emotion, but it is not in this that she is seen at her best; and in so great an artist we look for nothing short of perfection. Madlle. Albani fully maintains the high position she at once assumed in the establishment, and will be annually looked forward to as one of the most prominent attractions of the season. The custom pertinaciously adhered to by Mr. Gye of having two conductors is of course fatal to the acquirement of that decision so essential in an Operatic orchestra; but we believe that if either Signor Vianesi or Signor Bevnigani were allowed to have unlimited control over the band even for one season, the most beneficial results would follow.

At Her Majesty's Opera we have had some good, if not great, singers introduced to us this season, Madlle. Alwina-Valleria and Madlle. Justine Macvitz have displayed qualities which entitle them at least to a passing line of commendation; and Signor Aramburo, the tenor, is we think likely next season to increase the good opinion he has already gained. Of Madlle. Titiens and Madame Christine Nilsson it is needless to say more than that their performances have been always welcome; and the few appearances of Madlle. Ilma di Murska made us regret that so little use had been made of her, and more especially that no opportunity was afforded her of repeating her admirable personation of Senta, in Wagner's Opera, "L'Olandese Dannato." In spite of the promise in the prospectus, Madlle. Kellogg was unheard during the season; and the secession of Signor Mongini—who, to the surprise of most of the subscribers, suddenly made his appearance at the rival establishment—materially weakened the cast of some of the Operas, although his singing is as unequal as ever. The services of Sir Michael Costa have been, as usual, most valuable, and the chorus exhibits decided signs of improvement.

Amongst the events of the year must be mentioned the formation of the "British Orchestral Association," the concerts of which have been uniformly good; but in our opinion the title of the Society narrows its operations and prejudices a portion of the public against it. Many years ago when English composers had but a slender chance of being heard, it was a fair experiment to establish a channel of communication with the public, and the "Society of British Musicians," even during its brief existence, brought many young writers forward, who, but for its timely help, might have remained comparatively unknown. But this new Society has no such distinctive aim, as its programmes have proved; and merely to show that a first-rate band can be composed of native artists only—to say nothing of the jealous feeling which it excites in the profession—was a totally unnecessary step, for it is a fact which everybody conversant with the matter already freely admits. Let us hope therefore either that the Association will develop into an Institution where British instrumentalists shall perform the works of British composers only, or that it may be established on a more liberal basis, the places in the orchestra, like those in the programmes, being free to all competent artists, and the concerts appealing especially to those who love music for itself alone, by being given at a time which is branded by a certain class of patrons as "unfashionable."

The appointment of Mr. Barnby to the conductorship of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society has proved a step in the right direction, for it has attracted public attention towards a quarter whence in time may flow the highest results to art. The six subscription concerts of the Association (at one of which Handel's fine Oratorio, "Belshazzar," was resuscitated) the excellent performances at various times in which the Choral Society has taken part, and the daily Exhibition concerts, under the direction of Mr. Barnby—the programmes of which, besides being models of classical selections, have contained the names of many composers and executants who have yet a reputation to make—evidenced an amount of energy and perseverance on the part of the new conductor which cannot fail to be fully appreciated. It may also be mentioned that Handel's long neglected Oratorio, "Theodora" (directed by Mr. Barnby) has been given at the Hanover Square Rooms—the principal parts being most efficiently sustained entirely by amateurs—and we may reasonably hope that so interesting a work may form one of the Oratorios to be performed next season by the Albert Hall Choral Society.

The Recitals of Dr. Hans von Bülow created an excitement which must be partly credited to the fact of his performing entirely from memory, a feat which, from a purely artistic point of view, claims but small acknowledgment. That the German pianist is an artist of mark, and possesses exceptional powers which enable him to throw off with consummate ease the most elaborate works must be universally admitted; but in listening to his readings of the great masters we could not help feeling that we were called upon rather to admire Bülow through the composer than the composer through Bülow. In proof of this it may be mentioned that unless Bach were properly dressed up by the Doctor for presentation at his Recitals, he was rarely, if ever, heard; although it might be reasonably thought that his compositions for a keyed instrument were sufficiently numerous to earn a place on their own merits. That Dr. Bülow brings the very highest reputation from Germany may be accepted as a sign of the time, for if in the acknowledged land of music the individuality of the executive artist is so actively asserting itself, we can scarcely perhaps hope in this country to uphold what we have so long considered the healthy school of pianoforte playing, more especially when we see Germans and Germanised Englishmen banded together to found an Institution in which what is termed a "higher" class of pianists shall be reared.

The gradual spread, and we might almost say popularity, of Bach's St. Matthew Passion Music since its first performance, under Mr. Barnby's direction, at the "Oratorio Concerts," has given rise to a liberality of feeling with regard to service-music which cannot but prove highly beneficial, in proof of which we may refer to the recent introduction of a large portion of Mendelssohn's Oratorio, "St. Paul," with orchestral accompaniments, at St. Paul's Cathedral. The performance of Bach's St. Matthew Passion Music at the Royal Albert Hall on four consecutive evenings during Holy week (the audience reverently joining in the Chorales), and the presentation of the same composer's Passion Music according to St. John at the Lenten services in St. Anne's Church, Soho, must also be cited as remarkable instances of the change which has been effected in this country by uniting with holy words the sublimest music ever consecrated to the service of the Church. That all these innovations will gradually break down the prejudices which have for so many years been opposed as a barrier to the introduction of works breathing throughout that universal language of devotion which is above all creeds, can scarcely be doubted; and we are convinced that when once fairly tested, the eloquence of Bach in the service of the Church will be found infinitely more effectual than that of the most earnest and truly religious priest who ever ascended a pulpit.

Recollecting that we once attended the concert of a Madrigal Society where not a single Madrigal was sung, we were not surprised when it was announced that the "Wagner Society" intended to devote a portion of its programmes to the works of other composers. During the season, however, it must be confessed that it has done much towards popularising the Operas of the new Prophet; and we only regret that in the full tide of success so enthusiastic a body of artists should partially abandon the very object for which they were banded together, and enter the lists as mere concert-givers. A large portion of the "music of the future," as it has been absurdly named, is now to be found in so many of our concert programmes that unless the new Society can succeed in producing the Operas of this much talked of composer, or at least in establishing a permanent Wagnerian feeling in this country by the performance of his works exclusively, its labours are virtually at an end; and the extinction of the Association will furnish the opponents of the musical reformer with a powerful argument against the impossibility of spreading his doctrines through his compositions.

At the concerts of the Sacred Harmonic Society the revival of Handel's Oratorio "Samson" and the performance of Bach's St. Matthew Passion Music are the only two events of the season worth recording. The first of these, unquestionably containing some of Handel's finest writing, may we trust attain a popularity equal to that achieved by this Society for the same composer's "Israel in Egypt;" but the fact of the Passion Music being given in its entire form—a trial upon the patience of a public audience never attempted even by the enthusiastic Bach-worshipper, Mendelssohn—will, we fear, effectually prevent its occupying a place in the prospectus of future seasons.

The increasing success of the Philharmonic Society is a proof that a more liberal policy in its management was imperatively necessary. Its removal to St. James's Hall was the first concession made to the pressure from without; and the admission of modern works into its programmes during the past season will do much towards conciliating those who desire that the recognition of the claims of new composers, which was one of the distinguishing features of the Association in its early career, should never cease to be a guiding principle in its administration.

As so much has been said about the negotiations between the Commissioners of the Royal Albert Hall and the authorities of the Royal Academy of Music, and the "liberality" of the proposal to the Institution has been so often dwelt upon, it becomes necessary to mention that the offer consisted of a certain number of rooms surrounding the Albert Hall; and that the cost of removal, as well as that of preparing these rooms for the intended purpose, was to fall entirely upon the funds of the Academy. We do not now wish to do more than simply state this truth: the plan was courteously proffered and as courteously refused. The public will decide whether such refusal was politic; but, in order to do so, it is important that the facts of the case should be distinctly stated.

Our notices of benefit concerts during the season must necessarily become briefer as their numbers increase; but we have always attempted to do justice to those the aim of which has been as much to further the interests of art as of artists. We do not wish to refer to any especial performances in proof of our conviction that good music is now rather the rule than the exception in the programmes of the many Recitals annually given; but there can be no question that the desire of playing down to the level of the comprehension of uneducated listeners, is rapidly giving place to the higher aspiration of lifting up the listener to an appreciation of the compositions performed, and in this good work it should be the pleasure, as it is undoubtedly the duty, of all who report upon these concerts to render every assistance within their power. It will also be seen, by glancing at our reviewing columns, that not only the works of the standard writers are now constantly re-printed, but that many of our best composers are throwing their ideas into a classical form, and that these compositions are slowly, but surely, displacing those meaningless pieces which have retarded the progress of sound music in this country for so many years. We do not of course desire to go back, but history may light us on our path as well in art as in politics; and the true music of the "future" will certainly progress with more healthful vigour if that of the past, as well as the present, is deeply and earnestly studied.

MR. JOHN HULLAH's Report on the Examination in Music of the Students of Training Schools in Great Britain is on the whole highly encouraging, not so much for what it shows us of the state of the art at present existing in these seminaries, as for the prospect it holds out of the gradual improvement likely to be effected now that the subject is considered to be of national importance. Apart from the mere report of the progress of the pupils, we have in this paper many excellent remarks upon the proper method of teaching; and amongst the popular fallacies attacked by Mr. Hullah we are glad to find the notion that the study of music is a "relaxation" included. Defining the difference between the practice and the study of the art, he wisely says that "the exercise of a power already attained and the process of attaining it are very different things. Assuredly the latter as well as the former can be made interesting, and the degree in which it is made so will depend upon the method and tact of the teacher. But that it can be carried on without trouble, as a kind of play; that the acquirement of anything worthy of the name of musical knowledge or musical skill can be 'made easy,' is an ignorant misapprehension or a wilful misrepresentation." These observations should be taken to heart by all engaged in popular musical instruction. Although it is evident that Mr. Hullah is opposed to the Tonic Sol-fa notation—and indeed to the "Moveable Do" method altogether—his examinations on both systems have been conducted with the utmost fairness; and the Committee of Council on Education may be congratulated upon having secured the services of a musician who brings with him not only a large amount of experience, but a zeal and devotion to the cause which cannot fail to be of the highest value.

THE Daily Orchestral Performances, which are still given in the Royal Albert Hall in connection with the International Exhibition, have, during the past month, fully earned the good wishes of all who are interested in the advance of musical art. Not only have the great masters been amply represented by the performance of such works as Beethoven's Eroica and Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony, and many other equally well-known compositions; but what is still more important several works by young English composers hitherto unknown have been produced. Most of these, although perhaps lacking originality of design, have been remarkable for clever instrumentation, a symphony by Mr. Hamilton Clarke being perhaps one of the best. A symphony by Mr. Henry Gadsby, the last movement of which is particularly striking, also calls for especial remark. Several young singers have appeared, among whom Madlle. Arnim, Mr. Dalton, and Mr. Melbourne have been most successful; while pianoforte pieces have been very ably performed by Madlle. Le Brun, Miss Marian Rock, Miss Jessie Morison (a promising young pupil of Mr. W. H. Holmes), and especially Mr. Franz Rummel, whose clever interpretation of Schumann's Concerto in A minor calls for special mention. Mr. Deichmann, in the absence of Mr. Barnby, has conducted uniformly with great care and intelligence.

THE death is announced of the Rev. W. Mercer, Vicar of St. George's, Sheffield, and editor of the well-known Church Psalter and Hymn Book.

At the last concert given at the Alexandra Palace for the present season, Mr. H. Weist Hill, conductor of the orchestra, was presented with an ivory baton, mounted with gold. On behalf of the instrumental performers under Mr. Hill's direction, the presentation was made by Mr. W. Watson (principal second violin), who spoke in the highest terms of the conductor's talent. The baton, bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Mr. H. W. Hill, by the Orchestra of the Alexandra Palace, at a farewell concert, on the 4th of August, 1873."

THE prospectus of the National Training School for Music, which is proposed to be established, under the supervision of the Society of Arts, in "certain rooms" connected with the Royal Albert Hall, has been forwarded to us; and by this we learn that the School will provide for the free instruction and maintenance of about 300 scholars, these scholarships being only obtainable by competitive examination. The Royal Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851 have offered a plot of ground adjoining the Hall, for supplementary suites of practising and lecture rooms; and Mr. C. J. Freaque, a member of the Council, has undertaken, at his own cost, to erect thereon the necessary buildings. It is said, that funds have been already promised for the endowment of scholarships, but further help is solicited. As the gentlemen forming the Committee for the conduct of the School are not in the slightest degree connected with music, and not one of the staff of professors is mentioned, we are of course not warranted in commenting upon the probable future of the Institution; but we may say that in the prospectus a hope is expressed that it will eventually be transferred to the responsible management of the State.

THE recent death of Herr Ferdinand David, the well-known conductor of the Gewandhaus Concerts, and the intimate friend of Mendelssohn, will be long deplored in Germany, for he was one of the sincerest artists of his time. As a violinist, he held the highest rank; and his power of imparting instruction to others has been fully proved by the number of eminent players who were his pupils. He had retired but a short time from the conductorship of the Gewandhaus Concerts, and was staying in Switzerland at the time of his death. At his funeral, which took place at Leipzig, a military band headed the procession, and an immense number of spectators, including the representatives of several musical Societies, were present.

THE Promenade Concerts at Covent Garden Theatre, under the direction of M. Rivière, commenced on the 16th ult., with every prospect of brilliant success. An excellent band has been engaged, and the vocalists announced include the names of Madlle. Carlotta Patti, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Edith Wynne, Madame Florence Lancia, Madame Patey, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Signor Foli, Mr. Patey, and several other well-known favourites. Popular selections of music will be alternated with sacred and classical programmes, the latter conducted by Mr. Barnby, so that all tastes will be amply appealed to.

A MUCH respected member of the profession, Mr. Charles Bridgeman, died on the 3rd ult., at the age of 95. For a period of 81 years he had held the office of organist at All Saints' Church, Hertford, and had resigned this appointment only in December of last year. He was a skilful organist and an enthusiastic worshipper of the music of the old masters.

WE record with much regret the decease of Mr. Frank Mori (a son of the celebrated violinist, Mori), who was well known as a composer of vocal music, and an efficient professor of singing. The deceased was in his 53rd year.

MR. HENRY JOHN KIRKMAN, pianoforte manufacturer, of Soho Square, has recently brought an action for libel, at the Leeds Assizes, against Messrs. Pohlman and Sons, pianoforte dealers and music-sellers, of Halifax, who at a concert distributed handbills cautioning the public against pianofortes advertised as "Steel Grands," which he stated have no more steel in their construction than any common piano. As Mr. Kirkman was the inventor, and the only person who advertised the "Steel Grands," he demanded a retraction of the allegation of Messrs. Pohlman. This was declined, and proceedings were therefore instituted. During the examination of witnesses, Mr. Seymour, the counsel for the defendants, was requested by his clients to offer an apology, which was accepted by the plaintiff, who stated that he had no vindictive feeling in the matter, but wished that his name as a manufacturer and a gentleman should not be tarnished by so serious a charge. A verdict was accordingly entered for the plaintiff; damages 40s.

At a recent meeting of the "London Welsh Choral Union" it was resolved that a Scholarship be established in connection with the Society, to be called "The London Welsh Choral Union Scholarship," for the purpose of affording a musical education at the Royal Academy of Music to any one of the most talented and promising of the young members of the choir, until that education shall be considered completed. The examination of candidates—male or female, and under twenty years of age—will take place during the present month, so that the successful competitor may enter the Institution upon its re-opening after the summer vacation. We are glad to be enabled to add that the first year's expense of the Scholarship is most generously guaranteed by Mr. John Thomas, the honorary conductor of the Society.

REVIEWS.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Die Zauberflöte (The Magic Flute). An Opera, in Two Acts. Composed by W. A. Mozart. Edited by Berthold Tours, and Translated into English by Natalia Macfarren.

THOSE who wonder how Mozart could have written some of his finest music to such apparently childish nonsense as the libretto of this Opera, will feel deeply interested by Mrs. Macfarren's article upon the subject, which prefaces this edition. From a pamphlet published in Leipzig, in 1865, it appears that the story is confidently presumed to be an allegory, and is intended "as an apotheosis of Freemasonry against the political and ecclesiastical influences that persecuted that fraternity at the time the Opera appeared." This view is confirmed by Goethe, who not only speaks of the "higher meaning" of "Zauberflöte," but wrote a second part to the story, which is unmistakably allegorical. As a students' edition of this fine work, the volume before us will be found most valuable; for not only is it in every respect carefully brought out—the marks of expression, indications of instrumentation, and stage directions being reverently followed—but the German words are prominently displayed under the notes, as they ought to be (the English translation, as usual, appearing above them), so that those who wish to refer to the original may do so without being burdened with an Italian version, which, not being in the language of the country in which it is published, nor in the language to which Mozart wedded the music, can be of no possible service but to aid in perpetuating the fashionable notion that the standard Operas cannot be performed in England save by an Italian company.

Theodora, an Oratorio. By G. F. Handel.

HERE, in "Novello's Original Octavo Edition," is presented, for the first time, in a form universally available, the beautiful work to which tradition ascribes the great author's special predilection. It is issued at a price that must be within the capability of everybody who loves music and wishes to study its masterpieces; whereas, formerly, it could but be bought for guineas, except perhaps by the precarious chance of an old book-stall or a music auction. The Germans have, it is true, been a little before us in making Theodora generally accessible. So much the better for the Germans; but this is no reason why we should not profit by their good example. In one respect the publishers have done so; they have issued a copy of the work in admirable print, and with elaborate correctness. In another respect the public have a duty to fulfil in pursuing the precedent, but a short time old, of their neighbours; nay, our English musicians should more than pursue, they ought to overtake German example in the acceptance of this work, and because our forefathers, who witnessed its first production, depreciated and disesteemed it, should take the first step to rendering it widely popular, by making themselves intimate with its merits. A copious preface to the present edition, points out broadly in what these merits consist, and gives a concise history of the oratorio. A recent public performance of Theodora, chiefly by amateurs, did more than is possible for words to do to show its beauties. These belong to the Christian and the heathen choruses, quite as much to the solo pieces, and equally to the overture. There are not in it, as is the case in some of the master's greatest works, any weak portions. It extends not to the enormous length of some of the Handelian masterpieces, and on this account particularly, its performance is easily practicable. The Choruses are none of them difficult, and all effective. Until the performance above mentioned, under Mr. Barnby's direction, the complete oratorio has not been publicly given in this country since the time of Handel, and the world at large is consequently ignorant of its contents. What has been practically a secret for a century and a quarter is now laid open; and we hope to hear of the performance of this oratorio by the great Societies in and out of London with whom Handel is the tower of strength, and to whom a newly opened turret should be a station of vantage and a special stronghold.

Chant Te Deum and Benedictus (in C), for four voices. The music by Sir John Goss.

To criticize Chants of Sir John Goss would be like sitting in judgment on the ounce lifting of the Northumbrian (or any other) Hercules: of course one who is famed for feats of strength can raise the smallest quantum in avoirdupois weight; and the certainty is as self-evident that he who holds the respect and esteem of all who worship in the English language, for his eminently distinguished contributions to Church music, can produce successfully any number of specimens of the tiniest form into which musical composition can be moulded. The title page tells who is the author of the Chants before us, and to be told this, is to be assured that the music is good of its kind. Its kind; well, this is decidedly modern. It is characterised as such by the free use of second inversions, unprepared dominant 7ths, even the chromatic concord of the supertonic, and other specialities, that were not only unpractised, but unknown and unforeseen in the Tallisian period, which many are fain to regard as the golden age of the native ecclesiastical style. But then, the Chants are exempt from the chromatic extravagance wherewith some writers of the day disfigure their productions for Church use and, to our liking or disliking, unfit them for their purpose. The Service was composed for the twelfth annual Festival of the Richmond and Kingston Church Choral Association, 1873; whence may be surmised that the said Association approves of and even seeks Chant Services. So do not we. The miniature form of the Chant is exhaustively applied to the Psalms of the day and the Venite, and it becomes tiresome to a degree almost painful, when it is applied also to the Canticles: it is appropriate to the Psalms, it fits better than anything that has been devised to the recitation of our prose version of the Hebrew poetry, the antithetical spirit of which is well represented in the two-part division of the Chant. It is as totally inapplicable to our rendering of the Latin hymn "Te Deum laudamus," the words of which are in some instances almost ludicrously distorted to meet the unfitness of this form of music, while the musical form accords with nothing in the construction of the verse, such as that above named, in passages of Hebrew origin. We protest urgently against the use of Chants for the Te Deum; but there is an apology for it, if not a justification, in the assumption that persons who cannot read any music nor remember much, may get into their heads a tune of two short strains, and shout it over and over, without regard to its suitability or otherwise for the subject. This argument holds not, however, in the instance under notice, for the frequent changing from one Chant to another, the sometimes recurrence of a chant earlier employed, and even its sometimes partial modification when it re-appears, render the pieces in question very far more difficult to commit to memory than a continuous composition of average simplicity. The accomplished author of these pieces holds, and has fairly won, as much the affection as the reverence of those interested in Church music; let him apply his great and genial talent to other aims than Chant Services.

A Morning Service. By the Rev. Edward Young, M.A.

ACCORDING to a statement on the face of the publication, this Service is "abbreviated" for parochial use. It might have been more exact to say "selected;" for, if we mistake not, the entire work (which was issued some twelve or fourteen years since) comprised more pieces than those now reprinted; but each one in the present edition is here given complete. The selected pieces are the Te Deum, the Jubilate, and the Kyrie. The author opens a novel question, which, with space sufficient, would admit of large discussion. This is, as to the necessity or even desirability for all the pieces in a Service—separated as they are by speaking, or by intoning, or by amens, or by other music—to be in one and the same key. To a great extent we are disposed to support this view, though scarcely to that extent to which it is illustrated in the music under notice, wherein the first piece is in E flat, the next in A, and the last in E. It must be on a future occasion, if we ever enlarge upon this subject; at present let us only consider the three pieces each by each, regardless of their connection, direct or implied. Of the three, we prefer the two latter to the Te Deum. They are melodious, vocal, nicely harmonized—that is, without pretence, or straining at effect, or affectation of a knowledge which would be misapplied—and they declaim the words devoutly and emphatically, a virtue they have in common with the first piece of the series. The preface has some strong words as to the mistaken spirit in which often the composition of worship music is undertaken. Let those wear the cap whom it fits. It is by no means to our measure, so we will leave the implications to speak for themselves, and to be disputed by whomsoever may feel a call to the combat.

Te Deum laudamus. A Chant Service. By Digby Cotes.

WHAT has been urged above, as to the unfitness of the Te Deum for chanting, is not invalidated by Sir John Goss having a companion in his practice of so appropriating the hymn, though the Kingston Association have one opportunity the more to indulge their propensity. The inaptitude of the Chant to the originally Latin hymn, is, in the case before us, partly met by the still closer compression of this concisest of all pieces of music. So, several of the specimens in Mr. Cotes's service have but two instead of three bars in the first part, but three instead of four in the second, whereby is avoided the—forgive the word—comicality of having a semibreve and four minims on the word "O," and the effect as of gasping difficulty from expended breath, in uttering the name of the King of Glory at the end of the verse. The Chants before us are good enough of their notes, but are unavailable for any other purpose than the present, by reason of their irregular extent. Let us repeat, have done with Chant Services. The text of the Te Deum is that which of all others in the Order for Prayer invites continuous composition; the conveniences, to an ignorant congregation, of the system of chanting, are disregarded in the present treatment, even more than in that by Sir John Goss; and if there be any necessity for such a piece of writing, the sooner it ceases to prevail, the better for art and the better for worship.

Gavotte, in E minor; for the Pianoforte. Composed by Agnes Zimmermann.

MISS ZIMMERMANN appears to have such a hearty appreciation of this class of music, and so much talent for re-producing it, not only in its original form, but in its original beauty, that the multiplication of her works cannot but give pleasure to all who desire rather the resuscitation of the old models than the worship of the new ones. The Gavotte before us has a tuneful and characteristic subject, and No. 2, in the tonic major, both in the theme and its accompaniment, is extremely effective as a contrast. Throughout her compositions Miss Zimmermann employs the two hands with much judgment, and this is a feature which cannot be too highly recommended to the attention of teachers who wish to cultivate a classical taste in their pupils.

Danse Folkessange. Original Danish Melodies. Udsatte for Pianoforte, af Niels W. Gade.

THIS collection of Danish Melodies will be liked by all who want genuine tunes unencumbered by embellishments which obscure their beauties. Some of them—especially those in a minor key—are extremely attractive, and all are full of character. No. 2, in G minor, No. 4, in A minor, and No. 8, in E minor, will, we think, be general favourites. The harmonies are excellent throughout, and they are all arranged so easily as to give but little trouble to amateurs.

Berger et Bergère. Idylle, pour Piano.

Le Ruban d'or. Melodie-etude, pour Piano.

Par Jules Egghard.

BOTH these pieces are exceedingly simple in construction, but there is an air of elegance pervading them which cannot fail to make them attractive, if sympathetically rendered. The first has a graceful subject in A flat major, a certain character being given to it by the crossing of the right hand over the left for the continuation of the melody. Little is attempted after the second subject, in the dominant, save the introduction of a few passages which shall agreeably lead back the original theme. There is more in the second piece—a well constructed study—which may be confidently recommended as good practice for the close playing of legato semiquavers in the right hand. The lingering on the dominant harmony of E minor, and the re-entry of the first subject in G major, through the dominant 7th, is an effective point. The title of the composition is somewhat fantastic; but custom seems to have decided that such names shall be given to modern pieces, and there is no reason why M. Jules Egghard should not be in the fashion.

Dropping Down the Troubled River. Sacred Song. Poetry by the Rev. Horatius Bonar, D.D. Composed by Henry Smart.

MR. SMART has here wedded a charming melody to some earnest and thoughtful words, the attraction of the song being materially aided by the truly musician-like manner in which it is harmonised. The flowing accompaniment is in excellent keeping with the character of the poetry; and the theme is so thoroughly vocal as to ensure the sympathy of the singer. We particularly admire the interrupted close on C sharp minor (6th bar, page 2), a very good effect being gained by reserving the harmony of E major until the conclusion of the symphony.

A Soldier's Song. Words by Dr. J. F. Waller. Composed by Charles Oberthür.

WE often wonder who sings those songs which daily appear, the words of which seem to us suited neither for the concert-room nor the drawing-room. At one time we are called upon to review an effusion graphically describing the painful death of a young and loving child; at another our sympathies are aroused for a beautiful and confiding girl, whose heart is breaking through three verses for a personage known only as "him," who has basely deserted her; and in the "Soldier's Song" before us we are told that the "fight is o'er," that the plain is "red with patriot slaughter," and that one warrior still fights, "though deadly wounded." Now, unless composers are compelled to appeal to the public through clap-trap, sensational verses, in order to cover the weakness of their music, we cannot see why such subjects as these should be selected; it cannot be affirmed that the words are rendered additionally attractive by one grain of poetry; and musicians, therefore, who lend the weight of their names to make such manufactures saleable, should be reminded of the responsibility they hold as missionaries of the art in the country where they exercise their talents. M. Oberthür's patriotic effusion is neither better nor worse than the many songs of its class we are constantly expected to notice. The melody is bold, and, if we except a somewhat unpleasant descent of fifths between the voice-part and bass, in the 4th bar of page 3, we have no fault to find with the harmony.

METZLER AND CO.

The Office of the Holy Communion, in G major. By James J. Monk.

THE simplicity of this series of pieces is such as to ensure their good performance and their consequently good effect. We cannot agree with the strong emphasis placed on the first syllable of the word "upon" in the Kyrie. There is abundant precedent for this, it must be owned, in the older Church music: but it must be remembered, too, that when the best specimens of such music were written, the rules of accent were very ill defined or wholly indefinite; now that such matters have a fixed principle, and musicians, as well as the world at large, know how English should be pronounced, the strong exceptionality from general and right use must not pass without a protest. We fail to perceive the purpose which doubtless underlies the repetition of the music for the Responses to the Commandments, on the words beginning, "and peace on earth," in the Gloria. Can it be meant that earthly peace can only arrive to us through our fulfilment of the laws of heaven? If so, the application seems somewhat strained. Again, the pertinence is not evident of the first phrase of Reading's capital tune, "Adeste fideles" to the continuation of the Angel's Hymn, except it may mean that the faithful are invited to come and join in the praise, and blessing, and worship. A curious technical point occurs in this piece on the word "mercy," when the Lamb of God is deprecated; it consists of a progression from the chord of G to that of A flat and back again, involving the forbidden succession of 5ths, while the note G is sustained, pedal-wise, above the entire harmony and the unisonous melody of the voices. The offertory sentence, "Let thy light," is smoothly and prettily set as an anthem, despite the express rubric that all these passages are to be read by the Minister; there is many a precedent, however, for this breach of Church discipline, and we should be glad to suppose that here, as elsewhere, the merit of the music may justify the dereliction. The interpolated words to come before and after the Gospel differ slightly from those in other settings, and why not? since there is no authority for such a passage in any Prayer Book now in use. There is some harmonic confusion in a phrase much resembling that which opens the Kyrie, and on that same syllable "up," which was there falsely, but is here justly, accented, in the first choral reply in the Sursum Corda, the F natural to which is unresolved, and consequently induces a bad effect from the F sharp in another part which presently follows. There is enough merit in the Service to repay the easy amendment of the incidents of which we complain, and we urge the author to take this into consideration.

J. B. CRAMER AND CO.

The Spinning Song, from Wagner's Opera, "Der Fliegende Holländer." Arranged for the Pianoforte by Jules Brissac.

THE various Transcriptions and Fantasias from Wagner's Operas afford undeniable proof of their growing popularity; and the managers of our lyrical establishments may rest assured, that, instead of leading the public taste towards his works,—as they might have done a year or two ago,—the absolute necessity of producing them will shortly be forced upon them by the pressure from without. The characteristic and melodious "Spinning song," which forms the subject of the piece before us, is here excellently transcribed; and although from the nature of the song, the fingers must be somewhat severely taxed, there is nothing in the arrangement, admirably as it recalls the effect of voices and orchestra, which cannot be accomplished by a moderate pianist. As an exercise, as well as a composition well adapted for performance, this pianoforte arrangement of one of the most favourite pieces in the only Opera by Wagner yet heard in this country, may be confidently recommended.

Mysterious Serenade. The Chapel. Nos. 1 and 2 of original songs, with German and English words. The English version by Thomas Oliphant, Esq. Composed by J. L. Hatton.

A FOOT-NOTE in the first of these songs conveys the following hint to amateurs: "The accompaniment to this song must be played with the utmost freedom and lightness of touch, otherwise the effect intended by the composer will be entirely destroyed." We can readily forgive Mr. Hatton for this gentle admonition, the song mainly depending for its success upon the sympathy existing between vocalist and pianist. There is a charming simplicity in the melody of this "Serenade," which is presumed to be heard by a weary child, whilst its mother is watching at the bedside. So delicately is it handled by the composer throughout, that it should not be attempted by any who cannot approach it with an artistic appreciation of its refined and poetical beauty. "The Chapel" is also a happy setting of the words, which are indeed admirably adapted for music. The sudden change in the feeling of the music where the shepherd's merry strain is interrupted by the passing bell, is so thoroughly unlike the conventional trickery of our sentimental ballad-mongers that we cannot but marvel how it is that compositions like this should be comparatively unknown, while, even in our best concert-rooms, mere common-place ditties are received with tumultuous applause: do the rules of the "Royalty" system positively exclude songs of a high character?

B. WILLIAMS.

Gentle Maiden, sweetly sleep. Serenade. Composed by Frank Austin.

THIS Serenade contains some pleasingly melodious phrases; but it appears as if it were written by a singer at the pianoforte. The commencement, in E major, changing into the subdominant, sounds somewhat patchy; but this feeling is increased when the whole (including the opening symphony) is repeated for the second verse. The composer seems to have had some indication of this himself, for he marks "lunga pausa," as if to rest the ear awhile before he returns to his original key. There is, however, sufficient merit in the song to make us wish to meet Mr. Austin again.

AUGENER AND CO.

Concertante Duet in A major. For Piano and Harmonium. Composed by Ebenezer Prout.

Overtures. Arranged for Harmonium and Pianoforte by Ebenezer Prout.

WE are glad to find a musician of the ability of Mr. Prout devoting his talent to the composition of an original work for the harmonium and pianoforte, for however clever may be the arrangements for the former instrument (which is now rapidly taking its place in musical drawing-rooms), it can never assert its true position until its capabilities are carefully studied and written for by accredited composers. The first movement of this duet is extremely brilliant, and contains some well contrasted writing for both instruments. The principal theme is effectively worked in various keys, and is sufficiently winning to be welcomed on its re-appearance. The "Larghetto," in the relative minor, is a melodious air, with variations, the passages being pretty equally divided between the harmonium and pianoforte. All the variations have much character, and although perhaps the nature of the duet seems to demand a developed slow movement, both players and listeners will doubtless find this cleverly varied theme attractive. The "Finale" marked "Presto," shows the composer's contrapuntal power to great advantage. The subjects are well studied, and treated with much skill throughout, the movement forming an animated and effective close to a duet, which reflects great credit upon its composer. The Overtures are Auber's "Zanetta," Rossini's "Guillaume Tell," Weber's "Der Freischütz," Beethoven's "Egmont," and Rossini's "Siege of Corinth." All these are most ably arranged, and will be found exceedingly effective in performance, the passages being most judiciously adapted for both instruments.

SIMPkin, MARSHALL AND CO.

Te Deum laudamus. Set to music for three voices, in the key of B flat. By Henry Hugo Pierson.

OUR regret is much that our saying can be but little of this work. The voices to which it is appropriated are called two trebles, the extreme compass of both being limited to the 10th (from C to E flat), and a baritone (whose path ranges within the octave B flat). Thus, as to extent, the vocal portion presents no difficulty, and the passages are all practically easy. We cannot but ask, however, is facility the sole object in music? A sort of meandering melodiousness wanders through the whole, while there is no portion of it that can be defined as a melody, or a theme, or a subject, or anything which fixes the attention, or emphasizes the words, or can be admired for its technical beauty or textual illustration. It passes step-wise to and fro between the keys of C and E flat, showing again and again how the addition or subtraction of a flat raises or lowers the key by a 4th—but surely folks may learn this from their instruction books, without going to church for its exemplification. It has as much meaning as a large amount of ecclesiastical music of the eighteenth century, which holds a place in our cathedrals because it gained one when twaddle was the highest standard; but the harmonies in this setting are a little more erudite, or, at any rate, less common-place than in those time-honoured nullities. It is on works of higher aim than the present that the reputation of the late Mr. Pierson will rest.

WEEKES AND CO.

Bluette, pour le Piano. Polonaise, par Henri Lütgen.

HERR LÜTGEN has here given us a Polonaise, which, if not very original, is at least melodious and characteristic. The part marked "Trio" (whatever that may mean) is somewhat better than the opening theme; but the piece is too simple in construction to call for much critical judgment.

Addio. Romance for the Piano. Composed by F. V. Kornatzki.

THE subject of this little Romance seems like a paraphrase of "Ah non credea," from "La Sonnambula," put into the major key. It is, however, treated gracefully enough to please a drawing-room audience, and this is, we imagine, all that its composer desired. Let us warn those who attempt this piece for the first time that a ♮ is unfortunately omitted before the A in the 7th bar, for the sound of an A flat in such a position would have a serious effect upon any sensitive listeners.

Think of me. Words, from the French, by Sir John Bowring, Bart. Music by Cantor.

PRESUMING that "Cantor" is an "amateur," we hope that he is not averse to receive a word of advice which might draw upon us an indignant letter from a "professor." Candidly, then, although we like the melody of this song, we cannot reconcile ourselves to the chord of A major in the 5th bar of page 2, but should have preferred the harmony of A minor, reserving the C sharp for the following ¾. Then the sudden rush from the dominant of D minor to the ¾ on C natural, in the key of F major, in the 3rd bar of page 3, is to us particularly unpleasant. These remarks are offered in a kindly spirit; for there is really much in Cantor's composition that we admire.

R. MILLS AND SONS.

Classical Gems. A Series of Compositions for the Pianoforte. Edited and carefully fingered by Charles J. Hargitt.

ON the title-pages of these pieces it is announced that "the series will include many works hitherto unpublished, or almost unknown in this country, selected from the best sources." Here, then, we have one more of the many laudable attempts to rescue from oblivion those exquisite smaller compositions of the standard writers for the pianoforte which have been allowed to die out simply from the apathy of professors who have permitted the choice of pieces to be dictated by their pupils. Three Sonatinas by Steibelt appear to be the only numbers which have yet been published in this series; but small as they are in construction, "gems" they unquestionably are, and of the highest value to those who desire to cultivate a classical and refined taste. No. 1 commences with a short and melodious "Adagio," in E flat, followed by an "Allegretto," in the same key, the subject of which is sufficiently tuneful to become a favourite with all young players. No. 2, in G major, containing a "Moderato Grazioso," followed by an "Allegro" movement, is somewhat more simple; but the passages demand good phrasing, and will be found exceedingly useful in teaching juvenile students to watch with care the various shades of tone. No. 3 begins with an "Adagio non troppo," in C, ending on the dominant and leading to an "Andante," with four variations, all of which are full of character, and will prove excellent practice. This movement is, of course, cut according to the old pattern, with the conventional "Minore" in its right place; but, after all, it is a very good pattern; and although this Sonatina may not be so much liked as the others, it is sound and healthy music, and we heartily recommend it both to masters and pupils.

Galop Militair; for the Pianoforte.

Serenade; for the Pianoforte.

Composed by E. Pauer.

HERR PAUER'S Galop is a vivacious composition which deserves the recognition of pianists who devote their attention to such pieces. The subjects are bold and well contrasted, and the passages lie comfortably under the hands. We prefer, however, the "Serenade," which is full of character, and cannot fail to please either a musical or non-musical audience. It commences with a quaint and attractive theme, in G minor; this is succeeded by a placid melody in E flat major, which is accompanied by quiet arpeggios in both hands, the return to the original subject and key being well managed and extremely effective. This little sketch will make only moderate demands upon the powers of the performer; but it is better than half the pretentious pieces which daily come before us for review.

Der Abschied. Marche Militaire, pour Piano.

Marche Orientale; pour Piano.

Par Polydore de Vos.

CONSIDERING that both these Marches appeal merely to amateurs, we think it a pity that the composer has chosen keys which create a certain difficulty in reading—the first being in D flat major and the second in E flat minor—for the natural modulations from these starting points involve the necessity either of using a number of double flats or of making enharmonic changes, which are always perplexing to those whose notion of the connection of keys is, to say the least, extremely limited. "Der Abschied" is a good military March, but we scarcely see in what manner it justifies its title. The subjects are bold and effective, the theme in the subdominant, with the arpeggio accompaniment, contrasting well with the vigorous opening. The passages throughout, although brilliant, will be found to lie well under the hand, and the March may be recommended to those in search of a dashing and spirited piece. We do not discover any especially "Oriental" character in the second composition; but it is melodious, and not very difficult of execution. The theme in the tonic major (in which key the March concludes) seems to us to demand a return to the original subject for its due effect; but, apart from this objection, we have nothing whatever to say in disparagement of a piece which bears the unmistakable stamp of being written by a good musician.

KNOTT.

Mass in D (with "O Salutaris"). By Edmund Rogers.

It is for the ecclesiologist, or perhaps for the etymologist, certainly not for the poor musical critic, to define the meaning of the word Mass. Mean what it may, it is rarely applied to such a selection of texts as is here before us, which would usually be designated "the office of the Holy Communion," as celebrated in the Church of England, with two interpolations from other parts of our Prayer Book, which of late have been inserted by some ministers in the Service, besides the hymn named in the title page, which has no place in our Order for Prayer. The words are entirely English, though, according to the practice of our church, the Greek or Latin title of each piece is retained. Use leads one to invest the term Mass with Roman associations; but the Ten Commandments are never read to the people in the Roman Service, consequently there is no prayer for inclination to keep them, yet a setting of what are generally called the Responses, constitutes the first number of the work under notice. The Credo follows, which is the authorized version of the Nicene Creed.

Then comes the Sanctus, our familiar "Holy, Holy, Holy," ending with the words "To Thee, O Lord most high," and not having the "Hosannah," which is the amplification of the hymn in the Roman Liturgy. After this there is the Benedictus, an extract, namely, from the Collect for the first Sunday in Advent. Next in order there is the Agnus, that is to say, two sentences from the English Litany. Sequent thereon, we have "O salutaris hostia," in its modern English form, of "O saving victim" an Offertory Hymn, that belongs as little to the Latin Mass as to the English Service, but is inserted therein on particular feasts, by due prescription, not by the will of the Minister as occasionally in the English Office. Lastly, there stands the Gloria in excelsis, set to the orthodox English version. Our duties are not to discuss the propriety of this selection, any more than to dispute the fitness of the definition under which it is presented. Let us however regard the assumption of the title, Mass, from a musical point of view, and under this aspect it seems to catch a light that may explain the composer's purpose. Folks in this country are habituated to associate the term Mass, artistically, with the settings of the Latin text by Haydn and Mozart, to consider these works as constituting a distinct class of music, and to describe the specialities of the class as "the Mass style." The present work obviously emulates this style, in the general character of the phraseology, in the sometimes ascendancy of florid passages in the accompaniment over the importance of the vocal parts, in the occasional allotment of portions of the words to a single voice almost in the shape of a song, in the more frequent repetition of some words than is common in English use or under the more severe rule of the Roman Church, and in several other particulars. Greatly as certain adaptations from the Masses of Haydn and Mozart have succeeded in particular places—adaptations at one time to totally irrelevant English words, but later and less objectionably to translations from the Latin—it has been a subject for wonder, that composers have not heretofore applied the "Mass style" (let us call it) to original compositions for our Church. It is here so applied, and with very considerable success. The Responses varied in some respects for each Commandment, we admire greatly. The Treble solo, beginning "And was incarnate," and closing "And was buried," is a plaintive, simple, and charming melody; its effect is a little impaired by the closing of what precedes it, and the opening of what succeeds, in the same key of D wherein it opens and closes. More practice in writing will cure the author of such weakness in the art of structure. There is solemnity in the commencement of the "Holy, Holy," which is pertinent to the words, though not universal in their treatment. The movement that follows, "Heaven and earth are full," unluckily reminds one of the music to the Latin version of the same text in the Imperial Mass, in the same key, of Haydn; the likeness is in the first phrase, and in the manner of the whole, but not in the merit. This is indeed the most exceptionable portion of the present work: witness some florid passages of passing notes, that ill accord with the harmony, the duplication of some sensitive bass notes, and even a long succession of chords occurring twice over. Curiously enough,—how all parents love most fondly their crippled offspring!—this entire movement is repeated to the words beginning "Hosanna" in the next piece. This next is a Solo, Quartet, and Chorus of great charm up to the recurrence of the former matter. "Lamb of God," is a Solo with Chorus; it has much melodious grace; but we dislike the leap from the second inversion of the chord of B flat in bar 2, to the C bass in bar 3, and this unpleasant incident is several times repeated. "O saving victim" is a tenor solo, having the first verse in D minor, and the second in D major, and it is, to our liking, the best piece in the entire series. The seventh number "Glory be to God," is bright, and proportionably effective, and it has for some purposes an advantage over many of its Latin prototypes, in its far greater conciseness. There is an affectionate dedication of the work to the author's teacher, Mr. Edward Brind, which does honour alike to the master and pupil.

METHVEN, SIMPSON AND CO., DUNDEE.

Feodora, Morceau de Salon.

Fairy Fountain Valse.

Composed by W. H. Richmond.

THE first of these pieces has a graceful subject in E flat major, with themes in the subdominant, which are sufficiently pleasing to ensure a welcome with those who desire mere tune. But beyond these detached melodies, we have nothing to interest; and, as a composition therefore, "Feodora" falls tamely on the ear—not more so, however, let us do Mr. Richmond the justice to say, than nine-tenths of the "Morceaux" daily launched upon the fashionable world. We do not know whether the composer or Good Night, Good Night, Beloved!

September 1, 1873

Words by H. W. LONGFELLOW.

PART SONG.

CIRO PINSUTI.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

Andante Cantabile.

TREBLE. pp cres.

ALTO. pp cres.

TENOR (8ve. lower). pp cres.

BASS. pp cres.

Accomp. pp cres.

Good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! . . good

Good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! . . good

Good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! . . good

Good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! . . good f p sf pp un poco rit.

night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! I come to watch o'er thee!

f p sf pp un poco rit.

night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! I come to watch o'er thee!

f p sf pp un poco rit.

night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! I come to watch o'er thee!

f p sf pp un poco rit.

night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! I come to watch o'er thee!

f risoluto. cres. f rf

To be near thee, to be near thee, a - lone is peace for me, to be near thee, to be

f risoluto. cres. f rf

To be near thee, to be near thee, a - lone is peace for me, to be near thee, to be cres. f rf

To be near thee, a - lone is peace for me, to be

cres. f rf

To be near thee, a - lone is peace for me, to be

f risoluto. cres. f rf

near thee, a-lone is peace for me! Good night, . . be-lov-ed! I come to watch o'er thee!
 near thee, a-lone is peace for me! Good night, . . be-lov-ed! I come to watch o'er thee!
 near thee, a-lone is peace for me! Good night, . . be-lov-ed! I come to watch o'er thee!
 near thee, a-lone is peace for me! Good night, good night,

Tempo 1mo.
pp cres.
 Good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee, good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I pp cres.
 Good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee, good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I pp cres.
 Good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee, good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I pp cres.
 Good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee, good night, good night, be - lov - ed! I Tempo 1mo.
pp cres.

sf pp un poco rit. dolce con grazia.
a tempo.

come to watch o'er thee, I come to watch o'er thee! Thine eyes are stars of morning, Thy p sf pp un poco rit. a tempo.

come to watch o'er thee, I come to watch o'er thee! Thine eyes are stars of morning, Thy p sf pp un poco rit. a tempo.

come to watch o'er thee, I come to watch o'er thee! Thine eyes are stars of morning, Thy p sf pp un poco rit. dolce con grazia.

a tempo.

come to watch o'er thee, I come to watch o'er thee! Thine eyes are stars of morning, Thy lips are crim-son flow'rs, thy lips are crimson flow'rs.

lips are crim-son flow'rs, thy lips are crimson flow'rs.

lips are crim-son flow'rs, thy lips are crimson flow'rs. Good are crim-son flow'rs, Thine eyes are stars of morn-ing, Thy lips are crimson flow'rs, rall. molto ritenuto.

Good night, be-lov-ed! the weary hours, while I count the wea-ry hours.

rall.

Good night, be-lov-ed! the wea-ry hours, while I count the wea-ry hours.

rall.

night, be-lov-ed! the weary hours, while I count the wea-ry hours.

rall.

While I count the wea-ry hours, while I count the wea-ry hours.

rall. molto ritenuto.

Tempo 1mo.

Good night, good night, be-lov-ed! I come to watch o'er thee! good night, good night, be-

Good night, good night, be-lov-ed! I come to watch o'er thee! good night, good night, be-

Good night, good night, be-lov-ed! I come to watch o'er thee! good night, good night, be-

Good night, good night, be-lov-ed! I come to watch o'er thee! good night, good night, be-

Tempo 1mo.

The musical score is written for four vocal parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and piano accompaniment. It is in 3/4 time and B-flat major. The score is divided into three systems. The first system contains the first two stanzas of the song. The second system contains the third stanza. The third system contains the fourth stanza. The piano accompaniment is written for the right and left hands. The score includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, and dynamic markings.

animando a poco a poco.
 lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! I come, I come, I come to lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! I come, I come, I come to lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! I come, ... I come, ... I come, ... I come to lov - ed! I come to watch o'er thee! I come, I come, I come to animando a poco a poco.
 watch, to watch o'er thee, I come, ... I come to watch, to watch o'er watch, to watch o'er thee, I come, I come to watch o'er watch, to watch o'er thee, I come, I come to watch o'er watch, to watch o'er thee, I come, I come to watch o'er watch, to watch o'er thee, I come, I come to watch o'er rall. e dim.
 thee. Good night, . . . good night, . . . good night! . . .
 thee. Good night, good night, good night, good night! . . .
 thee. Good night, good night, good night, good night! . . .
 thee. Good night, . . . good night! . . .

the engraver is to be held responsible for the directions to the performer in this piece; but assuredly the phrases "Scherz et delicato," "Veloce" (which is printed twice over) "Con legerament," and "Cantabile con grazioso" are scarcely correct enough to pass muster, even with those whose knowledge of Italian is limited to the "Dictionary of Musical Terms," usually to be found in young ladies' schools. The "Valse" is melodious and simple, two important qualifications in this kind of music; but what it has to do with a "Fairy Fountain," we are at a loss to comprehend.

G., STEPHENS AND CO., CHELTENHAM.

Music: its value and importance in education; with hints to parents and others respecting early musical training.

AN earnest appeal to parents and guardians, in favour of early musical training for those committed to their care. There can be little doubt that this is a question now engrossing a large share of public attention; and we are inclined to believe that in a very few years singing will be considered almost as necessary a portion of education as reading and writing. We can scarcely perhaps agree with Marianne Farningham, whose opinion is cited at the commencement of this book, that children will be delighted to sing "when the afternoon's weariness overcomes them, and their feet are restless, and their cheeks flushed," unless they are permitted to sing themselves to sleep; but we really think that it can be made a source of much pleasure to them, under the supervision of talented and judicious teachers. The numerous quotations from the books of those who have written on the subject will, we think, do more to recommend this little pamphlet than the observations of the author; for many of these, although containing much truth, are carelessly written; as, for instance where, in speaking of the absurdity of curtailing expenses in a family at the expense of a child's progress in education, it is said that afterwards the work must be gone over again, and "perhaps habits acquired, be once more unlearned." Though not directly advocating the adoption of the Tonic Sol-fa method for teaching children, the author is doubtless a disciple of Mr. Curwen, for in a foot-note it is suggested that "there should be hung up in every nursery, the alphabet of tune, or Sol-fa musical ladder." From the multiplicity of systems applicable to class tuition now before the public, it is very evident that dissatisfaction with the present notation for that purpose is widely spread; and whatever reform in this matter may eventually obtain, there can be no question that the "fixed Do" has had its day.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* * * Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

J. H. FIELD.—The information can be obtained by applying to the Professor of Music at either Oxford or Cambridge University.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary; as all the notices are either collated from the local papers, or supplied to us by occasional correspondents.

CAPE TOWN, CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.—The following were the musical selections performed at the celebration of the Confession of Augsburg, in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Strand Street, on Sunday, June 30th. Morning service—Anthem, "Blessed be Thou" (Kent); Anthem, "How beautiful upon the mountains" (Woodbury); Chorus, "To Thee Cherubim" (Handel). Evening service—Anthem, "O praise God in His holiness" (Scarisbricke); Solo and Chorus, "Thou art full of compassion" (De Monti); Chorus, "O be joyful" (Haydn). The choir was under the direction of Mr. J. H. Ashley, and Mr. J. B. Smithers presided at the organ.

CARTMEL.—The first annual festival of church choirs in the Rural Deanery of Cartmel was held in Cartmel Church, on Tuesday, July 29th. A body of 16 or 18 clergy, in surplices, moved in procession from the vestry, down the Piper Choir, and up the Centre Aisle, headed by the Rev. H. R. Smith, Rural Dean of Cartmel, and the Rev. Canon Stock, Rector of Windermere, with the Bishop of Carlisle, accompanied by his Chaplain, the Rev. Canon Ware, and the Rev. Canon Hubbersty, Vicar of Cartmel, brought up the rear. The prayers were intoned by the Rev. T. Remington, Vicar of Arkholme, and the lessons read by the Rev. Canon Hubbersty and the Rev. H. R. Smith. An admirable sermon was preached by the Bishop, from 1 Corinthians, xiv. 15, and was listened to with great attention. The number of singers was a little over 150, belonging to the choirs of Cartmel, Grange, Haverthwaite, Lindale, Staveley, and Windermere. Music of a simple character was purposely chosen, as this first festival was to a great extent experimental, and in accordance with this, instead of the Anthem usual on such occasions, a hymn was selected, "To the Name of our Salvation." Everything was sung with more accuracy than could have been expected at a first attempt, and the organ was played by Mr. Lamb, of Cartmel, with much efficiency. The collection at the end of the service amounted to £30 15s. At the tea, which was given after the service, Canon Hubbersty proposed a vote of thanks to the Bishop, which was responded to with great good will, and the Rural Dean asked for the thanks of the meeting to be given to Mr. Bath, the instructor, to whose diligence and energy the very efficient singing of the choirs is mainly due.

CORK.—A successful amateur performance of Flotow's opera Maria, was given in English on Friday night, the 8th ult., at the well-known Hydropathic Establishment, St. Ann's Hill. The audience numbered nearly three hundred persons, composed partly of the residents and partly of the surrounding gentry, to whom the proprietor, R. Barter, Esq., had issued invitations. The young lady who sustained the principal character is a local amateur, possessing an excellent voice and highly cultivated style. The part of Nancy was entrusted to a visitor, who by her correct vocalization and unaffected manner, achieved a complete success. The other characters were also admirably sustained. The "Spinning Quartet," was well rendered, and won an encore. The choir had been carefully trained, and the orchestra was most efficient. The opera was conducted by Dr. Marks (organist of the Cathedral), who exerted all his musical talents to make the performance successful. After the opera a ball and supper were given, and when the hour for breaking up came, expressions of delight were heard on all sides at the entertainment which had been so liberally provided by the talent of the amateur vocalists of St. Ann's, and the hospitality of its spirited proprietor.

DILTON MARSH, WILTS.—On Thursday the 14th ult., a new organ was opened in Holy Trinity Church, by Mr. H. J. Stark, F.C.O., organist of Grey Friars' Church, Reading. The instrument is built by Messrs. R. Allen and Co., Bristol, and is fully worthy of their high reputation, both as regards tone and mechanism. The Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., preached at morning service, and also gave a performance on the organ, in conjunction with Mr. Stark, during the afternoon. Sir Frederick extemporised, and played a chorus from his new Oratorio Hagar, Mr. H. J. Stark performed Mendelssohn's First Organ Sonata, Bach's Fugue in G minor (with an extempore introduction), and the War March of Priests, from Mendelssohn's Athalie. The performance gave the greatest satisfaction to a numerous and appreciative audience. The organ has two complete manuals, swell and great; compass, CC to G, with two and a half octaves of pedals. The total number of stops is twenty-one.

DUDLEY.—Very commendable performances of the masterpieces of Handel have been given on different occasions by the Dudley Choral Society, in aid of charitable institutions, and having thus fully established its claim to public favour, it was no surprise that a numerous and fashionable audience should have assembled in the Public Hall on Tuesday, July 29th, to listen to the fine Oratorio, Samson. Considering the short time the Society had been engaged on the work, its execution was in every respect most satisfactory, and reflected much credit upon Mr. Eyland, the conductor, who had so earnestly exercised his acknowledged capacity for teaching. The overture elicited the heartiest applause, and the accompaniments throughout were thoroughly efficient. The principal soprano was Mrs. Sutton, whose singing of the airs, "Ye men of Gaza" and "Let the bright Seraphim," was warmly appreciated. Miss Blower gave the contralto music with much taste, and Mr. G. Mainwaring was highly successful in the bass part. The most marked applause was gained by Mr. Bywater, who was in excellent voice, and gave a refined and artistic interpretation of the whole of the music allotted to the character of Samson. The choruses were rendered with decision and intelligence.

LIVERPOOL.—The concert given on the 12th ult. by the Representative Prize Choir at the Philharmonic Hall, was one of the finest choral performances ever heard in Liverpool. Compositions by Mendelssohn, Schubert, Schumann, Beethoven, J. L. Hatton, Gibbons, Sir John Goss, &c., were faultlessly sung by the choir, and the solo parts were excellently rendered by Messrs. T. Foulkes, T. J. Hughes, and Robinson. Mr. J. Sanders conducted with much skill, and the warmest praise must be awarded to Mr. W. H. Jude for the efficient manner in which he accompanied the music on the pianoforte.

MORETONHAMPTSTEAD.—An organ has been built for and erected in the Cross Chapel, by Banfield, of Birmingham, which is considered by many competent judges, to be the most complete and beautiful instrument of its size to be met with anywhere in England. The metal pipes are made of three-quarters pure tin, to one-quarter lead, a very brilliant and durable composition, but rarely adopted on account of its expense. The organ is perfect in every respect, and worthy of imitation, both in design and workmanship.

MALVERN.—In the Lyttelton School-room, a meeting, called by circular, was recently held to discuss the desirability of forming an Orchestral Union for the Malverns. There was about a score of gentlemen present, and after mature deliberation, it was resolved that such a Union be formed. Mr. Philip Klitz was unanimously elected conductor, and Mr. Whitehouse secretary and treasurer. The object of the Union is fully described in the term "Orchestral." Of the ability of Mr. Klitz to conduct there can be no two opinions, as he has had many years' experience in connection with the bands of the Hampshire Rifles, and the Southampton Choral and Philharmonic Society, from both of which he has received valuable testimonials, consisting of a handsome silver cup from the Rifles, and an elaborately worked silver bâton from the Choral Society. There can be no doubt that a sufficient quantity of musical talent is in existence in Malvern; and if it can only be managed with judgment, and the members attend the practice regularly, the Orchestral Union ought to be a great success.

OTLEY.—The seventh annual Festival of the Otley Choral Union, was celebrated on Saturday afternoon, the 26th July, at the Parish Church. The choirs from Arthington, Burley, Horsforth, Baildon, Kirkstall, Menston, Otley, Yeadon, and Guiseley, met at the Parish Church about eleven o'clock in the forenoon, and having rehearsed the musical portion of the service, adjourned to the National Schools, where a cold collation had been provided. The various choirs assembled at Messrs. Walker's new Printing Works, which were kindly lent by that firm to answer the purposes of a vestry. The grand total of voices taking part in the festival was 172, divided as follows: treble, 90; alto, 15; tenor, 30; bass, 37. About three o'clock the male portion of the choristers formed into order and proceeded to church, commencing as they entered the sacred edifice, the processional hymn, "Come, ye faithful, raise the anthem." The prayers were well intoned by the Rev. J. Seaton, of Cleckheaton; and the Rev. W. F. Asbridge read the first lesson, and the Rev. W. Pearson the second. The chants and responses on the whole were carefully rendered. The Anthem, "Blessed be Thou, Lord God of Israel," by Kent, called into requisition all the power of the choir, and each part was well sustained throughout. The Rev. J. H. Carr, curate of Kirkstall, preached a very appropriate sermon on the devotional merit of music from the words of the Psalmist, "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto Thy name, O most High: To shew forth Thy loving kindness in the morning, and Thy faithfulness every night." A collection was made, amounting to upwards of £8. The Vicar having pronounced the benediction, the recessional hymn, "O God, our help in ages past," was sung by the choir on leaving the Church. Mr. W. Stables, of Kirkstall, conducted, and Mr. W. Brown, of Otley, officiated as organist. Both gentlemen ably performed their respective duties, and it is in a great measure owing to their indefatigable exertions that the festival was brought to a successful issue.

RACINE, WISCONSIN.—The Students of Racine College gave their second annual concert in the large new refectory of the Institution on Monday evening, the 7th July. The first part of the programme was devoted to Locke's Macbeth music, and the second part, which was miscellaneous, comprised several choruses, part-songs, and glees. The choir consisted of 90 picked voices from the total number of Students, 240. C. Bach's orchestra from Milwaukee, accompanied the Macbeth music (Hutton's Orchestral arrangement being used), and Professor Heyer, of Racine, presided at the pianoforte in the second part. Mrs. James Bosuston (better known in West Cornwall as Miss Ellery), sang the soprano solos, and Mr. G. J. Rowe conducted.

SHEFFIELD.—The organ which has just been erected in the Parish Church, Chapeltown, by Messrs. Brindley and Foster, was recently opened by Mr. Best, the organist of the Royal Albert Hall, London. Special choral services in connection with the event were held, the sermon after the morning service being preached by the Rev. R. W. Marriott, Vicar of Aldborough, and that in the evening by the Very Rev. the Dean of York. Several of the clergy of the neighbourhood also took part in the services. The organ, which has cost nearly £1,000, is the gift of Mr. Chambers, of Thorncliffe Works, and is a work of more than ordinary excellence; it is, however, like many other good instruments, confined in an organ chamber which has been specially built for its reception, the consequence being that the grandeur of tone and effectiveness of the organ is not as fully realised as would have been the case had the instrument occupied a more exposed position. Mr. Best's reputation as a player had the effect of drawing to the church large congregations at both services, and besides accompanying the services, he gave several exquisite voluntaries, all of which were quite calculated to display to the fullest extent the great variety of the stops and power of the organ. The following are the contents of the instrument:—Great Organ—Trumpet, 8 ft.; mixture, three ranks; mixture, two ranks; flote-traverse, 4 ft.; principal, 4 ft.; robe gedact, 8 ft.; gamba, 8 ft.; open diapason, 8 ft.; double diapason, 16 ft. Swell Organ—Clarion, 4 ft.; horn, 8 ft.; oboe, 8 ft.; contra fagotti, 16 ft.; mixture, 3 ranks; principal, 4 ft.; vox angelica, 8 ft.; violin diapason, 8 ft.; bourdon, 16 ft.; tremulant. Choir Organ—Clarinet, 8 ft.; piccolo, 2 ft.; dulcet, 2½ ft.; salicet, 4 ft.; harmonic flute, 4 ft.; lieblich gedact, 8 ft.; salcionel, 8 ft.; dulciana, 8 ft. Pedal Organ—Flute bass, 8 ft.; quint, 10½ ft.; principal bass, 8 ft.; sub-bass, 16 ft.; open bass, 16 ft.; trombone, 16 ft.; trumpet, 16 ft. Couplers—Swell sub-octave, swell to great, swell to choir, swell to pedal, choir to pedal, great to pedal. Two composition pedals to swell; three to great.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. E. H. Birch, late of S. Gabriel's Warwick Square, to All Saints, Kensington Park.—Mr. Charles Jacobs (late organist of St. Michael's Mitcheldean), organist and choirmaster, to the Parish Church, Metheringham, Lincoln.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

OUSELEY, REV. Sir F. A. G., Bart.—Hagar. An Oratorio. The words selected from Holy Scripture, by the Rev. J. R. G. Taylor, M.A. Composed for the Hereford Festival, 1873. Vocal score. Folio, 31s. 6d.

SLOMAN, ROBERT, Mus. Doc., Oxon.—Supplication and Praise. A Sacred Cantata. The words selected from the Holy Scriptures. Octavo, 5s.

READ, J. F. H.—Psyche. A Dramatic Cantata for Solo Voices and Chorus, with Accompaniment for Piano. The Words by V. A. C. Amcotts. Paper covers, 5s.; cloth gilt, 7s.

SMITH, THOMAS.—A short Practical Method for Teaching Singing. 1s.

PEARMAN, JAMES.—A Short Mass in A major for Four Voices with Organ accompaniment. Paper covers, 2s. 6d.

OKELY, W. SEBASTIAN, M.A.—Sequentiæ, harmonised, for Four Voices. "Nello stile osservato." Vocal part, 5s. Organ part, 2s. 6d.

HUSBAND, REV. EDWARD.—Missa S. Michaelis, containing Kyrie, Credo, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, Ave Verum, and Gloria, with a Hymn, to be sung during the Ablutions. For Treble Voices, or Voices in Unison. Octavo, 6d. For Four Voices, Octavo, 1s.

MATTHEWS, T. RICHARD, B.A.—Te Deum laudamus, in G. A Village Te Deum. Octavo, 6d.

ADAMS, EDGAR.—Te Deum harmonised, on the 7th and 1st Gregorian tones. Octavo, 6d.

GAUL, ALFRED R.—Offertory Sentences, as sung at the Church of St. Augustine, Edgbaston. Octavo, 1s.

GADSBY, HENRY.—The Lord is King. 6d. Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 83.

SWEET, REV. J. H., M.A.—Dies Iræ: two translations, one set to a Chant (by E. E. J.), as a Hymn for Advent. Octavo, 6d.

HATTON, J. L.—God giveth the increase. Hymn of Thanksgiving for Harvest. Words by FIDES. Octavo, 2d.

GOSS, SIR JOHN.—There is beauty on the mountain. Glee for Four Voices. Octavo, 4d.

PRENDERGAST, A. H. D.—When for the world's repose. Serenade, for A.T.B.B. Octavo, 4d.

OAKEYLEY, HERBERT S.—Tears, idle tears. Song, written by ALFRED TENNYSON. Sung by Madlle. TIETJENS, at the Birmingham Festival, 1873. 2s.

HANDEL.—Belshazzar. String parts. 42s. 9d.

BEST, W. T.—Arrangements from the Scores of the Great Masters for the Organ, No. 96. 2s. Contains, Grand March, Op. 40, No. 2: F. Schubert. Bourée, Pastor Fido: Handel.

ST. MARY'S, ALDERMANBURY.—Two TREBLES (Boys), two ALTOS, and a BASS are REQUIRED for the Surpliced Choir of this Church. Two Services on Sunday, and Friday evening Rehearsal. Stipend £5 to £10 per annum. Address the Organist, as above.

HEREFORD AND BRISTOL MUSICAL FESTIVALS, 1873.

The following important Works to be performed at the above Festivals, are published by MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HANDEL'S MESSIAH.—Folio, 10s.; octavo, 2s.; cloth, 4s.; Pocket edition, 1s. 4d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

" JEPHTHA.—Folio, 17s. 6d.; octavo, 2s.; cloth, 4s.

" SIXTH CHANDOS ANTHEM, "O praise the Lord," Folio, 6s.

HAYDN'S CREATION.—Folio, 10s.; octavo, 2s.; cloth, 3s.; Pocket edition, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER.—Folio, 10s.; octavo, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. SPOHR'S CHRISTIAN'S PRAYER.—Folio, 6s. 6d.; octavo, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 3s.

MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH.—Folio, 21s.; octavo, 4s.; cloth, 6s.

" ST. PAUL.—Folio, 21s.; octavo, 2s.; cloth, 4s.

" HYMN OF PRAISE.—Folio, 14s.; octavo, 2s.; cloth, 4s.

SIR F. OUSELEY'S HAGAR.—Folio, 31s. 6d.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo., price 6d. each.
1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d.
SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorized by His Grace the Archbishop of York. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part Chorus, with Organ accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK, Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

Sixth Edition.
THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK, edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY and MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorized by his Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo., without chants, 1s.; with Proper Psalms, 1s. 3d.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to., with chants, 5s.; large 4to., £1 1s.; each voice part, separately, 2s. Canticles, score, small 4to., 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo., 14d. Novello, Ewer and Co., and Parker and Co.

Tenth Edition.
JOULE'S COLLECTION of 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Price 5s. 6d.; sep. vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score 1s. 6d.
The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

SUPPLEMENT to the PREVIOUS EDITIONS of the ABOVE, containing Chants for the Venite, &c. Price 1s.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. (Large type), price 2s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.
JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo., price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.
JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Third Edition.
THE ORDER for the HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

NON NOBIS DOMINE, arranged to the Corresponding English Words, by Rev. W. G. LONGDEN, for the Use of Choral Meetings, as an Introit, or Anthem, or Grace after Meat. Price One Penny; Ninepence a dozen; or Five Shillings a hundred.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For voices in unison and Organ. 8vo., 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWELVE KYRIES. By G. BAKER. Price 6d. 12 or more copies, 4d. each, post free. G. Baker, Music-seller, Wakefield.

Now ready, 8vo., price Three-pence.
THE APOSTLES' CREED, Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

REV. R. F. SMITH, M.A., Minor Canon of Southwell, TE DEUM, in F, 3d.
"Simple yet impressive—will, we feel convinced, ere long become one of the most popular of its kind."—Nottingham Journal, June 18, 1873.
"Some passages of remarkable beauty."—Nottingham Guardian, June 18, 1873. ANTHEM, "The Lord is nigh," 6d. Novello, Ewer & Co.

Now ready, price One Shilling, by post, 1s. 1d.
MISSA S. MICHAELIS, arranged for Four Voices, containing Kyrie, Credo, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, Ave Verum, and Gloria. With a Hymn to be sung during the Ablutions. By Rev. E. HUSBAND, Incumbent-elect of the New Church of St. Michael, Folkestone.
An edition of the above for Treble Voices (or Voices in Unison) is also published, price 6d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and G. J. Palmer, 32, Little Queen-street.

Just Published.

CANTICLES NOTED. Second Set, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. 18mo., 8d.; 8vo., 2s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

HELMORE, REV. THOMAS.—THE CANTICLES ACCENTED, 18mo., 3d.—Hymns of the Eastern Church, four voices, each 1s., PEACE, it is I; THE DAY IS PAST AND OVER; THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.—S. MARK'S CHANT BOOK (in daily use at the College Chapel, Chelsea), 4s. 6d.; or the same, Part I., being the main body of the work, price 3s. 6d.; and Part II., The Table of the Chants, price 1s. (useful for places where only the Canticles are chanted). Also Two "TE DEUMS" for Choir and People, in the alternate verses; adapted from Latin arrangements by Alfieri and Bains; vocal Score and Organ Accompaniment, price 3s. Also the People's Plain Song, separate, price 14d. Four-part Cadences for the Holy Communion, 6d. The Carol for Christmas Morning, vocal score, 18mo. edition, 2d.; melody, 18mo., 1d.

HYMN IN TIME OF CATTLE PLAGUE, 2d. Words, 1s. per 100.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADDITIONS TO THE
REV. T. HELMORE'S PLAIN SONG WORKS.

The Canticles Accented. Price 3d.
The Psalter and Canticles Accented. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Appendix 1 to Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory, price 4d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 1, giving the Proper Psalms, noted as before in their right order of the six days to which they are Appointed. Price 6d. Bound up with recent editions of the Psalter Noted.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 3d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 2, giving the Proper Psalms newly noted for the Four Great Festivals (second set). Price 4d.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 4d.

Canticles Noted (second set). Large Edition, 2s. Small Edition, 8d. For some of the Harmonies to this see Accompanying Harmonies to Psalter Noted, Appendix 2 (above mentioned). For others, see Accompanying Harmonies to Brief Directory, Appendix 2, now in hand.

Cadences for the order of the Administration of the Lord's Supper, in compressed vocal score. Price 6d.

Paper on Church Music, with special reference to the joining of all the People in Sacred Song, read at the Church Congress, Wolverhampton, October 1867. Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS (Chant Service), by DIGBY COTES. 8vo., 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

"MISSA REGIA" (DUMONT). A complete Plain-Song Service for the Holy Communion, from the Rouen Service Books. Edited by ALFRED KING, Mus. Bac., Oxon. Vocal and Accompaniment, 1s. 6d.; Plain Song, 4d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A SERVICE for the HOLY COMMUNION for Men's Voices in four parts, consisting of Introit, Kyrie, Gloria (tibi, Gratias, Offertory Sentences, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, composed by W. H. SANSTER, Mus. Bac. Price 2s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

Second Edition, price 6d.; Unison copy, 1d.
NICENE CREED (Ely Prize Setting). By ALEX. S. COOPER. Equally adapted for Singing in Unison or in Harmony. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A SERVICE for the TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in the key of A, composed by FREDERICK ILIFFE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Fellow of the College of Organists, London, and Organist of St. Wilfrid's Church, Kibworth. Price 44d.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, Set to Original Chants, price 2d., composed by FREDERICK ILIFFE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Fellow of the College of Organists, London.

"In writing these Chants for the Te Deum I have divided it into its doctrinal parts. The 'first' thirteen verses are a Creed setting forth the doctrine of the Trinity. The 'second' part beginning with the words 'Thou art the King of glory,' and the four following verses, set forth the Divinity and Incarnation of the Son. The solemn verse 'We believe that Thou shalt come,' expresses our belief in our Lord's second coming. A separate Chant is provided for this verse. The 'third' part, beginning with the words 'We therefore pray Thee' is a Litany. The Rev. Thomas Keble was the first, I believe, who suggested this ancient mode of dividing the Te Deum into these several parts, and I have adhered to this arrangement as far as possible; there is, however, one exception, and that is in the first part of the verse, 'Holy, Holy, Holy,' which seems to me to demand a different kind of expression to any of the other verses. I may also say that I had written another Chant of a more pensive character for the 'Litany part,' but it was thought advisable to go back to the melody of the first Chant, in order to avoid many changes."—Prefatory Remarks by the Composer.

A PRIZE TUNE, in E flat, "Jesu, Refuge of my soul," for four voices, by the same author, price One Penny.

This Tune gained the Prize offered by the College of Organists, Midsummer, 1872. Published by Novello, Ewer and Co., London, and by Mr. W. R. Bowden, Holywell-street, Oxford.

In the Press.

THE 146TH PSALM, set to Music by EDWIN J. CROW, Mus. Bac., Cantab., being his Exercise for that degree. Price to Subscribers, 3s. 73, London-road, Leicester.

SACRED MUSIC by EDWARD LAWRENCE, (Organist, Merthyr Tydfil).

TE DEUM (new) in B flat. Harmony, unison, free organ part, &c. "Highly effective." 1s. 6d.—Three Choral Hymns. Set 1, "There is a blessed home," "O Love," and "Praise the Lord," 1s.—The well-known and immensely admired Six Responses to the Commandments, new edition, 1s.—Three Choral Hymns. Set 2, "O Paradise," "A few more years shall roll," and "The roseate hues" (just published), 1s.—The Evening Hymn "Abide with me." Harmony and unison, with a free organ part. "Everywhere exceedingly popular." A specimen copy of either for twelve stamps. A very liberal discount on a dozen copies. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

STABAT MATER for Three Voices, Soprano, Tenor and Bass, or two Tenors and Bass, composed by DIOMÈDE BELLÉ. This beautiful work, post free, 3s. 3d. Also AVE MARIA, for Soprano or Tenor, by HAYDN WAUD, free 1s. 6d. Waud and Co., 88, Fulham-road, London.

MUSIC OF HYMN OF PRAISE, as sung at Rev. C. Voysey's Services at St. George's Hall, composed by A. L. TAMPLIN. 1s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Now ready.

ECCLESIASTICAL MUSIC.—Compositions for Four Voices on the Plain Chant of the Roman Gradual, Ratisbon, ed. 1871, by W. SEBASTIAN OKELY, M.A., "nello stile osservato," with Organ accompaniment.

I.—Missa Tempore Paschali, price 2s. 6d.; Organ part, 1s. 6d.
II.—Missa in Festis Semiduplicibus, price 2s. 6d.; Organ part, 1s. 6d.
III.—The Sequentiæ for all the year, price 5s.; Organ part, 2s. 6d., consisting of Victimæ Paschali, Veni Sancte Spiritus, Lauda Sion, Stabat Mater, Dies Iræ. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MERCER'S CHURCH PSALTER and HYMN BOOK. AN APPENDIX OF ADDITIONAL HYMNS, CHANTS, SANCUTES, and RESPONSES, the Harmonies carefully revised by Sir JOHN GOSS, may now be had, either separately or bound up with the work in all its various sizes and forms. Prospectuses of the complete work, with full particulars, will be forwarded on application. London: James Nisbet and Co., 21, Berners-street, W.; Lamborn Cock, 62 and 63, New Bond-street, W.

Eighth Edition.

301 ANCIENT AND MODERN CHANTS, edited by WILLIAM RIDLEY, Organist of the Parish Church, and of St. John's. Free for stamps from the Editor (bound, 36 stamps, paper, 24 stamps), West Derby, Liverpool. "A fine collection."

EASY ANTHEMS for VILLAGE CHOIRS. By W. H. GILL. 2d. each. Nos. 1 to 6 now ready. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.
A Specimen Copy, post free for Stamps to the value.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for Small Chorus. The texts selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe.

First Series, for Boys' and Females' Voices.—1. "Come, and let us return." 2. "I will look unto the Lord." (These Anthems may appropriately be used in Advent and Lent.) 3. "Behold the Tabernacle." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmastide.)
Second Series, for Female and Male Voices.—1. "Unto us was born." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.) 2. "Blessed is the soul." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Whitsuntide.) 3. "Come ye and let us go up." (This Anthem may be appropriately used at the opening of a church.) 4. "Blessed be the name of God." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at a Harvest Festival.)

A separate accompaniment for use where there is not a Pedal Organ, may be had, price 2d.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private performance. Price 6d. for each Anthem, or 2s. 6d. for each series of six. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SIX EASY ANTHEMS for VILLAGE CHOIRS. By W. H. GILL. 2d. each. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW ANTHEMS.—Choirs who use Anthems should apply for "Contents" page of "Anthems Special and General." To Subscribers 4s. 400 pages. Contributors:—Costa, Benedict, Ouseley, Sterndale Bennett, Elvey, Stewart, and other first class Composers. No such cheap and excellent work has ever been produced. Address Editor of "Anthems Special and General," 48, Hunter-street, London, W.C.

Just published, square 16mo, 2s. 6d.

THE CHORISTER'S GUIDE, by W. A. BARRETT, Mus. Bac., Oxon., of St. Paul's Cathedral, author of "Flowers and Festivals." Rivingtons, Waterloo-place, London, Oxford, and Cambridge.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS' FESTIVAL SONG.—Full Chorus, by ALFRED HARBOROUGH, R.A. Price 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

RECESSIONAL MARCH, J. F. THORNE. Second edition, 4s.

"There is vigour and character in this March."—Choir. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

J. B. TOURNEUR.—Hommage à Sa Sainteté Pie IX., Messe à trois voix, avec solo pour Tenor et Basse, accompagnement d'Orgue ou de Piano. Exécutee avec succès six fois consécutives à l'église des Pères Servites, à Brompton.

LET THE HILLS RESOUND. The New Part-Song by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Magnificently sung by 500 members of the South Wales Choir on the Lawn at Marlborough House, in the presence of Royalty. 1s.; Class copy, four stamps. As a Song 3s., and Piano Solo, 4s.

MISS LINDSAY'S BEST SONGS.—My Old Mate and Me, 3s.; Far away, 4s.; The Old Sweet Story, 4s.; Ye have done it unto Me, 3s.; Tired, 4s.; When Sparrows build, 3s.; Pulaski's Banner, 4s.; Low at Thy feet, 3s.; The Bridge, 4s.; Resignation, 4s.; Too late, 4s. Post free at half-price in stamps.

F. ABT'S BEST SONGS.—A Rose in Heaven, in G and F, 4s.; O ye tears, 4s.; Kathleen Aroon, 4s.; The Hills of Light, 3s.; For Old Love's sake, 3s.; Not a Sparrow falleth, 3s.; He giveth His beloved sleep, 3s.

A. S. GATTY'S BEST SONGS.—The Open Window, 3s.; Friend's Sorrow, 3s.; Tell Him I love Him Yet, 3s.; O Fair Dove, in F and A, 4s. each; The Lights Far Out at Sea, 3s.; The Mill Lad's Love, 3s.

W. T. WRIGHTON'S BEST SONGS.—Thy Voice is Near, 4s.; Her Bright Smile, 4s.; Only One to Bless and Cheer me, 4s.; The Wishing Cap, 4s.; The Liquid Gem, 4s.; O would I were a Fairy Queen, 3s.; Be Happy, and Never Despair, 3s.; What though thy Sun be clouded, 3s.—London: Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street. All post free at half-price in stamps. Order everywhere.

DOWN IN A FLOW'RY VALE.

MADRIGAL FOR FOUR VOICES.

BY

CONSTANTIUS FESTA,

In A for Mixed Voices, and in F for Male Voices.

A new Edition of the MUSICAL TIMES, No. 3, price 1½d., is just published, containing the above Madrigal, with the original English words by THOMAS OLIPHANT, and the second verse by F. W. R., commencing "Soon as I carelessly strayed."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE CHEQUE BANK, LIMITED,

HAS COMMENCED BUSINESS AT ITS OFFICES,

PALL MALL EAST,

AND

124, CANNON STREET, E.C.

The GUARANTEE FUND of £100,000 CONSOLS has been invested in the names of the following TRUSTEES.

ROBERT DALGLISH, Esq., M.P.
CUTHBERT E. ELLISON, Esq., J.P.
SAMUEL MORLEY, Esq., M.P.
W. H. SMITH, Esq., M.P.

The cheques of the Cheque Bank supply a new, safe, and universally applicable method of paying and transmitting small amounts of £10 and under.

Each cheque will bear stamped on its face the maximum amount for which it can be filled up, but the maximum amount must be previously deposited, and thus no account can be overdrawn. All cheques are crossed and payable only to order.

The cheques are supplied in books of ten each, costing 1s., being 10d. Government duty and 2d. Bank commission.

Applications for Cheques to be made at the Offices as above or at any of the following Bankers, where the funds of the Cheque Bank will be deposited:—

THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

THE WESTERN BRANCH OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND, Burlington Gardens, Bond Street.

GLYN, MILLS & Co.

WILLIAMS, DEACON & Co.

NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND.

DIMSDALE, FOWLER, BARNARD & Co.

CONSOLIDATED BANK, LIMITED.

ALEXANDERS, CUNLIFFES & Co.

NATIONAL BANK OF SCOTLAND.

ALLIANCE BANK, LIMITED.

JAY COOKE, McCULLOCH & Co.

HERRIES, FARQUHAR & Co.

R. TWINING & Co.

CITY BANK.

UNION BANK OF SCOTLAND.

MANCHESTER and SALFORD BANK.

MANCHESTER and COUNTY BANK.

By order,

PALL MALL EAST, S.W.
11th August, 1873.

S. J. NICOLLE,
Secretary and Accountant.

NOW READY.
NEW EDITION, CORRECTED TO JUNE, 1873,
NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S
CATALOGUE, No. 6,

CONTAINING
SACRED MUSIC WITH LATIN WORDS.
GRATIS ON APPLICATION, OR SENT POST FREE FOR ONE STAMP.

JUST PUBLISHED, AN OCTAVO EDITION OF
HANDEL'S THEODORA.
In Vocal Score, with a separate accompaniment for the Organ or Piano-forte.

Price in paper cover, 3s. Scarlet cloth, 5s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOW READY.
HANDEL'S BELSHAZZAR,
Oratorio in Vocal Score, with Accompaniment for Organ or Piano-forte.

EDITED BY G. A. MACFARREN.
Octavo, paper cover, 3s. Cloth gilt, 5s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

New Edition just published, price 11d.
SOUND THE LOUD TIMBREL.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY THOMAS MOORE.
THE MELODY COMPOSED BY AVISON.
Arranged for One or Four Voices. The MUSICAL TIMES, No. 127.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MOZART'S MASSES,
Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, Oblong quarto, 2 volumes,
14s. each.

HAYDN'S MASSES,
Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, Oblong quarto, 2 volumes,
14s. each.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.
Price in paper, 2s.; scarlet cloth, 3s. 6d.
HENRY FARMER'S MASS IN B_b,

With the Latin words, and an English adaptation to the Communion Service,

By the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

"This beautiful composition has been so long before the public, and its merit so distinctly recognised, that we have no need here to introduce a single word of criticism upon its musical value. Our object in mentioning it at all is to call attention to its recent publication in a handsome and convenient form. In a small volume of clear and legible print, the musician can now obtain the whole of the Mass in Vocal Score, with an Accompaniment for the Organ or Piano-forte."—Nottingham Guardian.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE MESSIAH,
FACSIMILE OF THE
AUTOGRAPH SCORE,

Executed in Photolithography by VINCENT BROOKS, DAY and SON, from the Original in the Library at Buckingham Palace, by permission of Her Majesty the QUEEN. Bound in cloth boards, bevelled edges, gilt lettered, red edges, 21s.; also on fine toned paper, gilt edges, 31s. 6d.

London:
Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.).
SMALL MUSIC BUSINESS to be DISPOSED
OF. Owner just received appointment abroad. Organistship (£41 per year), Teaching, and Tuning practice. Good Hiring trade. Address Musicus, York Town, Farnbro' Station.

TO THE MUSIC TRADE.—WANTED, an ASSISTANT, who thoroughly understands the Sheet Music Department. Apply to Forsyth Brothers, Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

CHORISTER.—WANTED for S. Mary's, Arley Hall, a TREBLE BOY. Terms £20, which will include everything. Apply to Organist, Arley Green, Northwich, Cheshire.

JUST PUBLISHED.
THE RAISING OF LAZARUS,
AN ORATORIO, BY
J. F. BARNETT.

The Words selected and arranged from the Holy Scriptures.
Dedicated to his Friend, GEORGE NORBURY, Esq.

Paper covers, 8s.; cloth gilt, 10s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.
H A G A R :
AN ORATORIO,

BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., M.A.,
Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Composed for the Hereford Festival, 1873. Words selected from Holy Scripture, by the Rev. J. R. G. TAYLOR, M.A. Vocal score folio, 31s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S ONLY COMPLETE AND UNIFORM EDITION OF

MENDELSSOHN'S
THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS,

With the German and W. BARTHOLOMEW'S Original English Words.

Complete in One Volume, folio, 5s. net. Octavo, paper, 2s. net; cloth gilt, 4s. net; or singly, 2s. each. The separate Numbers are sold at half-price.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| No. 1. I would that my love. | No. 7. My bark is bounding. |
| 2. The passage bird. | 8. Can I light-hearted be. |
| 3. Greeting. | 9. Evening song. |
| 4. Autumn song. | 10. Zuleika and Hassan. |
| 5. O wert thou in the cauld blast. | 11. The Sabbath morn. |
| 6. The Maybells and the flowers. | 12. The harvest field. |
| | 13. Song from Ruy Blas. |

N.B.—The Quarto score to No. 13, 1s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PSYCHE:
A DRAMATIC CANTATA
FOR SOLO VOICES AND CHORUS.
The Words by V. A. C. AMCOTTS.
THE MUSIC BY J. F. H. READ.

Vocal score, with Piano-forte accompaniment, price 5s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S
POPULAR PART-SONGS FOR S.A.T.B. 8vo.

- | | | |
|--|--------------|---------|
| 1. "I love the merry spring-time" .. | 15th edition | 0 2 |
| 2. "Gaily thro' the greenwood" .. | 19th " | 0 2 |
| 3. "Welcome, merry May" .. | 6th " | 0 2 |
| 4. "The mountain Maid" .. | 5th " | 0 2 |
| 5. "Come o'er the mountain" .. | 8th " | 0 2 |
| 6. "Hail, merry, merry Christmas" .. | 13th " | 0 2 |
| 7. "Songs of praise the angels sang" .. | 5th " | 0 3 |
| 8. "Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow" .. | 6th " | 0 3 |
| 9. "Fairy revels" .. | 7th " | 0 3 |
| 10. "Oh! peaceful vale of rest" .. | 5th " | 0 1 1/2 |
| 11. "The merry bird" .. | 5th " | 0 3 |
| 12. "Come, let us be merry and gay" .. | 4th " | 0 3 |
| 13. "Forest echoes" .. | 6th " | 0 3 |
| 14. "Haste ye, merry elves" .. | 5th " | 0 3 |
| 15. "The streamlet" (with Soprano solo) .. | 2nd " | 0 3 |

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Messrs. Forsyth Brothers, Regent-street, London, and Cross-street, Manchester.

TEN TRIOS FOR FEMALE VOICES, composed
by CARL REINECKE. (Op. 100.) 8vo., 1s. 6d.; or singly—

- | |
|--|
| No. 1. "The Dreaming Lake," 2d. |
| "2. "Praise of Spring," 3d. |
| "3. "Of Oak thy mournful bier's prepared," 3d. |
| "4. "Sunbeams in Winter," 2d. |
| "5. "The Awakening of Morn," 3d. |
| "6. "The Winter hath not a blossom," 3d. |
| "7. "Thou that thyself with death hath striven," 2d. |
| "8. "The Evening Wind," 3d. |
| "9. "As in a field goodly fruit will grow," 3d. |
| "10. "The Elves," 3d. |

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MARCHES
COMPOSERS, ARRANGERS ORGAN

BY VARIOUS COMPOSERS, ARRANGED FOR THE

			Arranged by	s.
Adam, Adolphe ...	Marche Religieuse ...	W. T. Best ...	2	0
Alexander, Alfred ...	March	2	0
Beethoven ...	Military March, Posthumous ...	W. T. Best ...	2	0
" ...	Triumphal March (Tarpeja) ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	Grand March in D (Op. 45) ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	Funeral March (Op. 26) ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	March, (Egmont) ...	" ...	2	0
Best, W. T. ...	March for a Church Festival, in D major ...	" ...	3	0
" ...	Wedding March ...	" ...	3	0
" ...	Funeral March ...	" ...	3	0
Cherubini ...	Marche Religieuse, composed for the Coronation of Charles X. ...	H. J. Lincoln ...	1	3
Chopin ...	Funeral March from piano-forte Sonata ...	W. T. Best ...	2	0
Calkin, J. B. ...	Marche Religieuse	2	0
" ...	Festal March	2	0
Carter, William ...	Processional March "Placida"	2	0
" George ...	Grand Festival March	2	0
Collin, Charles ...	Three Marches ...	I at 38, 2 at 2	6
Dussek ...	Marcia Funèbre, Sonata, Op. 74, four hands ...	W. J. Westbrook ...	1	6
Handel ...	March, "Scipio" ...	W. T. Best ...	2	0
" ...	March, "Ode S. Cecilia's Day" ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	March, "Hercules" ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	Funeral March, "Samson" ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	Dead March "Saul" ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	March "Joshua" ...	" ...	2	0
Jekyll, C. S. ...	Grand March	3	0
Liszt ...	Triumphal March "Vom Fel szum Meer" ...	W. T. Best ...	2	3
Lefebure-Wely ...	Two Marches, each	2	0
Mozart ...	March, C major, "Idomeneo" ...	W. T. Best ...	2	0
" ...	" F ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	" "Posthumous," D major ...	" ...	2	0
Meyerbeer ...	Coronation March "Le Prophète," ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	Schiller March ...	" ...	2	0
Mendelssohn ...	War March, "Athalie" ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	" ...	Dr. Steggall ...	1	0
" ...	Cornelius March, Op. 108 ...	W. T. Best ...	2	6
" ...	Funeral March, Op. 103 ...	" ...	1	6
" ...	Wedding March ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	" ...	C. E. Willing ...	1	0
Molique ...	March "Abraham" ...	W. T. Best ...	1	6
Moscheles ...	Marche Triomphale ...	" ...	2	0
Monk, E. G. ...	March, "The Bard" ...	G. A. Hardacre ...	1	0
Ouseley, Rev. Sir ...	March, "Polycarp" ...	L. Colborne ...	1	0
Schubert ...	Grand Funeral March, written on the occasion of the death of Alexander I. ...	E. Silas ...	1	0
" ...	March, Op. 27 ...	W. J. Westbrook ...	1	6
" ...	March Solennelle, Op. 40, No. 5 ...	W. T. Best ...	2	0
" ...	March, Op. 40, No. 4 ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	Grand March, Op. 40, No. 2 ...	" ...	2	0
" ...	March, B minor, Op. 27, No. 1 ...	" ...	2	0
Spohr ...	March from Notturmo, Op. 34 ...	" ...	2	0
Schumann ...	March, Op. 85 ...	" ...	2	0
Spindler, F. ...	March, C minor ...	" ...	2	0
Smart, Henry ...	Grand Solemn March ...	" ...	2	0
Steggall, Dr. ...	March, Philistines, "Samuel" ...	" ...	2	0
Stone, J. T. ...	March Triomphale ...	" ...	1	6
Thorne, E. H. ...	Festive March ...	" ...	2	0
Wagner ...	March, "Tannhäuser" ...	F. Archer ...	2	0
Weber ...	March from pianoforte duets ...	W. T. Best ...	2	6
Westbrook, W. J. ...	Festival March ...	" ...	1	6
" ...	" No. 2 ...	" ...	1	6
" ...	March ...	" ...	1	6
Zimmermann, Agnes ...	March ...	Dr. Stainer ...	1	6

Many of the above Marches are contained, with several other pieces, in Numbers of Best's Arrangements, &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. New York: J. L. Peters.

MARCHES

FOR PIANOFORTE SOLO.

		s.	d.
Allen, Alfred B. . .	March of the Choristers	3	0
Barnby, J. . . .	Bride's March, "Rebekah"	3	0
Benedict, Sir Julius	Malcolm (Marche Triomphale)	4	0
Brabham, James . .	March of the Pilgrims	3	0
Calkin, J. B. . .	Festal March	3	0
Egghard, Jules . .	Marche de la Garde Imperiale	4	0
Elvey, Sir George..	Festal March, performed at the marriage of H.R.H. the Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne	4	0
Handel	Dead March, "Saul"	1	6
Hiller, Ferdinand . .	Marcia, Op. 144	3	0
Jacoby, S. . . .	March, dedicated to the Volunteers of Great Britain	2	6
Krüger, W. . . .	Marche des Bohemiens Russes	4	0
Löhr, Fred. N. . .	March	3	0
Longhurst, W. H. . .	March of King David's Army, "David and Absalom"	5	0
Mendelssohn . . .	March composed in celebration of the visit of the painter Cornelius to Dresden, 1841	3	0
"	War March, "Athalie"	4	0
"	Funeral March composed for a military band	3	0
"	Wedding March	2	0
"	Marche Funèbre, "Lieder ohne Worte"	1	0
"	Hero's March	2	0
"	Pilgrim's March	2	0
Molique, B... . .	March, "Abraham"	2	6
Novello, V. . . .	3 Marches—2 of Mozart, 1 of Gluck	2	0
O'Leary, A. . . .	5 Marches—No. 1, "Hasten to the fight." No. 2, "Union." No. 3, "The Battle Field." No. 4, "The United Band." 5, "On the March." Complete 5s. or Singly	2	0
Thorne, J. F. . . .	Recessional March	4	0
Wesley, Dr. S. S. . .	March	3	0
Wollenhaupt . . .	Grande Marche de Concert	3	0
"	Marche Hongroise	3	0
"	Grande Marche Militaire	4	0
Wagner	March, "Tännlausen"	3	0
"	"	5	0
Zimmermann, Agnes	Marche.. . . .	2	0

The above sold at half-price.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.
New York: J. L. Peters, 599, Broadway.

GERMAN VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM.

FORTY SONGS,

With the original words, and an English Version, by JOHN OXENFORD,

Complete, in One Volume, octavo, 6s. net.

No.	OR, SINGLY:—	s. d.
1	Sir Ulrich—Herr Ulrich	2 0
2	The Watchman—Wächterruf	2 0
3	The Switzer Boy—Der Schweitzerbu	1 0
4	Bavarian Song—Barisches Volksliedchen	1 0
5	The Three Roses—Die drei Röslein	2 0
6	Present in thought—Das Gedenken	2 0
7	The pains of love—Leibesqual	1 0
8	Good Night—Gut Nacht	1 0
9	The faithless one—Untreue	1 0
10	All over—Zu End'	1 0
11	A bitter parting—Herber abschied	1 0
12	Absence—Der traurige Bua	1 0
13	The lover's flight—Flug der Liebe	1 0
14	Happy days—Glückliche Zeit	1 0
15	The Mountain Maiden—Abschied von der Heimath	2 0
16	A Song to Spring—Frühlingslied	2 0
17	Constancy—So viel Stern'	2 0
18	Lovers' Quarrel—Das gestörte Glück	2 0
19	Complaint—Des Mädchens Klage	2 0
20	The coy maiden—Herzig Schätzerl	2 0
21	Of at her cottage door—Hab' oft die ganze Nacht	2 0
22	A song of the Styrian Alps—Steyermärker's Alpenlied	2 0
23	The Sentinel—Treue Soldatenliebe	2 0
24	Cradle Song—Wiegenlied	2 0
25	A short farewell—Abschied	2 0
26	Soldier's love—Soldatenliebe	2 0
27	My Dearest, my Darling—Mei herzig's Diernel	2 0
28	A light possession—Leicht Gepäck	2 0
29	From the Dachstein's height—Hoch vom Dachstein an	1 0
30	On the Alma—Auf der Alma	1 0
31	The Tyrolese and his child—Der Tyroler und sein Kind	2 0
32	Soft glow of the evening—Willkommen, o seliger Abend	2 0
33	Wanderer's Song—Wanderlied	2 0
34	Lonely—Mutterseelen-allein	2 0
35	Thuringian Volkslied—Thüringisch	1 0
36	The Lurley—Lorely	1 0
37	Annie of Tharau—Aennchen von Tharau	2 0
38	A Lament—In einem kühlen Grunde	2 0
39	May Breezes—S'Mailüfterl	2 0
40	Farewell—Lebewohl	1 0

* * The Separate Songs are sold at half-price.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.
New York: J. L. Peters, 599, Broadway.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S COLLECTION OF

SCHUMANN'S SONGS,

WITH ENGLISH AND GERMAN WORDS.

In One Volume, octavo, 6s. net.

No.	OR SINGLY:—	s. d.
1	Blondel's Song—Blondel's Lied	3 0
2	The Walnut Tree—Der Nussbaum	2 6
3	Moonlight—Mondnacht	2 6
4	A holiday on the Rhine—Sonntags am Rhein	2 6
5	The hat of Green—Volksliedchen	2 0
6	The joys of home—Ich wand're nicht	2 0
7	Poor Peter—Der arme Peter	3 0
8	A flowret thou resemblest—Du bist wie eine Blume	1 6
9	O sunny beam—An den Sonnenschied	2 0
10	A poet's love—Ich grolle nicht	2 0
11	Devotion—Widmung	2 0
12	Wanderer's song—Wanderlied	2 6
13	A spring night—Frühlingsnacht	2 0
14	Since mine eyes beheld him—Seit ich ihn gesehen	3 0
15	The noblest—Der Herrlichstet	3 0
16	A vision—Ein Traum	2 0
17	One only!—Nur eine	2 0
18	Love—Liebe	1 6
19	In May—Im Mai	1 6
20	The two Grenadiers—Die beiden Grenadiere	3 0
21	Thy lovely face—Dein Angesicht	2 0
22	Beauteous cradle—Schöne Wiege	2 0
23	Emotion—Die Stille	2 0
24	A red, red rose—Roths Röslein	2 0
25	Deep treasure'd in my heart—Intermezzo	1 6
26	A ride in the wood—Waldeggespräch	2 0
27	Evening Song—Abendlied	2 0
28	Drinking Song—Irinkied	1 6
29	The Lotusflower—Die Lotosblume	1 6
30	My Cottage—Die Hütte	2 0

* * The Separate Songs are sold at half-price.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.
New York: J. L. Peters, 599, Broadway.

NEW NUMBERS.

BEST'S ARRANGEMENTS

FROM THE SCORES OF THE GREAT MASTERS

FOR THE ORGAN.

Price 2s. each.

No.
81.	March from the "Ode on St. Cecilia's Day"	Handel.
	Prelude and Fugue (E minor) from Pianoforte Works	Mendelssohn.
82.	Chacone (F major)	Handel.
	Andante con variazioni from Pianoforte Duets, Op. 3	Weber.
	Romanza ditto ditto	Weber.
	See the Conquering Hero comes	Handel.
83.	Funeral March "On the death of a hero," from Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 26	Beethoven.
	March, B minor, Op. 27. No. 1	F. Schubert.
	Hunting Song from the "Waldscenen," Op. 82	R. Schumann.
	Adagio from Pianoforte Duets, Op. 10	Weber.
84.	Fugue, in G minor	Mozart.
	March Triomphale	Moscheles.
	Fantasia from 6th Quartet, in E flat major	Haydn.
85.	Allegretto, with variations and finale Fugato, from 6th
	Quartet, E flat major	Haydn.
	Allegretto (G minor), Op. 142	C. Mayer.
	Chorus, "Questo é il cielo," Alcina	Handel.
86.	Allegretto, from 2nd Quartet, in D minor	Haydn.
	Andante cantabile in E flat major, from Piano Duets, Op. 3	Weber.
	Largo cantabile, 5th Quartet, in D major	Haydn.
87.	Overture (D major), Op. 15	Spohr.
88.	Prelude and Air, with variations from the Suites de Pieces	Handel.
	Andante (G major) Rosamunde	Schubert.
	Serenade	Stephen Heller.
89.	Andante, from 12th Symphony	Mozart.
	Prelude and Fugue (G minor)	Bach.
	Finale notturno, Op. 34	Spohr.
90.	Chorus, "Thou shalt make me hear of joy and gladness"
	(151st Psalm)	Handel.
	Evening music, Allegretto scherzoso (Op. 99)	R. Schumann.
91.	Chaconne, "La Favorite"	Couperin.
	Triumphal March "Vom Fels Zum Meer"	Liszt.
	Chorus, "God is my King"	Bach.
92.	Gavotte, from the 6th Violoncello Sonata	Bach.
	Bourrée, from the 3rd ditto	Bach.
	Gavotte, (Orphée)	Gluck.
93.	Adagio, from the third Quintett	Mozart.
	Chorus, "Behold the wicked bend their bow (Anthem
	"In the Lord")	Handel.
	Adagio, Symphony in G	Haydn.
94.	Scherzo, 2nd Symphony	Beethoven.
	Overture, Messiah	Handel.
95.	Andante, Sonata, A major, Pianoforte and Violin, Op.
	12, No. 2	Beethoven.
	Chorus, Go your way into his gates, Jubilate	Handel.
	Chorus, "Tell it out among the heathen," (Anthem "O come let us sing")	Handel.
96.	Grand March, Op. 40. No. 2	F. Schubert.
	Bourrée, Pastor fido	Handel.

(To be continued.)

Volumes I, to IV., bound in cloth, price £1 16s. each.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street (W.).

OVERTURES,

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN,

BY W. T. BEST,

Price 2s. each.

WEBER.—"JUBILEE."	HANDEL.—"MESSIAH."
HANDEL.—"SAMSON."	SPOHR.—"JESSONDA."
" " "ATHALIAH."	" " "FALL OF BABYLON."
" " "SAUL."	" " "D MAJOR, OP. 15."
" " "OCCASIONAL."	MENDELSSOHN.—"ST. PAUL."
" " "ESTHER."	" " "MILITARY OVERTURE."
" " "PORUS."	" " "ATHALIE."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

J. S. BACH'S

48 PRELUDES AND FUGUES,

IN ALL THE MAJOR AND MINOR KEYS,

(THE WELL-TEMPERED CLAVICHORD.)

EDITED AND COLLATED WITH ALL FORMER EDITIONS OF THE WORK, BY

W. T. BEST.

Complete in One Volume, 12s.; or in Four Books, each 4s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW EDITIONS (OCTAVO) OF ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &c.

PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

BACH.—God's Time is the best	...	1s. od.
" The Passion (St. John)	...	2s. od.
FARMER, H.—Mass in B flat	...	2s. od.
N. W. GADE.—The Erl-King's Daughter	...	1s. 6d.
" Spring's Message	...	0s. 8d.
CH. GOUNOD.—De Profundis (Psalm 130)	...	4s. od.
HANDEL.—Belshazzar	...	3s. od.
" Theodora	...	3s. od.
F. HILLER.—A Song of Victory	...	2s. od.
G. A. MACFARREN.—Outward Bound	...	2s. 6d.
R. SCHUMANN.—Paradise and the Peri	...	2s. 6d.
H. SMART.—The Bride of Dunkerron	...	2s. 6d.
A. S. SULLIVAN.—Festival Te Deum	...	2s. od.

NEW COMPOSITIONS,

BY

J. FAURE.

THE STAR.

Sonnet. The words translated from the French of Camille du Locle, by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 4s.

THE KING AND THE MINSTREL.

Song. The words translated from the French of V. Prilleux, by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 4s.

I LOVE THE SPLENDOUR OF THE NIGHT.

Song. The words translated by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 4s.

MARCH ONWARD.

Song. Translated from the French of J. Chantepie, by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 4s.

FAR FROM THEE.

Song. The words translated from the French of Jean Jaques Rousseau. 4s.

THE OLD YEAR.

Song. Written by H. W. Dulcken. 4s.

O'ER ALL THE MOUNTAIN.

Song. Written by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 4s.

SANCTA MARIA.

The words translated by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 4s.
(Sung by Madame Adelina Patti).

SANCTA MARIA.

With the original French words. 3s.

THE SON OF THE PROPHET.

Song. Words translated by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 3s.

WHEREFORE.

Canzonette. Translated from the French of Victor Hugo, by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 4s.

REAPER'S SONG.

The words translated from the French of P. de Chazot, by H. W. Dulcken, Ph.D. 4s.

SIGHS.

Canzonette. The words translated by E. R. 3s.

O SALUTARIS (O Saving Victim).

Mottett for Soprano or Tenor Solo and Chorus. 4s.

AVE MARIA (Save, Lord, and hear us).

Mottett for Soprano or Tenor Solo, with Chorus. 4s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

In one volume, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges, price 31s. 6d.,

NOVELLO'S SHORT MELODIES FOR THE ORGAN.

Original and Selected, intended principally for the soft stops, by

VINCENT NOVELLO.

Also Published, in 36 Numbers, at 1s. 3d. each; or in 6 Books, 6s. each.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES,

IN VOCAL SCORE,

WITH A SEPARATE ACCOMPANIMENT FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

NEW NUMBERS.

No.
300.	Agnus Dei (God our Father) First Mass Haydn	1½d.
301.	Dona Nobis (Sing the praises)	do. do.	1½d.
302.	Tyrants now no more. Hercules Handel	1½d.
303.	Quod in orbe (I will exalt Thee) Hummel	4d.
304.	Kyrie eleison (I will call upon the Lord) Mass in G	Weber	1½d.
305.	Gloria in excelsis (Praise the Lord)	do. do.	3d.
306.	Credo (Nations shall do Him service)	do. do.	3d.
307.	Sanctus (Holy, holy) do.	2d.
308.	{ Agnus Dei and Dona Nobis (Shew Thy favour and Look with favour }	do. do.	1½d.
309.	Pignus Futuræ (Sing to Jehovah) Litany in E♭	Mozart	4d.
310.	Do. (Lord God, to Thee be Glory) Litany in E♭	do.	4d.
311.	Blessed are the men	Elijah Mendelssohn	4d.
312.	Baal, we cry to thee	.. do. do.	4d.
313.	Thanks be to God	.. do. do.	4d.
314.	Be not afraid	.. do. do.	4d.
315.	He watching over Israel	do. do.	4d.
316.	Holy, holy, is God the Lord	do. do.	4d.
317.	And then shall your light	do. do.	4d.
318.	He that shall endure	.. do. do.	2d.
319.	Behold, God the Lord	.. do. do.	4d.
320.	He saw the lovely youth. Theodora Handel	1½d.
321.	Now love, that everlasting boy. Semele do.	1½d.
322.	{ Sanctus (Holy, holy, holy) } Mass in E♭	C. M. von Weber	4d.
323.	{ Benedictus (He is blessed) }	Messe Solennelle. Ch. Gounod	2d.
324.	{ Ye sons of Israel (Air, Alto) }	Samson Handel	1d.
325.	{ Sanctus (Holy, holy, holy) } Communion Service	C. Gounod	2d.
326.	{ Benedictus (Blessed is He) }	do. do.	1d.
327.	Come, and trip it as you go (L'Allegro) Handel	1d.
328.	Or let the merry bells ring round	do. do.	1½d.
329.	Populous cities	.. do. do.	1½d.
330.	These delights if thou canst give	do. do.	1½d.
331.	These pleasures melancholy give	do. do.	3d.
331.	{ Requiem Eternam } Requiem Mass in	C minor Cherubini	2d.
332.	{ Give unto the pure in heart }	do. do.	6d.
333.	Dies Iræ (Day of vengeance)	do. do.	1d.
334.	Pie Jesu (God of Mercy)	.. do. do.	1d.
334.	{ My Saviour Jesus now is taken } The Passion	J. S. Bach	3d.
335.	{ Have lightnings and thunders }	do. do.	3d.
336.	Hearts feel that love Thee. Athalie Mendelssohn	3d.
337.	How doth the Lord. The Passion J. S. Bach	1d.
338.	In tears of grief.	do. do.	1½d.
339.	Yet doth the Lord see it not. Elijah Mendelssohn	4d.
340.	What threat'ning tempest. Calvary Spohr	4d.
341.	Haughty Babylon. Fall of Babylon do.	3d.
342.	Cast thy burden. Elijah Mendelssohn	2d.
343.	Credo. Messe Solennelle Ch. Gounod	4d.
343.	{ Promised joys } Athalie Mendelssohn	6d.
344.	{ Hearts feel that love Thee }	do. do.	3d.
345.	Kyrie eleison. Mass in D. Beethoven	3d.
346.	The mighty power. Athalia Handel	3d.
347.	By slow degrees. Belshazzar do.	3d.
348.	Dixit Dominus Leonardo Leo	2d.
349.	In exitu Israel Samuel Wesley	4d.
350.	Where is he. Engedi Beethoven	3d.
351.	Jehovah, Lord God of Hosts Spohr	4d.
352.	O God, who in Thy heavenly hand. Joseph Handel	3d.
353.	Come with torches. Walpurgis Night Mendelssohn	4d.
354.	I wrestle and pray J. S. Bach	4d.
355.	Gentle night, O descend. Calvary Spohr	2d.
356.	Though all thy friends prove faithless. Calvary	do. do.	2d.
357.	His earthly race is run do.	2d.
357.	Domine salvam fac. Festival Te Deum	.. A. S. Sullivan	4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

OCTAVO EDITIONS OF

SERVICES BY MODERN COMPOSERS,

PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PHILIP ARMES, Mus. D.—A COMMUNION SERVICE in A, consisting of Kyrie eleison (Nos. 1 and 2), Gloria tibi, Credo, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, Gloria in excelsis. Price 1s.

HENRY BAKER, Mus. Bac.—A SHORT MORNING, COMMUNION and EVENING SERVICE in F; consisting of Te Deum, Jubilate, Kyrie (Nos. 1 and 2), Credo, Sursum Corda, Sanctus and Gloria tibi Domine, Gloria in excelsis, Magnificat, and Nunc dimittis. Price 1s.

J. BARNBY'S MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, set to Music in the key of C, for voices in Unison, 4d.

J. BARNBY.—THE CANTICLES (Te Deum, Benedictus, Jubilate, Magnificat, Nunc dimittis, Cantate Domino and Deus misereatur), set to Music in Chant form. 4d.

W. T. BEST.—A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE, in simple Chant form. For a Four-part Chorus, with Organ Accompaniment. 1s.; or singly:—Te Deum and Jubilate Deo, 4½d.; Kyrie eleison, Gloria tibi, Nicene Creed, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, 4½d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d.

J. BAPTISTE CALKIN'S MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE in D, for the especial use of Parish Choirs. Price 1s., or singly:—Te Deum and Jubilate, 4½d.; Sanctus, Kyrie, Nicene Creed, and Gloria in excelsis, 4½d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d.

J. BAPTISTE CALKIN'S MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, in B flat. Dedicated to the Members of the Special Sunday Evening Choir of St. Paul's Cathedral. 4d.

DR. JOHN B. DYKES.—A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE, in F, for Parish Choirs. Price 1s., or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Benedictus, 2d.; Kyrie (Nos. 1 and 2), Gloria tibi Domine, Credo, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, 4½d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d.

DR. G. M. GARRETT.—A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE, in F, for Parish Choirs. Price 1s.; or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Jubilate, 2d.; Introit or Hymn, Kyrie, Nicene Creed, Sanctus and Gloria in excelsis, 4d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d.

SIR JOHN GOSS.—UNISON SERVICE in A. Te Deum, 4d.; Benedictus and Jubilate, 4d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 4d.

SIR JOHN GOSS.—TE DEUM and JUBILATE in A, for four voices, 6d. Small score for voices only, 3d. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A, for four voices, 4d. Te Deum in D, for four voices, 4d. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E, 4d.

SIR JOHN GOSS.—TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in F, for four Voices and Organ, 4d. Cantate Domino and Deus misereatur in C, for Voices in Unison, with Accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte, 6d.

EDWARD HERBERT'S CHANT TE DEUM, in D. Price 3d. And BENEDICTUS. Price 3d.

THE MORNING SERVICE, TE DEUM, and BENEDICTUS, set to Music in the Simple Chant form by ALFRED H. LITTLETON. Price 3d.

THE EVENING SERVICE, MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, set to Music in the Simple Chant Form by ALFRED H. LITTLETON. Price 3d.

G. A. MACFARREN'S UNISON SERVICE for PARISH CHOIRS. Price 1s., or singly:—Te Deum, Price 3d.; Jubilate, 1½d.; Kyrie, Nicene Creed, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, 4½d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d.

WALTER MACFARREN.—A SIMPLE MORNING and EVENING SERVICE in C, for Parish Choirs. Price 6d.; or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Jubilate, Kyrie and Sanctus, 2d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 2d.

DR. MONK'S UNISON SERVICE in A, for Voices and Organ. 1s., or singly:—Te Deum and Jubilate, 4½d.; Kyrie, Nicene Creed, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, 4½d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d.

OUSELEY.—A CHANT SERVICE for the TE DEUM, arranged by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc. Price 3d. The Office of the Holy Communion, set to Music of an easy character. 4d.

SAMUEL PORTER'S SERVICE in D. Edited by JOSEPH BARNBY. Price 9d.; or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Jubilate, 1½d.; Kyrie, Sanctus, and Nicene Creed, 3d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d.

C. HUBERT H. PARRY.—A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE, in D. Price 1s.; or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Benedictus, 3d.; Kyrie eleison, Nicene Creed, Sanctus and Gloria in excelsis, 4½d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 4d.

SAMUEL REAY.—A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE, in F. Price 1s. 6d., or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Jubilate, 3d.; Kyrie, Credo, Sursum Corda, Sanctus and Gloria, 6d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 6d.

HENRY SMART.—A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE in F. Price 1s. 6d.; or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Jubilate, 3d.; Kyrie (Nos. 1 and 2), Credo, Sursum Corda, Sanctus and Gloria, 9d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 6d.

BOYTON SMITH'S CHANT SERVICE in E flat. Te Deum, Benedictus, Sanctus, and Kyrie, 3d. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d. The same Te Deum printed in F, 3d.

DR. W. SPARK'S MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, in D, for voices in Unison and Organ. 3d.

DR. JOHN STAINER'S NICENE CREED, in an Easy Form for Four Voices, or for voices in Unison, with Organ Accompaniment. Folio size, 6d. Small vocal score, without accompaniment, 1½d.

SIR R. P. STEWART.—A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE in G, for Parish Choirs. Price 1s.; or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Jubilate, 1½d.; Introit, Kyrie eleison, Nicene Creed, Sanctus, Gloria in excelsis, 4d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 4d.

E. H. THORNE'S MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, set to Music in Chant form, with free Organ Accompaniment. 3d.

BERTHOLD TOURS.—A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE, in F, for voices in Unison and Organ. Price 1s., or singly:—Te Deum, 3d.; Jubilate, 2d.; Kyrie eleison, Nicene Creed, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, 6d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d. The same Service arranged for Four Voices. 1s. 6d.; or singly:—Te Deum, 4d.; Jubilate, 3d.; Kyrie eleison, Nicene Creed, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, 9d. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 4d.

THOMAS TALLIS TRIMNELL.—CHANT SERVICE in D. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, on a Parisian Theme. 3d.

JAMES TURLE.—THE MORNING and EVENING SERVICE, set to Music in Chant form. 4d.; or, separately:—Te Deum, Jubilate, and Kyrie eleison, 3d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 2d. The Sanctus and Kyrie set in the Keys of C, F, and D, 4d.

DR. S. S. WESLEY.—CHANT SERVICE in F. Complete, 4d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 2d.; folio, Te Deum and Jubilate, 2s.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 1s.; Vocal Parts, complete, 1s. 4d.

DR. S. S. WESLEY.—A SHORT FULL CATHEDRAL SERVICE in F. Vocal score, 1s.; or singly:—Te Deum, 4d.; Jubilate, 2d.; Kyrie, Sanctus, and Nicene Creed, 4d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 4d.

INSTRUCTION BOOKS FOR THE ORGAN.

W. T. BEST.

THE ART OF ORGAN PLAYING (Part I.) Practically Illustrated from the first rudiments to the highest difficulties of the Instrument; both in its use as an Accompaniment to the different styles of Church Music, as well as in the various purposes of the employment of the Organ as a Solo Instrument. Price 6s.

THE ART OF ORGAN PLAYING. Part II., price 12s., being Studies for the Pedal, with many illustrations from the works of Bach, and other Organ Composers; shewing how passages of special difficulty are to be played.

The first part of "The Art of Organ Playing" dealt merely with those peculiarities of Touch and Fingering in which the mode of performance on the keyboard of an Organ differs from that of a Pianoforte; but the characteristic of Organ music is, that it demands the simultaneous use of both Hands and Feet; a matter involving a different employment of the Left Hand, which does not play the Bass, as in Pianoforte music, except where the Pedal part ceases for the moment. A proper manner of playing all those passages assigned to the Pedal is as important a study, in its way, as a correct method of Fingering, as applied to a keyed instrument. The present exercises have specially in view that opposed motion of the Left Hand to the Pedal part, which constitutes one of the principal difficulties to be overcome by an Organ-player; as the practice of mere passages for the Pedals, unaccompanied by the use of the Hands, will never enable a student to obtain the requisite facility. The manner of combining the various stops, and employing the different key-boards of an Organ is also taught throughout the work, each study having directions for the use of those registers which are calculated to give it the best effect.

For Contents see Novello's Catalogue, Nos. 1 and 2, which may be had gratis, or post-free for two stamps.

JOHN HILES.

A PROGRESSIVE INTRODUCTION TO PLAYING THE ORGAN, consisting of Fifty-five Preludes, Fugues, Airs, &c., in two, three, and four parts, from the works of Dr. Arne, A. W. Bach, Barthelemon, Dr. Callcott, Cherubini, Clementi, Corelli, Dussek, Fenoglio, Graun, Dr. Greene, Handel, M. Haydn, Herz, Keeble, Keisewetter, Max Keller, Knecht, Lauska, Lawes, Mendelssohn Bartholdy, Müller, Naumann, Novello, Paganini, Pergolesi, Pinto, Reber, Reissiger, Richardson, Rink, Rousseau, Scarlatti, F. Schneider, Steibelt, Weber, Werner, and Winter; to which is added some account of the Instrument itself; a notice of its various Stops, and the manner of combining them; with Directions and Exercises for the use of the Pedals. 10s. 6d.

NEUKOMM.

ELEMENTARY METHOD FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM, containing special instructions for the manner of blowing, the touch, fingering, and the proper expression of the Harmonium, with a great number of Examples and Progressive Exercises, and Thirty detached Pieces for the Organ, together with complete directions for the management of the stops on the Organ and the use of the Pedals: followed by Exercises and Studies, which will enable the learner to encounter the difficulties presented by the Pedal Pieces of the immortal John Sebastian Bach. Price 10s. 6d.

RINK.

PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL, carefully revised, with the German directions and terms translated into English, and the pedal part printed on a separate staff. The whole edited by W. T. BEST. Oblong folio edition. Price 20s., or in Six Books, 4s. each.

Preface. Part I., price 4s., contains—
 Nos. 1 to 12.—Short and Easy Pieces in Two parts.
 " 13 to 24.—" " Three parts.
 " 25 to 36.—" " Four parts.
 " 37 to 66.—Preludes in all the Major and Minor Keys.
 Part II., price 4s., contains—
 Nos. 67 to 132.—Exercises for the Pedals.
 " 133 to 144.—Twelve Chorales, or well-known German Psalm Tunes, with Variations.
 Part III., price 4s., contains—
 Nos. 145 to 159.—Fifteen Easy Postludes, or Concluding Voluntaries, in the Fugue Style.

Part IV., price 4s., contains—
 Nos. 160 to 174.—Fifteen Postludes, or Concluding Voluntaries for Alternate Manuals, in the Fugue Style.
 Part V., price 4s., contains—
 Nos. 175 to 181.—Seven Preludes and Fugues.
 " 182.—The Flute Concerto.
 " 183.—Variations on "Heil dir im Sieges Kranz," or, "God Save the Queen."
 Part VI., price 4s., contains—
 Nos. 184 to 192.—Nine Preludes and Fugues.
 " 193 & 194.—Fantasia and Fugue.

SCHNEIDER.

COMPLETE THEORETICAL AND PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL, containing Instructions for playing the Organ, with numerous Exercises for acquiring the use of the Pedals. Price 10s.

STUDIES FOR PEDAL PLAYING; forming Chapter III. of the Complete Organ School. Price 4s. 6d.

CHORALS, SCALES, AND EXERCISES, printed separately from the Organ School. Price 2s. 3d.

48 TRIOS AND MANUALS AND PEDAL OBBLIGATO; forming Complete Exercises for the Pedals. 4s. 3d.

This last work is not comprised in the School to which it may be considered as forming a continuation.

ELEVEN CHORALS, to illustrate page 42 of the School. Price 6d.

CHARLES STEGGALL.

INSTRUCTION BOOK FOR THE ORGAN, consisting of plain directions for the use of the Stops, &c., followed by Progressive Exercises for the Manuals and Pedals. Price 6s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO'S OPERA CHORUSES,

EDITED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN AND BERTHOLD TOURS.

AUBER'S FRA DIAVOLO.

1. Comrades, fill your glasses 4d.
En bons militaires.
 2. Hail, festal morning 2d.
C'est grand fête.

AUBER'S MASANIELLO.

3. All hail the bright auspicious day 2d.
Du Prince objet de notre amour.
 4. All hail the bright auspicious day 1d.
Du Prince objet de notre amour.
 5. O holy Power 1d.
O Dieu puissant!
 6. Companions, come. (Fishermen's chorus) 2d.
Amis, amis.
 7. Behold the morn in splendour 2d.
Amis la matinée est belle.
 8. Come hither all who wish to buy. (Market chorus)
Au marché qui vient de s'ouvrir
 { We come, we will avenge thee 3d.
Courons à la vengeance.
 9. O Power benign.
Saint bien heureux.
 60. All hail, the noble victor. (March and chorus) 6d.
Honneur! honneur et gloire.

BEETHOVEN'S FIDELIO.

10. Oh what delight. (Prisoners' chorus) 3d.
O welche Lust.
 11. Farewell, thou warm and sunny beam 4d.
Leb' wohl, du warmes Sonnenlicht.

BELLINI'S I PURITANI.

12. When yonder bugle calls us 1d.
Quando la tromba squilla.
 13. Rejoice we! 1d.
A festa.
 14. Noble Arthur, welcome 1d.
Ad Arturo onore.
 15. Once I sought thee 2d.
A te, o cara.
 16. Fatal day 2d.
Ahi! dolor

BELLINI'S NORMA.

17. Hasten, ye Druids, the heights ascend 2d.
Ite sul colle, O Druidi.
 18. Norma cometh 1d.
Norma viene.
 19. Not yet gone? no, yet they linger 1d.
Non parti? finora è al campo
 20. Vengeance, vengeance 1d.
Guerra, guerra!

BELLINI'S LA SONNAMBULA.

21. Hail! Amina 1d.
Viva! viva, Amina!
 22. Fairest flower of the mountains 1d.
In Elvezia non v'ha rosa.
 23. When dusky twilight 1d.
Ah fosco cielo.
 24. Here a moment we'll shelter and rest us 2d.
Qui la selva è più folta ed ombrosa.

DONIZETTI'S LA FIGLIA.

25. What pleasure, what gladness 2d.
Cantiamo, cantiamo.
 26. Hark, how the drums are rolling 1d.
Sprona il tamburo e incora.
 27. Rataplan, Rataplan 1d.
Rataplan, rataplan.

DONIZETTI'S LUCIA.

28. Let us roam through these ruins deserted 1d.
Percorriamo le spiagge vicine.
 29. Hail, to the happy bridal day 1d.
Per te d'immenso giubilo.
 30. What from vengeance yet restrains me 2d.
Chi raffrena il mio furore.
 31. With warlike minstrelsy 1d.
D'immenso giubilo.

DONIZETTI'S LUCREZIA BORGIA.

32. Not a word. 2d.
Non far motto.
 33. From his window 1d.
Rischiata è la finestra.
 34. Would you know how to while away sorrow 1d.
Il segreto per esser felice.

MOZART'S DON GIOVANNI.

35. Let's enjoy while the season invites us 1d.
Giovinette, che fate all' amore.

MOZART'S LE NOZZE DI FIGARO.

36. Come deck with flowers 1d.
Giovani liete.
 37. Noble Lady, fairest roses 1d.
Ricevete, o padroncina.
 38. Each voice now rejoices 1d.
Amanti, costanti.

ROSSINI'S IL BARBIERE.

39. Sir, we humbly thank your honour 2d.
Mille grazie, mio signore.

VERDI'S IL TROVATORE.

40. See how the darkness of night dissolves. (Gipsy chorus) 1d.
Vedi! le fosche notturne.
 41. Now the dice invite our leisure! 1d.
Or co' dadi ma fra poco.
 42. Miserere Scene 2d.

VERDI'S RIGOLETTO.

43. Hush, in silence fulfil we our errand 2d.
Zitti, zitti, moviamo a vendetta
 44. Unto a lonely abode directed. 1d.
Scorrendo uniti remota via

WAGNER'S LOHENGRIN.

45. The call hath summoned us betimes 2d.
In Früh'n versammelt uns der Ruf
 46. We follow where he leads! 1d.
Zum Streite säumet nicht!
 47. May every joy attend thee 1d.
Gesegnet soll sie schreiten
 48. Faithful and true we lead ye forth 1d.
Treulich geführt ziehet dahin

WAGNER'S TANNHÄUSER.

49. Hail, bright abode (the March). 4d.
Freudig begrüßen
 50. Once more with joy. (Pilgrim's Chorus)
Beglückt darf nun dich

WEBER'S OBERON.

51. Light as fairy foot can fall 2d.
Lieve il piè colà volgiam
 52. Honour and joy 2d.
Gloria! omaggio
 53. Glory to the Caliph 2d.
Gloria al giasio
 54. Who would stay in her coral cave 4d.
Chi potria fra l'onde restar
 55. For thee hath beauty (Women's voices) 3d.
Per te pomposa
 56. Do. (Mixed voices) 2d.

WEBER'S DER FREYSCHUETZ

57. Victoria, victoria 1d.
Victoria, Victoria
 58. The Bridal wreath for thee we bind 1d.
Wir winden dir den Jungfernkranz
 59. The joy of the Hunter. (Huntsman's chorus)
Was gleicht wohl auf Erden

ROSSINI'S GUILLAUME TELL.

61. Brightly the rosy morn 1d.
Quel jour serein
 62. Come, with flowers crown the bowers 2d.
Hyménée, ta journée
 63. Hark, how the horns gaily sounding 2d.
Quelle sauvage harmonie
 64. Hail to the mighty ruler 2d.
Gloire au pouvoir suprême
 65. Swift as the bird in summer sky (Tyrolean)
Toi que l'oiseau ne suivrait pas

(To be continued.)

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK

(SECOND SERIES.)

A COLLECTION OF FOUR-PART SONGS AND MADRIGALS, BY MODERN COMPOSERS.

PUBLISHED IN VOLUMES, OCTAVO SIZE, ELEGANTLY BOUND IN CLOTH, GILT EDGES, PRICE 5s. EACH; OR IN SEPARATE NUMBERS, AS FOLLOWS:—

VOLUME I. CONTAINS—

Book I.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY
SIR J. BENEDICT.

- 37 Old May Day, in A (S.A.T.B.) ... 3d.
38 Invocation to Sleep (S.A.T.B.) ... 3d.
39 A Night Song (S.A.T.B.) ... 3d.
40 Dirge for the faithful Lover (S.A.T.B.) 1½d.
41 A Drinking Song (T.T.B.B.) ... 3d.
42 Sylvan Pleasures (S.A.T.B.) ... 4d.

Book II.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY SMART.

- 43 Consolation ... (S.A.T.B.) 1½d.
44 Good Night, thou glorious Sun ... 3d.
45 Hunting Song ... 3d.
46 Lady, rise, sweet Morn's awaking ... 3d.
47 Summer Morning ... 3d.
48 The Sea King ... 3d.

Book III.—Is. 4d.

SEVEN SHAKSPEARE SONGS BY
G. A. MACFARREN.

- 49 Orpheus with his lute (S.A.T.B.) ... 3d.
50 When Icicles hang (S.A.T.B.) ... 1½d.
51 Come away, Death (S.A.T.B.) ... 3d.
52 When Daisies pied ... (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
53 Who is Sylvia ... 1½d.
54 Fear no more the heat o' the Sun, ... 3d.
55 Blow, blow, thou Winter Wind, ... 3d.

Book IV.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY J. L. HATTON.

- 56 The Belfry Tower ... (S.A.T.B.) 4d.
57 England ... 3d.
58 Come, celebrate the May ... 1½d.
59 Song to Pan ... 3d.
60 The Indian Maid ... 3d.
61 The Pearl Divers ... 4d.

VOLUME II. CONTAINS—

Book V.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

- 62 Robin Goodfellow ... (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
63 Break, break on thy cold grey stones 3d.
64 Echoes (The Splendour Falls) (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
65 Song of the Railroads ... 1½d.
66 Christmas ... 3d.
67 Adieu, Love, Adieu ... 3d.

Book VI.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY C. A. MACIRONE.

- 68 Sir Knight, Sir Knight (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
69 The Wounded Cupid ... 1½d.
70 Woman's Smile ... 3d.
71 Antolycus' Song ... 3d.
72 Footsteps of Angels ... 3d.
73 The Sun shines fair on Carlisle Wall 3d.

Book VII.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY LESLIE.

- 74 The Pilgrims ... (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
75 My soul to God, my heart to thee, ... 3d.
76 Awake, awake, the Flow'rs unfold, ... 1½d.
77 How sweet the moonlight sleeps, ... 3d.
78 Land, Ho! ... 3d.
79 Up, up, ye Dames ... 3d.

Book VIII.—Is. 4d.

SIX MADRIGALS BY VARIOUS COMPOSERS.

- Including the Bristol Prize Madrigals.*
80 Thine eyes so bright (S.S.A.T.B.B.) }
Henry Leslie. } 4d.
81 All is not gold (S.A.T.T.B.) ... }
W. J. Westbrook. } 3d.
82 Hark how the birds (S.S.A.T.T.B.) }
Henry Lahee. } 3d.
83 All ye woods (S.S.A.T.B.) Do. 1½d.
84 My love is fair (S.A.T.B.B.) }
Henry Leslie. } 3d.
85 Charm me asleep (S.S.A.T.B.B.) Do. 3d.

VOLUME III. CONTAINS—

Book IX.—Is.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY HILES.

- 86 When twilight dews ... (S.A.T.B.) 1½d.
87 A Finland Love Song ... 1½d.
88 Evening ... 1½d.
89 To the Morning Wind ... 3d.
90 To Daffodils ... 3d.
91 Summer Longings ... 3d.

Book X.—Is.

SIX SONGS BY
FRANCESCO BERGER.

- 92 Night, lovely Night ... (S.A.T.B.) 1½d.
93 Essay, my Heart ... 3d.
94 Childhood's Melody ... 1½d.
95 Now ... 3d.
96 Sunset ... 1½d.
97 Arise, the Sunbeams hail ... 3d.

Book XI.—Is.

SIX SONGS BY
J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.

- 98 Night winds that so gently flow }
(S.A.T.B.) } 1½d.
99 Breathe soft ye Winds ... 1½d.
100 My lady is so wondrous fair ... 1½d.
101 Chivalry of Labour (S.A.T.B.) ... 4d.
102 Come, fill, my boys (A.T.T.B.) ... 3d.
103 Echoes (S.A.T.B.) ... 1½d.

Book XII.—Is. 4d.

EIGHT SONGS BY J. BARNBY.

- 104 Phœbus ... (S.A.T.B.) 1½d.
105 Luna ... 1½d.
106 A Wife's Song ... 1½d.
107 Home they brought ... 1½d.
108 Annie Lee ... 1½d.
109 Starry Crowns of Heaven ... 1½d.
110 The Wind ... 3d.
111 The Skylark ... 3d.

Book XIII.—Is.

SIX SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

- The Words by the Rev. Charles Kingsley.*
112 The Sands of Dee ... (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
113 Alton Locke's Song ... 1½d.
114 The Starlings ... 1½d.
115 The Three Fishers ... 3d.
116 The World's Age ... 1½d.
117 Sing, heigh ho! ... 3d.

VOLUME IV. CONTAINS—

Book XIV.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY A. ZIMMERMANN.

- 118 Fairy Song ... (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
119 Good night ... 1½d.
120 Gone for ever ... 3d.
121 Flowers ... 3d.
122 To Daffodils ... 1½d.
123 Good Morrow ... 3d.

Book XV.—Is. 4d.

EIGHT SHAKSPEARE SONGS BY
G. A. MACFARREN.

- 124 Sigh no more, ladies (S.A.T.B.) ... 3d.
125 You spotted snakes (S.S.A.A.) ... 3d.
126 Take, oh take those lips away
(S.A.T.B.) 1½d.
127 It was a lover and his lass ... 1½d.
128 O mistress mine ... 1½d.
129 Under the greenwood tree ... 1½d.
130 Hark, the lark ... 4d.
131 Tell me where is fancy bred ... 1½d.

Book XVI.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY LESLIE.

- 132 The Violet ... (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
133 One morning sweet in May ... 3d.
134 Daylight is fading ... 1½d.
135 Down in a pretty valley ... 3d.
136 The Primrose ... 1½d.
137 Arise, sweet love ... 3d.

Book XVII.—Is.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY SMART.

- 138 'Tis break of day ... (S.A.T.B.) 2d.
139 My true love hath my heart ... 2d.
140 Doth not my lady come ... 2d.
141 Spring Song ... 2d.
142 The Curfew ... 2d.
143 Hear, sweet spirit ... 2d.

Book XVIII.—Is. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY SAMUEL REAY.

- 144 Spring Voices ... (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
145 Waken, lords and ladies gay ... 3d.
146 As it fell upon a day ... 3d.
147 Huntsman, rest ... 3d.
148 'Tis May upon the mountain ... 3d.
149 Take, oh take those lips away ... 1½d.

VOLUME V. CONTAINS—

Book XIX.—Is.

SIX SONGS BY A. S. SULLIVAN.

- 150 The Rainy Day ... (S.A.T.B.) 1½d.
151 Oh, hush thee, my babe ... 3d.
152 Evening ... 1½d.
153 Joy to the Victors ... 3d.
154 Parting Gleams ... 1½d.
155 Echoes ... 3d.

Book XX.—Is.

SIX SONGS BY W. MACFARREN.

- 156 Spring ... (S.A.T.B.) 3d.
157 Summer ... 1½d.
158 Autumn ... 3d.
159 Winter ... 3d.
160 You stole my love ... 1½d.
161 Dainty love ... 1½d.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK—(Continued).

Book XXI.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY J. LEMMENS.

162 Drops of Rain ...	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
163 The Fairy Ring ...	"	3d.
164 The Light of Life ...	"	3d.
165 Oh, welcome him ...	"	3d.
166 Sunshine through the clouds ..	"	3d.
167 The Corn Field ...	"	3d.

Book XXII.—1s.

SIX SONGS BY HENRY SMART.

168 Wake! to the hunting	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
169 Dost thou idly ask ...	"	3d.
170 A Psalm of Life ...	"	14d.
171 Only Thou ...	"	14d.
172 I prithee send me back my heart,,	"	14d.
173 The Moon ...	"	3d.

Book XXIII.—1s. 4d.

SIX SONGS BY CIRO PINSUTI.

174 A Spring Song ...	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
175 An Autumn Song ...	"	3d.
176 The Two Spirits ...	"	3d.
177 The Crusaders ...	"	3d.
178 The Caravan ...	"	3d.
179 Stradella ...	"	3d.

VOLUME VI. CONTAINS—

THIRTY-FIVE SONGS BY

J. L. HATTON.

*180 When evening's twilight	(S.A.T.B.)	2d.
*181 Absence ...	"	2d.
*182 April showers ...	"	3d.
*183 The red, red rose ...	"	3d.
*184 Beware, beware ...	"	3d.
*185 The Sailor's Song ...	"	3d.
*186 Good Night ...	"	2d.
*187 Blythe is the bird ...	"	2d.
*188 Stars of the summer night ...	"	3d.
*189 The hemlock tree ...	"	4d.
*190 Jack Frost ...	"	3d.
*191 I loved her ...	"	3d.
*192 The Village Blacksmith ...	"	3d.
*193 The Bait (come live with me) ..	"	3d.
*194 Softly fall the shades of evening,,	"	2d.
*195 Auburn (Sweet village) ...	"	3d.
*196 Bird of the wilderness ...	"	3d.
*197 The Summer gale ...	"	2d.
*198 I met her in the quiet lane ...	"	2d.
*199 If thou art sleeping ...	"	3d.
*200 Spring song ...	"	3d.
*201 Good wishes ...	"	3d.
*202 Parting and Meeting ...	"	2d.
*203 Whether kiss'd by sunbeams ...	"	3d.
*204 The roses are blushing ...	"	3d.
*205 The Rivals ...	"	3d.
*206 The village dance ...	"	3d.
*207 Song of the Gipsy maidens ...	"	3d.
*208 The Waterfall ...	"	3d.
*209 Over hill, over dale ...	"	3d.
*210 Love me little, love me long ...	"	3d.
*211 Going a-maying ...	"	3d.
*212 See, the rooks are homeward flying,,	"	3d.
*213 Sweet Lady moon ...	"	3d.
*214 Hark, the Convent bells are ringing,,	"	3d.

* Arranged by the Composer for mixed voices.

VOLUME VII. CONTAINS—
TWENTY-FOUR SONGS BY
J. L. HATTON.

FOR MEN'S VOICES.

215 When evening's twilight ...	2d.
216 Warrior's Song ...	3d.
217 Absence ...	2d.
218 April showers ...	3d.
219 The red, red rose ...	3d.
220 Beware, beware ...	3d.
221 The happiest land ...	3d.
222 The Sailor's Song ...	3d.
223 Busy, curious, thirsty fly ...	2d.
224 Good night, beloved ...	2d.
225 Bacchanalian Song ...	3d.
226 Stars of the Summer night... ..	3d.
227 King Witlaf's drinking horn ...	3d.
228 Tars' song ...	4d.
229 The hemlock tree ...	4d.
230 Jack Frost ...	3d.
231 The Lye ...	3d.
232 I loved her ...	3d.
233 The Village Blacksmith ...	3d.
234 The Letter ...	3d.
235 Shall I wasting in despair ...	3d.
236 The way to build a boat, or Jack's opinion ...	4d.
237 I lov'd a lass, a fair one ...	4d.
238 The Lifeboat ...	3d.

VOLUME VIII. CONTAINS—
TWENTY-ONE SONGS BY
HENRY SMART.

239 The Shepherd's farewell	(S.A.T.B.)	2d.
240 The wave's reproof ...	"	3d.
241 Ave Maria ...	"	2d.
242 Spring ...	"	2d.
243 Morning ...	"	3d.
244 Hymn to Cynthia ...	"	3d.
245 Cradle Song ...	"	3d.
246 The joys of Spring ...	"	3d.
247 Dream, baby, dream ...	"	2d.
248 A Song for the Seasons ...	"	3d.
249 O say not that my heart is cold,,	"	2d.
250 Love and mirth ...	"	3d.
251 Sweet vesper hymn ...	"	3d.
252 Crocuses and Snowdrops ...	"	3d.
253 Stars of the summer night ...	"	3d.
254 Wind thy horn ...	"	3d.
255 The land of wonders ...	"	3d.
256 Ye little birds that sit and sing,,	"	2d.
257 How soft the shades of evening creep,,	"	2d.
258 How sweet is summer morning,,	"	2d.
259 Now May is here ...	"	3d.

VOLUME IX. CONTAINS—
TWENTY-FOUR SONGS BY
WALTER MACFARREN.

260 Hunting Song ...	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
261 Summer Song... ..	"	3d.
262 The Curfew bell ...	"	3d.
263 The Warrior ...	"	3d.
264 Love's heigh-ho! ...	"	3d.
265 Good night, good rest ...	"	3d.
266 The Fairies ...	"	3d.
267 Cradle Song ...	"	3d.
268 Morning Song ...	"	3d.
269 Ye pretty birds ...	"	3d.
270 More life ...	"	3d.
271 Sweet content... ..	"	3d.
272 Sea Song ...	(T.T.B.B.)	3d.
273 The stars are with the voyager,,	"	3d.
274 Autumn ...	"	3d.
275 Highland War Song... ..	"	3d.
276 Shortest and longest... ..	"	3d.
277 Windlass Song ...	"	3d.
278 O Lady, leave thy silken thread }	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
279 Lover's Parting ...	"	3d.
280 Shepherds all and maidens fair,,	"	3d.
281 Night, sable goddess ...	"	3d.
282 Hence, all you vain delights ...	"	3d.
283 Swallow, swallow hither wing,,	"	3d.

VOLUME X. CONTAINS—
SONGS AND MADRIGALS BY
R. L. DE PEARSALL.

284 The Hardy Norseman	(S.A.T.B.)	4d.
284* do. do. ...	(A.T.T.B.)	4d.
285 Nymphs are sporting	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
286 O who will o'er the downs ...	"	3d.
286* do. do. ...	(A.T.T.B.)	4d.
287 Who shall win my lady fair	(S.A.T.B.)	4d.
288 Why with toil ...	"	3d.
289 When Allen-a-Dale went a-hunting.	"	4d.
Glee. ...	"	4d.
290 I saw lovely Phillis. Madrigal ...	"	4d.
291 The River Spirit's song	(A.T.T.B.)	3d.
292 It was upon a Spring-tide day. Madrigal ...	(S.A.T.T.B.)	4d.
293 Take heed, ye shepherd swains. Madrigal ...	(S.S.A.T.T.B.)	4d.
294 Spring returns. Madrigal (S.S.A.T.B.)	"	2d.
295 Great God of love. 8 voices. Madrigal ...	"	3d.
296 In dulci jubilo. Christmas Carol ...	"	3d.
297 The song of the Frank companies	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
298 How bright in the May-time ...	"	3d.
299 The Winter song ...	"	2d.
300 The Bishop of Mentz ...	"	3d.
301 When last I strayed ...	"	2d.
302 See how smoothly ...	"	2d.
303 Let us all go Maying ...	"	2d.
304 List! Lady, be not coy. Madrigal	(S.S.A.T.T.B.)	3d.
305 O ye roses. Madrigal ...	"	3d.
306 Sing we and chaunt it. Madrigal for Double Choir ...	"	2d.
307 Sing we and chaunt it. Madrigal for 4 voices ...	"	2d.
308 The Red Wine flows (T.T.B.B.) ...	"	2d.
309 Shoot, false love, I care not. Ballet Madrigal ...	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.

VOLUME XI. CONTAINS—
SONGS AND MADRIGALS BY
R. L. DE PEARSALL.

310 Laugh not, Youth, at Age. Madrigal	(S.A.T.B.)	4d.
311 Down in my garden fair, Madrigal, ...	"	3d.
312 Adieu! my native shore ...	"	2d.
313 Purple glow the forest mountains ...	"	2d.
314 Caput apri deferro ...	"	3d.
315 A Chieftain to the Highlands ...	"	3d.
316 A King there was in Thule ...	"	2d.
317 Come, let us be merry. Twelfth Night Song ...	"	2d.
318 Mihi est propositum (A.T.T.B.) ...	"	2d.
319 Light of my soul, Madrigal (S.S.A.T.B.B.)	"	3d.
320 Lay a garland. Madrigal for 8 voices	"	3d.
321 Summer is y' coming in. Madrigal	(S.S.A.T.T.B.)	2d.
322 Why should the Cuckoo's tuneful note. Madrigal. (S.S.A.T.B.)	"	3d.
323 Why weep, alas! my lady love. Do. ...	"	3d.
324 There is a paradise on earth (A.T.T.B.B.)	"	3d.
325 O! all ye ladies fair and true ...	"	2d.
326 War Song of the Norman Baron Taillefer (S.A.T.B.) ...	"	2d.
327 Why do the roses. Mad. for 4 voices	"	2d.
328 Sweet as a flower in May. Do. ...	"	2d.
329 The praise of good wine. (T.T.B.B.)	"	2d.
330 { The Watchman's Song (T.T.B.B.) } Ditto. (S.A.T.B.) }	"	2d.
331 The Waters of Elle (S.S.A.T.B.) ...	"	2d.
332 No! no! Nigella. For Double Choir	"	2d.
333 Sir Patrick Spens. In 10 parts ...	"	4d.

SONGS BY A. S. SULLIVAN,
HENRY SMART, &c.

The long day closes (T.T.B.B.)	{	3d.
The Beleaguered (T.T.B.B.)	A. S. Sullivan	3d.
The Homeward Watch	Henry Smart	14d.
Sleep, my sweet. (A.T.T.B.)	J. L. Hatton	3d.
The Wrecked Hope (S.A.T.B.)	J. L. Hatton	3d.
Going away (A.T.T.B.)	J. L. Hatton	3d.

(To be continued.)

Nearly all the above-named Four-Part Songs are published in score, folio size; also in separate vocal parts, either octavo or folio.

THE HYMNARY:

CONTAINING

646 HYMNS WITH TUNES.

SMALL POST OCTAVO, TO BIND WITH THE PEARL OCTAVO PRAYER BOOK:—

Cloth, boards - - - - - 2s. 6d.

Cloth, bevelled boards, red edges - - - 3s. od.

THE TREBLE PART WILL BE READY IN A FEW DAYS.

LONDON:

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS STREET, W., AND 35, POULTRY, E.C.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES.

WITH AN APPENDIX FOR FESTAL USE,

SET TO MUSIC BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 1s. 6d.; or in Numbers at 2d. each.

- | | |
|--|---|
| No. 1. Let your light so shine.
 2. Lay not up for yourselves.
 3. { Whatsoever ye would that men.
 4. { Not every one that saith unto me.
 5. { Zacchæus stood forth.
 6. { Who goeth a warfare.
 7. { If we have sown.
 8. { Do ye not know.
 9. He that soweth little.
 10. Let him that is taught in the word.
 11. { While we have time.
 12. { Godliness is great riches. | 13. Charge them' who are rich.
 14. God is not unrighteous.
 15. { To do good.
 16. { Whoso hath this world's goods.
 17. { Give alms of thy goods.
 18. { Be merciful after thy power.
 19. He that hath pity upon the poor.
 20. Blessed be the man.
 21. Let your light so shine. Festal Setting. |
|--|---|

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

COMPOSITIONS BY

SIR JOHN GOSS.

THANKSGIVING TE DEUM. Composed on the occasion of Her Majesty's Thanksgiving at St. Paul's Cathedral, for the restoration to health of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, and dedicated by gracious permission to Her Majesty the Queen. Vocal score, folio, 4s., octavo, 9d., vocal parts, 6d. each BENEDICTUS IN D. To follow the above Te Deum, octavo, 6d. TE DEUM, IN F. Folio, 1s. 6d., octavo, 4d.

CHANT TE DEUM AND BENEDICTUS, IN C. For four voices, octavo, 4d.

CANTATE DOMINO AND DEUS MISEREATUR IN C, For voices in unison, octavo, 6d.

THE GLORY OF THE LORD. Full Anthem for four voices, vocal score, 2s. 6d., ditto octavo, 6d., vocal parts 1s.

O SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD. Full Anthem for four voices, vocal score, 1s., ditto octavo, 3d., vocal parts, 8d.

O PRAISE THE LORD OF HEAVEN. Full Anthem for four voices, vocal score, 2s. ditto octavo, 6d. Festival size for voices only, 4d., vocal parts, 1s. (suitable for St. Michael and All Angels, New Year and Septuagesima).

THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH. Thanksgiving Anthem for the recovery of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, vocal score 3s., ditto octavo, 6d., vocal parts, 1s. 4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MOZART'S FIRST MASS in C, arranged for Piano Solo, by VINCENT NOVELLO. Folio size, price 2s. 6d.
 London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MOZART'S SECOND MASS in C, arranged for Piano Solo, by VINCENT NOVELLO. Folio size, price 3s.
 London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MOZART'S SEVENTH MASS in B flat, arranged for Piano Solo, by VINCENT NOVELLO. Folio size, Price 3s.
 London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS in G, arranged for Piano Solo, by VINCENT NOVELLO. Folio size, price 3s.
 London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MOZART'S REQUIEM MASS, arranged for Piano Solo, by J. PITTMAN. Folio size, price 4s.
 London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

HANDEL'S ORATORIO THE MESSIAH, arranged for Piano Solo, by BERTHOLD TOURS. Price 5s.
 London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MENDELSSOHN'S THREE PRELUDES and FUGUES for the ORGAN. New Edition. Edited by W. T. BEST. Price 5s.; or singly, 2s. 6d. each.
 London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MENDELSSOHN'S SIX GRAND SONATAS for the Organ. New Edition. Edited by W. T. BEST. Bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.; or singly, 2s. 6d. each.
 London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped; those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c. can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 368.—Vol. 16.
Registered for transmission abroad.

OCTOBER 1, 1873.

Price 2d.; Post-free, 2½d.
Annual Subscription, Postage free, 25. 6d.

BRISTOL MUSICAL FESTIVAL, COLSTON HALL,

OCTOBER 21, 22, 23, AND 24, 1873.

MADAME LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON

MADAME OTTO-ALVSLEBEN - MISS JULIA WIGAN

MADAME PATEY - MISS ENRIQUEZ

MR. SIMS REEVES - MR. VERNON RIGBY

MR. EDWARD LLOYD - MR. LEWIS THOMAS

MR. SANTLEY.

ORGANIST - MR. GEORGE RISELEY.

BAND AND CHORUS OF UPWARDS OF 400 PERFORMERS.

CHORUS MASTER - MR. A. STONE.

CONDUCTOR - MR. CHARLES HALLÉ.

TUESDAY MORNING, Oct. 21st, at One o'clock, Haydn's "CREATION."

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Oct. 22nd, at One o'clock, Mendelssohn's "ELIJAH."

THURSDAY MORNING, Oct. 23rd, at One o'clock, Macfarren's "ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST" (first time of performance), and Mendelssohn's "HYMN OF PRAISE."

FRIDAY MORNING, Oct. 24th, at One o'clock, Handel's "MESSIAH."

On TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY EVENINGS, at Eight o'clock, a Miscellaneous Selection.

On THURSDAY EVENING, at Eight o'clock, a Miscellaneous Selection, and Rossini's "STABAT MATER."

The Selections include—Overtures to Weber's "Der Freyschütz" and "Euryanthe," Wagner's "Tannhäuser," Rossini's "Guillaume Tell," Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Meeresstille," and Beethoven's "Leonora;" Mozart's Symphony in E flat, and Beethoven's Symphony in C minor.

THE WHOLE PERFORMED BY MR. CHARLES HALLÉ'S COMPLETE ORCHESTRA.

PRICES.					Secured Seats.	Unsecured.
Morning Performances	£1 1 0	£0 7 0
Four Tickets for any one Concert, except Messiah , if purchased before October 14th	3 3 0	1 1 0
Evening Performances	0 15 0	0 7 0
Four Tickets for any one Concert, if purchased before October 14th	2 2 0	1 1 0
Secured Seat for all Seven Performances, £4 14s. 6d.

Applications for Tickets (which should in all cases be accompanied by a remittance) may be made to Mr. CHARLES PRICE, Hon. Sec., Colston Hall, Bristol.

Cheques and Post Office Orders to be made payable to the Treasurer, Mr. G. W. EDWARDS.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS GRACE ARMYTAGE (Primo Soprano),
2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS CLELLAND (Soprano).
For Terms and Critiques, address 51, Elizabeth-street, Cheetham-hill-road, Manchester.

MISS CHAPLIN (Soprano).
Address City of London College, 52, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

MISS DUMVILLE (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address 51, Cheetham-street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MISS JOSEPHINE PULHAM (Soprano)
Is open to accept Engagements for Concerts, &c. 12, Park-street, Greenwich.

MRS. WARREN (Soprano),
Of Mr. C. Hallé's Concerts. For Oratorio or other Concerts, address 150, Radnor-street, Hulme, Manchester.
Lessons in Singing. References—Charles Hallé, Esq., and Edward Hecht, Esq.

MADAME HELENA WALKER
Begs to announce that all communications respecting Engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., must be addressed to her residence, 6, West Bank-road, Edge-lane, Liverpool.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),
50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MISS H. EUGENIE CROGER (Pianiste)
Is open to Engagements for Concerts, &c. Address 140, Mile End-rd.

MR. J. H. PEARSON (Alto Vocalist).
For Concerts, &c., address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
Address 14, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 7, Alma Square, St. John's Wood.

MR. M. KENNEDY (Tenor),
Carlisle Cathedral. Address 10, Fisher-street, Carlisle.

MR. ALBERT JAMES (Tenor)
Begs to announce his Removal to 30, Thornhill-crescent, Barnsbury, N., where all Engagements for Concerts, &c., should be addressed.

MR. N. DUMVILLE (Principal Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. HENRY TAYLOR (Tenor),
107, Hampden-street, Bolton, Lancashire.

MR. W. B. LING (Tenor),
Principal Tenor, Trinity College, Cambridge. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.

WILLIAM DUMVILLE (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, &c., address 5, Elvington-street, Hulme, or the Cathedral, Manchester.

W. M. DYSON (Tenor).
For Oratorios or Concerts, address Cathedral Choir, Worcester.

THOMAS ALLEN (Principal Tenor),
Church of the Holy Name, Oxford-street, Manchester. For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, &c., address Messrs. Turner and Sons, Musicsellers, 38, Deansgate, Manchester.

WILFRED SHARPE (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, or Lecture Entertainments, address 7, Brighton-terrace, Victoria-park.
Opinions of the Press forwarded on application.

HENRY C. SANDERS (Baritone),
(Of S. Andrew's, Wells-st.) 2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MR. W. T. BRIGGS (Bass),
Chapel Royal, St. George's, Windsor.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),
Sunny-bank, Hazleville-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
(Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts), for Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address 2, Halfeld-place, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. HUDSON LISTER (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. W. H. PIMLOTT (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address Cathedral, Winchester.

MR. O. CHRISTIAN (Basso).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address 18, Adelaide-square, Windsor.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Basso).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; also for Oxford Glee Party.
Address Principal Bass, Ch. Ch. Cathedral, Oxford.

JOSEPH DOUCE,
Piano, Organ, and Harmonium, Royal Academy.

MR. J. TILLEARD,
Removed to Seaton-villa, Slaithwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder,
29, Minorities, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minorities, London. List for stamp.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUBLISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

LITHO. COPYING is the Cheapest way to prepare Church, Orchestral, and all Music by. Best system for Amateurs. Specimen. F. Wood, 32, Vincent-square, Westminster.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions, Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, rs., post free.
Rudiments of Singing, rs. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 7th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices at J. Moore's, Buxton-road, Huddersfield. Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

TO THE TRADE.—T. BEASANT repairs Musical Boxes, Barrel Organs, Concertinas, Harmoniums, Harps, Guitars, Violins, Flutes, &c.—72, Margaret-street, Clerkenwell, London.

CROGER'S CELEBRATED VIOLIN STRINGS, 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 5s. 6d. per Bundle. Soloists' Italian Firsts, 6s. per dozen, the finest ever imported. Croger's Warehouse, 184, Whitechapel-road. Several rare old Violins on sale. Established 30 years.

E. & W. SNELL'S IMPROVED HARMONIUMS.
For tone, touch, articulation, and general excellence are pronounced by the Profession and Public the best and cheapest extant. Price Lists, with full description of their improvements, designs, testimonials, &c., of the Manufacturers, E. and W. Snell, 37, Kelly-street, London, N.W. Manufactory, Little King-street North, Camden-town, N.W. Trade supplied.

ORGAN for SALE, New, Suitable for a Church or Chapel. Great organ, 7 stops; swell, 4 ditto, separate bourdon, pedal organ. To be seen at A. Hunter's Organ Factory, 379, Kennington-road.

ORGAN for SALE, in Fair Condition, and of Good Tone; measures 4 ft. 6 in. by 2 ft. 6 in. by 9 ft.; solid oak case; gilt pipes in front; suitable for a small Church. Contains open diapason, Tenor C to F in Alto, stop diapason, Bass CC to B, met by clarabella, Tenor C to F, principal and fifteenth throughout, German pedals, whole in a general swell. Price £30. Apply to C. Stratton Rectory, Cirencester.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
E P P S'S C O C O A.
BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.

MANUFACTURE OF COCOA.—"We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Euston-road, London."—See Article in Cassell's Household Guide.

Made simply with boiling water or milk.
Each Packet is labelled
JAMES EPPS and Co., HOMOEOPATHIC CHEMISTS,
London.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE, very Cheap, by
WHITE, finished by Hill and Son of London. Contains 6 stops in great organ, 4 in swell, pedal bourdon, and two couplers, Gothic case. Apply at Hill's Organ Works, York-road, N., near the Brecknock, where the instrument may be heard.

CC ORGAN for SALE, nearly New, containing 2 manuals, 12 stops, 2½ octaves of bourdon pedals; height 12 ft.; width 6 ft.; depth 4 ft. 3 in. Price 70 guineas; a genuine bargain. Address Dulciana, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

ORGAN for SALE, New, Suitable for Church or Chapel. One manual, 8 stops, bourdon on pedals, general swell, combination pedals, handsome case, good tone, a bargain. Letters, E. Neate, 4, Little Gower-place, Euston-square.

CC ORGAN for SALE, now in use in a Church, built by BATES, containing 5 stops, 1½ octaves of German pedals, and 2 composition pedals. Price £30.—Apply to Mr. Monk, Organ Builder, Angler's-lane, Kentish-town, or at St. James's Parsonage, Cheshunt, where it may be seen.

CC ORGAN for SALE, now being built, containing 17 stops, 2 rows of keys and pedals, &c. For particulars and price apply to E. Maley, Organ Builder, 5A, Werrington-street, Oakley-square, N.W., where it can be seen.

HARMONIUM for SALE, in Hungarian Ash case, ebonyed. 15 stops, 4½ rows of reeds, quite new. Lowest price, £28. Address B., Mr. Bran's, 315, Kentish-town-road.

HARMONIUMS with the Broad Reed, which produces a soft mellow tone. Can be obtained from R. F. Stevens, Harmonium Manufactory, 18, Windmill-street, Tottenham-court-road, London. Price List and Designs free. Trade supplied.

DR. LLOYD FOWLE, Composer, Publisher,
Pianoforte and Harmonium Dealer, 48, Hunter-street, London, W.C. Pianofortes, Organs and Harmoniums selected. Music arranged, revised, and prepared for publication. Estimates given for Printing new Compositions. All Musical and Literary Publications supplied. Lessons (at private address) on the Pianoforte and Singing. A comfortable home for an Articled Pupil. Address as above.

LESSONS on the ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HAR-
MONY, and COMPOSITION. Certificates granted when competent, Musical Compositions corrected and arranged for publication. Dr. Arthur S. Holloway, F.C.O., 73, Hemingford-road, Barnsbury, London, N.

ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, HAR-
MONY, &c., One Guinea per quarter; Lessons and Practice on fine modern instruments. Organist, 22, London-street, E.C.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, STRAND.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—HILL and SON—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

HARMONY LESSONS (by post) by a Fellow of the College of Organists. Candidates prepared for the College examinations; terms moderate. Address F. C. O., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

LESSONS in SINGING, PIANO and HAR-
MONY.—A Country Professor of high repute, having a few hours to spare in London on THURSDAYS, is desirous of forming a small connexion. High references from SIR J. GOSS and others. Address F. C. O., 18, Salisbury-square, E.C.

ORGAN MUSIC.—Catalogue (pp. 50), gratis and post free, of a valuable collection of Organ Solos—Duets—Pedal Exercises—Choruses—Voluntaries—Soft Movements—Cathedral and Church Music—Anthems—Oratorios—Services—Masses—Instruction Books, &c.—London: Sole Publishers, Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

12S. WORTH of MUSIC for One Shilling, post free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock. James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

IMPORTANT TO THE MUSIC TRADE AND PUBLIC IN GENERAL.

QUARTERLY SALE of MUSICAL PROPERTY.
MESSRS. CHARLES KELLY & Co. will SELL at their Repository, 11, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital, on Wednesday October 8th, 1873, at one o'clock precisely, about ONE HUNDRED PIANOFORTES, HARPS, and HARMONIUMS, by the following eminent London and Continental Manufacturers:—Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Allison, Cadby, Pleyel, Bord, Schiedmayer, Bachman, Alexandre, Christophe, &c. &c., comprising numerous Grands, Semi-Grands, Grand Obliques, Cottages, Semi-Cottages, Cabinets and Squares; a large quantity of Modern Sheet Music, Small Goods, and Sundries, being the unredeemed pledges from many of the principal London Pawnbrokers, and surplus Stocks of two Dealers. Catalogues free. On view the day prior and Morning of Sale.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Eighth Season).

Mr. H. ASHTON, Mr. T. PEARSON,
Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN,
Assisted by
Madame ASHTON,
(Miss F. Danielson.)

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c., address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

BRIXTON CHORAL SOCIETY,

Gresham-road, Brixton.

Conductor, Mr. WILLIAM LEMARE.

Rehearsals every Monday evening, at eight o'clock.

Sullivan's "Light of the world." Smart's "Bride of Dunkerron."
Randegger's "Fridolin." Benedict's "St. Peter."
Mendelssohn's "St. Paul."
Subscription, Half-a-Guinea.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S VOCAL

ACADEMY.—The NEXT TERM begins on Monday, Oct. 20, and Madame Sainton-Dolby will receive candidates for admission at her residence 71, Gloucester-place, Hyde Park, on Saturday, Oct. 18, from ten to one o'clock.—Prospectuses can be had on application at Messrs. Chappell's, 50, New Bond-street; and of Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street, W.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.) begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE begs to announce her RETURN to TOWN.—Letters for Concerts, &c., to be addressed 2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, W.

MISS ELLEN HORNE will SING "Tyrol-qui-ma-vu-naitre," by PANSEY, at Taunton Sept. 29th, Falmouth Oct. 1st. Truro Oct. 3rd, and Plymouth Oct. 6.

Published by Novello, Ewer and Co.

MISS CLELLAND (Soprano) will SING at the Gentlemen's Concerts, Ashton-under-Lyne, 15th Oct.; Staley-bridge, 9th Oct.; and (by special recommendation of the Composer), in Dr. Hiles' new Cantata "The Crusaders," at Warrington on the 16th December. For terms and critiques, address 51, Elizabeth-street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MRS. ELIZABETH STIRLING has a Vacancy for an Organ Pupil. Address 207, East India-road, London.

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—MR. R.
TAYLOR, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

ARTICLED PUPIL for the Musical Profession
REQUIRED by Mr. EDMUND ROGERS, Organist and Director of the Choir of St. Thomas's Church, Portman-square. For terms and particulars, address Lorne House, Lorne-villas, Hanover-gate, N.W.

MR. J. H. ROOKS, Organist of the Parish Church,
Richmond, Yorkshire, requires a Gentlemenly Youth as ARTICLED PUPIL. Superior advantages can be offered. Preference will be given to one who has a knowledge of Music.

AN EMINENT PROFESSOR of MUSIC, Associate of the R. A. M., can receive an ARTICLED PUPIL for general instruction; Piano, Harp, and Organ. Two fine Organs, and a good Choral Society. Address A. B., Musical Times Office.

A LADY of Great Experience (pupil of W. H.
HOLMES, R.A.), seeks Daily ENGAGEMENTS in Schools or Private Families for Teaching Music and Singing. High testimonials. Address Musicus, 7, Gloucester-terrace, Old Brompton, S.W.

REMOVAL.—MR. EDWIN BARNES to 107,
Belsize-road, St. John's-wood, N.W.

VICTORIA HALL, SUNDERLAND.—The largest and best Sounding Room in the North of England, holds three thousand persons, now contains a Grand C Organ, well adapted for Oratorio and Concert use.—Apply to G. H. Rennison, 12, Bridge-street, Sunderland.

FOR SALE, the COMPLETE WORKS of HANDEL, full Vocal and Orchestral Score, edited by Dr. ARNOLD, in 32 folio volumes, half morocco. Price £15. Apply to W. S. W., 49, Arthur-road, Holloway, N., where a volume may be inspected.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.—A Large Quantity of
PART-SONGS, MADRIGALS, and several ORATORIOS, &c., in very good condition, to be SOLD at half the retail price. Printed Lists will be forwarded by post upon application to J. H., Clarence Cottage, St. John's, Fulham. Please enclose directed stamped envelope.

2000 FEET of the Finest HORSEHAIR
CUSHIONS, covered with Crimson Moreen, for SALE, suitable for use in Churches, Chapels, Concert Rooms, &c. For particulars apply to X., Messrs. Novello, and Co., 1, Berners-street.

Now Ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo., price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series, bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES AND HYMNS
OF THE CHURCH,

POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS,
SINGLE AND DOUBLE;

TOGETHER WITH

Responses to the Commandments,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains a Selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry. New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 258 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in 2s. 6d.

" 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered ... 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

" 3. Limp cloth, turned in 2s. 6d.

" 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered ... 3s. 6d.

Congregations or associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and musicsellers.

NOW READY.

A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS AND ANTHEMS, arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford. Very neat and compact, 218 pp. imperial 32mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered ... 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co.

Bradford: Thomas Brar.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK and PSALMS and CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Ninth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book: also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON, and for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.; cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES and ROUNDS; or Musical Precept and Example, combined in easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J. POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

"FROM INTERVALS TO COUNTERPOINT."

SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and all Musicsellers.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,

FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS & SCHOOLMASTERS.

By RICHARD MANN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWENTY-THIRD EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL
SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Fourth edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

W. W. PEARSON'S PART-SONGS for S.A.T.B.

There's beauty in the deep 1½d.

The Anglers 2d.

The Stormy Petrel 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION.

THE GENERAL HISTORY

OF THE

SCIENCE AND PRACTICE OF MUSIC,

BY

SIR JOHN HAWKINS.

In Two Volumes, Super Royal Octavo, cloth, 35s.

Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, 16s.

Printed from the original plates.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED an ORGANIST for an East London Church. Small Stipend; Choir partly paid. Anglican music. State when disengaged. Address O. G. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

ORGANIST WANTED for Rotherham Parish Church. Salary, £50. Services, three on Sunday, and one week evening. Apply by letter, giving references, and enclosing testimonials of musical ability and moral character. Address the Vicarage, Rotherham.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED at once for the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Commercial Road-east. Address with testimonials (copies), stating salary required, to the Rev. J. M. Vaughan, St. John's Vicarage, 12, Commercial-place, E.

WANTED an ORGANIST for the Holmwood Church, Surrey. Two simple Services on Sunday; a weekly Evening Service for some parts of the year, without Chanting. The Organist would be expected to practise the Singers. Salary £30. A Lady performer would not be objected to, and if competent might find probably some daily pupils in the week. Application to be made to the Rev. E. D. Wickham, Holmwood, Surrey.

SCARBOROUGH.—WANTED immediately, an ORGANIST for the Parish Church, Scarborough. Anglican Service. Duties, to train Surpliced Choir, and to take full Sunday (not week-day) Services. Salary £100 per annum; a Graduate preferred. Address, enclosing testimonials, the Ven. Archdeacon Blunt, the Vicarage, Scarborough.

A SITUATION as PIANIST WANTED by a Lady, either to accompany or perform Solos on the Pianoforte. References given. Address A. L., Ollerton Cottage, Albany-road, Old Kent-road, S.E.

PIANIST.—A Young Lady desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Good Reader, Accompanist, and Quadrille Player. Would exchange Services for Singing Lessons.—E., 80, Carlton-street, Kentish-town.

WANTED by a First-class PIANOFORTE TUNER, a SITUATION. Address D. C., 13, High-street, Rugby.

WANTED, an ENGAGEMENT as TUNER and ACCOMPANIST to a Concert Party. Good references. R. R., Post-office, Northampton.

WANTED, PARTIAL EMPLOYMENT by an Experienced TUNER, Repairer, and Regulator. Eastern Counties preferred. Address Tuner, Post-office, Shepherd's-bush, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER of 17 years' Experience from Messrs. Collard and Collard, seeks a Permanent ENGAGEMENT; is accustomed to Country work; steady and good character. Address, stating salary, to 357 H., Novello, Ewer and Co., Berners-st.

WANTED by a TUNER of first-class abilities (from Collard and Collard) a SITUATION in or near London, as Out-door Tuner; three years in present situation.—Mr. E. Hardy, 47, Napier-street, Shield-field, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

WANTED, a Thoroughly Competent REPAIRER, REGULATOR, and TUNER of Pianofortes and Harmoniums.—Frank Attwell's, 163, Friar-street, Reading.

PIANOFORTE TUNER.—WANTED, a Steady Young Man, who is a competent Tuner, to assist generally in a Music Business. Letters, stating salary, &c., to be addressed A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

WANTED a First-Class Out-door PIANOFORTE TUNER for an old-established House in the Country. Apply H. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

TO THE MUSIC TRADE.—WANTED, a RE-ENGAGEMENT in a Pianoforte and Music Warehouse, by a Young Lady who thoroughly understands the Sheet Music Trade, and is well acquainted with the Catalogues. Good Saleswoman and Pianist; unexceptionable references. Address F. W., Mr. C. Jefferys, 67, Berners-street, Oxford-street, London, W.

WANTED immediately, a RE-ENGAGEMENT as MUSIC TEACHER in a School, by a first-class Pianist. Good references. Salary £20.—Apply Y. Z., Post-office, Matlock Bridge, Derbyshire.

A YOUNG MAN desires an ENGAGEMENT in a Pianoforte and Music Warehouse. Thoroughly understands the Catalogues, can play well, and is capable of managing a business. Pianoforte Gallery preferred. Salary moderate. Address Musicus, General Post-office, Dublin, Ireland.

WANTED, by a Young Man of good address, well up in the Sheet Music Trade, a SITUATION as an ASSISTANT. Has been well trained on Piano and Organ. Good references. Apply to J. O., 31, The Drapery, Northampton.

TEACHERS OF SINGING CLASSES would find GEORGE WELLS' "New Practical Singing-Class Hand-Book," a thoroughly useful Class book. Look at a copy. Price Sixpence. F. Pitman, Paternoster-row, London.

C. JEFFERYS, 67, BERNERS ST.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

No. 5. GLASTONBURY ABBEY. Gloria (the entire Movement) from Mozart's 1st Mass ... s. d. 3 0

6. MUCKROSS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire Movement) from Mozart's 1st Mass ... 3 0

THE LYRIC STAGE:—

No. 7. L'Ombre Flotow 4 0

8. Robert le Diable Meyerbeer 4 0

9. Il Trovatore Verdi 4 0

THE GRAND DUCHESS MARIE. A Wedding March 3 0

Illustrated with Portrait in Colours.

LOUIS DUPUIS.

CATHEDRAL GEMS:—

No. 16. LINCOLN.—On subjects from Haydn's 4th Mass 3 0

17. ELY.—On subjects from Mozart's 2nd Mass 3 0

GRAND OPERATIC DUETS.

		Arranged by
No. 1.—Lohengrin (Wagner)	...	J. Rummel	5 0
2.—Tannhäuser (do.)	...	"	5 0
3.—The Crown Diamonds (Auber)	...	"	5 0
4.—Galathée	...	"	4 0
5.—La Marquise (Boulangier)	...	"	4 0
6.—Ernani (Verdi)	...	J. Lesage	5 0
7.—Il Don Giovanni (Mozart)	...	"	5 0
8.—La Gazza Ladra (Rossini)	...	"	5 0

WILLIE PAPE.

Il Trovatore (Verdi)	4 0
Martha (Flotow)	4 0
Saladin Grand March	4 0

JOHN OWEN.

MELODIOUS MELODIES:—

Twenty Subjects selected from the Works of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Heller, &c., arranged for the Organ or Harmonium. Price 2s. 6d. nett.

Now ready.

SONGS FOR CHILDREN.

Harmonized for School purposes by MICHAEL WATSON.

Price Sixpence.

This Selection consists of popular Copyright subjects, none of which can appear in similar collections. Great care has been taken in selecting the words.

LONDON: C. JEFFERYS,
THE BERNERS PIANOFORTE GALLERY,
67, BERNERS STREET, W.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

CONDUCTOR — MR. BARNBY.

Under the immediate Patronage and Sanction of
THE COUNCIL OF THE ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

PRESIDENT.

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.
THE EARL OF FEVERSHAM.

THE LORD CLARENCE EDWARD PAGET, K.C.B.
DR. LYON PLAYFAIR, C.B., M.P.

A SERIES OF ELEVEN GRAND ORATORIO CONCERTS

WILL BE GIVEN AT THE
ROYAL ALBERT HALL,

During the ensuing Season, at which the following works will be performed:—

HANDEL'S THEODORA
BACH'S CHRISTMAS ORATORIO
BACH'S PASSION (S. Matthew)
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH
HAYDN'S CREATION
HANDEL'S MESSIAH
HANDEL'S ISRAEL IN EGYPT
ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER
MENDELSSOHN'S ST. PAUL
&c. &c.

THE CONCERTS WILL TAKE PLACE ON THE FOLLOW-ING DATES:—

1873.	1874.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30.	THURSDAY, JANUARY 8.
" " NOVEMBER 13.	" " " 22.
" " " 27.	" " FEBRUARY 5.
MONDAY, DECEMBER 15.	WEDNESDAY " 18.
WEDNESDAY, " 24.	THURSDAY, MARCH 5.
	" " " 19.

BAND AND CHORUS OF 1,200 PERFORMERS.

ORGANIST, DR. STAINER.

SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE SERIES:—

Loggia (to hold 8 persons) £21 0 0	Amphitheatre Stalls ... £3 3 0
Boxes (Grand Tier) ... 25 0 0	Arena Stalls ... 2 2 0
" (Upper Tier) ... 10 10 0	Balcony Stalls ... 1 10 0

THE FIRST SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT

WILL TAKE PLACE ON

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30,

WHEN

HANDEL'S THEODORA,

With additional Accompaniments by Dr. F. HILLER, will be performed.

Prospectuses may be had on application at NOVELLO,
EWER and Co.'s, 1, Berners-street (W.), and 35, Poultry
(E.C.), and at the Royal Albert Hall.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.
There are some VACANCIES for Members in the several Departments of this Society. Ladies and Gentlemen desirous of joining are requested to apply at once to the Secretary, Royal Albert Hall, Kensington-gore, S.W.

MR. WILLIAM CARTER'S CHOIR.—There are a few VACANCIES in this Choir. Ladies and Gentlemen willing to join are requested to attend at 23, Colville-square, Notting-hill, on Saturday or Monday evenings, before Oct. 15th. Therehearsals are held at the Hall, Store-street, on Wednesday evenings, at half-past seven.
ELIJAH will be performed at the Royal Albert Hall on Wednesday evening, Oct. 22nd.

THE COMMITTEE of the SUNDAY SCHOOL
UNION desire to obtain the Services of a Gentleman as EDITOR of their Musical Publications. His duties will be to Compose and obtain Music suitable for Sunday Schools, and to examine Music previous to publication. Apply to Secretary of Music Sub-Committee, 56, Old Bailey.

VOCALISTS REQUIRED, Ladies and Gentlemen, for the Choir at Cambridge Hall, Newman-street, for Sunday Morning and Evening Services. Salary to competent Soloists and good Practice combined. Apply to the Organist, Sunday morning, 10.30, or evening.

WANTED for the Choir of Allhallows', Lombardstreet, an ALTO, £12, or CONTRALTO, £10. Apply at the Church (entrance, Gracechurch-street), on Friday evenings, at 7.30.

ALTO SINGER WANTED for the Choir of St.
Paul's Church, Dundee. Must be a fair Reader of Music and fair Solo Singer, of good character, and a Communicant. Salary £20 per annum, and some suitable daily employment will be found him to start with. Apply to D. Bower Mitchell, Terrace House, Dundee.

BASS, Good Reader and Efficient Soloist, is open for a Church ENGAGEMENT.—Z. Y. X., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

SOUTHWELL COLLEGIATE CHURCH.—
WANTED immediately, a BASS Voice for the Choir of the above Church. Salary £60. Send testimonials to Cedric Bucknell, Esq., Organist and Rector Chori, Vicar's Court, Southwell, Notts.

A LADY, good Vocalist and Musician, having some time disengaged during the day, wishes for further ENGAGE-MENTS as Teacher of the Pianoforte and Singing either in Schools or Private Families. Address A. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO PRIVATE CHORAL SOCIETIES, &c.—A
Gentleman of some experience in forming and conducting Choral Societies and Psalmody Classes, is open to an ENGAGEMENT for the ensuing Season. Address A. Z., Messrs. Yates and Alexander, 7, Symond's-inn, Chancery-lane, W.C.

ORGANIST.—A Young Gentleman would be glad of an APPOINTMENT as above, in London or suburbs.—Mr.
E. Straker, 9, Devonshire-terrace, Kingsland-green.

ORGANIST, CATHOLIC.—A Member of the College of Organists, desires to change his present appointment.
Thoroughly experienced in training Choirs, and perfectly acquainted with Music of the Church, (Haydn, Mozart, &c.), and with Gregorian.
A. M. D. G., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

ORGANIST.—APPOINTMENT WANTED by an Assistant of a London Professor. Well accustomed to Full Choral Services. Good testimonials.—A. W., 18, Merrick-square, S.E.

AN ORGANIST Requires a RE-ENGAGEMENT.
Good references and testimonials. Address Organist, Weston, Baschurch, Shropshire.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman of many years' experience seeks a RE-ENGAGEMENT, Country preferred, High testimonials. Address E. W., Novello,
Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—WANTED,
an APPOINTMENT as above, in or near London. Good testimonials. Apply by letter to G. M., 29, Westbourne-grove, Bayswater.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman who has held an Appointment a few miles from London for the last six years, wishes for one in or near Town. Unexceptionable references. Address B. E., care of Robert Tytheridge, Esq., 1, St.
James's-square, Bayswater, W.

ORGANIST.—WANTED an Organist for the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum Chapel. Sunday Services, morning and evening, and the greater Festivals, with Wednesday evening rehearsals. Applications, enclosing testimonials, to be made to the Rev. W. G. Martin, Chaplain's residence, Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, Old Kent-road, S.E.

WANTED, One or Two Copies of Novello's largest Organ edition (Demy quarto) of MONK and OUSELEY'S PSALTER. Address, stating price and condition, to J. A., 13, Cornhill, London, E.C.

THE MUSICAL TIMES, AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

OCTOBER 1, 1873.

THE BIRMINGHAM AND HEREFORD MUSICAL FESTIVALS.

BY HENRY C. LUNN.

WE sincerely hope that the many thousand persons who attended the Birmingham Festival of 1873, and diligently studied the details of its musical proceedings in the general prospectus, found time to glance at the opening page, for there it is shown that, in addition to the many compositions produced at the festivals which have done honour to musical art, the pecuniary aid rendered by means of these meetings to the Birmingham General Hospital has been almost beyond what the most sanguine enthusiast could have anticipated. When it is stated that in 1768—the year in which the festivals were commenced—the sum realised was £299, and that in 1870 it reached the enormous amount of £6,195, some idea may be formed of the growing estimation in which these musical celebrations are held; and the gross sum of £100,000, the whole of which has been paid over to the hospital, is indeed a contribution to its funds which cannot but be regarded as a noble reward for the unwearied exertions of the many who have given their valuable time to promote the success of the undertaking.

The Festival of this year has been signalised by the performance of many new works by composers who have already earned their right to the confidence of the public; and if their success has been unequal, no fault can be found with those whose duty it was to endeavour to sustain the reputation of the meeting by taking advantage of the acknowledged talent of the day. Were it not that it is the critic's duty to look beyond the excitement of the hour, he would have little to do but record a series of triumphs; for in every modern audience there appears to be so little judgment, or so much good nature, that scarcely any difference can be perceived between the reception of a piece destined to endure for ever, and one which passes into almost instant oblivion. If, therefore, irrespective of immediate results, an opinion is fearlessly spoken, credit should at least be given to the speaker for his attempt to arrive at truth, in spite of the distracting influences which surround him.

On Tuesday the 26th August—the very day of the same month in 1846, upon which the Oratorio was produced here, under Mendelssohn's direction—the Festival opened, at the Town Hall, with one of the finest performances of "Elijah" ever heard, even in this town, where it is so fondly cherished, and where many of the choristers boast of knowing it by heart. As usual, and without regard to dramatic propriety, the solos were divided, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, and Mr. Vernon Rigby singing in the first part, and Madlle. Titiens, Madame Patey, and Mr. Sims Reeves in the second, the music of the Prophet, however,—thanks to custom, which we trust has now become too sacred to be set at defiance—being assigned throughout to Mr. Santley. With the exception of the trio "Lift thine eyes" (sung by Madlle. Titiens, Mesdames Trebelli-Bettini and Patey), in which the voices flattened so perceptibly that the chord of D major, with which the orchestra announces the following chorus, somewhat disturbed the serenity of the audience—the whole of the solo and concerted music with the principals was absolute perfection; and the choruses, especially "Thanks be to God," "Be not afraid," and "Behold! God the Lord passed by," were the most marvellous examples of decision, power, and command of tone we ever listened to. We must not omit to mention that the services of Mrs. Sutton, Messrs. J. A. Smith, W. T. Briggs, and Smythson were most valuable in many of the concerted pieces, although we have certainly heard the double quartett, "For He shall give His angels," go better. The Oratorio (which was preceded by the National Anthem) was directed by Sir Michael Costa, who, as for many years past, conducted the whole of the music at the Festival, except when the composers of new works presided. The Oratorio was listened to with the utmost attention throughout; and his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, who was with the party of the President, the Earl of Shrewsbury, set a noble example to the audience by remaining in his seat until the conclusion of the work.

The first novelty of the Festival, Signor Schira's Pastoral Cantata, "The Lord of Burleigh," was produced at the concert on Tuesday evening, before a large audience, the Duke of Edinburgh again being present. The story of Tennyson's poem on the subject is perhaps scarcely well adapted for musical treatment, as two characters only are the actors in it; but Mr. Desmond L. Ryan, the author of the libretto, has remedied this difficulty by adding two more, Constance and Trueman, the former, we presume, a friend of the heroine, and the latter steward to the disguised painter, Cecil. In the setting of this Cantata, Signor Schira has shown but little appreciation of the character of the story, but simply using his experience of orchestral and choral resources, to the best advantage, and throwing in a few highly melodious vocal solos, which belong rather to an Italian Opera than an English Pastoral, has succeeded in producing a composition which, regarded only as abstract music, has many points worthy of commendation, but tested by that higher artistic standard by which the work of so mature a composer must inevitably be judged, can scarcely take that high rank which the indiscriminate applause bestowed upon it would seem to warrant. The instrumentation throughout is so crushing to the voices as to render obscure many parts which might with more judicious treatment have been highly effective, for there is much good vocal writing in the concerted portions of the work, as samples of which may be cited, the Villagers' Chorus, at the commencement of the Cantata, and the opening of the Chorus of Priests: if it were necessary to show that our impression of the excessive weight of the orchestration was shared by the general audience, we might allude to the fact that the only two pieces encored—the Trio "O'er seas of life," and the Quartett and Chorus, "How changed her state"—were unaccompanied. Besides those choral numbers already mentioned, there is much knowledge of dramatic effect in the Chorus of Villagers, "Haste to the Church," the welcome of the bride and bridegroom to the mansion, commencing "Hail to thee," and the Angels' Chorus, with harp accompaniment. The best song in the Cantata is one in 9-8 rhythm, "The grey dawn steals," which has a charming subject, and was given by Mr. Vernon Rigby in his best style. There is also merit in the soprano solo, "A simple village maid," which was done amply justice to by Madlle. Titiens. Madame Trebelli-Bettini and Mr. Santley threw their best energies into the music allotted to them; but their solos, although warmly received, created no special demonstration of enthusiasm. The Overture and Pastoral Processional March are favourable examples of the composer's orchestral writing, and both were much and deservedly applauded. At the conclusion of the work, Signor Schira, who conducted, received a perfect ovation, being recalled for renewed congratulations after he had left the orchestra. The only new composition in the miscellaneous part which followed was Rossini's Chorus, "The Song of the Titans" (one of the four posthumous works of this composer announced at the Festival), written for basses alone, and containing some fine choral and instrumental effects. Had we not positive knowledge, however, that it is signed by so great a name, we should never have imagined its origin; for, although boldly written and brilliantly scored, it can scarcely be deemed worthy of the reputation of its author. Madlle. Albani, who made her first appearance before a Birmingham audience, created a perfect furore by her singing of an air by Donizetti, and of course received a decisive encore for her expressive rendering of "The last Rose of Summer," which, to judge by the heads around us nodding sympathetically to the tune, must have been placed in the programme "by desire." The other vocalists were Madame Sherrington, Madame Patey, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Cummings and Signor Foli; and in justice to the fine orchestra, we must mention that the selection included Beethoven's Overture to "Leonora," and Cherubini's to "Anacreon," both of which, as might be imagined, were given to perfection.

On Wednesday morning Mr. Sullivan's Oratorio, "The Light of the World," written expressly for the Festival, was produced. From the antecedents of its composer we need scarcely say that much was anticipated from this work, for although it is undoubtedly true that so important a composition tests the highest qualifications of its author, it should also be remembered that no person who feels the responsibility which he thus takes upon himself should accept it without a firm confidence in his powers. That Mr. Sullivan has fully realised public expectation is more perhaps than can be truly said; but that he has written a work which must sustain his reputation as a thoughtful and earnest musician there cannot be a doubt. To speak first of the libretto, we may unhesitatingly record our conviction that however well an author may handle such a subject, the result can hardly be satisfactory. True it is that in order to steer clear of the many settings of the spiritual life of our Saviour, it becomes positively necessary to adhere closely to the incidents of His career upon the earth—or as the librettist says, the "Human aspect of His life"—but the opening scene of the Oratorio, in which "The Shepherds watch their flocks by night, when an angel appears to them and brings 'good tidings' of the birth of the promised Saviour," is a proof that the temptation to trespass upon the ground already occupied by Handel is too great to be resisted. The same amount of talent exercised upon any portion of the Scriptures hitherto untouched by those who have deepened the sacred character of the words by their undying music would, we are certain, have been not only more acceptable to an audience, but would have lightened the task to a composer upon whose first great essay in sacred writing so much of his future depended. Speaking generally of Mr. Sullivan's music we may at once say that although its want of contrast is inseparable from the nature of the subject, the effect must inevitably be to induce a sense of weariness in the listeners, which cannot fail to detract from the due appreciation of many portions unquestionably masterly, both in conception and treatment. Of pure melody, especially in the solos, we have but little—although much of the baritone music is deeply sympathetic with the feeling of the words—but for conscientious treatment of the text we may instance the devotional air for the soprano, "My soul doth magnify the Lord," the tenor solo, "Refrain thy voice from weeping" (the charm of which is greatly enhanced by the delicacy of the accompaniment), and the contralto air, leading to a chorus, "Weep ye not for the dead," a pathetic strain most appropriately harmonised. The real strength of the work is undoubtedly in the choruses, many of which are of so high a character that we regret being compelled to dismiss them with such brief lines of commendation. Passing over the chorus, "Glory to God" (for female voices only), two choruses of Shepherds, "Let us now go," and "The whole earth is at rest,"—the former accompanied with the usual angelic harps, and the latter chiefly remarkable for the conventional pastoral characteristic, a pedal bass—a chorus occurs, commencing "I will pour my spirit" upon which it is evident that the composer has concentrated the whole of his powers. Commencing forte in full harmony, we have on the words "He shall stand and feed," some exceedingly clever points of imitation, led by the tenors, and answered by altos, sopranos, and basses, the instrumentation sustaining, without overpowering, the voice parts throughout. The coda of this chorus is extremely fine, and its success was of so decisive a character that an encore was demanded by the usual signal from the President. There is true dramatic feeling in several of the choruses in the Synagogue, particularly in the restless movement, "Why hear ye Him?" the answers of the voices on the words "Away with Him," however, somewhat recalling "Stone him to death," in "St. Paul." The final chorus in this scene, "He maketh the sun to rise," may also be mentioned as a good example of powerful writing, the harmonies of the concluding phrases, especially, being exceedingly appropriate and effective. Another chorus, "The grave cannot praise Thee," is remarkable for scholarly treatment; but the three-part chorus of children (for female voices), "Hosanna to the Son of David," was the greatest success of the morning, and is indeed fully deserving of all the commendation that can be bestowed upon it. Opening in unison for the voices, unaccompanied, the marked subject, led by the contralto, follows with fine effect; and the addition of the harps to the orchestral accompaniment, on the words, "Peace in Heaven," contrasts so exquisitely with the stately ecclesiastical theme assigned to the voices that the listeners could scarcely refrain from giving audible expression to their admiration, and a sign for the repetition of the movement gave general satisfaction. The second part of the Oratorio affords but little scope for the exercise of the composer's powers; but we may say that Mr. Sullivan has made fair use of his materials, and that the want of interest, therefore, is chiefly due to the librettist. The long descriptive solo for the baritone contains much clever writing, and delivered as it was by Mr. Santley, the whole of it was listened to with reverential attention; but we much question whether an inferior vocalist would be enabled to produce the same result. The chorus, "Men and Brethren," contains some bold and effective modulations, and is written throughout with an artistic appreciation of the text, the phrase, "They have taken and by wicked hands have crucified and slain," being an especially noticeable point. An unaccompanied six-part chorus, "The Lord is risen," has some fine harmonies, but produced little effect; and the final chorus, although evidencing much experience in the severest style of choral writing, betrays signs of haste excusable perhaps at the conclusion of a task for the accomplishment of which only a limited time could be allowed. We have only mentioned some of the most striking choruses, but there are many other pieces which must not be passed over, the first, a soprano solo, with chorus, "In Rama was there a voice heard"—in which the choral parts are most effectively combined with the solo voice, although the harmonies strike us as being somewhat too chromatic—and a very beautiful unaccompanied Quartett, "Yea, though I walk," which although not remarkably well sung, was encored. Of the two purely instrumental movements, the Pastoral Introduction and the Overture to the second Part, we prefer the first, a charmingly instrumented, simple and melodious piece, which accomplishes all it aspires to, and prepares the audience for the character of the work. The Overture strikes us as fragmentary, although, as in all Mr. Sullivan's orchestral music, we have the evidence of matured skill in the management of the instruments. No praise can be too great for the manner in which the principal soprano, tenor and bass solos were sung by Madlle. Titiens, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Cummings and Mr. Santley; and although we should have infinitely preferred Madame Patey in the contralto part, Madame Trebelli had evidently well studied the music, and rendered it throughout with an earnest desire to do justice to the composer. In the secondary parts Mr. Briggs rendered valuable aid; and band and chorus were alike faultless, notwithstanding the few rehearsals which could have been given to the work. The rule at these Festivals that the power of demanding an encore shall rest solely with the President possibly limited the repetitions of pieces during the morning—no doubt to the advantage of the general effect of the work—but that the Earl of Shrewsbury should think it necessary at the end of the first part to apologise to Mr. Sullivan for not having multiplied the encores struck every one as so utterly absurd that we much doubt whether on a future occasion the general body of listeners will rest satisfied with the exercise of a privilege which virtually takes away from them the right of expressing the slightest opinion upon a work submitted for their judgment. The Duke of Edinburgh sat with the President's party, and joined with the entire audience in the overwhelming applause with which Mr. Sullivan, who conducted his Oratorio, was greeted at the conclusion of the performance. Congratulations upon the success of the work were loud and frequent amongst those in authority at the Festival; and if the composer—in imitation of his great predecessor Mendelssohn, who left the hall after the production of "Elijah" twenty-seven years ago, with the same sound ringing in his ears—can re-consider and calmly analyse the merits and demerits of his Oratorio, when removed from the flattery of his friends, he is truly in the right road to attain that eminence which he covets, and which, with his exceptional talents, he has a right to aspire to.

A fine performance of Beethoven's Symphony in C minor commenced the miscellaneous concert on Wednesday evening; and Mr. G. A. Macfarren's Overture to "St. John the Baptist," and that of Rossini to the "Siege of Corinth" were also included in the selection of orchestral pieces. The only novelty was the posthumous "Hymn of Peace," by Rossini, which was finely given by Mr. Santley and the choir. The bold and tuneful character of the subjects, the brilliancy of the orchestration, and the effective manner in which the solo voice is interwoven with the chorus, ensured for this piece an enthusiastic reception; but again we confess to a feeling of disappointment when we recall the many encomiums we have heard passed upon these posthumous compositions. The programme also contained a popular selection of vocal music, which was rendered with much success by Mesdles. Titiens and Albani, Mesdames Sherrington, Trebelli, and Patey, Messrs. Sims Reeves, Vernon Rigby, Cummings and Santley, and Signor Foli.

The "Messiah," on Thursday morning, attracted, as usual, an audience filling every part of the Town Hall, an additional excitement being produced by the presence of the Duke of Edinburgh, who had unexpectedly returned to Birmingham in order to attend both the morning and evening performances. No especial comment upon the rendering of this Oratorio is called for, save that, in spite of Mr. Sims Reeves's public protest against the pitch of the organ (which certainly seemed somewhat high), he sang as finely as ever. The rest of the solos were entrusted to Madlle. Titiens, Madame Sherrington, Mesdames Trebelli and Patey, Messrs. Vernon Rigby and Santley. It is worthy of remark that Sir Michael Costa adheres to his system of having the opening of the chorus "For unto us" sung in a whisper; but as no conductor has, as yet, followed this reading, we may reasonably hope that it will not be perpetuated.

Signor Randegger's Cantata, "Fridolin," the third work written for the Festival, occupied the first part of the miscellaneous concert on Thursday evening. Schiller's poem, "Der Gang Nach dem Eisenhammer," has already formed a subject for musical setting by more than one of our native composers, but never has it been so thoroughly well adapted for the purpose as by Madame Rudersdorff on this occasion, and never has the theme been so faithfully and sympathetically treated as by Signor Randegger. For creative power, dramatic feeling, and masterly command of the legitimate effects of the orchestra, this work will unquestionably be known and appreciated long after the occasion which called it into being has been forgotten: and we sincerely congratulate its composer upon a success so decisive and so deservedly earned. To those who do not know the story of the "Message to the Forge," it may be briefly stated that Hubert, who is in the service of the Count of Saverne, having aspired to win the affections of the Countess, conceives a hatred to his fellow-servant Fridolin, whom he fancies an obstacle in his path, and, by exciting his jealousy, prevails upon the Count to write to some mechanic serfs ordering that whoever comes with a certain message to the forge shall be thrown into the furnace. Fridolin is entrusted with this message, but, by desire of the Countess, he enters a chapel on his road to offer up a prayer for her, and thus saves his life. Hubert, meanwhile, goes to the forge, and himself asking the fatal question, "Is obeyed your lord's command?" is thrown into the furnace. The Count, Countess, and Fridolin afterwards arrive on the spot, and mutual explanations conclude the work. In giving a musical colouring to this highly dramatic story, the composer has fully realised the fact that, although called a Cantata, it is in truth an Opera, and has therefore not only given us descriptions of the scenes as they occur, but has actually introduced all the necessary stage directions. The brief instrumental opening to the "Prologue" is chiefly remarkable for the introduction of the notes to which the "message" is set in the Cantata; and the actual commencement of the work is a recitative and song for Fridolin, the principal theme of which is charmingly in sympathy with the words. Hubert's scena, which follows, is one of the most thoroughly dramatic numbers in the Cantata; the contrasts of feeling being depicted with such true artistic power as to leave no room for doubt that its composer would achieve the highest success in Opera. Apart from its vocal merits, this piece shows a true command over the resources of the orchestra, and its fine delivery by Mr. Santley produced a profound impression upon the listeners. After the passionate close, in G minor, the effect of the clear-ringing notes of the horns, on the chord of D major, is exceedingly good; and the hunting chorus which follows, full of real life and positive tune, elicited an encore as spontaneous as it was well-merited. The duet between the Count and Hubert is not only good as a musical composition, but is excellently placed for the purpose of dramatic contrast. Amongst the several noticeable points in this piece may be mentioned the clever manner in which the interest is sustained by the introduction of a melodious theme in the orchestra whilst Hubert endeavours to arouse the Count's jealousy in notes which, with a less skilful treatment, might have become wearisome; and praise must also be given for the very ingenious figure in the accompaniment to the "message," dictated by the Count in monotone phrases. The bright and tuneful Chorus of Hand-maidens, "Calmly flow the equal hours," is no doubt destined to achieve a lasting popularity. As the singers are presumed to be sitting "around the loom," the composer may be pardoned for some slight reminiscences of previous "spinning choruses;" but the music is graceful, characteristic, and so delicately and fancifully coloured with the orchestral accompaniment that the encore with which it was greeted fully represented the wish of the entire audience. Passing over a song for the Countess (which scarcely pleases us as much as most of the solos), a duet for the Countess and Fridolin (containing an exceedingly clever canon on the octave, which we almost wonder was not encoored), and a well-written quartett, we come to a characteristic chorus of villagers, in C major, which is suddenly interrupted by a holding E flat for the horn, succeeded by a deeply religious phrase in 3-2 rhythm. Fridolin's solo, "Oh holy sounds," and the choral, "Sancta Maria," which succeeds it, conclude one of the most dramatic and effective scenes in the work. A word of praise must suffice for the Count's ballad, "O woman with the pure and guileless face," and a well-wrought duet for the Count and Countess which follows. The "Forge Scene" opens with a powerfully descriptive instrumental prelude, in D minor, leading to a vigorous Chorus of Smiths, in the treatment of which the composer has employed with most legitimate effect the resources both of voices and orchestra. The impetuous character of this piece was so admirably sustained by choralists and instrumentalists, and produced such a sensation with the audience that it narrowly escaped an encore. From the entrance of Hubert, who is seized and thrown into the furnace, the dramatic action is finely continued, the choral phrase "Quaff the goblet's madd'ning tide," the andante movement, "Dread Lord," and the religious chorus, "Let your voices anthems raise," accompanied by the organ, being equally deserving of the warmest praise. The "Epilogue," a thanksgiving, in which the principal characters are combined with the full chorus, forms a fitting termination to a Cantata which, as we have already said, cannot fail to attain a lasting popularity, and the reception of which must have been highly gratifying to the composer and to those authorities of the Festival who had reposed such thorough confidence in his powers. The execution of the work was everything that could be wished, the principal vocalists—Madame Sherrington, Messrs. Cummings and Santley, and Signor Foli—exerting themselves to the utmost to give the best effect to the music assigned to them, and the choir singing throughout with a precision and energy which cannot be overpraised. Signor Randegger, who conducted his Cantata, was greeted with the warmest applause at the conclusion of the performance, the Duke of Edinburgh being amongst the foremost to express his approbation of the work. The second part of the concert included the Overtures to "William Tell" (Rossini) and "Ruy Blas" (Mendelssohn), the former of which was encoored and repeated from the March. Madlle. Titiens, Madlle. Albani (whose final bravura from "La Sonnambula" was re-demanded), Madame Trebelli, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Signor Foli contributed the vocal pieces, Mr. Sims Reeves (who was announced), from some unexplained cause, not appearing. The only novelties in this selection were a song by Professor Oakeley, to Tennyson's words, "Tears, idle tears," and a trio, by Mr. Anderton, to the same poet's verses, "Break on thy cold grey stones, O sea." The first of these was finely sung by Madlle. Titiens, and deservedly applauded. Mr. Anderton, being a local celebrity, had a local welcome; and, having the satisfaction of conducting his own composition,—a handsome piece of smooth harmony,—and hearing it rendered by such artists as Madlle. Titiens, Madame Trebelli, and Mr. Vernon Rigby, must, we think, have been thoroughly well gratified.

On Friday morning, the last day of the Festival, the performance commenced with Spohr's Cantata, "God, Thou art great," the many beauties of which were fully revealed, both by the choir—to which music of all styles seems equally welcome—and the principal singers, Madlle. Titiens, Madame Trebelli, Mr. Vernon Rigby and Signor Foli. The duet for contralto and tenor, "Children, pray this love to cherish," was especially effective, and the fugue in the last chorus was finely given. It may certainly be urged against this work that it is scarcely sufficiently sacred in character; but the beauty of its melody, the charming manner in which the voices are treated throughout, and the delicacy of its instrumentation, will always ensure its favourable acceptance. Rossini's "Ave Maria," which followed Spohr's Hymn, is undoubtedly the best of the four posthumous compositions of this writer selected for the Festival. It is, as might be expected, a purely Italian melody, harmonised in four parts; but the effect is striking when sung as well as it was on this occasion, and the instrumentation (written as we understand by Sir Michael Costa) is most appropriate. Charming as Madlle. Albani vocalised Handel's "Angels ever bright and fair," we confess not to care about her in sacred works. Singers who nightly revel almost exclusively in the florid and ultra-dramatic music of Verdi, Bellini and Donizetti, cannot walk from the stage into the concert-room and interpret Handel; and whenever such operatic "stars," therefore, are engaged at these Festivals, we should recommend that they shall be heard only in the "bravura" portion of the miscellaneous concert. By a signal from the President, the air was encoored; but Madlle. Albani, who had left the orchestra, could not see it, and Sir Michael Costa did not see it; consequently it was not repeated. Haydn's "Imperial Mass"—the principal parts by Mesdames Sherrington and Patey, Mr. Cummings and Signor Foli—was a real treat to all who love the genial and melodious style of this master. The "Kyrie," "Et Incarnatus,"

"Et Resurrexit" and "Benedictus," although perhaps somewhat too secular in character for the subjects, are so charmingly written, both for voices and orchestra, as to render them, at least as abstract compositions, ever welcome to an audience. If at these Festivals a Mass is to be treated as a religious service, we wish it could be decided in what portions of it the audience may remain seated, for certainly to see persons bobbing up and down throughout the "Credo" and "Benedictus"—as was the case on this occasion—is scarcely in consonance with the sacred character of the words, and becomes even more glaringly absurd considering that the principal vocalists never moved from their seats except to sing a solo. All that can be said of Rossini's double Chorus, "Cantemus" (which was given for the first time), is that its author has succeeded in producing a tolerably successful imitation of a style which is completely foreign to his own—the severe school of the early Italian sacred writers—and although interesting on this account, it can scarcely take its place, we think, amongst the accepted religious music—or at least music to religious words—which thoroughly represents the individuality of the composer. The selections from "Israel in Egypt," which concluded the morning's performance, tested the full power of the choir to the utmost advantage, the whole of the double choruses in the first part being given with a decision and effect which produced a profound impression upon the audience. Mr. Sims Reeves's fine rendering of "The enemy said," elicited a sign from the President that he would like it repeated; but neither this official command nor the applause which, contrary to rule, resounded through the Hall, could induce the singer to comply with the request. The other vocalists were Madame Patey, Mr. Santley and Signor Foli, the two last-named artists giving the florid duet, "The Lord is a man of war," with wonderful precision and energy.

The concluding evening concert was devoted to the performance of Handel's Oratorio, "Judas Macabæus," the principal vocalists being Madlle. Titens, Madame Sherrington, Madame Patey, Messrs. Sims Reeves, Cummings and Santley. The choruses throughout this work were magnificently rendered, and Mr. Sims Reeves created much effect by his singing of "Sound an alarm," although the pitch of the orchestra seemed in this, more than in any other of his solos, to distress him. After the National Anthem had been sung, Sir Michael Costa received that ovation which his untiring zeal and energy so thoroughly entitled him to, the vast audience reluctantly quitted the Hall, and one of the finest bodies of choral and instrumental artists ever assembled together gradually dispersed—not again to be united for three years.

A recognition of the services of those engaged in the musical portion of the Festival would not be complete were we to omit to record the names of Mr. W. C. Stockley, Chorus Master to the General Festival Choir, Mr. A. J. Sutton, Conductor of the Birmingham Amateur Harmonic Association, and Mr. Stimpson, the organist, all of whom have laboured most heartily to ensure the success of the meeting. The courtesy of the Stewards, too, must not be forgotten, for to their excellent management we can individually testify. It gives us, also, much pleasure to conclude our notice of this Festival by announcing that its pecuniary results are in the highest degree satisfactory, the total receipts being £15,660 9s. 7d., showing an increase of £1,529 10s. 4d. over the amount realised in 1870.

The 150th Meeting of the three Choirs of Hereford, Gloucester and Worcester commenced at Hereford on the 9th ult. The special sermon, preached by the Chancellor of the Cathedral, the Rev. Archer Clive, was listened to with profound interest by a large congregation, and the music selected for the occasion, Goss's Service in D, and Wesley's Anthem, "The Wilderness," was excellently given. The Service was intoned by the Rev. Sir Frederick Gore Ouseley; and Dr. Wesley, who presided at the organ, in addition to the efficient discharge of his ordinary duties, gave an extempore performance which rivetted the attention of all musical listeners. At 1 o'clock Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was given in the Cathedral, the principal singers in the first part being Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Enriquez and Mr. Montem Smith, and in the second part Madlle. Titens, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, and Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, as usual, sustaining the whole of the music of the Prophet. The Oratorio commencing at so late an hour, five minutes only was allowed between the parts, so that both the scramble for lunch which generally accompanies the concluding portion of the chorus "Thanks be to God," and the scramble back again which usually mars the whole of the solo "Hear ye, Israel," were in this instance avoided. The choral music went with much decision and effect throughout, the Baal choruses especially being remarkable for vigour and precision of attack. Little need be said of those solo singers whose names are a guarantee of excellence; but we may mention that Miss Enriquez made a decidedly favourable impression, her phrasing, especially in the eloquent recitatives, showing much musical feeling. A good word must also be given to Miss Crichton, Miss L. Broad, the Revs. A. Robinson and W. D. V. Duncombe, and Mr. J. H. Lambert, who always sang carefully and well in tune wherever their services were required in the somewhat trying concerted music. The few persons who assembled at the evening concert in the Shire Hall were roused to enthusiasm by the exquisite singing of Madlle. Titens and Madame Trebelli in a selection from "Semiramide," which occupied the first part: indeed we scarcely remember ever to have heard Madlle. Titens in finer voice, and her perfect rendering of the two duets "Serbami ognor" and "Ebben a te ferisci" (with Madame Trebelli) was an event not likely to be forgotten, especially by that portion of the audience not in the habit of attending the London Italian Opera houses. The singing of Signor Agnesi in the music of Assur must also be praised in the highest terms, his fine voice being displayed with much effect in the Scena "Ah! la sorte." The second part, opening with the Overture to "Der Freischütz," contained a number of vocal pieces contributed by Miss Edith Wynne, Madlle. Bartkowska, Miss Enriquez Messrs. Cummings, Lloyd, Montem Smith and Santley. No comment on the exertions of the tried artists in this list is at all called for; but we can scarcely see why Madlle. Bartkowska should be put down for such an air as "In questo semplice," even supposing that it were considered advisable to place her in such company at all. She has a good voice, and has obtained some freedom in execution; but nervousness and a want of feeling for time prevented her doing herself the slightest justice; and certainly the concert-room at the Hereford Festival is hardly the place for a débutante to gain confidence before the public. A great success was created by the fine singing of the Bradford Choral Society in Pinsuti's Part-song, "The Sea hath its pearls," the piece, notwithstanding the late hour at which it was sung, being re-demanded; and we must also mention the artistic performance of M. Sainton, in a violin Fantasia on Scotch airs, which so delighted the audience that he was compelled to repeat it.

There was a somewhat violent contrast in the style between the two works chosen for the morning performance on Wednesday—Handel's "Jephtha," and Rossini's "Stabat Mater"—but the selection was interesting, for both are thoroughly representative compositions of two great writers. The beauties of "Jephtha," since the performances of the Oratorio in London, under Mr. Barnby's direction, are becoming widely known and appreciated, and the thanks of all Handel lovers are due to Mr. Townshend Smith for affording them the opportunity of hearing this music in a building the surroundings of which so materially enhance its effect. But whilst admitting the necessity of excisions in the performance of this work, we must regret that the privilege of making them was so mercilessly exercised. To say nothing of other "cuts," we cannot forgive the omission of the whole of the important music lying between the Recitative "Deeper and deeper still," and the Air "Waft her, angels;" for not only is the Chorus "How dark, O Lord, are Thy decrees"—with its fine Larghetto movement, including the thrilling phrases "Whatever is, is right"—one of the finest choral pieces in the Oratorio, but it is absolutely essential for the continuity of the dramatic interest. Respecting the execution of the choruses in this work we must speak in the highest terms of praise. "No more to Ammon's God," "When His loud voice," and "Cherub and Seraphim," more especially, were rendered with an accuracy alike creditable to the conductor and the choir, and their effect upon the listeners was distinctly perceptible, although the fact could not be audibly demonstrated. Miss Edith Wynne was thoroughly successful in the music of Iphis, particularly distinguishing herself in the airs, "The smiling dawn," and "Farewell, ye limpid springs; but Miss Enriquez, although careful and conscientious, was deficient in that depth of feeling so essential in the rendering of the solos allotted to Storge. Mr. Cummings had an arduous task, but acquitted himself to the satisfaction of all hearers, and Mr. Santley gave much effect to the small portion of music entrusted to him. The excellent additional accompaniments of Mr. Arthur Sullivan were used on the occasion, and appeared to be so integral a portion of the Oratorio that we doubt whether in future performances they will ever be dispensed with. When we say that the principal vocalists in Rossini's "Stabat Mater" were Madlle. Titiens, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Mr. E. Lloyd and Signor Agnesi, we need scarcely add that Rossini's florid and melodious music was finely given—indeed we may say without hesitation that it was the most superb performance of the work that we have ever listened to; and, excited by the secular character of the composition, it was with extreme difficulty that the listeners could refrain from expressing their delight by repeated rounds of applause.

The performance of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" at the Cathedral in the evening was a repetition of the innovation upon established custom commenced at the last Festival here, when Mr. Barnby's "Rebekah" was given. The fact of every available place in the building being occupied, may, we trust, be accepted as a sign that the experiment has proved thoroughly successful; and there is every hope therefore that from this time the evening Oratorio may be one of the recognised attractions of the Festival. The solo vocalists were Madlle. Titiens, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Montem Smith and Signor Agnesi. The soprano music was of course, very finely sung, but we scarcely think that it was wise to assign the contralto part to Miss Enriquez whilst the services of Madame Trebelli were available. Signor Agnesi is rapidly raising himself to the foremost rank as an Oratorio singer; his rendering of the whole of the music of the Apostle was impressive in the highest degree; and Mr. Montem Smith left nothing to be desired in the tenor solos, his singing of "Be thou faithful" (with Mr. Pettit's charming violoncello obbligato) being an unqualified success. The choir showed occasional signs of fatigue in some of the choruses, but many of them went excellently, especially "Stone him to death," "Happy and blest are they," and "The nations are now the Lord's." The Rev. W. D. V. Duncombe and Mr. J. H. Lambert lent efficient aid in the subordinate parts, and Dr. Wesley presided with his usual skill and judgment at the organ.

On Thursday "Hagar," a new Oratorio, composed by the Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, M.A., Mus. Doc., Professor of Music at the University of Oxford, commenced the morning performance at the Cathedral. The libretto of this work, supplied by the Rev. J. R. Gleig Taylor, M.A., has been compiled chiefly from the Holy Scriptures; and, considering the nature of the subject, is perhaps as good as might be anticipated. But why such a history as that of Hagar should be made painfully prominent by being set to music, so that those words which we should prefer to be passed over lightly, become declaimed with that reiteration demanded by fugue, canon, and other artistic forms of composition, surpasses our comprehension. True it is that the story has interest; but the aim of a composer in selecting a portion of the Bible for musical illustration should be to glorify an event which has already a firm hold upon human sympathy; and, by the use of his art, to deepen that sacred feeling induced by the reading of the words alone. Considered in this light, Oratorio is a contribution by a musical priest to the service of the Church, and must fail therefore in its object either when a noble theme is feebly treated, or an episode which excites not to holy thought is chosen for the subject. The story of Hagar is too well known to need repetition here; but as a proof that the librettist has felt the difficulty of forming an Oratorio from such unpromising materials, we may mention that the vocal portion of the work begins with the hymn "Jerusalem on high," that various other words which have been repeatedly set to music are constantly introduced which have no real connection with the narrative, and that the tenor part, not being one of the characters in the story, is merely brought in as a sort of "Chorus" to comment upon the incidents as they occur. In the composition of "Hagar," we may at once say that the scholarly treatment of the words entrusted to him unmistakably proves that Sir Frederick Ouseley brings no ordinary mind to the task he has undertaken. As might be expected from one who has so ably laid down rules for the guidance of students, he writes with the hand of a master throughout; and if in parts we feel the predominance of mere abstract science, it must at least be conceded that he seeks not for popular approbation at the expense of his art. Fugues of course are plentiful, for it is in these compositions that the writer is strongest; but a "Trio a Canone" (with an effective harp accompaniment) must especially be mentioned, not only for the excellent manner in which the voice parts are written, but for the extreme melodiousness of the subject: indeed there can be no question that, but for the words, this little gem would speedily find its way to popularity. The solid ecclesiastical style of much of the choral music is also deserving of warm commendation; but detached pieces of this class will not make an Oratorio: Choruses, to be worthy of the name, must be neither Hymn-tunes nor Anthems; and solos must be so stamped with the individuality of the characters that the dramatic interest of the work is never allowed for an instant to flag. We doubt not Sir Frederick Ouseley's power to fulfil these conditions were he so inclined; but it may be possible that "Hagar" is an embodiment of the composer's conviction as to what an Oratorio should really be; and, if so, although we differ from him in opinion, we can only say that from his point of view he has written a work thoroughly worthy of his high position. The Oratorio, commencing with a marked subject in E minor, passes to an Allegro in the same key, and closes in the tonic major. In this Prelude, which is brightly instrumented, we have phrases introduced in various parts of the work, the most important of which is the tenor solo, "Walk before me." The Overture is followed by the Choral, "Jerusalem on high," the clever instrumentation of which adds much to its effect. After a short tenor solo, the chorus "His seed shall endure for ever" occurs, in which a well-developed fugue is started by the tenors, on the words "It shall be established." An air for contralto (Sarah), in A minor, has but little interest; and the following chorus, "Trust in the Lord," is based upon a theme scarcely in sympathy with the words. Really good writing, however, occurs in the bass solo, "I will lift up mine eyes," the melody, harmony and accompaniment of which present many points for commendation. But little more arrests our attention until we come to the chorus, "The Angel of the Lord," the fugue in which, for five voices, is unquestionably one of the best in the Oratorio, although we cannot say that we think the "più mosso" movement, which concludes it, by any means in character with the dignity of the preceding portion of the piece. This chorus closes the first part, the second opening with an instrumental prelude which, although melodious and pleasing, seems somewhat out of place. Passing over the tenor solo, "Walk before me," and an unimportant choral piece, we come to a vigorous chorus, "Praise the Lord, O my soul," which contains a well-wrought fugue, commencing with a bold subject given out by the basses. A good point is gained by the introduction of a short quartett for solo voices, which temporarily interrupts the fugue and makes the choral climax additionally effective. A bass air, "O that Ishmael," must be commended for its truth of expression; but the canon, for three tenor voices, already mentioned, made the most decisive impression upon the audience. An air for the contralto, in D minor, "Cast out this bondwoman," is a highly characteristic setting of the words; and there is also some clever and effective writing in the chorus, "They went astray;" but the best solo in the work is without doubt the soprano air, "O God, Thou art my God," a charming melody, accompanied in so masterly a manner throughout as to enlist the sympathy of all hearers and to excite a desire for its repetition which could scarcely be controlled. The fugal chorus, "He turneth the wilderness," is the next important piece; but we certainly care not for the showy air, "The Lord hath not cast out my prayer," which even the exquisite vocalisation of Madlle. Titiens could scarcely make effective. From this point to the conclusion of the work we have few pieces of much strength, the final chorus, "O sing praises unto the Lord," although evidencing much contrapuntal power in the composer, being hardly sufficiently developed to form a fitting climax to an Oratorio of such pretension. Miss Edith Wynne (to whom all the best soprano music was assigned), Madlle. Titiens, Madame Trebelli, Messrs. Cummings, Lloyd, Montem Smith and Santley gave the solo parts with excellent effect, and the choruses were sung with as much confidence and decision as if the work had been familiar, instead of comparatively new to the choir, a result in a great measure attributable to the earnest attention of Mr. Townshend Smith, whose baton has been steadier at this Festival than at any one within our recollection. The orchestra was thoroughly efficient, and praise must be given to Miss Trust for the artistic manner in which she played the harp obbligato to the "Trio a Canone."

The Oratorio was followed by the fourth and fifth movements of Spohr's Symphony, "The Consecration of Sound," which were excellently played, but scarcely perhaps seemed to tone with the character which should distinguish the Cathedral performances at a Festival. The same composer's Cantata, "The Christian's Prayer," afforded a real pleasure to the lovers of Spohr's music. Written for four solo voices, chorus and full orchestra, it has infinite variety for so small a work; and sung as it was on this occasion by a thoroughly trained choir and such principal vocalists as Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Montem Smith and Signor Agnesi, the luscious stream of melody which runs throughout the solos, and the delicacy of the choral effects delighted every listener, and made us once more wonder how it can be that such an exquisite creation as this should be so rarely heard. Presuming that we are mainly indebted to Mr. Townshend Smith (whose love of Spohr's compositions is well known) for this treat, whilst acknowledging our obligations to him, let us return thanks also for a hearing of the work which concluded the morning's performance—Handel's Sixth "Chandos Anthem"—the opening chorus of which at least should preserve it from the neglect with which it has been so long treated. The solos, too, are full of true religious feeling; and the chorus, "Ye boundless realms of joy," is a thoroughly representative composition. The additional accompaniments by Mr. E. Silas, which were used on this occasion, gave much richness to the orchestral effects, and materially enhanced the enjoyment of the music. The Anthem was finely sung—Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Enriquez, Mr. E. Lloyd and Signor Agnesi being principal vocalists—and produced a marked effect upon the listeners, most of whom—to their credit be it said—remained to the end.

At the evening concert Beethoven's Symphony in C minor was excellently given, and received with an enthusiasm which shows that there is more danger of the authorities of the Three Choir Festivals under-rating than over-rating the musical capacity of their audiences. Mendelssohn's Overture to the "Midsummer Night's Dream" was also included in the programme; and a popular selection of vocal pieces was contributed by Madlle. Titiens (who volunteered to sing Professor Oakeley's song, "Tears, idle tears," which was not set down for her), Madlle. Bartkowska, Miss Edith Wynne, Madame Trebelli, Miss Enriquez, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mr. Montem Smith and Signor Agnesi. During the evening Lord Bateman, President of the Festival (who had previously announced Madlle. Titiens's offer to sing Professor Oakeley's song), appeared upon the platform and said that he had been deputed by the choir and members of the orchestra, as well as by several other persons, to express their high appreciation of the merit of Sir Frederick Ouseley's Oratorio "Hagar," which had been performed for the first time that morning. Of course, as it was understood that Lord Bateman shared in the general enthusiasm, the compliment brought forward the composer, who, after bowing his acknowledgments, said that if he lived to write another work, he hoped that it might be more worthy of acceptance. Remembering the Earl of Shrewsbury's address to Mr. Sullivan between the parts of his Oratorio, "The Light of the World," at Birmingham, we begin to fear that this speech-making by persons in authority upon the merits of new works may become chronic at the Festivals; and, if so, a protest should be at once made against such a custom. Much as we respect the services rendered to these meetings by the Presidents, we do not admit that either Lord Shrewsbury or Lord Bateman are entitled to announce their opinions upon compositions in public; and we are certain that, if such a practice is persevered in, the effect of this aristocratic patronage, thus oracularly given forth, will be to materially deteriorate the artistic character which has hitherto distinguished these gatherings, and which it should be the earnest desire of all interested in their continuance to foster.

Friday morning, the last day of the Festival, was devoted to the performance of the "Messiah," the Cathedral, as usual on this occasion, being filled in every part. The principal vocalists were Madlle. Titiens, Miss Edith Wynne, Madame Trebelli, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Cummings, Mr. E. Lloyd, Signor Agnesi and Mr. Santley, who according to custom, divided the solos. The choruses were sung with much vigour and precision; and the audience being of one mind as to the proper places for standing during the performance, there was nothing to distract the attention from a really fine rendering of the work, which we may say was given without the usual omissions.

In the evening an excellent Chamber Concert took place in the Jury Room at the Shire Hall, and the proceedings closed with a Ball, which was so thinly attended as to afford a significant proof of the incongruity of such a climax to an important Musical Festival in a Cathedral town.

We have only incidentally mentioned that Dr. Wesley presided at the organ during the performance of "St. Paul," but must add that his services were equally valuable in accompanying several vocal pieces on the pianoforte at the evening concerts. A recognition of the efficient manner in which the organ parts were played at the morning selections in the Cathedral is also due to Mr. Done, of Worcester.

Before taking leave of this Festival, we cannot refrain from again expressing our gratification at the change which has been effected by the substitution of an evening performance in the Cathedral for a miscellaneous concert in the Shire Hall. A programme composed of scraps from Operas and "Royalty" songs has no interest for a cultivated audience, and is unfitted for a great musical meeting like this. If secular pieces must be given therefore, we sincerely hope that the character of the selections may be raised, so as to place these concerts on an artistic level with the sacred performances in the morning. There can be no more reason why the singers should be allowed to rule at the Shire Hall than at the Cathedral; and if the well-known sympathy of the conductor towards classical music were allowed to be freely exercised, we feel that a reform would be instituted which could not fail to lead to the highest results. Mr. Townshend Smith—whose talent is only equalled by his courtesy to all with whom he is brought into contact—may be safely entrusted with any amount of power; and judging from what he has already effected by his own individual exertions, there is every reason to believe that he might still further elevate the tone of these triennial gatherings over which he has so ably presided for thirty years.

As further donations may still be received, the exact amount realised by the Festival for the Charity can scarcely yet be known; but the sum at present collected is, we are glad to say, upwards of £1070.

ALTHOUGH the Exhibition Concerts at the Royal Albert Hall are rapidly approaching their termination—the last day of the present month, when the Exhibition closes, being also the final musical performance—there has been no diminution in the interest of the programmes. The principles announced in the opening prospectus—that of producing new works, as well as those already stamped with public approval, and of occasionally introducing comparatively unknown vocalists and instrumentalists—have been rigidly adhered to, and with a result which we believe to have been highly beneficial both to art and artists. Amongst the compositions given during the past month have been Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony, Gade's Symphony in B flat, Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony" and Overture to "Coriolanus," G. A. Macfarren's Overtures to "Chevy Chase" and "Robin Hood," and a new Concert Overture by M. Duvivier. Mr. Arthur Barth's excellent rendering of Dr. Hiller's Pianoforte Concerto in F sharp minor must also be mentioned; and the following vocalists—Miss Emrick, Mr. Albert James, Mr. F. Penna and Mr. Charles Beckett—have been received with warm and well deserved applause. Mr. Barnby, in addition to the arduous duties of conducting, has shown so much energy in producing these constantly varied attractions, and has evinced such sound judgment in the selection of new works for performance, that we cannot but hope for a renewal of concerts which, although at first an experiment, have proved so thoroughly enjoyable.

We understand that Mr. Barnby has accepted the offer to read a paper on Church Music at the Church Congress, to be held in Bath during the present month.

As the recent letter of M. Gounod to the Paris "Figaro" respecting the case "Littleton v. Gounod," might lead to the supposition either that the plaintiff had given up his claim for damages and costs, or was acquainted with the person who had satisfied the demand, we think it right to state that the full amount was paid, in cash, by a solicitor to Messrs. Shaen and Roscoe, "on behalf of M. Gounod's friends," and that neither Mr. Littleton nor his professional advisers have received the slightest intimation as to the name of the donor.

THE prospectus of the eighteenth series of Saturday concerts at the Crystal Palace announces that there will be twenty-five concerts, eleven before and fourteen after Christmas, the first being fixed for the 4th inst. The band and chorus will be of the same strength as heretofore, and the conductorship will remain in the able hands of Mr. Manns. Among the works intended to be performed are the following, many of them produced at the Crystal Palace for the first time:—Handel: the Oratorio of "Theodora," with additional accompaniments by Dr. Ferdinand Hiller; Bach: Pianoforte Concerto in F minor; Haydn: two Symphonies not yet performed, and Selection from the "Seven Last Words;" Mozart: Symphonies in C major (No. 6) and G minor, Pianoforte Concerto, in E flat (1785); Beethoven: Symphonies Nos. 3, 6, 7, and 9, the Septett, the "Praise of Music"—a Cantata for Solos, Chorus, and Orchestra—Chorus for female voices from "King Stephen," the Egmont Music; Schubert: Symphony in C (No. 9), the Octett (for Strings and Wind); Men-

Sweet is Thy Mercy.

ANTHEM FOR TREBLE SOLO AND CHORUS.

Rev. J. S. B. MONSELL, LL.D.

J. BARNBY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.). New York: J. L. PETERS, 599, Broadway.

VOICE. Larghetto. TREBLE SOLO. p

Sweet is Thy mer-cy, Lord! Be-fore Thy mer-cy - ORGAN. Molto legato. Sw. Diaps. $\text{♩} = 60.$

cres. dim. e rit. a tempo. p

- seat, My soul a-dor-ing pleads Thy word, And owns Thy mer-cy mf piu mosso. p

sweet. Wher-e'er Thy Name is blest, Wher-e'er Thy peo-ple

Gt. Op. Dia.

Gt. Op. Dia.

f dim. e rit. p a tempo.

meet, . There I de-light in Thee to rest, And find Thy mer-cy pp rit.

Sw.

sweet, and find Thy mer-cy sweet, Thy mer-cy sweet,

TREBLE. VERSE. a tempo.
Light Thou our weary

ALTO.
Light Thou our weary

TENOR.
Light Thou our weary

BASS.
Light Thou our weary

rit. a tempo.

Lead Thou my wand'ring feet; Sweet, sweet is Thy way, our wand' - ring feet; That while we stay on earth we may Still way, Lead Thou our wand' - ring feet; That while we stay on earth we may Still way, Lead Thou our wand'ring feet; That while we stay on earth we may Still way, our wand' - ring feet; That while on earth we may add Reed.

Accel. Allegro moderato.

mer - - cy, Lord!

Accel. Allegro moderato. FULL.

find Thy mercy sweet. Thus shall the heav'n-ly host . . Hear all our songs re .

Accel. Allegro moderato. FULL.

find Thy mercy sweet. Thus shall the heav'n-ly host Hear all our songs re - -

Accel. Allegro moderato. FULL.

find Thy mercy sweet. Thus shall the heav'n - ly host Hear all our songs re - -

Accel. Allegro moderato. FULL.

find Thy mercy sweet. Thus shall the heav'n - - ly host Hear all our songs re -

Allegro moderato.

Accel. Gt. to 15th.

Ped.

My joy . .

- peat, To Fa-ther, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost, to Father, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost; Thy

- peat, To Fa-ther, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost, to Father, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost; Thy

- peat, To Fa-ther, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost, to Father, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost; Thy

- peat, To Fa-ther, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost, to Father, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost; Thy Full Sw.

Thy mer-cy sweet, my joy, . . Thy mer-cy sweet, my joy, Thy mer-cy mer-cy sweet, Our joy, . . our joy, . . Thy mer-cy mer-cy sweet, Our joy, our joy, Thy mer-cy, mer-cy mer-cy sweet, Our joy, our joy Thy . . mer-cy mer-cy sweet, Our joy, our joy, Thy mer-cy sweet. mf A - men, . . . f A - men, ff A - men.

 sweet. mf A - men, ff A - men.
 sweet. mf A - men, ff A - men.
 sweet. mf A - men, ff A - men.
 sweet. mf A men, ff A - men.

Gt. Diaps. with Sw. Reeds coupled. cres. add to Sw.

A Folio Edition of this Anthem is published by Novello, Ewer and Co., price 6d.

delssohn: Symphonies in C minor and Scotch, the 95th Psalm for Solos, Chorus, and Orchestra, Hymn for Contralto solo, Chorus, and Orchestra (op. 96), the Midsummer Night's Dream Music, and the "Lobgesang;" Schumann: Symphony in E flat, Selection from the Music to "Faust;" Berlioz: the Garden Scene and the Queen Mab Scherzo, from "Romeo and Juliet;" Felicien David: "Le Desert," Ode-Symphonie for Orchestra and Chorus; Macfarren: Overture (MS.) to "St. John the Baptist;" Sir W. S. Bennett: "The Maid of Orleans"—Sonata for Pianoforte Solo; Sir Julius Benedict: Symphony in G minor (MS.); Brahms: "Schicksalslied" for Chorus and Orchestra; Gounod: "Meditation" for Violin Solo and Orchestra; E. Prout: Symphony (MS.) in C major; J. F. Barnett: Overture (MS.) to "A Winter's Tale;" Arthur S. Sullivan: some Vocal pieces, with Orchestra, specially composed for these Concerts. Engagements have already been made with Madame Lemmens, Madame Alvsleben, Madame Patey, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Signor Foli; Madame Schumann, Herr Joachim, Mr. Charles Hallé, Mr. Pauer, Herr von Bülow, and Signor Piatti. We much regret to hear that Mr. G. Grove, who has so worthily filled the office of Secretary since the formation of the Crystal Palace Company in 1852, is about to retire from the position. By electing him on the board of Directors, however, we trust that his valuable counsel and advice, especially on musical matters, may still be retained.

THE Railway Clearing House Musical Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Walter J. Markley, F. C. O., commenced its weekly practices on the 9th ult., in the Dining Room of the establishment, with every prospect of success. The Committee has decided to put into rehearsal Handel's "Alexander's Feast" "Ode on St. Cecilia's Day" and "Acis and Galatea," Mendelssohn's "Loreley," Sir Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen," Rossini's "Stabat Mater," and, if time will permit, Mendelssohn's "Elijah." Four concerts will be given during the season, at each of which one of the above-named works will be performed. The post of accompanist has been accepted by Mr. W. T. Box.

THE competition for the Welsh Choral Union Scholarship, the particulars of which were given in our last number, took place at the Royal Academy of Music on the 22nd. ult. There were five competitors, and the successful candidate was Miss Mary Davies, daughter of Mr. William Davies, the Welsh sculptor.

THE Worcester Musical Society, established in 1870, for the practice and performance of vocal and instrumental music, has issued the prospectus of its fourth season, with a list of works which it is said will "probably" be performed. Amongst these may be mentioned the Cantatas "Fridolin" (Randeegger) "The Crusaders" (Dr. H. Hiles), "The Song of Miriam" (F. Schubert), and "The Wreck of the Hesperus" (Thomas Anderton); besides several new choruses, part-songs, &c., and instrumental trios and quartets. Mr. Alfred J. Caldicott is the Honorary Conductor of the Society, and Mr. A. R. Quarterman the Honorary Organist. The first concert will take place at the Music Hall on Tuesday the 25th November.

THE prospectus of the Brixton Choral Society for the season 1873-4 proves that its spirited conductor, Mr. William Lemare, is resolved to support the high character which the Association has already attained, not only by the performance of the standard compositions, but by the introduction of successful modern works. During the coming session four public concerts will be given, at which the Oratorios "The Light of the World" (Sullivan), "St. Peter" (Sir Julius Benedict), and "St Paul" (Mendelssohn), and the Cantatas "Fridolin" (A. Randeegger) and "The Bride of Dunkerron" (H. Smart), are promised. The season will commence on Monday the 6th inst., at the Angell Town Institution.

THE five guinea prize for the best musical setting of the Rev. E. H. Haskin's new Whitsuntide hymn has been unanimously awarded to Mr. H. G. Trembath (Cornwall), Mus. Bac., Oxon. There were about 50 competitors, the umpires being Sir Fred. A. Gore Ouseley, Sir W. Sterndale Bennett and Sir George Elvey. A second prize of five guineas has been offered for the best setting of a new Advent hymn, and as the music has gone in, we shall probably give the verdict in our next number.

FOLLOWING closely upon Mr. Sullivan's "Light of the World," produced at Birmingham, and Sir F. Ouseley's "Hagar," performed at Hereford, Mr. Macfarren's new Oratorio "St. John the Baptist" is to be given for the first time at the approaching Bristol Festival. We shall thus have three new Oratorios by English composers, performed within as many months, which shows an evident readiness on the part of the promoters of our great musical festivals to encourage to the utmost extent native talent. The intended performance of "St. John the Baptist" at Bristol is exciting great interest not only in that city, but throughout the west of England. The subject is one affording the composer great scope for graphic and declamatory vocalisation, and Mr. Macfarren has devoted his best energies to the work. We must congratulate the Bristol committee on having engaged the most eminent artists for the Festival, and the public on the fact that the majority of the soloists are English singers.

THE success of Mr. Carl Rosa's English Opera Company at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, is a proof that out of London, at least, there are audiences always ready to patronise native compositions sung by native artists. Balfe's "Satanella," with Miss Blanche Cole in the principal part, has attracted large audiences; and the local press speaks in high terms of the singing of Mr. William Castle, who has already proved himself a reliable tenor at some of our metropolitan concerts. The company also includes Miss Catherine Lewis, Mrs. Aynsley Cook, Messrs. Maurice de Solla, Arthur Howell, Aynsley Cook, Arthur Stevens and H. Jackson. The band and chorus are said to be most efficient, and, as in every work placed upon the stage under Mr. Rosa's management the dresses and scenery are in the highest style of art.

THE Dalston Choral Association, which obtained at the late Crystal Palace competition a Certificate of Merit and a very high expression of approval from the judges, will, at the commencement of the ensuing season, change its name to "The Borough of Hackney Choral Association," and will be under the immediate patronage of the Borough Members (C. Reed Esq., M.P., and J. Holms, Esq., M.P.), with a large list of influential inhabitants as subscribers. The programmes will, as heretofore, include new and important works, and the concerts will be given in the best obtainable public rooms in the district, under the conductorship of Mr. Richard Payne.

MR. C. CASTELL, Organist of St. John's Church, Waterloo Road, London, has been recently presented with a massive gold pencil-case, for his assiduous attention in training the Choir.

THE decease of Mr. Meadowcroft, of Manchester, which occurred at Scarborough on the 28th August, has caused a widely spread feeling of regret amongst his pupils and a large circle of friends. He was an excellent organist, a good pianist, and as a teacher held a high position. He was only 46 years of age at the time of his death.

THE concerts to be given by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. Barnby, during the coming season, will be in the highest degree interesting. Handel's Oratorio, "Theodora" (with additional accompaniments by Dr. Hiller), and Bach's Christmas Oratorio may be mentioned as amongst the most important works selected for performance, not only on account of their intrinsic excellence, but because they are great novelties in this country; and we are also glad to find that Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" is included in the prospectus. There will be a repetition of the Passion week performances, which were commenced last year, the only alteration being that on two evenings Bach's "St. John" Passion Music will be given. The first concert, Handel's "Theodora," will take place on Thursday, the 30th inst.

A RECORD of the excellent organ performances at the Royal Albert Hall is due to those artists who have so zealously laboured to bring into more prominent notice an instrument which, up to a very recent date, has been so strangely neglected in this country. In addition to the interesting Recitals given on Sundays, Mr. W. T. Best has played most of Bach's organ works, the Concertos of Handel, the six organ Concertos of Mendelssohn, besides several adaptations, including Bach's Concerto in the Italian style, Schumann's Allegro Brillante in D flat major (Finale to his Etudes Symphoniques), and Liszt's new March "Von Fels zum Meer." On the 4th and 5th ult., Dr. Charles Maclean, organist of Eton College, gave Recitals on behalf of Dr. Stainer. His programmes contained extracts from authors not often heard upon the organ, among which should be specially noticed an Allegro from Rubinstein's Pianoforte Sonata in F, and an "Andante espressivo" by Brahms. With these exceptions Dr. Stainer has occupied his post at the organ on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Besides many well-known classical works, he has included movements by Merkel, Sir W. S. Bennett, Henry Smart, J. B. Calkin, Sir F. Ouseley, Agnes Zimmermann, &c., and an older school of music has been represented by Corelli, Couperin, Murshhauser, D. Scarlatti, and others.

THE following is a complete list of the works which have been performed at the series of Daily Exhibition Concerts, given by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., in connection with Her Majesty's Commissioners, under the conductorship of Mr. Barnby, in the Royal Albert Hall:—

BACH, J. S. Sinfonia in D major, Overture and Suite in B minor, for Flute and Strings, and Concerto in C minor, for two Pianofortes (Messrs. Bird and Goodban).—BEETHOVEN. Overtures: Egmont, Die Weihe des Hauses, Fidelio (No. 4), Leonora (No. 3), King Stephen, Prometheus and Coriolanus. Symphonies Nos. 1 to 8, and the Pianoforte Concerto in C minor (Miss E. Busby).—MOZART. Overtures: Die Zauberflöte, La Clemenza di Tito, Figaro, Così fan tutte and Idomeneo. Symphonies: in D, G minor and Jupiter. Concerto in C major (Mr. W. H. Thomas).—HAYDN. Symphonies: No. 8, in B flat (Salomon's Set), and Surprise.—HANDEL. Organ Concerto No. 1 (Mr. W. T. Best).—MENDELSSOHN. Overtures: Ruy Blas, Midsummer Night's Dream, Hebrides, Calm sea and prosperous voyage, Melusine, St. Paul and Trumpet in C. Symphonies: Scotch, Reformation and Italian. Concertos: G minor (Miss E. Barnett, Mr. E. H. Thorne), D minor (Miss Le Brun). Capriccio Brillant in B minor (Madame N. Voarino). Cornelius March, and March in Athalie.—SPH. Overtures: Jessonda and Faust, and Historical Symphony.—SCHUMANN. Overture: Manfred. Symphonies: No. 1, in B flat, and No. 3, in E flat (Rhenish); and Concerto in A minor (Mr. F. Rummel).—SCHUBERT. Overture: Rosamunde. Unfinished Symphony in B minor, Ballet Air in G, Rosamunde; Fantasia in C major, arranged for Pianoforte and Orchestra by Liszt (Madame E. Oswald), and March, E flat, arranged for Orchestra by E. Hecht.—WEBER. Overtures: Oberon, Der Freischütz, Jubilee, Euryanthe, Turandot, Peter Schmoll; and Concertstück for pianoforte (Chev. de Kotski, Miss M. Rock).—AUBER. Overtures: Exhibition, E major; Les Diamans de la Couronne, Fra Diavolo, Masaniello, Le Cheval de Bronze, Zanetta.—ROSSINI. Overtures: William Tell, Siege of Corinth, Semiramide, Tancredi, Cenerentola.—GOUNOD. Overture: Le Medecin Malgré lui; March, Reine de Saba, and Saltarello.—WAGNER. Overture: Flying Dutchman and Selection from Lohengrin (arranged by Signor Arditi).—HILLER. Symphony: E minor (Op. 67), and Concerto in F sharp minor (Mr. A. J. Barth).—RIETZ. Overture: Lustspiel in B flat.—CHERUBINI. Overtures: Les deux Journées, L'hôtelier Portugaise, and Anacreon.—HÉROLD. Overtures: Le pré aux Clercs and Zampa.—BENNETT, Sir W. S. Overture: Les Naiades; Concerto, No. 4, in F minor (Mr. W. Carter).—FLOW. Overture: Stradella.—MEYERBEER. March, Prophète.—GADE. Symphony in B flat.—BERLIOZ. Overture: Waverley.—THOMAS, A. Overture: Mignon.—CUSINS, W. G. Concerto in A minor (Miss Jessie Morison).—BARNETT, J. F. Symphony in A minor.—LITOLFF. Concerto No. 3, National Hollandais (Mr. W. Coenen).—BENEDICT, Sir J. Overture: Macbeth.—BOELDIEU.

Overture: La Dame Blanche.—MACFARREN, G. A. Overtures: She Stoops to Conquer, Robin Hood, and Chevy Chase.—SULLIVAN, A. S. Tempest Music.—ELVEY, Sir G. J. Festal March.—LISZT. Fest Marsch.—MEHUL. Overture: Le Jeune Henri.—DUVIVIER. Concert Overture, in A major.—NICOLAI. Overture: Merry Wives of Windsor.—OBERTHUR, C. Overture: Rubenzahl.—COWEN, F. H. Symphony in C minor.—BRION, R. FORSEY. Concert Overture, in C minor.—BARRY, C. A. Birthday March.—GADSBY, HENRY. Overture: Andromeda, and Symphony in C minor.—THOULESS, A. H. Concerto in E flat (Mr. A. H. Thouless).—SUMMERS, J. L. Concert Overture in F.—CLARKE, J. HAMILTON. Symphony in F.

Many highly interesting works, which do not appear in the above list, will be performed during the present month, which concludes the season. Amongst these may be mentioned—Sir W. S. Bennett's Caprice in E major (Mr. E. H. Thorne), and his Concerto in F minor (Mr. George Wheelton); Brahms's Second Serenade in A, for Small Orchestra; Beethoven's Pianoforte Concertos in G major and E flat, also his Triple Concerto for Pianoforte, Violin, and Violoncello; Liszt's Hungarian Fantasia for Pianoforte and Orchestra (Mr. W. Coenen), &c., &c.

In the course of the series of Concerts the following singers have appeared; Miss Spiller, Miss Dones, Madlle. Bartkowska, Madame Suchet-Champion, Miss Lucy Franklin, Mr. Raynham, Mr. Thurley Beale, Miss Katherine Poyntz, Miss Adelaide Newton, Miss Blanche Reives, Madame Poole, Miss Walton, Miss Dalmaine, Madlle. Gips, Miss Emrick, Mdme. Maria de Gourieff, Miss Helen Standish, Mdme. De Waldeck, Madlle. Anita Leoni, Mr. Melbourne, Mr. J. T. Dalton, Mr. Kenningham, Madlle. Helene Arnim, Miss Isabel Weale, Mr. Albert James, Mr. W. J. Winbolt, Miss M. Stringer, Mr. Charles Beckett, Mr. F. Penna, Mdme. Plaschsky-Bauer, Mdme. Sauerbrey, Signor Tesseman, Miss Alice Barnett, Mdme. Billinie-Porter, Miss Georgina Maudsley, Mr. Wyndham, Mrs. Sicklemore, the Misses Siedle, Miss Bertha Griffiths.

REVIEWS.

MACMILLAN AND CO.

Sound and Music. A non-Mathematical Treatise on the Physical Constitution of Musical Sounds and Harmony, including the chief Acoustical Discoveries of Professor Helmholtz. By Sedley Taylor, M.A.

THAT so lucid a treatise on a subject of such importance to musicians should be "non-mathematical" is a proof that its author appeals rather to a number than to a chosen few of those who desire to investigate the laws which govern the physical basis of the art of music. Mr. Taylor has already shown by his lectures at the South Kensington Museum, and at the Royal Academy of Music, that his style of teaching has the important element of popularity; and in the volume before us, which contains many portions of these lectures, he has laboured zealously and most successfully to explain in an equally clear manner the many discoveries in acoustics made by Professor Helmholtz, and has super-added much valuable matter which he acknowledges to be the result of independent study. It would be perfectly useless to attempt within the space at our disposal to follow the author through any portion of his Treatise with sufficient clearness to enable our readers to judge of the truth of his deductions from the premises laid down: but we may say that not only in his descriptions, but in the excellently drawn illustrations which he has prepared of the method by which waves of sound are transmitted to the ear, he conveys a more perfect idea of the matter to an ordinary reader than can be found in any other work with which we are acquainted. One of the most interesting portions of the book is that in which the subject of timbre is treated, and more especially its assumed effect upon the consonance or dissonance of a chord. Even our composers, as a rule, know but little of this; but the instinct which guides many sound-poets to select the best combinations is no doubt founded upon laws which it should be our duty and pleasure to study. In a treatise so essentially theoretical we think it a pity that anything so thoroughly practical as the advocacy of the Tonic Sol-fa notation should find a place. Although we may agree with Mr. Taylor that "as an instrument of vocal training, the new system is enormously, overwhelmingly, superior to the old;" considering he himself acknowledges that "it is no part of the plan of the present work to go into technical details," and that "only so much has been said about Mr. Curwen's system as was necessary to enable the reader to grasp its essential principle," we much doubt whether it is any more than this "essential principle" that he admits the abstract truth of: indeed, we may say that this supposition is almost confirmed when we find that he afterwards writes "I am doubtful whether its time-notation, when applied to very complicated rhythmic divisions, does not become more difficult than the system in ordinary use, and I consider the notation adopted for the minor mode to be capable of decided improvement." He might have gone on to say that, however ingenious is the method for deciding that a modulation has taken place, by giving to a note its name in the key you have quitted and writing also its name in the new key, the difficulty of carrying it out thoroughly in practice is almost insurmountable, a fact proved by Mr. John Hullah, who, in his late Report as Musical Examiner at the Training Schools, says that he puzzled the Tonic Sol-fa pupils by adhering to this very principle in a piece submitted to them as a test. In concluding our notice of Mr. Sedley Taylor's valuable contribution to our limited store of English works on Acoustics, we must bear testimony to the admirable manner in which it is got up; and there can be little doubt that the graceful Dedication "To Sir William Sterndale Bennett (Principal) and to the Professors and Students of the Royal Academy of Music" will be cordially welcomed and most earnestly appreciated.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

"Like as Christ was raised up." Easter Anthem, by Charles Joseph Frost.

THEY who entertain the opinion that the Church is not an arena for the display of solo singing will welcome a choral Anthem for one of the most festive occasions, which abounds in musical interest and vocal effect. This piece is brief in extent and more solemn than jubilant in character. Being in the key of E, it has good effect of contrast from the digression into G natural for an episode, to the words "Even so we also should walk in newness of life," and the return thence to the original E makes an equally pleasant tonal variety, on the resumption of the opening theme. We have had frequent occasion to commend Mr. C. J. Frost's compositions, and we look forward to his taking higher ground as a writer than he has yet essayed, and maintaining it to his own honour and the enrichment of music.

Te Deum laudamus, in B flat. By Edward Lawrance.

THIS setting of the canticle is grammatical and smooth. It contains some instances of the use of the dominant harmony in the key of the 6th above that which is generally prevalent, without establishing any modulation into the new tonic. The chord of the 7th on D to the second word of "All the earth" is one of these, and the effect is to disturb the clearness of the tonality of B flat, and give undue prominence to an insignificant syllable. Otherwise the harmony is generally pure. There is nothing to note in the musical design, nor in the illustration of the text.

Te Deum laudamus. A service in the key of A. By Frederick Iliffe.

A GOOD steady piece of harmony is this, with nothing to prove its author a profound student of the contrapuntal school, and as little to show that he has deeply probed the springs of modern harmony. There is no attempt at musical expression, beyond a general solemnity of character, and the employment of a minor key on the words, "When Thou tookest," and of another on the passage beginning, "We believe that Thou." An ancient savour is given to the music in one or two places by the succession of two major chords at the descent of a major 2nd, as for instance, the chords of E and of D on the words, "Of heaven," when the pathway is named to that reward of the faithful. Mr. Iliffe is a member of the College of Organists, and it is such musicians as he that will do credit to the institution, and give its diplomas authority with the world.

The Office for the Holy Communion, with Benedictus and Agnus Dei. Set to music for treble voices, or voices in unison, in A. By Rev. Herbert Woodward, B.A., Mus. Bac., Oxon.

THIS is a setting of all the passages which, in the Prayer Book, are directed to be sung in the course of the Communion Office, together with two texts that some ministers interpolate, as also the words (which vary according to clerical fancy) to precede and follow the Gospel. It is the work of one who has obviously a fluency, almost infinite, in improvisation. It abounds in graceful melody, which, however, is for the most part of a secular rather than a sacred character—that is, it consists of such elegant phraseology as we find in drawing-room Nocturnes more than in Church Hymns that have the same definition. The fluency of production, we assume, is evinced in the author's unconsciousness of when he is writing his own ideas and when those of another; and again, of when he is repeating foregone matter, whether original or select. Thus the first phrase of the Kyrie for the first four Commandments is set (we are sure unwittingly) to the melody of the last Quartet in Elijah, "O come, every one that thirsteth;" and this strain is repeated in the Credo, to the words, "He shall come again with glory," we strive in vain to guess with what pertinence. Again, the setting for the six following Responses, or something unmistakably like it, is repeated, with equal seeming inapplicability, to the words, "Thou that takest away," in the Gloria in excelsis. We may be charged with inconsistency in describing the style of melody as non-ecclesiastical which mainly prevails, and citing a theme from "Elijah" as the prototype of one of its most salient features; but let our explanation be that "Elijah" is not a work for the Church, and that the beautiful strain adduced, while a fair sample of the company in which we here find it, has nothing to stamp it with specially sacred character. The author has either no idea of musical accent, or a very strange one; for in his music to the first four Responses, he places the strong emphasis of the first of the bar on the word "this," as though to distinguish each of those four Commandments to which this music applies, from every other "law." In other places he assigns the second syllable of the words "also," "Father," and the like, to this strongly marked first of the bar. Despite such shortcomings, a great charm pervades the work, that will prevail with a large class of hearers; and we own ourselves so delighted to meet with definite tunefulness in a composition of the class, that we are inclined to waive all objection for the sake of this too rare merit.

Two easy Settings of the Kyrie, together with a Gloria, Gratia, and Sanctus, for Parish Choirs. By the Rev. George Mackness, D.D.

THIS tiny publication is not so harmless as it is short. The augmented 4th, C F sharp, in the bass to the words, "our hearts," is bad melody, which gives an inconsequent effect to the harmony. Yet the author seems to be satisfied with the same—if he can be said to be satisfied with a thing, who knows not when he has had too much of it—for he repeats the interval, D G sharp, on the words, "Hosts," "heaven." The progression of the treble part, A G, against the ascent of the tenor, G B, on the word "keep," defies an obvious rule of propriety. In the same place the employment of the second inversion of G on the unaccented second minim of the bar, and its sequence by the strongly marked chord of the 7th of D, on the next stronger accent, is as much opposed to the relation of harmony to rhythm, as is the prominent emphasis on the word "this" at variance with usual practice, in reading the prayer for inclination to keep each law—surely not this more than the others. There is nothing remarkable in the music to the interpolated words to be sung before and after the Gospel, which words slightly differ, of course, from those used in the two settings by the Rev. H. Woodward, noticed above, and Mr. J. J. Monk noticed in our last number. The chord of $\overset{11}{9}$ has a really fine effect on the first syllable of “Amen” after the Sanctus, and it takes us not a little by surprise in a composition of the character of the present. Did the author mean this for a display of erudition, or has he written A instead of G bass, by mistake?

An Evening Service. By the Rev. Edward Young, M.A.

THIS is described, in the course of the publication, as “the complement” of the Morning Service noticed in our last number. The principle enunciated in what we may regard as the earlier portion of the work, the principle of non-connection between the several pieces in the Church Service, is here abrogated; for not only are the Cantate and Deus both in the same key of A, and so connected by tonal identity, but the employment of the same music for the “Glory” in both pieces, establishes a still more generally obvious connection of purpose between the two; and in the former Canticle the repetition of the same music that is at first fitted to it, when the verse recurs, “Let the people praise Thee,” makes the words and the notes throw light upon each other, and thus have a common share in the musical design. Simplicity is the main strength of the music, the hardest thing to which a composer can attain, and the most valuable for good effect when reached. The author seems, however, to have small regard for any melody save that of the top part, wherein complexity of intervals would be less difficult to the singers than in any of the others. Let him look, for instance, to the melody of the bass on the words “have seen the salvation,” which begins with the descent of a major seventh, and has presently the ascent of an augmented fourth. We would gladly that the preface were not included in this, any more than in its companion publication. It speaks much of “Liturgical music,” a subject fairly open for discussion; but it seems to imply that the true character of the class of composition is presented, and only presented, in the work before us. Let us give the writer full credit for the earnestness of his views and their sincerity; let us commend him, also, for the merit of his music; but we must still aver that other works are extant, written quite as much as these from the heart of the musician, and having at least as great merit as the pieces before us, in respect of melody and harmony, musical design, and devotional spirit. Oh authors, beware of prefaces! If the purpose of a publication will not explain itself, an essay on the subject can make it but little clearer, while it may render the author liable to remarks that would be unworthy of his lofty aim.

The Organist's Quarterly Journal, Part 19 for July 1873, edited by Wm. Spark, Mus. Doc.

THIS is not the best number that has been issued of a work whose circulation is constantly on the increase, and whose interest is attested better by the world's acceptance than by the critic's censure. Still, there is merit enough in some of its contents to satisfy any reasonable purchaser. A Solemn March, by Mr. C. E. Horsley, is earnest in manner and substantial in matter, and it pleasantly reminds us of a composer who won many laurels before he left his native land, and of whose subsequent productions we in England know far too little. Dr. C. G. Verrinder contributes an Introductory Voluntary. There follows a Postlude by Mr. Berthold Tours, which, call it what you will, is veritably a March with a Trio, a Da Capo, and a Coda; it is decidedly tuneful, though its phrases are not of the most refined character, and it has about it much spirit and animation springing from its strong accent—yes, accent, even for the organ, a consequence of its very clearly marked rhythm. Next comes a Romance by Mr. R. F. Brion, of which the first phrase is the least meritorious part; it is cleverly continuous, melodious throughout, and nicely disposed for the instrument. Then we have an avowed March by Mr. J. H. Wallis. After this is an Andante Pastorale by Mr. Jas. Tomlinson, which we prefer above all the other pieces in the collection; the rhythm in the fourth bar (and at the recurrence of the strain) is confused by the use of a second inversion on an unaccented note, which is followed by another chord with the same bass on the next stronger accent. Composers are not always sufficiently careful about the delicate niceties of rhythm. Lastly there is yet another March, and this the production of Mr. J. Pattinson.

Theme with variations, for the Organ, by Francis Edward Gladstone.

MR. F. E. GLADSTONE is a prolific composer, and his productions prove his devotion to the instrument on which he is an esteemed executant, and to the Service he has, in his capacity of Cathedral organist, to direct and accompany. The present piece shows his ability in writing for the organ. The theme which is his own, is not so attractive as its after treatment is interesting and musicianly. It has four Variations, the third being in a minor key, and the last being prolonged into a Coda, which includes the recurrence of the first phrase in the simple form of the melody. The pedal part is particularly easy throughout, but adds essentially to the effect of the whole, while it identifies the music with the instrument for which it is designed.

Chanson du Chaudronnier (Song of the Blacksmith). Morceau Caractéristique; pour Piano, par Jules Egghard.

AT last we have a “Morceau Caractéristique” which thoroughly fulfils its title. There is a rough jollity about the opening theme, in G minor, which cannot fail to make itself felt by every listener; and it will lose none of its effect when placed at the top of the semiquaver accompaniment, provided the performer can manage to stretch the 11th without disturbing the melody. The second subject, in E flat major, played with the left hand and accompanied with the right, is a good, honest song without words, which would gladden the heart of a bass vocalist like the late Mr. Weiss, whose “Village Blacksmith” was a happy specimen of English composition and English singing. We conscientiously recommend this sketch to all admirers of music with a hearty tune, to which young and old would nod their heads; and have only to warn those who attempt its execution that if the 11th already mentioned (which repeatedly occurs) is in the slightest degree jerked, the effect of the piece will be marred.

Les Etincelles. Capriccioso for the Pianoforte. Composed by Willem Coenen.

A LIGHT finger and delicate touch are imperatively demanded for the due rendering of this spirited little piece, which is certainly one of the most graceful and melodious of the many compositions by this writer which have come before us. The introduction well shadows forth the character of the principal theme; and the second subject, in the subdominant, consisting of legato arpeggio, and scale passages, forms a good contrast with the opening melody. After the return to the first subject, we have a brilliant coda which, not being lengthened out for mere display, and, moreover, being in strict keeping with the nature of the piece, has not that effect of patchiness which so often disfigures this kind of music. We have rarely seen a mere “drawing-room” composition upon which we can bestow such unqualified praise, for it aspires to no more than is thoroughly accomplished.

Warinka. Polka de Concert, pour le Piano.
Galop Brillant, pour le Piano.

Par C. Baronius.

WE are glad that this writer, whose name is new to us, has had the courage to declare that he has composed dance music, for he may be assured that in so doing he has many eminent men to keep him in countenance. Gavottes, Sarabandes, Bourrées, &c., if they are worth anything, live long after the dances for which they are written have passed away; and there can be no reason therefore why Galops, Polkas and Quadrilles should not have the same vitality. We cannot say that we think this likely to be the case with the two before us; but they are both sprightly and melodious, although we are inclined to think the Galop by far the better of the two. The Polka is somewhat laboured.

Tears, idle tears. Written by Alfred Tennyson. Composed by Herbert S. Oakeley.

THIS song, given with so much success by Madlle. Titiens at the Birmingham and Hereford Festivals, will no doubt become popular as a drawing-room composition, for although the orchestration materially aided its effect when sung at Birmingham, the impression it created at Hereford, when Dr. Wesley played the pianoforte accompaniment, was quite as great. Commencing with a short Recitative, we have a charmingly melodious leading subject in E flat, the placid accompaniment to which is thoroughly in sympathy with the poetry. At the recurrence of the theme, rapid arpeggios are introduced for the first time, which, in spite of the temptation, are not sufficiently prolonged to become tedious. An enharmonic change from E flat to B major gives much freshness to the latter portion of the song; and singers who can take the high B flat with the ease of Madlle. Titiens will find the final phrases (with the occasional alterations of time marked by the composer) highly effective. Professor Oakeley writes so well for the voice that we are certain his compositions will be welcomed by singers as well as listeners.

The Fall of the Leaf. Duet, for Soprano and Contralto. Written by Henry Farnie. Composed by G. A. Macfarren.

A FLOWING and appropriate melody in 9-8 rhythm is here wedded to some placid and thoughtful lines admirably adapted for a musical setting. The voice-parts are so carefully written as to give but little trouble to the singers. Some beautiful points are gained by the broken phrases to the words "the falling of the leaf," the union of the voices on a forte passage afterwards producing an excellent effect. The harmonies, as might be expected, add much to the charm of the composition; and vocalists who wish for a simple duet thrown off by one who has proved that he can be elaborate enough when occasion requires cannot do better than possess themselves of the "Fall of the Leaf."

J. B. CRAMER AND CO.

Valse Sentimentale; pour piano; par Frederick Rogers.

THE name of Rogers is so unmistakably English that we may be forgiven for asking why the title-page of this composition is not in the language of the country in which its author was born and the piece is published. Surely it is time that this affectation had an end; for it is scarcely to be expected that we should form a National School of Music whilst British composers are ashamed of their mother-tongue. It may be imagined that we think well of this trifle by bestowing so much attention to the fashion in which it is put forth; and indeed we may say that we hardly know when so elegant and melodious a Waltz has come before us. The graceful appoggiaturas give a character to the opening theme which lifts it above the ordinary Waltz tunes; and the subjects in the subdominant form a good contrast with the calm flow of the principal melody. We shall be glad again to meet with Mr. Rogers, and doubly so if he do not invite us to approach him as "Monsr. Roger."

Beside the old Corn Mill. Words by Louisa Gray. Music by Henry Smart.

AMONGST the many charming compositions of this most charming song-writer the refined and melodious ballad before us should take high rank, and we cordially commend it to the attention of vocal amateurs who are anxious to escape from the maudlin sentimentality of the day. There are phrases in the melody which positively haunt us; and we need scarcely say that the beauty of the voice-part is materially enhanced by the artistic manner in which it is harmonised. A highly interesting point is, near the conclusion of the song, where after a modulation into D minor, the opening theme (originally in F major) is introduced in the pianoforte part on the harmony of the dominant seventh in B flat, the voice merely singing, upon F, the words "She smiles," until the return to the key. A few songs like this would do much towards elevating the taste both of singers and listeners.

Brunetta. Ballata. Parole e Musica di F. Rizzelli.

THIS song appears to have been well tested in public for the title-page tells us that it has been sung by Madame Sinico, Signor Cotogni, Signor Caravoglia and Signor Gardoni. It is certainly full of character, melodious, and evidently written by one who thoroughly understands vocal music. The change into the tonic minor and the modulations which follow are extremely effective, and give much point to the words. A good Italian singer might, we think, make this "Ballata" highly attractive, for it has all the elements of popularity.

WEIPPERT AND CO.

Minuet and Gavotte. Composed by Lindsay Sloper.

THESE two pieces are said to have been "composed expressly for and performed by Madame Arabella Goddard," but we have no recollection of having heard them in the concert-room. Wherever they were played, however, we trust that they were received as warmly as they deserve to be; for sterling music like this should command something more than the mere conventional marks of recognition. Both compositions are well written, but we prefer the Minuet, which has a characteristic melody in G minor, the two hands being well employed throughout. The change into the tonic major is fresh and effective, and the subject forms a good contrast with the opening theme. The "Gavotte," although, as we have said, scarcely to us as attractive, in every respect fulfils its title, the character of the dance being well preserved: the modulations are natural, and the passages, though demanding careful playing, are by no means difficult.

Love will shine all through. Song. The words from "The Afterglow."

The Fairest Maiden led the Dance. Song. The words by Frederick Enoch.

Composed by Ciro Pinsuti.

SIGNOR PINSUTI always writes like a musician, and his melodies are usually sufficiently tuneful and vocal to render them attractive both to singers and listeners. Of the two songs we think No. 1 is destined to be the more popular. It has a charming theme, in A minor, a good effect being gained by the left hand taking the melody, in unison with the voice, whilst a staccato quaver accompaniment is played with the right hand. The alteration to the tonic major, with the legato bass and triplets in the upper part, is exceedingly effective. The song is intended for a contralto voice, and is in every respect well adapted for the register. "The Fairest Maiden led the Dance," has a cheerful subject, with an accompaniment which may give some amateurs a greater amount of trouble than they care about bestowing upon the pianoforte part of a song. The last phrase will be more effective with the low B rising a roth, than with the upper F (as written above it), but, curiously enough, this alteration is not suggested until the second verse.

HENRY FARMER, NOTTINGHAM.

The Singer's Guide to Pronunciation; with an Appendix, consisting of a Pronouncing Dictionary of Musical Terms and the Rules of Italian Pronunciation; by John Adcock.

THE author of this little book has well studied his subject, and writes with an intelligence and earnestness deserving the highest commendation. Not only the errors and defects in the pronunciation of vocalists are ably treated of, but some valuable hints are given as to the proper method of learning a vocal piece, the words and music of which it is truly said should be considered separately, before attempting them in combination. The justice of the following observation, too, will we think be universally admitted: "To be able to make himself heard is the first requisite in a public singer; but for this purpose not mere loudness is required. It is a fact easily proved that a moderate voice, with distinct articulation, will be better heard, even in a large hall, than a much stronger voice without it." We particularly admire the author's remarks upon the method of singing the vowels, and recommend them to the attention both of solo and choral vocalists. Of course it is difficult to give anything like the correct pronunciation of the Italian words by means of the English alphabet, but on the whole Mr. Adcock's attempt to do so is tolerably successful. We do not, however, agree with the author in believing that the last syllable of Adagio is pronounced like jo, nor that the sound of Questo is correctly represented by kway'sto. But these are matters of opinion; and there are so many undoubted facts of the highest importance to learners to be found in every page of the work that we are by no means inclined to dwell on any minor defects.

LEAMINGTON (NO PUBLISHER).

O be joyful in God. Psalm xvi. Anthem for four voices. By Edwin Aspa.

A MOST meritorious little composition. Its littleness, albeit, lies in its length, or in the absence of length, to be observed as to its number of pages and its effect. It consists of a singularly bright movement in E, the repeat of which is welcome after an intervening portion in E minor, to the words beginning "come hither," and this has the beauty of great simplicity, which helps in the genuine pathos of its expression. The slow movement begins as an alto solo, and presently swells into a chorus, which is nicely voiced. There is an indispensable but not an independent part for the organ, since it doubles the voices throughout, but has some interludial points between the phrases.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

THE "MOVEABLE DO."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SIR,—In your impression for this month you notice a report upon the Examination of the Musical Students in the Training Colleges of Great Britain, by Mr. John Hullah, and you allude to that gentleman's opposition to the Tonic Sol-fa method, and the "Moveable Do." Upon this latter point, I should like to say a word or two, if you will kindly afford me space in your next month's issue. While acknowledging Mr. Hullah's superiority as a teacher and a musician, I must differ with him a little, and avow myself in favour of the "Moveable Do." As far as my experience goes, change of key is a greater obstacle to the young musical student, than any other part of his studies. Indeed there are those who pass as sight readers, but who are unable to make the most simple transition from one key to another. I think that by the "Moveable Do" system this uncertainty is prevented. Take any key with either flat or sharp signatures, by the system I advocate the pupil at once sees clearly that certain notes are sharpened or flattened, as the case requires, in order to make the new scale equivalent to that of the scale of "Do," i.e., by reproducing the half tones in their true position, viz., between the third and fourth, and seventh and eighth. Then, taking the new key note as "Do," we sing on, as in the open key. I have sung by this system myself for years, and I have taught it to those who can now with confidence read correctly at sight, whereas by other methods they have been all uncertainty and fluttering about in the dark. However I do not profess to be able to handle the subject as it should be, but in conclusion, I will venture to say that the "Moveable Do" system, applied to the old notation, is far easier than any other, and certainly the result attained in its practical use is all that can possibly be desired. Then why object to it?

Yours truly,

September 4th, 1873.

ORPHEUS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* * Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

J. F. SCHOFIELD, Ipswich, Queensland.—It is not so effective as Dr. Dykes's tune to the same words.

J. WATSON MORRISON.—Tenor.

A CORRESPONDENT wishes to know where the music is published to Scott's verses from "Rokeby," commencing "While the dawn on the mountain was misty and grey." Can any of our readers supply the required information?

S. S. K.—We believe that the sole power is vested in the clergyman.

AMATEUR.—For an ordinary 6-8 the beats should be as follows: Down, left, up; down, right, up.

C. M. B.—Christ, Heinrich Rink (or, more properly, Rinck) was born in 1770 and died in 1846. He was a pupil of J. C. Kittel, of Erfurt, and held the office of organist at Giessen.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary; as all the notices are either collated from the local papers, or supplied to us by occasional correspondents.

BARBADOS.—The ceremony of the Installation of the new Bishop of Barbados, the Right Reverend John Mitchinson, took place in the Cathedral on Friday, the 15th August. There was a large muster of the clergy, Rectors and Curates from all parts of the country. They assembled in the room beneath the adjacent Masonic Lodge, and while the processional hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," was sung by the united choirs of St. Mary's, St. Leonard's and the Cathedral, marched up through the central aisle of the church, the Curates of the rural parishes leading, followed by their Rectors, the Curates of St. Michael, the Chaplains of the Forces and the Society for Propagating the Gospel, the Rural Dean of St. John's, Bishop Parry, and the Rector of St. Michael's (bearing the Bishop's crozier), Dr. Mitchinson closing the procession. The Litany was intoned by the Rev. Mr. Drayton, Curate of St. Paul's, the responses being sung to music in Mercer's Psalter. The Te Deum was taken to single chants, and Mendelssohn's "How lovely are the Messengers" sung as an anthem. In the Communion Service, the responses to the Commandments were sung to music by Dr. Arnold, and the Nicene Creed to music by Sir John Goss.

BELFAST.—At the Monday Popular Concert, on the 8th ult., in the Ulster Hall, there was a very large attendance, every seat being occupied, and many being obliged to stand. The concert opened with Handel's Overture to Julius Maccabeus, and ended with the March from Costa's Elvi. The vocalists were Miss Bessie Emmett and Mr. Connell. Miss Heilbron made a very favourable impression by her rendering of several pianoforte pieces, and was compelled to respond to one encore. Mr. Mellor was the accompanist.

DUBLIN.—Lady Jenkinson, who, with commendable enthusiasm, has started the idea of founding a "Thalberg Scholarship," having for its object the promotion of musical art in both England and Ireland, gave a concert on the 22nd ult., at Mr. Cecil Guinness's mansion, Stephen's Green, under the able conductorship of Professor Glover, at which Madame Sinico, Madlle. Justine Macvitz, Madlle. Rose, Signor Urio, Signor Borella, and Signor Giulio Perkins appeared, and sang a choice selection of their best known pieces. Some distinguished amateurs also assisted, and Mrs. Mackay, the eminent harpist, and her pupils contributed to make up a concert charming of its kind, and admirably calculated to raise the tone of appreciation of musical art in Dublin. Lady Jenkinson was herself one of the most favoured pupils of Thalberg, and in style, brilliancy, and expressive power, she fully justifies the confidence which her master reposed in her abilities. It is to be hoped that Lady Jenkinson's admirable idea will prove fruitful in inducing a study of the science to which her life has been devoted, and which she so admirably illustrates in her own person.

KNIGHTON.—Miss Woodward, the organist of the Parish Church, gave an evening concert at the Assembly Rooms, on Wednesday the 17th ult. The programme included pianoforte solos by Miss Woodward, pianoforte duets by Miss Woodward and Miss Smith, and violin solos by Mr. J. T. Willy (of London), all of which were well rendered and favourably received. Mr. George Green sang two songs in good style, and Mr. E. Ravenscroft contributed two comic songs. The "Spring Chorus" from Babil and Bijou, and the glee "Softly fall the shades of evening," were given by the choir in a very satisfactory manner, and the National Anthem brought this pleasing entertainment to a close.

NEWCASTLE.—At the opening of St. Dominic's Roman Catholic Church, on Wednesday, the 11th ult., the musical arrangements were under the direction of Mr. R. R. Ainsworth, organist of the church. There was a full band, composed of the leading instrumentalists of the town; Mr. W. Rea, organist to the Newcastle Corporation, presiding at the organ. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Rippon, soprano; Miss Emmeline Moore, contralto; Messrs. Patrick and Gibbon, tenors; and Mr. David Ainsworth, bass. The music in the morning comprised Stadler's "Tu es Sacerdos," Haydn's Imperial Mass (No. 3), Buhler's "Jesu Dulcis Memoria," "Achieved is the glorious work," and "The Heavens are telling" (Haydn), and Gregorian Repones. There was also a good selection of music at the evening service. The church at present contains one organ, the choir organ, a fine toned instrument, built by Messrs. J. Nicholson and Son, which is in the gallery in the west transept; but it is intended to have a chapel organ, to be placed in a gallery at the north end, for which funds are being raised.

PLYMOUTH.—The Vocal Association inaugurated another season on Wednesday, the 17th ult., in the Albert Hall, which promises to be as successful as any predecessor. Haydn's Oratorio the Creation was the work selected. The choir numbered over two hundred; the band of eighty members was ably led by Mr. H. Reed, and Mr. F. N. Löhr conducted. The solo singers were Madame Florence Lancia, Mr. W. H. Cummings and Mr. Brandon, who were highly effective in all their solos, Mr. Cummings being compelled to accept an encore for his singing of "In native worth." The choruses were well sung, especially "Awake the harp," "The heavens are telling," and "The Lord is great." Between the parts Mr. Löhr informed the audience that the Association intended giving a concert in aid of the families of the poor men who were killed by the falling of the wall at Stonehouse, when Israel in Egypt will be performed. The announcement was received with loud applause.

RATHFARNHAM, DUBLIN.—The Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland and Countess Spencer honoured St. Columba College with a visit on the 18th ult., when the prizes gained during the past year were given away by the Warden. The College Choir, led by the organist, Mr. C. L. Williams, sang several glees in the College grounds with excellent taste. Service was held in the chapel at 6.30, the music selected being Walmisley in D minor, and Dr. Stainer's anthem, "Sing a song of praise," which were given with great precision and effect.

READING.—The Reading Philharmonic Society, conducted by Mr. W. H. Strickland, meets for its eleventh season on the 3rd inst. The pieces chosen for rehearsal are Handel's Israel in Egypt and Barnett's Raising of Lazarus. This Society was formed for the practice of music of the great masters, and has been most successful.

SCARBOROUGH.—An evening concert was given at the Spa Saloon on the 12th ult., in aid of the liquidation of the original debt on the building of All Saints' Church. A feature in the programme was Dr. Naylor's performance of Mendelssohn's pianoforte Concerto in G minor, which elicited warm and well-deserved applause. Mrs. Neumanns, Mr. G. B. Thackway and Mr. Brown-Borthwick lent efficient aid with Dr. Naylor in two eight-hand duets for two pianofortes; and a violoncello solo was effectively played by the Rev. T. Percy Hudson. The principal vocalists were Miss Eleanor Armstrong, Mrs. Neumanns, Mr. W. Sanderson and Mr. Brown-Borthwick; and instrumental selections were well performed by Herr Lutz's orchestra. The concert was in every respect highly successful. — A RECITAL was given by Dr. Sloman on the grand organ in St. Martin's Church, on Monday the 22nd ult. The pieces performed were chiefly classical, and were much appreciated by an audience of several hundred persons. We must specially notice Bach's fugue in E minor, and must remark also on the talent displayed by Dr. Sloman in his Cantata Supplication and Praise, from which he played, among other pieces, an elaborate fugue. His extemporaneous voluntary displayed to advantage the various qualities of the solo stops contained in this fine organ.

SEACROFT.—The new organ for Seacroft Church, built by Mr. Abbott, of Leeds, under the superintendence of Mr. Walker Joy, was opened on the 10th ult., by Mr. J. V. Roberts, Mus. Bac., Oxon, organist of the Parish Church, Halifax.

ST. MINVER, CORNWALL.—On Thursday the 4th ult., a concert was given in the School-room by Mr. Arthur Thomas and Mr. F. A. Bridge (of London), assisted by several talented local friends. The performance was so successful that it was decided to give a similar concert on the Thursday following (after the Harvest Festival), when the room was again filled to overflowing, and several pieces were demanded. The proceeds were presented to the fund for the completion of the restoration of the Church.

WOOLWICH.—Miss Mascall gave a ballad concert on Tuesday, the 2nd ult., in the Alexandra Hall, assisted by Mrs. F. H. Lester, Mrs. G. H. Baker, Miss Rice, Miss Wheeler, Mr. Parkes, and Mr. W. C. Bell, who were highly successful in their rendering of some popular vocal music. Miss Mascall conducted with her usual ability, and, with her pupil, Miss Rice, presided at the pianoforte. She also played two of Mendelssohn's "Songs without Words" and Thalberg's "Home, sweet home."

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. William C. Dyer, organist and choir-master to Holy Trinity Church, Weston-super-Mare. — Mr. J. D. Kennard, organist and choir-master to Holy Trinity Church, Margate. — Mr. E. A. Sydenham (late organist of St. Martin's, Dorking) to St. Andrew's, Farnham. — Mr. William Edward Runaces, to Christchurch, Eaton, near Norwich.

CHOIR APPOINTMENT.—Mr. Henry Dubber (tenor) to the choir of St. Paul's, Upper Norwood, S.E.

TO MUSICAL AUTHORS.

W. PAXTON, Music Engraver and Printer, 5, Tottenham-court-road, five doors from Oxford-street, undertakes the publication of Musical Works on moderate terms. Estimates given.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

THE CATHEDRAL PSALTER, containing the Psalms of David, together with the Canticles and Hymns of the Church, and other Hymns for special occasions, pointed for chanting by S. Flood Jones, M.A., Precentor of Westminster; J. Troutbeck, M.A., Minor Canon of Westminster; James Turle, Organist of Westminster; J. Stainer, M.A., Mus. Doc., Organist of St. Paul's; and Joseph Barnby. Approved by the Dean of Westminster and the Dean of St. Paul's. Imperial 32mo., cloth, 9d.

THE HYMNARY, with music, edited by J. Barnby. Small post 8vo., to bind with the pearl 8vo. Prayer-book. Cloth boards, white edges, 2s. 6d. Cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 3s.

MATTHEWS, T. RICHARD, B.A.—Jubilate Deo, in C, for four voices or for voices in unison. 8vo., 3d.

PEACE, A. L., Mus. Bac., Oxon.—Te Deum. 8vo., 3d.

GLADSTONE, ROBERTSON, Junior.—Nunc Dimittis. 8vo., 3d.

FOUR KYRIES and TWO SANCTUSES, as used at St. Thomas's Church, Werneth. 8vo., 6d.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS. Vols. 1, 2, and 3. Cloth, 7s. each. For contents see p. 258.

TURLE, JAMES.—The Lord that made Heaven and earth. 2d. (Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 84.)

SALAMAN, CHARLES.—How lovely are Thy habitations (84th Psalm). Anthem for S.A.T.B. 2s. 6d. Separate voice parts, 3d. each.

GOSS, SIR JOHN.—Glees and a Madrigal. 8vo.
No. 1. O Thou Whose Beams (Ossian's Hymn) ... 6d.
2. There is Beauty on the Mountain ... 4d.
3. T'other day as I sat (the Sycamore shade) ... 4d.
4. Hark, heard ye not? ... 6d.
5. O my sweet Mary ... 4d.
6. Lo where the rosy bosom'd hours ... 4d.
7. Her eyes the Glow-worm lend thee ... 4d.
8. The Courtly Bard (Kitty Fell) ... 4d.

DE VALMENCY, RICHARD.—"Now daylight fades." Twilight reverie. Part-Song, 3d.

READ, J. F. H.—Curfew Song for Contralto or Baritone. Written by H. W. Longfellow. 1s. 6d.
—The rainy day. Trio for Soprano, Mezzo Soprano, and Contralto. Words by Longfellow. 1s. 6d.

OUSELEY, REV. SIR F. A. G., Bart.—Fear not, I am thy Shield. (Hagar.) ... 1s. 6d.
The Lord hath heard thine affliction. Ditto. ... 1s. 6d.
Walk before Me. Ditto. ... 1s. 6d.
Oh! that Ishmael. Ditto. ... 1s. 6d.
The Lord hath not cast out my prayer. Ditto. ... 1s. 6d.
Cast out this bondwoman. Ditto. ... 1s. 6d.

SUMMERS, JAMES LEA.—Festive March for the Pianoforte. 2s.

GLADSTONE, F. E.—Andante Grazioso for the Organ. 2s.

SPARK, DR. W.—The Organist's Quarterly Journal. Part XX:—

1. Orgel Stücke	...	F. G. Verner.
2. Andante	...	Wm. Spark.
3. Grand Offertoire in A	...	Hamilton Clarke.
4. Larghetto—C major	...	Ch. J. Frost.
5. St. Stephen's Fugue	...	Robert Fieldwick.
6. Moderato assai, G minor	...	Ph. Tietz.
7. Postlude—B flat major	...	W. H. Barnett.

HOW LOVELY ARE THY HABITATIONS. Anthem (84th Psalm) for Treble, Alto, Tenor and Bass, by CHARLES SALAMAN. Price 2s. 6d.; separate vocal parts, 3d. Well adapted for Church Choirs. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADVENT HYMNS,

With appropriate Tunes, extracted from "The Church of England Hymnology," by GEORGE PRINCE JOYCE, Esq., F.S.A.

The Hymns are by—1st, the Editor; 2nd, the Rev. Thomas Davis, M.A.; 3rd, the Editor; 4th, the Rev. Daniel Bagot, D.D., Dean of Dromore; 5th, John Ryley Robinson, Esq., LL.D., F.S.A., Scot., &c.; 6th, Copyright-Hymn from "Songs of Grace and Glory," by the Rev. C. B. Snepp, LL.M.; 7th, the Rev. James Gabb, B.A., Rector of Bulmer; 8th, Martin Luther; and 9th, the Editor (Vision of Heaven). Entered at Stationers' Hall; price One Penny.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry. May be ordered through all Booksellers. A liberal allowance to the Clergy.

* Mr. Joyce would feel obliged by some Organists trying the new Tunes, and communicating the results to him at his address, Newport, Isle of Wight.

Second Edition. Small 4to. Price 2s. 6d. paper covers; 3s. 9d. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting note.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part Chorus, with Organ accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK, Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

Sixth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK, edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo., without chants, 1s.; with Proper Psalms, 1s. 3d.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to., with chants, 5s.; large 4to., £1 1s.; each voice part, separately, 2s. Canticles, score, small 4to., 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo., 14d. Novello, Ewer and Co., and Parker and Co.

Tenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Price 3s. 6d.; sep. vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

SUPPLEMENT to the PREVIOUS EDITIONS of the ABOVE, containing Chants for the Venite, &c. Price 1s.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. St. J. B. JOULE. (Large type), price 2s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo., price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Third Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION.

Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. St. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

NON NOBIS DOMINE, arranged to the Corresponding English Words, by Rev. W. G. LONGDEN, for the Use of Choral Meetings, as an Introit, or Anthem, or Grace after Meat. Price One Penny; Ninespence a dozen; or Five Shillings a hundred.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For voices in unison and Organ. 8vo., 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWELVE KYRIES. By G. BAKER. Price 6d. 12 or more copies, 4d. each, post free. G. Baker, Musicseller, Wakefield.

Now ready, 8vo., price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED, Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon, Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

REV. R. F. SMITH, Southwell.—TE DEUM, in F. SHORT ANTHEM, "The Lord is nigh."

SACRED MUSIC BY EDWARD LAWRENCE,

(Organist, Merthyr Tydfil).

TE DEUM (new) in B flat. Harmony, unison, free organ part, &c. "Highly effective." 1s. 6d.—Three Choral Hymns. Set 1, "There is a blessed home," "O Love," and "Praise the Lord." 1s.—The well-known and immensely admired Six Responses to the Commandments, new edition, 1s.—Three Choral Hymns. Set 2, "O Paradise," "A few more years shall roll," and "The roseate hues" (just published), 1s.—The Evening Hymn "Abide with me." Harmony and unison, with a free organ part. "Everywhere exceedingly popular." A specimen copy of either for twelve stamps. A very liberal discount on a dozen copies. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

Just Published.

CANTICLES NOTED. Second Set, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. 18mo., 8d.; 8vo., 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

HELMORE, REV. THOMAS.—THE CANTICLES ACCENTED, 18mo., 3d.—Hymns of the Eastern Church, four voices, each 1s., PEACE, IT IS I; THE DAY IS PAST AND OVER; THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.—S. MARK'S CHANT BOOK (in daily use at the College Chapel, Chelsea), 4s. 6d.; or the same, Part I., being the main body of the work, price 3s. 6d.; and Part II., The Table of the Chants, price 1s. (useful for places where only the Canticles are chanted). Also Two "TE DEUMS" for Choir and People, in the alternate verses; adapted from Latin arrangements by Alfieri and Baint; vocal Score and Organ Accompaniment, price 3s. Also the People's Plain Song, separate, price 14d. Four-part Cadences for the Holy Communion, 6d. The Carol for Christmas Morning, vocal score, 18mo. edition, 2d.; melody, 18mo., 1d.

HYMN IN TIME OF CATTLE PLAGUE, 2d. Words, 1s. per 100. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADDITIONS TO THE

REV. T. HELMORE'S PLAIN SONG WORKS.

The Canticles Accented. Price 3d. The Psalter and Canticles Accented. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Appendix 1 to Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory, price 4d.

The Psalter Noted. Appendix 1, giving the Proper Psalms, noted as before in their right order of the six days to which they are Appointed. Price 6d. Bound up with recent editions of the Psalter Noted.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 3d. The Psalter Noted. Appendix 2, giving the Proper Psalms newly noted for the Four Great Festivals (second set). Price 4d.

Accompanying Harmonies to ditto. Price 4d. Canticles Noted (second set). Large Edition, 2s. Small Edition, 8d.

For some of the Harmonies to this see Accompanying Harmonies to Psalter Noted, Appendix 2 (above mentioned). For others, see Accompanying Harmonies to Brief Directory, Appendix 2, now in hand.

Cadences for the order of the Administration of the Lord's Supper, in compressed vocal score. Price 6d.

Paper on Church Music, with special reference to the joining of all the People in Sacred Song, read at the Church Congress, Wolverhampton, October 1867. Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

"MISSA REGIA" (DUMONT). A complete Plain-Song Service for the Holy Communion, from the Rouen Service Books. Edited by ALFRED KING, Mus. Bac., Oxon. Vocal and Accomp. Harmonies, 1s. 6d.; Plain Song, 4d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A SERVICE for the HOLY COMMUNION for Men's Voices in four parts, consisting of Introit, Kyrie, Gloria tibi, Gratias, Offertory Sentences, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, and Gloria in excelsis, composed by W. H. SANGSTER, Mus. Bac. Price 2s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

A SERVICE for the TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in the key of A, composed by FREDERICK ILIFFE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Fellow of the College of Organists, London, and Organist of St. Wilfrid's Church, Kibworth. Price 43d.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, Set to Original Chants, price 2d., composed by FREDERICK ILIFFE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Fellow of the College of Organists, London.

"In writing these Chants for the Te Deum I have divided it into its doctrinal parts. The 'first' thirteen verses are a Creed setting forth the doctrine of the Trinity. The 'second' part beginning with the words 'Thou art the King of glory,' and the four following verses, set forth the Divinity and Incarnation of the Son. The solemn verse 'We believe that Thou shalt come,' expresses our belief in our Lord's second coming. A separate Chant is provided for this verse. The 'third' part, beginning with the words 'We therefore pray Thee' is a Litany. The Rev. Thomas Keble was the first, I believe, who suggested this ancient mode of dividing the Te Deum into these several parts, and I have adhered to this arrangement as far as possible; there is, however, one exception, and that is in the first part of the verse, 'Holy, Holy, Holy,' which seems to me to demand a different kind of expression to any of the other verses. I may also say that I had written another Chant of a more pensive character for the 'Litany part,' but it was thought advisable to go back to the melody of the first Chant, in order to avoid many changes."—Prefatory Remarks by the Composer.

A PRIZE TUNE, in E flat, "Jesu, Refuge of my soul," for four voices, by the same author, price One Penny.

This Tune gained the Prize offered by the College of Organists, Midsummer, 1872. Published by Novello, Ewer and Co., London, and by Mr. W. R. Bowden, Holywell-street, Oxford.

In the Press.

THE 146TH PSALM, set to Music by EDWIN J. CROW, Mus. Bac., Cantab., being his Exercise for that degree. Price to Subscribers, 3s. 73, London-road, Leicester.

STABAT MATER for Three Voices, Soprano, Tenor and Bass, or two Tenors and Bass, composed by DIOMEDE BELLI. This beautiful work, post free, 3s. 3d. Also AVE MARIA, for Soprano or Tenor, by HAYDN WAUD, free 1s. 6d. Waud and Co., 88, Fulham-road, London.

Now ready.

ECCLESIASTICAL MUSIC.—Compositions for Four Voices on the Plain Chant of the Roman Gradual, Ratisbon, ed. 1871, by W. SEBASTIAN OKELY, M.A., "nello stile osservato," with Organ accompaniment.

- I.—Missa Tempore Paschali, price 2s. 6d.; Organ part, 1s. 6d.
- II.—Missa in Festis Semiduplicibus, price 2s. 6d.; Organ part, 1s. 6d.
- III.—The Sequentiæ for all the year, price 5s.; Organ part, 2s. 6d., consisting of Victimæ Paschali, Veni Sancte Spiritus, Lauda Sion, Stabat Mater, Dies Iræ. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Eighth Edition.

301 ANCIENT AND MODERN CHANTS, edited by WILLIAM RIDLEY, Organist of the Parish Church, and of St. John's. Free for stamps from the Editor (bound, 36 stamps, paper, 24 stamps), West Derby, Liverpool. "A fine collection."

Now ready, price 3s. net. Post free on receipt of stamps.

MASS in D (with "O Salutaris"). Set to English words by EDMUND ROGERS, Organist (St. Thomas's, Portman-square, late of St. Alban's, Holborn).

"It has been a subject for wonder that composers have not heretofore applied the 'Mass style' . . . to original compositions for our Church. It is here so applied, and with very considerable success."—The Musical Times, Sept. 1873.

London: W. Knott, 26, Brooke-street, Holborn, E.C.; or from the Composer, Lorne House, Lorne Villas, Hanover-gate, N.W.

ANTHEMS, SPECIAL AND GENERAL. The "Contents" page sent free, and a specimen Anthem showing style of production, for four stamps. Nearly 400 pages of new music for 4s. to those who order before publication. Names should be sent at once. Address—Editor of "Anthem Special and General," 43, Hunter-street, London (W.C.). [A Special List of Christmas Music for Choirs and Choral Classes.]

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for Small Choirs. The texts selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe.

First Series, for Boys' and Females' Voices.—1. "Come, and let us return." 2. "I will look unto the Lord." (These Anthems may appropriately be used in Advent and Lent.) 3. "Behold the Tabernacle." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmastide.)

Second Series, for Female and Male Voices.—1. "Unto us was born." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Christmas.) 2. "Blessed is the soul." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at Whitsuntide.) 3. "Come ye and let us go up." (This Anthem may be appropriately used at the opening of a church.) 4. "Blessed be the name of God." (This Anthem may appropriately be used at a Harvest Festival.)

A separate accompaniment for use where there is not a Pedal Organ, may be had, price 2d.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private performance.

Price 6d. for each Anthem, or 2s. 6d. for each series of six.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SIX EASY ANTHEMS for VILLAGE CHOIRS.

By W. H. GILL. 2d. each. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

DR. HOLLOWAY'S CHRISTMAS ANTHEM.

"Behold, I bring you good tidings," price 6d. To be had of J. Masters and Son, 78, New Bond-street, W., or of Dr. Holloway, 73, Hemingford-road, London, N.

New Edition.

HYMNS for CHRISTMAS.—1. Hark, the herald angels sing. 2. High let us swell our tuneful notes. 3. While shepherds watched their flocks. Music by the Rev. W. H. Bliss, M.A. Mus. Bac., Minor Canon of S. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle. Price 4d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

Just published, square 16mo, 2s. 6d.

THE CHORISTER'S GUIDE, by W. A. BARRETT, Mus. Bac., Oxon., of St. Paul's Cathedral, author of "Flowers and Festivals."

Rivingtons, Waterloo-place, London, Oxford, and Cambridge.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS' FESTIVAL SONG.

Full Chorus, by ALFRED HARBOROUGH, R.A. Price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

RECESSIONAL MARCH, J. F. THORNE. Second

edition, 4s.

"There is vigour and character in this March."—Choir.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

J. B. TOURNEUR.—Hommage à Sa Sainteté Pie

IX. Messe à trois voix, avec solo pour Tenor et Basse, accompagnement d'Orgue ou de Piano. Exécutée avec succès six fois consécutives à l'église des Pères Servites, à Brompton.

Just Published.

SONATA in A MAJOR for PIANOFORTE, Op.

20; also RONDO CAPRICCIOSO, Op. 19, composed by H. S. OAKLEY, Mus. Doc., and Professor of Music at the University, Edinburgh. Lamborn Cock, 63, New Bond-street.

CHOIR LISTS.—To ORGANISTS and CHOIR-

MASTERS. Lists for filling up the Music to be used at the Morning and Evening Services, printed in red, post free for 1s. 6d. per 100. The Musical Standard Office, Fleet-street, E.C.

SPOHR'S "GOD, THOU ART GREAT," performed at the Birmingham Festival, 1873. Vocal score, octavo, 1s. vocal score, folio, 4s.; Chorus parts, 1s. 10d.; Band parts, 12s. 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

SPOHR'S CHRISTIAN'S PRAYER, performed at the Hereford Festival, 1873. Vocal score, octavo, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; scarlet cloth, 3s.; Vocal score, folio, 6s. 6d.; Vocal parts, 3s.; Band parts, 17s. 7d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

HAGAR, by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY.

The following Songs are published separately:—

	s. d.
Fear not, I am thy shield (Tenor) . . .	3 0
The Lord hath heard thine affliction (Soprano) . . .	2 0
Walk before Me (Tenor) . . .	3 0
Oh! that Ishmael (Bass) . . .	2 0
The Lord hath not cast out my prayer (Soprano) . . .	3 0
Cast out this bondswoman (Contralto) . . .	3 0

Sold at half-price.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

CHURCH ANTHEMS, ETC.,

BY THE BEST COMPOSERS, ANCIENT AND MODERN.

The Music and Words arranged for Congregational use.

EDITED BY HENRY ALLON, D.D.

Crown octavo, price 3s. cloth; 3s. 6d. roan, gilt edges. Cheap edition, price 1s. 4d. cloth; 1s. 8d. stiff cloth, red edges.

"Dr. Allon has done so much to promote an intelligent use of sacred music in Divine worship that we gladly call attention to his last, and, as we think, most wise efforts in the same direction. Having issued in the 'Congregational Psalmist' a valuable series of Hymn Tunes, Chants, Kyries, &c., he has now published in a little pocket volume a collection of Anthems intended for the use of the congregation, and not simply for the choir. The pieces as a rule require, in singing, a degree of musical culture somewhat greater than that required by Chorales and Chants, but they are on the whole within the reach of persons possessing a practical acquaintance with the art of sight-singing."—The Choir.

NOTICE.

"Church Anthems" forms Section III. of "THE CONGREGATIONAL PSALMIST;" Section I. consists of Tunes and Chorales; Section II. Chants, Sanctuses, &c. Each Section is complete in itself, but may be had bound up with the others. A list of nearly 50 editions can be had on application to the Publishers, by whom a liberal discount will be allowed to Teachers and Congregations.

London: Hodder and Stoughton, 27, Paternoster-row.

NEW ANTHEMS, by W. SMALLWOOD.—No. 17,

O love the Lord; No. 18, Path of the Just; No. 19, Three Concluding Sentences, all for Four Voices, with Organ or Pianoforte accompaniment, half music size, price 1½d. each. Also No. 20, Daughter of Zion, by THOMAS CLARK, same arrangement as the preceding, price 2d. London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

THE DREAM (same Melody as "Il Bacio"), in

B flat, for a Contralto Voice, by ARDITI, price 3s.; post free, 1s. 6d. London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

NO. 37 CLASSICAL EXTRACTS, by W. SMALL-

WOOD. The Chorales from Bach's "Passion Music" (according to St. Matthew), arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s., post free, 18 stamps. London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

Just Published, post free, 1s. 8d.

THE ORGAN: Hints on its Construction, Purchase, and Preservation, by W. SHEPHERDSON, M.C.O.

The Musical Standard Office, 185, Fleet-street.

Just Published, price Sixpence.

JORDRELL'S MANUAL of SIGHT SINGING on the Tonic or Moveable Doh System of Reading Old Notation Music, by means of which all who have a musical ear may readily learn to sing at sight, without the aid of an instrument.

London: C. Jefferys, 67, Berners-street; Manchester: E. Beswick, 44, Corporation-street; and from John Jordrell, Withington, near Manchester.

SECOND EDITION. Just published, price 2s. 6d.

A CONCISE and PRACTICAL EXPLANATION

of the RULES of SIMPLE HARMONY and THOROUGH-BASS, with Chapters on Time, Keys, Intervals, and general Elementary Musical Knowledge, respectfully dedicated (by permission) to the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., Mus. Doc., Professor of Music at the University of Oxford, by THOMAS SMITH, Organising Choirmaster to the Church Music Society for the Archdeaconry of Sudbury.

By the same Author. Just Published, price 1s.

A SHORT PRACTICAL METHOD for TEACH-

ING SINGING, designed with a view to meet the new Rule in the Revised Code, and for the use of Choirs generally.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street. Post free from the Author, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

WHEN NIGHT IS DARKEST, Dawn is Nearest.

By E. LAND. "This composition deserves high praise. Its melody is lovely; its phrasing shows the cultivated and experienced mind, while the accompaniment is singularly happy." "The vocal gem of the season." Also brilliantly transcribed for Piano, by Kuhe, 24 stamps each.—W. Morley, 70, Upper-street, N.

Now Ready. Imperial 32mo., cloth, price Ninepence.

THE CATHEDRAL PSALTER.

POINTED FOR CHANTING

BY

The Rev. S. FLOOD JONES, The Rev. J. TROUTBECK, Dr. STAINER, JAMES TURLE, and J. BARNBY.

PUBLISHED WITH THE SANCTION OF

THE VERY REV. THE DEAN OF ST. PAUL'S

AND

THE VERY REV. THE DEAN OF WESTMINSTER.

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on liberal terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS STREET.

Just Published, Recitative and Air.
"TEARS, IDLE TEARS" (by TENNYSON), for Soprano or Contralto. Sung by Mdle. Titiens at the recent Birmingham and Hereford Musical Festivals, by H. S. OAKELEY, Mus. Doc. 4s. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS, now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.
No. 1. The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.
No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katrine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.
No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s. The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra.
Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.
W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton Place, Reading.

NEW MUSIC, by FRANCIS EDWARD GLADSTONE.
ANDANTE GRAZIOSO for the Organ. Price 2s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

CAPRICCIO ALLA SALTARELLO for the Pianoforte. Price 4s., sold at half-price. Augener and Co., 86, Newgate-street.

MUSIC for the COLONIES.—The EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE of Theoretical, Elementary, and Standard MUSICAL WORKS, containing extensive and complete tables of contents of Instruction Books for Voice, Piano, Violin, Violoncello, Flute, Organ, &c., gratis and postage free of the Publishers, Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street.

The New National Song.

LET THE HILLS RESOUND. Words by L. H. F. DU TERREAUX. Music by BRINLEY RICHARDS. "The second great success of Mr. Brinley Richards."—Graphic. 3s.; free by post 18 stamps. As a Part-Song, 12 stamps, and Class copy, 4 stamps.

SOUND THE TRUMPET IN ZION. For full Choir. Words by S. C. HALL, F.S.A. The music composed by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Post free for 18 stamps.

READING at SIGHT.—Musical Cards, for Learning to Read Music quickly at sight. Invaluable to all Teachers of Music. Post free for 25 stamps.

THE MOSELLE QUADRILLE. For the Pianoforte. Composed by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Beautifully Illustrated Title. 4s. Also his TORRENT GALOP, same price; free by post, 24 stamps each.

London: Sole Publishers, Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street. Order of all Music-sellers.

Just Published,
NEW CHORAL SONG, "Lives of Great Men all remind us," by JOHN C. WARD, Organist of Quebec Chapel, and Mr. Henry Leslie's Choir. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO VIOLINISTS, TEACHERS, and AMATEURS.

50 Easy Violin Duets from the Works of Bruni, Kalliowda, Haydn, Pleyel, &c., in Two Books. Each Book post free for 20 stamps, of H. S. Davis, 60, Dean-st., Soho-square. Book 3 will be ready Oct. 15.

THE NEW STANDARD COURSE OF LESSONS and EXERCISES on the TONIC SOL-FA METHOD, by JOHN CURWEN. In cloth, 3s. (sent post free). "Mr. Curwen launches out into seven subjects, on which he consults every reputable writer, and produces a closely-printed volume, touching on Tune, Time, Voice-training, Harmony, Musical Form, Pronunciation, and Expression. The book is more than one upon Singing and Sol-fa; it is a treatise on Chords, Melody, Harmony, Composition, Canon, Fugue, &c. Upon all these subjects Mr. Curwen has written with judgment; and in this portion of his work useful knowledge is to be found in a pertinent and condensed form."—Athenæum.

Tonic Sol-fa Agency.

HOW TO OBSERVE HARMONY, by JOHN CURWEN, with exercises in Analysis, the illustrations being printed in both Sol-fa and Staff notations. This work contains the system on which the students have learnt who have been so successful in obtaining prizes and certificates in Mr. Hullah's Examination in the Theory of Music at the Society of Arts. Any one who plays the Chants and Hymn Tunes used for illustration in regular order, will soon notice that the easiest and commonest things in Harmony are shown first, and afterwards those which are more difficult. Each new illustration introduces some new thing which has not been heard in any previous illustration. Thus the student, beginning with a Chant formed by the Major Tonic and Dominant chords, passes on through the other chords of the scale, the varieties of Passing Tones, the different sorts of Transition, the peculiarities of the Minor Mode, to a new theory of Discords, and a full exhibition of Chromatics. The work contains 236 illustrations, and 195 exercises in analysis. Price 2s., sent post free. Tonic Sol-fa Agency.

THE TONIC SOL-FA REPORTER, the Organ of the Tonic Sol-fa Movement, published on the 1st and 15th of every month, and containing sixteen pages of letterpress, and eight of music. The Illustrated London News says:—"Under the management of the editor it has become a miscellany full of instructive matter, embracing articles on every variety of topic connected with musical science and art, contributed by the ablest pens, and interesting not only to the students of Mr. Curwen's peculiar system, but to every person who seeks for knowledge in the widest sense of the word." Price One Penny; Annual Subscription, post free, 3s.—Tonic Sol-fa Agency, 8, Warwick-lane, London, E.C.

NOW READY.
NEW EDITION, CORRECTED TO JUNE, 1873,
NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S
CATALOGUE, No. 6,
CONTAINING
SACRED MUSIC WITH LATIN WORDS.
GRATIS ON APPLICATION, OR SENT POST FREE FOR ONE STAMP.

JUST PUBLISHED, AN OCTAVO EDITION OF
HANDEL'S THEODORA.
In Vocal Score, with a separate accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte.
Price in paper cover, 3s. Scarlet cloth, 5s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOW READY.
HANDEL'S BELSHAZZAR,
Oratorio in Vocal Score, with Accompaniment for Organ or Pianoforte.
EDITED BY G. A. MACFARREN.
Octavo, paper cover, 3s. Cloth gilt, 5s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

New Edition just published, price 14d.
SOUND THE LOUD TIMBREL.
THE WORDS WRITTEN BY THOMAS MOORE.
THE MELODY COMPOSED BY AVISON.
Arranged for One or Four Voices. THE MUSICAL TIMES, No. 127.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

MOZART'S MASSES,
Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, Oblong quarto, 2 volumes,
14s. each.
HAYDN'S MASSES,
Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, Oblong quarto, 2 volumes,
14s. each.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.
Price in paper, 2s.; scarlet cloth, 3s. 6d.
HENRY FARMER'S MASS IN B_b,
With the Latin words, and an English adaptation to the Communion Service,
By the REV. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

"This beautiful composition has been so long before the public, and its merit so distinctly recognised, that we have no need here to introduce a single word of criticism upon its musical value. Our object in mentioning it at all is to call attention to its recent publication in a handsome and convenient form. In a small volume of clear and legible print, the musician can now obtain the whole of the Mass in Vocal Score, with an Accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte."— Nottingham Guardian.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

THE MESSIAH,

FACSIMILE OF THE
AUTOGRAPH SCORE,

Executed in Photolithography by VINCENT BROOKS,
DAY and SON, from the Original in the Library at Buckingham Palace, by permission of Her Majesty the QUEEN. Bound in cloth boards, bevelled edges, gilt lettered, red edges, 21s.; also on fine toned paper, gilt edges, 31s. 6d.

London:
Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street (W.), and 35, Poultry (E.C.).

DOWN IN A FLOW'RY VALE.

MADRIGAL FOR FOUR VOICES.

BY CONSTANTIUS FESTA,

In A for Mixed Voices, and in F for Male Voices.

A new Edition of the MUSICAL TIMES, No. 3, price 14d., is just published, containing the above Madrigal, with the original English words by THOMAS OLIPHANT, and the second verse by F. W. R., commencing "Soon as I careless strayed."
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S ONLY COMPLETE AND
UNIFORM EDITION OF MENDELSSOHN'S
THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS,
With the German and W. BARTHOLOMEW'S Original English Words.
Complete in One Volume, folio, 5s. net. Octavo, paper, 2s. net; cloth gilt, 4s. net; or singly, 2s. each. The separate Numbers are sold at half-price.

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| No. 1. I would that my love. | No. 7. My bark is bounding. |
| 2. The passage bird. | 8. Can I light-hearted be. |
| 3. Greeting. | 9. Evening song. |
| 4. Autumn song. | 10. Zuleika and Hassan. |
| 5. O wert thou in the cauld blast. | 11. The Sabbath morn. |
| 6. The Maybells and the flowers. | 12. The harvest field. |
| | 13. Song from Ruy Blas. |

N.B.—The Quarto score to No. 13, 1s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PSYCHE:
A DRAMATIC CANTATA
FOR SOLO VOICES AND CHORUS.
The Words by V. A. C. AMCOTTS.
THE MUSIC BY J. F. H. READ.
Vocal score, with Pianoforte accompaniment, price 5s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S
POPULAR PART-SONGS FOR S.A.T.B. 8vo.

1. "I love the merry spring-time" ..	15th edition ..	0 2
2. "Gaily thro' the greenwood" ..	19th " ..	0 2
3. "Welcome, merry May" ..	6th " ..	0 2
4. "The mountain Maid" ..	5th " ..	0 2
5. "Come o'er the mountain" ..	8th " ..	0 2
6. "Hail, merry, merry Christmas" ..	13th " ..	0 2
7. "Songs of praise the angels sang" ..	5th " ..	0 3
8. "Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow" ..	6th " ..	0 3
9. "Fairy revels" ..	7th " ..	0 3
10. "Oh! peaceful vale of rest" ..	5th " ..	0 1½
11. "The merry bird" ..	5th " ..	0 3
12. "Come, let us be merry and gay" ..	4th " ..	0 3
13. "Forest echoes" ..	6th " ..	0 3
14. "Haste ye, merry elves" ..	5th " ..	0 3
15. "The streamlet" (with Soprano solo) ..	2nd " ..	0 3

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.
Messrs. Forsyth Brothers, Regent-street, London, and Cross-street, Manchester.

TEN TRIOS for FEMALE VOICES, composed
by CARL REINECKE. (Op. 100.) 8vo., 1s. 6d.; or singly—
No. 1. "The Dreaming Lake," 2d.
" 2. "Praise of Spring," 3d.
" 3. "Of Oak thy mournful bier's prepared," 3d.
" 4. "Sunbeams in Winter," 2d.
" 5. "The Awakening of Morn," 3d.
" 6. "The Winter hath not a blossom," 3d.
" 7. "Thou that thyself with death hath striven," 2d.
" 8. "The Evening Wind," 3d.
" 9. "As in a field goodly fruit will grow," 3d.
" 10. "The Elves," 3d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

NEW EDITIONS (OCTAVO)
OF
ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &c.
PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

BACH.—God's Time is the best	...	1s. od.
" The Passion (St. John)	...	2s. od.
FARMER, H.—Mass in B flat	...	2s. od.
N. W. GADE.—The Erl-King's Daughter	...	1s. 6d.
" Spring's Message	...	0s. 8d.
CH. GOUNOD.—De Profundis (Psalm 130)	...	4s. od.
HANDEL.—Belshazzar	...	3s. od.
" Theodora	...	3s. od.
F. HILLER.—A Song of Victory	...	2s. od.
G. A. MACFARREN.—Outward Bound	...	2s. 6d.
R. SCHUMANN.—Paradise and the Peri	...	2s. 6d.
H. SMART.—The Bride of Dunkerron	...	2s. 6d.
A. S. SULLIVAN.—Festival Te Deum	...	2s. od.

NOW READY,

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS,

VOLUMES I., II., III.,

Handsomely bound in Cloth,

PRICE SEVEN SHILLINGS EACH.

CONTENTS OF VOL. I.

Come unto Him ...	Ch. Gounod
Glory be to God on High ...	S. S. Wesley
O Love the Lord ...	A. S. Sullivan
This is the day ...	J. Turle
Blessing, glory ...	B. Tours
I will wash my hands ...	E. J. Hopkins
Judge me, O God ...	Mendelssohn
O taste, and see ...	Sir J. Goss
All ye who weep ...	Ch. Gounod
My God, my God ...	Mendelssohn
O day of penitence ...	Ch. Gounod
O come near to the cross ...	Ch. Gounod
This is the day ...	John Sewell
O praise the Lord ...	J. Barnby
Blessed be the God and Father ...	S. S. Wesley
O give thanks unto the Lord ...	Sir G. J. Elvey
O give thanks unto the Lord ...	William Rea
Lift up your heads ...	J. L. Hopkins
Therefore with angels ...	V. Novello
With angels and archangels ...	J. L. Hopkins
Praise the Lord, O my soul ...	Sir John Goss
Word of God incarnate ...	Ch. Gounod
Why rage fiercely the heathen ...	Mendelssohn
As the hart pants ...	Ch. Gounod
O Lord, our Governour ...	H. Gadsby
Wherewithal shall a young man ...	H. Hiles

CONTENTS OF VOL. II.

I will magnify Thee, O God ...	Sir John Goss
Fear not, O land ...	Sir John Goss
I will give thanks unto Thee, O Lord ...	J. Barnby
All Thy works praise Thee, O Lord ...	E. H. Thorne
The Wilderness ...	Sir John Goss
I was glad when they said ...	Sir G. J. Elvey
In Thee, O Lord, have I put my trust ...	B. Tours
O God, Thou art worthy to be praised ...	A. S. Sullivan
O God, have mercy ...	J. Baptiste Calkin
Sing praises unto the Lord ...	Ch. Gounod
Lead, kindly light ...	J. Stainer
Remember now thy Creator ...	C. Steggall
The Lord is loving ...	G. M. Garrett
O praise God in His holiness ...	T. T. Trimnell
The Lord is King ...	T. T. Trimnell
O give thanks unto the Lord ...	Sir John Goss
Hosanna to the Son of David ...	G. A. Macfarren
The Lord is great in Sion ...	W. T. Best
Prepare ye the way of the Lord ...	G. M. Garrett
Father of Heaven ...	T. Attwood Walmisley
O how amiable are Thy dwellings ...	J. Barnby
O how plentiful is Thy goodness ...	T. M. Pattison
God be merciful unto us ...	S. S. Wesley
The Lord is my light ...	H. Hiles
O Saving Victim (No. 2)...	Ch. Gounod
Come and let us return ...	Sir John Goss

CONTENTS OF VOL. III.

If we believe that Jesus died ...	Sir John Goss
Lord, let me know mine end ...	Sir John Goss
Ponder my words ...	H. Gadsby
Awake, awake, put on ...	J. Stainer
What are these that are arrayed ...	J. Stainer
If ye then be risen ...	John Naylor
Praise the Lord, O my soul ...	S. S. Wesley
Rejoice greatly ...	H. Gadsby
In Christ dwelleth ...	Sir John Goss
Thou, O God, art praised in Sion ...	S. Wesley
Praise the Lord, O my soul ...	G. M. Garrett
Blessed is the man ...	Sir John Goss
Behold now, praise ye the Lord ...	J. Baptiste Calkin
O give thanks ...	S. S. Wesley
The Lord is my Shepherd ...	Franz Schubert
Stand up and bless the Lord ...	Sir John Goss
Wherewithal shall a young man ...	Sir G. J. Elvey
Praise the Lord ...	Sir G. J. Elvey
O praise the Lord with me ...	Sir F. Ouseley
Thou wilt keep him ...	Dr. Gauntlett
I will cry unto God ...	C. Steggall
We have heard with our ears ...	A. S. Sullivan
God said, Behold I have given you every herb... ..	G. A. Macfarren
We give Thee thanks, O Lord ...	G. A. Macfarren
Blessed are they that always keep judgment ...	W. H. Monk
I will magnify Thee, O God, my King ...	J. B. Calkin

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry.

"Studies serve for delight, for ornament, and ability. * * * *
There is no stond or impediment in the wit, but may be wrought out by fit studies."—Lord Bacon.

NOVELLO'S LIBRARY

FOR THE DIFFUSION OF

MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE.

THEORETICAL SERIES.

I.
CHERUBINI'S TREATISE ON COUNTER-POINT AND FUGUE. Bound in cloth, 6s. 6d.

II.
DR. MARX'S GENERAL MUSICAL INSTRUCTION. Bound in cloth, 6s. 6d.

III.
FETIS' TREATISE ON CHOIR AND CHORUS SINGING. In paper wrapper, 1s.

IV.
MOZART'S SUCCINCT THOROUGH-BASS SCHOOL. In paper wrapper, 10d.

V.
CATEL'S TREATISE ON HARMONY. In paper wrapper, 2s. 6d.

VI.
ALBRECHTSBERGER'S collected Writings on THOROUGH-BASS, HARMONY and COMPOSITION, for Self-Instruction. Vol. I., Harmony and Thorough-Bass, 3s. 6d. Vols. II. and III., Guide to Composition, each 3s. 6d. Three Vols. in one, cloth, 10s. 6d.

VII.
BERLIOZ, TREATISE ON MODERN INSTRUMENTATION AND ORCHESTRATION. (Second Edition.) Containing an exact table of the compass; a sketch of the mechanism and study of the quality of tone (timbre) and expressive character of various instruments; together with a large number of examples in score, from the productions of the greatest Masters, and from some unpublished works of the Author. Bound in cloth, 12s.

VIII.
DR. CROTCH'S ELEMENTS OF MUSICAL COMPOSITION, with the Musical Examples properly combined with the Text. 4s. 6d.

IX.
SABILLA NOVELLO'S VOICE AND VOCAL ART; a Treatise written for the use of Teachers and Students of singing, with anatomical illustrations of the vocal instrument. In paper wrapper, 1s.

X.
SILCHER'S SUCCINCT INSTRUCTIONS for the GUIDANCE OF SINGING SCHOOLS and CHORAL SOCIETIES. 6d.

XI.
NAGELI and PFEIFFER'S EIGHTY-ONE PART-SONGS and CHORUSES; in Progressive Order for the Cultivation of Part-Singing. With Instructions for forming and improving Male Choral Singers. In paper cover, 2s. Bound in cloth, gilt, 3s.

PRACTICAL SERIES.

LI.
RINK'S PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL. (Ob- long Folio Edition.) Carefully revised, with the German directions and terms translated into English, and the pedal part printed on a separate staff. The whole edited by W. T. Best. Bound in cloth, 20s.; or in 6 books, 4s. each.

LII.
GUHR'S PAGANINI'S ART OF PLAYING THE VIOLIN (An Appendix to all other Violin Schools which have as yet appeared), with a Treatise on Single and Double Harmonic Notes. Translated from the German by SABILLA NOVELLO. The musical examples revised by W. G. CUSINS. In paper wrapper, 6s.

LIII.
KALKBRENNER'S METHOD OF LEARNING THE PIANOFORTE, with the aid of the Manual-Guide, containing the Principles of Music, a complete system of fingering, a classification of authors to be studied, rules on expression, on manners of phrasing, on musical punctuation, etc.; followed by Twelve Studies. Dedicated to the Musical Academies of Europe. Translated from the French by SABILLA NOVELLO. With an appendix in furtherance of this system, by BARBARA GUSCHL. Price 10s. 6d.

F. PITMAN'S MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS. FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.

CALLCOTT'S HARMONIUM or CHAMBER ORGAN MELODIES, Sacred and Secular. Selected and arranged by W. H. CALLCOTT. New and cheaper edition, limp cloth, price 3s. 6d.

TWENTY-FOUR SKETCHES FOR THE ORGAN. With Pedal Obbligato. Composed by EDMUND T. CHIPP. New edition, reduced to 5s., limp cloth; also in 9 Books, 1s. each. Suitable both for the Church and Chamber Organ.

NEW CONCLUDING VOLUNTARIES. With Pedal Obbligato. All new Compositions by Modern Composers. 63 pages, full Music size, price 4s. Edited by Dr. T. L. FOWLE.

"The book contains some important compositions."—Sir Julius Benedict. "There is some fine music in the volume."—Sir George Elvey. "I have to thank you for your very useful Organ pieces."—Sir F. Gore Ouseley.

FIFTY EASY VOLUNTARIES FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM, comprising Fifty new Compositions by Modern Composers. Edited by Dr. T. L. FOWLE. Fifth edition, cloth, price 2s.

FIFTY-TWO VERY EASY VOLUNTARIES. Composed by Dr. FOWLE. For the Harmonium or Organ, with the stops carefully marked, to assist young players. Second edition, paper cover, price 1s.

THE HARMONIUM CABINET. Popular Secular and Sacred Pieces, easily arranged for the Harmonium or Pianoforte. Each Part comprises 18 pages full Music size, and contains about 40 pieces. Nos. 13 and 14, price 6d. (the first two Numbers of Part 3) contain the National Airs of various Nations, comprising 19 pieces. In Two Parts, 1s. 6d. each.

EASY ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &c., FOR SMALL SOCIETIES AND THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

PARADISE. FAWCETT'S Popular Easy Oratorio. The second edition of the cheap Vocal Score copy, with Pianoforte accompaniment, price 2s., is now ready. The Oratorio complete in Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. The following can also be had—Single Vocal parts, 1s. each; Orchestral parts, 3s. each. Folio edition, Vocal and Instrumental Score, cloth, red edges, 10s. 6d. Price 2s.

NATIVITY. An easy Cantata for Christmas. Compiled, Arranged, and partly Composed by C. WARD. Vocal Score, with accompaniment, price 6d. Tonic Sol-fa copy, 3d. Orchestral parts, 1s. each. Third edition, 28 pages in wrapper, price 6d.

DR. FOWLE'S CHRISTMAS CANTATA, containing Tuneful and Easy Music, consisting of Marches, Anthems, Hymns, Carols, and Glees. 32 pages in wrapper, price 6d.

IMPORTANT TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

THE SONG OF THE YEAR. A new Pastoral Cantata. Words by WILLIAM HAITE; Music Composed by J. J. HAITE. Limp cloth, 4s.; Cloth boards, gilt, 5s. An extra edition on superior paper, and handsomely bound, price 7s. 6d. The Choruses may be had separately, 3d. each. Just published, price 4s.

ABRAHAM'S SACRIFICE. A Sacred Cantata, composed by J. J. HAITE. Choruses separately, Nos. 1, 4, 6, and 11, 2d. each; No. 13, 3d. Paper cover, 3s.; cloth, 4s.

CRAMPTON'S SINGING-CLASS MANUAL. A complete and interesting Guide to Singing at Sight. 54 pages, cloth cover, 9d. Cloth cover, price 2s.

THE PART-SINGER. Volume III., containing 50 Sacred and Secular Part-Songs, &c., with accompaniment, including Original Compositions by H. Smart, G. A. Macfarren, J. L. Hatton, Elizabeth Stirling, A. S. Cooper, T. Crampton, and others. Limp cloth, 2s. each.

THE CHORISTER. A Cheap Reprint of popular easy Copyright Anthems, &c. Vol. 1, price 2s. contains 20 pieces. Vol. 2, price 2s. contains 30 pieces. The two Vols. in one, price 5s., bound in extra cloth. Tonic Sol-fa copies of most of the pieces are published, 1d. each. In wrapper, price 6d.

SIX TRIOS FOR LADIES' VOICES. Arranged with Pianoforte accompaniment by T. CRAMPTON. In wrapper, price 6d.

TEN OPERA PART-SONGS AND CHORUSES. Arranged with Pianoforte accompaniment by T. CRAMPTON. Limp cloth, price 1s. 2d.

CHORAL BEAUTIES. A Collection of Twelve Popular Anthems in the Common Notation with Tonic Sol-fa on same page, and Pianoforte accompaniment.

F. PITMAN'S CATALOGUE OF HANDSOMELY BOUND VOLUMES, SUITABLE FOR PRESENTATION, SENT FREE ON APPLICATION.

LONDON: F. PITMAN, 20, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

FRIDOLIN:

COMPOSED BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

The Score complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, paper cover	-	-	-	-	-	6	0
Ditto ditto bound in cloth	-	-	-	-	-	8	0
"Repose and Peace" (sung by Madame Sherrington)	-	-	-	-	-	3	0
"Wildest Conflicts" (sung by Mr. Santley)	-	-	-	-	-	3	0

The Wind Parts may be hired. A liberal allowance will be made to all Choral Societies performing "Fridolin."

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET.

CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS.

1.	Hymn of the Fishermen's Children	Adapted to a Melody from Herold's "MARTA"
2.	Fays and Elves (In mia fe)	From Flotow's "ZAMPA"
3.	Spring's Bright Glances (In Elvezia non v'ha)	From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA"
4.	From Yonder Vale and Hill (D'immenso giubilo)	From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR"
5.	Here we Rest (Qui la selva)	From Bellini's "LA SONNAMBULA"
6.	Onward to Battle (Squilli e cheggi)	From Verdi's "TROVATORE"
7.	Rataplan (Rataplan)	From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO"
8.	The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche)	From Verdi's "IL TROVATORE"
9.	War Song of the Druids (Dell' aura tua profetica)	From Bellini's "NORMA"
10.	In Mercy, hear us! (Cielo clemente)	From Donizetti's "LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO"
11.	Come to the Fair! (Accorete, giovinette)	From Flotow's "MARTA"
12.	Friendship (Per te d'immenso giubilo)	From Donizetti's "LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR"
13.	Awake, the Morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen)	From Auber's "MASANIELLO"
14.	Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus)	From Gounod's "FAUST"
15.	The soft Winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus)	From Weber's "PRECIOSA"
16.	See how lightly on the blue sea (Senti la danza invitaci)	From Donizetti's "LUCRECIA BORGIA"
17.	See the Moonlight Beam (Non fav Motto)	"
18.	On yonder rocks reclining	" ... From Auber's "FRA DIAVOLO"
19.	Happy and light	From Balfe's "BOHEMIAN GIRL"
20.	Come, come away (Ah! que de moins)	From Donizetti's "LA FAVORITA"
21.	Hymen's torch (Il destin)	From Meyerbeer's "LES HUGUENOTS"
22.	Come on, Comrade (The Celebrated Chorus of Old Men)	From Gounod's "FAUST"
23.	'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Choral of the Cross)	"
24.	O Balmy night (Com è gentil)	From Donizetti's "DON PASQUALE"

Postage free, 1½d. each; or 3 for 3½d.
(To be continued.)

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON.

791

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped; those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c. can only ensure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 369.—Vol. 16.
Registered for transmission abroad.

NOVEMBER 1, 1873.

Price 2d. ; Post-free, 2½d.
Annual Subscription, Postage free, 2s. 6d.

TWO BOYS WANTED for Perth Cathedral Choir.

Must have thoroughly good Treble voices, and able to read Music fairly. The Boys will receive a Classical and Musical Education, with board and lodgings. Apply at once to Dr. Linter, Organist, 16, Barossa-place, Perth, N. B.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.—A few CHORISTER BOYS are REQUIRED to take part in the Sunday evening Congregational Service, and to attend a weekly Rehearsal. Remuneration from £3 to £5 a year, according to ability. Apply to the Organist.

SOPRANO.—WANTED a Lady, capable of taking the Solo and Verse parts of Anthems and Services. No Mezzo-Soprano need apply. Stipend £10 per annum. Address Rev. W. G. Martin, Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, Old Kent-road, S.E.

SOPRANO SINGERS.—WANTED, Two Ladies in the Choir of South-place Chapel, Finsbury. Must be able to take solos, and read fluently at sight. Sunday morning Service only. Salary £10 per annum. Apply by letter, stating qualifications, to G. H., 20, Smithfield, E.C.

SOPRANO WANTED for a Church in Kensington. No week-day practice. Good voice and good Reader indispensable. Apply to Organist, 163, Piccadilly, W.

WANTED, a SOPRANO for a City Church. Sunday morning, Service; Wednesday evening, practice. Choral Service. Good reader indispensable. Moderate salary. Apply to Mr. Bicknell, 4, Primrose-street, Bishopsgate, E.C.

BOYS WANTED for the Surpliced Choir of St. James', Westmoreland-street, Marylebone. Remuneration from £1 10s. to £5. Apply at the Church, Friday evenings, 8 to 9.30, or Sundays after Morning or Evening Service.

SOPRANO as LEADER for Church Choir at Clapham Junction. A Lady residing near desired. £10 per annum. Address D., 5, Cologne-road, New Wandsworth.

LEADING TREBLE (BOY) WANTED for the Choir of Trinity Church, Gray's-inn-road. Salary according to ability. Apply at the Church on Friday evenings at 8.

ALTO or CONTRALTO WANTED immediately for a City Church. Two Sunday Services; one Weekly practice. Salary £10. Address H. J. White, 48, Lordship-road, N.

ST. MARY'S, ALDERMANBURY.—Two ALTOS are WANTED at once. Two Services on Sunday, and one week Evening Rehearsal. Stipend £6 per annum. A good TREBLE, with a knowledge of Music, also REQUIRED. Address Choirmaster as above.

ALTO, Good Voice and Singer, REQUIRED for a Church at Kensington. Stipend £20. Address J., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

ALTO SINGER WANTED for the Choir of Trinity Church, Gray's-inn-road. Salary £10 per annum. Apply at the Church on Friday evenings at 8.

TENOR WANTED for a Church at the West End. Two Services and Weekly Rehearsal. Stipend £10. Apply by letter to Choirmaster, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

ALTO, TENOR, BASS, and Two LEADING TREBLES WANTED for the Surpliced Choir of an East-End Church. Services choral. Duties, Sunday morning and evening, with weekly practice. Salary £8 to 12. Apply by letter to the Vicar, 12, Commercial-place, Commercial-road East, E.

LICHFIELD CATHEDRAL CHOIR.—WANTED a Supernumerary Singer with TENOR VOICE. Salary £60 per annum. Testimonials as to character and quality of voice to be sent to Charles Gresley, Esq., Chapter Clerk, the Close, Lichfield, on or before Nov. 15th.

A TENOR REQUIRED for a Church at Upper Norwood. Two Services on Sunday, and Friday evening practice. For particulars, apply to Edward Basley, 4, Malcolm-terrace, Upper Lewisham-road, S.E.

WANTED a TENOR for the Choir of St. George's Church, Hanover-square. Salary £10 per annum. Applications to be addressed to the Organist, St. George's Church, Hanover-square.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY. SECOND SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1873.

BACH'S SACRED ORATORIO, THE PASSION

(ACCORDING TO S. MATTHEW.)

MISS EMILY SPILLER,
MADAME PATEY,
MR. W. H. CUMMINGS,
AND
MR. THURLEY BEALE.

CONDUCTOR . . . MR. BARNBY.

ORGANIST . . . DR. STAINER.

BAND AND CHORUS OF 1200.

Doors open at Seven o'clock. Commence at Eight.

Boxes, £3 3s., £2 10s., and £1 10s.; Stalls, 7s. 6d. and 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Novello's, 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry, the usual agents, and at the Royal Albert Hall.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY. THIRD SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1873.

HANDEL'S ISRAEL IN EGYPT.

(With additional accompaniments by G. A. MACFARREN.)

MISS EDITH WYNNE,
MADAME PATEY.
MR. SIMS REEVES,
&c., &c.

CONDUCTOR . . . MR. BARNBY.

Tickets, as above, at Novello's, 1, Berners Street, and 35, Poultry, the usual agents, and at the Royal Albert Hall.

VOICES are greatly needed for the Choir of the Parish Church, South Hackney. New Choir Stalls have been added. Full Choral Services; Surpliced Choir. Gentlemen willing to help are requested to write to the Choirmaster, 8, Church-place, South Hackney, E.

WANTED, a TENOR VOICE for the Choir of Christ Church, Streatham-hill. Services morning and evening on Sundays and Good Friday, and the morning of Christmas Day. Salary at the rate of 10 guineas per annum. Apply at Christ Church Vicarage, Roupell-park, Brixton-hill.

BASS or BARITONE.—Attendance on Sunday morning only. Must be able to read. £7 a year. Apply to the Organist, Church of St. Dunstan-in-the-East, near the Custom House, Thames-street, on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 16th, from 4 to 5 o'clock.

BASS WANTED for the Choir of S. Philip's Church, Kensington. Two Services on Sunday; practice on Friday evenings. Salary £15 per annum. Apply in the first instance by letter, enclosing testimonials, &c., to the Choirmaster of S. Philip's, 23, Eardley-crescent, West Brompton, S.W.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.—There will shortly be VACANCIES in the Sunday Evening Choir for a few qualified AMATEURS. Apply to the Organist.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON

Begs to announce that all Letters for Engagements must be addressed directly to herself at 53, Finchley-road, N.W. Communications made through "agents" will receive no attention.

MISS ELLEN GLANVILLE (Soprano),
2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, W.

MRS. WILSON JACKSON (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address 56, Lee-crescent, Birmingham.

MISS KNOWLES (Soprano),
(Pupil of Mrs. Sunderland.) For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address Robert Town, Millbridge, Normanton.

MISS GRACE ARMYTAGE (Primo Soprano),
2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS CLELLAND (Soprano).
For Terms and Critiques, address 51, Elizabeth-street, Cheetham-hill-road, Manchester.

MISS CHAPLIN (Soprano).
Address City of London College, 52, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

MISS DUMVILLE (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address 51, Cheetham-street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MRS. WARREN (Soprano),
Of Mr. C. Hallé's Concerts. For Oratorio or other Concerts, address 150, Radnor-street, Hulme, Manchester.
Lessons in Singing. References—Charles Hallé, Esq., and Edward Hecht, Esq.

MISS JULIA JONES (Soprano).
For Concerts, &c., address 1, North-place, Cheltenham.

MISS M. B. CRICHTON (Primo Soprano).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address 98, St. Andrew's Villas, Preston-street, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MISS AGNES LARKCOM (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 14, Bedford-street, Reading.

MISS JOSEPHINE PULHAM (Soprano)
(Of the Royal Polytechnic), is open to Engagements for Operettas, Concerts, Dinners, &c. 12, Park-street, Greenwich.

MADAME HELENA WALKER
Begs to announce that all communications respecting Engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., must be addressed to her residence, 6, West Bank-road, Edge-lane, Liverpool.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto),
50, Elmore-street, Islington, N.

MADAME RIPPON (Contralto), and
A. F. RIPPON (Violinist, Soloist, or Leader).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address Schubert House, Crown-street, Reading.

MISS KATE BROOKS (Contralto),
Open to a Church Engagement. Good sight reader. Address 279, Regent-street, W.

MISS EDITH CLELLAND (Contralto).
For Oratorios and Miscellaneous Concerts, address 51, Elizabeth-street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MISS JULIA DERBY (Contralto).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address 57, Eleanor-road North, Dalston.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).
Open to Engagements for Concerts, Oratorios, Dinners, &c.
Address 95, St. Paul's-road, Lorrimer-square, S.E.

MR. J. H. PEARSON (Alto Vocalist).
For Concerts, &c., address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
Address 1, Berners-street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
For Concerts, Pupils, &c., 7, Alma Square, St. John's Wood.

MR. M. KENNEDY (Tenor),
Carlisle Cathedral. Address 10, Fisher-street, Carlisle.

MR. N. DUMVILLE (Principal Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. W. B. LING (Tenor),
Principal Tenor, Trinity College, Cambridge. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.

MR. HENRY TAYLOR (Tenor),
107, Hampden-street, Bolton, Lancashire.

WILLIAM DUMVILLE (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, &c., address 5, Elwington-street, Hulme, or the Cathedral, Manchester.

W. M. DYSON (Tenor).

For Oratorios or Concerts, address Cathedral Choir, Worcester.

THOMAS ALLEN (Principal Tenor),
Church of the Holy Name, Oxford-street, Manchester. For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, &c., address Messrs. Turner and Sons, Musicsellers, 38, Deansgate, Manchester.

MR. H. T. BYWATER (Tenor),
Of the Liverpool, Birmingham, and Glasgow Concerts. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address 40, Darlington-street, Wolverhampton.

MR. T. COOPER (Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address S. John's-road, Newbold, Chesterfield.

HENRY BRIGGS (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address Quarry Hill House, Leeds.

T. W. HANSON (Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address Cathedral Choir, York.

MR. GEORGE W. B. CREAK (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Dinners, &c., address Cathedral, Ely.

CARLOS LOVATT, Vocalist (Baritone).
For Oratorios and Miscel. Concerts, address Cathedral, Manchester.

WILFRED SHARPE (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, or Lecture Entertainments, address 7, Brighton-terrace, Victoria-park.
Opinions of the Press forwarded on application.

HENRY C. SANDERS (Baritone),
(Of S. Andrew's, Wells-st.) 2, Athalstane-villas, Stroud-green-road, N.

MR. W. T. BRIGGS (Bass),
Chapel Royal, St. George's, Windsor.

C. D. COLLET (Bass, Teacher of Singing),
Sunny-bank, Hazleville-road, Hornsey-lane, Highgate, N.

MR. HUDSON LISTER (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. O. CHRISTIAN (Basso).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address 18, Adelaide-square, Windsor.

MISS KOHLER (Professor of the Pianoforte),
39, Coleshill-street, Eaton-square, S.W.

MISS AMY PERCY,
Solo Pianist and Accompanist. For Concerts, Dinners, Soirées, &c., address by letter only, 2, Percy-terrace, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, or South-street, Bishop's Stortford.

MR. CHARLES JOSEPH FROST
(Organ, Harmonium, and Pianoforte).
Removed to 2, Newton-terrace, High-road, Lee, S.E.
VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

MR. J. TILLEARD,
Removed to Seaton-villa, Slaithwaite-road, Lewisham, S.E.
Lessons in Singing and Composition.

T. R. WILLIS, Organ Builder,
29, Minories, London, E. Wood and Metal Pipe Maker.
Voicing, Tuning, and Repairing. List sent for stamp.
Second-hand Organs for Sale.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 49, Minories, London. List for stamp.

IMPORTANT TO MUSIC SELLERS.—Having the largest varied Stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC ENGRAVED, PRINTED, AND PUBLISHED in the best style, and on moderate terms, a statement of which sent on application by B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions, Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-Instruction books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell-road, Clerkenwell, London.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices at J. MOORE'S, Buxton-road, Huddersfield. Patterns and prices post free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post free.
Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 9th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholfield, Trinity-street, Huddersfield.

CROGER'S CELEBRATED VIOLIN STRINGS, 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 5s. 6d. per Bundle. Soloists' Italian Firsts, 6s. per dozen, the finest ever imported. Croger's Warehouse, 184, Whitechapel-road. Several rare old Violins on sale. Established 30 years.

ORGAN FACTORY, 141, Stanhope-street, Hampstead-road.—T. NORTON being about retiring, has for SALE on moderate terms, ORGANS from four to fifteen stops, suitable for Church, Chapel, or Drawing Room. Also, well-seasoned Stock for Amateurs and Gentlemen building their own instruments.

E. & W. SNELL'S IMPROVED HARMONIUMS. 37, Kelly-street, Kentish-town, London, N.W.

CC ORGAN for SALE, nearly New, containing 2 manuals, 12 stops, 2½ octaves of bourdon pedals; height 12 ft.; width 6 ft.; depth 4 ft. 3 in. Price 70 guineas; a genuine bargain. Address Dulciana, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street.

FOR SALE.—ORGAN, 4 stops, now in London. £16. Must be sold.—E. Edwards, Chesham, Bucks.

CC ORGAN for SALE, in thorough condition, contains 6 stops in great organ and 3 in swell organ. Swell to great, 1½ octaves of pedals, 2 composition pedals. Price 50 guineas. A genuine opportunity. Carriage paid to Bristol station.—J. W. Kennard, Bishop's Sutton, near Bristol.

FOR SALE, a Small CHURCH ORGAN, with 4 stops, also 1½ octave German pedals; in modern stained case, good tone, and in excellent order. Price 30 guineas (a bargain). Apply to J. Spring, Jun., Auction and Valuation Office, Brigg.

ORGAN for SALE, New. Great Organ, 7 stops, swell ditto, 4 stops, separate bourdons. Apply to A. Hunter, Organ Builder, 379, Kennington-road, S.E.

CHANCEL ORGAN for SALE. 4 stops, been built about three years. To be seen at A. Hunter's Organ Factory, 379, Kennington-road, S.E.

SEVERAL Small ORGANS, 2 and 3 stops, very cheap.—A. Hunter, 379, Kennington-road, S.E.

ORGAN for SALE, Cheap, 5 stops, 1 octave of pedals, hand and foot blower.—E. B., 7, Brunel-street, Kennington-lane, London.

ORGAN for SALE, very Cheap, Second hand. Full compass, 6 stops, 1½ octaves German pedals, hand and foot blower.—L. M., 56, Queen's-row, Walworth-road, S.E.

CHURCH ORGAN, 65 Guineas. Tone very rich and powerful. Handsome speaking front; compass CC to G. Hammond and Sons, 366, Old Kent-road.

CLERGYMEN, ORGANISTS, and others desirous of Purchasing, Hiring, or Exchanging ORGANS, are invited to inspect the Register of Second-hand Instruments established by Messrs. J. J. Clemmons and Son, of No. 5, Finsbury-square, London, E.C. Detailed particulars may be obtained on application.

SMALL ORGANS with pedals, for Church or Chamber, from 35 guineas. HARMONIUMS, 5 octaves of organ tone, simple mechanism, for Chapels, Schools, or private use, from 6 guineas. PIANOFORTES, 7 octaves, from 21 guineas. Warranted. Rosewood COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, 2½ octaves of pedals. William Sprague, 7, Finsbury-pavement, London. Established 1837.

TO ORGANISTS.—For SALE, Square PIANO, by COLLARD, with mahogany organ pedal board, 2½ octaves, by Willis, price £15. To be seen at 62, Grosvenor-road, Highbury, N. (Opposite Canonbury station.)

FOR SALE, a PIANETTE, by BOOSEY, with pedals attached, both full compass, good tone, perfect mechanism. Price £20. Apply to C., 42 B, Hampstead-road, N.W.

HARMONIUM for SALE, in Hungarian Ash Case, ebonized. 15 stops, 4½ rows of reeds, quite new; lowest price, £23. Address B., Mr. Braus, 315, Kentish-town-road.

PEDAL PIANOFORTE to be SOLD, a bargain. The pedals and action entirely new; the Piano, a Square, by BROADWOOD. May be seen at Mr. Wedlake's, 28, Lyne-street, Camden-town, between half-past four and half-past six.

BOUDOIR GRAND PIANOFORTE, by BROADWOOD, for SALE. Compass C to A. Rosewood case. In the most perfect condition. Keys are bushed, and ivory fronted. Price (professional), 45 guineas. R. Fieldwick, 106, High-street, Putney, S.W. N.B.—Would take a Cottage Piano in part payment.

HARMONIUM for SALE, 2 manuals and coupler. W. Reeves, 52, Beaumont-square, E.

VIOLINS, Guaranteed Genuine. Joseph Guarnerius, 1719, and Lorenzo Guadagnini. For particulars, apply to Mr. A. Llewellyn, 27, Christ Church-road, Cloughton, Cheshire.

ITALIAN and OLD ENGLISH VIOLINS.—A Gentleman's High-class Collection for SALE. Address A. B., Mr. Brian's, 28, Devonshire-street, All Saints, Manchester.

OBOE for SALE. Superior Instrument; Silver keys, &c., price £10. Address P., Novello, Ewer and Co.

LITHO. COPYING.—The Cheapest System for preparing every kind of Music. All Amateurs should try it. Specimen. F. C. Wood, 32, Vincent-square, Westminster.

ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HARMONIUM, HARMONY, &c., One Guinea per quarter; Lessons and Practice on fine modern instruments. Organist, 22, London-street, E.C.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with Bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy-street, Bedford-square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN STUDIO, 166, STRAND.—LESSONS or PRACTICE (and at St. Michael's, Stockwell, S.W.) on fine two-manual C ORGANS—HILL and SON—Pedal compass, 29 notes. Apply to W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, at his Studio. (Organist, St. Michael's, Stockwell.)

ORGAN for PRACTICE. 2 manuals, full compass, 30 bourdon pedal pipes, CCC to F.—Mr. Warren's Organ Studio, 245, Kentish-town-road. Pianofortes tuned. Tram Cars and Omnibuses continually passing the door.

TO ORGANISTS.—PRACTICE may be had on a very fine ORGAN. Two manuals, swell, variety of stops, 2½ of pedals, and bourdon to CCC. Terms very moderate. Address E. Francis, Organist of St. Peter's (W.C.), 188, Upper-st., Islington, N.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION (Eighth Season). Mr. H. ASHTON, Mr. T. PEARSON, Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN, and Mr. J. RUDKIN, Assisted by Madame ASHTON, (Miss F. Danielson.)

Are prepared to give their Musical Entertainments at Institutions, &c. For terms, &c., address J. Rudkin, Sackville-house, Brook-green, Hammersmith, W.

THE LONDON VOCAL UNION.
Mr. J. HODGES, Gentleman of H. M. Chapel Royal.
Mr. J. STILLIARD, Of St. Paul's Cathedral.
Mr. W. A. FROST, Of St. Paul's Cathedral.
Mr. C. BECKETT, Gentleman of H. M. Chapel Royal.
Mr. A. KENNINGHAM, Of St. Paul's Cathedral.
Mr. J. THORNTON, Of St. Paul's Cathedral.
Mr. FRED. WALKER, Of St. Paul's Cathedral.
Mr. R. DE LACY, Of St. Paul's Cathedral.
Mr. F. H. HORSCROFT, Of St. Paul's Cathedral.
Mr. T. KEMPTON, Of St. Paul's Cathedral.
Conductor, Mr. FRED. WALKER.

For terms, apply to Mr. Fred. Walker, 3, Lawford-road, Kentish-town, or Mr. R. De Lacy, 41, Millbrook-road, Brixton, S.W.

THE LONDON CONCERT GLEE UNION.
Madame CLARA SUTER.
Mr. JOHN HODGES, Mr. KERR GEDGE,
Mr. FRED. WALKER, Mr. THURLEY BEALE,
Will be happy to accept Engagements for Concerts, Evening Parties &c. For terms, apply to Mr. Kerr Gedge, 76, St. Augustine's-road, Camden-square, N.W., or Mr. Fred. Walker, 3, Lawford-road, Kentish-town, N.W.

IMPORTANT SALE OF MUSICAL PROPERTY.
MESSRS. C. KELLY and Co. will SELL by AUCTION at their Repository, 11, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital, on Wednesday, November 10th, 1873, about SEVENTY PIANOFORTES by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Kirkman, Allison, &c. HARMONIUMS by Debain, Christophe, &c., a quantity of Modern Sheet Music and Sundries. May be viewed, and Catalogues had the day prior and Morning of Sale.

MUSIC BUSINESS.—The Stock and Goodwill of a well-established Business in one of the principal Midland Cities in England. A very favourable opportunity for investors in that Trade. For further particulars, apply to Mr. Frederick Lucas, Accountant, 26, Maddox-street, London, W.

12 S. WORTH OF MUSIC for One Shilling, post free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock. James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord-street, Liverpool.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
E P P S'S C O C O A.
BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.

MANUFACTURE of COCOA.—"We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Euston-road, London."—See Article in Cassell's Household Guide.

Made simply with boiling water or milk.
Each Packet is labelled
JAMES EPPS and Co., HOMOEOPATHIC CHEMISTS,
London.

REDUCED PRICE OF OUSELEY AND MONK'S POINTED PSALTER.

					s. d.
4to Edition, with Chants in Short Score	4 0
12mo Edition. Vocal parts	Each	1 6
32mo Edition. Words only	0 9
Ditto ditto with Proper Psalms	1 0

LONDON:

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 35, POULTRY (E.C.).

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK.—A Manual of Tunes and Chants, intended as a companion to all Hymn Books, containing 258 Tunes (100 varieties of metre), and 85 Single and Double Chants. The whole arranged in Short Score, and the Harmonies carefully selected from the best authorities, with ruled music paper for manuscript additions. Adopted in several hundred congregations. More than 100,000 copies have already been sold.

No. 1. Limp cloth, turned in 2s. 6d.

" 2. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered ... 3s. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

" 3. Limp cloth, turned in 2s. 6d.

" 4. Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered ... 2s. 6d.

Congregations or associations requiring large quantities may obtain them on special terms by application to the Bristol Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all booksellers and musicsellers.

NOW READY.

A New and Enlarged Selection of

PSALMS, HYMNS AND ANTHEMS, arranged for Congregational or Private use, by SAMUEL SMITH, Bradford. Very neat and compact, 218 pp. imperial 32mo.

In limp cloth, edges turned in 1 0

Cloth boards, coloured edges, gilt lettered 1 6

Roan, gilt edges, and lettered 2 0

London: Hamilton, Adams and Co.; and Novello, Ewer and Co.

Bradford: Thomas Brear.

THE BRADFORD TUNE BOOK and PSALMS and CHANTS, together or separate, supplied in all the various forms, as before.

Ninth Edition.

TUNES NEW AND OLD.—Comprising all the metres in the Wesleyan Hymn Book: also Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON, and for the most part revised and re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Sold also at 66, Paternoster-row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; cloth lettered, 4s.; cloth extra, gilt edges, 5s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges,

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 6d.

RULES in RHYMES and ROUNDS; or Musical Precept and Example, combined in easy Progressive Rounds and Canons, with Hints for Teaching Rounds. By the Rev. J. POWELL METCALFE, Author of "The School Round Book," Joint Editor of "The Rounds, Catches, and Canons of England," &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PROGRESSION OF CHORDS; Appendix to the Tritone. A Method of Harmony and Modulation. By JOSEPH GREEN. Price 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

"FROM INTERVALS TO COUNTERPOINT."

SCHOOL HARMONY: a Short Treatise for use in Schools, by BENNETT GILBERT. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., and all Musicsellers.

Just Published, post free, 1s. 8d.

THE ORGAN: Hints on its Construction, Purchase, and Preservation, by W. SHEPHERDSON, M.C.O. The Musical Standard Office, 185, Fleet-street.

A MANUAL OF SINGING,

FOR THE USE OF CHOIR TRAINERS & SCHOOLMASTERS.

By RICHARD MANN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight, in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWENTY-THIRD EDITION.

Price 1s. A specimen copy post free for 12 stamps.

THE COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning Music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Second Edition, 2s. 6d. nett.

(COMPANION WORK TO THE ABOVE.)

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Fourth edition. Paper cover, 1s.; bound cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; also the Gregorian Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Cramer, Wood and Co.

Just Published, price Sixpence.

JORDRELL'S MANUAL OF SIGHT SINGING on the Tonic or Moveable Doh System of Reading Old Notation Music, by means of which all who have a musical ear may readily learn to sing at sight, without the aid of an instrument.

London: C. Jefferys, 67, Berners-street; Manchester: E. Beswick, 44, Corporation-street; and from John Jordrell, Withington, near Manchester.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

W. H. BIRCH'S POPULAR OPERETTAS, now being performed throughout England. Sparkling, brilliant, and not difficult.

No. 1. The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.; single voice parts, 1s. each.

No. 2. Ballad Operetta—Katrine, the Pride of Killarney. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

No. 3. Eveleen, the Rose of the Vale. Vocal score, paper covers, 5s.

The above Operettas are written for a Full or Small Orchestra.

Choral Societies can hire the vocal scores, single voice parts, and band parts, on very moderate terms. See opinions of the press.

W. H. Birch, 76, Southampton Place, Reading.

Just Published.

NEW CHORAL SONG, "Lives of Great Men all remind us," by JOHN C. WARD, Organist of Quebec Chapel, and Mr. Henry Leslie's Choir. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

MUSIC FOR CLASSES

OF AN EASY CHARACTER, TO ALL OF WHICH CHEAP ORCHESTRAL PARTS ARE PUBLISHED.

PARADISE.—An Oratorio by J. FAWCETT. Cheap Vocal Score copy, with accompaniment, price 2s.; single Chorus parts, 1s. each. 1st and 2nd Violins, Viola, Violoncello, and Flute parts, 3s. each; Cornet, 1s. 6d. In Tonic Sol-fa Notation, 1s.

NATIVITY.—A very Popular Cantata, suitable for Christmas, illustrating in 17 movements the Birth of Christ. Vocal Score, with accompaniment, 6d. 1st and 2nd Violins, Viola, Violoncello, and Cornet, 1s. each.

The preceding are well adapted for performance by societies whose numbers are not sufficiently numerous to do justice to the Oratorios of Handel, &c.

BABYLON.—An Oratorio by J. NICHOLDS. Vocal Score copy, with accompaniment, 3s. 1st and 2nd Violins, Viola, Violoncello, and Flute parts, 3s. each. In Tonic Sol-fa, 1s.

FAWCETT'S VOICE OF HARMONY.—Anthems for Christmas, Easter, Anniversaries, and all ordinary and special occasions. Arranged for four voices, with accompaniment and with orchestral parts on same page. 90 Numbers, 6d. each. Cheap editions of some of the Anthems are published. List of contents on application.

London: F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster-row.

In wrapper, price 1s. (net), post free.

PITMAN'S SPECIMEN BOOK OF CHRISTMAS ANTHEMS, PART-SONGS, &c. This Book, containing nearly Forty Compositions published separately at 1d. to 3d. each, will be ready for sale about the 10th of November, and will be found a most useful Collection for Conductors of Choirs and others, who generally experience great difficulty in selecting suitable music from advertisements. Being sold at cost price, no reduction, beyond the postage, will be allowed to the Profession or Trade.

Price 1s. Sold at half-price.

CHRISTMAS CONCLUDING VOLUNTARY, composed by Dr. FOWLE. An easy and appropriate arrangement of Handel's Choruses, "For unto us a Child is born," and "Hallelujah."

Handsomely bound in extra cloth, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

SABBATH MELODIES for the FAMILY CIRCLE, composed by Dr. H. T. LESLIE. New and enlarged edition, containing 32 original Sacred Songs, and 6 Pieces for Harmonium or Pianoforte.

EASY MUSIC FOR HARMONIUM OR PIANOFORTE.

72 pages, full Music size, extra cloth, 5s.

THE HARMONIUM CABINET. Sacred and Secular Pieces easily arranged for Harmonium or Pianoforte. Also in 3 parts, 1s. 6d. each.

This Work supplies the long-felt want of a Collection of Popular Music, easily arranged, and suitable for either the Harmonium, American Organ, or Pianoforte. It contains 72 pages, and comprises about 120 compositions.

96 pages, extra cloth gilt, gilt edges, 3s.

PITMAN'S POPULAR and STANDARD SONG BOOK, with Choruses arranged for Four Voices and accompaniment.

This volume, containing 60 popular Songs, will be found to be one of the cheapest and most useful ever issued, while the addition of Choruses to most of the Songs renders it of additional value for family use.

WARD'S POPULAR TRIOS for AMATEURS. Two Violins (or Flutes), and Bass. In Shilling Numbers. No. 1 now ready, contains 12 pieces.

LONDON: F. PITMAN, 20, PATERNOSTER-ROW.

C. JEFFERYS, 67, BERNERS ST.
NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MICHAEL WATSON.

DIVINE TREASURES:—

No. 5. GLASTONBURY ABBEY. Gloria (the entire s. d.
Movement) from Mozart's 1st Mass ... 3 0

6. MUCKROSS ABBEY. Benedictus (the entire Movement) from Mozart's 1st Mass ... 3 0

THE LYRIC STAGE:—

No. 7. L'Ombre Flotow 4 0

8. Robert le Diable Meyerbeer 4 0

9. Il Trovatore Verdi 4 0

THE GRAND DUCHESS MARIE. A Wedding
March 3 0

Illustrated with Portrait in Colours.

PASSEPIED, in B flat 3 0

GAVOTTE, in B flat 3 0

TARENTELE, in B flat 3 0

BOURREE, in F 3 0

OLONAISE, in C 3 0

BOLERO, in A minor 3 0

LOUIS DUPUIS.

CATHEDRAL GEMS:—

No. 16. LINCOLN.—On subjects from Haydn's 4th
* Mass 3 0

17. ELY.—On subjects from Mozart's 2nd
Mass 3 0

GRAND OPERATIC DUETS.

Arranged by

No. 1.—Lohengrin (Wagner) ... J. Rummel 5 0

2.—Tannhäuser (do.) 5 0

3.—The Crown Diamonds (Auber) 5 0

4.—Galathée 4 0

5.—La Marquise (Boulanger) 4 0

6.—Ernani (Verdi) J. Lesage 5 0

7.—Il Don Giovanni (Mozart) 5 0

8.—La Gazza Ladra (Rossini) 5 0

WILLIE PAPE.

Il Trovatore (Verdi) 4 0

Martha (Flotow) 4 0

Saladin Grand March 4 0

JOHN OWEN.

MELODIOUS MELODIES:—

Twenty Subjects selected from the Works of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Heller, &c., arranged for the Organ or Harmonium. Price 2s. 6d. nett.

Now ready.

SONGS FOR CHILDREN.

Harmonized for School purposes by MICHAEL WATSON.
Price Sixpence.

This Selection consists of popular Copyright subjects, none of which can appear in similar collections. Great care has been taken in selecting the words.

LONDON: C. JEFFERYS,
THE BERNERS PIANOFORTE GALLERY,
67, BERNERS STREET, W.

CHOIRMASTER.—WANTED at South-place Chapel, Finsbury, a Gentleman to conduct the Choir, and arrange the Music; one who could take a solo part preferred. Sunday morning Service only. Salary £75 per annum. Apply by letter, stating qualifications, to G. H., 20, Smithfield, E.C.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman of several years' experience (educated by an eminent Cathedral Organist), requires a SITUATION at Christmas (Scotland preferred), where there is a good opening for a Music and Singing Master. Most satisfactory testimonials. Address X. Y. Z., Mrs. Finch's, Sussex-street, Norwich.

ORGANIST.—A Gentleman is open to ENGAGEMENTS as ASSISTANT, Town or Country.—A. G. W., 73, Renfrew-road, Kennington, S.E.

ORGANIST.—A Young Gentleman would be glad of an APPOINTMENT as above, in London or suburbs.—Mr. E. Straker, 9, Devonshire-terrace, Kingsland-green.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER having an evening each week disengaged, is willing to Train a Choir, or take a Service. Address Diapason, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

A CLERGYMAN'S SON is willing to DEPUTIZE Sundays or week-day, in return for Organ Practice. Address Cremona, care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

AN ORGANIST (Young), is desirous of obtaining an APPOINTMENT to a Church in or near London. Choral Service preferred. Is willing to accept a Situation as Assistant Organist. Address E. S. P., Novello, Ewer and Co., 35, Poultry, E.C.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of one of the largest Churches in London, having one evening a week disengaged, would be glad to conduct or form a Choir or Choral Society. Address A. B., Post-office, Clerkenwell-green, E.C.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—The Advertiser, who can be highly recommended, wishes for a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Salary no object, but a good Instrument required. Address M. D., Arsenal Post-office, Green's-end, Woolwich.

ORGANIST.—A Professional Gentleman would be glad of an APPOINTMENT as above in London or suburbs. Small stipend required to commence with.—W. H., 59, Elgin-road, Harrow-road, W.

ST. JOHN'S, KIDDERMINSTER.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Daily Choral Evensong. Salary £60. Applications to the Vicar by Nov. 17. If no reply by Nov. 24, please to consider the place filled.

ORGANIST and MASTER of the PAROCHIAL CHOIRS WANTED for Christ Church, Bray, Co. Wicklow. Stipend £60 per annum. Apply, with testimonials, to the Rev. W. Sherlock, Bray, Ireland.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED for the Parish Church of Mansfield, Notts. Restored Church, good Organ, and opening for Music Teacher in town and neighbourhood. Must be a consistent Churchman. Salary at present £30 per annum. Address the Vicar of St. Peter's, Mansfield, Notts.

WANTED a Gentleman to act as DEPUTY ORGANIST for six weeks. Probability of permanent engagement. Salary £30 per annum. Apply to the Organist, Sunninghill, Staines.

S. JOHN'S, LEICESTER.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, January 1st. Services, Anglican. Must be a really efficient Choir Trainer, a reverent Churchman, and a Communicant. An excellent opening for a good Music Teacher. Attendance on Sundays and certain Festivals. Salary £50. Address, with testimonials and references, the Vicar and Churchwardens, S. John's Vicarage, Leicester.

TO ORGANISTS.—WANTED, a RE-ENGAGEMENT as DEPUTY for a Sunday Afternoon or Evening Plain Service in the West End. Good reference. Address L. Gibson, Jun., 176, Piccadilly, W.

WANTED an ASSISTANT to take in charge twenty pupils and Sunday Organ duties, with prospect of being installed in a good Appointment. Applicants will please state qualification and salary required to G., Musical Times Office.

A YOUNG GENTLEMAN wishes to meet with an ENGAGEMENT as SOLO PIANIST and ACCOMPANIST. No objection to travel in any part of England. Highest references given. Address T. J. P., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER of 20 years' experience from Messrs. Collard and Collard, and Brard's, seeks a Permanent ENGAGEMENT as Out-door Tuner in or near London. First-class references. Address A., 1, Clarence-place, Soho-hill, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE TUNER.—WANTED a First-class Tuner and Repairer for the Country. Must be thoroughly competent. One who understands the Music Trade, and is a good Musician preferred. Apply by post, stating age, salary, and reference, to C. B. A. care of Mr. B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row.

AN Experienced TUNER requires an Out-door ENGAGEMENT for two or three days per week for London or Country. Can give good references. Address A. G. M., 15, Tavistock-place, Tavistock-square, London, W.C.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED.—One who could assist in a Music Shop preferred. Address W. P., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER seeks a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Good references. Address D. W., 33, Parchment-street, Winchester, Hants.

TO PIANOFORTE DEALERS and MUSIC SELLERS.—An Experienced Assistant seeks a RE-ENGAGEMENT in Town or Country. Unexceptionable references. Address C., care of Mr. Griffiths, Snells Park, Edmonton, London.

REPAIRER and TUNER.—Permanent ENGAGEMENT for an efficient, steady Workman. VACANCY also for a Junior COUNTER ASSISTANT. Address, stating references and salary, Messrs. Harrison, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE TUNER & REPAIRER WANTED for the Country. Address C. N., care of Mr. B. Williams, 19, Paternoster-row, London.

ENGLISH and FOREIGN PIANOFORTES.—A PIANOFORTE REPAIRER, TUNER, and REGULATOR of 25 years' experience, having a thorough knowledge of Church Organs, American Organs, Harmoniums, &c., will be ready for a RE-ENGAGEMENT after the 15th of this month, when his present Engagement will have ceased. References, &c., by applying to Arches, Post-office, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE TUNER of Good Ability and respectable character, WANTED for a House in Scotland. To a suitable man, the situation would be permanent. Apply to R. R., Musical Times Office.

PIANOFORTE.—A Young Man wants EMPLOYMENT as Tuner, Regulator, or Repairer in the Country. Address Clemens H., 10, Leigh-street, Burton-crescent.

WANTED by a Young Man a SITUATION as TUNER and REPAIRER. Has been used to Repairing in all its branches. Address A. G., 4, Cosmo-place, Russell-square, W.C.

AS TRAVELLER to Pianoforte Makers, Music Publishers, &c.—A Gentleman well-known to the Trade will be at liberty after 1st November. References as to ability and integrity to present employers.—J. H. Y., 85, Bridge-road, Hammersmith.

MADAME LAURA BAXTER (Member of the Royal Academy of Music, first principal Contralto, Royal Italian Opera, Drury Lane, Royal English Opera, Covent Garden, Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, &c.) begs to request that all communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios and Concerts may be addressed to her at her private residence, 53, Bedford-square, W.C.

MISS CLELLAND (who, as Principal Soprano, had the honour of appearing before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Lady Crawford's Grand Reception at Wigan), will SING at Pendleton Nov. 10th, Cheetham 17th, Burslem 19th, Leeds 22nd; Warrington (Dr. Hiles' "Crusaders") Dec. 16th, Church, Accrington ("Messiah") 22nd, Cheetham Dec. For critiques and terms, address 51, Elizabeth-street, York-street, Manchester.

MADAME THADDEUS WELLS begs to announce her RETURN to TOWN for the season. All letters respecting Engagements or Pupils to be addressed to 30 (removed from 15) Percy-street, Bedford-square, W.

REMOVAL.—MR. EDWIN BARNES to 107, Belsize-road, St. John's-wood, N.W.

MR. STOKOE has REMOVED to 72, Mayall-road, East Brixton, S.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass) will SING at Stockport Oct. 27th, Sheffield Nov. 4th, Ditto 5th ("Judas"), Oldham 8th, Bradford 17th ("Lay of the Bell"), Heckmondwike 28th Batley Dec. 8th ("St. Paul"), Ossett 9th ("St. Paul"), Heywood 16th ("Messiah"), Sheffield 24th and 25th ("Messiah").

BRIGHTON.—ARTICLED PUPIL.—MR. R. TAYLOR, Organist of Brighton College, and Conductor of the Sacred Harmonic Society, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. For particulars, address 17, Upper Rock Gardens, Brighton.

ARTICLED PUPIL.—A Professional Gentleman in the Eastern Counties is desirous of meeting with a respectable and gentlemanly Youth as an Articled Pupil for the Musical Profession. Magnificent Organ of forty stops for the pupil's practice. Address R. B. T., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.

A VACANCY for an APPRENTICE to the Music and Piano Business. Also for an ARTICLED PUPIL for the Musical Profession. Apply to Mr. Franz Groenings, Middlesborough.

THE MUSICAL TIMES, AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

NOVEMBER 1, 1873.

CHURCH MUSIC.

A PAPER READ AT THE CHURCH CONGRESS, BATH, 1873, By JOSEPH BARNBY.

BEFORE entering upon the consideration of the subject on which I have to ask your kind attention, I must be permitted to express my personal regret at the fact that Professor Oakeley is unable to officiate here this evening. We have all at various times enjoyed the genial and scholarly descriptions of musical doings at home and abroad, which have appeared from time to time in a well-known journal, until we have learned to look with pleasurable anticipation for the recurrence of the well-known initials, H. S. O. And thus no common interest was aroused by the announcement of the Professor's name in connection with a subject so interesting and important as Church Music. We all deplore the circumstances which have operated in preventing Professor Oakeley from fulfilling his intention of reading a paper here this evening, and while I endeavour to supply, as best I may, the void caused by his absence, I ask in the fullest measure for your kind indulgence, while I put before you, simply and briefly, my views on Church Music in its bearing and influence on public worship. The magnitude of the subject, and the limits to which I must necessarily confine myself, forbid my offering more than a mere outline for your consideration. But even a slight sketch may contain matter for future development; and faint as the outline may be which I shall lay before you this evening, it nevertheless represents the fruit of much earnest thought on my part, and the result of a concentrated labour and experience. What must necessarily be merely touched upon now may, I hope, be more satisfactorily elaborated at some future opportunity.

I do not propose this evening to consider the question in its historical or antiquarian aspect, except so far as it may be found necessary for the clear stating of certain points. My object is to say briefly what I consider to be the present condition of the musical service of the Church—to point out certain particulars in which that service may be thought to have fallen short of the high aim it is intended to fulfil, and briefly to indicate, so far as I am able, the means by which a greater completeness of result may be attained.

It may safely be asserted that there has been no want of interest, in our generation, in the musical services of the Church. Choral services have been established alike in Metropolitan Churches and in places of worship in remote rural districts. Surpliced Choirs have been set up, and much pains bestowed on their training and development; musical compositions for Church use, from the elaborate Anthem to the single Chant, have been multiplied in almost bewildering profusion. Hymnals and Pointed Psalters, carefully arranged and edited, have taken the place of the old collections, wherein the process of collecting seemed to be carried on upon the principle of picking up what was nearest to hand. These particulars only indicate a part of what has been done with infinite zeal and pains for the improvement of musical worship. But how much remains still to be accomplished. How often has not the zeal which prompted changes outrun the discretion which should have rendered them consistent in themselves, and proportionate to the aim in view. Have not the alterations introduced in some instances in certain parts of a Church service served, like patches of new cloth in an old garment, only to expose in a more glaring light the loop-holed raggedness of the rest? Speaking under correction, as a layman, I frankly consider, that on certain points, the Clergy, praise-worthy and valuable as their efforts in the direction of Church Music have been, might with advantage have availed themselves of the advice of a musician, or, to use a technical term, have procured a professional opinion. No man in a matter of importance in law or medicine would dream of being his own advocate, or his own doctor; at least, a very outspoken opinion has been expressed as to the mental status of him who adopts such a course. Why then should the man who would never consider himself independent of forensic and medical skill aspire to emancipate himself altogether from the influence of the technical knowledge which has reference to a difficult and elaborate art? But let me be not misunderstood. There are many curious shades of theological opinion in the English Church, and it is the province of the clergyman to determine the tone that shall be represented in any separate place of worship. But equally clearly I consider it to be the office of the musician to see that the tone of worship is consistently carried out in its musical phase, without exaggeration on the one hand, or incompleteness on the other. And here it is that difficulties often occur. Advice has been sought and given, and deliberately admitted to be good. Then comes in some little vexatious objection. "The choir would be disappointed if they were deprived of their part-singing"—"Our people are not accustomed to have the Psalms chanted"—"However bad the Tune may be, the congregation likes it, therefore it must stand;" and thus the arrangements made, having no unity of plan or definite purpose, simply bewilder the congregation, and give rise to much discussion and perhaps not a little heart-burning, without producing an effect at all proportionate to the forces set in motion.

In the valuable Preface in our Prayer Book, concerning the Service of the Church (luminous with the plain wisdom of common sense), the intention of the Service is stated to be—"that the Clergy, and especially such as were Ministers in the congregation, should (by often reading, and meditation in God's word) be stirred up to godliness themselves and be more able to exhort others by wholesome doctrine, and to confute them that were adversaries to the truth; and further, that the people (by daily hearing of Holy Scripture read in the Church) might continually profit more and more in the knowledge of God, and be the more inflamed with the love of His true religion." The musical part of the Service ought surely to conduce to this end; and thus it seems to me, that in laying down a general scheme of the manner of conducting musical worship, the chief point to be kept in view should be the complete identification of the whole congregation, with the three great elements of which the Service consists,—Prayer, Praise and Thanksgiving. Matters of detail would have to be settled in accordance with the general tone of the worship. But surely the main point to be kept in view in the arrangement is to secure unity of design and purpose in the whole—to avoid the bewilderment and doubt that will surely arise from any inconsistency or contradiction in the various parts; above all to regard, as a most important element, that the plan of the musical Service should not remain a mystery to those who form the congregation; that it should speak for itself, and be, to use the homely old English phrase, "Understanded of the people."

The question now arises—What is to be the basis of the musical service in a particular church? I unhesitatingly answer that the basis on which the musical service, to be really efficacious, must be built up, is a patient and intelligent consideration of the requirements, and wants (not always the wishes) of the congregation. I speak with deference as a layman, but I hope to have the suffrages of my audience, when I say that of the various phases of zeal without discretion, one of the most lamentable appears to me the persistency which endeavours to force upon a congregation a musical service utterly unsuited to its capabilities and requirements. We cannot forget how in a time of fierce controversy the grand swell of the organ suggested to a thoroughly earnest, and respectable, if somewhat narrow-minded sect, nothing more elevating or religious than the roaring of the Bulls of Bashan. And to-day the most elaborately constructed musical service introduced among a congregation of homely cottiers and country folks, might represent to their bewildered ears, mere "sound and fury, signifying nothing." In plain terms then,—What is to be avoided, and what is to be followed?

First in the list of things to be eschewed with the greatest care, I would place what I shall term in no invidious sense, but frankly and fairly, the clerical crotchet. It has happened to me more than once to meet a clergyman, whose education and refinement have had the fair consequence of giving him a just appreciation of what is excellent in musical art, and religious in musical feeling. He finds his lot cast among a population whose idea of Psalmody sometimes shocks his reverential feeling, and never fails to set his teeth on edge. With the most honest and single-minded desire to introduce a better state of things, he begins by forcing on an unwilling community a musical service so entirely above their capacity of comprehension, that in the effect it produces on their devotional feeling, it is as if he were to read the Testament to them in the original Greek. Pursued in his private study, this course of Psalmody is to him infinitely elevating, and soothes his mind and spirits after many a hard day's labour, perhaps in a barren soil. Carried out in its entirety in his little village church, it becomes a mischievous clerical crotchet.

Another form of error which no one who has interested himself in these matters can have failed to observe, and which I consider equally to be deprecated, I shall designate as the system of dubious diplomacy. The course pursued by many a zealous kindly clergyman, anxious to improve the tone of his service, ends in vexation and failure, for want of decision on his part in asserting that authority and command in his own church which is most undoubtedly his right. Our friend finds a state of things very different from that sketched in the foregoing example. A congregation educated, intelligent, and capable of better things has been subjected to a service performed in a perfunctory and languid style, the Responses for instance being made by a clerk who seems to have been named on the lucus a non lucendo principle, inasmuch as he is probably less clerically than any one in the congregation. The clergyman is anxious to remedy this state of things, but finds himself met by the vis inertia that is an element in every congregation; a spirit that deprecates all change, and to overcome which, by energy and tact, I consider a very important part of the duty of every working clergyman. But in such circumstances a timid, self-distrusting man will proceed as it were to canvas his congregation; he notes down objections and acquiescences, and proceeds to balance them against each other; he yields a point here, and sometimes, alas, gives up a principle there; he reforms one faulty part of the Service at the dictate of common sense and progress, and he leaves another untouched to conciliate prejudice, and self-asserting ignorance. In the end his Service is thoroughly inconsistent; and with bitter disappointment he is secretly conscious of having missed an opportunity, while he has disappointed his supporters, and failed to propitiate his opponents. His position is not unlike that of the doubtful man described by Cowper:

"Dubious is such a scrupulous good man,
Yes, you may catch him tripping if you can;
He would not with a peremptory tone
Assert the nose upon his face his own;
With hesitation, admirably slow,
He humbly hopes, presumes, it may be so.

* * * * *
Knows what he knows, as if he knew it not,
What he remembers seems to have forgot,
His sole opinion whatsoe'er befall,
Cent'ring at last in having none at all."

But of all the errors which cry aloud for a remedy, the worst to my mind is perpetrated in the endeavour to draw a new congregation to a church, or to fill up the thinned ranks of a decreasing flock by the exhibition of startling novelties, and what I should term musical tours de force. The evil of making the musical part of the Service a means of counteracting the deficiencies of the rest strikes at the very root of church morals. Who ever had a clearer eye to mark, or a more incisive pen to record, the errors of his time than the author of the "New-comers?" Though distorted here and there into something like caricature, the picture the great satirist drew of the church of the Rev. Charles Honeyman and its musical attractions had its application then, and I have reason to believe has not lost its significance now. Indeed, the evil was known and appreciated more than a century before Thackeray was born; for does not Pope liken those who read poetry merely for the jingle without taking note of the sense, to men "who to church repair, not for the doctrine but the music there." The motives by which many are led thus to endeavour to fill their churches are, I am ready to believe, of the most praiseworthy kind. Anxious to be "all things to all men," they consider such a device to attract a congregation as having nothing objectionable in itself. But as on the one hand we are all shocked when we hear the enunciation of startling vulgarisms or profane allusions in a sermon, and are unwilling to condone such offences on the plea of their alleged awakening tendency, so I hold it to be alike objectionable and futile to endeavour to bring a congregation into a church by tickling their æsthetic susceptibilities. No one, I am sure, will suspect me of depreciating my art, or of holding music in anything but the highest honour. But for that very reason I should wish music to occupy its rightful place, and no other; nor can I see aught but disadvantage and ultimate failure in the attempt to make the musical part of the Church Service more than an accessory—a most valuable one—to be regulated by the precept that enjoins the doing of all things connected with public worship "decently and in order."

But now having endeavoured to indicate—I trust without arrogance or the slightest tinge of personality—what I consider the errors in the arrangement of our musical service, I would ask your attention to the other side of the question, and speak of the plan to be adopted in raising the Church Service to a higher and better standard.

And first of all, I would divide our Service into two great classes—the Congregational or Parochial, and the Cathedral or Meditative division. It will, I think, be conceded on all hands that the Congregational Services of our Anglican Church were based on the principle that every one in the assembly has a right—nay, even an obligation—to take a part in the Service beyond that of a silent auditor. The reading of the prayers and Scriptures in English, the uttering of the General Confession by Priest and people together, the arrangement of the Responses, alike in the Morning and Evening Service, the Litany, and indeed everywhere, all point to this great and fundamental rule. I do not think that the introduction and development of music in the Service was ever intended to do away with this right. Therefore I hold that the safe and sure rule to be followed in arranging the musical Service, for any congregation, whether urban or rural, educated or untaught, is simply—to select the very best music such congregation can understand, and in which it can join. If the capacity of a community is limited to the appreciation and religious enjoyment of Hymns, then the best Hymn Tunes should be selected. Where, on the other hand, a considerable part of the congregation can appreciate more scientific music, by all means let such music fulfil the highest purpose to which it could be applied by being incorporated in the Service.

But the principle that the congregational service should be one in which the congregation can join, involves, to my thinking, a second principle, namely, that of singing in unison,—inasmuch as this is the only form which admits of a whole congregation's joining without a violation of the laws of harmony. Let us suppose a Hymn sung in parts, with an ad libitum addition of voices among the congregation. In the first place, we should have the basses and tenors singing the melody an octave below the female voices, and, consequently, ranging on an average, below the tenor part in the choir. I need not remind my audience of the effect produced by the inversion of the interval of the 4th, how it converts harmony into discord. Then there is a third objection, arising from the inevitable presence in the congregation of those aspiring amateurs who invent an obligato part of their own, with a sublime indifference to its effect in conjunction with the choir. It is simply impossible to have a Hymn sung in parts, and allow the congregation to join, without the presence of these three disturbing elements.

And now comes the question—Of what is the musical service to consist? Bearing in mind the principle of completeness and the correspondence of parts, I should say it must contain responses in plain song or monotone. The prayers, &c., must be intoned; the Psalms and Canticles chanted; the Hymns sung in unison. With regard to the choice of plain song or monotone in the responses, I should make the musical ability of the congregation the standard of selection. When there is any doubt as to the vocal powers of the community or of the officiating clergyman, I should decidedly say the monotone is to be preferred. And here, perhaps, I may remark that a greatly increased efficiency is to be obtained by the introduction of musical rehearsals of the congregation. On this point I claim to speak from personal experience, having tried the plan and found its results very satisfactory. Among other advantages connected with the unison system is the opportunity offered for utilizing fine voices and correct ears where there is no technical knowledge of music. Then again, when the work is distributed among a great number, individual importance is lessened; to the great comfort in particular of the organist, whose mind need not be disturbed by secret doubts and fears of the collapse that may be occasioned by the non-arrival of the indispensable tenor. And here I should say that among the changes most necessary towards bringing about a higher standard of efficiency in Church singing, is the establishment of a better and more efficient class of choir-masters than we have yet seen. We want men not only of musical but of intellectual cultivation,—men, who themselves feeling the inner meaning of a hymn, and appreciating the facilities music offers for the expression of that feeling, shall be able to explain clearly and fully to their choirs and congregations the scope and content of every composition they undertake. If once the choir-master can put himself thoroughly into the position of the interpreter of the work, and can enlist the sympathies of those he teaches for what he himself admires and appreciates, he has obtained the best lever for moving his choir to a higher position.

We shall, however, hardly, I think, attain this desideratum until the amount not only of technical but of general education obtained by the choir-masters shall have been very considerably enlarged. To my mind, the contrast between the large number of efficient executive organists and the very limited supply of efficient technical choir-masters goes far towards suggesting the remedy. In Germany, for a long time, and in England quite recently, the necessity has been recognised of making the art and science of teaching a subject of education. We now train the schoolmaster that he may teach. Why not systematically instruct the future choir-master in the best method of imparting knowledge to his choir? In many churches the zealous clergyman and congregation expend much strength on the desirable object of procuring a fine professional choir. Would it not be a better investment of energy and money to seek out and adequately remunerate a really thoughtful and efficient choir-master?

And now I have to speak of the other great class of Services—the Cathedral form, which I have designated as the Meditative, in contradistinction to the Congregational service. That a separate kind of service is naturally appropriate to our glorious Cathedrals and Minsters may be taken, I think, as an acknowledged fact. The vast size of the edifice, the echoes that reverberate through its aisles, the indistinct effect produced in it by the human voice, and even the gorgeousness and grandeur of the mighty fane itself, with its elaborate decorations and architectural ornaments—all these things point to an ornate and elaborate Service, that the worship may be in accordance with the temple in which it is offered,

“When through the long-drawn aisle and fretted vault
The pealing anthem swells the note of praise.”

The very construction of the Cathedral points to the idea that the congregation assemble there to hear, to keep silence, and to meditate. Their joining in the Service would be exceedingly difficult. It would be likely to produce confusion, and could hardly be a satisfaction to the worshippers themselves. A higher and more artistic kind of musical service, a greater intensity must therefore be required to arouse and maintain in the congregation the true devotional feeling and sympathy for an act in which they take no personal part. Therefore, the whole of the Cathedral Service, with the exception of the reading of the Scriptures and sermon, is musical. As the services of a trained choir are here always available, musical compositions of a difficult and elaborate kind may appropriately be introduced. But I would, with all the earnestness of which I am capable, deprecate what I consider the bane of our Cathedral music—the ultra-conservative spirit of antiquarianism which insists on keeping whatever is old, simply because it is old, with a total disregard of its appropriateness and adaptation to the wants and feelings of the present century. On the other hand, there is sometimes a startling tendency to innovation that manifests itself in the easy admission of new compositions—efforts, in many cases, of members or friends of the Cathedral executive. These compositions would seem to be admitted only because they are new. In the words of the Preface in our Prayer-Book it may be justly said—"In this our time the minds of men are so drawn that some think it a great matter of conscience to depart from a piece of the least of their ceremonies, they be so addicted to their old customs: and again, on the other side, some be so new-fangled, that they would innovate all things and so despise the old, that nothing can like them but what is new." I desire to protest most strongly, alike against overstrained antiquarianism that retains what is useless, and the good-natured levity which accepts what is valueless, and defaces a solemn Service to give pleasure to a friend. Both these classes of men should be reminded still in the words of the same Preface, that "it was thought expedient not so much to have respect how to please and satisfy either of these parties as how to please God, and profit them both."

In connection with the completeness and the elevation of the Musical Service, I feel constrained to say a few words on a point which appears to me one of vital importance, but one which curiously enough seems to have been the subject of less attention than many matters of minor moment—the appointment of those who hold musical offices in Cathedrals. If a thoroughly conscientious man were to be invested with the power and responsibility of nominating a body of men to carry out any commercial or literary enterprise, what would those who had entrusted him with that power, or whose interests were to be affected by its use or abuse, naturally expect him to do? Surely to make the efficiency of each person he nominates the one great criterion by which his choice is governed, and just in proportion as he puts aside every feeling of clanship, private sympathy, and good-natured inclination to oblige on mere personal grounds, would he be considered to have fulfilled his trust in an honourable manner, and to have rendered himself worthy of the confidence reposed in him. This obvious and undeniable principle ought, in my opinion, to govern the action of the Church dignitary who nominates an organist, a choir-master, or a lay-clerk. The person so nominated ought to be simply the best organist, the most educated choir-master, the most efficient lay-clerk, to be discovered by earnest and painstaking search. No kindly impulse to oblige a friend, whose moral character may bear the strictest investigation, whilst his musical abilities will not, should induce the patron, in gauging that friend's claims to the position, to be "to his virtues very kind, and to his faults a little blind." It is not sufficient to be assured that such a candidate is a safe man and will not go wrong. Every new candidate ought to be able to subscribe his quota towards developing Church Music, and should help to make things go right. As in other walks of life, the most difficult person to deal with is the slow man, who ambles along in a respectable old-fashioned jog-trot, faithful to his motto, "Quieta non movere." So I consider as the bane of the Choir the respectable mediocrity who has just so much musical knowledge as will suffice, backed up by eminent respectability and a blameless life, to keep him clear of official censure. All idea of patronage or canvassing should be eliminated from these matters, and the candidate should stand or fall by his merit, his whole merit, and nothing but his merit. One of the worst elements that can be introduced into matters of this description, is what I may term that unwritten law of primogeniture, which supposes that a son should succeed to that musical estate in which I hold that the possessor has only a personal interest. There should be no hereditary claims in Art. A still more objectionable arrangement, because it has not even the natural kindly sentiment to recommend it, is the custom by which a pupil is frequently allowed to succeed for no better reason than that he is his master's pupil. He has not, indeed, done anything for Art. He cannot be said to have won his spurs; but then he is not offensively inefficient, and thus gets his appointment on the lamentable principle that he will do very well. The old tradition of sleepy contentment is thus perpetuated; with each such appointment it obtains a new lease of life, and the healthy development of Music is put off to a more convenient season. If I required an example to strengthen or illustrate my position on this matter, I might point with considerable confidence to an instance which occurs to me very vividly—an instance in which for once an appointment has been made to a most important musical post in our Metropolitan Cathedral, on what I consider to be the surest and most legitimate ground, that of the claims of the person elected as a musician, a scholar, and a gentleman. The results in this case have been so eminently satisfactory that I cannot but hope to see the principle carried out elsewhere, and to look forward to a time when in these matters personal consideration shall be left out of the question, and when the rule shall be to choose the best man available, without fear or favour.

I have hitherto made a marked distinction between the congregational and the meditative, the Church and the Cathedral Service, and have endeavoured to show that a distinctive treatment is required in each case. Nevertheless, it has often occurred to me that there are points of connection between the two, that in certain particulars the Cathedral Service might adopt a feature of Congregational Worship, and that the majority of churches on the other hand may, without inconsistency, introduce an element, generally associated with the Cathedral, into their ordinary form of prayer. In the Cathedral the congregation must in the main keep silence and hear; but why should not one part of the Service be so ordered that every worshipper may lift up the voice of praise and thanksgiving? A Hymn might be introduced into every Service, to be sung in unison by choir and congregation. This, I think, would stimulate devotion without in any way departing from the unity of the Service. On the other hand, an anthem introduced into the ordinary Church Service where the choir could efficiently sing it would certainly be an interesting and useful adjunct, and might be looked upon as a kind of musical sermon. This, indeed, may be regarded as an ex post facto suggestion, as the custom has already been introduced in various churches; but this gives me the advantage, that I am able to point to its successful and satisfactory effect where the attempt has been made, and thus to recommend its further extension as something that has been tried and not found wanting.

No thoughtful observer can have failed to notice a movement that has been taking place of late years in connection with our Cathedrals—a movement which, indeed, has been received with cordial and genial welcome, which has excited the sympathies and has been furthered by the efforts of some of the best men amongst us, but whose full importance and scope has scarcely perhaps as yet been fully appreciated. I mean, of course, the endeavour to render our great Cathedrals a more active means for the diffusion of religious knowledge and the development of Christian worship. There was a time, within the memory of many of us, when a Cathedral was hardly looked upon in the light of a church. It was considered by the majority even of educated Englishmen as a glorious monument of antiquity—a splendid relic of a former age, an enduring evidence of what the piety and munificence of our ancestors had been able to effect. I do not, of course, go back to those lamentable days when even the kindly pen of good-natured Goldsmith acquired a certain bitterness, when, with thoroughly legitimate and wholesome satire, he wrote of the manner in which a glorious Abbey was degraded into a show-place, when a wax-work exhibition was displayed accompanied by a running descriptive commentary in the style of Mrs. Jarley, to the great emolument of certain attendants and the proportionate discomfiture of all whose thoughts and meditations were disturbed by the vulgar tirade thrust upon them. I allude to those later times, when we had so far seen the error of our ways, that the showman scandal had been suppressed. But even then the Cathedral, after the buyers and sellers had been driven forth from the Temple, remained, so far as its Services were concerned, an institution that stood alone—a noble relic, perhaps, of the past; but without its active and recognised share in the stirring religious work of the present.

Very happy are the indications that show what a change is coming over all this. The overflowing congregations that have listened with rapt attention to eloquent sermons, and participated in the hearty Services held in the naves of our Cathedrals on Sunday evenings—the evident interest with which the progress of the movement has been watched, not only by its promoters, but by the large class for whose benefit it has been chiefly intended; even the occasional difficulty and struggle to obtain a place, are the best criterion of the readiness with which the opportunity thus afforded was seized. All these things appear to me a most healthful proof that there is a stirring movement amongst the dry bones, and that a time is approaching when our grand Cathedrals shall fulfil an office and occupy a place in the Church worthy of the piety that erected and the munificence that endowed them.

It is in connection with this part of the subject that I would throw out a suggestion which has been long in my mind, and which indeed has been to a certain extent carried out in every instance with success that went beyond the most sanguine anticipations. I consider it would be a good and useful thing to introduce into our Cathedrals appropriate musical services on the great Festivals and Fasts of the Church. I have said that this has already been successfully tried. At Westminster nearly three years ago the movement was inaugurated by the performance of Bach's Passion Music at a Service held in the Abbey, in Passion Week; and no one who was then present, and noted the bearing and demeanour of the vast congregation, who listened in awe-struck silence till the echo of the last word had died away, can have a doubt as to the solemn and elevating effect of that remarkable Service. Last year the experiment—if indeed it had not gone past that phase—was repeated at Westminster, and this year it was introduced at St. Paul's. In the parish church of St. Anne's, Soho, the smaller Passion Music was given no less than seven times; and the interest, so far from falling off as the services were repeated, was found steadily to increase. This seems clearly to indicate the direction in which a very comprehensive effort might be made.

The last few years have witnessed a great awakening in the zeal and solicitude with which our Church Festivals and Fasts are celebrated. Considerable care is now taken, for instance, in the choice of anthems suitable to the various days. Many churches in which Service was performed on Festival days, and which on those occasions were almost empty, are now filled with devout and earnest worshippers. This suggests to me the feasibility of carrying out, on a large scale, the principle that led to the musical Services I have mentioned. I should rejoice to see, throughout the length and breadth of the land, a complete series of Musical Services established appropriate to the observance of the various Festivals and Fasts. I should like to see the genius of the greatest musical composers enlisted in the noble task of furnishing the medium for glorifying the Creator and singing the praises of the Redeemer. I should rejoice to see congregations thronging to our churches, as I firmly believe they would throng on such occasions, to return with hearts elevated and minds enlightened, thankful for the privilege of participating in a Service wherein, so far as human weakness and earthly imperfection can achieve such a result, the glory of the Immortal is foreshadowed.

But plainly and clearly, what is the nature of these Services to be? I venture to think that they ought to be entirely musical. I would have them consist of the shortened Order of Evening Prayer, a special Psalm, a special Lesson, and an Oratorio, or large Psalm after the third Collect. The Oratorio should be accompanied by a complete orchestra and divided into two parts, separated by a short sermon. An appropriate hymn at the close of the Service would give the congregation an opportunity of joining practically in the celebration. Of available compositions there is certainly no lack. What is required is judicious selection and efficient performance. What more appropriate for the Season of Advent than Mendelssohn's "Lobgesang," with its splendid central idea, that gives, as it were, the key note to the whole "The night is departing, the day is at hand." Christmas-tide would find ample and appropriate illustration in Handel's "Messiah" and Bach's Christmas Oratorio. For the period intervening between Christmas and Lent, we have a number of Church Cantatas of great power and excellence, an inheritance from the genius of Sebastian Bach. For the solemn period of Lent, the Passions of Handel and Bach, the "Calvary" of Spohr, with the "Death of Jesus" by Graun, are available. The Lessons for Easter Day tell the story of the Exodus of the children of Israel. How could this be better illustrated than by the glorious music of Handel's "Israel in Egypt." Mendelssohn's "Elijah" would furnish a good illustration for the great Festival of the Ascension.

I am unwilling to trespass too long upon the kind attention that has been accorded to me; the subject too is one that requires far more elaborate treatment, if it is to be pursued exhaustively, than can be included within the limits of such a Paper as this; therefore I am fain to content myself with the plain statement of facts and opinions I have had the honour to lay before you, leaving what is unspoken to-night to be submitted to you, I hope, at some future opportunity.

The sum of what I would observe in conclusion is this:—We have, I consider, been grievously neglectful of the opportunities we have long possessed, of conducting Musical Services worthily and well. With ample means at our disposal, we have too readily contented ourselves with letting things remain as they have been. We are now, I think, awakening to a sense of our duties and responsibilities, and are beginning to utilize those means. A greater amount of care and thought are being bestowed on the task of selecting those who hold musical posts, and the importance is now recognised of making Musical Services, as an integral part of public worship, to correspond with the remainder of the sacred rite. And surely there can be no higher incentive to stimulate exertion and awaken zeal in this direction, than the thought that every one who contributes towards the perfection of the Church Service is employing his talents in his Master's service, and labouring for the honour of God.

BRISTOL MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

BRISTOL can make no claim to the musical reputation enjoyed by many towns farther north; but it would have established a Musical Festival long ago had there been a Hall sufficiently large for the purpose. The Broadmead Rooms were much too small, and the Victoria Rooms at Clifton not quite large enough, so that those who had the matter at heart could do no other than await a better state of things. They waited long—fourteen or fifteen years, as some say—but patience met with its reward a few months ago, when the approaches to the handsome, but, at first, almost inaccessible, new Colston Hall were completed. Then the pioneers of the Festival set vigorously to work, and were supported with as much zeal as unanimity by the principal members of the local public. It boots not to describe the measures taken from time to time. Enough that a splendid guarantee fund was secured, that a host of distinguished people showed their sympathy with the project; that Mr. Charles Hallé undertook the musical equipment of the Festival, and that the general public looked on favourably, while the local press gave a unanimous support. Nothing could be more cheering than the prospects of the scheme, when once it was definitely made known. The conditions promised a good artistic success, and general expressions of sympathy gave an assurance against pecuniary failure. As the good fashion is, the Festival promoters identified its cause with that of charity, thus uniting the wisdom of the serpent to the harmlessness of the dove. No one really believes, we imagine, that benevolent purposes were the primary cause. The Festival was established for its own sake, and would have been established had not a single Hospital in Bristol needed pecuniary help. As the Bristol Hospitals did suffer from want of funds, no more laudable step could have been taken than the association of their claims with those of music, thus consecrating the results of art-work to that virtue which, according to Dr. Johnson, is a "universal duty."

Fortunate in the sympathy it excited, the Festival was also fortunate generally. Its managers were not ashamed to profit by the experience of others, and the result has been smooth and agreeable working, such as only experience can ensure. Mr. Hallé proved a capital and zealous conductor; his well-known Manchester orchestra, if not very brilliant in quality of tone, was well up to the high standard of the music chosen, and the Bristol amateur vocalists, trained by Mr. Alfred Stone, supplied a chorus not often excelled for merit. The main conditions of success were thus satisfied; and when it became known that a liberal expenditure had secured the services of Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Alvsleben, Madame Patey, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Lewis Thomas, and Mr. Santley, it was felt that if the Festival proved unable to command the desired results, it would, at least, deserve them. Man is said to be the "creature of circumstances," and the Festival Committee were peculiarly so in regard to their programme. Having to provide choral music for seven concerts in a short space of time, it was absolutely necessary that the works selected should be those involving least trouble in preparation. Hence, the choice of familiar things like the "Messiah," "Elijah," "Creation," "Lobgesang," and "Stabat Mater." Some novelty, however, was desirable, and as much of it as could well be prepared was found in Mr. G. A. Macfarren's "St. John the Baptist"—a short Oratorio originally intended for the Gloucester Festival of 1871. As will presently appear, no better choice could have been made, the new work conferring a distinction upon the Festival which lifted it from local into national importance. The evening programmes, usually so ad captandum at provincial gatherings, seem to have been drawn up with a desire not merely to please but to instruct. Mr. Hallé's band was utilized to the utmost in the performance of two Symphonies and part of a third, seven Overtures, and a March, all accepted classical works; while Mr. Hallé himself contributed piano-forte solos. The Choir, moreover, gave a selection of part-songs by eminent writers, and thus the mere tours de force, which are the delight of vocalists hungering for applause, were reduced to a comparatively limited number. On the whole, there was very little to find fault with, and very much to praise, in the character and management of the Festival. The thing proved a credit to the old Western city, and was rewarded by a success which made evident the fact that Bristol can not only get up a Festival, but also support it when got up. According to trustworthy accounts (not, however, officially confirmed as yet), the receipts for tickets amounted to over £6,000, of which upwards of £5,000 were required to meet expenses; leaving some hundreds of pounds for the Medical Charities. The result far exceeded the most sanguine hopes; and it was not without reason that the Chairman of the Committee (Alderman Baker) described himself, at a closing soirée, as a "happy" Chairman.

After the remarks above made, it can hardly be necessary to criticise the performances in detail. Dismissing them, therefore, with the general observation that they were all more or less good, and adding that Mr. Alfred Stone's choralists at once established a reputation for refinement of style and agreeable quality of tone, we pass on to notice the work which, more than anything else, gave importance to the Festival, and, more than anything else recently published, asserted the presence of genius among us. We refer, of course, to Mr. Macfarren's "St. John the Baptist."

Grand as is the figure of St. John the Baptist, he, and the circumstances with which he was connected, do not, at first sight, appear adapted to musical treatment. Apart from a lack of incident sufficient to equip a full-size oratorio, the story of John's life seems too hard and rugged, wanting in the elements of contrast, and in the charm that makes attractive power. But this is a matter of semblance rather than reality. Stern and unlovely though John's character may be, it is commanding in its earnestness, boldness and zeal for the right; while the almost romantic conditions under which he met his death give special interest to him as a martyr for the truth he preached. John was the Elijah of the New Testament, as ready to rebuke kingly wickedness as his great predecessor, and as eager to everywhere vindicate the cause of righteousness. Such a man ranks among heroes; and no matter under what conditions it exists, the heroic excites sympathy in the universal heart. Carlyle calls heroism "the divine relation which, in all times, unites a great man to other men;" and it is impossible to look upon the stern ascetic who walked among priests and kings, preaching a crusade against the corruption of the one and the licentiousness of the other, without feeling the power always exercised by a grand and masterful spirit. It was not only right that St. John the Baptist should be made the hero of a sacred drama, but safe; and not only safe, but, with regard to the libretto, easy. The recorded incidents of John's life are few; and Dr. E. G. Monk, who prepared Mr. Macfarren's book, could hardly have found much difficulty, either as regards the light in which the Prophet should be placed, or the events to be illustrated. Dr. Monk divides his libretto into two parts, naming the first "The Desert," the second "Machaerus," after the places in which the respective scenes are laid. In "The Desert" John appears as the preacher of righteousness, and as the baptizer of Him whose forerunner he was; while "Machaerus" is wholly taken up with the incidents of the Prophet's martyrdom. Nothing could be simpler in construction, or more definite in outline; and, it should be added, that rarely have texts wholly taken from the Bible been collated with greater skill or greater pertinacy to the subject in hand. The form of the book is chiefly dramatic; but here and there narrative is introduced, and each part winds up with reflective choruses of the kind librettists, as a rule, so largely use. Dr. Monk did well to reserve his didacticism till after having closed the scenes suggesting it, a grateful result being that the drama progresses unhindered, without the halting made necessary by efforts to "improve the occasion." Three dramatis personæ occupy the stage:—John (baritone), bold, stern, uncompromising, and "faithful unto death;" Herod (tenor), weak, impulsive and voluptuous; and Salome (soprano), beautiful, seductive and rejoicing in her youth. The Narrator (contralto), apart from one air, merely delivers the recitatives by means of which the story is carried on from one dramatic scene to another. As regards actors, therefore, not less than incidents, Dr. Monk's libretto possesses the merit of simplicity and definiteness.

Without any general observations by way of prologue, we now go on to notice each of the twenty-four numbers constituting Mr. Macfarren's Oratorio.

No. 1. The overture to "St. John the Baptist" having been performed at a concert of the British Orchestral Society, and also at the Birmingham Festival, and having had its great merit fully recognized on both occasions, now requires neither description nor eulogy. Only at Bristol, however, could its significance be fully understood; a frequent use of its themes in the body of the work affording indications of the composer's ideas with regard to them.

No. 2. The last verse in the Old Testament "Behold, I send My messenger" &c., is here made the subject of a chorus in G major, Maestoso Assai, which serves as a singularly felicitous prologue to the drama. Mr. Macfarren makes the voices reiterate the word "Behold!" at intervals filled up with emphatic passages for the orchestra, after which the promise of the Messenger is set to simple phrases in massive harmony, that give dignity and emphasis to its enunciation. On the words "He shall turn the heart of the fathers," &c., the altos lead off a fugue in C major, the subject of which is expressive enough to dominate the scholastic form and create an effect of sentiment rather than of science. The fugue is worked out with clearness, if not with elaborate device—which would ill become its character as an episode,—and, at its close on the dominant, the voices, in unison declaim the words, "Lest He come and smite the earth with a curse,"—doing so on the tonic while the orchestral basses descend the scale to A sharp, on which note the fortissimo harmony of the dominant seventh of B gives terrible emphasis to the word "curse." After this, repetitions of "Behold," twice in (pp) unison on the dominant, and once in (ff) full tonic harmony end a chorus that sustains the interest and impressiveness of the overture.

No. 3. The narrator now describes, in recitative, the coming and appearance of the forerunner: the vocal phrases, which, like all Mr. Macfarren's recitative are masterly, being occasionally interrupted by interludes. It should specially be noted that the orchestral introduction begins with a progression—E flat, F, A flat—of undoubtedly ecclesiastical origin—one moreover, which Mendelssohn in his "Reformation" Symphony and other works, employs with a manifest preference for its effect. This progression is used throughout the oratorio both as the Prophet's attendant, and representative, and soon becomes completely identified with his individuality.

No. 4. John now appears and delivers his message in the form of an air, "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," D major, Moderato. The music set to this injunction has a character of entreaty rather than authority, being tender and persuasive; but on the words, "O generation of vipers," &c., a change is made to D minor, and to a mode of expression that well conveys the intense scorn of the Prophet for those who, like Jeroboam the son of Nebat, had "made Israel to sin." The wider intervals between the notes of the melody, its occasional abrupt phrases, echoed with emphasis by the orchestra, and the generally agitated accompaniment are dramatic in a high degree. A quaint unaccompanied phrase on the words "We have Abraham to our father" closely resembles an antique cadence possibly of Hebrew origin, and yields a peculiar and characteristic effect that can hardly pass unobserved. The Prophet's solemn admonitions are carried on in vigorous style till an impassioned peroration brings them to an end. Throughout the Oratorio Mr. Macfarren never prefers musical "form" to dramatic effect and, in this case, there is no reprise of the first subject, nor any return to the original key.

No. 5. In this chorus (Moderato, F major) a dialogue is carried on between the Baptist, and various classes of those who have heard his words. First the "People" ask, "What shall we do then," &c., in a smoothly written passage chiefly remarkable for a brief canon on the second for sopranos and tenors. Before John replies, the church phrase is heard in the orchestra. In turn, Publicans, Soldiers, and Pharisees question the Prophet, and are answered, the interest of the music being sustained throughout by varied, yet always dignified and appropriate means, more especially by the introduction of passages from the overture, the significance of which is thus revealed.

No. 6. The incident of John's preaching now closes with an air in A major for the preacher, set to the well-known text "I indeed baptize you with water," &c. Various points of interest are presented in this song, the general effect of which is all that can be desired. The introduction of the trombones when allusion is made to the baptism of the Holy Ghost; the florid scale passages on the words, "Whose fan is in his hand," and the contrasted treatment of the clauses referring to the "wheat" and the "chaff" are all evidence of the composer's thoughtful skill. In this instance there is a reprise of the leading theme, after which a short cadenza for voice and oboe brings the song to an effective end.

Nos. 7 and 8. The Narrator tells how Jesus came to John to be baptized and carries on the story till the Divine Voice speaks. Here the Narrator pauses, and sweeping harp chords, in association with muted violins played in the highest parts of their scale, throw a flood of celestial light upon the scene. No effect could be more ethereal—perhaps, the word should be "heavenly"—than the effect of this orchestration, and by it the mind is prepared for the Divine Utterance, "This is my beloved Son," &c. Following the precedent set by Mendelssohn in "St. Paul," Mr. Macfarren has given these words to a chorus of female voices—two sopranos and contralto—which utter them once in plain, unadorned harmony, and then leave the orchestra to resume its delicate and suggestive work. The composer, with his usual good judgment, does not prolong this situation. It passes quickly, and by so much the more does it leave a profound impression upon the mind.

No. 9. To meet exigencies quite apart from those of the drama, or even of musical effect, Mr. Macfarren now gives the Narrator an air, "In the beginning was the Word." We take leave to doubt whether this song will remain connected with the Oratorio, below the general level of which, in our view, it falls considerably. A consensus of opinion on this matter may lead to a change for the better, and vindicate the wisdom of Mr. Macfarren in not printing his work till, like Mendelssohn in the case of "Elijah," he had had an opportunity of benefiting by a public performance, and public judgment.

No. 10. The dramatic scene has now ended, and, by way of reflection upon all that has passed, comes a chorus in B flat major, the character and merit of which raise it to the highest eminence. Mr. Macfarren has taken the first verse of the well-known old version of Psalm civ., "My soul, praise the Lord," &c., and taken, also, its inseparable musical companion—the tune ascribed to Dr. Croft, and known as "Hanover." First of all, the chorale is sung (Largo) in unaccompanied vocal harmony, after which the tempo changes to Allegro, and the first two phrases of the tune are announced by the sopranos as the

